Under proposed 2001 Farm Bill

Grain, cotton acres increase; conservation boosted

The House Agriculture Committee on Friday completed the next farm bill designed to bring predictability back to the federal government's farm support programs while enlarging participation in soil and water conservation.

By allowing producers the voluntary choice to update their base acres, and adding counter-cyclical support based on target prices to the already-established 2002 level of transition payments, the Agricultural Act of 2001 (H.R. 2646) provides both the flexibility and predictability that most producers, commodity and farm groups have called for in the next farm bill.

Enlarging participation for soil and water conservation programs by 80 percent above current budget trends, the House Agriculture Committee 2001 Farm Bill provides producers with more options to implement progressive conserving practices on their land, with the backing of increased technical assistance to producers using any government or private contractors.

"House Ag Committee Members made good use of their farming and ranching experience to deliver flexibility and predictability for producers and budget responsibility for taxpayers, as a departure from the uncertainty of the recent year-to-year patchwork of additional financial assistance," said House Agriculture Chairman Larry Combest (R-Texas)

"The bill reported today is a good deal for agriculture and a good deal for taxpayers. Emergency spending by Congress to respond to agriculture's income crisis was proof that our programs need reworking. Today, the Committee took a bold first step toward meeting that need," said Ranking Minority Member Charlie Stenholm (D-Texas).

"This legislation brings together a coalition of interests that will be needed to pass it in the full House and see it signed into law by the end of the year," Stenholm said.

Here are some of the finer points of the House bill.

Commodity Programs

◆ Maintains maximum planting flexibility while providing counter-cyclical protection to help farmers weather adverse market conditions.

◆ Retains fixed-decoupled payments, as well as the marketing loan program. Marketing loan rates are maintained for all commodities except oilseeds, which are reduced to a level equivalent to other commodities, and grain sorghum which is raised to a level equivalent to corn.

◆ Provides producers with the option to update base acreage. Current base yields are maintained. Both fixed-decoupled, and counter-cyclical payments are made on the producer's base.

◆ For oilseeds and farms without current AMTA payment base and yields, the Secretary is directed to develop payment yields that are comparable to current AMTA yields in the area.

◆ Counter-cyclical payments are triggered when a crop's price, adjusted for the fixed decoupled payment, is below the target price. The payment rate for a crop would be calculated as the difference between its target price and the sum of the following components:

(a) The higher of the national 12-month season average price received by producers, or the national average loan.

(b) The fixed decoupled payment rate.

◆ Payment limits are set at $50,000 for fixed decoupled payments, $75,000 for counter-cyclical payments and $150,000 for marketing loan gains and loan deficiency payments.

John Hazel, son of Wayland and Elaine Hazel gave this account of a recent trip that the Royal Ambassadors of the First Baptist Church took to Plains Baptist Assembly near Floydada.

George Rasor was the adult sponsor for seven Dimmitt boys. They left Dimmitt on a Wednesday and returned on Saturday.

The first thing on their agenda was Bible study and worship in the auditorium with a large group of boys, ages eight to 12, from all over the

The boys were then involved in camp crafts where they learned how to build a fire and some first aid techniques. They also learned how to shoot with a sling, practiced hitting a target with B.B. guns and created rope crafts.

John liked the daily swim in the newly renovated swimming pool. This was his favorite activity. Talking after the lights were out and pillow fighting made memorable experiences for the boys.

The Royal Ambassador boys who went were Kaden Griffith, Michael Rasor, Sid Sheffy, Michael and Kris Cline, and Sam and John Hazel.

The Hazel family, including John, his parents Wayland and Elaine, his sisters Morgan and Stephanie, and his brother Sam went camping in the mountains near Glorieta, N.M. They slept in a tent, rode horses and hiked.

The only wild animals they saw were squirrels, but they saw a bear's "bed" and fresh tracks that indicated there were bears nearby.

Sign-up begins Aug. 13 for FSA Quality Loss Program

Farmers who have suffered at least a 20% loss in 2000-year crop quality due to weather-related disasters may qualify for compensation under the Farm Service Agency's Quality Loss Program, and sign-up for this program will begin Aug. 13.

Those who think they may qualify for the program should contact the Castro County Farm Service Agency Office to schedule an appointment.

The Quality Loss Program was authorized by the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 2001.

Eligible crops are those produced and harvested in the 2000-crop year which suffered a minimum of 20% quality reduction. Unharvested production is not eligible for the Quality Loss Program. All crops are eligible except certain specialty crops such as ornamental nursery, Christmas trees, aquaculture, honey, turf grass sod, maple sap and ginseng. Quality losses for apples and potatoes are covered under a separate $38 million program.

