ZACH AND MATT ZACHARY

Zachary father and son pair team up

Zach and Tammy Zachary have been married for four years. Zach works for Johnson and Johnson Automotive and Tammy works for the Lockney Feed Yard.

Last year Zach and Tammy added a new member to the family. Matthew Shane Zachary was born on April 20, 1982.

Zach was present when his son was born and was happy and excited about his new son. Zach says he didn't get up with Matt much in the night because there wasn't anything he could do. But that has now changed.

Zach is every bit the modern father as this summer he has assumed alot of responsibility for Matt because Tammy is playing softball. Zach babysits, feeds and bathes Matt and even changes diapers.

Zach spends from the time he gets home at 6:00 to 10:00 with Matt and spends alot of time on the weekends with Matt and Tammy.

Zach also likes to fish and is waiting for the time when he can take Matt fishing for the first time.

Zach and Matt attend many of Tammy's softball games as weather permits.

Zach, as any new father, had to adjust to changes but has done so gladly. When asked how he felt on his first Father's Day, Zach said a little older but special.

Matt is rather possessive of Zach, and doesn't want anyone else on his father's lap.

To Zach happy second Father's Day and Happy Fathers Day to all fathers.

A Father Forgets

Listen, Son: I am saying this as you lie asleep with one little paw crumpled under your cheek. I have stolen into your room alone. Just a few minutes ago, as I sat reading the Everman Times in the living room, a stifling wave of remorse swept over me. Guiltily I came to your bedside.

These are the things I was thinking. Son: I had been cross to you. I had scolded you as you were dressing for school because you gave your face merely a dab with the towel. I took you to task for not cleaning your shoes. I called out angrily when you threw some of your things on the floor.

At breakfast, I found fault, too. You spilled things. You gulped down your food. You put your elbows on the table. You spread butter too thick on your bread. And, as you started off to school and I started to work, you turned and waved a hand and called "Goodbye Daddy", and I frowned and said in reply, "Hold your shoulders back."

Then it began all over again in the later afternoon. As I came up the road I spied you, down on your knees, playing marbles. There were holes in your trousers. I humiliated you before your friends and I marched you ahead of me to the house, exclaiming "Trousers are expensive" and "If you had to buy them, you would be more careful!"

Do you remember, later, when I was reading in the living room, how you came in, timidly with a sort of hurt look in your eyes? When I glanced up over the paper, impatient at the interruption, you hesitated at the door. "What is it you want?", I snapped.

You said nothing, but you ran across in one tempestuous plunge, and threw your arms around my neck and kissed me, and your small arms tightened with affection that God had set blooming in your heart and which even neglect could not wither. And, then you were gone, pattering to bed.

Well, Son, it was shortly afterwards, that my paper slipped from my hands and a terrible sickening fear came over me. What has habit been doing to me? The habit of finding fault, of reprimanding--that was my reward to you for being my boy. It was not that I did not love you; it was that I expect too much of youth. It was measuring you by the yardstick of my own years.

And there was so much that was good and fine in your true character. The little heart of you was as big as the dawn itself over the wide hills. This was shown by your spontaneous impulse to rush in and kiss me goodnight. Nothing else matters tonight, Son. I have come to your bedside in the darkness and I have knelt there, ashamed!

It is a feeble atonement! I know you would not understand these things if I told them to you during waking hours. But tomorrow I will begin to be a real Daddy! I will chum with you, and suffer when you suffer, and laugh when you laugh. I will bite my tongue when impatient words come. I will keep saying as if it were a ritual: "He is nothing but a boy--a little boy!"

I am afraid I have visualized you as a man. Yet as I see you now, Son, crumpled and weary in your bed, I see that you are only a boy. Yesterday you were a baby in your mother's arms, your head on her shoulder. I have asked too much, too much. Tomorrow, we shall begin enjoying your boyhood together...so I can help you become a real man!

THESE HAILSTONES were gathered by J.B. Mercer in his yard after Friday morning's storm.

