

Three file in city election

J.D. COPELAND

GAIL KRING

J.D. Copeland has filed for his second term as mayor of Lockney. He is a 74 year native of Lockney having been born and raised in Lockney. He and his wife of 49 years, Arla, have two daughters Francis Huddlestone and Mrs. C.N. Webb, both of Lubbock.

Copeland has taken courses in accounting and owns an accounting office. He was the manager of Consumers Fuel for 10 years, has farmed in the Lockney area, and was the general manager for the Lockney General Hospital for five years. He is presently an active member of the Rotary Club.

The Copelands attend the West Side Church of Christ.

Gail Krings, a 43 year old, of Houston, and his family have lived in Lockney since August of 1979 when he took the job as manager of the Lockney Cooperatives. He and his wife, Mary Ann, have one daughter, Amy a ten-year-old daughter who attends the fifth grade in Lockney.

Krings graduated from Abilene High School and from Texas Tech University. He graduated with a BBA in industrial management and a minor in industrial engineering.

He serves as president of the Rotary Club and has served one term as alderman. The Krings attend the First Baptist Church.

Kenneth Wofford is a 63 year old native of Lockney. He is an incumbent candidate, having served for his two terms as alderman of Lockney. He and wife, Retha, have been married for 46 years and have three children: Jeannie Curtsinger of Lubbock, James Wofford of Dallas and Jan Ball of Utah.

They attend the West College and 3rd Church of Christ where he is an elder. Wofford is a farmer.

Mr. Wofford was not available for a photograph at press time.

Thomason Love Fund

A love fund has been established at the First National Bank in Lockney for the Charles Thomason family. The fund is to raise money to fly Charles and his family to Bakersfield, California.

Charles has terminal cancer and has been receiving chemotherapy treatments for many years. At present he is under the care of Dr. Gary Mangold.

All of the insurance benefits have run out and rising medical cost have kept the Thomasons from being able to make house payments; therefore they are being forced to leave their home in Lockney.

They will go to live with Mary's father in California. Charles has been bedridden for over 2 years and Dr. Mangold has said he is much too weak to make the trip by car or van, making it necessary for him to fly to Bakersfield by air ambulance.

Hutcherson Air Service has a plane which is available to make the trip, but it will cost about $1300 for the 6-hour plane trip.

Senator Ray Farabee's office was contacted about the use of an Air Force jet, but red tape is too time consuming.

The Thomasons have lived in Lockney for about five years. They have had two grocery stores here. The last one they were forced to close because Mary could not operate the store and care for Charles too.

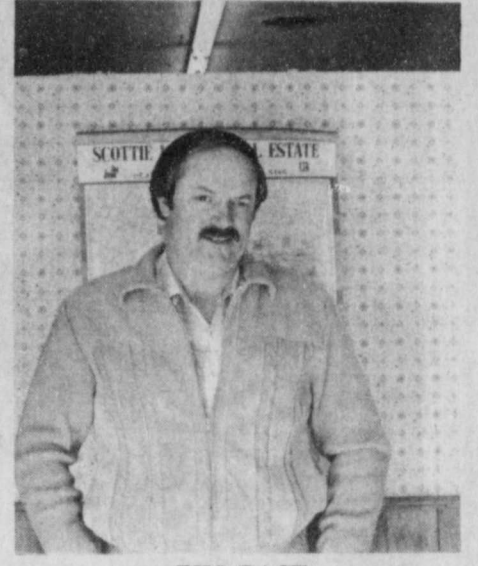

Anyone is welcomed to make contributions at the bank to this needy cause.

Il Penseroso brings production by touring company for Lockney's viewing

The Il Penseroso Jr. Study Club, in association with the National Children's Theatre touring company of professional actors, will present the story of "Young Arthur and Merlin the Magician" at 9:00 and 1:00 on March 28, 1983 in Lockney Elementary Cafeteria.

The play, inspired by the Broadway play and movie "Camelot," takes place, when the world was much younger, and a magician named Merlin lived in England. Into Merlin's care was trusted the orphaned infant English King—a baby named Arthur. Now, Merlin knew the Noblemen would all fall to fighting among themselves with only a tiny baby for King and in the end Arthur would lose his crown. So Merlin spirited the baby, wrapped in his golden swaddling clothes, away to the castle of Sir Ector. There, his real identity unknown to Sir Ector and his household, the young Arthur spent his boyhood with Merlin as his teacher, and Kay, Sir Ector's son, as his companion, and Bess, the devoted old nurse to the two motherless boys.

What a wonderful place the great medieval estate was for a small boy to grow up in, especially for a boy who would someday be King of England.

There were the mews where the hawks were kept for hawking. Merlin even changed Arthur into a hawk and also into a dog so he would know what it felt like to be treated as an animal. Thus Arthur learned not to treat his future subjects like dogs. Then, since Kay was the older of the two boys, he was trained to be a Knight and Arthur his squire. The boys were taught how to ride, how to tilt in a tourney, how to use the javelin, lance and sword. Wise old Merlin planted in the young Arthur the ideas of chivalry and of Knights "riding out to right wrongs," not to just fight for the fun of it. Then, there were tales of the dragons and questing-beasts who roamed the great forests and Arthur tamed a dragon and wanted to keep her for a pet, scaring all the people in the castle almost to death, but Merlin solved the problem.

