Terrell wins National record book contest

Lisa Terrell, 16-year-old daughter of Buster and Linda Terrell of Lockney was notified this past week that her record book had won first place in the National 4-H record book contest.

Lisa said, "When Mary True called to say I had won at Nationals I thought I had just placed in the top nine. When I asked her what place I had gotten, and she said first I couldn't believe it. I am very excited about winning."

Lisa had earlier won an expense paid trip to the National 4-H convention after winning at the State level with her record book. The National 4-H Congress is held December 1-6 in Chicago, Illinois.

Lisa was the only senior Floyd County 4-H'er to submit a record book in the achievement category, for judging this year. This is the second year Lisa had submitted her record book for judging.

Lisa has been a 4-H member for the past seven years and her record book includes numerous projects that she has been involved in during those years. Her main projects have included foods, nutrition and recreation. Her other projects have included beef and sheep, home environment, citizenship, family life, public speaking, leadership, clothing, creative art and child development.

She has also been involved in the "Share the Fun" skits, won at both the county and district levels in the food shows and has helped in organizing the annual fund raising auction held each year by 4-H.

Having won first place at the national level, Lisa will receive a $1000.00 scholarship, sponsored by Ford Motor Company.

Terrell is the only person from Texas that has ever won the achievement category at the National level. In all there were sixteen National winners and five sectional winners from Texas and seven of the National winners and one sectional winner were from this district.

LOCKNEY CUB SCOUT master Ed Marks was the special guest speaker at the Lockney Rotary Club last Friday. Marks detailed the Lockney scouting program.

Program on scouting presented to Rotary

Ed Marks was the special guest at the Lockney Rotary Club meeting last Friday. Marks presented a report on the Lockney Cub Scout troop.

He reported that there are now 21 boys registered in the cub scout program and they have been broken up into three dens. Den mothers include Delinda Glasson and Kay Martin. Their helpers are Linda Marr and Nora Martinez. The third den mother is Debbie Harrison and acting as den coach is Cindy Smith. Smith aides all the den mothers with various projects.

Marks said, "We are planning to set up a board of directors with various parents overseeing projects and trips for the scouts to take. This will help the parents to become more involved in the activities of the boys in the scouting program."

He also reported that the scouts had been on two field trips, one to Reese Air Force Base and a camping trip to Lake Theo. "At the present time we have started the boys working on their scout badges. There will be more programs of interest to the boys and their parents in the next few months. We want the parents to take an active interest in the scouting program and the activities the boys are involved in," said Marks.

"I am proud of the adult leadership that we have working with the boys. I also want to thank the Rotary Club for their support and sponsorship of the Lockney cub scout program. I am a great supporter of the cub scout program and I feel that we must instill the ideas of patriotism and a sense of values in these young boys because you never know what potential each child has. These boys could be the doctors, lawyers and even the president of the United States someday and by instilling these ideas in them when they are young, it will be something they will carry with them in later life," concluded Marks.

Horns tied for first place in district

On might have thought that after the first play of last Friday's game with the Crosbyton Chiefs, the Lockney Longhorns might get a little discouraged. But that was not the case, as the Horns came from behind two times and ended the game with a 14-14 tie with the visitors.

The Chiefs took the lead in the first 15 seconds of the game as the kickoff was returned for a touchdown. The extra point attempt failed and the Horns were down six to nothing.

Lockney's first score came with about 9:00 minutes left in the first quarter. Crosbyton had the ball on their own 11 yard line in a third and 13 situation. On that play a quarterback sack and fumble by the visiting quarterback, put Lockney in a first and 10 on the Crosbyton 17 yard line. Lupe Basaldua recovered the fumble and Lockney quarterback, Jimmy Ballejo, on the first and only play of the scoring drive, took one step and fired a 16 yard pass to Johnny Torrez who was wide open in the endzone. Ben Schuster made the extra point and the Horns lead by on with 8:45 left in the quarter.

Crosbyton took the lead with just 0:37 left in the half, when a Lockney fumble put the visitors on the Lockney 48 yard line with a first down. A 47 yard pass and a two point conversion put the Chiefs up 14 to 7 at the halfway mark in the game.

After the half the Horns returned to the field, as Jimmy Ballejo returned the ball to the Lockney 35 yard line. The Horns kept the ball for over seven minutes of the third quarter with a 14 play drive. However on the third and seven play on the Chiefs 16 yard line, quarterback Ballejo was sacked and fumbled the ball. The visiting team now had the ball on their own 26 yard line.

