

'86-'87 school year launched September 2

The 1986-87 school year will resume on Tuesday, September 2, at 8:30 a.m. This will be the first day of school and all students should plan on reporting that day.

Superintendent W.H. Hallmark has stated that "any student who is new to the Lockney school district should report to the school he or she will be attending before September 2 to be preregistered for the school year. It should also be noted that any student entering school for the first time is required to have a current shot record, a birth certificate and should be accompanied to the school by a parent or guardian to preregister for the coming school year."

The superintendent's office has also released information on the free and reduced lunch program for the coming year. Prices for the lunchroom include 60 cents for an elementary lunch and 30 cents for an elementary breakfast. Reduced prices for elementary school include 35 cents for lunch and 25 cents for breakfast. Junior high and high school lunches are regularly priced at 65 cents and those who qualify for reduced lunches in those two schools would also pay 35 cents for lunch.

All students will be supplied with a form on the first day of school for the free and reduced lunch program. Parents wishing to apply for their children will be asked to supply the total household income, names and social security numbers of all household members and the signature of an adult household member.

All information on the applications is subject to verification at any time throughout the school year by the school officials. Also parents will be asked to report any changes in income during the year to the school.

It should also be noted that any foster children residing in the home may also be eligible for the free or reduced lunches and no one will be discriminated against.

All information will be kept confidential and will be used only by the school.

Eligibility guidelines are included on the chart in this week's Beacon.

Beacon offering two Cowboy game tickets

One lucky participant in The Beacon football contest this fall will have an opportunity to be sitting in Texas Stadium on Thanksgiving Day for the Cowboys-Seattle Seahawks football game!

Two tickets to the Nov. 27 game will be awarded to the contest's season winner. The winner will be determined on the basis of two points scored for the season. Contestants are to receive one point for each game in which they correctly identify the winner. For example, if an individual names the winners of 15 games in a given week, the person will score 15 points for that contest. Ensuing weeks' scores would be added to that total.

In addition to the season winner, cash awards are to be paid for first, second and third place each week.

Complete rules will be announced in next week's Beacon.

Additional sponsors still are needed for the contest. Any firm or individual who is willing to serve as a sponsor is asked to contact this office.

You could be sitting in Texas Stadium on Thanksgiving Day!

Angie Hinsley selected Floyd Fair queen

On Saturday, August 23, at about 9 p.m. the results of the Miss Floyd County Fair Queen contest were announced to an audience gathered in the entertainment building at the fairgrounds.

Named as the 1986 Floyd County Fair Queen was Angie Hinsley of Floydada.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Hinsley of Floydada and is a junior at Floydada High School. Angie was crowned by Sherre Kinard, the 1985 pageant winner.

Miss Hinsley received a crown, flowers, and a bracelet for winning the contest.

Named as the first runner up in the queen contest was Jamey Lane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Laney of Hale Center. Second runner up was Julie Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Davis of Lockney. Both Laney and Davis received flowers and bracelets.

In addition to crowning a 1986 Miss Floyd County Fair queen, three other young ladies were crowned as Little Miss and Junior Miss Floyd County fair queens. The pageant for the younger ladies was held Saturday afternoon.

In the three to six year old girls Kristen Kellison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Kellison of Lockney received top honors. The first runner up in this age division was Nicole Mosley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Mosley of Lockney and second runner up was Maggie Hamersley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hamersley of Crosbyton.

All three of these young ladies received flowers, a snoozer napper, and each received a crown.

Other entrants in the three to six year old age group included Lauren Mangold, Heather Graham, Dana Martinez, Michelle Smith, Jennifer Graves, Meredith Schacht, and Elizabeth Torrez of Lockney. Also Adrianna Hill of O'Donnel and April Gowens of Crosbyton.

In the seven to nine year old age division, Danika Dudley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Dudley of Floydada received top honors. She received a crown, a stuffed animal, and flowers.

