JOE ZORGER, assistant manager of Moore-Rose Funeral Home will complete his apprenticeship in August.

Moore-Rose featured as the Business of the Week

Moore-Rose Funeral Home, featured as the business of the week, has been operating in Lockney since 1976. Joe Zorger is the assistant manager; his apprenticeship will be completed in August. The State of Texas requires that potential funeral directors attend school; Zorger attended the Dallas Institute of Funeral Service in Dallas. Directors must also pass a written examination and serve as an apprentice for one year.

Zorger served twelve years in the Air Force as an autopilot technician and attained the rank of sergeant. He was also an instructor in that field and served two tours of duty overseas in Japan and Saudi Arabia. The last two years in the service Zorger worked as a Thermo-nuclear warhead technician. He enjoyed the service, saying that he felt "a patriotic sense of duty" to serve his country.

Zorger also feels fulfilled in his capacity in the field of Mortuary science. "When I work with people, I am operating at peak efficiency. I find satisfaction in helping people. People who have never experienced the death of a loved one, often find death hard to understand. Moore-Rose stands for never putting pressure on people at a time in their lives when they are experiencing a tragedy," explained Zorger. Moore-Rose Funeral Home performs many services, attempting to soften the grief surrounding the family. Zorger counsels with the family, assisting and offering suggestions when asked. If the family is not familiar with the community, Zorger will contact people to participate in the service. Moore-Rose can take care of all the funeral needs. They offer caskets and vaults in a wide range of prices and have a variety of tombstones from which to choose.

Zorger's wife Ninette is a registered nurse at Lockney General Hospital and the couple have one son, James, who will be a fourth grader. The family attends the Main Street Church of Christ.

Zorger enjoys living in Lockney, saying that "not many other places will one find as many people who not only believe in God, but try to live each day with God in their lives. The community pulls together when the chips are down, and it is a good place to raise a family."

Businesses interested in purchasing gate tickets for the fair for employees or for promotional purposes are asked to call Laura Wilson or Rhonda Cain.

This year's theme for the fair and parade is "Happiness is a World of Colors."

These groups and individuals will be performing from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. on that Saturday. Starting soon afterwards (8:15 or so) the Whirlers will be sponsoring square dancing until 10:00 p.m. Raymond Lusk president of the Chamber said, "We would like to encourage young performers to participate in the event." Tentatively scheduled are Jennifer Fortenberry and Mary Lindsey Poole. "We would like to have some more to perform short dance routines and skits."

In addition to the annual sidewalk sales being held by merchants on that day and the entertainment, many booths will be set up in the downtown area. These booths will include concession stands set up by Athena Study Club, Il Penseroso Study Club, The Lockney B and PW Club, the Lockney Chamber of Commerce, and the Floyd County Arts Association. Other booths will include Marilyn Cates with Aloe Vera products, O.c. Allison with knives and scissors, and Trena Aston featuring constructive toys for children in a booth. Booths will be set up on a first come, first serve basis. No specific areas will be assigned.

The Chamber is encouraging anyone wishing to participate in any of these projects to contact Vera Jo Bybee at 652-2357 or Gary Marr at 652-3706.

A piano is needed for performers to use that Saturday. If you have one you would consider letting them use, please call Vera Bybee. Watch future editions of the Beacon for further information.

Council approves street painting

The Lockney City Council passed a motion to direct police chief, Tim Thompson, to supervise the painting of both yellow and broken white stripes on Main Street. This is being done to prevent turning left to on-street parking and backing out of on-street parking lots across both lanes of traffic and traveling the opposite direction.

The council also accepted two bids during the meeting. The only bidders, Water Tank Service Company, of Red Oak, Texas, for the complete refurbishing of the water storage tank located on Shurbet Street west of the highway, submitted a bid of $21,980.00. The company has been doing the water tank servicing for the city for several years and their work carries a 20 year guarantee. The tank will be sandblasted, coated on the inside with a plastic finish, and repainted on the outside with top grade aluminum paint.

