The Lamplighter

By Ken Towery

I see by the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal that there is going to be a mule racing event in that fair city this weekend, and that we are all invited to come by and watch, for a small fee of course. The proceeds will go to the Shriner's crippled childrens hospital.

I suppose I should say the event was held, rather than that it will be held, since this is being written before the event but won't be published until after the event.

The reason all this is possible, that is, the reason we can write of the event beforehand, is that we are not going to go anyway. We'll make our contribution to the Shriner's worthy cause in some other way.

The reason we are not going over to watch a bunch of mules run is that I still remember Dan, after all these years. In fact I would venture a prediction that no one who remembers Dan will be in attendance. You see, Dan was a mule, and while he had no progeny that I am aware of, it is possible that he has some distant cousins at the event, and it would be altogether improper to honor any of them. Dan might get some satisfaction out of it, wherever he is in the great mule hereafter.

Dan wasn't just an ordinary mule. He was the meanest mule we had on the place, a half-century ago. When my father decided to go modern, and change from horses and mules to tractors, Dan was one of those who escaped the auctioneer, along with a few horses that Papa thought we ought to keep around for the light work. It was a good thing, I suppose, because some of my earliest recollections are of older brothers spending untold hours trying to start that early Fordson tractor. It usually took so long to get the tractor started that the remaining horses, and Dan, had been harnessed and were in the field. After a few years of worrying with that we changed to International Harvesters, or "Farmalls" as they were called in those days, and things went a good bit more smoothly, but by then Dan was part of the family, so to speak, along with a few horses that remained to work the pastures.

No one ever knew exactly why Dan was so mean. In this day of instant psychiatric analysis of everybody and everything, he would probably be described as having a split personality. Then he was just being a mule. He was not above biting cows, chasing the horses, kicking gates and generally being onery one minute, and then, when the discussion turned to getting rid of him, he would get this sad, pathetic look on his face, as if he could read lips, and as if he was trying to promise us that he would change his ways and be good if we would let him hang around.

It always worked, and Dan lived out his life. But I don't remember him ever really changing his ways.

So the folks over in Lubbock will just have to get along without us at the running of the mules this year. Perhaps by next year we will have mellowed somewhat, and we may go see them run in Ruidoso. But I doubt it.

Lockney school board calls for bids and discusses budget

Members of the Lockney Independent School District board of directors held a special called meeting on Thursday, July 25 and called for two sets of bids in addition to discussing the 1985-86 budget.

The board approved calling for bids on a 1979 Ford Granada which has been used for drivers education classes, and a Jeep which is in the vocational agriculture department at the present time. Ag teacher Randall Robbins said the Jeep was not used much and the department did not need it. Specifications on both of the vehicles can be obtained from the superintendants office.

The board has also approved calling for bids on a lease purchase plan for typewriters.

The budget work session began with discussion of the vocational agriculture budget for the next school year. The original proposed budget was about $18,000.00 and the board approved an ag budget of $13,392.34.

Main Street U.S.A. set for August 10

By Pam Armstrong
Fourteen local merchants will be giving away prizes at the August 10 Entertainment Extravaganza which is sponsored by the Lockney Chamber of Commerce.

Merchants and the prizes they intend to give away include Consumers Fuel, 20 gallons of gas; Texas Energy, two gallons of anti-freeze; Eddie's Beauty Shop, two bars of Redkin soap; The Witches Hut, a free haircut; Elfie's Studio, a free painting; and Schacht Flowers, a set of stemware and a stuffed toy.

Also gift certificates will be given away by Brown's Department Store, The Outlet Store, The City Connection, Mayor J.D. Copeland, and the Lockney Chamber of Commerce. Other merchants participating include Mize Pharmacy, Lee's Whites Auto, who will be giving away an ice chest, and Tye Company's Horizon Sports division, will be giving away one of their new sports toys.

In order to win any of these prizes, citizens must go by the merchants listed

One reason for the decrease in the proposed budget is that the school board approved amending the 1984-85 budget to allocate $5936.05 for the purchase of new equipment.

This equipment will include a paint gun which will be used for the purpose of painting autos and stock trailers that are refinshed and built by the ag department. Also a contractors level and self reading rod will be purchased with the funds. Randall Robbins, ag advisor, commented that "the level presently used by the department is outdated and is not the kind that is used for the contests that our students use. The new level and self reading rod will bring the students up to date on the equipment that is used now."