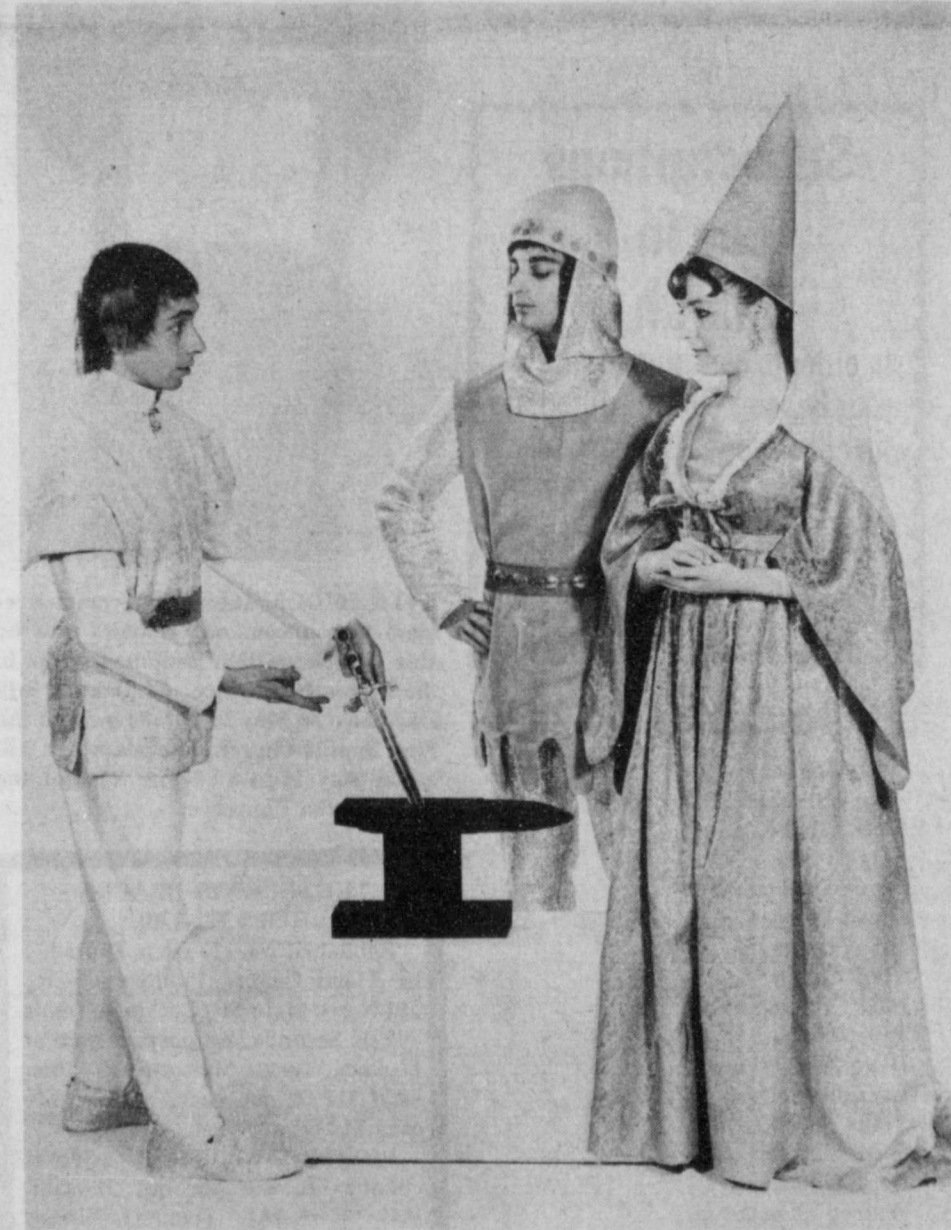

One day Princess Guinevere came from a neighboring Kingdom to visit. She told Kay and Arthur about a big round table that her father had in his castle - how it was stored away and never used. They couldn't imagine how Merlin knew all about it.

At last, Kay was made a Knight and with Arthur, Merlin, Sir Ector and old Bess, set out for the great tournaments at London. Everyone in London was talking about the sword in the stone that had miraculously appeared outside the great church. Upon the stone was carved, "He who draws forth this sword is the rightful King of All England." Every noble and knight, including Sir Kay, had tried and tried to pull the sword out of the stone. The day for the great tourney came and everyone went to the tilting field. In the excitement, Kay had forgotten his sword and sent Arthur back for it. The inn where they were staying was locked. Arthur couldn't get in to get the sword, so he thought he would try and pull the one out of the stone for he did not want Kay to lack a sword at his first jousting. He took hold of the sword all ready to give a mighty pull, but to his amazement, the sword came out of the stone easily. And so it was proved that Arthur was the "Rightful King of All England."

The National Children's Theatre Association has, for 20 years, dedicated itself to presenting the finest theatrical productions possible for children's audiences of the midwest. The company performs from September until May each year in 75 cities covering 14 states.

