Lockney stock show plans set for Saturday

Saturday, February 8 will see lots of action on the Floyd County Fairgrounds. The Lockney Stock Show will be in progress with both 4-H and FFA students showing their pigs, sheep and steers.

The show barns will be open beginning at 4:00 p.m. on Friday, February 7. Students may begin bringing in their animals at that time.

The weighing in of sheep and hogs will begin at 5:00 p.m. on Friday night and the steers will be weighed in at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday morning.

Judges for the show this year will be Rusty Rogers, a former ag teacher from Tulia. He will begin judging of the barrow classes at 10:00 a.m. Saturday morning. Following the barrow showing Paul Smith, ag teacher from Friona, will judge the sheep and steer shows.

There is no entry fee for the Lockney show and winners will be receiving various awards throughout the day. These awards include belt buckles for the grand and reserve champion in each animal class. Buckles will also be awarded to the showmanship winners in each class. In addition the grand champion winners will receive $10 cash. Ribbons will be presented for each place in each class and the breed and reserve breed champions will receive rosettes. Cash awards will also be presented to the top five winners in each class.

Serving as the show superintendents in the Lockney show are Clar Schacht, lambs; Herb Dudley, hogs; and David Foster, steers.

This year the Lockney FFA chapter will have a concession stand at the show. They will be selling soft drinks, homemade chili, hot dogs and coffee.

4-H AUCTION—Tim and Tom Assiter donated their services as auctioneers to the Floyd County 4-H organization last Thursday night and conducted the annual 4-H auction following a free fish and chicken dinner. The auction raised over $3700.00 for the county club.

Annual auction raises over $3700 for club

The annual 4-H chemical dinner and auction held last Thursday at the Lockney Community Center raised $3788.50 for the Floyd County 4-H organization.

This figure is down about $3200.00 from what was raised in last year's auction, however the turnout was good and local farmers and businessmen have provided substantial financial aid for the county program.

The money raised from the auction will go toward county workshops, State leadership conference trips and the like in which county 4-H'ers are involved. In a comment at the auction agent Richie Crow said "thanks to the auction and the participation of farmers in the area the 4-H organization is able to help pay the expenses of students going to the camps, conferences, and workshops. When I came here the money came from strong supporters of the program. Now with the auction the financial burden does not rest entirely with the parents or just a few of those who support 4-H."

Those present bid on 57 gallons of liquid chemicals from various companies, several kinds of dry chemical, cattle worming medicine, two-250 pound mineral blocks, 1000 pounds of processed cattle feed and two kinds of cotton seed.

The farmers, 4-H members and their families, as well as the special guests of the night were treated to a free fish and chicken dinner. Also three lucky people were awarded door prizes. They included Weldon Graves winner of a portable air compressor, Allen Akers, a set of storage containers, and Susan Patridge, a set of sockets.

Special guests of the evening included Ted Roberts of Riverside chemical who helps in putting the auction together each year, Stan Grassel of Elanco, Ricky Kellison of Kellison Spraying, Johnny Dorman of Lockney Coop, Allen Akers, ag teacher from Floydada. Clay Bloodworth, the new County Agent, was introduced to the gathering. Special thanks were extended to Tim and Tom Assiter for donating their services and conducting the auction for the Floyd County 4-H.

County Fair changed to August 21, 22, 23

By Pam Armstrong

The officers and directors of the Floyd and Surrounding Counties Fair met recently and voted to change the date of the annual fair to August 21, 22 and 23.

Part of the reason for the change in the fair was the carnival. If the date had not been changed it was highly probably that there would not have been a carnival available for the fair this year. Another reason discussed was that by changing the date the fair would be held at a time that would not interfere with school activities and would permit the fair board to do more things that are of interest to the community.

A carnival has been booked for the fair in August. Jest Amusements of Stanton, owned by Virginia Wright, was recommended by Ed Burlingame, the owner of the Pride of Texas Carnival. Jest will be bringing six big rides and six rides for small children, and will also have about ten concessions.