Also purchased for the shop will be a new six inch joiner saw which will enable the students in the wood shop to construct better projects with a nicer finished look. Also the old saw is worn out and the use of a joiner is a minimum requirement for the students that take wood shop. Robbins will also be purchasing a new inert gas welder. Use of this type welder is also a state requirement.

The ag department will also be purchasing a computer which will enable the students to keep accurate record books and will help them in studying ag economics and other such classes, according to Robbins.

In addition to the purchase of new equipment the money approved by the board will also be used for the purchase of building materials for metal work benches in the ag shop. At the present time there is no work table for the students to use when welding metal projects. The tables will also be built with doors to house the welder, hats, and gloves that are used when welding.

This year's approved budget is about $5200.00 more for the agriculture department than the 1984-85 budget. However, Robbins feels that the 1985-

86 budget contains the necessary funds to enable the department to function at peak performance and produce a quality education. Without selling fruit, meats, magazines, and calendars to supplement the ag department funds Robbins said the only project the department was planning to raise any money was, a concession stand at the local stock show in March. "The concession stand will provide a service for those attending the show but we will not be asking local citizens for money. The money raised from the stand will go into our FFA fund which is used for the promotion of FFA and for other students projects," said Robbins.

Other aspects of the budget were reviewed by the board. The band budget for the upcoming school year totals $15,823.00. The total home economics budget is $6019.50 and the proposed budget for the athletic department totals $46,394.79.

Tax rates for the 1985-86 year have been discussed by the board but the actual figure has not been set at the present time. However the board is proposing a decrease in the tax rate. The tax rate for the 1984-85 year was set at 77 cents and the rate for this year will be lowered but it was not known by how much. The new tax rate will be set in the August meeting of the board.

While in session the board accepted two resignations, those of Lynn Harvey and Cherlen Brewer. They also hired Dayna Owens of Plainview to replace Brewer.

Superintendent Dub Hallmark discussed personnel needs with the board and said that a band director, a junior high science teacher, a high school foreign language teacher and one more kindergarten teacher, are still needed for the upcoming school year.

Hallmark left for the state band directors convention on Friday, July 26 to see if it is possible to hire a band director while there.

$200 reward offered

Fire damages office

A $200.00 reward is being offered by Crime Call in connection with a fire which was set on the north side of the police/sheriff/Justice of the Peace office located at 119 North Main Street in Lockney.

The fire, which was set with gasoline, caused smoke damage to the outside of the building at the north entrance door. The blacked area on the building was discovered about 1:00 a.m. Monday morning. The fire had burned itself out by the time it was discovered and the charred areas were already cold.

This fire is being classified as arson, which is a felony. Anyone having information about the person or persons who started the blaze are asked to call 652-2416. All callers will be issued a number and if the tip leads to the arrest and conviction of the perpetrator of the crime, the reward will be paid. All callers may remain anonymous.

Board adheres to $75 transfer fee

In a meeting of the Lockney school board held last Thursday evening the board discussed the transfer fee for students who transfer into the Lockney school system from other school districts.

Superintendent Hallmark told the board that he is still getting calls on the fee, which was raised this year to $75.00 per month. The fee during the 1984-85 school year was $30.00 per month.

The board raised the fee in an earlier board meeting. Discussion leading up to the rise in the fee included what is costs the Lockney I.S.D. to educate each student for one year. For each student the cost of education is over $2100.00 per year. Of that money $1047.62 comes from local funds which are raised through tax collections. The rest of the cost is supplied by the state.

Legally the school could charge $104.76 per month for students transferring into Lockney. Also taken into consideration is the fact that 17 students have applied for transfer into Lockney. This means that another teacher must be added to the Lockney staff to keep the student/teacher ratio at levels set by the state regulations. Adding another teacher to the staff costs Lockney schools about $17,000.00.

With all of these things in mind the board felt the need for the increase was justified and after much discussion about the situation the board has left the increased rate at $75.00 per student per month. The total transfer charge for each student will bring $675.00 per year into the school as opposed to the more than $2100.00 for the cost of educating those students.

In was pointed out at the meeting that parents of these transfer students must keep in mind that not only does the local school board have to approve the list of transfer students, but also the list must be approved by the state. If a transfer will effect the school system from which the student is transferring, in the average daily attendance by more than three percent the state will not approve the transfer. It is possible that the state will not approve all of the list of those transferring into Lockney for that reason.

