Hazlett named new Lockney General administrator

Guy Hazlett II joined the Lockney General Hospital as administrator Monday morning, August 2. He comes to Lockney from El Paso with ten years of health related management and executive experience.

He served as a hospital consultant from December 1981 to July 1982 of a 140-bed hospital in El Paso. Previous to that he was administrator for that same hospital from April, 1981, to November, 1981. He helped with the design, planning and implementation of the renovation of the 25,000 sq. ft. building and helped to reorganize the adult and adolescent hospitals and helped to complete the conversion of the hospitals from medical/surgical facilities to psychiatric along with the establishment of a strong internal management team in a short period of time.

From September 1980 to March, 1981, he also served as a hospital consultant. Hazlett was the administrator of the Coronado Community Hospital in Pampa for about four years prior to moving to El Paso. He was instrumental in planning and designing a new 126-bed replacement facility and taking the hospital from a heavy loss position to that of substantial profits. Hazlett was employed as director of student financial aid and veterans' affairs and also the Education Program Assistant at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center shortly after its opening for two years.

He served the Amarillo Hospital District as Administrative Assistant and Area Coordinator for Nursing (maternal and child health) for two years.

Hazlett received a degree in MA Public Administration from West Texas State University. The Hazletts have two sons Curtis, 8, and Patrick, 12. Hazlett's wife Trudy was employed as an executive secretary in El Paso prior to their move to Lockney. They have moved to 806 W. Willow. Most will recognize that as the Ward home. The Hazletts are Baptist.

Hazlett is a member of the American Hospital Association, the Texas Hospital Association and the American College of Hospital Administrators and was a 1978 ACHA nominee.

Lockney and Lockney General are fortunate to have these newcomers to our community.

Let's keep it open!

Health Fitness, a preventive medicine program opened as an extended arm of Lockney General Hospital, has run into financial difficulty. Open since January 25, Health Fitness has been well received in the community.

Dixie Johnson reports that the membership has increased some in the last week. She stated she was confident membership has been curbed during the midst of vacation and harvest peaks.

But Health Fitness at its 116 South Main Street location, has to be maintained on a self-supportive basis. Therefore the pulse-monitored exercise program staff is making an all-out effort to increase its membership by August 15 to insure the community its services.

This week new hours begun to be observed in order to serve as many clients as is feasible. 30 minute sessions are offered from 6:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. 5 days a week. Members participating in the program designed for heart and lung fitness range in age from 10 to 82, according to program coordinator, Lori Winter.

Discounts are offered to senior citizens, businesses and families on the modest monthly rate of $30.

Mrs. Johnson reported some of the recorded losses in body fat locally were 36.5% to 24.7% in 6 months, 35.1% to 26.9% in 6 months, 35.9% to 30.4% in 6 months, and 34.4% to 29.5% in 4 months.

"The Health-Fitness Center is an ideal place for participation in regular daily exercise in pleasant surrounding. It is a fine facility for our community. Let's keep it open!" comments Eleanor Schacht.

Margie Savage wrote, "Before starting at Health-Fitness I could barely ride my bike around the block without having to stop and rest. After only a month of daily exercise at Health-Fit-

The Rev. Michael O'Connor's

Perspectives

BY MICHAEL O'CONNOR

Poor Proctor and Gamble. Somehow the rumor got started a couple of years ago that P&G was owned by the Rev. Moon and his Unification Church. Then, shortly after, it was said that some of P&G's officials had appeared on the Donahue program and talked about their involvement in Satanism and explained that the symbol of the moon and stars was a symbol of Satanic worship.

How that rumor got started no one seems to know. But it has caused the company a good deal of grief and money. People who heard and believed the rumor began to boycott products made by Proctor and Gamble. The company contacted the producers of Donahue, got a letter from them stating that no such program had ever been produced. Then they copied that letter, as well as one from the Rev. Donald Wildmon (the leader of the National Federation for Decency, the Coalition for Better TV, and an arch enemy of the devil and all his works.) put those together with a history of their symbol and sent out a mailing to people all across the U.S. The message was that the Proctor and Gamble Company was not owned by Rev. Moon or his church, the heads of the corporation were not involved in Satanism, and the symbol had nothing whatsoever to do with anything demonic.

The effect was apparently negligible. Now the company is suing various people in the country whom they have somehow identified as spreaders of the rumor, and/or organizers of boycotts, and are trying to end their nightmare through legal means.

It won't work. As a matter of fact, I'm afraid it may hurt the company more than it helps. It is sad that a company should go to all this effort because of irresponsible rumors. What is even sadder is that it won't stop the rumors. I will never understand the power of negative talk, but something like this will never go away. There are too many folks who would rather believe a lie than check out the information.

There have been rumors that Madelyn O'Hair is petitioning the FCC for an end to religious broadcasting. While I'm sure that would please Ms. O'Hair no end, the FCC stoutly denied that such a petition exists, or that they would consider it if it did. Besides, that one has been around since my college days, almost ten years ago. Yet just a couple of months ago I saw it again in the newsletter of a respected friend.

