WINDMILL REMOVAL

Windmills were a West Texas trademark during its days of early settlement.

Lockney, I believe, was known at one time as the "city of windmills."

The primary reason for the windmill's popularity, of course, was that it served as the best source for water in this arid country. Secondly was the availability of free energy to operate them: wind.

While West Texas has frequently been short of water, it has never been without wind. Well, maybe once.

Public urged to 'roll up your sleeves, become blood donors'

Drive Friday at Beacon office

The second of five blood drives, sponsored by Lockney General Hospital will be held this Friday from 3:00 to 6:00 p.m. in the Lockney Beacon office. Anyone wishing to donate is welcome.

Lockney residents who have donated blood previously will be notified with reminder cards through the mail but any and all who wish to donate may come by the Beacon office and give.

The entire donation process will take about 30 minutes which includes a short interview and the taking of an iron level sample.

Following the donation, each donor will be provided with a light refreshment and may then continue his or her normal routine.

During the 1986 calendar year Lockney General Hospital used nearly 100 pints of blood for patients in the hospital.

Walk-ins during the drive are welcome, however "if you would like to make an appointment for your donation contact Dimple Adams at Lockney General Hospital at 652-3373 or Pam Armstrong at the Lockney Beacon at 652-3318."

It is stressed that no donor can get any disease from donating blood. All equipment is sterile, used just once and then discarded. And with new testing procedures instituted in April of 1985, no disease is transmitted through transfusions of donated blood.

4-H's chemical auction Thursday

Thursday, March 26 (tonight) the Floyd County 4-H organization will hold its annual fundraising chemical auction. As in years past there will be a free meal, catered by Danny's Fins and Hens of Lubbock, and the auction will follow.

The dinner and auction will be held at the Lockney Community Center and beginning with the meal at 7:00 p.m. The auction, with Tom Assiter, served as auctioneer, will begin after everyone has finished eating.

This is the main fundraising project for the Floyd County 4-H organization. It gives farmers a chance to purchase chemicals, feed, seed, and much more while helping the youth of the county.

All proceeds from the auction are used to benefit those involved in 4-H. Some of the projects include shooting sports, foods and nutrition projects, public speaking, clothing, recreation, and trips to district and state meetings and contests are funded from auction proceeds.

Also, a portion of the auction proceeds will go into a newly founded 4-H scholarship fund. In 1986 the Floyd County 4-H initiated a scholarship program whereby two members of the county organization will be awarded $500.00 scholarships each year and a portion of the funds received from the auction will go toward future scholarships.

Among chemicals to be auctioned include Prowl, Caparol, Milogard, Furadan, Fusilade, Roundup, Tordon, Arsenal, Treflan and Banvel. Also cotton seed, some livestock feeds and much more.

Mexican dinner, brownies served at noon Thursday

Lockney Senior Citizens invite public

Senior citizens are super cooks!

That was proven during a chili and beans supper, along with baked goods, on Feb. 19 and again during a March 13 stew-cornbread-cobbler luncheon, both sponsored by Lockney Senior Citizens.

Community residents will have another opportunity to sample "good eating" today (Thursday, March 26) when the organization sponsors a Mexican dinner and brownies.

Serving begins at 11 a.m. and continues "until it's gone" at the Community Center (former Legion Hall). The charge is $4 per plate.

Senior citizens are "fixing more food this time."

An estimated "125-150" persons braved adverse weather for the chili, beans and baked goods, with the result being that all the food was consumed. At the stew-cornbread-cobbler event, 170 persons were served and "several had to be turned away because we just ran out of food."

Free blood pressure checks will be offered at the luncheon. The organization's regular weekly meeting begins at 3 p.m. today at the Community Center.

With work progressing "quicker than we had thought possible," members hope to occupy the Lockney Senior Citizen Center — former Lena Fay building at 118 West College — in the near future.

'TRUE COMMUNITY EFFORT'

Organization members are calling the center renovation "a true community effort. It's all volunteer labor, and we've had people of all ages pitching in to help. Younger people are saying 'let us be a part of it' and are really helping. The cooperation is just tremendous."

The building's roof was refurbished last week, and grounds have been cleared.

Individuals who have chairs of "any type" that they would like to contribute to the organization may take them to the center building.

Some persons are giving trading stamps, which will be redeemed for equipment and fixtures for the center.

In addition, memorials are being accepted by the senior citizens.

Velma Harrison, who is serving as the group's hostess for March-April, may be contacted about entertainment or activities. Dottie Stansell should be reached for publicity.

All persons age 55 and older are welcome to attend all meetings, which are held at 3 p.m. each Thursday. Meetings are conducted at the Community Center at present, but will soon be moved to the senior center, which is located about a half block off Main Street.

Center fund grows to $17,870

Showing steady growth, the Lockney Senior Citizen financial drive had reached the $17,870 level by early this week. This represents an increase of approximately $6,370 during the past 10 days.

The fund is being utilized to purchase, renovate and equip the new center at 118 West College, as well as pave the adjacent parking lot.