High Plains Pavers was awarded the bid for the paving of several blocks in Lockney under a grant from Texas Department of Community Affairs with a bid of $96,070.00 for the penetration type paving. Other bids included $105,177.50 from Ronnie Zahn, and $129,436.00 from Appe Inc.

Sculpture and carving classes set

The Floyd County Arts Association is sponsoring classes in terra cotta sculpture and wood carving, to be held July 30 through August 2.

The terra cotta sculpture classes will be 9-12 a.m., July 31, August 1, 2. The wood carving classes will be held at night July 30-31, and August 1, 7-10 p.m.

There will be a limited enrollment of 20 per class, with a payment of $45 in advance. Tools will be provided, with materials costing not more than $5.

School board calls for bids

The Lockney school board is calling for bids for concrete repair work and an awning to be installed over the north entrance of the band hall. Due to weather erosion, the concrete and brick work has deteriorated and the repair work is deemed necessary to solve the problem. An awning would help protect the entrance from the weather. The bids will be due in the superintendent's office by July 25 at 4:00 p.m. and will be opened on July 26 between 6 and 8 p.m.

In addition to the calling for the above bid at the July 12 meeting the board heard the summary of Tax Report #10 which shows the Lockney I.S.D. to have collected 96% of the collectable taxes.

The board tabled the matter of laying a water line from the school well to the school buildings until a later time.

The budget for the 1984-85 year was then discussed. However they could only discuss the projected local expenditures until final word is received from the State as to what kind of funding Lockney will receive for the coming year.

Another board meeting has been scheduled for July 26. It is hoped that by that meeting time the board can start work on the budget in earnest.

She is open at the Lockney location Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, usually from 8:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m.

Barbara journeys to Lubbock to Jessie Lee's School of Hair Design twice a year and attends hair classes. She also attends Amarillo hair shows two or three times a year in order to keep up with the latest hair styles.

Barbara offers a variety of services such as one-step ear piercing, frosting, bleaching, permanents, shampoos and sets, and haircuts. She gives manicures, applies sculptured nails, and dyes eyebrows and eyelashes.

The products used in the shop are Redken, Zotos and Helene Curtis. The complete line of Redken makeup will be available in the near future. Barbara is making plans now to attend makeup classes which will enable her to assist the customer in making the correct makeup and color choices. She performs a valuable service by evaluating the customer's facial features, lifestyle, and hair texture, then she determines what hair style can be adapted to fit the customer's needs.

Jerry Cawley, Barbara's husband, is a farmer in the Lonestar Community. The Cawleys attend the First Baptist Church in Lockney. Gary, the couple's oldest son, is a junior electrical engineering major at Texas Tech in Lubbock. Michael, the youngest son, died in December of 1982. PERSPECTIVES

By The Rev. Michael O'Connor

The legislature has passed a children safety restraint law. As a result, many editorials are being written in support of the law; I suppose to convince those folks who don't use restraints that this is a good thing.

We have always used restraints with our children. In fact, the adults in our family use their seat belts. We have seen enough films to convince us of the need, but we are also aware that the kids rebel against having to sit in their seats and have the seat belt on when we refuse to wear ours. My mother wouldn't even let people ride in her car without some kind of restraint, adults or kids, like it or not.

I am happy about the law in the sense that I am absolutely convinced of the need for child restraints. Why some folks try to do without them is a mystery to me. After all, what is $40-50 in comparison to the life of a child?

But I am disturbed that we are passing laws like this when at the same time we have other laws and attitudes which are destructive to the well being of the children of our society. For instance, the new law may save upwards of 75 lives in the state this year. If that number were expanded to include all the states, we would save about 3800 or so child lives. In the meantime, some 1.2 million children will never see the light of day, much less a safety seat in a car.