Crosbyton then took the ball down the field 63 yards, and posed a serious threat, as they were in scoring position at the Lockney 11 yard line. However the Horns defense came alive and held the visitors to three incomplete passes. The Horns then took over at their own 12 yard line.

Lockney was unable to move into scoring position and returned the ball to the Chiefs, who began the next drive on their own 35 yard line. The Chiefs went for the first down, in a fourth and one situation, but the Lockney defense again came through and the Horns took over on the Crosbyton 44 yard line.

Horns Matt Mitchell and Jimmy Ballejo took turns carrying the ball putting the Horns in scoring position on the opponents seven yard line. Three plays later with Lockney in a fourth and four play, quarterback Jimmy Ballejo took the keeper four yards for six points. After checking with the officials as to opponents timeouts and penetrations, Coach Bob Pursler opted for the one point kick rather than the two point conversion. Ben Schuster's kick then tied the game at 14 all, with 4:24 left in the game.

Crosbyton took the kickoff but never moved the ball past their own 40 yard line. Because Crosbyton had been backed up to their own 16 yard line by penalties and the Lockney defense, when they punted to Lockney the ball was on the Crosbyton 33 yard line.

Lockney took the kickoff with 2:18 left in the game. They had control until the last 15 seconds of the game, when Crosbyton took the ball at their own five yard line.

The Lockney defense limited the visitors to only 164 total yards offense. The Chiefs had averaged 245 yards per game before they faced the Longhorns.

The Horns on the other hand picked up 187 yards total offense. The offense was led by Matt Mitchell who picked up 84 yards on 16 carries. He was followed by Jimmy Ballejo who had 32 yards on 15 carries. Tony Banda picked up 12 yards on seven carries and Steven Cates had 12 yards on four carries. Allen Stalling picked up four on three carries.

Outstanding receivers for the Horns were: Johnny Torrez with two passes for 22 yards, Javier Bernal with one catch of 11 yards, and Rusty Teeter had one catch for 18 yards.

The 14 to 14 tie will remain a tie until the district games are over. If at the end of district play the Horns and Chiefs are still tied for first place in district, the Horns will represent district 4-2A on penetrations in this game. The Horns led penetration 4 to 3. If the penetrations had been tied also, the Horns would still advance on first downs. The Horns led first downs 14 to 9. At the present time Lockney and Crosbyton have 2-0-1 district records and are one half a game up on Ralls, who has a record of 2-1-0.

Players of the week for the Crosbyton game include offensive lineman Randy

Race, offensive Jimmy Ballejo, secondary player Johnny Torrez, special teams player Ben Schuster, and defensive forcing unit Randy Race. The big hit of the week went to George Basaldua. The Horn of the Week was Jimmy Ballejo.

In times like these... By Mary Jo Fielding

"Money is like muck," said Frances Bacon 350 years ago, but he didn't know the half of it. In California money is like poison, according to the state's tough minded environmental monitors, the Health Services Department. In a list of substances that are hazardous when shredded—including cars, telephone poles, food stamps, and air fresheners, the agency now includes greenbacks. "Let's just say we're being conservative," says Rick Wilcoxon, chief of the state's Toxic Substances Control Division.

No one even knew that shredded money was toxic until officials at the Federal Reserve Bank in San Francisco told them so. The bank, which tears up two tons of soiled, frayed and worn out bills daily, had conducted experiments showing that the lead and copper content in the ink, used to print old currency, was in excess of the state's allowable standards. If shredded money were disposed of in regular garbage dumps, according to Wilcoxon, the lead could leak into the ground and contaminate drinking water supplies.

California is the only state that considers shredded money a potential hazard. Until May of 1984, in fact the offending bills were used as general purpose landfill. "The floor we're standing on, according to California law, is probably toxic," says William Kress, who supervises the shredding process. The Federal Reserve Bank's discovery has increased the cost of disposing of shredded money tenfold. Bank workers now have to pace the toxic residue in sealed containers that are trucked twice a week to hazardous waste sites.

Williams elected delegate to annual AAA meeting

Jerry Williams, Lockney, has been elected as a delegate to the 102nd annual meeting of the American Angus Association, November 17-19 in Louisville, Kentucky, reports Richard Spader, executive vice president of the American Angus Association.