In times like these... By Mary Jo Fielding

The Reagan defense buildup brings good times to a patch of California desert, Antelope Valley. More than a fifth of the valley's population of 155,000 is employed by aerospace firms. Dare-devil pilot, Chuck Yeager, has written about the remoteness of the valley in his memoirs just published. During World War II the military was drawn there, in part because it offered the privacy needed for testing top-secret aircraft. In the emptiness of the desert pilots could take target practice on a full-scale replica of a Japanese heavy cruiser without being observed by spies.

For Yeager and a generation of test pilots who followed, Antelope Valley was center stage. X-15 pilot, Pete Knight, who is now vice mayor of Palmdale, says, "It didn't mean being stuck in the middle of nowhere. It meant being in the middle of everything important to the future of this country." After the war, the aerospace frontier spread south from Edwards to Plant 42. Many of the military contractors based in Los Angeles, on the other side of the San Gabriel Mountains, set up shop at Plant 42, including Lockheed, Douglas, and Northrop. By the early 1960's almost every Air Force plane from the McDonnell F-101 Voodoo to Convair's F-106 Delta Dart, had been tested or built at Plant 42.

However, its contributions to aerospace history did not protect it from hard times. Production and testing of new aircraft slowed as the Pentagon relied on existing planes to fight the war in Vietnam. The valley's worst slump came after Jimmy Carter scuttled the B-1 project in 1977.

Just when the dream seemed dead, along came Ronald Reagan, whom veterans valley newspaperman Vern Lawson calls "the best thing that ever happened to the Antelope Valley." Reagan revived the B-1 and flooded the entire defense industry with fresh funds.

Many natives see themselves as preserving the pioneers spirit of the valley's early days. In the 1880s California newspapers put out a call for men with "grit and muscle" to seed the desert with fruit and alfalfa. The people who heeded that call made up the Antelope Valley's first major group of settlers.

Five year safety records awarded to by Paymaster

Five local residents who are employees of Paymaster seeds were honored at a safety luncheon held at Strickland's Cafe in Lockney on Friday, June 14. Each received a $50 gift certificate for working the past five years without having a reportable accident. Reportable accidents are those requiring medical attention outside the company. Those employees honored were Luis Mendoza, Mike Marquez, Jose Rodriguez, Manuel DeLeon, Averisto Luna, Marcelino Hernandez and Domingo Hernandez. All are residents of the Lockney area.

Randy Thomas, Administrative Manager, began the program by stressing the importance of safety, not only on the job, but at home as well. He also noted that an open line of communications between management and employees is essential in administering a good safety program. He stressed that by being aware of and practicing safe work habits, each employee could be an example for others they work with. Embre Douglas, Cotton Production Assistant, reviewed an article from the June 13 Lockney Beacon entitled "Safety-A Fulltime Job." He also reminded those in attendance that June 16-22 was "National Safety Week." Bill Nance, Sorghum Production Manager, reviewed the company safety program and how it will benefit employees through recognition and awards. Bill Matthews, Cotton Production Manager, ended the luncheon by encouraging each employee to work together and help each other achieve a goal of another accident-free year.

Paymaster recognizes the importance of safety and will recognize employees for their contribution in this area. Company safety efforts include ongoing educational programs, safety audits and inspections by company officials, distribution of safety materials and competitions with other company plants to maintain top safety ratings. Paymaster also holds monthly safety meetings with its employees to discuss and act on various safety related concerns and needs. Updates and current trends in the area of safety are also presented.

Time was also spent in option groups on current issues and officer training. The total school was training for church service.

The theme, Creating A Future With Justice, related the three studies stressing that partnership and a caring community can replace historic oppression and discrimination. In addition, responsible use of natural resources can protect God's creation both now and in the future.

Participants will bring their knowledge and skills to the programming of their local church mission work in the coming year. The attendants at worship was the focus of the school.

State aid to local schools increased $1 billion in '84

State aid to local schools increased by $1 billion last year to a total of $4.6 billion. To pay for it, the special session of the legislature last summer enacted the largest tax bill in the state's history.

Not to be outdone, school trustees in the 1,068 local school districts levied the largest school property tax increase in history—$519 million—for a total tax bill of $4.1 billion.

Locally, the Lockney ISD's tax levy was increased by .5 percent for 1984-85 as compared to a 14.3 percent increase for the average school district in Texas.

The figures come from the latest issue of Bench Marks for 1985-86 School District Budgets in Texas, an annual publication of the Texas Research League, an Austin-based, educational corporation engaged in governmental research.

School budgets adopted last year called for spending $3,103 per student for current operations. Lockney's budget provided for $3,326.07 per student based on the 666 students in average daily attendance in 1983-84.