Tickets will be on sale at the door on the day of the performance for 75 cents.

Hamlet taken in by LHS seniors

Students in Mrs. Jerry Williams' senior English classes at Lockney High School went to Odessa recently to see "Hamlet."

Baylor University drama department presented "Hamlet" at Globe Theatre of the Southwest in Odessa. The Lockney students spent the night before returning home.

Mrs. Williams' classes, having just concluded the study of "Macbeth", were somewhat familiar with Shakespeare's plays.

Making the trip were sponsors Mr. and Mrs. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Record, and students Karen Mathis, Connie Coffman, Robin Carthel, Robin Hardy, Amy Shaw, Barbara Moore, Mary Huffman, Julie Reecer, Tara Mangum, Georgia Villarreal, Maribel Torres, Margie Araujo, Jesusa Saucedo, Steven Johnson, Tim Winter, Patrick Griffith, Russell Ford, Tony Rodriguez, Marcus Schacht, Michael Carthel and Hugo Araujo.

PRINCESS GUINEVERE and Sir Kay watch as Young Arthur attempts to pull the sword from the anvil to prove he is the heir to the throne of England. This is one of the exciting highlights from the National Children's theatre production of Young Arthur and Merlin the Magician.

Mitchell named new officer of WBU board

A 39-board member meeting of Wayland Baptist University Board of Trustees was held on the campus Thursday, March 10.

New board of trustees officers elected for 1983-84 were R.C. Mitchell of Lockney, vice chairman of the board and chairman of the executive committee; Dr. Charles Vandiver of Dimmitt, chairman; John E. Gillispie of Knox City, vice chairman; and Claude Witten of Plainview, secretary.

Approval of two new degrees as well as three new majors and one new minor, seven faculty promotions, and a frugal budget for the 1983-84 fiscal year highlighted the annual spring meeting.

Other curricular matters approved by the trustees during their meeting include the addition of Hebrew to the foreign language program; revision of the mass communications major to include concentrations in radio-television; public relations-photography, and print media; expansion of the graduate program in education for public school personnel in the Dalhart area; and the requirement of an internship for all majors at all degree levels.

Wayland president Dr. David L. Jester reported to the board that the university had met a $500,000 challenge grant from the Mabee Foundation of Tulsa, Oklahoma, by raising $631,658.24 in a recent fund drive. He added that the university had been given property worth a reported $340,000 which will earn income for the operating budget.

Dr. Dan McLallen, faculty and academic vice president reported that enrollment was at its highest level ever, with total head count for the 1982-83 year standing at more than 5,200 persons and credit hour enrollment for the year at just under 35,000.

THE LOCKNEY VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT responded to a fire at the Lockney High School parking lot. The car belonging to Hector Molina, a Junior, was on fire under the hood. Fireman Kenny Hooten speculated that the fire started in the carburetor. Fireman Joe Hayes also assisted in extinguishing the blaze.

Les Ferguson acting community resident

When it comes to working in civic and church organizations, some people tend to let "someone else do it". This is not the attitude of Les Ferguson. He has served on the Lockney school board, the Farmers Home Administration, the ASC board, the Lockney General Hospital Board and the Lockney Chamber of Commerce board of directors.

As a member of the First Baptist Church in Lockney, he has been church treasurer for more than 20 years, a Sunday school superintendent, training union director, a Sunday school teacher and a deacon of the church.

Ferguson, a retired farmer, was born in Nashville, Arkansas in 1914. He came to Texas in 1921 and has been in the Lockney area ever since.

He served on the hospital board for six years and was the president of the board the last two. He was on the board when the clinic was added to the hospital in 1980.

"That's a job that's like the school board," Ferguson said. "It's a thankless job. You get criticism regardless of what you do, but you just got to learn to take it and go on. I learned that a long time ago."

Ferguson was on the school board when the junior high school building was built. He was secretary of the board at that time. He was on the ASC board for 10 years which was the maximum time he was allowed to serve.

"I have enjoyed working with every committee I have worked with. We have always had some problems that had to be solved and some didn't meet everybody's approval."

In 1982 he was chosen outstanding citizen of the year for his accomplishments and services. Representatives from churches, civic clubs and study clubs vote on an individual for this honor based on that individual's accomplishments. The award is presented by the Chamber of Commerce.

"It was a complete surprise to me and quite an honor. I didn't expect it. I am sure there are others that are more deserving. All that I have accomplished, I owe to my wife and family and to the Lord. The Lord has been extremely good to us."

In 1938, Ferguson married Faye Cook. They have two daughters, Deborah Parish and Jo Neta Huffman.

Deborah and her husband were missionaries in Brazil for more than ten years. They came back to the United States because they were out in the jungle and Deborah couldn't teach their four children any longer. She couldn't teach four grades and subjects for four children.

The Ferguson's younger daughter married Charles Huffman of Amarillo. He is now a doctor in radiology and nuclear medicine and works in the Providence Hospital in Waco. They have two boys of their own.

Since Ferguson retired from farming ten years ago, he and his wife are now residing in Lockney.