Other rumors abound, a pre-fab temple in Jerusalem, rabbis having identical dreams of the Messiah's coming, none of which have been proven. Still they persist, because of the perversity of our thought. We need to be careful about the stuff we buy into. Check these things out carefully before believing, and then leave room for new information. The only way these kinds of rumors will end is if we quit believing them and quit spreading them.

Area F.Y.I. meeting August 9 & 10

For a number of years Dr. W. Cleon Skousen was encouraged by many of his friends to launch an educational program where whole families could be taught the desirability of returning to the success formula of the original Constitution and the teachings of the Founding Fathers. Thus the idea for the Freeman Institute was born.

Dr. Skousen and the Freeman Institute has tried to put together the Founding Fathers' original success formula. That is what was taught in the "Miracle of America" Seminar which was held in Plainview in February of 1981. This is a program of positive, constructive campaign of education to help Americans get the United States back on its Constitutional track.

Benjamin Franklin once said, "A nation of well-informed men, who have been taught to know and prize the rights which God has given them, cannot be enslaved. It is in the region of ignorance that tyranny begins."

With this in mind the Founding Fathers put together a system of government that was so effective in promotion freedom and producing prosperity that it became the hope of the world for the next 150 years. By 1905 this tiny nation of the United States, by following the Founders' Formula and with only 6% of the world's population, was producing over one-half of the world's wealth.

However, Dr. Skousen states that beginning in early 1900, the whole world, including America, began experimenting with other formulas that have been tried repeatedly during different times in history. As the United States followed these failure formulas more than 100 major problems developed as the principles of the Founders were abandoned.

The goal of F.Y.I. (For Your Information), which is a group of area concerned citizens, is to educate anyone who is willing to listen and get involved to help turn this Country around and back to God and the original freedoms that were taught by the Founders of this Nation.

Lockney, Floydada distressed

This article was published in Regional Forum, a monthly newsletter sent out by SPAG in the Vol. 13, No. 7, dated July, 1982.

Last month, readers were informed about the Urban Development Action Grants (UDAG) program which may be used to stimulate economic development activity. Since then, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has revised the minimum standards used in identifying "distressed" communities.

Only "distressed" communities, or communities with pockets of poverty, may apply for UDAG funds. To be declared a "distressed" community, a city must meet minimum standards in three or more of the following areas: age of housing, per capita income, population lag/decline, job lag/decline, and poverty.

Cities in the South Plains region which are listed as "distressed" as of June 8, 1982 include Amherst, Anton, Crosbyton, Floydada, Hale Center, Lockney, Lorenzo, Matador, Meadow, Morton, New Deal, Olton, O'Donnell, Petersburg, Post, Ralls, Roaring Springs, Ropesville, Slaton, Springlake, Spur, Sudan, Tahoka and Wilson.

South Plains cities which were on the "distressed" list, but no longer meet the required minimum standards, include Dickens, Earth, Falmouth, Idalou, Muleshoe, Plains and Wellman. These seven cities have until September 30, 1982 to establish eligibility and must submit an application by November 30, 1982. Otherwise, they must wait until, and if, they again meet the required minimum standards.

For full details on the minimum standards for "distressed" designation or establishing eligibility, contact Sylvia Clark or Sylvester Cantu at (806) 762-8721.

Drug Enforcement Administration advances war on "angel dust"

BY LLOYD BENTSEN

As the reports on our nation's war against drugs become more discouraging, one bright spot has developed.

According to the Drug Enforcement Administration, we have made dramatic strides in the fight to eliminate "angel dust."

When "angel dust," or phencyclidine hydrochloride (PCP), was developed in the mid-50s, it was seen as a promising anesthetic for use in operating rooms. Research, however, showed that the drug produced horrifying psychotic reactions. It literally drove people mad, so it was barred completely for use on humans.

By the mid-70s, "angel dust" was fast becoming one of the most abused drugs in the nation since it could be produced at such a low cost -- only $1 per "hit." Between 1976 and 1977, the DEA reported that confiscated dosage units had doubled, from 1.7 million to 3.5 million. This was happening in spite of appalling reports of derangement caused by the drug.

One young man under the influence of "angel dust" pulled out his own teeth with pliers; another gouged out his eyes to avoid seeing grotesque visions; a third youth drank rat poison to kill the rodents he believed had infested his body; and a fourth gnawed his forearms almost to the bone because of "voices" telling him his hands had offended him.

It took six police officers to arrest another young man brandishing a knife who kept such a "death-like" grip on the weapon that officers had to hit his hand with night-sticks. They shattered the knife handle, but the youth still clutched the blade when he finally was subdued. Later examination showed his hand was broken in four places.

These horror stories could not be allowed to continue.

In 1978, I authored and passed through Congress the Psychotropic Substances Act, making it difficult for drug dealers to purchase the chemical piperidine, a key ingredient of "angel dust." My bill also substantially increased penalties for trafficking in the drug.

Since the law went into effect in 1979, the results have been heartening. Within a year, emergency rooms reported a 24 percent decrease in cases involving "angel dust." Black market prices for piperidine skyrocketed a hundred-fold, and the average sentence for "angel dust" traffickers went from two years to six years.

