Board sets election date of April 5

In the regular monthly meeting of the Lockney Independent School District board meeting, board members set Saturday, April 5 as the date for election of three board members.

Signups for the election will begin now and will continue through March 5 in the superintendent's office. Places up for election on the board are those presently held by Eddie Joe Foster, Bill Race, and Clar Schacht.

Also pertaining to the election, G.B. Johnston was appointed as the election judge and Jackie Lou Holt will serve as the absentee voting clerk.

In other action, the board held an executive session to discuss superintendent W.H. Hallmark and the extension of his contract with the Lockney schools. The board approved the extension of Hallmark's contract through 1989.

Superintendent Hallmark discussed the addition of the satellite transmittal for academic courses at Lockney. The board members made a trip to Ralls last week to see how the system works there and the board was in agreement that the addition of this system would be an asset to Lockney students. Hallmark will be getting information for the next meeting of the board and the board will approve or disapprove the system at the February meeting.

By utilizing the satellite system Lockney will be able to offer a foreign language and possibly more subjects that are not now offered. Details on this system will be printed at a later date, should the board approve it.

The board also approved the purchase of a 66-passenger bus for the 1986-87 school year, at a cost of approximately $30,000. The new bus should be delivered by the time the school year starts.

The board also approved the discipline management plan, which is required by the state. This plan sets forth the guidelines that the school must use for the various discipline measures for students.

In other action the board approved the payments of bills and investments, the minutes of the previous meeting, and tax report #5.

RANDY RACE

In times like these... By Mary Jo Fielding

In the aftermath of the Geneva summit meeting, the good will of Europe has become a coveted prize in super powers diplomacy. Both sides are rapidly stepping up campaigns to win favor across the continent. Barely four weeks after the meeting of Ronald Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev, Secretary of State George Shultz set out for Eastern Europe to listen, explain and explore post summit prospects for greater U.S. influence.

Soviet diplomats, long more diligent in Western Europe than Americans in the East, are increasing their own activities. Early in 1986, Gorbachev plans another foray into the West, his second in a year. A struggle between Washington and Moscow for the hearts and minds of Europe is hardly new. With varying risk, it has continued since the end of World War II. More recently, competition has become less threatening but more intense politically. Now there are more calculated campaigns by the U.S. in the East and greater sophistication by the Soviet Union, personified in Gorbachev, in the West. Shultz's trip to Romania, Hungaria and Yugoslavia was planned before the summit. The new mood was reflected, however, in remarks made before he plunged into Eastern Europe. He described the East-West decision of Europe as "artificial, unnatural, and illegitimate." He sensed an "unmistakable yearning" of Eastern Europeans for human sights and added: "Someday the Soviet Union, under wise leadership may learn that its own security needs can be met without suppressing the freedom of its neighbors."

American tactics related to the summit meeting itself were more subtle. U.S. diplomats briefed Eastern Europeans in advance. Afterward, senior arms control experts returned to give the American version of the results. It was the first such U.S. undertaking related to a major East West meeting and apparently a successful one.

Annual 4-H chemical dinner set for Thursday, January 30

The annual 4-H chemical dinner and auction has been set for January 30 at the Lockney Community Center.

As in years past there will be a free chicken and fish dinner for all who attend. The county agent's office has requested that those who plan to attend the dinner and auction call 983-2806 and give the number of those who will be attending. This will give them some idea of how much food to request from the catering firm.

This auction is the main fundraising project for the county 4-H organization and the money raised will go toward county projects and workshops. This money also helps with the students who attend the State 4-H Roundup, the National Congress, and workshops and leadership camps held in various locations around the state.

As last year Tommy Assiter will be conducting the auction. Items to be sold include the chemicals Atrazine, 2-4D, Banvel, Roundup, Dual, Prowl, Treflan, and Tordon. Many more chemicals are expected. Also to be auctioned off are salt and mineral blocks, processed cattle feed, and various cotton seed brands.

COUNTY 4-Hers display just two of the chemicals to be auctioned off January 30.

Water use rules to be considered by board

New rules governing the permitting of water wells, waste of water, water well drilling, and the closing of abandoned or unused irrigation wells are to be considered by the Board of Directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1. Consideration of amending some of the District's existing rules is required in order for the District to comply with new laws passed by the 69th Texas Legislature regarding underground water conservation districts.