Weather back in the news

Tuesday, May 24, a severe thunder storm hit Lockney. It poured over two inches of rain over the area. Inside the city it tore limbs from trees, knocked down carports, and blew down a barn at Mary Lou Bollman's house.

In addition to rain, this storm carried large hail which caused extensive damage to area crops. The hardest hit crop was the young cotton, much of which was hailed out. Because of the cold weather some never came up. The wheat was also damaged by this storm. The hail damaged the stalks and has stunted the growth and reduced the yield of what appeared to be an excellent crop for the area.

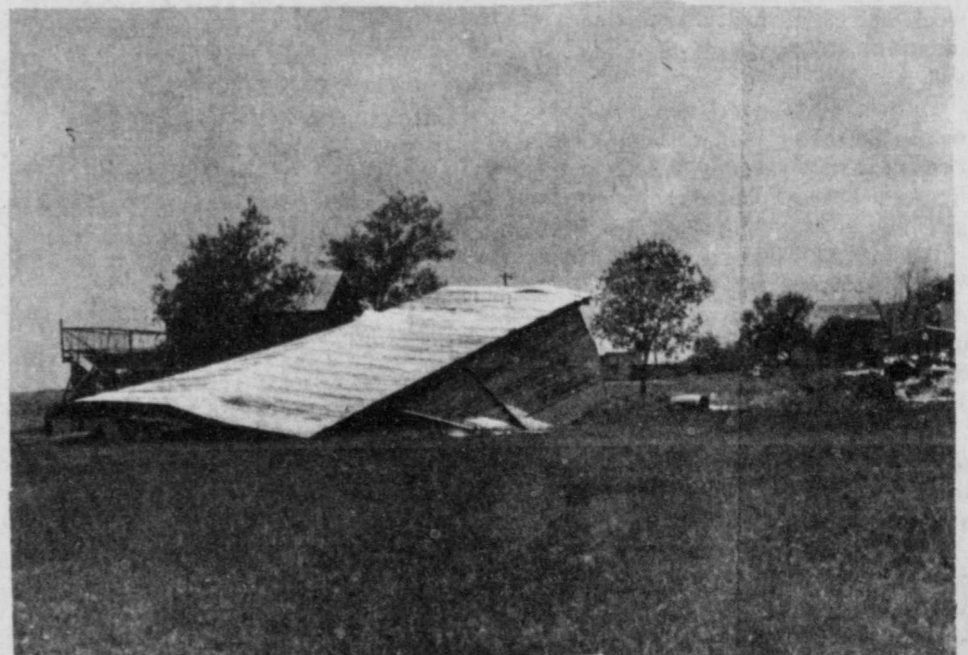

The storm two weeks ago only seemed to start the bad weather for this area. Since then it has rained about every two to three days, giving farmers a limited number of days in which to replant lost cotton.

Last Thursday night and early Friday morning, another thunderstorm hit the area. This storm poured about 1/4 inch of rain and some very strangely shaped hail on the town and south of town. J.B. Mercer found hail stones shaped like crosses in his yard.

Wednesday night between 10:00 and 10:30 lightning struck the home of John H. Turner, causing a fire in the attic of the home. No one was injured and the fire department was able to control the fire.

The hardest hit areas seem to be Lockney itself and south of town. Some farms southwest of town have received up to four inches of rain and much hail, varying in size from pea size to golf ball size.

Area farmers are now hoping for some hot, dry weather to get the young cotton back on its feet.

THIS GARAGE behind Mary Lou Bollman's house was blown down by high winds on May 24.

Improvements dicussed at C of C ice cream feast

The Lockney Chamber of Commerce met Monday, June 6, for a community improvement meeting.

All local clubs and businessmen were invited to attend and make suggestions for improving Lockney.

Representatives of eight community organizations were present. Also Jerry Paul Cooper of Floyd County Insurance and Billy Joe Turner were present.

Some of the suggestions and ideas made were putting restrooms in the park, possibly putting back stops on some of the vacant lots for baseball practice fields and instituting a Neighborhood Watch program for the City of Lockney.

