B and PW Week to be observed in Lockney

Lockney Business and Professional Women's Club joins approximately 3,700 other clubs in the National Federation in the observance of National Business Women's Week, October 16-22.

While this "Week" is sponsored by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., it has become a nation-wide salute to all working women—a tradition that is in its 55th year.

In addition, the week coincides with the National Federation's "Speak Up-Join BPW" Membership Campaign ending October 31. This multi-faceted program is designed especially to bring the full force and richness of the Federation to the issue of membership growth for the local clubs.

This rich heritage began in 1919 when the National Federation was organized in St. Louis, Mo. When the National Federation celebrated the first National Business Women's Week in 1928, things were somewhat different. Only a small percentage of working age American women were employed outside the home compared to more than 60 percent today. BPW was almost alone in 1919 when it spoke up to changing laws and conditions for working women and BPW is still speaking up on the issues that will have an impact on today and tomorrow's working women.

Lockney BPW Club is part of the National Federation, which has a membership of more than 155,000 in 50 states, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands and District of Columbia.

To highlight the week's activities, Lockney BPW will host a coffee on Monday, October 17, at the First National Bank in Lockney between the hours of 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Other activities during the week include presentation of Certificates of Appreciation to businesses employing BPW members, presentation of a one-year membership to a local business woman, and the monthly meeting on Tuesday the 18th on Participation.

In addition, members of the BPW are invited to attend the NBWW banquet in Amarillo October 17th, where Anne Steinbeck of Gunnison, Colorado, first vice president of the National Federation, will be the guest speaker.

Anyone interested in attending any of these activities, or learning more about the local organization, should contact any local member or Gladys Ragle, membership chairman. Guests are always welcome at any meeting of the Lockney Club.

The Lockney Club was organized in 1947 and currently meets on the third Tuesday of each month. Estelle Powers was first president, and Wanda Baker was the second president.

Members of the local club are automatically members of District 9, the Texas Federation, the National Federation and the International Federation. District 9 holds three meetings a year including the annual District Conference recently held in Dumas, the meeting on Palm Sunday and a planning meeting in July.

Fifteen districts make up the Texas Federation which was organized July 12, 1919 in Dallas. Dr. Minnie L. Maffett, a surgeon in Dallas, was the first president. The 1983 state convention was held in Fort Worth and El Paso will be the site for the 1984 state convention.

An outstanding project of the Texas Federation is the Minnie L. Maffett Fellowship Fund, established in 1946. Over the years, more than $75,000 has been contributed by members and friends of BPW to comprise the principal fund. Income from the fund is awarded in grants to women graduates of medical schools whose records merit continuation of further graduate study or a woman who has been awarded a Ph.D. degree from a Texas university and is doing research in a medical field, or a woman who needs financial aid for the first year in establishing a family practice in a rural area with a population not exceeding 5,000, or a fourth year female medical student for completion of M.D. degree in an accredited medical school in the state of Texas.

Another continuing project of the Federation is the Mary Lysterstrom Foreign Scholarship Fund, established in 1952 honoring another of Texas' past presidents, a native of Sweden. This scholarship is awarded each year to a woman student from a foreign college, currently studying in a Texas college or university, and is designed to promote international understanding and good will. Voluntary contributions from club members and friends and memorials make up this fund.

The Business and Professional Women's Foundation which was established February 27, 1956 by the National BPW Federation. It is a non-profit research and educational organization headquartered in Washington, D.C. The Foundation conducts and supports research on all aspects of women's work force participation, analyzes employment patterns and trends, identifies problems and possible solutions, and publishes and distributes research findings.

The Texas Federation is very proud of their establishment of the Chloe Monroe M.D. Anderson Fund for Cancer Research. At the 1982-83 convention a check for $53,000.00 was presented to Dr. Robert Moreton of the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute.

"Focus 83/84" was selected by the National Federation for the theme this year. This Federation presents five major issues: self-image, economic security, discrimination, comparable worth and upgrading political skills.

The Lockney club themes, chairman and scheduled meeting dates for the year are: Accent on Unity, Zora Reece, November 15; Accent on Sharing, Merle Mooney, December 13; Build a Plan for Progress, Dorothy Shipp, January 17; BPW-Moving Forward, Gladys Ragle, February 21; Inspiration, Trudy Hazlett, March 20; Youth Measures Up, Nora Bybee, April 17; Women Helping Women, Jinna Sue Turner, May 15; Recognition for Excellence, Gladys Ragle, June 19; Look to the Future, May Pearl Burns, July 17; and Take Time for All Things, June McDonald, August 21.