In a recent trial of a teacher accused of obscenity with a child, the attorneys for the defense spent a good deal of time impugning the character of the child involved, according to the reports. Other trials have seen similar tactics. Of course, we want justice to be done, but what are we saying when the child is treated as the aggressor in those situations?

Requiring safety restraints for children is a good thing. Now let us take our concern for children, and apply it across the whole of society's attitudes.

The Iran - Iraq war has continued for five years, and there is not probability of it ending any time within the near future. Iran's Ruhollan Khomini, the 84-year old cleric, sends war planes against tanker ships in the Persian Gulf and a ragtag army against Iraq on the ground.

Five years ago U.S. intelligence officials summed up the ayatollah this way: "Proud, revengeful, suspicious, stubborn, filled with a rage that only an elderly, self-centered religious fanatic can ingender." He rules from mosques and is protected by more than 100,000 Islamic guards. With such protection the ayatollah and his clergy have force-marched 36 million Iranians from the modern era and "satanic influence" of Western culture. They have imposed censorship, banned movies and music and ordered women back into the seclusion of separation and the veil.

Khomini is determined to expand his holy war throughout the Middle East. His supporters stand accused of bombing the U.S. Embassy and the U.S. Marine barracks in Beirut. He has vowed to "bury" any Americans who intervene in the Persian Gulf fighting. The black-robed ayatollah is described in Iran's constitution as the nation's "spiritual" guide. In fact, he is its supreme political and religious leader. He seldom leaves his modest, heavily-guarded home and attached mosque in the village of Jamaran near Teheran.

Industry Changes Bring New Options

'Network Interface' or 'Protector' Marks Division of Responsibility

Among the many changes in the telecommunications industry is one which probably will affect you sooner or later, if it hasn't already. It deals with your connection to the telephone network. Let's start from the beginning...

There's a device that marks the point where Southwestern Bell Telephone's lines (from a switching office) stop and where your inside wiring begins. (Inside wiring is simply the wiring inside your home.) That device is either a "network interface" or a "protector."

All telephone lines are installed with a protector (which protects against power surges), but not all telephone lines were installed with a network interface.

The network interface is a plug-in device which enables customers to connect or disconnect inside wiring from the telephone network access line.

If your home is a newer home, more than likely, it has a network interface installed either on the inside or outside close to where the telephone line comes to your home.

We started using network interfaces in 1982. If your home does not have a network interface, Southwestern Bell Telephone is responsible for the telephone line from the switching office, up to and including, the protector. This is where our lines ends and your inside wiring begins.

Until recently, we did all the installation and repair of wiring inside our customers' homes. Now that's all changed. Today, you have three options on how to handle installation and repair of inside wiring and jacks for your telephones:

- (1) hire Southwestern Bell Telephone to do it,
- (2) hire another contractor, or
- (3) save the money by doing the work yourself. Materials are readily available from numerous retail stores.

If you choose Southwestern Bell Telephone to do the work, you should know about some new charges called "Premises Work Charges," recently approved by the Public Utility Commission of Texas. The charges, which include materials, are billed according to the time required to do the job.

Here is the schedule of those charges:

PREMISES WORK CHARGES FOR JACKS AND INSIDE WIRING
		Other Times
		8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday-Friday	Monday-Friday All-day Saturday	Sundays and Holidays
Installation	Initial 15 Minutes	$18.50	$22.75	$27.00
	Each Additional 15 Minutes	$10.50	$12.50	$14.75
Repair	Initial 15 Minutes	$28.25	$31.75	$35.25
	Each Additional 15 Minutes	$10.50	$12.75	$15.00

When we complete the work, you get a 30-day warranty against defects and malfunctions from the date of installation or repair. For your reference, keep this warranty handy.

For ease, convenience or cost savings, the choice is yours!

Blake Bartons to celebrate 30th anniversary

by Gayle Jackson

Mavis Clarke Barton, Lockney Care Center columnist for The Lockney Beacon, was born October 28, 1922, in England, and remained an English citizen until 1954. Her emigration from England and arrival in Floyd County might sound like a war bride story, but that's not quite all of the truth.