The fair, rodeo and annual Halloween carnivals were also discussed. Representatives of the II Penseroso Study Club also discussed a fingerprinting program for elementary school students. Upgrading downtown Lockney was also discussed. If owners of the vacant buildings in downtown would be willing to buy paint, the Chamber would seek volunteers to help paint these buildings to improve the looks of the downtown area.

The Old Fashion Saturday night was also discussed. Anyone with ideas to improve this annual event are urged to call any of the Chamber members.

After the meeting, an ice cream supper was served to those in attendance.

New city ordinance passed

The Lockney City Council met June 2 in a regular meeting. Following the approval of the last meetings minutes, paying of current bills was approved.

The council accepted a bid from Oden Olds of Floydada for $8612.01 for a new police car.

The council also passed an ordinance regulating circuses, carnivals, fairs and rodeos held within the city limits.

The ordinance states that a "carnival" is considered to be a traveling amusement show featuring side shows, ferris wheels, and merry-go-rounds. A circus is considered any commercial entertainment featuring performing animals, clowns, feats of skill and daring and the like. A fair is an exhibition of farm products, livestock, and equipment. And a rodeo is considered to be anything having to do with an exhibition of "cowboy" skills.

Anyone wishing to put on any of the above shows is required to obtain a permit from the city office of Lockney.

During the meeting the city received a report on the 1982 CDBG grant program.

Home care services provided by the Upjohn HealthCare Agency

Upjohn Home health agency services can provide an alternative to institutionalization.

Upjohn HealthCare Services home health agencies are community services licensed by the state and certified by the federal government. We provide part-time skilled health care in any home setting: the client's home, a relative's home, or a home for the elderly. This care is not intended to replace institutional care, but to meet the needs of those who do not require the complex services of a hospital or nursing home.

Home health care clients and their families enjoy important benefits.

For people who do not require institutional care, home health care can be a convenient and economical alternative. With home care from Upjohn HealthCare Services, clients receive only the amount and level of care their physicians have ordered. Because they are in a home setting, they experience a way of life that is as close to normal as possible.

Home care is planned and provided on an individual basis to assure that each client's precise needs are met. If the client requires help adapting to the home setting, home health care provides this assistance. As the client progresses, Upjohn HealthCare Services adjusts the home care plan through consultation with the client's physician. This assures appropriate care, no matter how the client's needs may change.

Health care from professionals tends to reduce the family's anxiety.

Our home care services are carefully planned and supervised.

Home care for each client is planned by a team of skilled, licensed professionals, working under the direction of the client's physician. Supervised by a registered nurse, the home care team may include members of each therapeutic discipline. The team plays a schedule of home care and meet the physician's plan of care, and one or more home care specialists are assigned to carry out the plan.

Our home care specialists meet many different needs.

Professional nurses provide all nursing services that must be administered by a registered nurse such as treatments, injections, IV therapy, dressing changes and respiratory therapy. Nurses also teach the family to participate in the client's care.

Physical therapists help the client regain strength and co-ordination.

Speech Pathologists treat speaking, hearing and language disorders. They can help a client in communicating needs within the home environment and help the family understand and adjust to the client's conditions.

Home health aides are directed by a health team professional. Typical services may include help with bathing, exercises and ambulation. In conjunction with these services, they can also provide light housekeeping to keep the client's surroundings clean and healthful.

Give Dad a little of your time — he's a great guy!

Home care can qualify for Medicare or third-party payment.

Many private insurance providers and government programs are now expanding coverage of home health services. Currently, third-party payment sources for home care may include Medicare, Medicaid/MediCal, workers' compensation, the Veterans Administration and private insurance. Depending on individual circumstances and eligibility, home care clients may use one or a combination of these sources, as well as self-payment.

It's easy to initiate home care.

Upjohn Health Care Services can be initiated with a phone call or by a written referral. If a question arises a member of the Upjohn home care team will visit the home, do an evaluation and discuss the findings with the physician. In all cases the home care team writes a plan of care based on the physician's orders and forwards the plan for the physician's review and signature.

Upjohn Health Care Services is the home care expert in your community.