Advance tickets for the carnival will be on sale soon. This year's tickets will be sold on a per ride basis and will be 2/$1.00. After Wednesday, August 20 the tickets will be priced at $1.00 per ride. Please support the fair by purchasing advance tickets. These advance ticket sales are what enable the fair board to operate and they also allow the fair board not to charge gate admission for the fair.

By moving the fair dates to August the fair board is hoping to be able to offer more things to do during the fair. Input on activities for the 1986 event would be appreciated by the board at their next board meeting. The meeting will be held at 7:00 p.m. at the homemaking building at Lockney High School on February 11. The public is invited to attend this meeting and any interest shown by the public is appreciated.

Recently elected officers of the fair board are president, Jim Bob Martin; vice president, Sandra Cummings; secretary, Sheryl Bybee; and treasurer, Eddie Teeter.

Ownership change announced

Joe Kim King, President and Chief Executive Officer of The First National Bank in Lockney has announced the recent change of ownership of the bank. The Ford Bank Group acquired control of FNB Lockney on January 27, 1986.

In making his statement, Mr. King expressed his enthusiasm regarding the new ownership. Mr. King stated, "I am very excited about the future of the bank; in consideration of the support, strength and guidance of the Ford Bank Group, the future is indeed bright. Their proven experience in banking and the respect they have earned in the banking industry will prove to be an invaluable asset to both the bank and the community."

Mr. King alluded to the fact there will be no changes in management and staff personnel. As in the past, the bank will continue to be dedicated to improving its service to both the community and its customers.

Lockney district changed

On Thursday, January 30 the University Interscholastic League announced changes for the 1986-87 school year and Lockney was among the schools which saw changes in their district lineup.

Lockney will now play in District 3, 2A and the opposing schools have all changed. Lockney will now face Olton, Hale Center, Hart, Springlake-Earth and Abernathy. Coach Bob Purser said of the change, "It will make it harder for us to win a district championship. However, we have faced Abernathy in pre-district play the last four years and they have only beaten us one time. The other schools are just about the same size as we are and play should be fairly even."

Spike Dykes to address Chamber banquet

Spike Dykes, defensive coordinator for the Texas Tech Red Raiders will present the keynote address at the annual Lockney Chamber of Commerce banquet on March 7.

Dykes came to Texas Tech University in 1983 from Midland Lee High School. In his first season at Tech he coached a group of defensive athletes that led the nation in pass defense in 1984 and finished 20th in the nation and third in the Southwest Conference.

Dykes personally oversees the linebackers and coached Dwayne Jiles to All-Southwest Conference honors and helped sophomore middle linebacker Brad Hastings to a school record 141 stops.

Dykes is a veteran of 26 years in coaching high school and college ball. A former All-State center from Ballinger and a Steven F. Austin All-Conference lineman he began his coaching year in 1959 in Eastland. After one year he returned to ballinger for two seasons as an assistant. He served as an assistant at San Angelo Central, working under Emory Bellard in 1963.

His first head coaching opportunity came in 1964 at Coahoma and he left after compiling a record of 24 wins and 2 losses during a two year period. After leaving there he compiled a 58-28-1 record in his first eight years as a head coach, having coached at Belton in 1966, Big Spring from 1967 to 69, and Alice from 1970 to 71.

He joined the college coaching ranks with Darrell Royal at Texas after the 1971 season. He served as the freshman coach the first year then coached the offensive line from 1972 to 74, special teams in 1975 and then went to coaching the defensive line in 1976.

Dykes moved to New Mexico in 1977 with Bill Mondt coaching the defensive line before becoming defensive coordinator in 1978. In 1979 he coached the offensive line in Mississippi State for Emory Bellard before going to Midland Lee in 1980.

In his four years at Midland, Dykes was 34-11-1 which upped his high school head coaching record to 93-39-1. His Rebels defeated Odessa Permian twice in 1983, the first time any team has ever beaten Permian twice in the same season. Midland Lee wound up the season with a 13-3 record after losing 25 to 21 to Converse Judson in the 1983 Class 5A state championship game.

Dykes has established himself as one of the sharpest defensive minds in the Southwest Conference and his address should be very interesting to those who attend the annual Chamber banquet.