Jerry, a member of the American Angus Association, is one of some 300 Angus breeders who have been elected by fellow members of their state association to serve as a representative at the annual meeting. At this time, the state delegates will participate in the business meeting and vote for a proposed change in the Association by-laws, and elect a new president, vice president and five directors to the American Angus Association board.

The annual meeting is held in conjunction with the Annual Convention and banquet, and the 1986 National Angus Show during the North American International Livestock Exposition.

The American Angus Association has more than 30,000 active members and is the largest beef breed organization in the United States.

Fall herbicide application could assist in control of pasture weeds

Weeds rob bermudagrass pastures of a lot of grazing and hay potential each year, and producers can correct this problem with a fall herbicide application.

"The time to control weeds on bermudagrass pastures is now, not next spring," emphasizes Dr. Dave Weaver, weed specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "Use of a preemergence herbicide to control annual weeds can release the true potential a pasture or hay meadow has for producing top quality forage."

Broadleaved and grassy weeds, such as little barley, cheat, henbit, ground-sels, Carolina geranium and seeding dock germinate and begin their growth during the winter season, Weaver explains. These weeds often go unnoticed until the spring when it's time to make a hay cutting or to put cattle on the pasture.

Applying simazine (Princep 80W or Caliber 90) before these winter weeds begin to germinate will eliminate 80 to 95 percent of the weed problems next spring, says the specialist. Since rain is needed to carry the herbicide into the soil where seed germinate, the herbicide should be applied early.

"If little barley is a potential problem, apply simazine between Nov. 1-20," recommends Weaver. "If spring germinating weeds such as sandburs, ragweed or croton (goatweed) are the only problems in a pasture, then the herbicide can be applied in January or February."

If simazine is applied too late and early germinating weeds show up before bermudagrass begins to green up in the spring, an application of paraquat may be needed, notes the weed specialist. Paraquat, a restricted use herbicide, should be applied while bermudagrass is dormant.

Simazine should not be applied to coarse, sandy soils low in organic matter, including the more alkaline soils in the High Plains, cautions Weaver. Rate of application can range from 1 to 4 pounds per acre. Cattle should not graze treated pasture for 30 days, or for 60 days if the 4-pound rate is used. Also, hay should not be cut for 60 to 90 days when the 4-pound rate is used. However, with early application, these grazing restrictions should not be a problem.

"Simazine is registered only for use on bermudagrass pastures and should not be used on Kleingrass or other species," cautions Weaver.

He points out that atrazine, another preemergence herbicide, has a special "local needs label" for use on bermudagrass to be grazed. Atrazine (Aatrex 80W, Aatrex 4L or Aatrex Nine-O) provides about the same degree of weed control as does simazine and should be applied early in the spring.

Atrazine does provide some post-emergence weed control, Weaver points out. Treated pastures should not be grazed for 60 days, and the herbicide should be used on neutral or acid soils and should not be used in the High Plains, Trans Pecos or Far West Texas areas.

"Atrazine is less expensive per pound than simazine," notes Weaver. "The choice is dependent on whether the grass will be cut for hay or grazed. Also, if ryegrass or legumes have been seeded or if volunteer clover is valued in a particular pasture, then neither herbicide should be used."

U.S. cotton team reports on Soviet Union cotton harvest

The Soviet Union is harvesting an average size cotton crop, according to a U.S. team that recently returned from a two-week tour of the Soviet Union's major cotton growing regions. The 1985 crop is expected to be about 12.5 million bales (480 lb. net), well above the 11.7 million-bale 1984 crop but sharply below the 1980 record of 13.5 million bales.

Leon Mears, team leader and a cotton specialist with the USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service, reported that 15-20 percent of the crop had been harvested by the end of September under generally favorable conditions.

"Weather during the remaining October-November harvest period will be critical, however, in determining final quantity and quality of the crop," Mears said. "The number of machine harvesters is limited and labor for hand picking is scarce in many growing areas."

The other team members were J.S. Stephens, a cotton producer from Litchfield Park, Arizona; Sykes Martin, a cotton producer from Cortland, Alabama; and Robert Koopman, an economist with USDA's Economic Research Service. The visit was made under the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Agreement on Cooperation in Agriculture which was renewed in June.

Stephens said the team focused on current production practices and prospects for output over the next 4-5 years.