To answer any question you may have about home care, we have staff available seven days a week who welcome any inquiry. No question is too small to receive our full attention.

Whenever you call our office, we will be able to help or will do our best to refer you to someone who can.

Upjohn HealthCare Services began more than a decade ago, and today is the nation's largest private provider of home health care. We are a service program of The Upjohn Company, worldwide developer and manufacturer of pharmaceuticals. We share the Upjohn commitment to provide the highest quality health care possible.

In celebration of Hilary Goodwin's 4th birthday, the O.D. Williams and their guests took their supper to Roaring Springs Friday evening. Austin and Ashleigh Williams, Amanda Williams and the guest of honor waded in the river and dug in the sand while their parents relaxed under the big trees around the camp site. Present were Mrs. Nancy Goodwin of Idabel, Oklahoma, Mr. and Mrs. James Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Monte Williams, and the hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Bunch were in Bowie last Thursday to be with Mamie's sister, Mrs. Madine Brodie, who underwent surgery on Friday. Feeling reassured about Mrs. Brodie's health, the Bunch's returned home later in the weekend. Mamie has been the Kool-Ade lady during Vacation Bible School at the First Baptist Church this week.

Mrs. Roy Fawver has had lots of drop-in company this past week to cheer her up while she was not feeling her best.

Mrs. Odell Breed attended a Tupperware party Saturday at the home of Mrs. Rex Breed.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane McClintock have been busy looking after the Spanish goats they have grazing in the lake pasture near the gins.

Holt Bishop was a guest of the Howard Bishops' for a steak cook-out Friday evening.

Steve Alldredge of Plains, and a guest, Gail Richardson of Albuquerque, New Mexico were weekend guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Alldredge.

Mark Alldredge of Lubbock, who farms in Dougherty, was also home over the weekend to attend to farm business.

Misty Bertrand had her first T-ball game Thursday evening. Her mother, Mrs. Randy Bertrand practiced with the women's softball team last week.

Some parts of our community had a light rain Saturday. The Williams' and Adams' area received about 1/4 inch.

Eudy mixes family and physical ed

Terri Eudy, daughter-in-law of John Eudy formerly of Floydada, recently put her athletic skills to the test.

On April 9, this 38-year-old gymnastics and trampoline instructor traveled to Houston to participate in the women's national tennis tournament - playing to qualify for the U.S. Open.

Before her tennis engagement however, Mrs. Eudy ran in the prestigious Boston Marathon.

Hailing from Baton Rouge, this blonde housewife, for three years, has been ranked No. 1 in the 35-45 age bracket for women from the southern states. In national standings she is ranked No. 12.

To qualify for the Boston Marathon one must have completed other 26.2 miles within the previous twelve months under three hours, 20 minutes.

Mrs. Eudy began running 39 months ago when she ran in a three-mile road race to benefit Special Olympics. She also ran in the Goudchaux run and the Great River Road 10 K run.

After increasing her running distance, Mrs. Eudy placed 55th overall and second among women in the Baton Rouge Marathon. With no coaching or experience, Eudy ran the race as an experience.

Running 60 miles per week, Mrs.

Eudy also plays tennis three days a week, teaches gymnastics and trampoline five days a week to 250 students, and keeps house seven days a week.

Her schedule keeps her extremely busy. In addition, she has had to overcome surgery done on her back, fourteen years ago to remove two ruptured discs. Although her husband and doctor advised her not to run, Eudy reports she feels better running or just after a run. She has suffered some flare-ups, but controls them with whirl-pool baths and aspirin.

Originally from Amarillo, Eudy met her husband, Roy, at the University of Texas. After they were married, they moved to Baton Rouge. Eudy finished L.S.U. with a B.S. degree in physical education. The Eudys have two children, April 18, and Roy Jr., 15.

There are about 679 different species of trees native to the continental U.S.