Named as the first runner up was Mary Lindsey Poole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Poole of Lockney and the second runner up was Jill Gowens, daughter of Gary and Susan Gowens of Crosbyton. Both Poole and Gowens received stuffed animals and flowers.

Other entrants in this age group included Joyce Robbins, Tikka Smith, Cynthia Martin, Dee Dee McCarty, Brandy Wilson, Chelsea Patridge, and Tiffany Ellison of Lockney. Also Stacey Lloyd, Kellye Crump, both of Floydada; and Cassy Fawver of Lubbock.

Jennifer Fortenberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Fortenberry of Lockney, was named the Junior Miss in the 10 to 12 year old age division. She received a crown, flowers, and a pair of earrings for winning the top honors.

First runner up in the junior miss pageant was Deann Ellison, daughter of Brooks and Belinda Ellison of Crosbyton. Second runner up was Kori Kellison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Kellison of Lockney. Both Deann and Kori received flowers and earrings.

Other entrants included Dana McCarty, Stephanie Neely and Amber Poole.

Overall, the fair seemed to be a success for all concerned, sponsors believe. The carnival, Jest Amusements, had a good crowd each of the nights they were open, and just about all of the booth renters reported having a successful outing at the fair.

This year there were over 30 booths which contained everything from food items to country crafts, to candles, to rabbit memorabilia.

New to the fair this year was the rabbit show, sponsored by the Floyd County Rabbit Breeders Assoc. There were over 450 rabbits exhibited and many of the exhibitors were overheard making plans to come back to the next show at the fair.

Eddie Teeter, secretary of the Floyd and Surrounding Counties Fair Association, reported "We did quite well this

LOOSE SCREWS?

Certain people seem to enjoy life regardless of their situations. We know Crosby County brothers who fit this mold.

Recently, their elderly mother underwent eye surgery in a Lubbock hospital. Her sons boarded a hospital elevator, also occupied by a nurse, who was startled when Ted began to make sounds like a chicken.

"Where's the psychiatric ward?" Jimmy inquired of the nurse, as his brother sounded off a second time. "Third floor," the nurse answered as she moved to the far corner of the elevator.

Obviously the nurse was concerned about the prospective patient. "I believe he needs to see a doctor," she told Jimmy as Ted made chicken noises a third time.

"He really needs to be hospitalized," the "sane" brother replied to the nurse, "but we sure need the eggs."

Doubling over in laughter, the nurse realized that she was not in an elevator with a crackpot and a concerned brother... just a pair of characters who enjoy humor.

Those two do enjoy life!

FAIR PICTURES NO GOOD

Due to a mechanical failure of the camera used to take fair pictures, The Beacon has a limited number of photos. This newspaper thanks Reeda Cay and Dan Smith and the Floyd County Fair board for loaning us the pictures they had taken for next year's fair catalog. Without these photos The Beacon would have had very few to use this week.

EARLY DEADLINE

Due to the Labor Day holiday on Monday, Sept. 1, The Beacon office will be closed that day. Deadline for the Sept. 4 edition will be Friday at 5 p.m. Please have all information in on that day.

Dr. Prater visits hospital

Last week Dr. William E. Prater Jr., M.D., who will be joining the staff at Lockney General Hospital in August of next year, spent the week visiting the facilities in Lockney and seeing a few patients. Prater is presently completing his residency in family practice at John Peter Smith Hospital in Fort Worth.

His training will be complete in July of next year, and he and his family will be moving to Lockney in August 1987.

When asked how he liked Lockney so far, Prater said, "I really like it here. There are lots of nice people and I am looking forward to working in this community."

Questioned about why he chose

Lockney to establish his practice Prater commented, "I really wanted to go back to a rural community to practice. I also wanted more than anything to establish a practice with doctors who had been trained in the same program I am working in. I wanted to work in an aggressive family practice that deals with all phases of medicine that involve the family unit. This hospital does that in all aspects. They deal with surgery and especially in the obstetric practice."