The most notable change required in the District's rules will require the permitting of wells designed to produce and which will produce more than 25,000 gallons of water per day. Previously, state laws and the District's rules required permitting only those wells which were designed to produce in excess of 100,000 gallons per day.

Several classifications of wells will, however, be exempted from the permitting process. For instance, domestic wells which supply water for ten or fewer households, water wells for the drilling of oil and gas wells, and jet wells for domestic needs are exempted under the provisions of the new law. The District's Board of Directors is given an option in the case of wells used to provide water for livestock and poultry connected with farming, ranching or dairy operation. Under the law, individual boards may consider the applicability of exempting livestock wells within their jurisdiction.

Provisions for the automatic permitting of wells which produce from 25,000 (17.4 gallons per minute) to 100,000 gallons of water per day (69.5 gallons per minute) that existed at the time the law was passed are outlined in the legislation. The permitting of these wells is automatic upon application for and completion of a water well permit. This registration process is necessary so that the District may recognize all existing well sites and provide protection for these existing sites as new permits are requested.

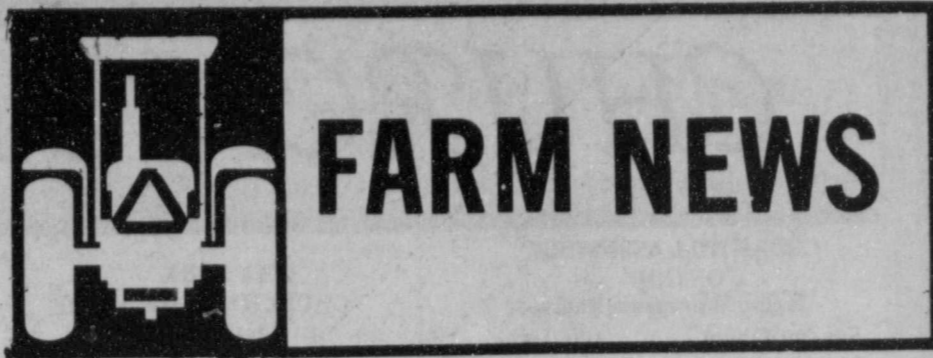

Other changes in the District's rules and regulations are also required under the new law. For instance, the inclusion of "negligence" in the definition of what constitutes waste of water will be needed. Previously the District's rules stated that persons who "willfully" caused the waste of water where in violation of the state law and the District's rules. With this change, persons who "willfully or negligently" allow the waste of water will be in violation.

Additionally, provisions for the District to recover expenses incurred in covering open holes is modified. Prior to this legislation, the recovery of District expenses when the District is required to cover an open hole after failure of the landowner to do so, was limited to $100 in the form of a lien on the land. Now the recoverable fees for this action are a lien on the land for "reasonable expenses" incurred by the District.

The Water District's Board of Directors may also amend its rules to reference the Texas Water Well Driller's Act regarding the drilling and completion of water wells. The primary emphasis of this act requires a surface cement seal on all wells. This seal, according to the Water Well Driller's Board, requires that cement be placed in the annular space between the borehole and the casing to a depth of ten feet below land surface, and requires that a concrete slab or block be placed around the well at land surface extending at least two feet in all directions with a minimum thickness of four inches sloped to drain away from the well. Basically these provisions serve to protect underground water from pollution by surface runoff, contamination from rodents burrowing between the casing and bore hole, or intrusion of brine from other water-bearing strata.

There are other minor administrative changes that the Board may consider in amending the District's rules in order to comply with the new laws. Discussion regarding these changes will be held by the District's Board of Directors at their regularly scheduled meeting on Thursday, January 23, 1986.

FARM BRIEFS

The West Texas Vegetable Conference will be held in Hereford on January 28, starting at 8 a.m., the Texas Agriculture Extension Service has announced.

The meeting, put together by the High Plains Vegetable Growers and Shippers Council, will focus on Profitable Alternatives for vegetable growers. Speakers will focus on new vegetables for the area, potato bruise prevention in harvester operation, new spacing and irrigation methods for onions, hot pepper varieties and irrigations of peppers, 1986 market outlook, soil and tissue testing, and new onion varieties. A registration fee of $6.00 is required to cover the cost of a barbecue during the evening. The meeting will be held at the Hereford Community Center.