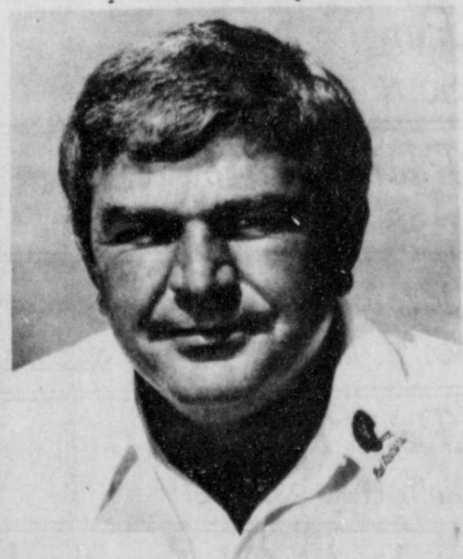

NOMINATIONS

Wednesday, February 26 has been set as the deadline for nominations for the Man, Woman, and Family of the Year. Clubs, churches, service organizations, and citizens of the Lockney area are asked to send their nominations to Jack Covington at Box 638, Lockney, Texas 79241 or to take them to Mayor J.D. Copeland's office.

The nominations may be for a person or family that has made a significant contribution to the community in 1985 or it may be a nomination for continual service to the Lockney community.

TICKETS

Tickets for this years banquet are on sale now from any Chamber of Commerce officer and are priced at $7.50 each. This years banquet should prove to be as interesting as those in years past as a Lockney area man, woman, and family will receive the prestigious honor of being recognized for their service to the community.

Kellison hosts study club

Il Penseroso Study Club met Thursday night, January 30 in the home of Kathy Kellison. Serving as co-hostesses were Lynda Gant and Kay Martin. They served refreshment of sausage balls, chips and vegetables and dips and pineapple cake. Before the business meeting everyone enjoyed a nice time of fellowship and visiting.

To open the business meeting, Judy Jackson led the group in prayer. Sandra Cummings conducted the business meeting in the absence of president Lisa Mosley. Roll call was answered by asking everyone if they had made and broken any New Year's resolutions.

The bridge tournament will be Wednesday, February 12 in the Community Center. A buffet lunch will be served and door prizes will be given away. The tournament committee will meet on Tuesday, February 11, to set up tables and take care of any other preparations that need to be done.

The Arts and Crafts Fair is scheduled for March 15 in the Lockney Elementary Cafeteria. Anyone interested in having a booth should contact Julie Hancock at Southwestern Public Service or Ginger Mathis. Booths are priced at $25.00 a piece.

If they can guarantee 25 people to give, there will be a blood drive held in connection with the Arts and Crafts Fair. Anyone who would give is asked to contact Ginger Mathis.

Everyone was reminded to be thinking about their selection for Man, Woman and Family of the Year.

The fair board has asked for the club members to give their opinion about having the fair in August, in order to secure a carnival, instead of it being in September. Several comments were made.

Members in attendance were: Treena Aston, Marilyn Biggs, Charlanne Burson, Sandra Cummings, Katy Durham, Cindy Ford, Kelly Fortenberry, Lynda Gant, Julie Hancock, Judy Jackson, Jessie Johnson, Kathy Kellison, Kim Lambert, Kay Martin, Ginger Mathis, Rhonda McCain, Sherry McDonald, Patti Purser, Karen Quebe, Reeda Cay Smith, Robin Stoerner, Jamie Kemp and Melanie Beachy.

In times like these... By Mary Jo Fielding

A year and a half ago 20,000 Soviet troops stormed into the Panjshir Valley in northeastern Afghanistan. They quickly cleared out the insurgent stronghold, scattering the forces of Ahmed Shah Massoud, one of Afghanistan's most powerful and charismatic guerrilla leaders. Massoud dropped out of sight and pro-Soviet Afghan troops set up a string of bases in the 70-mile long valley. Today, six years after Moscow's invasion of Afghanistan, the Soviets and their local proteges have the insurgents on the run in many parts of the country.