"Gary (Dr. Mangold) was trained in the same program that I am working in and in my opinion it is the best family practice program in the state of Texas. We are trained to deal with all phases of medicine by specialists in all fields."

"We are closely supervised and are trained when we need to seek help for our patients through specialists to offer the best possible care for those we treat," said Prater.

"I also like Lockney because it is not isolated. If we need to send a patient to a larger facility for care, Lubbock is less than an hour away and Plainview is just a few minutes away."

Prater also said one of his reasons for seeking out a rural community is that he is from a small community, Paducah and he has lived in several large communities and prefers rural areas. "I also wanted to be close to my family and they are still in Paducah."

Prater also commented, "I hope some of the people in Paducah will not mind the extra 30 mile drive and will come to Lockney for medical care."

When asked what he thought of adding Prater to the staff at Lockney General Hospital, Dr. Gary Mangold said, "I think Dr. Prater will make an excellent addition to our staff and I too like the thoughts of working with a doctor who was trained the way I was. Dr. Prater and I had some of the very same instructors and we think alike on many aspects of patient care."

Dr. W.J. Mangold said, "I think Dr. Prater is well qualified and very well trained and will be a real asset to the staff we have. It is just great that he is coming to Lockney."

Hospital administrator Terry Keltz said, "We are very fortunate to have Dr. Prater and his family come to our community and he will be a tremendous asset to our fine medical staff."

Prater was a 1979 cum laude graduate of Texas A&M University with a major in microbiology. He also completed one year of graduate research in virology at Texas A&M. He was graduated with honors from medical school at the University of Texas at Galveston and was ranked in the top 10 percent of his class in scholastic achievement.

While at the University of Texas at Galveston, Prater was a member of the Alpha Omega Medical Honor Society and was the recipient of the prestigious Hambrook-McGanity Award in Obstetrics and Gynecology.

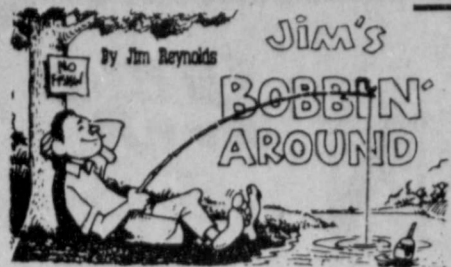

He and wife, Tracy have two children, Megan, age 5, and Will, age 2.

Sesquicentennial section enclosed

A section, pertaining to Floyd County history, appears in this issue of the two county newspapers. This section is presented in honor of Texas' Sesquicentennial.

It bears the year 104 Floyd businesses were founded, along with feature articles and photos from yesteryear.

The editorial staff suggests that readers retain the special Sesquicentennial section. Floyd County will observe its 100th birthday in four years.

— that an average one-pound loaf of bread contains 4.3 cents worth of wheat and eight-tenths of a cent of other farm-produced products?

— that farmers spend $140 billion a year for production inputs used on the farm to produce food and fiber? As consumers, farmers spend another $45 billion annually.

SAVE THE FARMS

Since the oil prices have cratered and the oil industry has been plunged into a depression, attention in this part of the country has shifted away from the farm problem. This does not mean that the farm problem has gone away.

Various experts have their ideas about how to solve the farm problem. These ideas range from more federal subsidies to a hands off policy in which farmers will be allowed to go broke.

One expert, writing in a recent issue of USA Today, said we have too many farmers and he wants the nation to quit spending $20 billion a year to keep more people working the land to produce more food than the USA or the world can use. He says "The more farmers who go bankrupt, the easier it will be for the surviving farmers to make an honest living. Congress and the department have tried every solution except the obvious one: the free market."

This solution is obviously written by a person who knows little about farming and certainly does not depend upon farm income for a living. It is a simplistic approach, but one that won't work.

Farmers don't like to be classified as part of the welfare problem, dependent upon government handouts to stay alive. What they ask is some sort of system that will allow them to produce for a profit.

