LVFD receives CPR training last week

The Annual CPR class was taught in Lockney to the 16 members of the Volunteer Fire Department May 3 and 4. Cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) is the combination of artificial respiration and manual artificial circulation that is essential in maintaining life support in a victim of cardiac arrest. It requires special supplemental training in the recognition of cardiac arrest and in the performance of CPR. Instruction includes mannequin practice in performing both individually and as a part of a team.

Live patients are used in the practice of choking and obstructed airway. Periodic retraining is required. The LVFD takes the course every year in order to keep in practice, learn any new developments, and to satisfy the American Red Cross requirements. The course was taught by fellow fireman, Robert Webb, who is also a certified American Red Cross CPR instructor.

The course is an 8 hour course which covers the proper methods of CPR given to adults as well as to babies and children. The LVFD wishes to thank Robert for his time and dedication in the instruction in CPR.

Murdock retires after 25 years of service

Twenty-five year veteran of the Lockney Volunteer Fire Department, Kenneth Murdock, was honored at a party given by the LVFD Saturday, May 7, 1983.

Murdock, who retired from active duty on the LVFD earlier this year, was given a cook-out party, a plaque and an offer to join the LVFD fishing trip in 1984.

Attending the party were Murdock, twenty members of the LVFD, eight members of the Floydada Fire Dept., and special guests who were associated with Murdock while he was a member of the LVFD.

Served at the party were T-bone steaks which were furnished by the Lockney Meat Company, Sam Fortenberry, owner.

The LVFD wishes to thank Sam, and all the others who donated time and money to make this a special event for Kenneth.

The plaque given to Kenneth reads: The Lockney Volunteer Fire Department presents this plaque to Kenneth Murdock for twenty-five years of dedicated service to The City of Lockney, County of Floyd, as a member of the Lockney Volunteer Fire Dept.

City Council accepts bid for aerial spraying

The Lockney City Council met on Thursday morning, May 5, for both regular and executive sessions. All council members were present, including Mayor J.D. Copeland, Gail Kring, Paul Reece, Dub Dipprey, Kenneth Wofford, city secretary Erma Lee Duckworth and attorney Paul Lyle.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The motion was moved and approved to pay the current bills.

A resolution was approved to demolish the remains of a house belonging to Thomas A. Hutton. Mr. Hutton has been notified to clear this lot. If that deadline is not met, the city will proceed to clear the lot.

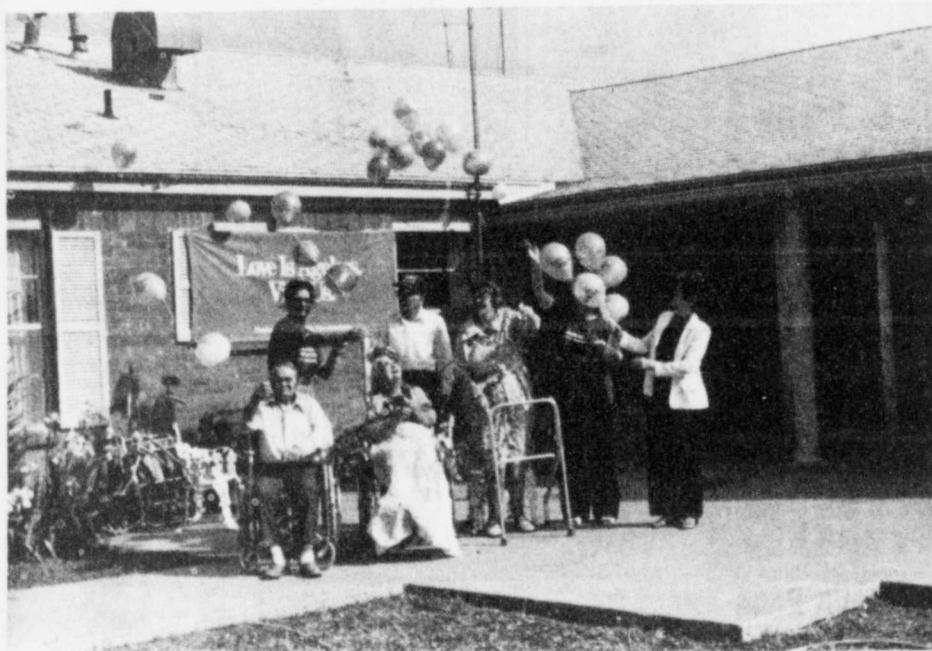

The bid to audit the CDBG books submitted by Mason, Nichols, and Werner of Lubbock was accepted. The bid was for $1800.

A proposal was sent to the city office asking for the city's support in having House Bill #35 vetoed. The bill states that any city filing a law suit to recover delinquent taxes would have to pay the court costs for the suit, whereas now the defendant has to pay these costs. The council agreed with the proposal.