Anyone wishing to make a donation should contact Claude Brown, finance chairman, or other officials.

Officials report that proceeds from the Friday-Saturday garage sale at the former Lena Fay store building — future Lockney Senior Citizen Center — totaled "$889.80."

Balance of the garage sale merchandise has been given to the Salvation Army.

June McDonald in twilight of First National Bank career

Termed as 'trustworthy, dependable, loyal, capable'

Her soft-spoken voice and quiet mannerism haven't changed in 42½ years of association with First National Bank. Neither has the respect for and confidence in June McDonald, felt by co-workers and bank patrons alike.

That proverbial "rock of Gibraltar" — who has been a stalwart with the Lockney financial institution for over four decades — will begin a new phase of her career on June 1: semi-retirement.

"I'll still work about two days a week," she explains, and will continue to be an officer of the bank and a member of the board.

Senior member of the FNB staff, Mrs. McDonald has been associated with the local bank during the tenures of nine presidents.

Her present boss, Ronnie Hardin, pays June the ultimate compliment: "She is trustworthy, dependable, loyal, capable — everything you would want in an employee."

The bank president continues, "We hate to lose June but we're glad she will continue to work with us on a parttime basis. We're happy for her."

Looking to her future semi-retirement, Mrs. McDonald anticipates that she and her husband Robert will "travel, fish and enjoy life." Too, "I guess I'll need to learn to fish," since fishing is among husband's favorite hobbies.

Perhaps even more importantly, the abbreviated schedule will allow for greater opportunity to visit with grandchildren and "really enjoy them." She explains that, due to professional responsibilities, "We've not had an opportunity for them to come and visit for any length of time" in the past.

Theresa Stennett checking out at Lockney General Hospital

Medical profession runs in family

Theresa Stennett is about ready to check out at Lockney General Hospital. But, she admits, after 30 years of parttime and fulltime employment, "It will feel like losing a member of my family. I told Jimmy (husband) I'll just have to get over it."

With mixed emotions, she is scheduled to begin retirement on April 4, although she has agreed to "help out" while other employees are taking vacation time off.

In keeping with a family tradition, Theresa and her husband Jimmy, a semi-retired medical technologist and x-ray technician, have four sons who are following in their parents' medical footsteps. All four are involved in some phase of the medical field and two daughters-in-law are licensed vocational nurses (LVNs).

A year after the family moved to Lockney in 1956, Theresa Stennett joined the hospital staff on a parttime basis. She took leaves of absence when her younger two sons were born, was employed for 1½ years as school secretary and was employed at the hospital for about eight more years on a parttime basis before coming aboard Sept. 1, 1967 as a fulltime employee.

She has been outpatient clinic supervisor the past four years after serving 16 years as assistant administrator or business manager, a position which had different titles but consisted basically of the same duties. At one time, she was acting administrator for "a couple of months" between administrators.

"While Mr. (Guy) Hazlett was administrator," she explains, "he said that the Lockney General

Hospital was too small for a

In times like these... By Mary Jo Fielding

First there was William Casey felled by a brain tumor just as the CIA began to be pulled into the deepening muck of the Iran-Nicaragua scandal. Then there was Robert Gates, the boyishly handsome careerist whose nomination as CIA director lasted exactly 29 days. When questions about the agency's involvement in the scandal clouded his confirmation hearings, Gates loyally withdrew his name from the Senate's consideration. This time their leader was none other than FBI Director William H. Webster, 63, a sternly federal judge who may be the straightest straight arrow in Washington.

Webster has one known vice — an inordinate affection for tennis. He has many virtues, the most pertinent of which is an unquestioned record for probity and discretion in the enforcement of the nation's laws. He is widely credited with having restored the FBI's morals and reputation in the aftermath of J. Edgar Hoover's 47½ year reign. Though accurate enough, that judgment may be unfair to former Director Clarence M. Kelley (1973-1978) who actually began the complex process of bringing the bureau and its 9,100 gunshoes into the modern era. However, it was Webster, who after nine years in the FBI's top job was unanimous acclaim from Capital Hill when his nomination to succeed Casey was announced.

South Plains News

By Mrs. M. Julian

Sunday, March 22:
This Sunday, March 22, there was a good crowd at the South Plains Sunday school and church. It was good to see the church pick up in attendance.

The weather has been beautiful this past week. Many of the fruit trees are all in bloom and bushes are just beautiful, since we have had abundant rain.

We are glad to see Clyde Morrison home from the hospital and he is doing well. He is healing from the scar on his forehead where he had surgery.

Mitzi L. Julian spent the weekend home with her parents, the K.D. Julians. She is a junior at Texas Tech University. She was a visitor at South Plains Church on Sunday morning.

Anthony Galvin, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Tomas Galvin of Plainview, was ill the past week at his home. He had an ear infection, but is doing fine now.

A delicious dinner was enjoyed on Tuesday, March 17, at the dining hall of the Lockney Rest Home. Members of the home were guests at the St. Patrick's Day dinner, where the tables were laid with shamrocks and other decorations.