Producers whose gross revenue exceeded $2.5 million for the 1999 tax year are ineligible for the Quality Loss Program. Losses on more than one 2000 crop on the same acreage are not eligible unless there is an established practice on the farm of planting and harvesting two or more crops in the same crop year on the same acreage.

Quality Loss Program applicants must provide the Farm Service Agency with written documentation of the quality of their harvested crop.

Examples of acceptable documentation include:

★ Grading receipts from a warehouse or licensed grader.

* Sales receipts providing the grade of the crop;

* University recognized test re-

★ Sales receipts showing disposition to a secondary market due to poor quality, such as malting barley sold for feed.

Quality loss payments are calculated by multiplying 65% of the affected production by 65% of the loss in value to due to quality.

Quality loss payments to farmers will begin soon after they sign up.

> Owners of the seed may collect a 4-pound representative "service sample" from a seed lot and send it in a secure container by overnight mail to Dr. David Marshall, Texas A&M University Research and Education Center, 17360 Coit Road, Dallas, TX 75252.

> The "service sample" must be double bagged in clean 1-gallon plastic zipper bags. A tag giving seed lot number and description, physical address of the lot and name and telephone number of the sender must accompany the sample.

The cost is $50 per sample payable to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. A phytosanitary certificate cannot be issued for "service samples."

Seed owners needing a phytosanitary certificate should contact Kelly Book, TDA's Seed Quality branch chief. TDA inspectors will collect official samples for analysis. If the sample is negative, TDA will issue the certificate.

A fee of $25 payable to the Texas Department of Agriculture is required when the certificate is issued. A laboratory analysis fee of $50 per sample, payable to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, must also be sent to the Texas A&M University Research and Education Center in Extension agent.

Any seed testing positive for Karnal bunt spores cannot be planted and must be used for grain. The samples will be further examined for bunted kernels. If bunted kernels are found, the U.S. Department of Agriculture may quarantine the facility and a portion of the county.

There is mandatory testing by USDA for wheat seed produced in regulated counties - Archer, Baylor, Throckmorton, Young and portions of San Saba and McCulloch.

Seed testing free of Karnal bunt spores and treated as prescribed by USDA can be planted within these counties. If spores are present, the seed must be used as grain, and movement of the grain is restricted if bunted kernels are present.

For more information, seed owners can contact Kelly Book, TDA's branch chief for Seed Quality at (512) 463-7136. There is also additional information available on TDA's web site www.agr.state.tx.us.

changes its name

The new name for the agency is Texas Cooperative Extension. The in every state and US territory. change was approved by the board of regents of the Texas A&M University System in July.

"The fact that agriculture is no longer in the name simply acknowledges the fact that Extension for many years has been providing educational programs for all segments of the population on a wide variety of topics," Neal said.

Most of the million-plus children in Texas 4-H, for example, come from the state's urban centers, not its rural areas.

"Extension's mission always has been to help farmers and ranchers be more productive, encourage families to grow stronger, empower young people to become good citizens, and help communities develop economically," Neal said.

"Some folks never realized we offered all these opportunities because our name seemed to emphasize only one area."

Despite the name change, Extension leaders affirmed that the agency's commitment to Texas' $15 billion agriculture industry will remain as strong as ever.

"Throughout our history, agriculture has been an integral part of what we do, one of the primary reasons for our work-and that won't change," said Extension Deputy Director Chester Fehlis. "However, our mission has always been broader than just agriculture, and we want all Texans to feel comfortable requesting assistance for the wide array of Extension educational programs designed to serve their needs."

"We are also part of the national Cooperative Extension System found We're pleased that our new name also emphasizes our close relationship with our sister program, the Cooperative Extension Program at Prairie View A&M University," Fehlis said. "We work together in so many ways' its good to share the 'family name.'"

With more than 1,500 employees statewide and 250 offices serving Texas' 254 counties, Texas Cooperative Extension has provided informal education to Texans for 86 years. Established by Congress in 1914, the national Cooperative Extension program was designed to extend to the people the educational opportunities and the scientific research of the nation's land-grant universities. Africanized bees spotted in South Plains counties

LUBBOCK-South Plains counties are now on alert for the presence of Africanized bees, following the positive identification of these bees in two Lubbock County "bee events."

As of July 19, the Texas Apiary Inspection Service (TAIS) added Lubbock County to the list of 134 other Texas counties quarantined for Africanized bees.

The quarantine seeks to prevent the movement of Africanized bees out of those counties through inspection and certification of beekeepers' hives. The TAIS is a unit of Texas A&M's Agricultural Experiment Station.

The two Lubbock County "bee events" included both human and imal (dogs) contact with Africaned bees. No serious human injuries resulted, but one dog was fatally affected and others required intensive veterinary care. A July 9 bee event in Cochran County involving humans, dogs and poultry may soon place that county under quarantine, too, if positive results of the Africanized bee identification tests conducted at Texas Tech are accepted by the TAIS.

