Top athletes honored at banquet

The Annual All-Sports banquet was held Saturday night to honor this year's athletes with dinner and a prom.

Cheryl Teeter served as the coordinator for this year's decorations and preparations. The tables were decorated with Longhorn cutouts of black on tables covered with white paper and black ribbons. Red TNT centerpieces highlighted the tables. Name plates were star shaped cutouts with the athletes names on them.

Members of the Quarterback Club, the G.A.B. and some of the mothers of the students all helped to decorate the cafeteria.

C.L. Record served as master of ceremonies, and Lucy Dean Record provided the dinner music.

Following the invocation by Russell Ford, a chicken fried steak dinner was served. The meal was prepared by the cafeteria staff. Freshman cheerleaders helped serve.

After the meal, C.L. Record introduced the officers of the booster clubs and the special guests: Dr. W.J. Mangold and Dr. Gary Mangold and their wives.

Coaches Bob Purser, Malcom Moerbe, and Randy Josey then introduced each member of the varsity, junior varsity and freshmen football teams. Coach Purser presented the football awards.

Offensive lineman award went to Steven Johnson, defensive lineman to Kyle Brock, outstanding defensive back to Greg Gonzales, and Tony Rodriguez was awarded offensive back. Tommy Silva received the attitude award. Kyle Brock was awarded the leadership award and Victor Rodriguez the desire award. Coach Purser said that the attitude, leadership and desire awards are special, in that they are picked by fellow athletes. The outstanding player awards are chosen by the coaches.

Following the football awards, Sheri Haynes and Kathy Grissom introduced members of the varsity, junior varsity, and freshman girls basketball teams. Haynes presented the girls basketball awards.

Connie Coffman was named outstanding offensive player and Shawnda Brock received the defensive player award. The attitude award went to Karyn Foster. Robin Hardy received the desire award and Shawnda Brock was bestowed the leadership honor.

The boys basketball awards were presented by coach Randy Josey: outstanding defensive player, Steven Johnson, Tony Rodriguez, offensive player, Steven also received the attitude and desire awards. Rodriguez carried away the leadership honor.

An award for outstanding boy and girl trackster was sponsored by Il Penseroso Junior Study Club this year for the first time. Following the introduction of both boys and girls track teams, these awards went to Judy Davis and Paul Castro.

Coach Grissom introduced the tennis teams and awarded honors to Kay Reay and Kelly Hayes as outstanding girl and boy.

For the 26th year in a row John Bickley gave the Fighting Heart Awards. Karen Mathis received the girl's award and Kyle Brock received the boy's award.

Jim Bob Martin presented the J.L.

Martin Christian Athlete Award to Russell Ford. The award is given in honor of his father, J.L. Martin who was a coach in Lockney until 1967.

Following the award ceremony, the cheerleaders lead the school song while the athletes held sparklers in the dark for an impressive ritual.

Junior High students visit in Austin

By Pam Armstrong

Students from Lockney's Gifted and Talented classes at Lockney Junior High traveled to Austin to participate in the state competition of Future Problem Solvers.

The students had to prepare two written presentations for judging to qualify for state competition. After the students were invited to compete, they researched the subject "Computers and Finance." The students studied to determine the biggest problem in this area, and then through a multi-step process, discovered a solution to this problem. Students were allowed to fully research and make study notes, but no notes could be taken into the contest.

Of the 301 teams to submit entries, Lockney was one of 33 teams from all over the state to be invited to compete.

Though Lockney's two teams did not place in the competition, they enjoyed many interesting things while there.

On Friday before the meet, Senator Ray-Farabee took the students on a tour of the House of Representatives and the Senate chamber. He read a resolution on the Senate floor, commending the Lockney students. He also had a photographer take pictures of the students in the Senate chamber at the podium and in his office at his desk.

On Saturday, after the contest, the students toured the LBJ Library and ate at the Magic Time Machine.

On the way home Sunday, the students visited the LBJ Ranch. They enjoyed the beautiful scenery and the tour.

The only teams which placed in the competition were all from Chisholm Trail, Round Rock, which is a 5-A school.

