Longhorns bring home county championship trophy

1984 Floyd County Champs

For the first time in 10 years the Lockney Longhorn varsity defeated the Floydada Whirlwinds and brought home the Floyd County Championship trophy.

The Longhorns took control early in the game, leading off what would amount to a total of 247 yards rushing as compared to the Winds -2. Coach Bob Purser said that if Lockney had not had the 110 yards in penalties, the Horns would probably had at least another 100 yards rushing.

Taking control in the first quarter Lockney put the first score on the board as Dickie Hernandez carried the ball 1 yard across the goal line and Danny Perez made the extra point.

The score remained 7 to 0 in Lockney's favor and in the third quarter Lockney uped the score with a 27 yard pass from Brent Hallmark to Gary Kent and again Danny Perez made the extra point making the score 14 to 0.

In the fourth quarter Lockney uped the score again with two more touchdowns. The first was a 41 yard pass again from Hallmark to Kent and the second was another 1 yard run by Dickie Hernandez. Perez was unable to convert the extra points on these last two touchdowns, but Lockney still emerged the winners by a score of 26 to 6. Floydada's only touchdown came in the final quarter of play as Floydada scored on a 45 yard pass play. The extra point failed.

Lockney was in great form Friday night with the only problem coming in the pass defense as Lockney allowed Floydada to gain 144 yards in passing. Coach Purser said the pass defense problem came in a lack of communication when the signals were called. Quarterback Brent Hallmark completed 4 of 7 passes for a total of 107 yards. Lockney also had 17 first downs as compared to the Winds 9. Lockney recovered three fumbles lost; Lockney lost only one. Lockney and the Winds also had one interception each.

The outstanding players of the week include Danny Perez, as the offensive lineman; and on the defensive forcing unit. Offensive back or receiver were Brent Hallmark and Gary Kent; the defensive back was Adam Rodriguez. Big Hits of the week go to Terry Mathis, Jerry Mathis, and Adam Rodriguez. Named as the MOE-player with the best team spirit, was the 1984 Longhorn Varsity.

Friday night the Longhorns will host Hale Center for their Homecoming game at 8:00 p.m. here.

Housing authority opens project bids

On Tuesday, September 18 the Housing Authority of the City of Lockney opened the bids for the 20 unit low rent housing project to be constructed here.

Only two bids were submitted. Hunter Construction Company of Lubbock was tentatively awarded the bid at $667,789.00, pending a 30 day acceptance period by HUD in Dallas. The other bid of $728,419.00 was submitted by Knox, Gailey, and Meador also of Lubbock. Both of these bids are significantly below the projected $1 million cost estimate reported last year.

The 20 units will be built on three separate sites in Lockney. The area south of the city hall will contain a total of four units which include two two-bedroom units, one three-bedroom unit, and one four-bedroom unit. The property behind the Bacuss Motor Company building will contain six three-bedroom units.

The third site at Locust and Washington, previously owned by Lockney Coop, will provide ten units: six one-bedroom units and four two-bedroom units. The one bedroom units have been built especially designated to accommodate the elderly and handicapped citizens, who will gain access from Locust Street. The two bedroom units will gain access from Washington Street, which was recently paved and curbed.

The units south of city hall will face east and south. Both units behind Bacuss and south of the city hall will be fenced.

All of the housing units to be built will have off-street parking for the occupants. The units will be of brick veneer exteriors with composite roofs. Separate water lines at each site will be used to maintain the grounds at each site, with the water billed to the Housing Authority. An office facility will be constructed and staffed.

These units are geared toward low income families.

The rent requirements will be based on 30% of the families income, with an allowance for gas, electricity, and water which will be deducted from that figure.

These units are described as single family dwellings. Some requirements for proposed renters include the past ability to meet financial obligations, especially rent and mortgage payments. A search will be made to see if any records of disturbances with past neighbors, records of property destruction, past living and housekeeping habits from past residences, which could adversely effect the health, safety, or welfare of nearby residents have been recorded. Criminal records will also be checked for the protection of the neighboring residents.

Assembly of God to hold revival

First Assembly of God Church of Lockney begins revival services Sunday, September 30 at 7:30 p.m. through Friday, October 5 with Evangelist James C. Golaz from San Antonio, Texas. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. Sunday thru Friday.

Golaz and his wife, Anita have been married 20 years. He plays the 12-string guitar and bass guitar.
 Pastor Frank Ryan and his friendly congregation invite everyone to these revival services.