Care Center Capers

By Mavis Barton & Mary Jo Fielding

Sunday: This morning Mavis took a trip with her husband to Flomot, via Cedar Hill to see her father-in-law, Mr. John B. Barton, who broke his leg six weeks ago. He was also in a wheelchair. He was just fine and taking it well. He can walk a little with a "walker." There is not much cotton anywhere, but we saw several tractors in one field planting, and we are praying we have some good ole sunshine, at least for a while.
Monday: We got our exercise this morning. We all sat in a circle and threw the big ball to someone. Then they would throw it to someone else. We tried to encourage some of the others in wheelchairs to play. Some of them didn't want to play, but the smiles on others faces was worth seeing when they were included.
Tuesday: We played bingo this afternoon. Our prizes for winning are bananas and oranges and each one can only win twice. A good time was had by all who attended, especially Richard Lanham who won the blackout prize. To win the blackout prize one must have all the numbers on the card covered. Diana Truitt is gracious enough to be our bingo caller each week. Nena Loudermilk's daughter, Annie Mae Smith, came and took her out for dinner and a ride around the country-side for a little break.
Wednesday: I almost forget about Miss Hallie Roberts. She had a fever and the nurses couldn't get it down, so they took her to the hospital. Hurry and get well and come back, Hallie. We miss you.
Thursday: When I went to bed Wednesday night, the sky was clear or so it seemed to me. I watched the news and weather on T.V. and there was a big storm on radar in New Mexico, but I was rudely awakened by a big clap of thunder with rain and hail on the window. My husband, Blake Barton, came to see me this morning and told me he had one inch of rain.
Friday: We are having clouds rolling in and who knows what we will have tonight. We had a good bingo game again today. Hassie Arnold won the blackout prize, a bag of orange slices. This morning Mr. Poole was taken to the hospital. From all the residents, good luck and come back soon Mr. Poole.
 We, the residents of Lockney Care Center enjoy the visitors and volunteers who come to visit and help us with our social activities.

Remember Father's Day June 19th

The Rev. Michael O'Connor's

Perspectives

Bob Jones University has had its tax credits taken away from it by the government. According to the government, the University's policy against interracial dating is discriminatory and (I guess) unconstitutional. Therefore the government says that it will not subsidize those policies by giving the university tax free status.

This will, of course, affect the university's ability to raise funds, since contributions will not be tax-deductible, and their costs will go up. Understandably, Bob Jones, for whose father the University was named, was upset. He went so far as to call the Supreme Court justices who upheld the original IRS ruling some pretty strong things, like instruments of Satan.

According to Ronald Flowers of TCU, the taxation of churches has been a problem for a long time. The government, contrary to popular belief, has never seen taxation as a 1st amendment issue, but rather granted tax relief to churches and other non-profit groups because of the good they do for society.

The IRS code which sets out criteria for the exemption of religious groups, like churches and religious schools, is rather vague. It states that the institution must be operated exclusively for religious purposes. This puts the government in the position of determining what is religion and what is not.

The courts have tried to avoid the question of doctrine in the past, and the two basic questions which are addressed in making determinations concerning religious institutions are: 1) Does the group engage in practices which are illegal or contrary to public policy, and 2) are their beliefs sincerely held.

In the case of Bob Jones University, the second question must be answered "yes". However it was the first question which tripped them up. As long as the government views tax exemption as a privilege graciously given, as Dr. Flowers claims, rather than a right, they may continue to deny that exemption on the grounds they did with BJU.

We don't like it, though, when we hear such things. I suspect that has more to do with our personal desires more than anything else. We would not want the government giving tax breaks to a group that held human sacrifice as a dear doctrine. So while I fear what the government may try to tell me I may or may not preach, as others do in the wake of the BJU decision, I think I could continue on. What I fear just as much is that the screwballs will be given more than they should.

SOUTH PLAINS NEWS

We had two inches or more rain here in showers Thursday and Friday nights last week. There was no hail here but the winds have been bad. We understand there was quite a lot of hail in the Muncy area. Sunday we had very bad winds, and many had farm lands that were blowing. This Monday it is warmer and no wind blowing.

Sunday morning at the South Plains Baptist Church, Mrs. Bobby Braddock of Sundown was a visitor with her mother, Mrs. Richard Sanders and Layne. Regina was visiting here from Sundown.