"When we decided to move to town, it was the hardest decision I ever had to make, to leave that place out there. I have put every thing out there that is there -- the house, the barn, the trees, the shrubbery and all. Our kids grew up there and it had been home to us for 34 years. It was a hard decision to make, (but) we think we will be happy in town."

Perhaps it is the friendliness of Lockney people that has kept Ferguson and his family here. He gave an example.

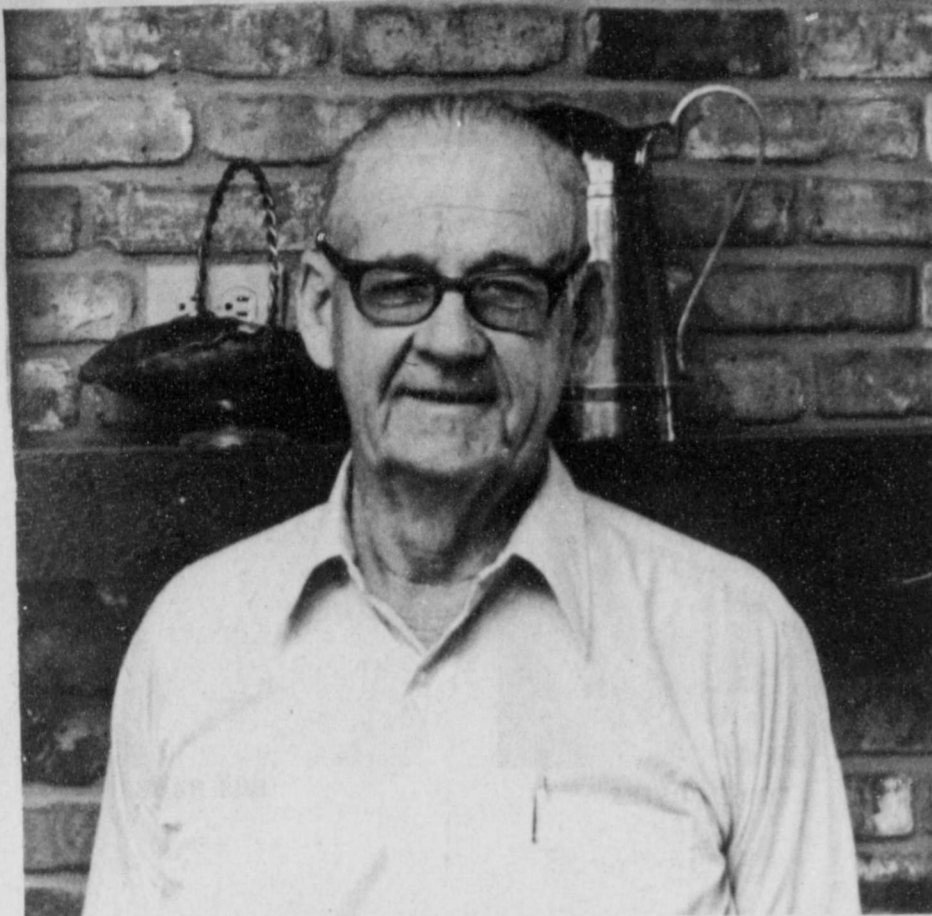

"At this blood drive they had here for Elaine Hardy, the lady in charge of that said 'I've been to lots of cities and towns to take blood. I believe I've found the friendliest people of all here in Lockney.' Lockney is an extremely friendly place. Of course, I could be biased, having lived here for some 60 odd years."

Now that Ferguson is retired, he and his wife have traveled extensively. They have toured Austria, Japan, Alaska, Switzerland, Italy, France, Holland, Germany and been to Canada three times. In England they saw the changing of the guard at Buckingham palace. They recently completed a cruise which included Puerto Rico and Nassau. During this cruise they incurred some rough weather.

"I'll recommend anyone to go on a cruise one time. After that you're on your own."

Ferguson was deferred from the military because he was farming and that was considered necessary to feed the soldiers. He said that he was grateful that he didn't have to go although, he would have gone if he was called to go.

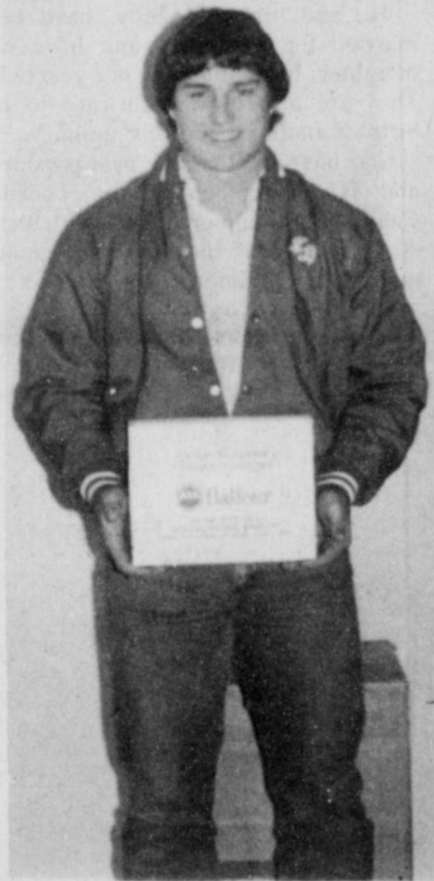

"Had the Lord let me choose a time I'd like to live, I can't say that I could have chosen a more opportune time than now. I have seen radio, television, telephones, airplane travel -- all coming about during my lifetime. There has been more inventions during my lifetime than the last 150 years. And, it is still coming about, look at all of these computers and the things they can tell you."