"The short growing season in the USSR is a major obstacle to production and we were particularly interested in the newer short-season cotton varieties developed by Soviet geneticists," Stephens said.

According to Martin, the cold winter temperatures in the cotton areas of the USSR help control insect pests, but verticillium wilt is a serious problem in some areas.

"The Soviets maintain a larger percentage of their cotton land in cotton production than U.S. farmers, and this may have increased their wilt problem," Martin said.

Clay Hamilton experiences life on an island

By Clay Hamilton

ISLAND: A small body of land completely surrounded by water. Having grown up in the Panhandle of Texas, that's all I knew about islands and I learned that from books and movies. We got excited at having enough water to float a boat. Enough water to surround a point of land was a little beyond our comprehension.

Considering my ignorance about islands and large bodies of water in general, you can imagine how I felt when I was told that I would live on one for three weeks as part of my six month IFYE Trip to Norway.

As my ferry chugged its way toward Hidle Island, I couldn't keep the theme song of "Gilligan's Island" from running through my head. I didn't expect a small tropical island with sand and bikini clad inhabitants (after all 1/2 of the country is in the Arctic Circle).

When we landed at the dock, I didn't find a hula girl waiting, but I wasn't disappointed. The island is small (.8 sq. miles with five farms and 38 people), but it is surrounded by six other islands called the Stjernoyen (Star Islands). From the dock, you have a breathtaking view of these islands and the endless ocean. On a clear day, you can see the mountains on the mainland and the mouths of some of the fjords for which Norway is famous.

Located on the west coast, these islands are protected from the cold north wind by other islands and part of the mainland. They also benefit from warm air from the Gulf air stream. This keeps the temperature moderate enough to grow a wide variety of crops.

My host family, for example, gets most of their income from a small dairy herd, but they supplement it through the sale of plums, apples, pears and flowers.

The flowers, a white lily with a purple center called Stavenger Lillies, were originally brought from Holland as a gift to a housewife. In September, the stalks are clipped just before the blooms open, they are packed in small bundles and sold throughout Norway through a co-op. The fruit is also harvested in the fall, packed at home and distributed through a co-op.

While the day to day life was just like other farms I lived on, you could never forget that you were on an island. The main difference is that everything centers around the ferries.

The school ferry comes by promptly at 7:30 a.m. The tanker truck from the dairy comes on the 10:00 a.m. ferry and the mail comes on the 3:40 p.m. ferry. Hidle is just one of many stops along the way so the ferry captains don't wait to see if you are coming. They dock, unload and go in about five minutes. Sometimes if they don't see you waiting they don't stop. A day trip to the nearest large town (2 1/2 hours by ferry) can easily be cancelled by being a minute late to the dock. On the other end, missing the 7:30 p.m. ferry home means you have to stay in town. I never missed a ferry during my stay but my host family always seemed to cut it close. We usually boarded at a dead run just before they cast off.

Since the island is small, things are done on a small scale. The road system is made up of two roads (each 1/2 mile long). A walk around the whole island takes 25 minutes and a community meeting could be held in someone's living room.

The local post office was one of the highlights of the island. The postmistress kept the letter drop box by her front door and the office in her spare bedroom. Her office hours were very flexible (any time except during milking or family meals) and you usually got a cup of coffee while you took care of your business.

If the island had been much bigger, keeping the mail straight could have been a problem. Four of the five families there are named Hidle (the 5th family is a daughter and her husband who moved back to the island). This dates back to the old days when it was tradition to take the name of the place you live for your last name. All of the Hiddles can trace their roots on the island 6-7 generations back.

During my three week stay, I especially enjoyed my fishing trips. My host family thought nothing of running out in the boat to catch some fresh fish for supper. To me, it was always a real treat. We fished with a spool of line with five hooks. 30-40 meters of line would be let out and then pulled up by hand. You would usually always come up with at least one spear (small mackerel) and sometimes more. My best cast netted five sir (coalfish). We also fished with nets and put out crab traps. With the traps, we caught 14 crabs in four days. Mixed with a little boiling water, they made quite a feast.

Living on an island wasn't anything like I had imagined it would be, but then I didn't really know what to expect. I found it interesting and a lot of fun, but you have to get use to the isolation. You stay at home a lot so you learn to enjoy your family and your own company. I found my host family to be a close family, well read and very interesting to talk to.