Mr. and Mrs. E.P. Pritchett went to Ruidoso, New Mexico this past Friday morning, and Jimmy Pritchett left for his home in Nashville, Tennessee, after spending the week with his parents, and after the wedding last week of Steve Pritchett and Connie Welch on June 4. Steve and Connie will make their home in Amarillo after a wedding trip to Mexico.

ter, Marilyn, Mrs. Teddy Horne of Plainview, went to Paducah on Saturday to get Melissa Horne who had been visiting for some time in the Vera and Truscott areas.

Mrs. Sara Probasco went to Jackson, Mississippi the last part of May to visit with her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Gaby, there in Jackson. While there Sara's daughter, Mrs. Brenda Mills of Houston, joined them at Mrs. Gaby's home, and they spent two weeks there visiting. Later Mrs. Probasco took her daughter, Mrs. Mills, back to her home in Houston and spent several days with her before she returned home at South Plains. While in Jackson she visited many interesting stained glass shops and manufacturing places.

Cindy Marble of South Plains, a senior at Floydada High School, has been accepted by People-to-People in the People-to-People High School Ambassador Program this summer in their 20th annual program. This program has involved nearly 17,000 students over the United States. They will go first to Washington, D.C. for a briefing there, and the trip will be historical and cultural. They will be on a month long visit to Greece, Italy, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Austria and West Germany. This is a program to help create goodwill and understanding both here and abroad. Cindy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marble of South Plains, and she will be leaving very soon on the first leg of her tour, and go to Washington, D.C. We wish a happy and a productive time for Cindy and the others on the tour.

The South Plains Hobby Club held its last meeting of the 1982-83 year with the annual, "Breakfast at Mamie's," on Wednesday morning, June 8, at 8:00 a.m. in the spacious and lovely back yard of Mrs. Mamie Wood. Thirty-eight ladies were present on this perfectly beautiful June morning. The birds were singing, and the temperature delightful as the first game of the morning started there with all the guests guessing how tall the century plant was. Winners with the nearest guess to 16.1 feet tall were Mrs. Madge West, and Mrs. Joyce Williams. A tossup showed Mrs. Williams the winner, as they both guessed the same on the plant. Mrs. Williams got a prize of a pepper plant. The breakfast menu consisted of hot biscuits, chili eggs, assorted jams and jellies, sausage bits, and small cakes, with lots of hot coffee. Mrs. Wood has been hosting the breakfast since 1962, and this is her 21st year. After breakfast there was a game of identifying leaves, grass, flowers, and plants. Everyone enjoyed the wonderful outdoor breakfast and time together. Hostesses who assisted Mrs. Wood were Mildred Hamm, Dot Cummings, and Ruby Higginbotham. Those in attendance were: Ruth Smitherman, Syble Teeple, Muri Mayfield, Navolia Kinslow, Jennie Gauntt, Juanita Teeple, Carlene Johnson, Madge West, Bobbie Kinnibrugh,

Lennie Abbott, Edythe Clarke, Ruby Higginbotham, Katharine Ball, Hope Warren, Carolyn Redding, Atha Sue, June McCulley, Kellie Williams, Joyce Williams, Sara Probasco, Glynne Earle Cummings, Janet McCaleb, La Faun Young, Pat Wood, Carolyn Marble, Bonnie Julian, Frances Stanforth, Letha Mulder, Bonnie Moore, Joyce

Osborne, Mildred Hamm, Annelda Staples, Gertie Smitherman, Dot Cummings, Margaret Kitchens, Neta Marble and hostess Mamie Wood. The club voted to try and have the breakfast next year on the 2nd Wednesday in July. This will be the last meeting of the Hobby Club until in September in the fall.

New regulations enforced for Migrant and Seasonal Workers

The federal Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Workers Protection Act (P.O. 97-470, 96 Stat. 2583-2600) which became effective on April 14, 1983 imposes certain new obligations on agricultural employers if they recruit, solicit, hire, employ, furnish, transport or house migrants or seasonal agricultural workers.