Seed law protects cotton varieties

Cotton producers, ginners and others who sell and use farmer-caught seed for planting purposes should become familiar with state and federal seed laws, especially the U.S. Plant Variety Protection Act (PVPA), so as to avoid associated penalties.

The PVPA was created in 1970 to offer some protection to owners or breeders of seed varieties, points out Dr. Bob Metzger, a cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. One of the objectives of this act is to provide plant breeders and seed companies a means of recovering some of the investment cost encountered in developing a variety, notes Metzger.

What does this mean to the final user of these varieties, the producer? With a method to recoup their cost, seed companies and their breeders have a greater incentive to direct more time and money into the development of superior varieties, explains Metzger.

The pay-off in the years ahead should be the continuous release of improved varieties to producers, he adds. So, PVPA should serve as a motivating factor to develop varieties with the desired traits to meet the specific needs of producers in various production regions.

Currently, seed of cotton varieties sold in Texas fall into the following categories:

1. Nonprotected varieties.
2. U.S. Variety Protection applied for or granted, not specifying that the variety be sold as a class of certified seed.
3. U.S. Variety Protection applied for or granted, specifying that the variety be sold by variety name only as a class of certified seed (Title 5 category).
4. Varieties with only Texas variety protection.

Sale of seed under the Title 5 category is the most restrictive in that the law states that no one—including the owner—may sell seed of that variety unless it has met state certification standards, says Metzger.

Varieties covered under PVPA do carry a "farmer exemption" which allows a farmer to sell the seed he produces to other farmers, adds the specialist. This exemption applies only to bonafide farmers who are not primarily involved in growing seed for planting purposes.

According to a decision issued January 3, 1983 by the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, a farmer can sell seed of a protected variety to another farmer if a one-on-one relationship exists between them. This means that the exemption status can be maintained only when sales of protected varieties occur from one farmer to another farmer without the active participation of a third party. The third party could be defined as ginners, agents, brokers, delinting plant operators or others that arrange seed sales for farmers.

Based on the Fifth Circuit Court decision, a sale is exempt if the farmer (seller) instructs the gin to forward his seed to another farmer (buyer). In this case, the gin did not arrange the seed sale nor did it play an active role in the transaction.

Furthermore, to comply with the one-on-one relationship under the farmer exemption, the farmer cannot advertise seed of protected varieties in any public communication media or solicit individuals or organizations to try to sell his seed.

Care must also be exercised in the delivery of seed. Under the farmer exemption, seed cannot be shipped by common carrier, Metzger points out.

In addition to cotton varieties, similar plant protection exists for seed of other crops. The PVPA must be interpreted separately for each crop because of different handling, processing and marketing methods associated with specific crops, Metzger says.

Since a number of commonly grown varieties are protected by the PVPA, producers are urged to contact the appropriate seed company or check the list of protected varieties before offering any farmer-caught seed for sale. Such lists are available at most gin offices, state and district offices of the Texas Department of Agriculture, the Foundation Seed Section at Texas A&M University, the Texas Seed Trade Association in Waco, and the Texas Cotton Ginners Association in Dallas.

For additional information on the PVPA, contact Cliff Todd, Director, Seed Division, Texas Department of Agriculture, Post Office Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711, or (512) 475-2038.

Is freezing weather over?

With March here, many Texans don't worry any more about freezing temperatures.

But weather records indicate that there's still a good possibility for a freeze over much of Texas, says Mickey Flynn, a meteorologist with the Agricultural Weather Service Center at Texas A&M University.

Below are last freeze dates for various regions of Texas as compiled by Flynn. "Average" dates mean that there is a 50-50 chance of a freeze occurring later than the date indicated. "Early" means a 90 percent chance of a later freeze while "late" means a 10 percent chance of a later freeze.

LAST FREEZE DATES
Region	Early	Average	Late
Panhandle	April 6	April 22	May 6
South Plains	March 27	April 11	April 25
Rolling Plains	March 17	April 1	April 17
North Central	March 9	March 26	April 12
Northeast	March 8	March 24	April 8
Far West	March 13	March 28	April 12
West Central	March 14	March 29	April 13
Central	March 9	March 25	April 10
East	March 3	March 19	April 4
South Central	Feb. 26	March 15	April 2
Southeast and Upper Coast	Feb. 1	Feb. 25	March 22
South	Dec. 30	Feb. 1	March 5
Southwest	Feb. 5	Feb. 28	March 24
Coastal Bend	Jan. 19	Feb. 17	March 17

The relatively mild winter of 1982-83 may mean that many locations are likely to receive their last freeze by the average date, says Flynn. However, late freezes are possible and may damage field crops, garden plants and potted plants left outside overnight. Flynn encourages farmers as well as gardeners to stay abreast of current weather forecasts and outlooks for information on a cold snap or possible freeze.