Lockney parents and citizens have a right to be proud of these students, who did their best to represent Lockney.

Also a great big thanks goes to Senator Ray Farabee for taking time from his busy schedule to show these students the capital building and making them welcome in Austin.

Perspectives

Have you heard the latest national tragedy? Seems that nationwide our kids are not doing too well in mathematics. What's the tragedy? According to Time magazine the tragedy is that we are moving into an increasingly technological age and our youth won't be prepared for that world unless they get their math abilities up.

While that may prove to be a serious problem, I find it hard from my perspective to think that it qualifies as a tragedy. According to the article, various groups, including the government, are gearing up to deal with the problem. I have no doubt they will succeed in rectifying the situation. That may then prove to be the ultimate tragedy.

The B and PW club began honoring citizenship girls in 1953. The names of this year's honorees will be added to the plaques that hang in the Lockney High School library.

When I was in high school, we took all the standard tests that kids take to determine their abilities. Without exception I did poorly in math. That would have been all right with me as long as I could balance my checkbook (and the advent of the portable calculator enabled me to do that with reasonable accuracy). But the status people in school were those who did well, mostly because they qualified for advanced placement courses, one of which got you the chance to work with an honest to gosh computer.

My specialties were foreign languages and English. Later I added History as an interest. I was quickly made to understand that such skills were neither useful or marketable. Perhaps the same thing will happen again if we begin to emphasize math and the hard sciences. Yet it is those softer disciplines which humanize and civilize us. We do not think so very often, but it is essential that we have people around who have read Plato and Shakespeare, Kant and Frost, Augustine and even O. Henry. It is vital to have the perspective of history to inform our plans for the future.

It is not a tragedy that we are heading for a society made of silver and wires and silicon chips. But it will be tremendously sad if somewhere in the jungle of keyboards and CRT's we lose the arts that made us more than the machines we manipulate.

special!

Birthday!

Care Center Capers

by Vickie Hutton

Well, spring has finally come and we hope it is here to stay. We welcomed spring in by having our Spring Luncheon. All of our families were invited and the fellowship was enjoyed by all. One resident remarked "I've never seen so much food in my life!" A meal of ham and all the trimmings was served besides many varieties of covered dishes brought by the families.

Mary McCracken, Mary Jo Fielding and Jewell Miller were our blackout winners this week in bingo. The anticipation grows and grows as the final numbers are called. Friday we had a new helper, LaVada Griffith. Our thanks to her and to our regulars De Linda Glasson and Almada Phillips.

On our weekly bus trip we went for a ride to the Baptist Encampment south of Floydada. It is so nice to get out and see the different sights.

Wednesday we enjoyed painting ceramics. We were saddened to learn that Olive is moving to Lubbock to attend Texas Tech and work on her masters. We will surely miss her.

Thursday we finished up our octapuses and we are selling them for $4.00 each or 2 for $6.00. We have already picked out a new project and can't wait to get started on it.

We would like to send a special thanks to all of our wonderful volunteers who share their time and talent with us. They really add alot to our lives.

Until next time...

Bilingual education plays role

The administrator's role in bilingual education is very broad and deals with nearly every phase of the bilingual program. He monitors the program making sure that the needs of the students, teachers, and parents are being met. While he is not directly involved in the teaching, he is responsible for the implementation of the state plan and for meeting the needs of the bilingual students in his school system. The administrator establishes a management plan which is an accountability system that evaluates the progress of bilingual students in the English language and other academic areas.

The principal is the key to the program. Some of his responsibilities deal with the instructional portion of the program. He also has a role to carry out in terms of selecting staff members who have a positive and constructive attitude toward bilingual education and who can develop the skills necessary to relate to the students, parents, and community members of different cultural and ethnic backgrounds.

Other responsibilities of the bilingual administrator are:

- (1) Conducting orientation activities for teachers, parents, and students
- (2) Appointing an appropriate staff to be trained as interviewers and testers
- (3) Providing necessary surveys, tests and forms needed for the program
- (4) Notifying parents of program selection for their children
- (5) Evaluating both the staff training program and the use of material in the instruction of bilingual students.