The program is designed to apply to farm labor contractors and employers in the area of vehicle safety, housing, safety and health, disclosure of wages, hours and other conditions of employment and recordkeeping.

The rights of these workers are: to receive accurate information about wages and working conditions for the prospective employment; to receive this information in writing and in English, Spanish or other languages, as appropriate; to have the terms of the working arrangement upheld; to have farm labor contractors show proof of registration at the time of recruitment; to be paid wages when due; to receive itemized, written statements of earnings for each pay period; to purchase goods from the source of their choice; to be transported in vehicles which are properly insured and operated by licensed drivers, and which meet federal and state safety standards; for migrant farm-workers who are provided housing--to be housed in property which meets federal and state safety and health standards, to have the housing information presented to them in writing at the time of recruitment, to have posted in a conspicuous place at the housing site or presented to them a statement of the terms and conditions of occupancy, if any. The penalties for violation authorized by the act are severe, ranging from fines to criminal proceedings for those who knowingly violate the act. Workers who believe their rights under the act have been violated may file complaints with the department's Wage and Hour Division or may file suit directly in federal district court. The law prohibits employers from discriminating against workers who file complaints, testify or in any way exercise their rights on their own behalf or on behalf of others. Complaints of such discrimination must be filed with the division within 180 days of the alleged event. Copies of the law, as well as regulations, are available from the Texas Employment Commission.

CARE NEEDED WITH LATE PLANTED COTTON. AGRONOMIST WARNS

High Plains cotton farmers, who have had planting delayed by unfavorable weather, need to look carefully at variety maturity classifications and pay attention to cultural practices, cautions a cotton agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Thousands of acres of Texas High Plains cotton are yet to be planted or were dry planted and are awaiting rain for germination and emergence. Dr. James R. Supak, Extension cotton specialist of Lubbock, said. Although much of the area has adequate subsoil moisture reserves, widespread spring rains failed to develop, he noted.

"Generally, plantings after June 5 in the northern counties, after June 10 in the central counties and after June 15-20 in the southern counties means that less than average yields can be expected, even with normal conditions for the rest of the growing season," Supak said.

Farmers faced with late planting must decide which varieties to use and what cultural practices might hasten the development and maturity of the crop, he said.

At present, cotton producers in counties north of Lubbock should consider varieties that fall into the very early maturity class, the Extension specialist advised.

Producers in the central counties around Lubbock should use early or very early maturing varieties for planting until approximately June 10. After June 10, only the very early varieties should be used.

Producers south of Lubbock can use the early-to-medium and early varieties until mid-June. After mid-June they should give priority to using only the very early maturing cultivars, Supak said.

A table that lists many of the cotton varieties available on the Texas High Plains that indicates their approximate maturity class is available from your county Extension Agents.

"There isn't much producers can do to hasten the maturity of a late planted crop," Supak said.

In the fields where soil tests show nitrogen deficiency, sidedress applications of moderate amounts of nitrogen (20-30 pounds an acre) may be justified, the agronomist said. Where deficiency symptoms develop, foliar application of zinc or possibly iron nutrients might be used, he added.

Heavier applications of nitrogen fertilizers, foliar applications of fertilizer nutrients, sugar and the various types of plant "activators" aren't recommended, he said.

"Generally, a slightly higher planting rate is suggested for late planted cotton," the Extension specialist advised. "Research has shown that about 60,000 plants per acre (4.5 plants per foot of drill) is the ideal plant population for late cotton." This normally requires a seeding rate of about eight to nine seed per foot of drill, using seed that germinates at least 80 percent, he said.

"Unfortunately, there is no way to predict what type of weather conditions this crop will encounter later in the year," Supak said. "It's possible that warm, open weather will prevail into October and November as it did in 1982."

"However, longterm weather records indicate that generally, fiber development is essentially halted by cool night temperatures in mid-October.

Consequently, producers might be well advised to limit their inputs into a late planted cotton crop, he cautioned.

Cotton picture improved due to PIK, usage

The previously gloomy cotton picture has done an about-face due to the government's PIK (payment-in-kind) program and an increase in domestic usage.