Mitzi Julian, a student at Tech, has been named the recipient of a prize for her high grades at the school.

A regular blizzard caused the lovely weather to end abruptly March 23. Shingles were blown off houses here and blowing snow ended all outdoor work. The wind was terrible and fruit trees were damaged, as most of the blossoms were shaken off the trees. Saturday, March 21, was the first day of spring although it didn't seem or act like it was.

Visitors here at the home last week to spend time with Mrs. Bonnie Julian, were Mrs. Mamie Wood on Friday the 13th; Letha Mulder, Emma Thomas, Jewel Fortenberry on Thursday; Mrs. Sams, Mrs. Louzilla Nichols of Sweetwater and other friends came by for a short visit.

Home missions were held the first week in April at the South Plains Baptist Church.

This Monday a regular blizzard is blowing and the ground is covered with snow and ice. The wind has been so bad and has blown shingles off roofs, filled fences with rubbish and many fruit trees are ruined as the flowers all were off in the tempest.

He was welcomed home by brother, Evan, who is 6 years old, and sister, Erin, who is 3 years old.

Grandparents include Jane Snyder of Roswell, New Mexico and Douglas and Mary Glenn Degge of Lockney.

Great-grandmothers are Lydia Montgomery of Roswell, New Mexico and Madge Huff of Lockney.

School reform program for Athena Study Club meeting

School reform was the program topic at the March 10 meeting of the Athena Study Club. Superintendent W.H. Hallmark presented the program about the Educational Reform that has been taking place in recent years.

Each member participated in the continued discussion with roll call "How reforms have affected my children."

Hostess for the occasion was Barbara Cawley, with co-hostess, Gayle Sherman.

President Tanya Covington conducted the business meeting. Donnie Meriwether, acting in the absence of secretary, Gayle Sherman, read the minutes of the previous meeting.

Report was given by Kathy Hunter on the success of the book fair held March 3-5 at the elementary school. On behalf of Athena's sponsorship of the book fair, an atlas was donated to the elementary library by the book fair company and $25 worth of books were donated to the library by Athena.

Report was given by Glenna Robbins of the pre-school clinic scheduled to be held April 7.

Charlotte Mitchell reported that the film, "What Parents Should Say To Their Kids About Drugs," owned by Athena, is available to be shown at any church, organization or private viewing. "It is a very good film dealing with drug awareness." The purchase of a drug awareness film at the elementary level was discussed and held for further investigation.

Social Security News

By Terry J. Clements

A person who is under 65 and disabled is automatically covered under Medicare hospital insurance after he or she has been entitled to Social Security disability benefits for 24 months.

A widow or widower between 50 and 65 who has been disabled for at least 2 years but who has not applied for Social Security disability benefits because he or she is receiving other Social Security benefits may be eligible for hospital insurance. Additional information about this coverage may be obtained at any Social Security office.

A government employee who is disabled before 65 may be eligible for Medicare on the basis of his or her government employment. In general, a 29-month waiting period is required before hospital insurance protection can start; however, the person should contact a Social Security office as soon as he or she becomes disabled.

A worker, his or her spouse, or dependent child who needs kidney dialysis or a kidney transplant should also apply for Medicare at any Social Security office. If the person is unable to visit an office, the application process can be started by phone, or a Social Security representative can visit the home.

If the person is eligible for Medicare, protection generally starts with the third month following the month in which maintenance dialysis treatments begin; however, under certain condition, coverage could start earlier. The people in the Social Security office can provide information about the time Medicare protection will actually begin.

If you have any questions you can contact us at 1401-B West 5th Street or call us at 293-9623. If you desire, appointments can be arranged.

June McDonald in twilight of First National Bank career

CAREER TRACED

Looking back in time, June recalls how she was a young bride when she joined First National Bank. Her husband Wayne (the late Wayne Bybee) was "overseas" in military duty during World War II when she became a FNB staff member on Dec. 12, 1944.

The young bookkeeper was one of only five employees, and deposits stood at approximately $2.5 million. By contrast, there is now a staff of 13 and deposits have grown to some $26 million.

First National Bank was still located in its familiar home "on the corner" in the 100 block of South Main when she was promoted in 1948 from assistant cashier to cashier. Then became vice president-cashier in 1986.

New facilities at 201 North Main were erected and occupied in 1960.

"Everything was done by hand" when June became a bookkeeper for the bank in 1944. Posting machines were manually operated. Then came electric posting machine, and "in 1978, I believe," the bank made the major switch to computerization.

How does she compare banking procedures four decades ago with advanced techniques of today?

"It was harder for me then...because I had it all to learn," she says. However, "Everything is much more complicated now."

Procedures do not represent the only changes experienced by June during her 42½ years with FNB. Dozens and dozens of personnel changes have occurred during that period.

SENIOR STAFF MEMBER

Now third in the bank's chain of command, the soft-spoken vice president-cashier is the senior staff member...by 12 years.