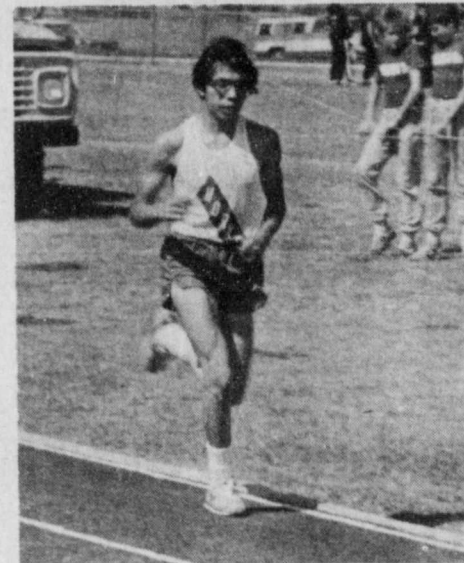

Another role of the administrator is keeping the lines of communication open. The more interaction he has between his school and community concerning bilingual education the more successful the program will be; therefore the administrator should be available to serve as a guest speaker to community groups if called upon.

One might assume that the administrator would have to be bilingual in order to administer such a program, but that is not necessarily true. As a matter of fact, only a small percentage of bilingual education programs have bilingual administrators. One of the greatest needs in establishing and improving bilingual education is a team of administrators who, because of their training and not their cultural heritage, are supportive and sensitive to the educational needs of the school children needing this type of program.

The more knowledgeable the administrator is concerning bilingual problems, the more he can contribute to the program, and the more effective a public relations person he can become. The administrator needs to understand the bilingual program as thoroughly as he understands his required reading program.

It is very important to note that it is critical that an administrator never interpret or conceive a bilingual education program merely an addition to his curriculum. To be successful, such an educational program must have the complete support of its administration.

Four teams from Lockney's Agriculture department traveled to Lubbock Saturday to compete in livestock judging contest at Texas Tech.

Of the four teams, the dairy judging team, consisting of Keith Hight, Earl Broseh and Scott McCarty, qualified to go to State competition. The dairy team placed 4th in area and 7th in district competition.

Of the 342 individuals who participated, Earl Broseh placed 4th highest individual. The livestock team of Glen Sutterfield, Darin Widner, and Gary Bigham placed 9th and the poultry team consisting of Romeo Araujo, Tommy Floyd and Joel Widner placed 5th in district.

The dairy team will go to State competition on Saturday, April 30. The competition will be held at Texas A&M University.

SCOTT McCARTY, Earl Broseh, and Keith Hight comprise the dairy judging team from the Lockney FFA department. This team will be in State judging competition at A&M on Saturday.

COUNTY AGENT'S CORNER

by Richie Crow

There has been relatively little discussion of Texas PIK participation statistics. This data is from ASCS and summarizing of it has just been completed.

From an overall perspective, 39 percent of the Texas cropland will be taken out of production. This compares with 36 percent nationally. Considerable variation exists regionally in the proportion of land retired. The High Plains experienced the highest overall level of participation with nearly the maximum 45 percent of acreage taken out of production. In the Rolling Plains, about 40 percent of the cropland has been removed from production. A third or more of this land was taken out under the whole farm retirement provisions. In Central Texas about 30 percent of the cropland was retired. In the Gulf Coast region overall participation reach 40 percent because of high rice producer enrollment. Rio Grande Valley participation in PIK was the lowest in the state with only 25 percent of the land enrolled.

These geographic patterns generally parallel the commodity statistics. For cotton, 43 percent of the land has been removed from production with the highest participation on the High Plains. In sorghum and corn, 35 percent of the cropland was idled, with High Plains participation meeting or even exceeding the ASCS goal of 45 percent. In wheat, 41 percent of Texas cropland was removed from the production.

Regional differences in PIK participation have important implications for economic activity. Farm supply purchases will be most severely curtailed in areas where the most land is retired. These same areas will also have to deal most directly with the unique marketing problems involved in handling the PIK commodity.

PIK follow up

From Farmland News
Post-PIK: What now?

That's the question all hands were asking after the most massive land diversion program in American agriculture's history. What will the impact of taking 82 million acres of wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice out of production?