The USDA sees no need to impose quotas on meat imports during 1986, according to an announcement from that Department.

The meat import act of 1979 requires the President to set import quotas when meat imports exceed the triggering level. USDA says meat imports are currently running well below the triggering level, and prospects are for that situation to remain in 1986.

USDA also announced that Zaire and the Philippines will be offered wheat under the Department's Export Enhancement Program. U.S. exporters will be given the opportunity to sell 150,000 metric tons of wheat to the Philippines and 40,000 metric tons to Zaire, including a CCC bonus in the form of wheat to be provided exporters from CCC stock. The wheat will be sold at world price levels.

The state of Oklahoma is facing a cattle quarantine, if proposals by the USDA are put in effect. The Department has announced it is proposing to strengthen its regulations for moving cattle from states infected with brucellosis, and in the same action is proposing to quarantine Oklahoma for failure to take adequate steps to rid the state of the disease.

"Most cattle owners take the necessary action to rid their herds of brucellosis," said the department's Bert Hawkins, "but some, particularly a group in southeastern Oklahoma, have not. The proposal would quarantine the entire state for failure to establish and Gessel, Director, Regulatory Coordination Staff, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, USDA, Room 728-FB, 6505 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, Maryland 20782. additional grain sorghum farmers out of business and off their farms."

The order is open for public comment until January 21, 1986. Harp believes most grain sorghum producers are not aware that they face this additional loss of income. He is urging them to register their views with their congressman and USDA immediately. The appropriate USDA address is:

Those interested in commenting on the proposals may do so until March 1 by submitting comments to Thomas O.

The 1985 Yearbook of Agriculture is now ready for release. The theme this year is "U.S. Agriculture in a Global Economy." The yearbook examines relations between domestic farm production policies and international trade. The book is now in its 84 year of production, being launched by USDA back in 1894. It sells for $10 per copy from the Superintendent of Documents in Washington, but a limited number are available free from members of Congress. So write Beau Boulter or one of your Senators if you want one of the free copies. They may be able to scrounge a copy.

USDA sets loan rate

Acting Secretary of Agriculture Orville Bentley today announced a loan rate of 85.40 cents per pound and a target price of 102.48 cents per pound for the 1986 crop of extra long staple (ELS) cotton.

As required by the recently enacted Food Security Act of 1985, the ELS cotton loan rate is equal to 85 percent of the simple average price received by producers of ELS cotton during 3 years of the 5-year period ending July 31, 1985, excluding the year in which the average price was the highest and the year in which the average price was the lowest.

The ELS cotton target price is required by law to be 120 percent of the ELS loan rate.

Other provisions of the 1986 ELS cotton program will be announced later.

COTTON TALKS

Cotton producers and industry officials alike are finding the 1985 farm act is not a simple beans and cornbread meal that can be ingested and digested in a single sitting.

It is instead a complex document, and understandably so, considering that it attempts to perform the long-thought-impossible feat of maintaining producer income protection and at the same time making U.S. farm products available in world markets at competitive prices.

And development of its provisions was made no easier by the fact that the latter feature constitutes a total abandonment of a principle inherent in farm programs since their inception. Farm programs always have sought to stabilize world prices.

As described by the redoubtable "Cotton Outlook" of Liverpool, the intention of the 1985 act "now is overtly to achieve the opposite: to offer greater competition as it becomes apparent that other growers are quoted at a discount."

The Outlook further opines that "The weight of responsibility resting upon those who must administer such a program will be immense."

Language of the bill includes base loans, deficiency payments, base acreages, payment yields and acreage reduction terminology, none of which is new. But understanding the new bill's "market-enhancement" provisions and their effect on producer decisions requires gaining familiarity with such new phrases as "loan redemption rate," "loan payment," "first handler certificate," and "established world price."

The base loan in 1986 will be 55 cents, grade 41 staple 34. But since that price is well above the world price, the Secretary will fix a lower "loan redemption rate" approximating a world price established by a yet-to-be developed formula.

Producers using the loan will get the 55-cent base (plus or minus quality premiums or discounts). They can then redeem the cotton at the lower redemption rate and sell loan equities at so much above the redemption rate instead of the base loan, as now. Their gain will be the difference between the base loan and the redemption rate, plus whatever their equities bring. Neither will be affected by the $50,000 payment limit.