Massoud's fighting men and 40,000 civilians left the valley in 1984 one step ahead of the Soviet attackers. By late spring the Afghan Army had set up its bases in the depopulated valley and the government of Babrak Karmal was confident of its hold. However, a month later Massoud's 10,000 guerillas began to filter back knocking off government outposts one by one. In June of this year, by their account, they overran the major Army base at Pougrouh, capturing 600 defenders. Conscripts were set free, while captured officers were confined in a prison camp.

Then the Soviets retook Pougrouh last September. Nonetheless Massoud maintained that his reoccupation of the Panjshir was a notable achievement nonetheless. "Now we are better organized than ever before," he said. "Taking Pougrouh was a big victory, especially after the Soviet claims that they had thrown us out forever."

Massoud, a man of about 30, is the well educated French speaking son of a wealthy landowning family in the Panjshir. He is a clever tactical, a good organizer and a fanatical chess player. He says that most of the money for his guerrilla army comes from a tax he has imposed on the local trade in lapis lazuli, a semiprecious stone found in the Panjshir.

For the moment, Massoud can take some satisfaction from the fact that he remains Moscow's No. 1 enemy in the battered but still defiant ranks of the mujahedin.

Roundup at LHS

Another busy week around the fort has passed us by and here's some of those events that had (or will have) a lot of importance.

The one-act play tryout last Thursday night produced a very large cast and crew to perform As You Like It for UIL District contest on March 27 at Petersburg. Miss Dayna Owen, freshman English teacher is the director. Chad Frizzell will serve as assistant director and Johnny Silva, technical director. The cast includes: Matt Mitchell, Jolie Diepenhorst, Boyd Jackson, Joel Mitchell, Michael Villa, Matt Williams, Julie Davis, Julia Segovia, Rusty Teeter, Lisa Terrell, Gwen Lane.

The Student Council are selling Valentine favors this week to the students and are sponsoring a Twirp Dance next Saturday.

The 2nd and 4th-period English classes will be operating the concession stand tomorrow night at the Paducah ballgame. They will be selling such things as stuffed potatoes, nachos, ice cream, brownies, cookies, tea, cokes and coffee. The proceeds will go toward paying the expenses of their trip to Odessa to see the play, A Midsummer Night's Dream. So come one, come all, for a great feast and a great cause!

To President Reagan, it promises nothing less than to "disinvent" doomsday weapons. However, to U.S. friends in Europe, Star Wars remains a mixed blessing.

While most concede that his ambitious Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) might someday serve as a celestial shield against Soviet nuclear attack, concern is mounting over present-day strategic military implications.

That worry repeatedly cropped up at a recent informal gathering of some of the leading lights in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The theme of the West German delegation, led by Chancellor Helmut Kohl and Defense Minister Manfred Wornier, was that SDI had plunged defense policies into turmoil. It seemed to be taken for granted that Star Wars might render nuclear arms obsolete at some point in the future. While that might seem good news, the West Germans are not so sure. They fear that elimination of those weapons would point to the substantial advantage in conventional forces held by the Soviet Union and Warsaw Pact members.

NATO's worries have been partly fueled by American mishandling of alliance politics. At home, SDI was sold as a defense-of-America plan, with the heaviest emphasis placed on saving U.S. lives. That won support in the U.S., but it backfired abroad. The concern, in West Germany especially is that American worries only about its own defense and would abandon its friends once tinkering in a scientist's laboratory became the reality of Star Wars weaponry silently orbiting in the heavens.

Lately Washington has been at pains to reassure the allies that they will always be protected, both by deployment of conventional U.S. forces in Europe, and eventually through Star Wars. In the view of U.S. NATO Ambassador David Abshire the allies must accept the inevitability of Star Wars and make it work to their advantage. He says, "We've got to be resourceful enough to look at every way that SDI can help us enhance deterrence in Europe."

San Felipe, Texas, February 1 — General Sam Houston concluded a three-week inspection tour of Texas army outposts today with a sweeping indictment of the provisional council and the special agents and commanders it has appointed without his knowledge.