Farmers pledged to take roughly one-third of the nation's normal acreage out of production. Agriculture Secretary John Block happily pronounced the participation "beyond my wildest expectations." Commodity markets strengthened.

The prevailing mood remained optimistic -- the Payment-In-Kind program would help the sadly sagging agriculture economy back on its feet.

But potential negative impacts kept cropping up.

The unpredicted signup caused a run on seed for cover crops. Under PIK, idled acres must be protected. Prices soared for alfalfa, various clovers and ryes, orchard grasses and fescue. Shortages developed.

Seed companies said they must decide a year ahead on how much seed to grow. PIK wasn't even talked of a year ago. The companies want to know now if there will be an '84 PIK to make sure enough seed will be available next year.

The secretary had said he wasn't likely to make a decision for '84 any time soon. This uncertainty not only makes for nervous seed companies, but nervous markets.

Block assured the world the U.S. would have plenty of grain for both at-home use and exports, even if global weather were "undesirable." But a week later, USDA Deputy Secretary Dick Lying said the department didn't have enough grain in CCC stocks to fulfill all PIK requirements. The upshot: The government extended a 3-week offer to buy more reserve grain from producers.

According to a department official, the secretary was hoping he would get enough grain from his buy-back offer that he wouldn't have to fall back on his last resort -- dipping into 83 crops. That option, dubbed "plant for PIK" would be used "sparingly," Block said.

"Planting for PIK" would have the department forgiving a loan the very day a farmer took it out. Producers would have no choice.

Reserve grain is owned by a small number of farmers, about 30-40 percent. No problem is foreseen in repaying these farmers. The problem is paying the other farmers who participated, they must be paid with CCC grain.

The wheat crop, projected at 2.3

Land Bank's interest rates drop to 11%

Interest rates on Land Bank variable rate loans will be reduced to 11.00 percent on farm loans and to 11.50 percent on rural residence and farm-related business loans effective May 1, 1983, said Tommy R. Ogden, president of the Federal Land Bank Association of Floydada.

In addition, the Land Bank has reduced its Bank closed loan fees to 1 percent on farm loans and to 2 percent on rural residence and farm-related business loans, according to Thomas H. Benson, president of the Federal Land Bank of Texas. These reduced fees are effective April 25, 1983.

"The adjustments follow reductions made earlier this year," Benson said. On January 1, 1983, the Bank's interest rate on farm loans was lowered to 11.25 percent. The interest rate for rural residence and farm-related business loans was lowered to 11.75 percent. Bank closed loan fees subsequently were reduced in February from 4 to 2 percent on farm loans and from 7 to 4 percent on rural residence and farm-related business loans. The fee reduction was made possible, Benson said, by the decrease in the Bank's cost of funds.

The Federal Land Bank Association of Floydada makes long-term real estate loans in the counties of Floyd, Briscoe and Motley.

billion bushels, was expected to be down only 18 percent from 82. Supplies would still be ample.

Weather would have a lot to do with a final supplies and market prices. Block continued to insist supplies "will be ample" to satisfy both domestic and foreign markets.

Another big question about PIK is "slippage", the number of farmers that might change their minds about holding out acreage.

Farmers in PIK are locked in, unless they want to pay a hefty penalty. For example, if a corn producer wants to drop out, he must pay the government 20 percent of the target price ($2.86) or 57 cents a bushel on PIK bushels.

If he is in the 30 percent PIK, has a 100-acre base and has an average yield of 100 bushels, he would have to pay the government $1,368. The 30 acres in PIK are multiplied by the 100-bushel yield rate, times the 80 percent payment rate for PIK corn, times 57 cents.

A department official didn't think producers in PIK were likely to drop out, or they wouldn't have signed up in the first place. But he expected producers in the regular acreage reduction program to drop out in greater numbers than historically.

For the '82 crop, almost two-thirds of the acreage signed for the set-aside program dropped out. Half of the wheat acreage was pulled out. Last year there was a "somewhat heavier" drop-out rate than usual he noted.