Just recently, the new DEA deputy director Jack Lawn told me the best news yet. He told me that we'd had the most dramatic reduction in "angel dust," by legislation, that he'd ever seen in any drug before.

Hospital emergency cases involving use of "angel dust," he said, have now been cut in half -- from approximately 10,000 in 1978 to about 5,000 last year.

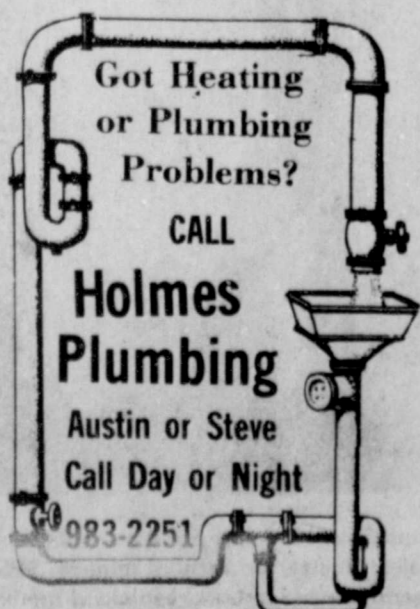

That's doing pretty well, as I see it. But I won't be content until we've wiped out this menacing drug entirely.

Mexican food is a hot item on the menu of many popular restaurants. According to a recent survey by The Yankelovich Monitor, Mexican food is the second most popular cuisine in the U.S. If you want to bring a bit of ole to your own house, here's a really "hot" main dish chicken idea to make in your microwave.

- 1 can (10 ounces) hot enchilada sauce
- 3 cups cubed cooked chicken
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion

Following tradition, the bride carried an old handkerchief belonging to her grandmother; something new was her bridal gown; something borrowed, was a pearl necklace and earrings, belonging to the groom's mother; and something blue was her garter.

Both the bride and groom wore pennies bearing the years that each were born in, in their shoes.

Bridal attendants were Cindy Brazeal, of Plainview, who presided as maid of honor and Kimberly Pegram of Dimmitt, bridesmaid.

Pink heart-shaped mints and punch were served.

Bits of Humor, Trivia, and an occasional Word of Wisdom

One good thing about putting your best foot forward — it keeps it out of your mouth.

All you need in this life is ignorance and confidence, and success is sure.

The person who longs for the "good old days" when hamburger was 25 cents a pound forgets that he had to work an hour to earn that much.

Keep smiling. It will make people wonder what you've been up to.

Imagination was given to man to compensate him for what he is not — and a sense of humor to console him for what he is.

If you must discuss your troubles, don't burden your friends. Tell your enemies. They'll be delighted.

PRESSURE CANNER GAUGE TESTING

If you do any canning at home, make sure your equipment is in good working condition. The dial gauge on a pressure canner should be checked at least once each year for accuracy to prevent either under processing or over processing of your food. Three out of every four gauges I have tested this summer have been INACCURATE!

I will be conducting gauge testing clinics at these times and locations:

Tuesday, August 10, at 2:00-5:00, First National Bank of Lockney

Wednesday, August 11, at 2:00-5:00, County Extension Office, Floydada

If you wish to have your gauge tested in Lockney, please do not bring your canner lid to the bank before 2:00 on August 10th. If you want to have your gauge tested in Floydada, you may bring your lid to the County Extension Office at anytime prior to August 11th and leave it for testing.

This service is provided free of charge by the Floyd County Extension Service, and is offered to everyone regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin. Free food preservation bulletins will also be available.

METALS FROM COOKWARE

Does metal from cookware ever get into our food in dangerous amounts? In general, the FDA considers food prepared in copper, aluminum, iron, stainless steel, glass and pottery to be safe. But consumers have raised questions about the safety of cooking utensils made of aluminum, copper and pottery coated with lead glaze. Does aluminum migrate from the cookware to the food? Under normal conditions the total amount of aluminum added to the food from cookware is relatively small. However, prolonged retention in aluminum cookware (from five to six hours to several days) of certain highly acidic foods such as tomato sauce, sauerkraut and carbonated drinks may cause more aluminum than usual to enter the food. Cooking food in aluminum is safe but it is better not to store food in aluminum.

Cooper is a desirable metal for cookware because it is an excellent heat conductor and has a nice appearance. Most copper cookware is lined with tin and presents no problem of copper migration into food, although the pan must be relined when the tin starts wearing thin. Using unlined copper utensils for cooking or storing food may be harmful. Copper migrates to any food with which it comes in contact, especially those high in acid. The FDA recommends that consumers use only tin lined copper cooking utensils for cooking or storing food.

Glass and glass ceramic cookware is safe to use. The FDA continues to survey manufacturers to assure safety of these products. It is recommended that pottery made by hobbyists be used for decorative purposes only because some amateurs may not be aware of correct firing or mixing procedures.

BABY FOODS IN THE MICROWAVE

Most varieties of baby foods can be heated in the microwave but there are some which should not. The following baby foods should not be heated in a microwave: plain meats and poultry, high meat dinners, egg yolks, meat and poultry sticks. There should be a reminder on the label of these foods. Microwave heating of these products results in uneven heating that could cause them to explode. Droplets of water in the products heat faster by microwaves than the dense protein and fat particles. Gerber does not recommend heating any type of baby food in a microwave. But if a consumer wants to use their microwave she should follow this procedure: remove the cap from the jar before heating. Place the opened jar on a plate and put into oven. Start heating at the lowest level of heat and test frequently until the food reaches feeding temperature. Avoid overheating.