The government has paid a lot of money into the farm program for the past 50 years and it is obvious by now that money is not the solution. If it were, there would be no problem now.

Farming is not just farming. It is a business and therefore must make a profit. The key to a profit begins with good management and it has to be admitted that too many farmers are guilty of mismanagement of their farming operations, depending upon more and more credit and bigger and bigger debt.

Farmers have to figure out some way to eliminate as many middlemen as possible and capture some of that profit. Something is indeed wrong with a "free enterprise" system in which the cost of a bread wrapper is nearly equal to the cost of the wheat required for that loaf of bread.

Everybody along the line makes money out of food except the one who produces it.

Farmers must destroy the myth that there is a divine law which states they must lose title to their commodities at the farm gate.

Of course, if enough farmers go broke and farm production gets concentrated into the hands of a few giant producers, then those producers will be in a position to set the price of what they raise.

This may be a solution, but not an attractive one. Surely we have bright enough minds in this country to do something about the farm problem other than ask the government for more money. — Harold Hudson, The Perryton Herald

IDEAL JOB

It wouldn't pay as well as being a third-string quarterback with a broken finger on a professional football team, but an ideal job would be to be statistician for Loving County.

With an official 1980 population of 91, Loving County, people-wise, is the smallest county in the United States.

Statistics are simple. For last year, for instance, you wouldn't need a calculator, or even a pencil, to figure out that marriages in Loving County were off 33.3 percent from the year before. There were only four marriages in 1985, two fewer than in 1984.

Even simpler would be the calculation of deaths. There was one death in Loving County last year, exactly the same number at the year before.

What about births? There weren't any, either year.

It wouldn't be difficult to be an important citizen in Loving County. Just think how much your vote would count. But before you pack up your belongings and move there is hopes you can be a big shot, you might want to check the political climate. The Texas Almanac reveals that the number of registered voters is 95, which figures out to be more than one for each man, woman and child. Wendell Faught—Haskell Free Press

WHAT INVENTORS?

Inventors don't get much credit these days. There are no Edisons, Bells or Morses. No Mergenthalers, Howes or Fultons.

Most inventions today are creations of teams working in company laboratories. When a product is created, it belongs to Proctor and Gamble, General Motors or IBM. An individual is seldom mentioned.

It hardly seems fair. I was reminded of this the other day when I received a mailing from Associated Milk Producers, Inc. Along with a bunch of material promoting June as National Dairy Month was a two-page listing of "milestones of dairy history in the United States."

Among the revelations was that Dr. Hervey D. Thatcher, Potsdam, N.M., invented the milk bottle in 1884.

Big deal! How in the world can history glorify Doc Thatcher while making no note of the John Does who produced television, the computer, the jet airplane and disposable diapers?

Personal recognition seems to have stopped about the turn of the century. The fact sheet says the ice cream cone was "created in 1904 at the St. Louis World's Fair, but it doesn't mention the name of the creator. — Wendell Faught, Haskell Free Press

ENOUGH SUMMER

Well, I think we can safely say we are now having summer weather! It has been hot enough to suit the ol' devil himself, and I'm ready for it to stop!

Can you remember the days before air conditioning? What in the world did we do when the temperature got to 110° like it was a day or two here recently? We sweated a lot, I know that. I remember, the house where we lived on the Jordan place at Delwin, was only three rooms... kitchen, livingroom and bedroom. There were three of us girls, and mom and dad. My brother-in-law, a carpenter, finally built another tiny room for mother and dad's bedroom; on the west side of the house, it was only about 10x12 feet, or maybe not that big, had low ceiling and windows on three sides. They had only a tiny revolving fan, and I know some evenings, that little room got up to 120°! How in the world they slept at all is beyond my imagination.

When it would get so hot that the furniture was warm to the touch, and the sheets on the bed were like blankets, mom would sprinkle our mattresses and bedclothes with water just before bedtime, to give some semblance of cooling, and of course, we opened all the windows.