What prices will do, the bottom line for farmers, was at the top of the list of uncertainties. Despite a runup in prices following the department's announcement of PIK's success, most indicators showed stocks would still be too large. In other words supplies would depress markets for some time.

It would take another year to raise prices, the department agreed, unless something unforeseen happens.

Thanks to PIK, the picture for farm income looks better. But that doesn't mean farmers will be making more money. PIK's impact will be concentrated in production expense savings rather than in a rise in cash receipts," USDA said in an official bulletin.

THOMAS MARR, B.J. Terrell, and Tom Duvall made some pretty fine catches during their recent fishing trip to Lake Hubbard near Breckenridge. The yellow catfish weighed 38 lbs. and the blue catfish weighed 43 lbs. They were caught on a trot line April 16.

European/U.S. imported cattle arrive in Madisonville, Texas

The 50 head of French Limousin calves involved in the first direct shipment of cattle from Europe to the United States ended their long, tedious trip when they were delivered to the Horizon Limousin Ranch in Madisonville, Texas on March 23.

The cattle were shipped from the Harry S. Truman Animal Import Center in Key West, Florida where they have spent the past 90 days in quarantine.

The import, which is the largest purchase of Limousin cattle by one individual breeder in the world, has set a precedent in the cattle industry as all French Limousin prior to these have had to spend lengthy quarantine periods in Canada.

This historic project began in July, 1982 when ranch manager, Henry de Lobbe and the owner of the Horizon Limousin Ranch visited the Limousin Province in France. An inspection of 2500 calves from 63 different herds took place and 130 calves were chosen as possible candidates for the importation.

In August, the 130 calves and their dams were isolated from the other herds and inspected for the second time reducing the selection to 111.

The third phase involved weaning the calves and the first series of health tests by a team of four U.S.D.A. veterinarians assisted by French counterparts began. All tests were conducted in Plum Island, New Jersey and were primarily for foot and mouth disease, brucellosis, tuberculosis and pleuro-pneumonia.

By mid-November, 69 animals had been cleared by the U.S.D.A. to enter the French quarantine station in Brest, France. De Lobbe made the final selection of animals allowing 61 calves to enter French quarantine for a 30-day period.

On December 20, 46 heifers and 4 bulls were jetfreighted to the United States aboard a 707 charter Global International Airways flight. The cattle were greeted at the Boca Chica Naval Base in Key West, Florida by Dr. Galen Krill of the U.S.D.A. who then trucked the herd to the Harry S. Truman Animal Import Center located on the opposite side of the island.

The Truman import center opened in 1980 allowing foreign livestock to be imported directly to the United States as opposed to being shipped through Canada or Mexico. The French importation project is the third time the facilities have been taken advantage of. The first two imports came from Brazil.

Upon successful completion of all tests in Florida, the 50 head were trucked by Barnes Livestock Trucking Co. to the Horizon Limousin Ranch. Howard Barnes, owner of the trucking company had the privilege of transporting the first Limousin animal permanently entering the United States from the quarantine station in Clifton, New Jersey to Seminole, Oklahoma in January, 1973. He has spent the past several of his twenty years in business specializing in the transportation of Limousin throughout the United States and Canada.

"We feel confident that the unique genetic 'power' we are bringing to North America will be a remarkable asset not only to the Limousin breed but to the cattle industry in general," says de Lobbe, a veteran of Limousin breeding for 16 years.