Education—Our Money's Worth?

In my travels over Texas, it has become clear that Texans rate crime, the economy, and the education of their children among their principal concerns.

This week I would like to discuss education. As the father of six children, this has long been one of my principal concerns also.

We currently spend over half our tax revenue on education, and many people raise the question to me: "Are we getting our money's worth?" The questions put to me indicate some think we are spending too much; others, not enough.

I too am concerned about the amount of money we spend on education, but I am more concerned about the quality of that education. I believe the quality of education our children receive can be improved by making some fundamental changes in the way we pay and treat our teachers.

I believe in merit pay for teachers. Frankly, I think good teachers ought to be paid more than poor teachers. A good, conscientious teacher cannot help but become discouraged and disillusioned when he or she ends the month with the same pay as one whom they know to be indifferent. The result is apt to be that they leave the teaching profession altogether.

I also think we ought to enter a system of competency testing not only for new teachers, but for those who are currently teaching. We test our kids, why not also test those who teach them?

In short, I think we ought to bear down on the basics, relieve our teachers of burdensome paper work now placed upon them, and recognize and reward our better teachers with better pay, for the sake of our children, and our future.

If you have thoughts on this subject, I would welcome them. Just write to me at 1213 W. 34th in Austin, 78705.

Sharp named TTU head coach

Texas Tech Athletic Director Jeanine McHaney announced Friday, July 30, the promotion of assistant coach Marsha Sharp to the head women's basketball coaching position. The announcement was prompted by the resignation of Donna Wick. Wick, the head coach the past two years, submitted her letter of resignation July 29, citing that her decision was based on personal and professional reasons.

In response to today's activities, McHaney said, "This has all come as quite a shock. Donna has done some very positive things for our basketball program in a short period of time. I believe that Marsha will be able to continue in that same positive direction while maintaining a high degree of continuity in the development of our program."

Newly named head coach Sharp, 29, is from nearby Tulla, Texas, and attended Wayland Baptist University on a basketball scholarship. She coached the Flying Queens' freshman team from 1972-1975 under the direction of Dean Weese prior to accepting the head basketball post at Lockney High School. During her six years at Lockney, her teams earned three district titles and never finished lower than second place. Sharp coached 22 all-district selections, one all-star and one all-state player. She ended her high school coaching career with an impressive 126-60 record before coming to Tech as the assistant basketball coach for the 1981-82 season.

Sharp graduated with a bachelor's degree in physical education from Wayland Baptist in 1974 and a master's degree in education from West Texas State in 1976.

After the announcement of her promotion, Sharp said, "I am very excited about the opportunity and the prospects for Texas Tech. The situation here at Tech is conducive to a winning program and the Women's Athletic Department has made a commitment to the continued growth and development of women's basketball."

"I think the program has made definite strides in the right direction the past two years under Coach Wick. That is evidenced by the fact that she turned a 13-17 team into an 18-12 contender. She is leaving the program in excellent shape and everything is pointing toward a super season," Sharp said.

Six letterwinners, including all five starters, will return for Sharp's head coaching debut. In addition to the returning experience, the Texas Tech Women's Basketball team has just concluded one of its most successful recruiting years.

Already looking forward to the coming season, Sharp said, "I would like to finish in the top three in the Southwest Conference and earn a bid to the NCAA Championships. I really think this is a realistic goal for us at this time. The fans are going to see a first-class team with strong, well disciplined athletes in the Coliseum next year."

Sharp's promotion will become effective September 1, 1982.

Good rains over our community measured from an inch to over two and a half near Blanton Hartsell's and Joe Thurston's. A welcome gift. This soybean and feed growing really takes the water.

The late cotton harvest that is anticipated may not be so late. Jerry Battey, Jr. reports already finding cotton bolls in their fields.

Mrs. S.G. Appling came home Thursday after a 25 day stay in Caprock Hospital. She planned to stay this week with the Wayne Applings. She has back trouble, with a slipped vertebra and other complications. Wayne and Bertha were going to take her to the doctor in Lubbock this week.

Austin and Ashleigh Williams took their grandmother, Mrs. Q.D. Williams to the Tuesday matinee performance of the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus at the Lubbock Coliseum. Such beautiful costumes, so clean and perfect requires tremendous behind the scenes coordination to match the talent of the performers.

Smoky Quilantan and his riding lawnmower have stayed ahead of the rains, making their lawn and surrounding areas a beauty spot in our community this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bishop spent the weekend at their ranch at Roaring Springs. Howard recently returned from the state capitol where he and other landowners in the Roaring Springs area pled for water conservation.