At night, the cooler air, then, would make it possible to rest. But in the daytime, when ol' Sol beat down unmercifully and the winds were like the breath of a roaring furnace, life wasn't fit for man or beast.

After lunch, dad would turn his old cane-back chair down, prop a pillow on it, and lie down on the linoleum floor for a brief nap before going back to the field. We girls would make a pallet, or just lie down on the bare floor with a pillow and rest. It was the coolest place in the house... and that wasn't saying much!

Now, if I get three inches away from air conditioning in the house or car, or at work, I feel like a smothered chicken! It's all in what you get used to, I guess. — Jimmie Taylor, Paducah Post

HOW TO RUIN A TOWN WITHOUT EVEN TRYING

Here's how to ruin any town, especially your town:

—Never attend any meeting. Just sit around and criticize the way "They" are doing things.

—Vote against any kind of tax levy, whether the purpose is good or not. "They" just want your money.

—Make fun of the fire and police departments. They are just out for the glory and pay.

—Don't ever go to the school concert, ball game, benefit program or exhibit. Sit in a half-trance in front of that "idiot box."

—Knock the city council. This is a must. Every one of the councilmen is just on the council to get a little kickback.

—Stay out of church. You might go Easter and Christmas just to prove to yourself that the clergyman does not know what he's talking about and that everyone there is a hypocrite.

—Buy everything you can out of a discount catalog or discount store. These firms are the first to come through with the donations and service to the community.

—Don't support the hometown newspaper. The out-of-town papers, radio stations and TVs are a lot better and contribute much more to the town than the local bugle.

—Spread any story or rumor that is defamatory or uncomplimentary about the town. Never say anything nice about anybody. All kids are delinquents. All businessmen are crooks.

—Above all, always be cynical about anything that is supposed to be good for the community. Your motto should be, "If it's good, it can't happen here." — Author Unknown

9½ pound stripper from Mackenzie

The current water depth is 112 feet and the lake temperature is 79 degrees.

Roy Stockett of Tulia caught a 9½ pound stripper while trolling in about 50 feet of water near the island in the main part of the lake.

Mike Mills of Amarillo landed a nice three pound black bass using chartreuse spinner bait. Several nice channel cat and blue cat weighing 3 to 6 pounds are being caught up the creeks using shrimp and liver.

year, better than we had originally expected. There are lots of people to thank for this year's success at the fair. Everyone worked very hard to make

Athena will host teacher tea

On Sunday, September 7 from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. the Athena Study Club will host its annual meet the teachers tea in the Lockney Junior High library. Everyone in the community is invited to attend the tea and meet the faculty of the Lockney school system.

Among new teachers to meet will be Linda Kidd, Charlaine Burson and Nancy Henderson, who had taught at Lockney schools in the past and are returning this year. Also Sandra Watson, Susan Crider, Shelley Brock and Naomi Jones along with the first three women will all be teaching at the elementary school building.

New at junior high are Virginia Fillingim and Violet Cooper, who has been transferred from elementary.

New in the high school building this year will be Cindy Belt, Nancy Ratcliff, and Tonda Jolly.

Also at the tea Athena Study Club is planning to honor Edythe Clark, first grade teacher at Lockney Elementary School for the past 31 years, who just recently retired.

"Everyone is invited to come to the tea for refreshments and meet the teachers who will be working with your children this coming school year," sponsors state.

In times like these... By Mary Jo Fielding

From the South China Sea to the Gulf of Sidra, a resurgent U.S. Navy sails today as striking evidence of new American power and one man's drive to restore might and prestige sapped by the Vietnam War.

Bristling with high-tech gear and missiles the fleet is easily the most muscular America has ever put to sea. Its arsenal of submarines, ships and planes — even its own army, the Marines — is still improving. In Teddy Roosevelt's phrase, America's "big stick" is once again the Navy. The exalted status is largely the creation of John Lehman, the 43-year-old Secretary of the Navy.