Certain areas are more susceptible to cold temperatures than others, notes the meteorologist. This is due to local variations in climate and topography, surrounding vegetation, proximity to an urban area, and different soil types and moisture contents.

A small town or farm in a localized depression distant from an urban area with little surrounding tree or bush vegetation may become colder at night than locations several miles away. Also, temperatures are likely to drop the most on nights having clear skies and light winds after a cool, dry air mass has moved over the area, says Flynn.

Bank closed loan fees drop

The Federal Land Bank of Texas announces a decrease in Bank closed loan fees to 2 percent on farm loans and 4 percent on rural residence and farm-related business loans, effective immediately.

"The loan fee reduction was made possible by the recent decrease in our cost of funds," said Thomas H. Benson, Land Bank president.

This reduction follows the Jan. 1, 1983 variable interest rate reduction to 11.25 percent (from 11.50 percent) on farm loans, and to 11.75 percent (from 12.00 percent) on rural residence and farm-related business loans. Bank closed loan fees had been 4 percent on farm loans and 7 percent on rural residence and farm-related loans.

The Federal Land Bank of Texas makes long-term real estate loans throughout the state through its 55 Federal Land Bank Associations. The Bank has $2.4 billion in loans outstanding.

Confirmed screwworm infestations drop in 1982

Progress in eradicating screwworms in Mexico is good news for Texas livestock producers, Dr. John W. Holcombe, executive director, Texas Animal Health Commission, said.

"We had only six confirmed cases of screwworms in Texas during all of 1982, and that, too, is good news. But as we move into 1983, livestock producers should continue to be on the lookout for possible screwworm infestations, especially those producers along the Texas-Mexico border," Dr. Holcombe said.