Whether or not this price strength will continue, however, depends a lot on Mother Nature, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Despite about a 40 percent cutback in cotton acreage due to farmer participation in PIK and the acreage reduction program, cotton supplies will still be plentiful this fall if good weather prevails," says Dr. Carl Anderson.

"The market price may drop to near the loan rate at harvest time, so farmers should consider forward contracting or hedging in the futures market some of their crop during periods of market strength," suggests the economist. "The market will be especially sensitive to weather developments during the growing season."

The 1983 cotton crop shapes up this way. Farmers will likely plant a little more than 8 million acres, and yields will likely be higher than normal because farmers are using their best land and have fewer acres to care for, so they can manage them better. Thus 1983 production could reach 9.5 to 10 million bales, estimates Anderson. "Of course, bad weather in the U.S., as well as in China or Russia could change the situation drastically and reduce the 1983 cotton supply," he notes. While the U.S. is trying to cut back on cotton production, Russia and China are attempting to increase production, says Anderson. Thus, prospects are good for foreign production to remain fairly high during the coming crop year. The 1982 crop in China reached a surprising 16.5 million bales, up three million from the preceding year. Production in 1979 was only 10.1 million bales. "Overall, the export market this year is likely to be somewhat soft," believes the economist. "However, a pickup in the U.S. economy could improve domestic usage."

WHERE NEW COTTON FABRICS BORN—This is the Fabric Development Laboratory at Cotton Incorporated's Research Center, Raleigh, NC. Technology developed here has enabled cotton to crack markets for knit fabrics that were once the private domain of synthetic fibers. In the foreground are samples of some of the newest fabrics, including the NATURAL SUEDES, Cotton Incorporated's trademark for sueded, mostly cotton warp knits being marketed for activewear and sportswear.

While the market's current strength offers some hope for cotton producers, demand could stagnate later in the year, depending on weather conditions and the outlook for the '83 crop, notes Anderson.

CONTROL BAGWORMS NOW
Bagworms are one of the major pests of junipers and other trees and shrubs in Texas. Spring hatch usually begins the first week of May on the South Plains. Insecticide control is most effective in late May and early June when the bagworms are small.

In the spring, bagworm larvae emerge from hatching eggs inside last year's bags and begin feeding on leaves. Soon they begin to construct their own protective bag of silk, twigs, and leaves, making them camouflaged and hard to see. As the larvae and their bags continue to grow, control becomes more difficult.

Bagworms feed throughout the summer months, building their bags until the bags are about 1 1/2 inches long. In the fall, the bagworms become adults, mate and the females lay eggs inside their bags. They then overwinter in these bags in trees and shrubs. Each overwintering female bag on a tree contains from 500 to 1,500 eggs.

Since the bagworm only completes one generation a year and spreads very slowly from plant to plant, picking the bags off infested plants in the winter will help a lot toward controlling this pest. But if bagworms were present on the plant last year and control measures were not applied, chances are very good that an insecticide will be needed this spring.

Insecticides which can be used to control bagworms include sevin, dursban, diazinon, malathion, dylox and orthene. The biological insecticide Bacillus thuringiensis can also be used. To obtain effective control, thorough coverage of the foliage is important. Always read and follow label instructions when applying insecticides.

Cook of the week

Guy Hazlett is the administrator at Lockney General Hospital. He and his wife of four years, Trudy, have lived in Lockney for about one year.

When away from the hospital, Guy enjoys cooking for the family which also includes Pat, who is 13, and Curtis, who is 9. Guy learned to cook from his mother and Trudy says he is a wonderful cook. As with a lot of men who cook Guy rarely uses recipes. The dish he is sharing is a simple one but very good. All you need is a whole fryer chicken and a 15 oz. (about) can of apricot juice and only takes an hour.

Place a whole fryer, breast up, in a baking dish and hand rub lightly with oil. Bake at 325° for 30 minutes. Pour ½ the can of apricot juice over the chicken and bake 15 more minutes then pour over the other half of the juice and bake the remaining 15 minutes.