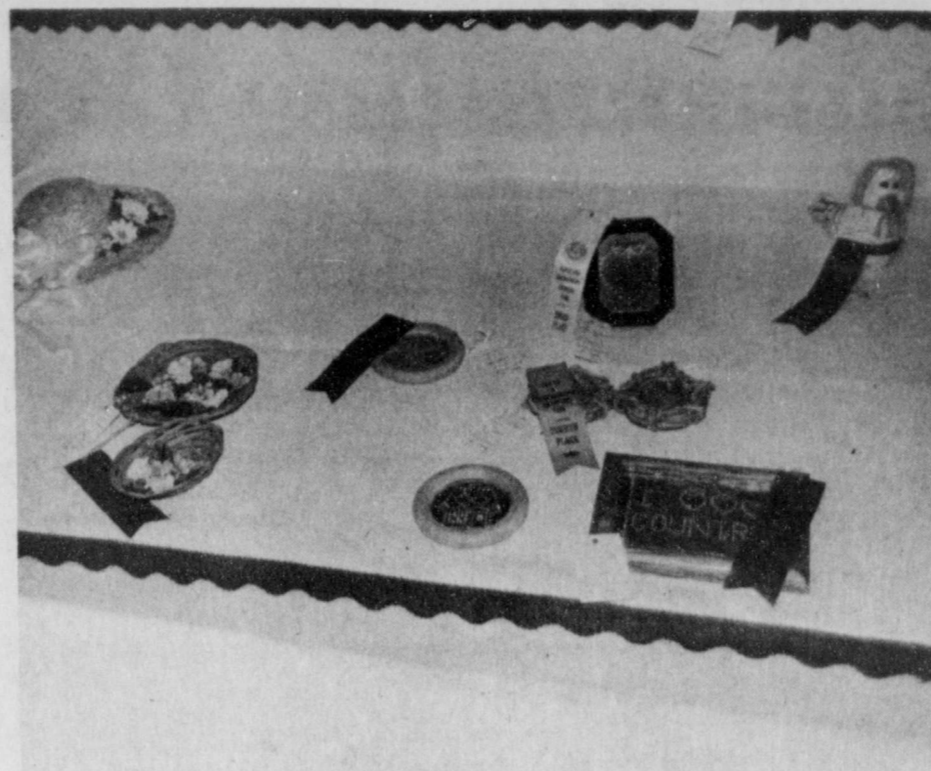

When Lehman's 600-ship force is complete in 1990, the U.S. will have spent nearly $1 trillion on the Navy since 1981. Many ask whether America has gotten its money's worth. It is a hard question to answer, since part of the answer comes from the enemy.

Gains in battle readiness have been enormous, and the U.S. can again project power wherever it chooses. But the Navy's first mission, like that of the other services, is to deter war, and deterrence rests on the enemy's perception that war is not worth the cost.

While never on regular active duty, the Secretary is a commander in the Naval Reserve. Wearing his scuffed aviator's jacket, he is a frequent visitor to bases and to warships at sea. He identifies strongly with his sailors and friends say, sees big ships as the embodiment of the American spirit.

"What makes Lehman different from those who went before him" one observer comments, "is his single-mindedness. For him, that's not gray steel and cannon tied to a pier. That's America."

So from rust to riches: the Navy is back.

New SPS program can help local businesses grow

Spurring economic growth from within in this area is the goal of an extensive new program being developed by Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS).

Within the next two weeks, many industries throughout the SPS service area will be receiving a survey designed to provide a base of information about the needs and the services of these firms. Chambers of commerce and development foundations are involved in the program. Rural electric cooperatives who purchase wholesale power from SPS will be seeking participation from their customers.

"The idea is to help cross-match firms in this area with other firms in this area with whom they can do business or otherwise cooperate," said Gary Gibson, vice president of marketing at SPS. "We want to keep dollars and jobs from going outside this region when they don't have to. Working together we can help existing industry spark the internal growth that our area needs, especially now."

Nationally, 85% of new jobs are created by existing businesses that expand locally, Gibson said.