Dub Dipprey, the other FNB vice president, has the second greatest tenure: 30 years. Norma Ragland, assistant cashier, has 28 years of service.

Dorsey Baker — still a Lockney resident — was president of the Lockney bank when June joined the staff. He was succeeded by a brother, Artie Baker. The men are members of a pioneer local family.

Then came A.N. Waldroup, the widely-known M.W. Wiley, Charles Duran, Gene Collins, Carroll Anderson, Kim King and Hardin, who moved here last year from Post to assume the presidency.

Mrs. McDonald's attributes mentioned by Hardin — "trustworthy, dependable, loyal, capable" — are recognized by customers as well as FNB personnel.

Despite her modesty, she admits that "a lot of customers" came to her on banking matters, particularly when her office was located near the front of the bank building. She has occupied an office in the west end of the facility since becoming vice president last year.

FIRST-NAME BASIS

Referred to almost exclusively on a first-name basis, she is in charge of operations and reports.

"The bank has been a great place to work," June says without reservation. "It's been good for me, and I hope I've been good for it." She also commends the public: "People of Lockney are great to work with."

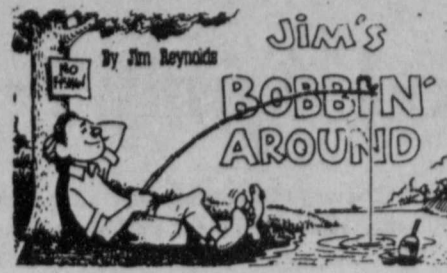

Although her offspring were born after she became associated with First National, neither has followed in mother's professional footsteps.

Mrs. McDonald and her husband Robert — a longtime Lockney contractor prior to his retirement — are parents of five offspring: Monty Bybee of Odessa, an employee of El Paso Products; Tony Bybee Whitley of Midland, an employee of Enrod Oil Co.; Cathy Cooper McDonald of Dallas, a University of Texas at Austin student who is working toward a masters degree and doing her internship in Dallas; Gary McDonald of Lubbock, who is associated with a printing firm; and Marlon McDonald of Lockney, who operates the contracting firm founded by his father. The McDonalds have five grandchildren: two in Odessa, two in Lockney and one in Lubbock.

Is the couple planning to retain their Lockney home? "We're sure planning to," June emphasizes.

Because she has for years been such a fixture, First National Bank customers will not soon forget.

"Where's June?" will undoubtedly be asked by more than a few patrons after June 1, the beginning of her "semi-retirement."

As the story goes, an elderly gent with a sense of humor was being visited by relatives. The male visitor wondered aloud, "What happened to that other windmill that you had last year?"

Cracking a slight grin, the old fellow replied, "Well, there was only enough wind for one so we took the other one down."

NEW DIMENSION TO LIFE

Heard a story in Lockney on Thursday that was truly heartwarming and we've got to pass it along.

A fellow who is not in the greatest of health had become accustomed to staying at home in front of the tube. He wasn't interested in a lot besides watching TV, according to more than one source.

Now the fellow "can't wait for morning" so he can get to the senior citizen center and help with renovation work. He's "anxious to get started" each day.

Several men "haven't missed a day" assisting with the project, which is coming along super well.

Why? There are several reasons, but the two we've heard the most are because the center "is ours" and due to the companionship involved.

We've contended from day one that the senior citizens organization and its center are the best things that have happened to dozens of Lockneyites in years. It has truly added another dimension to their lives.

NOT HIS DAY

Some days it just doesn't pay to get out of bed, says a friend who points to the troubles of a man who jumped from a moving vehicle in Plainview and was critically injured.

The poor fellow's troubles just piled up.

He reportedly was upset because a luggage problem with a bus company forced him to remain in Plainview for a later bus, which would cause him to miss one day's work in Fort Worth.

He was "already angry" because his recently-purchased car had broken down in Sweetwater while he was enroute to Plainview.

This article is certainly not intended to make light of the man's injuries, but rather to show how problems can really add up on given days.

RATIONALE

The complainant in a Canadian rape trial testified that she had "tarried for some time in a tavern," and shared "a few brews" with the defendant, but that when she left he followed her, grabbed her, threw her to the ground, and... well, started "having his way with her."

Q. Did you tell him to stop?
A. I did.
Q. Why?
A. Because he was crushing my cigarettes!

REAL CHARITY

Real charity doesn't care if it's tax deductible or not.

March 31 deadline for absentee balloting in three elections

Next Tuesday, March 31, is the final date for persons to vote absentee in school, city and hospital board elections.

The elections are scheduled for April 4.

Three school board, four city government and three hospital board seats are to be filled.

Highlights are contests for four positions. J.D. Copeland and Dan Smith are vying for a two-year term as mayor.

Four men — Ronnie Thornton, Warren Mitchell, Dr. Gary Mangold and D.K. Jackson — have offered themselves for service as school trustees. Two of the four will be elected to full, three-year terms.