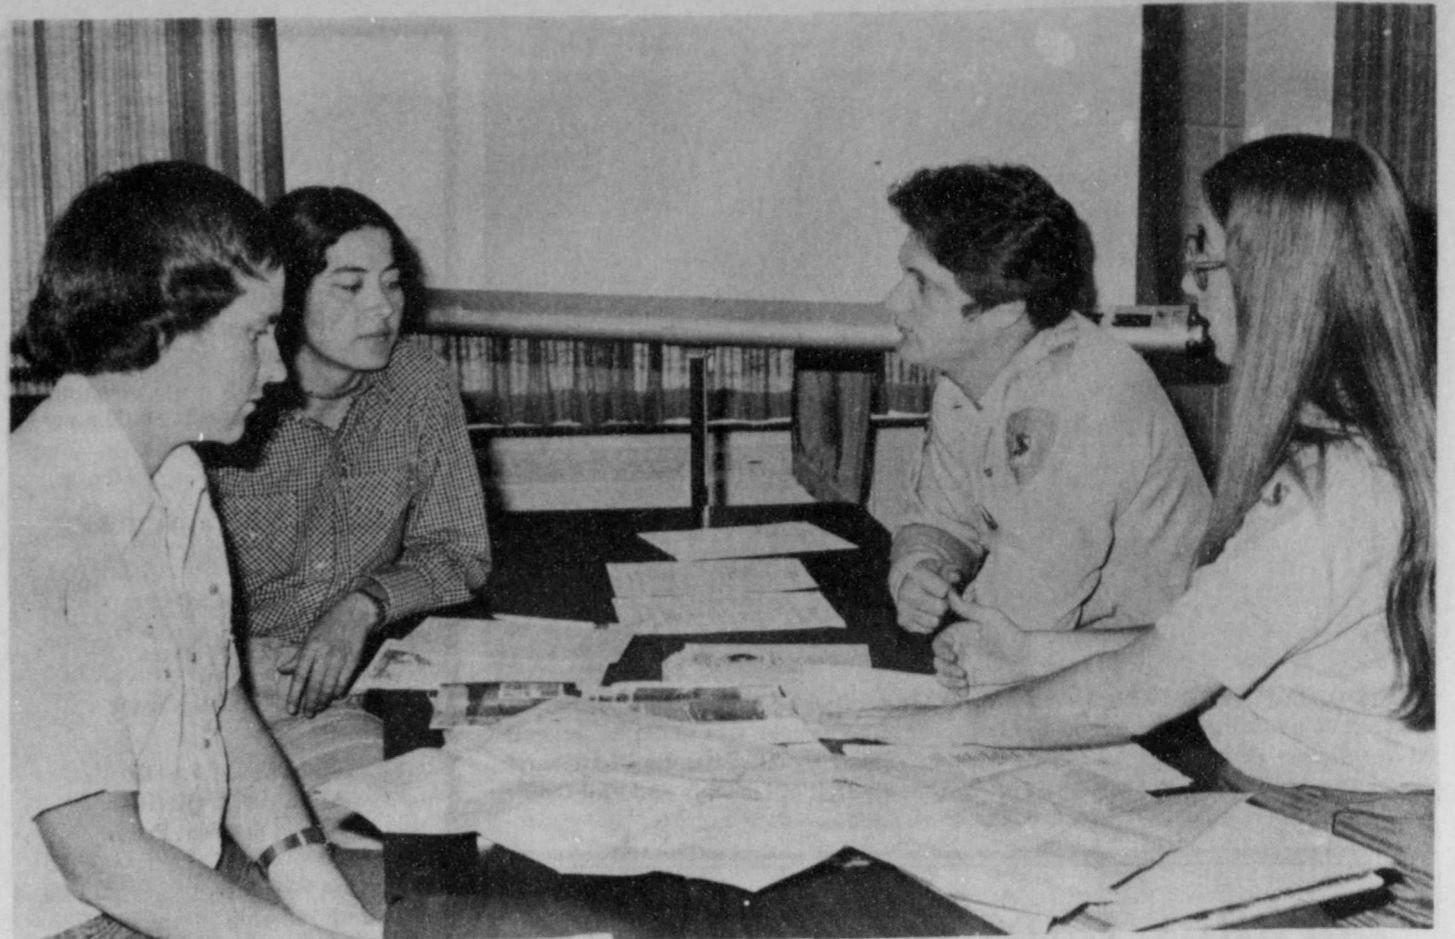

He said sample submission of screwworms to the fly laboratory at Mission is only about 30 percent of the 1982 figures. "That means we may be a bit complacent about the screwworm situation, and there is a need to be on our guard," he said.

The overall goal of the screwworm program is to have a barrier zone along the Isthmus of Tehuantepec in Mexico during 1984. That area would be seeded with sterile screwworm flies to prevent migrations northward. The Isthmus of Tehuantepec is about 1,200 miles out of the Texas-Mexico border.

Three states in Mexico -- Baja California, Chihuahua, and Sonora -- have been declared screwworm free.

However, there were isolated outbreaks of screwworms in 1982 in Mexico within 150 miles of the Texas border. "This is why it is important for Texas' livestock producers to check livestock regularly for possible screwworm infestations," Dr. Holcombe said.

Pest Management Newsletter

WHEAT

Wheat in some areas of Crosby and Floyd counties may be suffering damage from greenbugs at this time. I have seen some infestations which were very heavy and causing death of plants in large circular spots in the fields. The locations of these fields is not particularly important, as greenbugs, like many other pests, are widely spread and problems can arise in any area. This is where watching each field becomes important. Often, one field may have a serious problem while fields right next to it may have very few greenbugs.

Once damage has been detected, decision making can become very difficult due to weather factors, cost of treatment vs control achieved, and whether the crop will be grazed, harvested for grain, or both. I hope the information in this newsletter will make decision making easier.

Decision Making for Greenbug Problems in Wheat

During cool weather (less than 55° - 60°F) greenbugs tend to congregate in loose soil around plants. Try to make counts during the warmest part of the day when greenbugs are most likely to be found above ground. As a general rule, in wheat 3-6 inches tall, 100-300 greenbugs per foot of row may warrant treatment. In wheat 4-8 inches tall, treatment level may be at 200-400 greenbugs per foot of row. I say "may warrant treatment" because if the plants are growing rapidly, beneficial insects are active, and little damage is detected, treatment may not be necessary.

When inspecting a field, also look for yellowed or deadened spots. If these spots are caused by greenbug feeding, they may require treatment even if greenbug numbers are below treatment levels. Before deciding to treat, be certain greenbugs are causing the problem, damage very similar in appearance can be caused by moisture stress and/or nitrogen deficiency.

At this time of year, temperature becomes a very important factor. Greenbugs can reproduce rapidly between 55° and 95°F. Beneficial insects can keep greenbugs below treatment levels, but below 65° these insects are not very active. Also, the activity and effectiveness of most insecticides is greatly reduced at cool temperatures.

Cut corn acreage to the maximum, seed company urges USDA

The head of the nation's largest seed company has urged U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block to make the maximum possible corn acreage cut under the government's Payment In Kind (PIK) program.

Signup for the program was completed March 11. The USDA now has the option of accepting or rejecting offers by farmers to idle their entire corn base acreages.

Pioneer President Thomas N. Urban, in a telegram to Block, urged the USDA to accept the maximum corn acreage reductions offered by farmers under the PIK program, up to the limit of 50% of the base acreage in each county.

"Although a large acreage reduction will be painful to many segments of agri-business, it provides an opportunity to demonstrate PIK's effectiveness in reducing price-depressing surpluses," Urban said.

"Sharp acreage reduction can be made this year with little risk of a shortfall in food supplies due to good soil moisture reserves and ample supplies of fertilizer, seed and pesticides."

Urban also pointed out that "allowing the program to work to its fullest this year will help us complete the job of supply adjustment in 1984." Even more important, he said, is the development of new approaches to long-range food and agriculture policies that will improve and stabilize farm income.

Pioneer was one of the first agri-business firms to urge a more effective 1983 corn acreage reduction program to help support corn prices. In December, it also boosted its support of larger farm exports by pledging $630,000 over three years to market development organizations.

Control becomes especially difficult if greenbugs are in the soil rather than on the plants.

As a rule, larger plants can withstand larger numbers of greenbugs than can smaller plants. As the weather warms, in border-line infestations, the plants may be able to outgrow the greenbugs.