"The more firms that participate in this survey, the greater good it can do—for those firms and for their employees and communities," he said.

SPS provides electric service in a 52,000-square-mile area comprising the Panhandle and south plains of Texas, much of eastern New Mexico, the Oklahoma Panhandle, and southwest corner of Kansas.

Our region has a lot of firms—big and small—who may discover with the help of this survey that the markets or services they need are in their own backyards, or not far from it, Gibson said.

The survey asks for information about products, services, employment, transportation and other vital factors, Gibson said. The information about specific firms will be kept in strictest confidence, he said. Great care will be taken that potential competitors do not become aware of details that another firm does not want to be known.

"We're not trying to get into the details of everybody's business," Gibson said. "If we find an opportunity for growth or cooperation, we'll let both parties know that it exists and then step back, letting them carry forward as they wish."

This program is one of many in which SPS is involved that encourage economic growth. The company also works with local chambers of commerce and other organizations to attract outside industry to the region.

LONE STAR STATE HISTORY by DAN BROWN

ROPE WALKER
R.I.P.

ROPE WALKER . . .
A one-legged stove peddler made his first, and last visit to Corsicana in 1884. To attract attention to his product he volunteered to walk a tightrope two stories up over Main Street. He said he would also carry a small stove on his back. He didn't make it. No one knew his name so his grave stone reads "Rope Walker."

Senders of V-Mail being sought

Postmaster General Albert V. Casey has asked the American public for assistance in helping to locate the senders of over 200 pieces of World War II Victory Mail (V-Mail) found in an attic in Raleigh, N.C. The V-Mail was written between May 3-21, 1944, by airmen and soldiers aboard a cargo and troop transport Liberty Ship, the Caleb Strong, enroute from Newport News, Va., to the Mediterranean port of Oran, Algeria. Ninety-three of the servicemen aboard the Caleb Strong wrote to 117 addresses in 34 states. A young man from Raleigh (now deceased) was to post the letters but, for an unknown reason, did not do so. Instead, he left an Army duffel bag full of the mail — and some old socks — in his aunt's attic. Found by an exterminator, the mail, with the aunt's permission, was turned over to the Raleigh postmaster in June. He promised that the Postal Service would do its best to deliver or return the correspondence. Within a few days, one veteran was found and leads were developed on two others now living in Oklahoma and one living in West Virginia. The remainder of the letters were sent to Washington, D.C. where postal officials have begun a national search. So far, 16 letters have been returned for four veterans and the son of a deceased veteran. With the cooperation of the Veterans Administration, the Postal Service is trying to locate the remaining veterans or their families. "Unfortunately, some of the addresses they have date back to 1950 and beyond, or there is no record or address at all. In addition, some of the veterans are deceased, and it is hard to trace widows or children who surely would like to have the letters," Casey says. "The Veterans Administration is continuing to search, and the Postal Service is looking for individuals in specific cities. But we also are asking the media to publish the names and the public to let us know if a relative's name appears on the list," Casey said. "We want anyone who thinks one of the servicemen is a relative to supply the Postal Service with the man's military identification number as a way to check if it is the same serviceman." Servicemen not yet located are listed below. The veterans or their relatives may write the Postal Service at the address below if they think one of the letters could be theirs: V-Mail Communications Department U.S. Postal Service 475 L'Enfant Plaza, SW Washington, D.C. 20260-3100 Sgt William Andrews, Cpl Benjamin F. Tech Suzuki String Program enrolling new 1986-87 students