Four of each five of these dollars were spent for salaries. Statewide, payroll expense averaged $2,487 per student, as compared to $2,511.00 in Lockney ISD. Payroll expense is a combination of salary levels and staffing patterns.

The average salary for classroom teachers paid by Lockney ISD in 1983-84 was $16,911.00. The average among all school districts in Texas was $20,117 per classroom teacher.

There was an average of one teacher for 14.8 students in Lockney ISD compared to a statewide pupil-teacher ratio of 1 to 16.2. Because of small classes, especially at the high school level, and abbreviated teaching schedules, many classes have more than the average number of students. The new law requires no more than 22 students in kindergarten, first, or second grade classes next year.

School property tax rates in 1984-85 average $0.622 per $100 of market value (selling price). The school tax on a property selling for $100,000 was $622 in the average school district. Locally, the rate on market value in Lockney ISD was $0.703 or $703.00 on a property selling for $100,000.

If the property were a homestead or owned by a senior citizen, the school tax would be less because of various exemptions. Open-space land that qualified would be valued on its productivity value rather than market value.

Revenue lost from exemptions totaled $780 million, which was $99.5 million more than the total for the previous year. To balance school budgets, the revenue loss from exemptions was imposed upon other taxpayers in the school district.

As compared to the billion-dollar increase in state aid last year, only $129 million more state funds will be distributed to schools next year. Only 492 districts will get more; the other 576 districts will receive less. This strategy to equalize presupposes that local property taxes will remain about the same. However, the large property tax increase last year, the report concludes, substantially negated the equalization improvement that the legislature tried to achieve.

By Dottie Stansell

Editor's Note: The following is an account of Judy and Clar Schacht's recent trip to the Orient. The series will be continued through several issues of The Lockney Beacon.

The customs house was similar to an old gym, with concrete floors and plywood partitions and desks. We had to declare anything of value brought in, such as watches, rings and cameras. Soldiers of the Red Army were everywhere and we had been warned not to photograph them. Being in the army is quite prestigious for a young man. Youngsters outside of customs swarmed, selling souvenir Chinese army caps. They started out at HK $100 and you really thought you were getting a bargain when you jewed them down to HK $25.00 (around $3.00). Several felt pretty sheepish when further inside the border the caps sold for HK $5.00.

We proceeded by bus to Hu Hai City which is an investment city. They have an open border also, and get a tax break, making them a comparatively prosperous city. The border has been open since 1979 and most Chinese who travel, take manufactured goods in and bring food such as sugar cane, fish and fresh vegetables out. Our guide told us that many illegal immigrants are caught daily, brought back and either fined or put in jail. We stopped in Hu Hai City and walked around a bit. The market place where we were had only two lanes of traffic. There was motor traffic, but by far there is much more bicycle traffic, the streets were lined with parked bikes and they're all alike. The government makes them, they're all black and it takes about three months wages to purchase them. All the bikes have bells and they make constant use of them. The stores all had open fronts and carried scant merchandise that seemed to be from the 1940's. We saw cuts of meat for sale in wash tubs. All groceries were carried in small net bags. There were several live ducks for sale, their feet were simply tied together. Large rattan baskets were on the backs and sides of some bikes for transporting items.

We left the city and toured the countryside by bus. The roads are narrower than our Farm to Market roads and in poor shape, so there was always a subtle race back to the bus to keep from having to sit in the back. To qualify as a bus driver, the driver must go for two years without an accident. He is also responsible for all repairs to the bus.

Periodically we saw several places where excavating and building was going on. Nearly all the work is done by hand. Hoes and baskets were the excavating tools used. I always thought that the photos of Chinese with a yoke and two baskets were picturesque but that is their way of life. The only machinery we saw were little 10 hp garden type tractors with trailers. All the scaffolding even in high rises, here and in Hong Kong both, is made of bamboo tied together. No matter how tall the buildings, there is no elevator till after the sixth floor. The workers lived on site in barracks made of woven mats. China is supposedly temperate, but there were definitely some cool days while we were there.

We passed several duck and goose farms and lots of rice paddies. Rice was the only crop we saw being raised and they do it like they have for hundreds of years. The plowing is done with bamboo plows and water buffalo in muck, and the planting by hand in more muck. I don't know why we didn't see any Chinese bent permanently double. The water buffalo represents quite an investment for a Chinese farmer. After the animal's working days are over, he is slaughtered and eaten, horns are carved and sold.