"We want people on the South Plains to be aware of the presence of these bees, and learn how to recognize them and take preventative action against further stinging incidents," said Dr. Pat Porter, Texas A&M entomologist based at Lub-

Porter and Houck have created an Internet website:

http://lubbock.tamu.edu/ahb that outlines the history and spread of Africanized honey bees in the Western Hemisphere. The site also provides advice on how to avoid contact, how to safely react once contact occurs, how residents can bee proof their property, and who to contact when a bee incident occurs.

Africanized honey bees are visually indistinguishable from common European honey bees, but their aggressive, "mob" stinging behavior and prolonged response (24 to 48 hours) to intentional or unintentional threats poses a real danger to humans, animals or livestock that encounter them

The USDA Farm Service Agency has announced that sign-up for the 2000-crop quality loss program will begin Aug. 13. No ending date for the program has been announced.

Producers can apply for quality loss payments for any crop eligible for crop disaster assistance.

The quality loss program will provide assistance to produces of eligible crops that can demonstrate a minimum 20% decline in the quality/price of their 2000 crop commodity compared with a long-term average quality/price produced in the county.

Producers will be able to apply for the program based on the smallest can produce records.

Cotton producers will be able to disaster program payment rate (59¢ apply for quality loss program assistance on a bale-by-bale basis by providing production evidence showing the average loan value for each bale. Each bale's loan value would then be compared with the county average loan value used to compute quality adjustments for the 2000crop crop disaster program.

This comparison will then determine whether or not a qualifying

20% quality reduction has occurred. If the 20% threshold is met, then the bale would be assigned to one of five quality loss levels based on the actual loss in value relative to the county average.

Payment rates for each level of unit of the commodity for which they loss will then be calculated as the difference between 100% of the crop per pound for cotton) and a percent of the affected crop disaster program payment rate based on the assigned quality loss level for each level.

The final quality loss program payment rate equals 65% of the difference between the full crop disaster program price and the applicable percentage of the crop disaster program payment rate.

A combined $80,000 per person payment limitation is applicable for all benefits provided through the crop disaster program and the quality loss program.

Producers should check with their county Farm Service Agency office to determine the correct average loan value to use for calculating the quality loss program loss percentage.

Corn syposium scheduled in Lubbock

A corn field day and symposium will be held on Aug. 21-22 in Lubbock. The symposium is sponsored by Texas A&M's Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Lubbock and the Texas Corn Producers Board (TCPB).

It will provide new perspectives on present and future opportunities for all segments of the state's corn industry.

The "Sharing the Success" field day and symposium will kick off Aug. 21 with registration at 1 p.m. at the USDA-ARS Ginning Lab just east of the Lubbock Center on Farm Market Road 1294.

The center is three miles north of Lubbock International Airport on Interstate 27 and half a mile east of Exit 11 on Farm Market Road 1294.

"We are hosting this symposium to present TAMU and Texas Tech corn research projects supported by the TCPB, and to enhance the interaction between TAMU and Texas Tech research scientists, industry representatives and corn producers," said Jaroy Moore, resident director of research at the Lubbock center.

"It will be an excellent opportunity to see first-hand about the latest university corn research projects in resistant lines. Texas, some of which are right here on the High Plains," said Moore.

"We also hope to open new dialogue between researchers and industry on how we can hasten and improve the commercialization of new corn lines resulting from these projects. Everyone with a stake in the Texas corn industry is welcome to attend."

The symposium will begin at 1:50 p.m., with an overview of statewide breeding programs provided by Dr. Wenwei Xu of Lubbock and Dr. Javier Bertran of College Station.

Field tours of High Plains corn research projects conducted by TAMU and Texas Tech scientists will follow from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Initiated in 1980 by Dr. Tom Archer, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station entomologist, the High Plains projects initially focused on identifying and breeding corn resistant to mites and earworms.

From 1995 to 1998, Archer and Dr. Henry Nguyen, Texas Tech molecular geneticist, focused on selecting and breeding for drought resistance and crossing these with insect-

Xu and Bertran joined the team in 1998. In the three years hence, the researchers have made substantial progress breeding drought- and insect-resistant corn lines designed to survive and thrive in West Texas and other climates.

An evening reception at the Holiday Inn Suites and Towers (801 Avenue Q) will cap off the first day's activities.

The keynote reception speaker is Mark Hussey, professor of agronomy and head of Texas A&M's Department of Soil and Crop Sciences. He will address the role of public crop breeding in modern agriculture.

Activities begin on Aug. 22 with registration from 7:45 to 8:15 a.m. at the Holiday Inn and Suites Towers.

Gary Donaldson, TCPB research committee chairman, will open the day's sessions with an overview of the history and future goals of Texas corn breeding.