Committees, and their chairman for the local Lockney Club are: Program-Merle Mooney; Finance-Dorothy Shipp; Membership-Gladys Ragle; Public Relations-Nora Bybee; Legislation-Trudy Hazlett; and Sunshine-Nora Bybee.

The activities and programs of B&PW are designed to help working women become valued members of their communities through personal and professional growth. It is from the unique base of local activities that BPW has gained its nationwide recognition as the voice of America's working women.

B&PW CLUB MEMBERS Jinna Sue Turner and June McDonald look on as Mayor J.D. Copeland signs the proclamation of B&PW Week in Lockney.

WHEREAS the Lockney Business and Professional Women's Club of Lockney, Texas, has outlined as its objectives: the elevation of standards for women in Business and in the Professions, promotion of the interests of Business and Professional women, the bringing about of a spirit of cooperation among Business and Professional women of the United States, and the extension of opportunities to Business and Professional women through education along lines of industrial, scientific and vocational activities;

Witness my hand this 7th day of October, 1983.

J.D. Copeland, Mayor
City of Lockney

Council adds part time officer

The Lockney City Council met for its regular monthly meeting Thursday, October 6, at the city hall. All council members were present. Also present were city secretary Erma Lee Duckworth, attorney Paul Lyle, and new police chief Ken Farrow.

Following approval of the minutes of the last meeting and payment of current bills, the council discussed with the city attorney about filing suits on several property owners to abate nuisances. Property owners guilty of having unused items on their property which could be hazardous to children and possibly harmful to the general public could be charged in these cases. The suits would force owners to clean up their property or face penalties. The council gave its approval for Lyle to start proceedings into this matter.

Also discussed was the filling in of holes in the alleys and doing repair work to get alleys in better shape. The suggestion was made for the city to improve West Eleventh Street also. This is the dirt road just west of the tennis courts at the elementary school. Improvement of this road would provide farmers with a paved road when traveling to the Coop Gin instead of using 8th street. The use of 11th St. instead of 8th street would cut down on traffic and possible danger to elementary students. Since part of the road is county owned, the City will coordinate their work with the county to get this road improved as soon as possible.

During a report of the police department, department head Dub Dipprey presented a list of requests made by Police Chief Ken Farrow. Part time help was the first item. Farrow requested a part-time man to fill in on days off by Deputy Police Charlie Higgs. The council approved, naming Ray Macha of Floydada to fill that 20-hour per week position. Farrow also requested that the city purchase three suits of uniform clothes each for him and Higgs. Farrow told the council that by wearing uniforms the police department would put forth a more professional appearance and would be more respected by persons they encounter from other towns. The council agreed to purchase the new uniforms.

The council also decided to repair the Plymouth patrol car for temporary use until a newer car can be purchased for the department. The Plymouth will later be used only for backup purposes. The council agreed that a dependable one should be available if needed.

Farrow presented the council with a letter from Texas A&M University asking if the city would be interested in sponsoring a police school for two days. The council agreed to invite the school to hold the school here.

Following adjournment the councilmen inspected the new patrol car which was delivered on Wednesday.

Local TABS test results released

The results of the TABS tests taken by all third, fifth, and ninth grade students in the state of Texas. The Texas Assessment of Basic Skills is used to assess learning achievement of students in Texas schools.

Lockney scores were well above the overall state results and also above results for our region.

Students are tested on mathematics, reading, and writing.

In the third grade test results, Lockney students scored 100% on the following math testing: multiplication of whole numbers, identifying money values, adding whole numbers, reading and writing whole numbers, and selecting units of measure. Students scored a 93% or above in the following tests: solving word problems, completing number patterns, and orders of whole numbers. In the third grade reading results students scored 100% on the following written instructions: recognizing words by sight, using context clues, understanding work structures and recalling fact and details. The students score 98% on recognizing words through phonic analysis and identifying the main idea, and they scored 96% on following the sequence of events. On the writing tests students score 100% on writing samples, spelling correct English usage, and sentence structure. They scored 98% on capitalization and punctuation.

In the fifth grade math results, students scored 100% on 6 of the 12 tests and scored 98% on the remaining 6 tests. These math tests included interpreting graphs, adding and subtracting whole numbers, identifying units of measure, multiplication and division of whole numbers, solving word problems, sequence numbers, identifying face value. On the writing scores Lockney results were as follows: writing sample 93%, spelling 100%, capitalization 95%, sentence structure 79%, correct use of English 65%, and punctuation, 81%.