In an apparent effort to prevent all cotton from going through the loan under these provisions, another option is offered. Producers selling directly into the market can receive an unlimited payment, over and above any deficiency payment, equal to the difference between the base loan and the loan redemption rate. That's what's being called the "loan payment."

"First handler certificates" will come into play when the world price drops below the existing loan repayment rate and U.S. cotton is no longer competitive. When that happens the Secretary is to issue certificates, valued at the difference between the world price and the loan redemption rate, to first handlers, again enabling them to sell at competitive prices.

In setting the loan redemption rate the Secretary has two options, one with a downside limit of 44 cents per pound in 1986 and the other with no floor except the world price.

Protest filed by NGS Producers

National Grain Sorghum Producers Association has filed a protest with U.S. Department of Agriculture over their announced plans to lower the moisture level of sorghum going into the government loan program.

According to a CCC order recorded in the Federal Register on November 21, 1985, the maximum moisture level of grain sorghum accepted in the loan will be reduced from 14% to 13%. The national sorghum association has requested that this order be rescinded, according to its Executive Director, Elbert Harp.

"There is no logical reason for this action being taken against grain sorghum," Harp said. "It has been proven that grain sorghum can be stored for years without loss of quality when placed in storage and maintained at a maximum moisture level of 14% as required under the present regulations. To further dry the grain will cost farmers two percent of the grain for each one percent of moisture removed, therefore, this action will lower farmers' incomes by two percent on grain placed in the government loan program. This change, if enacted, will force many

Your Co-op Gin. A Good Place to Do Business.

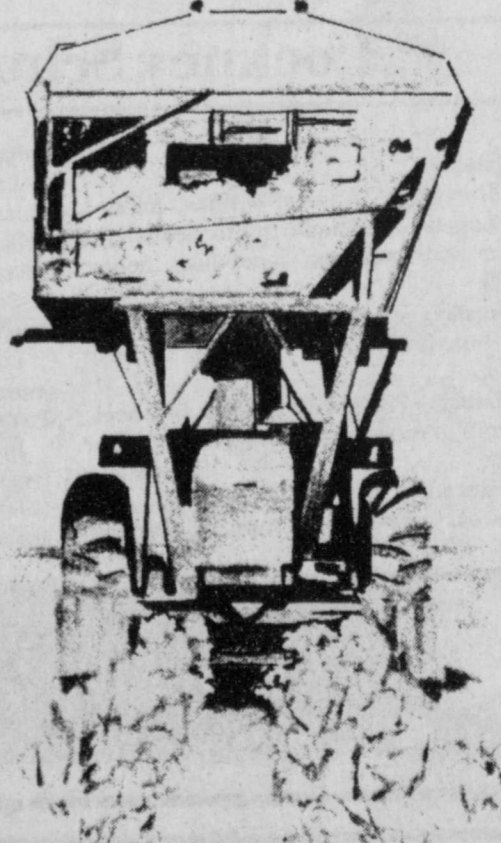

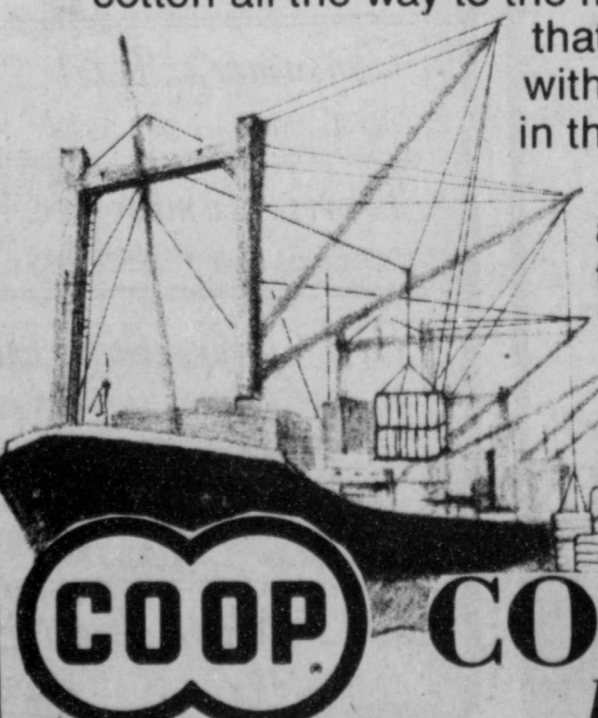

It makes sense to stay involved with your cotton after it leaves the farm. That's why taking your cotton to your co-op gin is a good idea—for a couple of reasons:

First, when you take your cotton to a co-op gin, that gin becomes a part of your business. You have a voice in how it's run and you share in the profits. The more cotton you bring, the more it pays.