Guests slated at Church of Christ

Sunday is a special day at the Church of Christ, West College and Third Street, in Lockney. Visitors from India and Mexico are expected to be present to report on progress made by Church of Christ workers in those countries.

The local church has joined with other congregations to establish a Bible school in India and to establish churches in India and Mexico.

Services will be at 10:30 a.m., 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. Lunch will be served at the church following the first service.

Prabhaker Rao of Bombay, India, is to be one of the speakers. He is a preacher of the Church of Christ and has established and helped several congregations in the Bombay area. He also has been the director of the school in Malwani Village, a suburb of Bombay, for several years. He will be accompanied to Lockney by Dennis Gage of Greenwood, Arkansas, who has helped to administer the Church of Christ work in India.

Also expected to be present are Joel Najera of Salamanca, Mexico, and Robert Lara and Lorenzo Zavala of Moreolon, Mexico.

Arnaldo Hernandez of Puerto Rico, who is presently studying at the Farmer's Branch Bible Training School in preparation for returning to Puerto Rico, also will be present Sunday.

DAVID AND JODY FOSTER

D & J Gin opens here

D and J Gin, Inc. will be open to the public within the next 10 days to two weeks for the 1984 ginning season. The gin, originally known as the old Hi-Plains Gin, is owned and operated by David and Jody Foster, who purchased the operation in May.

Originally, the gin was purchased for private use, but after all of the work that was put into the operation and also consideration of what appears to be an excellent cotton crop this year, the Fosters decided to open to the public.

The gin is set up to handle all ginning needs including the installation of a new module feeder and a new module truck. "Though it is hard to judge without having ginned any cotton yet," David said, "I think the gin would turn out at least 10 bales per hour."

David also stressed that they will be ginning their cotton "in line with everyone else. We will not give preference to our cotton, but we will not hold ours to gin others. Ours will be ginned in line as it comes in with all the other customers' cotton."

Before returning to Lockney to run the gin, David taught agriculture in Anton for a year. He said he enjoyed teaching and took the job in Anton to prove to himself that he could get a job on his own away from home. David said he had wanted to be involved in farming. When the opportunity arose to own and operate the gin, it presented the challenge and incentive to return.

David graduated from Texas Tech University in Lubbock in 1983 with a bachelor of science degree in agriculture education. He was a member of collegiant FFA, a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity, and was also an agri-Texan, an organization on campus to promote the school of agriculture and to recruit students from high schools who are interested in attending Tech's school of agriculture.

Jody is presently attending Texas Tech and will complete his last semester in the spring in agriculture education. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. Presently he oversees the farming half of his partnership with brother David. In addition to their partnership in the ginning business, they farm 600 acres. Jody will continue the farming operation, and David will operate the gin.

Jody also commented that being a partner in the ginning operation is a "challenge and one he is looking forward to."

David and Jody invite "all area farmers to stop by and visit us at the gin. We will be happy to show you our facilities and also to discuss handling your ginning needs this year."

In times like these.....

East German Communist leader Erich Honecker recently postponed a trip to West Germany. This reminded the world that the Soviet Union still can call the tune in Eastern Europe when it wants to.

There had been a recent speculation that Moscow's grip on the region was weakening. Two factors contributed to this speculation. Romania defied the Kremlin's boycott of the Olympics and both Romania and Bulgaria leaders planned to make their own trade visits to Bonn.

The 72-year old Honecker was scheduled to make an unprecedented journey to West Germany on September 26-30. The visit, the first ever by an East German leader, was to have capped months of improving contacts between the two Germans. At a time when East-West relations were strained due to the deployment of new U.S. missiles in Europe Moscow was disturbed by the blossoming relation between the two Germans. The Soviets launched propaganda attacks on Chancellor Helmut Kohl's regime and tried to stir fears of a unified Germany.

Honecker got the message and knuckled under. Word was passed on September 4 that the trip was being postponed in light of the "disgraceful and detrimental" controversy over the visit in West Germany.

Few bought the explanation. It was evident that the Kremlin is not about to let its European satellites go their own way when its interests are involved.

It was the second time Honecker had put off a trip to Bonn. In April 1983, he canceled a visit to Helmut Schmidt (then Chancellor of West Germany). There was another fierce Soviet propaganda barrage against the West over deployment of U.S. nuclear rockets.

3 locals attend convention

This past weekend Albert Scheele, Hank Winter, and D.K. Jackson attended the second Republican State Convention in Corpus Christi.

During the meeting Friday and Saturday those gathered adopted the Republican platform and also elected new state officers.