Joe Neil Rexrode and Lisa Mosley are candidates for the two years remaining on the unexpired trustee term to which Clor Schacht was originally elected.

FHA style show slated

Lockney Future Homemakers of America Chapter is preparing for its second annual Spring Style Show on Tuesday, March 31, at 7:00 p.m. in the Lockney Elementary School Cafeteria. Theme for this year's show is "All the World is a Mask."

Fashions for the style show are being provided by Brown's Department Store of Lockney, and Kristi's of Plainview.

Styles for all ages will be presented by local models. "Everyone is invited to come and see the unveiling of the 1987 spring fashion trends," sponsors say.

Admission for the style show is $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students and children 5 and under will be admitted free of charge. All proceeds from the style show will go toward the expenses for Lockney FHA members who are planning to attend the state FHA convention to be held in San Antonio April 10 and 11. Seven Lockney young ladies will be eligible to attend the convention.

Tickets may be purchased at the door on the night of the style show.

IS THAT REALLY THE TRUTH?

After the testimony of a woman called as a witness by the prosecution, the young defendant was examined by the district attorney:

Q. You have heard what the last witness said and yet your evidence is to the contrary. Am I to infer that you wish to throw doubt on her veracity?
A. Not at all. I merely wish to make it clear what a liar I am if she is speaking the truth.

UNITED STATES ARMY EYES LOTTERY

It's not a sure bet yet, but the Army is considering jumping on the swiftly expanding lottery industry band wagon.

The plan, to be debated this Spring and possibly implemented in October, would sell $1 scratch-off lottery tickets to Army troops at overseas bases. Top prize would be $5,000 and most prizes would range from $2 to $25, according to Lt. Col. Barry Bergland, speaking at a conference in San Francisco, California. Wonderful, sounds like a similar version of the "lottery" as played when I was in the service, it was called five-for-ten. Some guy with a lot of money would let me borrow $5 and come payday I owed him $10. Thanks—but no thanks. The Army has thought to do without getting into the lottery business. —Kim Pease—Rotan Advocate

SCHOLASTIC WINNERS

What a fantastic idea! Waco Independent School District has come up with a winner. It awarded letter jackets to 53 students who were outstanding in the classroom. They also were honored with a banquet.

We like it! Classroom work isn't a spectator sport, but it is THE reason for public schools to operate!

Theresa Stennett checking out at Lockney General Hospital

business manager and he did away with that position completely." She was assigned her present title at that time.

CHANGING WORLD

Numerous changes have occurred through the years.

"When I first started at the hospital fulltime in '67, Mrs. (administrator Elsie) Sherman and three others" comprised the office staff. "We did it all by hand," she remembers.

Royal manual typewriters were the main pieces of equipment. "Electric typewriters were a real luxury" when they were purchased for the LGH office staff. From that point the medical facility graduated to "everything electrical" and converted "about two years ago" to computerization.

Due to the greatly increased influx of "paper work," size of the hospital's office staff has been increased to keep pace and currently numbers 13. The mound of documents has been prompted primarily by complex government (Medicare and Medicaid) and private insurance requirements.

Jimmy and Theresa were, at one time, both associated with Lockney General Hospital. After completing his training in Dallas, Jimmy Stennett MT (ASCP) was associated with Crosbyton Clinic Hospital from 1954-56 before accepting a position as medical technologist and x-ray technician with the local medical facility. He remained in that position from December 1956 until 1971 — 15 years — before founding a private laboratory in Plainview. He operated the lab until 1983 when he sold the facility and went into semi-retirement.

SIX DOCTORS

Only six doctors have practiced at Lockney General on a fulltime basis since Mrs. Stennett became a staff member. Dr. W.J. Mangold and Dr. Pat Williams had practices when she arrived. Those who have since practiced here are Dr. T.L. Glenn, Dr. Roland Sanchez, Dr. Bill Mangold and Dr. Gary Mangold, who presently practices with his father.

Dorothy Lloyd was director of nursing when Mrs. Stennett began fulltime duty with the hospital. Virginia Owen then served for a short time as acting director of nursing and was succeeded by Flo Barnes, a personal friend of Theresa. Mrs. Barnes continued in this capacity until her retirement in December '85. Nanette Zorger is the present director of nursing.

Elsie Sherman was administrator when Theresa joined the LGH staff and maintained in that position for a number of years. Other administrators since Mrs. Sherman's retirement have been Martha Couch, Gayle Sherman Fortenberry Reay, Guy Hazlett, Terry Keltz, Jerry Burleson and Keltz, who recently resumed the post.

Although her association with Lockney General has been her primary employer, Mrs. Stennett had various experience in other fields. After attending public school for 12 years in Knox County and graduating as salutatorian of her class, she attended Gail Business College in Abilene, where she received instruction in typing and accounting.

While attending business college, she was employed by J.C. Penney. She was then associated with the Abilene Reporter News from 1943-1949 before moving to Plainview and being associated with CPA Frank Armstrong for three years and later with Medical Center Clinic.