The effect of the council's action has been virtually to neutralize Houston as commander-in-chief of the Texas army.

The long-run effect, Houston says, will be to increase the war's cost dramatically and to protract its length by years.

In a report to Governor Henry Smith after returning from Goliad, Refugio and other frontier points, Houston charges that the council acted illegally in naming Colonel James W. Fannin Jr. a special agent with military powers that supercede his.

He refers to events of January 4 when a few members of the council, without informing Governor Smith or Houston and acting in the name of a non-existent

Private exporters report sales activity

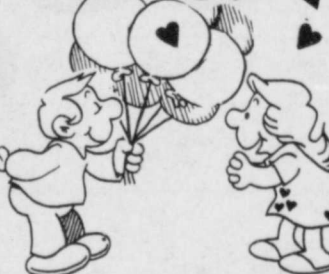

Private exporters recently reported to the U.S. Department of Agriculture export sales of 200,000 metric tons of soybeans for delivery to the USSR during the 1985-86 marketing year and under the third year of the Long Term Grain Supply Agreement.

The marketing year for soybeans began September 1.

Sales of wheat and corn to the USSR for delivery during the third year of the agreement (which began October 1, 1985 and ends September 30, 1986) now total 5,874,000 tons, of which wheat is 152,600 tons and corn is 5,721,400 tons. In addition, soybeans total 200,000 tons.

Houston Attacks Council

Military Committee, commissioned Fannin special agent with a rank equivalent to commander but independent of the commander-in-chief.

Also they provided him with funds and authority to employ as many agents as he needs to conduct an invasion of Matamoros, a city at the mouth of the Rio Grande.

At the same time, they gave similar but somewhat less authority to two other men, Colonel Francis W. Johnson and Dr. James Grant, to wage their own attack on Matamoros.

Houston also accuses Fannin of plotting to wage a "piratical or predatory war" by promising "first spoils taken from the enemy" to recruits who join his expedition against Matamoros.

"The people of Texas have declared to the world that the war in which they are now engaged is a war of princede the commander-in-chief . . ." he notes. And: "The regular army of Texas shall consist of one major-general who shall be commander-in-chief of all the forces . . ."

In talking with the troops in Goliad and Refugio, Houston was able to dissuade many of them from taking part in a Matamoros expedition.

After issuing his report, Houston left on furlough for East Texas to treat with the Cherokee Indians. He returns March 1.

Weed control in wheat can pay dividends

Herbicides are often the first production costs to come under close scrutiny when wheat farmers examine ways to cut production expenses. Many farmers wonder if the cost of weed control eventually pays dividends.

Agronomists from Texas to the Dakotas generally agree that higher yields and a higher return on investment are possible with effective broadleaf weed control in wheat.

Even light or moderate weed infestations can adversely affect yields. "Just one tansy mustard per square foot reduces yields up to 10 percent," reports Allen Wiese, Texas A&M weed scientist.

Kansas State University extension agronomist, Merrel Mikesell, remarks, "I would certainly try to control winter annual broadleaves in wheat because high weed populations can cut wheat yields in half."

Mikesell explains that annual broadleaf weeds, like tansy mustard, compete with wheat during the crop's critical growing stage and in some instances reduce yields more than summer annuals. However, if not controlled summer annuals will produce seeds and will become a problem for farmers if a field is rotated to a row crop.

The KSU agronomist says farmers have several options for controlling yield-threatening broadleaf weeds. "Rotating to milo or another row crop with proper herbicide use will help minimize weed problems. And of course, herbicides control weeds in growing wheat."