There is a war bride in this story, but it is Hilda Mary Clarke, Mavis' niece who was raised as her sister. Leading to the war bride story is the Clarkes' purchase in 1936 of a 25-room home, known as Heath House, in Uttoxeter, England about 35 miles northwest of Birmingham. To have funds for upkeep, the Clark family turned Heath House into a small hotel where they served meals and tea. Their business increased when they were discovered by excursion bus drivers. Mr. Clarke improved Heath House, building both a tennis lawn and a croquet lawn for entertainment.

During World War II a large army camp was located about five miles away from Uttoxeter, and American soldiers would spend their weekend leaves at Heath House. Ralph de-Fluiter of Ravenna, Ohio, was on of the those soldiers. While at Heath House to play lawn tennis, he met the Clarke's granddaughter, Hilda Mary. Their plan to marry was delayed when Ralph was shipped out with no notice. Hilda Mary sold her wedding dress and threw away the wedding cake. Later, the couple saved their money and were able to marry and move to his hometown. From there, Hilda Mary sent pictures to Mavis, asking her to join them in America.

In 1946, Mavis' mother died. The family continued to operate Heath House, until 1949 when they closed it after a new highway bypassed Uttoxeter and diverted tourists.

Anxious to join Hilda Mary and Ralph de-Fluiter in Ohio, Mavis got her papers once but the visa expired while she waited for older sister Amy and her children to get their papers approved also. Ralph and Hilda Mary had moved to Bakersfield, California, by the time they sailed on the Mauratania for America on October 20, 1950. From New York, the group took a train to Los Angeles.

In Bakersfield, Amy and her eldest daughter found employment and left Mavis at home as babysitter for Jimmy and several neighborhood children. Later Amy married an American, but Mavis continued to reside with the family. The 31-year-old English citizen, having little contact with other people of her age, was lonely. Night after night, she listened to the radio, particularly to a station in Clint, Texas, Mavis recalls. "There I heard about the Hollywood 400 Club, a pen pal club, which would help people to find a lifetime partner."

Mavis continues, "I sent in my 10-cent membership fee and received a list of eight or nine names of men from ages 18 to 75. I wrote to several, but some weren't interested and some didn't answer. So I thought-just let it go. I'll never be married and have children. My nephew will have to be by child."

But she decided to try one more time. Blake Barton's name was repeated from the first list. Mavis wrote to the Texas and told about herself. She asked Blake if he had a nickname. Barton's return letter listed several nicknames, and from those Mavis chose to call him Bud. Through the letters the couple exchanged, Mavis learned that Bud was only 22 days older than she, and that he was a farmer and rancher in eastern Floyd County. After a year's correspondence, Bud wrote to say he was coming to visit in June of 1954. But he delayed the visit, sending Mavis a telegram saying that because of wheat harvest, he wouldn't be coming until July.

He telegraphed that he was in Winslow, Arizona, enroute to Bakersfield by car in mid July. Nervously Mavis awaited the meeting. The night of his arrival she prepared supper for the family, but found herself too tense to eat. When Blake "Bud" Barton called, they tried to tell him how to find the house, but found it difficult. Finally Mavis' sister, Amy drove her to the motel; however, they found he had left looking for them. When they returned he was at the house.

After handshakes with Bud, Amy and her husband went to bed early to allow Bud and Mavis a chance to get acquainted. The couple took a ride around the town, that night. The next day Bud asked Mavis to marry him. When she answered "yes," they went to shop for an engagement ring. Finding none they could afford, Mavis convinced Bud they didn't need one. However, they bought wedding rings for each other and went for blood tests where they were promised results by the next afternoon.