The Suzuki String Program of the Texas Tech University department of music is now enrolling new students for the 1986-87 school year. Instruction in violin, ensemble performance, and music theory is offered to beginning students ages four through eight. For more information, call program director Barbara Barber at 742-2270. New students and their parents will devote the month of September to orientation and observation of Suzuki teaching methods. Lessons for the beginners will start in October. The Texas Tech Suzuki String Program has provided instruction for hundreds of string students over the past nine years. Last year, two of the program's high school students, Ruth Elaine Wilson of Lockney and Catherine Jensen of Lubbock Coronado High School, were named All-State Orchestra Musicians. Recently, 11-year-old Samu Chatterjee was chosen to perform a solo concerto with the Festival Orchestra of the Texas Tech Orchestra Camp. The Suzuki method is the universal approach of teaching music to children by utilizing the young child's innate ability to imitate what he is constantly exposed to each day, in the same way he learns to speak his native language. Central to the Suzuki method is the participation of the parent, who attends all lessons with the child and actually becomes a home teacher by practicing each day with the child. Instructors in the Suzuki String Program are Mrs. Barber, Patrice Barnett, Darla Boyd, Martha Perez and Andrea Redcay. All have received extensive, specialized Suzuki teacher training. Mrs. Barber is a Registered Teacher Trainer with the Suzuki Association of the Americas.

Square Dance

Whirlers recently had several couples spend a week-end in Ruidoso at a square dance festival. At our last regular dance, we had three squares dancing to the calling of Herrick Allen from Amarillo. Refreshments were provided by Dickie and Debbie McCarty, Leslie Patterson, and Gayle Sherman. Wayne Bramlet won the door prize. Whirlers had a big special dance on Friday night at the fair. Sid Perkins called an excellent dance for nine squares. We had visitors from Silverton, Tulla, Dimmitt, Plainview and Lubbock. Several officers from the Lubbock Federation were special guests. Two squares danced down Main Street on a float Saturday morning in the fair parade. We won fourth place. Our next regular dance will be September 5 with James Pettus calling.

A Menace To Society

"Better is a little with righteousness than great revenue with injustices." (Proverbs 16:8)

A popular issue for some and an unpopular issue for others is the topic of legalizing gambling in Texas. It is my position that gambling is a menace to society and is certainly not in the best interest of the moral, economic, or spiritual life of an individual or state.

Proponents argue that "people are going to gamble anyway; therefore, we might as well legalize it in order to control it." Studies show that this is not true, but on the contrary, illegal gambling is increased.

Some also believe that legalizing gambling will decrease criminal activity, but the reserve is true. In states where legalized gambling has been approved, criminal activity has increased.

In June of 1984 the Texas Conference of Churches took the position that gambling is a poor way to raise money for Texas. According to the statement, legalized gambling would diminish Texas' moral stature. I agree.

The only way one can succeed in gambling is when someone else loses or fails. The objective is to beat the other person. The Christian must look at this from a theological perspective. Do we see others as steppingstones to our success? Or, do we see them as equals, as brothers and sisters, under God? Though the scriptures do not provide proof-text which condemn gambling, we can find scriptural principles which cause us to question current movements to legalize it. It breeds a form of covetousness based on greed and selfishness. It also diminishes the word ethic and fosters the "something-for-nothing" type philosophy.

I believe there are better ways in which the State of Texas can increase its revenue and be fair to everyone. "Better is a little with righteousness than great revenue with injustices."

ALLISON and Lauren Mangold performed in the talent show Thursday night. Their duet was about a little girl who is quite attached to her teddy bear. The girls had been rehearsing this number for several weeks and it was reported that until the talent show Lauren had been fooling everyone by not completing her part. However during the performance she never missed a beat. — Staff photo

Molina completes field training

Cadet Elma Molina, daughter of Ben S. and Petra G. Molina of Lockney, has completed a U.S. Air Force ROTC field training encampment at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Texas.

Field training, attended by cadets normally between their second and third year of college, gives an opportunity to evaluate each student's potential as an officer, according to an Air Force spokesman.

The summer's curriculum consists of orientations on jet aircraft, career opportunities, human relations education and equal opportunity training. Physical fitness and survival training is also emphasized.

The field training is four weeks, but cadets in the two-year ROTC program receive an additional two weeks of instruction in the development of air power and the contemporary Air Force.

Molina is a student at the University of Texas, El Paso.