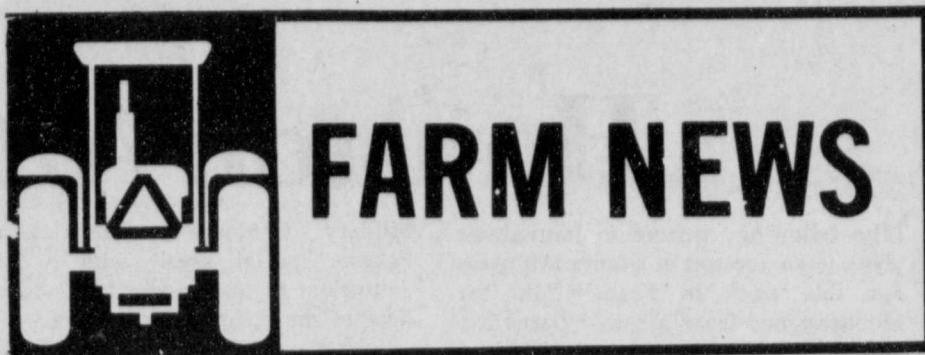

Windbreak trees available

The Floyd County Soil and Water Conservation District is now selling trees for windbreaks. The trees will be sold at a nominal price as a public service from the District. The trees are through the Texas Forest Service, grown at the West Texas nursery in Lubbock. With our agreement, orders can be taken locally and trees will be delivered to Floydada from distribution in March 1986. The cost of conifer species of Austrian Pine, Ponderosa Pine, Afghanistan Pine, Scotch Pine, Arizona Cypress, and Eastern Red Cedar will be $1.50 each with a minimum order of 30 which will be $45.00.

Some Hardwoods are available this year. They are Russian Olive, Green Ash, Caragana, Pecan, Honeylocust, and Desert Willow. The cost of these trees are 32 cents each with a minimum order of 50 which will be $16.00.

Orders are now being taken on a first come-first serve basis. For additional information, contact the Soil Conservation Service office in Floydada at 208 South Wall Street or call 983-2352.

All of the pine species can be viewed at the office in an exhibit; please come by the office between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. during the week.

Sorghum growers need to practice disease control

Sorghum production has grown in Texas in recent years, but the state's $300 million crop does have some problems, mainly diseases.

"Diseases such as downy mildew, head smut and maize dwarf mosaic can seriously limit production if farmers fail to take proper measures," points out Dr. Wendell Horne, plant pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Farmers need to be sure they have covered all the bases regarding these disease problems, or net profits can take a severe cut. And that would be particularly disastrous in these hard economic times, notes the plant disease specialist.

"Planting disease-resistant varieties is the answer to most sorghum disease problems," Horne points out. "Also, certain chemical treatments are available that do a good job on sorghum diseases. A new seed treatment chemical called Apron was particularly effective in preventing downy mildew in coastal counties in 1985."

Maize dwarf mosaic continues to be a problem in areas infested with Johnsongrass, the specialist points out. The virus disease overwinters in Johnsongrass roots and is transmitted to sorghum by aphids.

Head smut is a growing problem in some locations and can best be prevented through crop rotation and use of the most resistant varieties available.

"Disease control practices, whether varietal, cultural or chemical, can protect profits for farmers more than any other single factor," Horne emphasizes. "So farmers should give special attention to variety selection and crop rotation as they begin planning for the new crop year. Early decisions can be critical in producing a profitable crop later in the year."

Cotton Council sees better times

National Cotton Council delegates resolved in their 48th annual meeting to go on an all-out offensive to regain markets at home and abroad.

Council President Sam Hollis, in a keynote address to the industrywide meeting, said the new farm bill — if properly administered — can help the industry meet its objectives.

Hollis' view was reinforced by Sen. Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) who said of the new farm bill, "We have sent a signal around the world that the U.S. is going to stay in the farming business."

The Senator said the bill gives the Secretary of Agriculture the power to move the government out of the storage business, and the bill's success will be determined by the way it is implemented and administered.

Rep. Jerry Huckaby (D-La.), chairman of the House Cotton, Rice, and Sugar Subcommittee, expressed optimism about the future of U.S. agriculture and cotton.

"We've got a few more hard months ahead — maybe a year or two," he told Council delegates. "But I firmly believe American agriculture is now coming back and that cotton will lead the way."

Bob Boslet, Cotton Incorporated president, New York, said the farm bill's market enhancement provisions will help CI's program to increase domestic mills' cotton use.

"They will make U.S. cotton textile products more competitive with imports, and they likely will give us an economic advantage over our other competitors."