The couple then moved to Dallas to enable Jimmy to continue his education in the medical field. His wife was associated for 18 months with Service Fire Insurance Co.

Theresa smiles as she remembers that while the family was residing in Crosbyton her second child was born...at home. Her earlier-than-anticipated delivery caught her, her husband and her doctor all by surprise.

The family was completed with the birth in Lockney of the latter two sons.

FAMILY ORIENTED

The Stennetts are strictly family oriented.

Last Wednesday produced a prime example. Theresa and Jimmy were "on pins-and-needles" as they were aware that son number three, Dr. Kevin Stennett, would learn that day where he would take his residency. A faithful Wednesday night league bowler, Theresa vowed that she would not bowl that night unless she had heard from Kevin by that time.

The call came. And the news was good: "Kevin will begin his residence at John Peter Smith (Hospital) in Fort Worth this summer." That was his first choice, and he was the lone member of his class to receive a first choice for residency.

The news left his parents on "cloud nine." Theresa joked with Jimmy and her fellow bowlers that she might even "bowl a 200 game" that night, a feat she had never reached. Her best score of the evening: 214!

Gary, the oldest Stennett son, is a mortician and funeral director. Doug is a registered nurse and Mike, the youngest, is a Care Team member.

Doug and Mike's wives are both LVNs. Debbie, Gary's wife and a public school teacher, is the mother of the only Stennett grandchildren: Brandye and Tucker.

What does retirement hold for Theresa?

"Jimmy and I will travel some; we've never had much time to travel." She might play some golf with Jimmy and "We can do what we want to every day."

"Oh, yeah," Lockney will continue to be their home. "We certainly have no plans to move."

Lockney General Hospital has been an integral part of Theresa Stennett's life for the past 30 years, and the retirement will be somewhat akin to "loosing a member of the family." But she believes the time has come to "move on and leave it to younger people."

Pre-school clinic slated April 7

The annual pre-school registration clinic, sponsored by Athena Study Club, will be held on April 7 at the Lockney Elementary School from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. This is the 37th year that Athena has held the clinic.

Purpose of the clinic is to preregister all children who will be five years old on or before September 1, 1987, and who will be attending school for the first time. The clinic is also for children who are six years old but have never attended school previously.

CLINIC FREE

There is no charge for the clinic, which is open to all Lockney residents who will have children enrolled for the first time in Lockney schools in 1987.

Dr. W.J. Mangold and Dr. Gary Mangold will be on hand to conduct physical examinations of all children. Dr. Stewart Webb of Plainview will be screening for visual problems and Dr. Ricky Gross, Plainview dentist, will be giving examinations of the children's teeth.

Also South Plains Health Provider is expected to be on hand to administer any vaccinations in which those registering for school are lacking.

All of the services provided at the clinic are FREE and available to those preregistering children for school.

It is very important that all parents bringing their children to the pre-school clinic for preregistration purposes bring with them a copy of the child's birth certificate and a current immunization record. These are necessary to enroll any student in school.

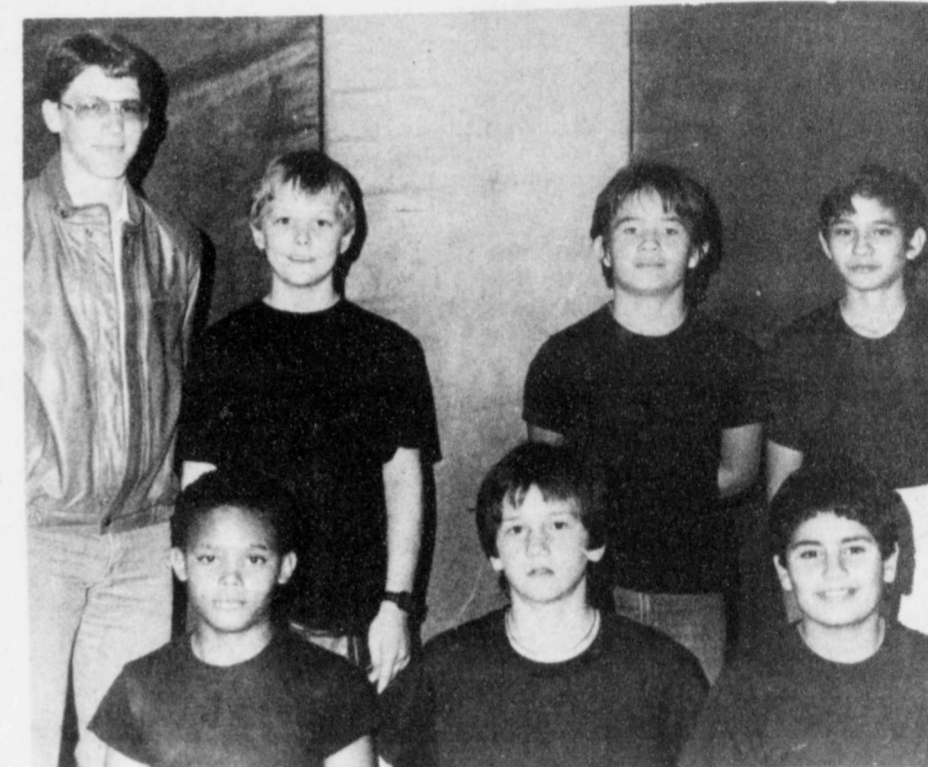

All parents of Lockney area children, who will be enrolling in the Lockney school system for the first time, are invited to bring their children to the clinic. "It will save time in getting the children enrolled for school as all their records and immunization information will be at the school on the first day of classes," officials point out.