The council also passed a new ordinance to update the city's plumbing code. A copy of the new ordinance can be found in the classified section of this paper.

The council opened bids from aerial spraying services to spray the city for mosquitoes this spring and summer. The bid from Southwest Aerial Service, Inc., was accepted. The bid states that the total cost will be .86 per acre. This includes flying cost of 48 cents and chemical cost of 38 cents per acre. 1100 acres at each spraying.

The final item on the agenda was the plaque to be installed on the City Hall building. The plaque commemorates the J.E. Burns blacksmith shop which used to be where the city hall is now. The plaque will cost $250, the expense to be equally funded by the City and the Chamber of Commerce. The plaque will be placed adjacent to the front door of the City Hall. The council agreed to pay for half the cost. The regular meeting adjourned at 10:00 a.m. Immediately following the council went into executive session.

The Rev. Michael O'Connor's

Perspectives

Ever read those little stories they have about the stars in nearly everything you read. You know, the pieces they put into Family Weekly, and TV Guide and Time and magazines like that. I am not talking about the pulp expose magazines sold in supermarkets. Those kind try generally to downgrade our image of the high and esteemed.

But the others are fairly respectable rags that think they are doing a fair job of reporting. Often, however, the articles are written about so-called hot properties and they sometimes sound a bit like a press agent had a hand in the writing.

The ones that are most amazing to me are the articles which are supposed to be interviews. I say supposed to be interviews because I don't really trust the writers, and that feeling of distrust was heightened last year when the newspapers reported that two different magazines had interviews with Sophia Loren and they were contradictory in some of their statements.

I usually read the interview type articles if they are short. What distresses me about these interviews is that there is usually a little note at the beginning giving the author's impressions of the person he interviews. Those impressions are generally favorable, but when I read the interview I tend to come away thinking, "What a sad life this person leads, and they think they are enjoying life." Or, "I wonder where he/she left his/her brain during the talk."

Why are we so fascinated by these people? Why do we feel we have to know what their opinions are? Certainly "stars" are entitled to express opinions, but I fear we give more weight to what they say simply because they are more visible than, say, a college professor. And the simple fact seems to be that celebrities hold opinions which are fashionable most of the time, or that make them look as though they are not just dumb actors, models, etc.

Unfortunately, those opinions almost inevitably run counter to values I hold near and dear. I think I shall probably pay even less attention to articles about celebrities than I do now, and continue to think for myself.

The students selected for this honor are chosen by high school principals and church officials. The boys have been chosen to represent the Covenant Baptist Church of Marengo, Illinois. Parents of the boys are Ed and Patsy Musser of Marengo, Illinois.

Cedar Hill News

By Grace Lemons

We had a beautiful Mother's Day and the weather was permissible for people to travel.

The Rev. and Mrs. Vance Mitchell and Virginia and Sandra left after church to have dinner with Vance's mother, Minnie Mitchell in Crosbyton.

Mrs. Peat Kelley had dinner with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs.

J.A. Welch Sunday.

Jackie and Pam Hayhurst arrived from Oklahoma to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fortenberry Saturday night with their furniture and left Sunday for Amarillo where they will make their home. Gladys went with them for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Vanhoose spent Saturday night in the home of their son and wife, Alfred and Barbara VanHoose in Lubbock. They had dinner with them Sunday and visited Eula Mae and Chick Wilson in Ralls before returning home.

Linda Lemons and children visited her mother, Lorene Cooper in Lubbock Sunday. Mrs. Cooper is a patient in the Methodist Hospital and underwent major surgery last Tuesday. She is reported to be much improved at this time.

Peat Kelley and Norma Welch visited Belle Lemons Sunday afternoon. Belle is improving nicely after injuring her left arm in a freak accident last Sunday. She was assisting while some cattle were being loaded on her farm and a calf caused a pannel to fall upon her.

Edna Gilly hosted a Mother's Day dinner in her home Sunday. Those present were Johnnie and Delise Harrison, Casandra and Christy of Lubbock, Ruthie and W.M. Clark of Plainview, Craig and Trudi Gilly, Amy and Tara, Mark and Lori Gilly and Emory and Bud Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Bub Garret of Ruidoso visited Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mize last Thursday.

Funeral services for Bruce Gentry Sr. were held last Monday in the Broadway Church of Christ Chapel in Lubbock with Horace Coffman officiating. He died Saturday April 30th at 6:24 a.m. from a lengthy illness. Burial was in the City of Lubbock Cemetery under the direction of Sanders Funeral Home. He was a member of the Broadway Church of Christ. He was active in farming in this area and owns land in Cedar Hill. He is survived by two sons, Bruce Jr. and Robert, both of Lubbock, five grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The lure of the distant and difficult is deceptive; the greatest opportunity is where you are.