They heard several speakers including John Tower, Phil Gramm, Senator Bob Dole of Kansas, and the keynote speaker, Jack Kemp.

Also speaking before the gathered delegates was 14 year old, Ron Temple of Tyler, who is planning to run for the presidency in the year 2008.

While gathered for the convention, delegates passed a resolution to change the require two state conventions per party to only one. The resolution was suggested on grounds of saving money for both the delegates and for the state party.

Cedar Hill News

Everything is dry and in need of rain. There are promises of showers. Field work is going on and the women are still canning.

Letter to the Editor

Mr. Williams, perhaps you should have more foresight before you lambast people without substantiating your accusations.

The local merchants have been very supportive of Lockney students and we appreciate them. We also realize that because Lockney is so small the merchants have been overburdened when we have fund drives.

However, regarding the Homecoming mum sales you have your facts twisted. Members of the Junior Class visited Schacht's Florist first before consulting out-of-town merchants. The Juniors had a preconceived idea of how they wanted the mums to look. The students were told at this time that Schacht's would be unable to design the mums according to the Juniors' specifications. The students had no alternative but to solicit business from Plainview. Money was never considered in the decision.

Schachts is and always has been a very creative business that has given its all for Lockney. The Junior Class and sponsors regret any hard feelings that may have developed from this misunderstanding.

Monte's Magic Moments

Hi there. How are things going. We have finally slowed our pace back down to normal. Monday started off our week with our usual bingo game. We thank Delinda Glasson for the fried pies and apples for prizes. The residents really enjoyed them.

Tuesday we took an outing. We made it all the way to Plainview to go through the Llano Estacado Museum. It was very interesting. It is always a benefit to see where your own culture came from. Then after our jaunts to the museum, we decided to go try out some of the new fangled frozen yogurt. We found out Pina Colada Yogurt wasn't quite as bad as it sounded. To wrap up a nice afternoon we all had a very enjoyable day.

Our residents were really disappointed when we explained that our film had to be cancelled due to the video disc player being in the shop. We got everything under control after the big let down.

We managed to find a little finger nail polish remover and some finger nail polish and sat in the lobby giving manicures. It was really a pleasant way to spend the afternoon. The residents really enjoy doing things like nails because they can see some accomplishment has been made.

Thursday was a totally different kind of day. We just about warped our brains trying to work out a couple of cross-words puzzles. After we got started, things just started working on their own. It probably also helped because their was more than one brain working the same problem.

Friday was back to our bingo game. The residents always look forward to this. But everybody, it seems, always like winning something.

Next month will be October and we have many things planned. Hope you come by to see us. So until next week.

As Homecoming approaches...

As Lockney High School Homecoming rolls around, people who have not seen each other in ten, twenty, or thirty years will reunite to share memories, both good and bad. In anticipation of this reunion, people undergo amazing transformations to physically and mentally prepare themselves for confronting puberty again.

Old classmates may firm up, lose weight, change hair and clothes styles in order to put together a better self image. Unfortunately, time is not always on our side. It is often difficult to recognize the Homecoming Queen of 1936 or the quarterback who threw the winning touchdown in the Floydada game of 1954.

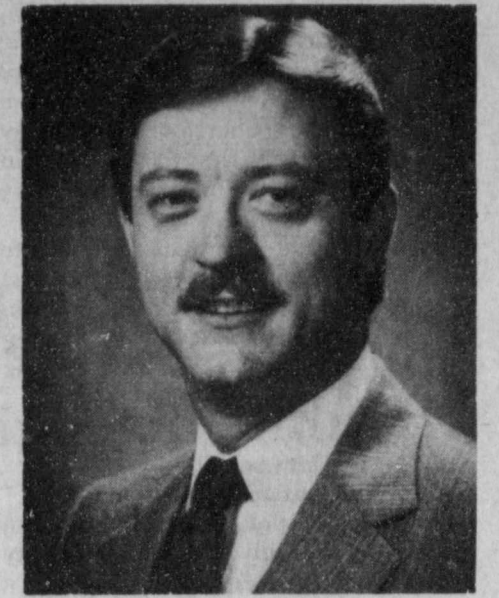

It is astounding to absorb the knowledge that the "ancient" English teacher was your age when she was teaching you in 1964. And the high school students, why they are just babies! They must be promoting them early -- they cannot be seventeen years old. Do you remember that creepy boy who used to follow you all around with

It is rare that in a mobile society such as ours, people still stay in touch with high school "friends." However, this is the close warm atmosphere that small towns such as Lockney generate. This "hometown" environment has nurtured and will continue to nurture caring friendly individuals.