Twenty-five percent of the rice crop belongs to the government and the farmer may eat or sell the rest in an open air market. Their rice diet is supplemented by whatever vegetables they may grow. A typical wage-earner in the city makes about HK $300, which is about $38.00 a month. I'm not sure who is worse off, the farmer or the wage earner. For sure we never saw any fat Chinese. Our guide told us that athletes are the highest paid people, with professional people next.

BICYCLE TRAFFIC is more prevalent in Hong Kong than motor traffic. The streets are lined with parked bikes and they're all alike. The government makes them and they're all black. All the bikes have bells and they make constant use of them.

RICE PLOWING is done by the Chinese the same way it has been done for hundreds of years. The plowing is done with bamboo plows and water buffalo. The plowing is done in muck, and the planting by hand is also done in muck.

Care Center Capers

Howdy neighbors! Another week has gone by and what a week it has been! Herman still has not returned and the residents are beginning to really worry about his safety. If anyone knows Herman's whereabouts, please let us know at the Care Center. There is a reward being offered for his safe return. Gino would like to get things straightened out with his older brother because they haven't seen each other for a long time and they parted on not-so-friendly terms. It's been a fun week here at the Care Center.

The R.S.V.P. van took us to Hale Center where we drove around the Hale County Museum. We saw a lot of old steam powered tractors and other old farm equipment. The trip really brought back the memories and some tall tales were told.

Our fishing trip to Quitaque was a big hit. Thirteen residents enjoyed a picnic lunch complete with watermelon and we spent the afternoon fishing. The largest fish we caught measured four inches. Wow! I would like to thank several people who went along with us and helped out with our fun. I certainly appreciated the help of Tina Nuncio, our food service supervisor, who went along to help serve the lunch and who fixed our good picnic for us. Also, I would like to thank Linda Cumbie, our assistant administrator and her daughter Kim, Anita Guiterraz, one of our nurses aides, Emmitt Pyle, and Dixie Johnson, Fred and Lucille Scott from Silverton for going along with us. Special thanks go to the First Baptist Church for letting us use their van and to Linda Stallings for driving it for us. We really appreciate their loaning us chairs, also. Thanks again to everyone who helped make our fishing trip a big success.

Well, it's time to begin another week. Come visit us soon!

Se ya next week,
Tina Brockman
Activity Coordinator

Herman's quote for the week: August is the month when the collapsible wading pool you brought in June finally does.

Attention: Do you have any old silk flower arrangements you are tired of looking at? If so, bring them by the Care Center or call and we will pick them up. We are in need of silk flowers for our fair projects. Thanks for your continuing support.

NEW 2157 2165 Superior grain yields with a good grazing bonus. Excellent straw strength, too!

Our researchers were impressed by the tremendous pasture production and grain yields from these new varieties during testing. And now that the varieties have stood the test of actual production on many farms under many conditions, the proof is in!

They grow off well and show strong resistance to SBMV, leaf rusts, fungal leaf blights, and the Hessian fly.
• New 2157 gives you good, early grazing, then stays with you through the winter. And the grain yields are right up there with anything you care to compare it against. Choose 2157 for dryland or limited water production.
• New 2165 works with your irrigation program to make the most of all you put into the crop. Pasture comes on strong in the fall and grain yields are among the best you'll find, bar none.

Social Security News

By Terry J. Clements

Do you hire someone to clean your house? Or watch your children until you get off work? Or care for your lawn? If so, and you pay the person $50 or more in cash in a 3-month calendar quarter, you must deduct social security taxes and report the wages. If you don't report, you may be subject to a penalty, and the individual can lose valuable social security protection.
Keep in mind that social security is much more than a retirement program that provides monthly checks as early as 62 and medicare at 65. It also pays monthly benefits to a worker and dependents if she or he becomes severely disabled before 65. And, certain dependents can get payments if the worker dies.
However, these benefits can be paid only if the worker has credit for a certain amount of work under social security. Also, some recent work credits are required for disability benefits. In addition, the amount of monthly benefits is closely related to the amount of reported earnings.

If you and other employers do not report some or all of your employee's earnings, the person may have a short-term gain in more take-home pay. But later on, benefits may not be payable to the worker and dependents; or the amount may be greatly reduced. Therefore, he or she will lose in the long run.
If you employ someone in or around your home, call your Internal Revenue Service (IRS) office for reporting forms and instructions. IRS Form 942 (Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees) is due a month after a quarter ends. For example, if you pay someone $50 or more in the 3 months ending June 30, your report is due by July 31.