Mr. and Mrs. Monte Williams and daughter, Amanda of Ft. Sill, Oklahoma arrived here Friday evening for the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Q.D. Williams. They attended the Floydada Rodeo Saturday night. Kellie is in her senior year at Cameron University at Lawton, Oklahoma, majoring in Elementary Education and foreign languages. Her summer school closed this past week. After visiting with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Galoway, Mrs. Nancy Goodwin and James Williams took her to Lubbock Monday afternoon where she will spend a few weeks visiting her parents, Col. and Mrs. Elton Brian. Col. Brian is now stationed at Reese Air Force Base, and due to his rank and responsibilities the family will live on base.

When little Bruce McHam was a year old he fell and hit his teeth on the edge of the coffee table, and broke his teeth off nearly to the gums. As he walked and did all the usual falling and bumping a growing child experiences, he broke and chipped more teeth. Finally last week at Highland Hospital he underwent oral surgery and now has crowns and caps to make them look like new teeth. His mother, Mrs. Wayne McHam, reports her two year old son is enjoying his new teeth.

Charles M. Gibson receives degree at UH

For the first time since 1935, the year of its first graduation, the University of Houston did not hold a general, campus-wide graduation ceremony, choosing instead to recognize 1982 graduates through smaller ceremonies in the individual colleges on the central campus.

Chancellor Barry Munitz explained that the individual colleges began honoring their graduates in separate ceremonies following the general commencement four years ago to better recognize all the students receiving degrees.

Munitz said, "The faculty, students and administration all desired a more personal recognition of the graduates."

An event where students and their families could meet with the college's faculty. It was apparent after watching the college commencements grow larger each year, that this was the most meaningful system, and the general convocation had become superfluous."

Approximately 4,600 students received their diplomas at the 13 different commencements this spring. All summer and winter 1981 graduates and spring 1982 graduates were honored at the ceremony.

Charles M. Gibson, son of Mr. Robert M. Gibson of Route 2, Lockney was among the graduates. He received a MBA degree in management information systems.

FLOYD CO. AG. UPDATE

BY JETT MAJOR COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

RANCHERS ROUNDUP DRAWING NEAR

Only a short time remains for Floyd County ranchers to make plans to attend the International Ranchers Roundup.

The Ranchers Roundup gets underway Tuesday, August 10 and runs through Thursday, August 12 in Del Rio. Details about registration and motel accommodations are being coordinated through the Del Rio Chamber of Commerce by phone (512/775-3551).

This year's Roundup features about 100 Australian, Mexican, and American noted ranching experts and industry leaders who will discuss every facet of the ranch operation during the three days of general and concurrent sessions.

The theme of Roundup '82 is 'Effective Ranch Management' and it's basic purpose is to help ranchers preserve their livelihood. One noted speaker will outline several basic cost-cutting measures and tax incentive techniques which most ranchers normally overlook.

Although one of the Roundup's basic goals is to "pool" technology and information for producers to use, the idea exchange among participants also rates as a key objective.

Ranchers can solve many of their problems by visiting with other producers who may have already encountered the situation. This interchange is very important. Ranchers can use help and advice from experts but they can also help each other out a lot, too.

Ranchers will also learn about implementing various kinds of wildlife supplemental hunting activities which have proven very successful in other parts of the country.

Many ranchers are passing up lucrative hunting lease fees which add up to millions of dollars collectively across the state. Wildlife biologist and ranchers from six southern states who have enjoyed considerable experience in alternative hunting opportunities will discuss their efforts during wildlife concurrent sessions.

Headline speakers include Ramond Lett, chief USDA policy maker; Terry Mitchell, Australian Department of Agriculture; Charles Scruggs, Progressive Farmer vice-president; Bob Bliss, Friona Industries cattle feeding division manager; Susan McBee, Texas State Representative; John Merrill, T.C.U. ranch management program director; and Allan Savory, founder of Savory Grazing Method.

A special program for women involved in the ranching business is attracting a lot of attention among IRR female participants.

Instead of a fashion show, tours or other types of entertainment for the women, the IRR coordinators decided to add a program that would help the ladies directly with ranch business management and family communications. This all ties in directly with preserving the family's ranching livelihood.

The IRR is the largest, most comprehensive educational activity organized by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Anyone that would like more information about this activity should call or come by the Floyd County Extension Office.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serves people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

GARDEN SPRAYERS

At some time gardeners must spray their vegetable plants to protect them. Pest control is a hard fact of life, especially where gardening is concerned.

Some gardeners make costly mistakes. Plants can be damaged if too much spray material is applied. Or if not enough is applied, insects and diseases may not be controlled. Improper care of spray equipment is also costly since frequent replacement of sprayers is expensive. Let's look at the kinds of sprayers available and the proper maintenance of this equipment.

First of all, decide what kind of sprayer is needed. Factors such as garden size, intended use, garden location and layout influence the decision. The main sprayers used are the compressed air and hose-on types. Compressed air sprayers are mobile, self-contained units which are pressurized by periodic pumping. These come in various gallon capacities and have galvanized, plastic or longer lasting stainless steel tanks. The hose-on sprayer is attached to a hose from which it receives its spray pressure.

There are advantages and disadvantages with each type. The compressed air sprayer is completely portable, but its portability and effectiveness are directly proportionate to the strength of the person toting it. A 5-gallon sprayer is heavy, and unless you are fairly strong do not try it. A 2-gallon sprayer is lighter, easier to handle and adequate for small gardens. With smaller sprayers, the gardener can mix exactly the amount of pesticide needed and not over-spray plants with extra mix.