The ninth grade test results all showed that a larger percentage of Lockney students mastered the TABS test than the overall state averages.

In the math division, Lockney results showed that 83% of the students mastered the test as opposed to state averages of 79%. The math test involved adding, subtracting, dividing and multiplying whole numbers; reading and interpreting maps and graphs, using decimals, solving money problems, using fractions, mixed numbers and measurements units.

On the ninth grade reading test Lockney's student showed an 83% mastery of the test. This percentage is 3 points above the state average and 10 points above the Plainview average. The reading test involved several different sections which included use of reference skills, following written instructions, following the sequence of events, drawing conclusions, perceiving cause and effect, evaluating information, identifying the main idea, and using parts of books.

PERSPECTIVES

By the Rev. Michael O'Connor

It was just a matter of time. There was no way that computer technology could fail to be applied to the Bible. I had heard that people were developing programs for use in the home and in churches to help children become more familiar with the Bible and its contents. But a video game?

I have seen an ad for a video game called Moses Crossing the Red Sea, or some such thing. Unfortunately, there was no description of game play. The game comes with a coloring book and a tape recorded by a celebrity Christian reading the story of Moses. (I wonder if celebrity Christian is a contradiction in terms.) Just what does this game do?

I wondered if the game starts with a burning bush from which emanate the game's instructions: "Tell Pharaoh to let my people go. Please choose skill level." Do we then score points for plagues successfully rained on Pharaoh's court?

Perhaps the next level of the game makes us lead a multitude of computer generated people blips into the wilderness. At the right moment, are we to raise our staff and part the Red Sea? Must we close the sea in time to drown the pursuing army? Do we lose the game if we are not quick enough?

I find it strange that Christians seem to be imitating the secular world. Why do we need "Christian" video games? Are we afraid that the devil is having all fun? Will a video game teach the story better than we can in our homes and churches? Is the Bible not exciting enough by itself?

When the technology available can be used to enhance the goals of the Christian Church, then perhaps we ought to use it. But only perhaps. Things are not bad simply because they are new, but neither are they good for the same reason.

The Church must have a clear understanding of what they are about, and then see if it is useful to use modern technology in accomplishing that goal. I fear that too often people use new concepts and ideas just because they are afraid of thought old-fashioned, or because the idea seems to be popular, when in reality there is nothing wrong with the old way of doing things.

Perhaps we should keep in mind Paul's dictum that while all things are lawful, they are not all useful.

Science students take trip to New Mexico

A group of advanced science students recently went on a camping trip to Cloudcroft, New Mexico to study botany and visit some interesting sights in the area.

On the early Saturday morning drive to the mountains, they observed changes in the natural plant growth. First there was row crop farming and then cattle grazing on grass (extremely dry this year.) Gradually the scene changed into bear grass, some sagebrush, and then the mountains with the pine forest and wildflowers.

On arrival at the camp the first task was to set up tents and make camp. After lunch they gathered firewood, then spent the remainder of the afternoon collecting wildflowers and other plants. Back at camp they placed the plants in a plant press which is the first step in preserving them for a herbarium.

After the evening meal they enjoyed fun around the campfire roasting marshmallows and talking.

They arose the next morning with the sun and started the day with a big breakfast cooked over a campfire. The first drive made that day was to observe a forest burn where trees had been burned off 7 and 10 years ago. They noted the difference in the plants that are growing back and the climax plants of the area.

They included a trip to Sunspot, where the sun is continuously photographed with a telescope. Later they visited White Sands west of Alamogordo. Their comment upon returning was, "Until you have been there, you cannot picture the hills and hills of white sands which are drifting gradually northeast." They were informed by their instructor, Jeanette Marr, that the sand is really gypsum rock which was produced in Lake Lucerno and has been worn off by the winds with the fine sand crystals. They played in the sand before returning to camp.

Only a few plants had been collected that day, but some time was spent airing the plants they pressed the day before an evening meal, another fun time around the campfire, and retiring for the night.

The next morning they broke camp, loaded everything in the van and drove home and to L.H.S. It was a trip to remember!

QUARTERBACK JACKIE CUNYUS is stopped after a five yard run in Friday's game against Floydada.

Horns fall 7-0 to Winds in first district game

longhorn fall to winds

Friday night saw the long awaited game against Lockney and Floydada. Though the Horns feel by 7 points to the Winds the Lockney defense played one of its best games of the season, holding the Winds scoreless until the last two minutes of the game.