But, even more importantly, when you bring your cotton to your co-op gin you become part of a system that takes your cotton all the way to the market. A system that joins your local co-op gin with other co-op gins to give you a voice in the market. Being a part of that system is important to you now and it's even more important to the future of cotton farming.

Take your cotton to your co-op gin. After all, it's just good business to do business with yourself.

GEORGE SCHUSTER has served as the pastor of the Main Street Church of Christ in Lockney for the past year. He received the bulk of his education at Ahlens Christian University and holds both bachelors and masters degrees in religious education.

He and wife Nell came to Lockney from Groom and prior to that they were in Rusk for four years. They have two children, Christ, a student at Ahlens Christian University and Ben who attends Lockney High School.

I Believe In The Church

How many good organizations can you name? And how many can you support with time, energy and gifts? Lives are enriched and society strengthened by the positive programs of Scouting, P.T.A., Kiwanis, American Cancer Society, Little League. . .

But sometimes good becomes the enemy of best. What is the best organization of all? It's the church.

In Matthew 16 Jesus made sure the disciples knew his true identity as the Christ. Then He told them about His church. "Upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." (v. 18)

No other organization today can lay claim to an equal charter or founding statement. These are the very words of Christ himself in the creation of the church.

Here are three truths about the church. In the first place, you can believe in the church because it is

THE CHURCH PROMISED.

Jesus said, "I will build my church." Look around you for proof that He kept His promise. If you like prophesy, be assured this is the most obviously fulfilled prophesy of Jesus.

Notice the future tense of the verb, "will build." It's a common verb used of a carpenter or a brick layer who builds. But Jesus wasn't speaking of a literal building of mud and mortar, boards and bricks. In the spiritual sense He meant an organization of saved individuals gathered throughout all the ages and who will be saved for eternity.

Years later Peter wrote to Christians scattered by persecution, reminding them to be living stones. "Like living stones be yourselves built into a spiritual house." (I Peter 2:5)

But notice also the possessive pronoun. You can believe in the church because it is

THE CHURCH POSSESSED.

"I will build my church!" The speaker is Jesus. The church is His. It is a church possessed by Jesus Christ.

Possession gives Jesus authority in His organization. He is the head, the silent shepherd of every congregation. It's His church and the people in it are His people. "Now you are the body of Christ, and individually members of it." (I Corinthians 13:27)

This is a double edged sword. We claim Jesus, and He claims us. Indeed, the first priority of possession is with Jesus. If we are saved by His blood and called by His name, then we belong to Him. We are thus His people who comprise the church.

A promise, a possession--and then a final truth. You can believe in the church because it is

THE CHURCH PRESERVED.

How? Through the same power of Him who assured us: "I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Other translations read, "and the gates of Hades will not overcome it." The gates of hell is another way of describing the powers of death. Nothing, not even hell, is going to prevail against the church.

The church always outlives its critics. The church continues. Not even Madeline Murray O'Harra can damage it. She will die and Jesus will live. His church will continue.

The French atheist and philosopher Voltaire once predicted that within one hundred years the church would be dead and its Bible would disappear except in museums. Its houses of worship would be closed forever.

But what happened? A hundred years later it was Voltaire who was dead. And Voltaire's house was turned into a publishing house for Bibles!

The church lives on and always will because Christ Jesus has conquered death and lives forever.

The church is still moving and ministering to the masses. Why? Because Jesus said it would prevail. It's going to be preserved because Jesus said so. Buildings, baptisms and budgets continue to add up.

But we can never measure things of the spirit with statistics. Measure it by the Word of God. Jesus Christ says: "Upon this rock I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." I believe it. You can believe it!