Care of the compressed air sprayer is most important. Rinse the sprayer, tank, nozzle and hose after each use to avoid clogging during the next use. Store the compressed air sprayer bottom side up with hose drained. This prevents water from settling and pooling in the bottom of the sprayer after rinsing. Improper storage of the sprayer can cause rusting in the tank which will then flake and clog your nozzle. Some industrious people coat the insides of their sprayers with oil for prolonged storage. If you can afford stainless steel or plastic tanks, they last much longer than regular galvanized ones. If you have a plastic tank, be sure to store it out of the sunlight because the ultraviolet radiation in sunlight will eventually cause the plastic to deteriorate.

The hose-on sprayer is used by many people and abused by many, too. It is popular because it is light and does not have to be repressurized by periodic pumping. Problems arise in mixing ingredients, in portability, and in calibration. Hose-on sprayers operate on the principle of siphoning a concentrated spray material and mixing it with a stream of water. Problems occur in siphoning and mixing the concentrated spray material. For something to be siphoned, it must be liquid; yet many insecticides and fungicides are in a wettable powder form. The powder can be suspended in water but sometimes thorough mixing is a problem. Because the hose-on sprayer siphons suspensions and not large particles, pre-mix wettable powder pesticides in a small bowl. This insures that all large particles are broken up and will not clog the siphon hose. Use a small strainer to filter out larger particles when pouring the mixture into the sprayer tank.

Also, remember you are mixing a concentrated spray for a hose-on sprayer. If the jar says 6 gallons, put enough concentrated material in that small sprayer jar to be siphoned and diluted into 6 gallons. To be accurate calibrate the sprayer periodically. Use a gallon container, fill the hose-on sprayer into the container. Theoretically, the sprayer should be empty when the container is full. If not, you have a problem and may be putting out too much or too little spray material.

In summary, get the sprayer that is easiest for you to handle and best fits your gardening situation. Regardless of the type chosen, follow certain procedures and maintenance for maximum efficiency.

Rex Allen to present award

Western recording and movie star Rex Allen, who grew up on a ranch near Willcox, Arizona, will be master of ceremonies September 17 when the National Golden Spur Award is presented to Willcox rancher J. Ernest Browning, a man Allen has known all his life.

The honor will be bestowed on Browning of the Mule Shoe Ranch at the National Golden Spur Award and Prairie Party, beginning with a reception at 6:30 p.m. Friday, September 17, in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Highlight of the evening will be the presentation of the National Golden Spur Award to Browning for a lifetime of achievement in the ranching and livestock industries. Browning will be the fifth to receive the award, a golden OK spur encased in a crystal piece designed by Steuben Glass.

Allen said Browning "has been the number one citizen of our town ever since I can remember." Browning and Allen's father operated a garage together for awhile in Willcox. Allen also attended school with Browning's son and daughter.

Browning is a founder and former president of the American Quarter Horse Association, a cattleman noted for breeding and production of herefords, a member of the National Cowboy Hall of Fame Board of Trustees, and a former director of both the National Cattleman's Association and the Livestock and Meat Board.

"As a boy," Allen said, "what I remember most about Ernest was he always had the best horses and best looking cattle of anyone in the county."

"He's such a softspoken man that I doubt he's ever had an enemy in his life and when he said something, he meant it."

Allen, whose voice and face are recognized by millions because of his western songs, his movies, his television shows and his film narrations, will be making his second appearance at the Prairie Party. Last year he attended the premier of "The Rancher: An American Heritage," a slide show presentation he narrated.

Other events scheduled for National Golden Spur Award weekend include Livestock Day and a symposium on railroads of the Southwest September 17. Ranch Day will follow on September 18 at the 14-acre Ranching Heritage Center of The Museum of Texas Tech University. A national exhibit of western art will be held both days in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Known to his music and movie fans as "Mister Cowboy," Rex Allen is familiar with ranch life as it really existed and as it was portrayed in the movies. As he grew up on his Arizona ranch, he was fond of horses and music. When he finished high school, he joined the rodeo circuit, riding wild broncs and roping steers.

He gave that up for his first love — music — and began singing for a living. A talent scout for the National Barn Dance on Chicago radio station WLS recommended Allen for a regular part on the show in 1945. Within months he became one of the show's biggest stars and his voice became recognized by thousands in such songs as "Crying in the Chapel," "Streets of Laredo," "Money, Marbles & Chalk," "Don't Go Near the Indians" and "Tiny Bubbles."

His singing successes led him to the lead role in the 1949 Western movie "The Arizona Cowboy." Allen and his famous horse Koko then galloped through a succession of 34 more western thrillers. Later Allen starred in his own popular television series "Frontier Doctor."

Allen has penned more than 300 songs and narrated more than 100 nature films for Disney Studios.

Sponsors of the National Golden Spur Award are the American National CowBelles, the American Quarter Horse, National Cattleman's, National Wool Growers, Ranching Heritage, Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers and the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers associations.