Marketing loan makes for 'brighter' cotton picture

The cotton marketing loan provision of the current farm bill has given a big boost to the entire cotton industry, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The marketing loan, which adjusts the price of U.S. cotton to the world market price, has made American cotton more competitive abroad," points out Dr. Carl Anderson. "The result has been increased world trade, reduced foreign acreage and production, and expanded consumption of U.S. cotton."

All this has had a positive effect on the U.S. cotton producer and the cotton industry although government costs to fund the program (difference between world market price and government loan) have increased, says the economist. At the same time, global cotton prices have made a remarkable recovery from the low levels of mid-1986, and that means future government costs should be reduced.

"The marketing loan really gave a boost to cotton exports," notes Anderson. "After August 1, 1986, when the marketing loan was implemented, export commitments shot up. Almost 5 million bales went into the export market the next three months compared to less than 2 million bales for all of 1985. Domestic sales also accelerated and may be at the highest level since the 1986-87 marketing year since 7.25 million bales were sold in 1975."

Competitive prices and the marketing loan triggered an 11 percent decline in global cotton acreage from 1984 to 1986, notes Anderson. The slide was particularly sharp in China, where plantings dropped 36 percent. At the same time world cotton consumption has increased due to the increasing popularity of natural fibers for apparel use.

World cotton trade for the '86-87 marketing year is expected to jump 3 million bales to about 23 million. With these kinds of happenings, prospects look good for the U.S. to regain its past market share of about 30 percent of the international market.

Production in the export nations has dropped from 75 percent more than use in 1984 to only 30 percent more than use, notes the economist. As a result, ending stocks to use in export nations are declining to the lowest levels in three years.

"If the U.S. can keep a flexible cotton program with a price that is competitive on the world market, export prospects look good," says Anderson. "The high level of early U.S. export sales indicates that many importers will readily buy U.S. cotton under competitive price conditions."

While the cost of the marketing loan for cotton is estimated at more than $1 billion, the benefits are many, according to Anderson. There are savings from reduced CCC storage costs and loan forfeitures, and the increase in exports of both raw cotton and cotton textiles means increased economic activity.

The economist also estimates that direct government costs will likely decrease as much as 50 percent in 1987 and remain low in 1988 due to higher market prices.

"Program costs under the marketing loan will be considerably less than without it," emphasizes Anderson. "The marketing loan stimulates economic activity from increased exports and the indirect benefits of the increased U.S. textile mill activity. With U.S. mills operating on a competitive basis against foreign mills and favorable currency relationships, textile imports may decline from current high levels."

Anderson adds that the marketing loan makes U.S. agriculture more competitive as well as more productive while letting the global marketplace play a key role in adjusting production levels. Yet, U.S. farm exports must compete against foreign governments that have been willing to subsidize their producers and exports. Thus U.S. producers must remain highly productive to compete against low-cost foreign labor and rapidly improving technology abroad.

"This means that strong trade policies and trade agreements are essential to maintaining and expanding exports," emphasizes the economist. "A balanced program of macroeconomic policy designed to reduce the federal deficit, coordinated trade policies, and a market-sensitive and flexible farm policy are all needed for U.S. cotton to compete effectively with foreign production."

State wheat crop again threatened by leaf rust

Leaf rust again appears poised to deal a severe blow to the Texas wheat crop, and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is staying abreast of the situation to help producers with their decision-making.

Depending on weather conditions the next few months, the disease once again could reduce yields sharply, says Dr. Wendell Horne, plant pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The fungus-caused disease successfully "over-summered" last year and then infected the new wheat crop in the fall, Horne explains. Infected fields have been observed from South Texas to the Red River.

"With the current mild weather and good moisture conditions over much of the state, the disease could be devastating," says Horne.

The Extension Service has monitoring devices located over the state to track the disease and determine its development, Horne points out. These devices trap the disease-causing spores. The devices are checked weekly. Reports also go to county Extension agents, who in turn, advise farmers.

"We are working hard to monitor the situation as closely as possible so that a farmer can make an intelligent decision regarding chemical control, harvesting the crop for grain or grazing it out," Horne points out. "In addition to that, we are continuing to evaluate the susceptibility of various wheat varieties and to test the effectiveness of different fungicides."

All commonly-grown wheat varieties are susceptible to the rust fungus even though some offer resistance. The severity of the disease will depend a lot on moisture, since a high relative humidity must be present at the leaf surface for spores to germinate and penetrate, explains the plant disease specialist.