Mavis took Bud to visit her younger sister, Hilda Mary and her husband. She asked them, "Are you or aren't you going to be married? If you are, we'd better get things started." The next day she took Mavis shopping and ordered corsages and boutonnières. Like it was yesterday, Mavis describes her wedding dress. "It was a plain street dress, white with red and navy blue polka dots, with a navy blue bolero jacket edged with the polka dot material."

TURN PRECIOUS METAL INTO OLYMPIC MEDALS

SUPPORT THE HOME TEAM.

Buy An Olympic Coin.

What is significant about these coins?

These are the first Olympic coins ever issued by the U.S. Mint. The gold coin, the first minted by the United States in over 50 years, is the first coin ever to bear the "W" mark from West Point. The two silver coins also mark an important first. The 90% fine silver coins are the first of this face value to be issued since 1935. These coins will never be issued again. No orders will be accepted after January 18, 1985. At that time, all remaining coins and dies will be destroyed and the Olympic Coin Program will be history.

Where do the proceeds go from the sale of coins?

Ten dollars from the purchase price of silver coins and $50 from the gold coin are put into a special Olympic fund. These proceeds are divided between the United States Olympic Committee and the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee. This money is used to help train and house athletes and also to stage the Los Angeles Summer Games. A trust fund will also be established to aid future Olympic hopefuls. To date, over $40 million has been raised for the Olympic effort. The coin program hopes to raise up to $65 million for the Olympic fund.

What are Olympic proof coins?

Proof minting is done with specially prepared dies. A handfed process, where each coin is struck several times, produces a high relief, finer detail and a brilliant shine. This quality can only be found in proof coins. All coins are then carefully examined by inspectors. Each flawless coin is then sealed in a special plastic capsule to protect the coin's finish.

How much do the Olympic gold and silver coins cost?

The 1983 and 1984 silver coins are available singly for $32 each or in a two silver coin set for $64. The gold coin can also be purchased singly for $352 or in a three coin set-two silver and the gold-for $416. All coins come packaged in an attractive burgundy velvet case and are available through January 18, 1985.

What are U.S. Olympic coins?

U.S. Olympic silver and gold coins are minted by the U.S. Treasury to raise funds for current and future Olympic hopefuls. This is the first government sponsored Olympic fund raising activity. This program was developed because the U.S. was the only country that depended on private funds to train its Olympic contenders.

Why should I purchase Olympic coins?

By purchasing Olympic coins, you are showing your support for the home team and you receive a beautiful keepsake commemorating the '84 Summer Games. These coins are a special memento of the first Summer Games held on American soil in 52 years. The U.S. athletes need our support to capture the gold this year and in future Olympics.

HOME ELECTRICAL SAFETY
 For almost a hundred years, electricity has been part of the daily lives of most Americans. Electrical products provide light, make work easier and increase comfort.

Most electrical products are designed, tested and built so that they are safe in normal use. But sometimes a defect in the product or improper use can create a hazardous situation.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, 600 people lose their lives each year by electrocution in or around the home. In addition, there are about 205,000 home fires of electrical origin that cause 1,100 deaths, about 16,300 injuries and 950 million dollars in property loss each year.

Most people know that they shouldn't use electrical appliances near water. They also know to repair or discard any appliance that causes the slightest shock, and to keep combustibles such as drapes and newspapers away from heat producing appliances.

Here are some electrical safety ideas that are less obvious, but equally useful in preventing fires and injuries:

- * Unplug your kitchen counter-top appliances when they're not in use. A plugged-in appliance creates an unnecessary risk.

- * Is there excessive vibration or movement when your washer or dryer is operating? Get it fixed. The movement can put undue stress on the electrical connections.

- * Check the light bulbs in ceiling fixtures and in "hooded" lamps that will trap heat. A bulb that is of too high wattage may lead to fire through overheating.

- * Lamp cords and extension cords in high traffic areas can cause people to trip. That's bad enough, but tripping over and stepping on cords can also damage them, leading to a fire hazard.

- * Never use electrical appliances outside barefooted. That insulation of a rubber sole might be just enough to prevent an electrical shock.