HAZEL HAGGARD stands in her front yard with the cactus which she planted a few years ago. Last year the cactus only had one bloom and this year the plant is 5 feet tall and has four blooms.

Wells water level measured

The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District has completed its annual program of measuring depth-to-water levels in the 97 wells in Floyd County. These wells are part of a larger network of more than 950 observation wells scattered throughout the District's 15-county service area.

Don Smith was able to complete all measurements of "static" water levels in observation wells and tag them with the District's identification sticker for owner information.

"Several irrigators stopped me in the field to ask about declines and what their water was doing," said Don. "We have initial results for each of the 15 counties, but tabulated data on the entire observation network readings is not expected to be complete until mid-year."

Floyd County's 1982-1983 depth-to-water table below surface minimum reading was at 91.09 feet, and the maximum level read was at 321.96 feet. This year's average change in depths-to-water in the county was -1.96 feet, which compares with a 1981-1982 county reading of -1.14 feet. Comparing the rate of change calculated this year for these wells shows a minimum decline change of +2.13 feet and a maximum decline change of -7.28 feet.

The Water District keeps a record of annual decline and rate of change going back to 1962. The data is used for making projections of decline rates, for determining the amount of water left in storage, and as a basis for the income tax depletion allowance claims on landowner's tax returns.

TO PLANT OR NOT TO PLANT

It has been said that the only thing predictable about Texas weather is its unpredictability. That has certainly been the case this year. Snow in mid-April, March winds in May, a mid-summer drought in early spring. What else can go wrong? I hate to even guess.

Many of you have braved the late winter-like weather and have gone ahead and started your gardens - or at least tried. If you got anything other than corn up, you were fortunate indeed! Up until this past week, the soil temperature has been much too cold for anything but corn or some of the other cold-tolerant crops such as spinach, onions, turnips, etc.

However, the weather took a real turn-around last week and gave us several days of mid-summer weather. We received enough sunshine to warm the soil up significantly. Another week of such weather and gardeners will be able to plant almost anything they want.

If you are a gardener who has "method in his madness" you probably like to plan your garden right down to the last hill of cantaloupes. To help you in this decision-making process, this week I have prepared a table which contains pertinent information on some of the most popular garden vegetables. Included is information on when to plant, what to plant, how much to plant, how far apart to plant it, and how long before you can harvest it. Also included is a yield approximation, which if you know how big your appetite is or how much room you have in your freezer, you can determine how many plants or rows of each vegetable you will need. Happy gardening!

PIK increases prices to dairymen

Texas dairymen are paying more for feed due to the PIK program, and that could bring about a turnaround in milk production.

"Since PIK was announced early this year, feed grain prices have jumped 26 percent nationally," points out Dr. Bud Schwartz, economist in dairy marketing with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "For Texas dairymen this means an average 19 percent increase in concentrate prices."

This increase in feed costs coupled with a 3 1/2 to 4 percent lower milk price due to the recently imposed 50 cents per hundredweight milk tax will force a lot of Texas dairymen to trim costs by cutting back on feeding and culling marginal cows, says Schwartz.

"Reduced feeding and increased cow culling could turn Texas milk production around fairly soon," says the economist. "Milk production could drop 2 percent below normal seasonal declines in Texas while production could be down about 1 percent nationally."

With these developments, Schwartz sees 1983 U.S. milk production as declining about 1 1/2 percent from the anticipated yearly total. Prior to PIK, dairy industry watchers were anticipating '83 production to increase 1 1/2 to 2 percent above 1982 levels.

"The Reagan Administration is trying to reduce milk production and to cut government dairy support program costs," says Schwartz. "And PIK may help do just that."

County Agent's Corner

By Richie Crow

County Extension Agent

Floyd County ranchers have an opportunity to attend one of the most extensive educational programs ever developed for the Southwest ranching industry, the International Ranchers Roundup (IRR).

The 1983 IRR will be held at the San Angelo Convention Center, August 1-5. Over 100 noted ranching experts, key agricultural policy makers and industry leaders from 12 states and several countries will share their expertise with an expected gathering of 750 ranchers.

A general theme, "Innovative Ranch Management," carries throughout the week-long event that includes a general session featuring industry leaders and policy makers, plus three days of concurrent sessions in beef cattle, brush management, sheep and goats, wildlife, marketing, business management for the ranch family, and a computer workshop. All six concurrent sessions will be going simultaneously so producers may attend desired talks in any session. Most sessions will be repeated.

Keynote speakers include Dub Waldrip, president, National Cattleman's Association; Hon. Tom Loeffler, U.S. Congressman; Dr. Cas Maree, successor to famed South African rangeman Jan Bonna; Dr. Arthur G. Hansen, Chancellor of the Texas A&M University System; and Dr. Fee Busby, head, University of Wyoming Department of Range Management.