Both defenses were the key to the game. The Horns held the Winds to only 9 first downs and recovered 5 Floydada fumbles. Lockney fumbled 5 times. Twice passes by Quarterback Jackie Cunyus were intercepted. With 5:40 left in the third quarter Lockney threatened to score. With the ball on the Floydada 21 yard line and fourth down with 12 yards to go, Cunyus attempted to pass, but it was intercepted.

Floydada's one scoring drive came in the fourth quarter when Lockney fumbled the ball on its own 10 yard line and with 1:52 left in the game Floydada scored on a two-yard run.

Coach Bob Purser said that Lockney played a good game, but with that many turnovers, it was hard to set up anything and score. He also said, "The defense played one of its hardest games to date."

Players of the week on offense are: Robert Rendon and Moses Blanco and Terry Mathis, Johnny Torrez, and Jackie Cunyus on defense.

Friday night the Horns will face the Idalou Wildcats in Idalou. The game will start at 7:30.

Go to Idalou and support the Horns in their second game of district play.

7th, 8th, 9th, teams lose to Floydada

The seventh grade Shorthorns lost to the Floydada Breezers last week 24-0. Raul Ascencio was the Horn of the Week.

The eighth grade Shorthorns lost to the Floydada Breezers 36-14. Javier Bernal scored all of Lockney's points, six of which came on an 80 yard kick-off return. Chad Diepenhorst and Clay Adrian were the Horns of the Week.

Freshman

The first half of Thursday's ninth grade conflict between Lockney and Floydada was a real defensive battle, with the half deadlocked at 0-0.

The second half was a different story. Floydada kept good field position and finally scored on a 25-yard run late in the 3rd quarter.

The 4th quarter began on a blocked punt by the Whirlwinds. They scored on a 10-yd pass to make the score 14-0. With 2 minutes to go, they scored on a 15-yard run.

Their final score came with 5 seconds left on an end around to make the score 30-0. The defense played real well; but Floydada always had good field position. Lockney failed to move the ball.

The Longhorns will play their next game Thursday at 5:00 here against Idalou.

Lockney Care Center Capers

By Mavis Barton & Mary Jo Fielding

Monday, October 3rd: I went on my weekly trip home. I was looking at the cotton and some cotton is still green even though a little on the top. The neighbor's cotton had dead brown leaves all across the field. I thought for a minute then told myself it just isn't possible, for the freeze to touch one field of cotton and leave the neighbors still green. So I asked my husband, has that cotton been defoliated and he said, "Oh, yes, a lot of it has been defoliated." So then I understood. I saw a lot of strippers in the field, that is cotton strippers. Not streakers. I saw one field with boley piles on the turn row and the field already plowed up.

We got home and fixed dinner then we watched the Cowboys win again and halfway into another game. Bud went into the kitchen and he said, "Get your things together, we are going to have to leave." I got my things together and Bud was going out to get the pickup. He left it in the barn and said, "If you want to see the dust roll, look out of the window." The dirt and sand was so thick I couldn't see the shop. The trees looked like they would be uprooted. Then the wind changed from the northwest and looked like the trees would be uprooted again. So we had to wait out the storm, which wasn't very long. In the rain gauge was 30 degrees and a bug. On the way out we stopped at Steve and Beverly's. All three grandchildren came to the pickup to tell me that Blake got a little tricycle for his birthday. Then we left to come to the "home" We got in about 7:40 p.m. (by the way, he didn't save me a piece of cake.) Granny was sitting outside by herself thinking. Now John Smith has joined her and he has his jacket on, must be a little cool out there.

Wed. Oct. 5: My husband came Saturday morning and we drove to Lubbock to spend the weekend with our younger son and his wife, Larry and Hani. We had a succession of birthdays to celebrate. Larry's was on September 25, my husband's on Sept. 29, his mother's on Sept. 29, and our daughter on Oct. 5 (Lori drove down from Amarillo Sunday to join in the festivity). We watched the Cowboys-Vikings game Sunday. I heard a sports newscaster say once that Cowboy fans were "notorious" about sitting on their hands during a game. That metaphor didn't apply to the sixteen of us watching it. I felt like I had really worked along with the Cowboys, especially during the first half. (They play like they are on a lark the first half of a game.) However, they came back the second half to beat the Vikings 37-24, so it seems like they always know what they are doing.