The best way to prevent an electrical injury or fire is to remove or correct any safety problems which may be present in your home.

Saturday, July 24, 1954, was the wedding day. Hilda Mary took charge of getting the marriage license issued even though the office was closed. The wedding was scheduled for 5 p.m. but Mavis was so nervous that an hour's delay was sought from the minister. Mavis now laughs about going to the Methodist Church in Bakersfield and having to wait until the minister finished performing another wedding. Hilda Mary's husband, Ralph gave Mavis away.

Amy didn't attend the wedding, but arranged for a wedding supper for the newlyweds for Hilda Mary and Ralph at an inn in Bakersfield. Afterwards the couple stayed the night at de-Fluiter's home.

On Sunday, the Bartons drove to Los Angeles and Mavis gave her wedding corsage to her niece. Amy didn't like the idea of Mavis leaving for Texas and Mavis, with all the tension, started to cry when they left Bakersfield on Tuesday. Bud understood, "I know it hurts to leave, but we'll be back." They returned very soon, for Mavis remembered they'd left their swim suits on the line to dry.

After the delay, the Bartons saw the Mojave Desert, Grand Canyon, Boulder Dam, Painted Desert, Petrified Forest and Carlsbad Caverns in the next 4 days. They stayed at a Lubbock motel the first night they were in Texas.

Blake took his bride to a two-room house on a ranch in east Floyd county where the Barton family had lived for many years. (Blake's mother was born in a dugout nearby.) One of Mavis' first memories of the ranch is riding with Blake on a tractor to look for fence posts among the thick mesquites. "He got off but told me not to because of the rattlesnakes."

Out there in the pasture, Mavis taught herself to drive their clutch-operated car. In 1955, six days after their first anniversary, their son, Steve, was born. And on April 24, 1956, while pregnant with her second child, Mavis became an American citizen. Steve now lives about two miles away and work at a gravel pit. Daughter Ann McFall lives north of Silverton and daughter Cristene Reyes lives near Snyder. The Bartons have six grandchildren.

From driving tractors to loading hay bales, Mavis helped Blake on the farm and ranch while the children attended Dougherty and Floydada schools. They added a living room to their little house, and then in October of 1961 they moved a new ready-built house to a location about a mile away.

The couple's quiet life on the farm and ranch ended about three years ago when Mavis had a sudden attack of arthritis, which left her wheelchair-bound. She had back surgery two years ago which relieved the pain, but she still can't stand. In November of 1982 she moved into Lockney Care Center where she could have all the help she needed. "My being here eases Bud's mind so that he can work, because there were times when I'd been on the floor, helpless for two hours before he found me."

Laverne Christian, administrator at the Lockney Care Center, asked Mavis to collaborate with Mary Jo Fielding on a column for The Lockney Beacon to tell of the happenings at the nursing home. Many people called or wrote to tell how diary-like column. Then Mary Jo began a current events column, and left Mavis on her own. Mavis discontinued her writing for a time, but now has resumed her column after being convinced by her admirers to write again.

At the Home, Mavis attends the daily church services whenever possible. That's new for her, she confesses. "My husband and I were busy and never attended church—we just never thought about it." Mavis also likes to participate in the ceramics, crafts, bingo games, and even tried piecing quilt.

Every Sunday, if weather and work permit, Blake "Bud" Barton drives to Lockney to take Mavis home for the day. She looks forward to the trip through the farm lands, and comments in her column on the progress of the crops. She usually gets to see son Steve and his family who live nearby, and some times the girls are there to visit.

Of course Mavis has seen again her

English relations. Phyllis Ayre, her only sister still in England, visited about four years ago. Hilda Mary was widowed when Ralph was killed in an accident. She married a doctor and they moved to Reno, Nevada, where Amy, who is a widow also lives.

And on July 24, 1984, Bud and Mavis Barton will observe the 30th anniversary of a wedding made possible by a radio station in Clint, Texas.