First recipient of the National Golden Spur Award was the late Albert K. Mitchell of Albert, New Mexico. Other winners have been the late Jay Littleton Taylor, Amarillo; Fred H. Dressler, Gardnerville, Nevada; and Watt R. Matthews, Albany, Texas.

The same organizations plus the Texas Cattle Feeders Association and the Texas Tech College of Agricultural Sciences sponsor Livestock Day.

On the Saturday of Ranch Day, the Ranching Heritage Center, a 14-acre outdoor exhibit which depicts the evolution of ranching through more than a score of authentically restored structures, will be open free to the public. The day's activities will include demonstrations of ranch crafts and chores and numerous special events.

In conjunction with the National Golden Spur weekend, a Western art show and sale, featuring works by artists in 13 states and Canada, will be in the banquet hall of the Lubbock Civic Center September 17-18. The first day will be for Golden Spur ticket-holders. The show will be open free to the public, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, September 18.

Tickets or more information may be obtained from the Ranching Heritage Association, P.O. Box 4499, Lubbock, Texas, 79409 or (806) 742-2498.

John Deere to unveil new line of tractors

Deere & Company will unveil a new line of John Deere farm tractors that it says will enable a farmer to do his work faster yet use less fuel for each acre worked.

The company is introducing ten new models, the largest number of new models it has ever introduced at one time. They range in size from 45 to 190 horsepower. They will be shown publicly for the first time at the National Corn Growers Association convention.

The company said field tests have shown that the new tractors will use as much as 15 percent less fuel than their predecessors for each acre worked, depending on the conditions and type of work being performed.

Most of the improved fuel economy will come from a combination of mechanical front-wheel drive and a new 15-speed power-shift transmission which makes it a simple job to keep in the proper gear. The front-wheel drive is available on all models and power shift on the five largest.

Mechanical front-wheel drive puts up to 40 percent of the tractor's power through the front wheels to improve traction, reduce wheel slippage, and improve fuel economy.

The mechanical front-wheel drive offered on the new tractors effectively deals with the problems of poor maneuverability and turning radius that have been serious drawbacks to front-wheel drives in the past. The front-wheel drive option on the new series of tractors have a patented new feature called Caster/Action. The front wheels caster 1.3 degrees and in turning tilt to the side to clear the tractor's frame. This allows front wheels to turn 50 degrees, providing maneuverability similar to that on regular two-wheel-drive tractors.

The five largest tractors, from 100 to 190 horsepower, can be equipped with the new 15-speed power-shift transmission, which represents the industry's furthest advancement in effortless, on-the-go shifting. As the tractor moves through the field, it can be shifted from gear to gear effortlessly with one finger without clutching. Field tests have shown productivity can be increased as much as 15 percent by matching the proper gear to varying ground conditions while working in the field.

Fuel economy also has been improved with such features as fans that speed up or slow down depending on engine cooling requirements, turbochargers designed to allow fuel to burn more efficiently at varying loads, low friction pistons and new sealing rings in the main clutch of the power shift transmission which reduce parasitic power loss.

A new electronic warning system on the five largest models monitors ten critical vehicle and engine functions and provides both visual and audible signals when the operator's attention is required.

In the new line the company will be offering its Sound-Gard body on its smaller models for the first time. The company said sound levels will be comparable to levels in the other John Deere models.

The new tractors will be shown this summer and early fall at a number of fairs and farm shows. They will be available this fall at Deere dealerships. The John Deere dealer in Floydada is Floyd County Implement Company.

Brown warns farmers about solicitations for pesticide sales

Farmers being solicited by telephone to buy Knock-Out pesticide are warned to be aware that the product may be grossly misrepresented, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said.

"We have received several calls from scattered locations in the state from farmers who have purchased the pesticide after telephone solicitations and have found that it does not live up to the sales pitch," Brown said.

The telephone salesmen have stated that it is as good as or superior to another well-known, commonly used herbicide (Roundup). The most recent telephone solicitation have been from Alpine Farm Products in Long Island, New York.

Knock-Out is registered for sale with the Texas Department of Agriculture with a label specifying a 1.8% active ingredient. "There is nothing illegal about selling the product, but its performance is being misrepresented. The pesticide being compared contains 41% active ingredient."

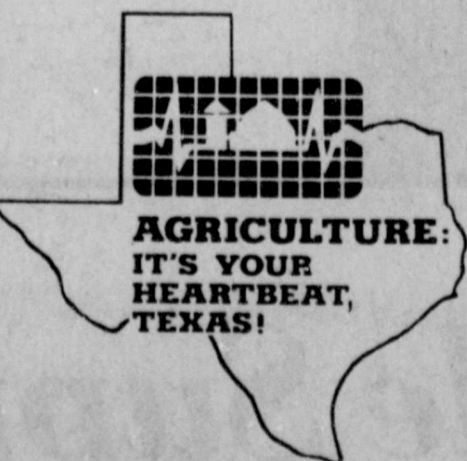

Brown urged farmers before ordering such pesticides from out-of-state firms to compare the active ingredient percentage on products formulated for the same purpose. "There is still no assurance that the contents meet label specifications on purchases resulting from such telephone solicitations."