This year's Ranchers Roundup is one of the most comprehensive and practical educational programs ever coordinated by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. It keys in on many of the real problems facing ranchers. Those who attend will have the opportunity to participate in a variety of different sessions featuring some of the top agricultural minds in the world.

Also on tap is a rancher panel discussion of the Savory Grazing Method, one of the most talked about grazing systems ever introduced. Several ranchers who have experience with this intensive method will offer their comments.

Four ranch tours will close out the conference on August 5. Participants can select between day-long visits of top West Texas ranches noted for their innovative management practices in beef cattle, sheep and goats, and range management. Each of these tours will visit a ranch using the Savory Grazing Method. The wildlife tour will visit selected wildlife management areas in the Texas Hill Country, including an overnight stop in Kerrville.

Roundup registration information and tour details are available through the County Extension Office or by calling 983-2806. Interested persons can also write directly to IRR, P.O. Box 1849, Uvalde, Texas 78801. Since July 1 is the tour registration deadline, prompt attention is encouraged.

Each participant will be provided a copy of the bound 480-page proceedings book which contains narratives of most talks presented. Many ranchers have found this book to be an excellent reference text and ordered extra copies for neighboring ranchers.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serves people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

Tomorrow is Friday 13th. I really don't believe in superstitions except that being superstitious is bad luck. Friday 13th is a difficult omen of bad luck to deal with. Black cats and ladders can be avoided. But how do I avoid an entire day?

Superstitions around 13 are some of the most common. The origin of the superstitions vary. Some religious circles attribute it to the Last Supper where Christ and the 12 Disciples made the 13. Other versions come from Greek and Roman mythology.

Friday is a general bad luck day. Almost anything you can think of doing on Friday will turn out bad -- planting potatoes on Friday will mean a crop failure, paring one's nails on Friday is unlucky and courting on Friday is unlucky. The ironic exception is Good Friday. Therefore a Friday falling on the 13th of the month is double bad luck.

In the process of researching Friday 13th, I found several other interesting superstitions. Although many of them may seem absurd to us, they once were common beliefs.

Whenever I eat an apple, I habitually polish it on my shirt sleeve. It was once believed to eat an apple without rubbing it first was to challenge the Evil One. Today it probably stems from good hygiene.

Several superstitions deal with bringing luck to a baby. One says to spit on a baby will bring it luck. Another says the baby will have a lucky future if it is rubbed all over with lard immediately after birth and before it is washed.

In Wales, to assure that a baby thrived, the water the infant was washed in for the first three months of its life was thrown under a green tree. As you can tell from the picture above my column, it is obvious my hair is getting a little thin. One superstition said to anoint the bald patches with goose dung and the hair will grow again. I think I would rather be bald.

To hold three tennis balls in one hand while serving at a match will bring bad luck to one of the players. This superstition was so well adhered to, that a match was disrupted because one player refused to play until his opponent put one of the balls down. Is this superstition true? Of course it is. One of the players has to lose.

Spring is finally here and with spring comes the thoughts of marriage. An occasion as Sanctimonious as a wedding is besieged with superstitions. It was once believed that a couple who were betrothed should take a laurel sprig, break it in two, and keep each half. As long as each half was kept, their love would run smoothly. We cynics recall that in the earlier days laurel was a reward for courage in battle.

Other than the number 13 and walking under a ladder, a black cat is one of the more prominent superstitions today. Although it was considered unlucky for a black cat to cross your path, black cats have been a source of good luck. One example, two men were awaiting trial. A black cat jumped into the lap of the first. When his trial was called the cat jumped into the lap of the other. Both men were acquitted.

To determine if a soon-to-arrive baby is a boy or a girl, clean all of the meat off of a shoulder of mutton at supper. Hold the blade bone next to the fire until it is scorched. Force the thumbs through the scorched thin part. Put a string through the holes, knot it and hang the bone over the back door.

If the first person to enter the door (excluding a member of the family) is a male, the baby will be a boy. If the person entering is a female, the baby will be a girl.

To prevent drunkenness take the lungs of a hog and roast them. If a man eats these after not eating all day, he will not get drunk the next day no matter how much he drinks.

To cure the husband who tends to drink a little too much, simply put a live eel in his drink. The sight of a live eel in his drink should be shocking enough to make him stop drinking. But if the husband ate roasted hog lungs, he wouldn't show any sign of being drunk. Then the wife would have no reason to go eel hunting.

One of the functions of a fire department is to prevent fires. One superstition says to hang an adder's skin in the rafters of your house and your house will never catch fire. Unfortunately not too many adders live in this part of Texas.

I have my own superstition to cure writer's block. Take the paper out of your typewriter. Fold it in half three times. Hold it in your left hand and say "Never do today what you can put off until tomorrow," three times. Drop the paper in your waste basket and go to the nearest store for your favorite snack and beverage.