AROUND THE COUNTY

By Richard Crow
COTTONSEED A BARGAIN FOR LIVESTOCK FEED

With a winter season approaching, cattlemen looking for a bargain in livestock feed should consider whole cottonseed. Cottonseed is a high energy feedstuff and is readily available at a low price due to a large cotton crop this year, points out Dr. Larry Boleman, beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

According to Boleman, cottonseed is a good buy when 100 pounds costs less than 35 pounds of cottonseed meal plus 65 pounds of sorghum. Cottonseed is currently selling for about $3.00 per hundredweight, representing almost a $2.00 savings over a like amount of meal-sorghum mix.

Whole cottonseed is packed with energy (90 percent total digestible nutrients) and may be used to make up as much as 20 percent of the total daily ration of beef and dairy animals. However, livestock should also receive adequate levels of minerals, vitamins and roughage since the high energy content of cottonseed can cause scours.

Other factors that cattlemen should consider in feeding cottonseed are these:

1. Since cottonseed is fed whole, it does not require grinding, rolling, pelleting or any other preparation.
2. Cottonseed can be fed alone or combined with other ingredients to produce a variety of mixed feed, cubes or pellets.
3. Cottonseed can combust spontaneously if stored too wet and stacked too high, so it should be bought at a moisture level of 14 percent or lower.

and stored in a flat bulk container. Cottonseed can be stored a year or more without fumigation if kept dry.

4. Cottonseed is best fed from a trough since it will not flow well in self feeders.

5. Because of the high oil content, cottonseed should be fed so as not to exceed these daily limitations--4 pounds for weaned calves, 5 pounds for yearlings, 6 pounds for cattle from 1,000 to 1,300 pounds and 7 pounds for heavier animals.

6. Cattle unaccustomed to eating cottonseed may have to be trained to bit, and sprinkling cottonseed with molasses or grain will entice them.

Boleman advises cattlemen interested in cottonseed for feeding cattle this winter to contact a cotton farmer or gin as soon as possible while supplies are still plentiful and the price is right.

Changes designed to aid farmers

Vance L. Clark, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farmers Home Administration, announced major changes in the agency's guaranteed loan program. The changes are designed to help farmers with severe credit problems arrange their financing for the coming year in a timely fashion.

"We are going to streamline our guaranteed loan procedures," Clark said. "We are going to expedite the entire processing operation so farmers will be spared much of the paperwork, delay and frustration they've had to deal with in the past."

The changes in the guaranteed loan procedures took effect October 7, after publication as an interim rule in the Federal Register the week of September 30. They include:

- Allowing a farmer to establish a "line of credit" with a participating lender, so approved funds may be advanced as needed for loan purposes.
- Accepting the approved lender's completed forms as much as possible, to avoid duplication of paperwork, and to save time and effort.
- Setting time limits for completing the loan guarantee application process.

—Allowing farmers to use guaranteed loans to refinance direct Farmers Home Administration loans.

—Giving lenders quicker settlement on their loss claims.

—Modifying requirements for approved lender status.

"Our first priority is to help our farmers," Clark said. "We can do that by offering them an efficient, workable guaranteed loan program. To do that, we must begin immediately to work with our field staff, and the commercial and cooperative lenders participating in the program. We don't have time to wait two years or more, while the usual rule-making process takes its course. So we are publishing these changes as an interim rule, which allows us to move ahead."

Written comments should be sent within 30 days of publication to: Office of the Chief, Directives Management Branch, Farmers Home Administration, USDA, Room 6348, South Agriculture Building, 14th & Independence Ave., S.W., Washington, D.C. 20250.

One thing we learn from television these days is that the country is full of people who can't sing.

The trouble with being an optimist is that people think you don't know what's going on.

The trouble with people these days is that they want to get to the promised land without going through the wilderness.

True patriotism is your conviction that this country is superior to all others because you were born in it! True consecration is to make that conviction a reality.

There are two kinds of people in every community...those that agree with you and the narrow-minded bigots.

"This ad has already saved you money." If you paid for this newspaper, we have something in common. We paid for it too. In fact, every advertiser you see in these pages paid handsomely for the privilege of being here. And what we paid went toward the cost of producing the newspaper. How much cheaper? Well, if you took all the advertising away, the average newspaper would cost you about five times as much. You offer us about half as much.