After checking a field, several additional factors should be considered before treating. If the weather is cool, use the heaviest rate of chemical recommended if you must treat. If possible, delay treatment to a day when 60° to 65°F temperatures are expected; warmer weather should improve control.

As an alternative to chemical treatment, grazing will result in the control of some of the greenbugs. Finally, consider what your particular use for the crop will be, and what you expect to get from the crop. Be sure you will get enough back from a treatment to pay for it. If, for instance, your wheat acreage is in the PIK program, you are only going to graze the crop, and other grazing is available, this may be a case of marginal return.

If you decide to treat after these considerations, keep in mind that a period of time, specified on the label of whatever material you use, must be allowed between treatment and grazing or harvest.

Wes Side Story by Wes Brown

I have just three words to say about typewriters. Hate, hate, hate. That may sound strange coming from a person who intends to make his life's work at writing, but it is true. I first learned to type in high school. I decided to learn when my history teacher looked at one of my reports and asked, "Which foot did you write this with anyway?"

I sat down at the desk, turned on the machine and put my hands on the keys. Instantly the machine spat four letters that I had not intended to type. And every time I would accidentally hit two keys at once, the wrong key would be the one that would type. Next we learned to use that scourge of the typing world—carbon paper. Now I made three times as many mistakes as before. Or I would type a whole page as near perfect as I could only to find that I hit the carbons in backwards.

When I use the return button, the carriage flies back with a whizbang and the whole typewriter jumps about half an inch, shakes the desk and spills coffee on my notes. Over on the left side is a funny shaped key that has "half space" on it. I have yet to figure out what that key is for. All it does is move the carriage over a half space at a time.

Lockney's players contend well in tennis

By Anna Anderson

The Lockney High School tennis group entered their first tournament of the year with some good luck and some bad. As a whole the group did well and we can look forward to a good year as tennis gets more and more underway.

With Kay Reay seeded in the tournament as #1 she slowly but decisively held her ground all the way through to defeat each and every opponent she faced.

Her first match on Friday was held with Floydada's Rosie Rodriguez with a match count of 6-3, 6-1. Also Friday she faced another Floydada girl which was designated as Floydada's #2 singles, Diana Wilson. Kay calmly took charge of the match with a 6-1, 6-1 win.

Saturday Kay faced her first match with a memory of once playing and barely defeating the Ralls #1 player, D.J. Wilson. Yet as they played, D.J. seemed to lack the concentration, and Kay once again took the match with a 6-1, 6-2 count. As the afternoon continued Kay found herself playing the Post #1 girl, Rhonda Stone, who had twice been defeated by Kay in prior duals, but they were, as always, hard ones to overcome. In the first duals they played earlier this month, Kay won with a knowing 6-1, 9-7 defeat and a 7-5, 4-6, 6-3 win. While knowing these matches earlier were not easy, Kay went in with a winning mind and the "Want To" that it takes to hold on to a good position. She did so, winning first place once again by defeating Rhonda Sutorje of Post with a 7-5, 6-0 victory.

Lockney's other entry did well also as Jason Hill came on to play four matches with a win over Rall's Martin in the first round of 6-1, 6-3. Yet he was defeated in the second round play, placing him in the quarterfinals to play and defeat Vernon's #1 player, Box Ekin and then a loss to Friona's #1 player, leaving Jason with a 6th place of 16 places.

The boys 1st doubles Keith Owens and Carlos Molinar played some good tennis as they went through 4 matches to defeat Plainview #2 boys, 6-4, 7-5. Then they had a loss in the second round and moved to the quarterfinals there, losing once to Post's #2 team and winning over the Floydada #2 team to take 7th place.

Lockney's 2nd doubles team, Ronnie Ford and Kelly Hays were also beat in the first and second round, leaving them with a win in the third round over Friona to take 13th place.

Also losing in the first and second round were Shandra Bybee, and Nikki Race, Lockney's #2 girls doubles team. They came out with a 13th or 14th, after playing off their match with their fellow teammates Heather Holt and Stephanie KAY REAY is shown with her 1st place trophy she won in girls singles in the Varsity tournament in Plainview on March 18-19.

FISHIN' TIPS

from... Tom Mann

BASS FISHERMEN ACROSS this bass crazy nation of ours all are asking the same question: "Where will the next world record bass come from?" Well, I've fished in most of the big bass spots so I guess my guess is about as good as the next guy's.

There are a lot of bassin' men still putting their money on Florida's giant strain despite the fact that the present world record largemouth, a 22 1/4 pounder, came from Georgia. Others think it can again come from Georgia's fertile lakes, or neighboring Alabama.

Then, Texas has transplanted Florida's giant strain in a number of its lakes and bass in the 15-pound-plus area have been caught, with some whoppers popping 17-pound lines. And the Carolinas have come up with some mighty big catches.

But, my friend, Glen Lau, one of the nation's outstanding underwater photographers, says he came face to face with one in California's Miramar Lake that weighed at least 25 pounds, and knows of a dead bass found floating and weighed out at 24 pounds. So, I go with Glen's choice and vote for California to come through before 1985.

BRER TOM'S CLOSING TIP: Most big bass experts agree that a big live shiner would be the number one lure to tempt a world record bass with, and number two would be a plastic worm.