A representative of the Texas

Legislature will then discuss the role of Texas universities conducting crops research and support mechanisms for these projects.

A round table panel discussion from 8:50 to 11:30 a.m. will feature producer, industry, seed and research perspectives on insects and disease, germplasm exchange, biotechnology, release of parental lines and hybrids, commercialization of research products, and Quality Protein Maize (QPM).

The two-day symposium should conclude around 12:15 p.m., and is the first in a series of planned annual conferences. In 2002, the event will move to College Station and focus on corn milling qualities and aflatoxin in white and yellow corns.

Texans can get more information on the Aug. 21-22 corn field day and symposium by contacting the Texas Corn Producers Board at (806) 763-2676, or from the Lubbock center at (806) 746-6101.

Beginning entomology classes scheduled

A beginning entomology classes for Junior I and II 4-Hers will be held Monday.

The classes will take place from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. at the Castro County Extension Office.

At the first class, 4-H'ers tried to "outperform" the bugs. They learned that a grasshopper can jump 20 times its body length and a beetle can drag 60 times its body weight. Participants attempted to do the same.

They also learned the body structure of insects and arachnids. For refreshments at the previous meeting, the 4-Hers made insect models using marshmallows and pretzel sticks.

Increase in rail crossing collisions prompts warnings

Final 2000 statistics from the US Federal Railroad Administration reveal that 388 collisions occurred at highway-rail crossings in Texas last year, compared with 365 in 1999.

Texas led the nation in the number of collisions last year, and that prompted Railroad Commissioner Chairman Michael Williams, Commissioner Charles R. Matthews and Commissioner Tony Garza to urge motorists to be cautions when approaching any highway-rail intersection.

Lordy, Lordy, look who's highway-rail crossing collisions in Texas. It was the second straight year in which the number of collisions increased.

"We are starting this new century on a discouraging note," Williams said. "Ironically, in our fast-paced, high-tech world, when it comes to crossing any train track we must recall the old-fashioned advice that our grandmothers gave us-stop, look and listen."

"Texas has almost 12,000 miles of mainline track and 18,000 highway-The safety reminder came follow-rail crossings—the most of any state ing release of the figures showing in the nation," said Matthews. "That's why when crossing a train track it's important to remember that anytime is train time."

> "Even if you see a train miles down the track, it's closer than you think," said Garza. "A freight train moving at 55 miles per hour can take a mile or more to stop once the emergency brakes are applied-that's the length of at least 18 football fields. It's a deadly game that the train will always win."

Williams, Matthews and Garza one else they know that graduated noted the 52 highway-rail fatalities recorded in 2000 represented an Please send them to Vera increase from 41 fatalities the Ramaekers, P.O. Box 196, Nazareth, previous year. The state also recorded 164 injuries in 2000, down from 175 injuries in 1999.

Texas counties recording the most highway-rail crossing collisions in 2000 included Harris with 43, Dallas with 22, Wise with 14, Bexar with 13, Montgomery with 12, Jefferson with 11, Webb with 9 and Collin with 7.

Statistics reveal that crossing gates were present in 24% of highway-rail crossing collisions recorded last year. More than half (55%) of the motorists involved never stopped at the intersection before being hit.

Thirty-four trespasser fatalities were reported in 2000, compared with 42 in 1999. This represents the first decrease of trespasser deaths

According to preliminary data compiled by the Railroad Commission of Texas, 113 highway-rail grade crossing collisions have already occurred in the state through the first four months of 2001.

Hereford man still critical after Sunday morning wreck

Three men were injured, one critically, in a one-vehicle rollover early Sunday morning south of Summer-

A passenger in the vehicle, Juan Carlos Carranza, 18, of Hereford, was critically injured when he was ejected from the vehicle during the accident. He was riding in the middle, and was not wearing his seat Carranza remains on a ventilator and is listed in critical condition at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, according to reports from the Dept. of Public Safety.

The driver, 17-year-old Johnny Baca of Friona; and another passenger, 18-year-old David Orozco of Friona both suffered moderate injuries, but have been treated and released. Baca and Orozco were wearing their seat belts.

According to Dept. of Public Safety Trooper Brian Burzynski, the accident occurred at 2:30 a.m. Sunday about four miles south of US 60 on FM 1057. The accident was discovered by a passerby at 4:50 a.m. Castro County sheriff's deputies, EMS personnel and members of the Castro and Deaf Smith County Fire Departments responded to the scene. Burzinski said the vehicle was traveling south in the northbound lane when Baca jerked it to the right, losing control and causing it to roll several times.

Investigation into the accident is continuing, and Burzinski said charges will likely be filed against the driver.

"The Texas Dept. of Public Safety reminds everyone that the safest place in a crash is in your vehicle and the only way to stay in your vehicle is to buckle your safety belt," Burzinski said.