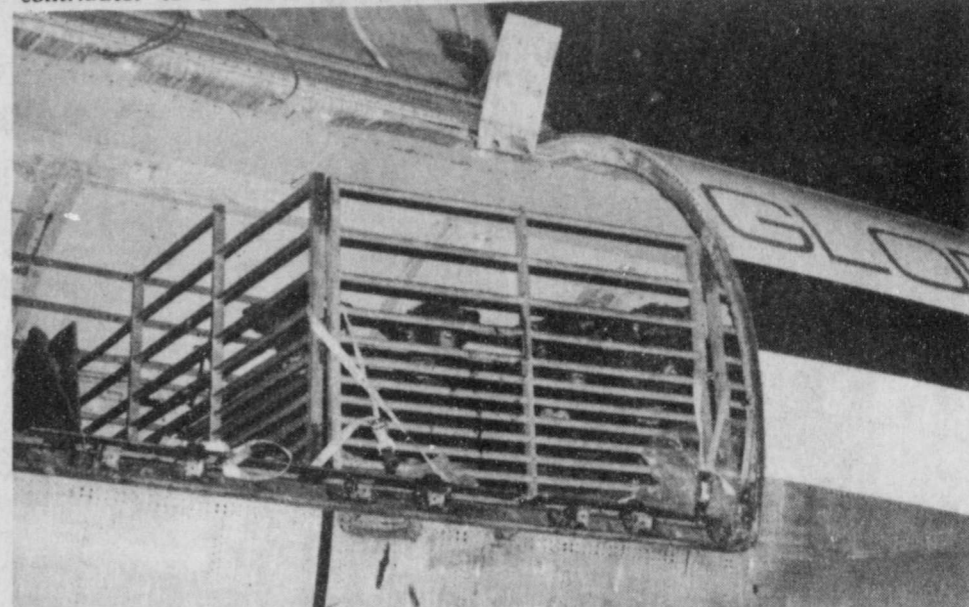

The imported cattle will soon be joined with the ranch's present herd for extensive high-level breeding and transplant programs. Horizon's goal is to offer the best Limousin seedstock possible.

The Horizon Limousin Ranch has continuously produced championship animals, most recently winning first in its class with its entry in the Houston Livestock Show & Rodeo.

Limousin cattle (nicknamed the "carcass breed") yield a very lean beef and because of their low fat and bone content, they are rapidly achieving acceptance in America as a major contributor to a more efficient beef breed. Recent studies show that Limousin produce a higher percentage of red meat per carcass weight than any other breed and is one of the fastest growing beef breeds in America.

SEVERAL OF THE FRENCH LIMOUSIN calves that were involved in the first European/U.S. importation peep out at America for the first time. The cattle arrived in Key West, Florida on December 20 where they have spent the past 90 days in U.S. quarantine.

HAVING JUST COMPLETED over 10 months in French and U.S. quarantine, this Limousin calf curiously steps out to its new home at the HORIZON LIMOUSIN RANCH in Madisonville, Texas. It and 49 other French Limousin calves will be used for high-level breeding and transplant programs at the ranch.

United States cotton market drops

Donald Johnson, executive vice president of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., says that lack of available credit has caused the U.S. share of South Korea's cotton market to drop from 95 to 79.8 percent in the last six months alone.

"Korea is the second largest user of U.S. cotton, buying more than a million bales annually over the past several years," he said. "Now, just when we need to move our excess supply, we're losing out, and it's especially disheartening to us because a lot of High Plains cotton is involved in Korean purchases. The cause of the loss, Johnson explained, is a decision by a sub-cabinet group rejecting Korea's request for $20 million in blended credit as part of a $100 million credit package to buy U.S. cotton."

"The Korean package was strongly supported by the Agriculture and State departments. But it was vetoed by Treasury on the basis that it was not needed," he said.

"That doesn't make sense. U.S. cotton growers are losing an important market because the Koreans, who are among our most faithful customers, are being denied credit at the same time that credit is being extended to other countries, one of which hasn't bought any U.S. cotton in years," he explained.

Johnson said that a total of 149 Senators and Representatives have written to President Reagan and Agriculture Secretary John Block asking that the loan be granted. Senators John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen and their staffs are working to get the decision reversed. Congressmen Charles Stenholm and Kent Hance are among other Texans urging a reversal of the decision.

In hot pursuit of a burning desire

There is something about a fire that attracts people, either they are curious or just like to watch something burn. I fall into both categories. Being involved with a newspaper, I am naturally curious about something burning. But, there is something inside of me that likes to watch things burn. To satisfy this curiosity and desire to watch things burn, I joined the fire department.

is fought by pushing the fire back with the water so the valve can be shut off. When we got to the point for the valve to be shut off, one of the instructors cautioned me to watch out or the burning gas could creep under the protection of the water. I sure wished he had told me that before we started, because I would have stayed at the back and watched.