Tues. Oct. 4: Well it started like any other day, we got up first, had breakfast, visiting, exercise and church. We had Bingo this afternoon and we all won puit and we had two blackouts. At dinner time we had a new resident. She looks like a doll. She is in her ninety's and she seems to know and remember just about everybody here. Her name is Ida Rose. She played Bingo with us. Lewis Roberts and Hallie had two visitors today. Lewis and Hallie's older sister and her daughter. They flew in from Arizona with his sister being from California. Don't you think their tongues are going nineteen to the dozen. Nobody was able to get a word in edgeways.

Wed. Oct. 5th: It is a good day, it started that way. Mary Green and Esker Pyle went on the bus to Plainview to the recreational center. They did some painting. Mary Green brought me a long red pepper. I said, "Oh Jalopena hot peppers." Mrs. Green said it wasn't hot, they tried to get her to bite it and see but she wouldn't. So Esker Pyle tried it and he said it wasn't hot. But I can tell you, Lavene, Lee, Pauline, Alma McDonald, Janie Martinez and Sally all had a good laugh about my pepper. It does everybody good to really laugh, including me once in a while.

Mary Green said Janice Nichols would be here this afternoon with another project when she comes. We had a sheet of paper and drew a tree with a lead pencil or colored markers. She would ask us questions about the tree we had drawn. It was very interesting to find out about yourself by what you had drawn a tree.

We had church this morning and the Ladies from Main Street Church of Christ brought two cakes and punch for the birthday party for the month of October. We had a full table of birthday members. Thanks to these ladies from their time and for coming for many years to do this birthday party.

Sat. Oct. 8: I watched the Baltimore Orioles-Chicago White Sox game today. It was scoreless to the tenth inning when Tito Lundrun hit a homer, followed by two consecutive runs, making the score 3-0 in favor of the Orioles. I thought that Britt Burns, pitcher for the Sox, did a outstanding job and shouldn't have been relieved.

Thurs. Oct. 6th: After breakfast we went to the lobby and had exercise then Jackie showed us some projects we are going to do. The same old group, Richard Lanham, Lewis Roberts, Mary Jo Fielding, May McCracken, Mary Green, Edna Hunter, Nena Loudermilk for awhile Ida Rose, and myself. We all started coloring a witch by numbers for Halloween. Now Jackie made some more pictures of little people and we can spend as much time over the weekend coloring them if we felt like it. We were

Fri. Oct. 9th: We got up had breakfast and exercise, coloring pictures again and Jackie said she made some more. She was going to leave everything out and we could color all we want over the weekend.

We had Bingo again this afternoon and we play for fruit and after 3 games on a card. We have to clear our cards and start again, until everyone has two pieces of fruit. Then we clear the cards and have blackouts and there was two winners, Myrtle Howell and Hallie Roberts and they both took the fruit and packet of orange slices.

May and I didn't stay talking this time. Mary had visitors and I had to take my bath before supper. But after supper we were back to coloring our pictures.

Richard Lanham and Lewis Roberts have been sitting outside quite a lot. But not for this past few days, it has been cool temperatures and misting.

Sat. Oct. 10th: Today has been the same, cloudy and raining so everybody has been getting their sweaters out and wearing them. I guess they feel good.

Sun. Oct. 11th: When we got up this morning, Marylyn told me it had been thundering and lightning and raining from about midnight until 3 this morning. Lee Whitley said it was says. Well it was a quiet day, we watched football and the men watched baseball.

Of course Mary and I did some more coloring and I did more notes.

foggy and misting when she came to work. So I knew what that meant and sure I was right, my husband called and said it was the same weather there and wouldn't be coming for me. Well he called later after dinner and said it was still the same at home although the sun was shining for a while here. So I didn't go home this Sunday.

We had a new nurse this weekend Shari Carthel was our nurse for the weekend. She did a good job.

We are feeling half way abandoned with Gloria, our Director of Nursing Services being gone on vacations. She's in Portland, Oregon, we hope she is having a good time, she was hoping to visit all the sights with good weather but the weather doesn't always do what we want. Also Jackie is in the Tulia Hospital since Saturday, the doctor believes it may be a gall bladder attack. Hopes she can avoid surgery and be back soon.

We are very pleased and proud of the way Sally Rodriguez, Myrtle Gibson, Bettye Acy, and all the nurse aides have kept the nursing care going so good while Gloria has been gone. Thanks group.

THE SOPHOMORE CLASS worked very hard to put the bonfire together for the evening pep rally on Thursday. Despite a downpour which got the wood good and wet, the Lockney Fire Department was able to start the fire and everyone enjoyed it.