They should also check the local prices. "The cost of the product is often the same or more than they would pay locally."

Pesticides sold by such out-of-state dealers could lack the proper precautions for use on the label. There is no assurance that the pesticides are not contaminated or that they have not been diluted.

Brown advised farmers to buy from dealers they know, "ones that they can complain to if the product does not work as it should."

If farmers have purchased pesticides from this company and still have the containers, they are requested to notify the Texas Department of Agriculture.

German native completes Pueblo Indian research

Outside the temperature soars. The streets shimmer with the heat. Most people are miserable in weather such as this, but not Dr. Brigitte Fleischmann.

She recently concluded a year in Albuquerque, New Mexico, as part of an American Council of Learning Societies program to write a book on Pueblo Culture. Being from Germany, she enjoys the hot climate.

"When we first went to New Mexico in 1979, I began to love the Southwest. Germany is a beautiful country, it is so green. Strangely enough, I love the desert. I love the heat and I haven't got that in Germany. It rains all the time (there), practically all day.

"At first I thought, 'oh, this dreary country. So flat and hardly any trees.' But I loved it all because the sun is shining all the time," she said.

Her cousin and hostess in Floydada, Mrs. J.C. Anderson, interjected, "When it's a hundred degrees outside, we stay in the cool house, they go outside and take a sunbath. They really love the sun."

Brigitte teaches American cultural history at Munich University. Her doctor's degree is in American Indian Culture, the philosophy of the American Indian. In order to acquire tenure at the Munich University a second book must be written after the PhD is Thesis. The book she is writing now, is the book for her tenure.

"I have always liked to read books on the American Indians.

My interest in Indians started very, very early. It was revived when I taught at Munich University because my students are very interested in Indians. They are mostly interested in the Red Power movements.

"It was my students interest which made me a little more familiar with the American Indian and my interest in cultural anthropology.

"I had been here as a tourist before. I was fascinated by the pueblo. So, I decided to work on the Pueblo culture again."

Her interests aren't just in the American Indians but also the Southwest as well.

"I was always fascinated by New Mexico because of the merging of cultures - the Spanish, the Indian and the Anglo-American.

"The East is more Europeanized, whereas the Southwest is what I think of as really American. The old frontier ideals of meeting strangers, of accepting strangers. Everyone is on a first name basis."

Brigitte mentioned the help she got from Floyd County Judge Choise Smith. "He knows that I am interested in archeology. He went with us to Crosbyton and showed us his collection of artifacts. He knows a lot about archeology and about Indian tribes who roamed the country around here."

She also elaborated on the Pueblos themselves.

"They are very hospitable. They have so many guests on patron saints day that you have to wait outside in a waiting room. Sometimes 10, 20, 30 people until it is your turn for the lunch. (In one pueblo) I was invited for lunch. I was told that probably 100 people got a lunch at that Indians house (that day) and that is nothing unusual.

"You can be a friend of a friend of a friend and you are invited spontaneously. You are introduced and then the Indian would say, 'What about lunch? Did you have lunch already? Come over to my house and have lunch.'

"It might happen that an Indian who is a complete stranger asks you, 'Would you like to come over for lunch? It is patron saints day. We have lots of meals.'"

It was difficult for Brigitte to do her research for the book because the Indians were wary of anyone taking notes or anyone they knew were observing them. They were cautious in this manner because they have been misrepresented in the past by other writers.

Brigitte had to observe the ceremonies, go back to her car and make some hasty notes and later transcribe them legibly. For this book, she has some 4,000 pages of handwritten notes.

She said that it was difficult for the average white person to observe the ceremonies because they become almost invisible to the Indians.

Brigitte plans to go back to Germany to complete the book and continue teaching. Although she cannot return under the ACLS for two years, she plans to return to the United States as a tourist soon.

DR. BRIGITTE FLEISCHMANN and her Floydada hostess Mrs. J.C. Anderson. Brigitte recently completed a year in Albuquerque doing research for her book on Pueblo Indian Cultures. She teaches American Cultural History at the Munich University in Germany.

We at Southwestern Public Service Company are forecasting now how much electricity you'll use today, tomorrow, next week, next month, next year, even 5 and 10 and 15 years from now. We take the forecasting job seriously. It tells us how much electricity to generate for you in the next few hours or few days. It helps us decide how much fuel to buy. And forecasting helps us decide when, where, or if we should build new power plants.

Grafton Clarke, Fuel Planning Senior Engineer, Amarillo.

School is out, and youngsters are out and about. Their safety concerns us, as it does you. We recommend this important warning about power line danger: Never climb a tree which is near electric power lines. There may be power lines among the branches. If the lines were touched, tree-climbing fun would turn into tragedy.

Mike Costello, Safety and Claims Specialist, Roswell.

Everyone, including SPS, is affected by high money costs. When we borrow money at today's high interest rates, or sell stock, people are actually letting us use their savings to build new power plants and lines and to buy equipment. If we do not pay the going "wage" for their savings, people will stop letting us use their money, and our ability to deliver the electricity you need will be limited.

Bob Whippo, District Manager, Seminole.

Knowing what electricity is worth is worth knowing. For answers to your questions, call or write your SPS manager.