However, change is inevitable, whether it is a good change or one you would rather ignore. Regardless of the transformations. This year's Homecoming should prove to be both a nostalgic and rewarding experience.

Shorthorns come up short

The Floydada 8th grade defeated the Shorthorns 22-0. The Breezers scored on the 1st offensive play of the game on a 60 yard pass. A bad snap on the punt put the Breezers in position to score again. Two plays later Floydada scored on the option and the score was 16-0.

Floydada scored again in the 4th quarter to make the final 22-0. A lot of players played for both teams. The Shorthorns played hard. The 8th grade's next game is Thursday at Hale Center. The Horn of the Week was Chad Golden.

Texas Tech masked riders celebrate 30 year tradition this weekend

Editor's Note: This article is being reproduced from the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Sunday morning edition, September 23, 1984.

Few collegiate debuts have been more striking nor more favorably received by the press than the first formal appearance of Texas Tech's Masked Rider in the 1954 Gator Bowl.

A subsequent account said the rider leading the Red Raiders onto the field awed the crowd into a momentary stunned silence. "Then the silence was broken as the electrified crowd burst into cheering.

A Gator Bowl account by an Atlanta Journal sportswriter was even more laudatory. "No team in any bowl game ever made a more sensational entrance," he reported.

The rider was Joe Kirk Fulton and his Gator Bowl gallop helped spawn a 35-13

Texas Tech upset over Auburn and a tradition that has continued ever since.

This year the 30th anniversary of that ride will be celebrated by a reunion of the masked riders during homecoming activities Sept. 28-29 on campus. Joe Kirk Fulton and Anne Lynch Hansen, the first female Masked Rider, are expected to be among the former riders participating in the ceremony.

Fulton, now chairman of the board of Plains National Bank, Lubbock, in an interview with the Southwest Collection, said fan reaction has always been positive.

"It was all very favorable from the very beginning," he said. "I never heard a derogatory remark. I heard a few opposing coaches who really didn't like the horse on the football field, but that wasn't the fans."

At the Gator Bowl Fulton rode a horse borrowed from Bert Eads of the Hockley County Sheriff's Posse which had sent members to Jacksonville, Florida, to ride in the Gator Bowl Parade. At subsequent games, Fulton provided his own horse, Blackie. He also saw to the costume and the tack for his mount, all without reimbursement.

Today the Masked Rider receives a scholarship and has expenses for travel and care of the horse. There were other differences between today and the first year with Fulton as Masked Rider. For instance, the rider didn't circle the field after each touchdown in the early years.

"When the team would come out I would circle the field one time," Fulton said, "and when I came back, the team followed me out."

"I think Texas Tech has the best of all mascots in the Southwest Conference," he said. "Personally, I think the Masked Rider is the most colorful and I wish I could take credit for the idea, but it was Coach (Dewitt) Weaver's."

Weaver may have gotten the idea from a mysterious rider that periodically galloped around the football field prior to games in the late 1930s. That Raider rider, according to students attending Texas Tech in the 1930s, was really several students who, over the years, kept their identities a secret.

But one thing the early Red Raider had in common with the reincarnation by Fulton and his immediate successors was that all were male. That changed in 1974 when Anne Lynch was named the Masked Rider.

"There was a lot of controversy when I was chosen," she said, "but I was so happy I didn't really think about any ramifications of being the first girl selected."

"That aspect wasn't the main thing that made an impression on me at the time. It was just the excitement of being able to represent the school and anxiety over whether I could really do it and do it well."

Now Anne Lynch Hansen of MacLean, Va., she recalled the anticipation that preceded her selection as the Masked Rider.

"I remember before I became the Red Raider I felt like a little kid standing on the corner watching shoney fire engines race by to a fire," Hansen said. "You just say 'I want to get on, I want to do that.' It was something so exciting and represented so much good that you just had to do it."

Though there was the excitement of the game day and parades and rodeos, there was also the daily routine of tending the horse. Hansen estimated she spent two to three hours a day feeding and grooming Happy Five and caring for the tack. And there were the anxieties as game day approached.

"It wasn't always safe before the football games," Hansen said. I was always afraid another team was going to shorten his tail or something like that so I'd spend a lot of the time the week before a home game making sure there were always people at the barn."

The highlight of her reign was Texas Tech's 26-3 defeat of Texas in 1974.

After graduating from Texas Tech, Hansen worked for chemical companies in agricultural sales and later in real estate management of farms and ranches held in trust by the Well-Fargo Bank in San Francisco. In her jobs, she traveled extensively across the country and in Latin America.

