

In times like these... By Mary Jo Fielding

Cooperation has helped Saudi Arabia and the United States grow together. In the mid-20's, a pair of prize Arabian horses was exchanged for the expertise of an American geologist. It was the beginning of a singular relationship between the United States and Saudi Arabia.

The U.S. is now Saudi Arabia's largest trading partner and has been ever since World War II. In the last dozen years, Saudi purchases of American products have reached a peak of $9 billion annually. Goods and services flow from every state in the U.S. to Saudi's shores, a process that involves hundreds of thousands of American

No nation in history has come as far as fast as Saudi. Since 1978 the children have witnessed the opening of a new school every three weeks and the building of five major universities. In the last decade 600 rural and urban hospitals have been built. Education, like dental and medical care, is free to all Saudi citizens. There is no income tax, virtually no crime rate. Each year for the last five years Saudi has devoted 5 to 10 percent of its income to helping other countries less fortunate.

Today, Saudi Arabia is a modern nation, guided by the wisdom of His Majesty King Fahd.

3 members of power lift team qualify for regionals

Earlier this month we reported on the Lockney Power Lift team and the meet held in Lockney on March 2. We reported in that article that three or four of the members of the team were expected to qualify for the regional Power Lift meet in Sweetwater on March 30.

Danny Peralez, Johnny Torrez, and Allen Stallings will all three be competing in the regional meet. These young men have qualified for regionals by the scores they received at the two area meets held at Ralls and Lockney.

Danny Peralez, a senior, will be competing in the 242.5 weight class. Allen Stallings, a sophomore, will compete in the 114.5 class. Junior Johnny Torrez will compete in the 123.5

The boys will compete in each of three different weight lifting events including bench press, squat, and dead weight lift. They will each get three chances at each of the different weight events. Their scores will be taken from their best lifts in each of the events.

According to Coach Bob Purser the power lifting competition arose "mainly from the off season athletic programs in which the boys continue to lift weights to keep in shape for other athletic events. We competed some last year. This year after competing in Ralls, the coaches at Ralls asked us to host a meet here. The more meets the boys are in, the better their scores are and the better chance they have to advance to regionals." Purser also commented, "The boys we have competing seem to be very excited about the sport, and they enjoy power lifting."

At the regional meet the top three competitors from each of the four regions in Texas will advance to the State meet in Austin in April.

Other members of the Lockney power lifting team include Monty Teeter, Johnny Silva, George Basaldua, Lupe Basaldua, and Randy Race.

Mr. Daniels is a native of Philadelphia and took the Records to visit the historic sites in the area. C.L. and Lucy Dean thought the historic sites were inspirational and made them reflect on the sacrifices made by American forefathers to win liberty. At the site of the Liberty Bell, the park ranger urged them to touch it. The Records attended church with the Daniels in the inner city. The Daniels make a 45-minute drive each time they attend his childhood church so they can help keep the church going in an area that is being swallowed by the ghetto. The Daniels took the Records to see the open street South Philly Italian market.

The two couples drove to Atlantic City, New Jersey, and viewed the crowded gambling casinos.

U.S. to assist African countries

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) has issued the third invitation to private exporters to purchase CCC commodities for resale to drought-stricken African countries, Under Secretary of Agriculture Daniel Amstutz said.

Amstutz said the invitation is the third under a program initiated in May 1984 in which up to $90 million of wheat, corn and rice would be sold to eligible countries. The first invitation, issued June 15, resulted in successful contracts for the export of $22.7 million of commodities to six countries. The second invitation, issued November 30, resulted in successful contracts for the export of $38.9 million of commodities, also to six countries. This leaves a balance of $28.4 million of commodities available for sale and export under the third invitation.