"I met Texas Tech alumni everywhere, even in Latin America," she said. "I'm pretty proud of the school, and I'm so especially proud to have been the rider that I usually don't let the alumni get away without telling them I was a Red Raider."

Hansen is one of three female Red Raiders, but male or female, they all shared a common trait — a devotion to horses. Hansen today keeps horses in Virginia and reports 1½-year-old daughter Marie has already taken to them. Her newborn son is still a bit young to make his preferences known.

In spite of, or maybe because of, all the attention, Hansen said she felt a special sense of relief when her rides before Jones Stadium crowds were over.

"At the end of the season," she said, "I was happy I hadn't fallen off. I thought that would probably be the worst thing I could have done."

And like Hansen, the tradition which Fulton put on the permanent road hasn't fallen off either, but has kept riding through 30 years of fond memories among Texas Tech faithful.

Fulton is also a director of the First National Bank of Lockney. Kim King, employed by the First National Bank of Lockney, was also a masked rider in 1976.

Theft may be thwarted

Texas is number one—in the number of dollars lost to farm equipment theft.

With farm and ranch equipment theft on the upswing, neighborhood or community patrols can be a key deterrent to such crime, says Dr. J. Fred Cross at Stephenville.

"Neighbors working together to keep an eye on each other's property can aid in reducing or preventing farm thefts and burglaries," says Cross, a community development specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Community patrols organized in cooperation with the county sheriff enable neighbors to watch each other's home, barns, equipment and livestock, notes the specialist. These patrols extend the eyes and ears of law enforcement agencies. Patrols do not get involved in any action, but just notify the police or sheriff of suspicious activities.

Cross refers these guidelines for organizing a community watch patrol: Patrol members should be at least 18 years of age.

Issue personal identification cards to patrol members (type determined by the sheriff or chief of police).

Patrol members using radio equipment should possess FCC licenses.

Automobiles used by citizen patrols should be easily identified by the police and other private citizen patrols operating in the general area.

Do not permit citizen patrol members to carry weapons.

Do not equip citizen patrol vehicles with sirens or emergency lighting. Decisions about using spotlights for security checks should be made on a local basis.

Train each citizen patrol member in fundamental law and ordinance, what constitutes a crime or an emergency, first aid, and methods of notifying the police and securing emergency assistance.

Additional information on organizing a community watch patrol is available in the Extension Service publication B-1396, "Neighborhood/Community Watch Guidebook," available at any county Extension office, says Cross.

Profitable Farming

Dr. Geoffrey Thomas
Area Agronomist
Garst Seed Company

Crop growing seasons, year after year, are a lot like snowflakes. No two are alike.

This year has been a much different year than last year, a better year taking the U.S. as a whole, although there still have been problems in some areas.

Comparing this year to last year, most people would say that 1984 has been a more normal year. This brings up a good point. What is a normal year?

Sometimes we consider a normal year the kind of year we'd like to see. Sometimes we consider a normal year a year that has no problems or crop stresses. And often we say normal year when we really mean average year.

If you lay on the table ten completely different ears of corn, or heads of wheat or heads of sorghum, which one is normal? If you average the characteristics of the ten, the result is unlike any individual.

That's the way it is with crop seasons. There nearly always is something that stresses the crop in the way of disease, insects or climate. An absence of problems and stress really would not be normal at all. It would be most abnormal. A corn hybrid, sorghum hybrid or wheat hybrid bred and developed to be super under optimum weather conditions and an absence of disease and insects would not perform well at all in most years.

Ask agronomists and crop specialists what a normal year is and you likely will get one or the other of three answers:

- (1) I've never seen one;
- (2) There is no such thing; or
- (3) It depends on where you're from...

Rather than normal conditions, it is better to talk in terms of average conditions, the moisture and temperatures and the level of disease and insect pressures that prevail most of the time. That's what a normal year really is, not perfect weather and an absence of problems.

It is important to get this point squared away because as this year's good crops move to maturity and are harvested there will be evaluations of hybrid performance and decisions made about what to plant and test next year.

We all tend to react to what affected us most...and most recently. And we compensate for that. But maybe this latest thing we are reacting to is very abnormal, not at all average and not likely to be repeated.

A good motto is: "Don't select next year's variety to cure this year's problem."

Not unless that problem is a recurring one on your farm or in your area.

When evaluating harvest results and planning for next year, it is better to select from hybrids that have a history of doing better most of the time under average (normal?) conditions.