"While certain fungicides are effective against leaf rust, controlling the disease is a costly practice," says Horne. "That's why control is only practical when a farmer has a high yield potential—more than 40 bushels per acre—and leaf rust is the major limiting production factor."

Timing of the fungicide application is critical. The most effective time to apply a fungicide is when the flag leaf (last leaf) is emerging, Horne emphasizes. The flag leaf emerges just before head exertion and is most critical for head filling and grain maturity. Thus it should be protected from infection.

Water district making loans for equipment

If they act fast, area irrigators may be able to purchase and install agricultural water conservation equipment in time for their pre-plant irrigations. The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 has money available from a $1 million loan fund for qualified applicants who wish to purchase agricultural water conservation equipment.

Funds will be available until April 3, after which time the uncommitted funds may have to be returned to the Texas Water Development Board. However, the district has applied for an extension on the current loan for 60 days or until the district receives approval of a new loan application.

This extension, if approved, will keep loan money available during what would be a "lag" time between the date that unused funds are due to be returned to the TWDB and the date when the District could receive funds from a new loan application. The TWDB will meet to consider the loan extension on March 19.

Under the Pilot Agricultural Water Conservation Loan Program, combined loans made by the district total more than $400,000. These loans were made to help farmers purchase equipment including center pivot sprinkler systems, surge valves and laser land levelers.

Although the majority of the loans made thus far have been for center pivot sprinkler systems, other eligible agricultural water conservation equipment includes surge systems, furrow dikers, soil moisture monitoring equipment, laser land leveling equipment and computer software used in irrigation scheduling. Anyone farming land which lies within the High Plains Water District's service area is eligible to apply for a loan from the district.

The district operates the loan program on a self-supporting basis, charging a one-time administrative fee of 2.5 percent of the loan amount and 6.75 percent interest, which is the same interest rate the district pays on its loan to the TWDB.

The loan program is administered by the water district under contract with the TWDB, who operates the program under the provisions of the Pilot Agricultural Water Conservation Loan Program created by House Bill 2, which was approved by Texas voters in November 1985. The pilot program is scheduled for review by the Texas Legislature during this legislative session.

For more information about the agricultural loan program or to receive a copy of the district's guidelines or a loan application form, contact Becca Williams at the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, 2930 Avenue Q, Lubbock, Texas 79405, 806-762-0181.

Nozzle tip selection

By C. Mark Brown
Extension Agent-Entomology (PM)
Crosby/Floyd County

Because of today's chemical costs and the concern over pollution control and drift, proper and accurate chemical application is a must.

Nozzle tips are the most important part of a spray rig in regard to even distribution of chemicals. Yet, nozzle tips are undoubtedly the most mis-used, abused and neglected part of the sprayer. Nozzle tips should be carefully selected so that the nozzle type and size properly matches the intended spray operation.

Tips are made from such materials as aluminum, brass, stainless steel, nylon, hardened steel and tungsten carbide. The rate of nozzle wear depends on the make of the nozzle, spray pressure and the properties of the chemical being applied.

Nozzle tips should be replaced after a 10 percent variation in flow begins to occur. Hardened stainless steel tips are the most resistant to wear, followed by nylon. These more wear-resistant tips should be used when spraying wettable powder formulations.

Nozzle tips can wear out faster than most people realize. At higher pressures, aluminum or brass tips can be worn out in less than 10 hours of operation, depending on the chemical being applied.

The most commonly used nozzle types include: flat spray (tapered edges), flat spray (even edges), flood type, hollow cone, solid cone, and solid stream.

Flat spray or fan nozzles with tapered edges produce narrow, elliptical spray patterns. These are general purpose nozzles and are most often used for broadcast applications of herbicides, insecticides, fertilizers, etc. These nozzles are usually set on the boom to provide a 30 percent overlap on either side for even, broadcast application.

These nozzles can be purchased with various spray angles from 80° to 120°. The wider spray angles allow lower boom settings, and thus help control driftage.

Fan nozzles with even edges produce a narrow, uniform band-type spray pattern. Even edges are not recommended for broadcast operations. These nozzles should be used for band spraying of herbicides and fertilizers.

Flood nozzles are general purpose, high volume, broadcast nozzles that produce a large droplet size for herbicide or fertilizer application. They can be mounted at several different angles on the boom to produce the desired spray distribution.

Hollow cone nozzles concentrate most of the chemical at the outer edges of a conical spray pattern. They provide a small droplet size and even spray pattern. They can be used for band spraying or general purpose applications of insecticides, defoliants, growth inhibitors, etc.

Full cone nozzle tips produce a solid conical spray pattern, and are used for utility spraying, high volume spraying, or on recirculating sprayers.

Other nozzle types used for specialty spraying equipment include solid stream, twin fan and off-center tips.

Some of the most recent nozzle designs include quick-attachment nozzles that lock in place at the desired angle, and nozzle tips that are color-coded according to size and type.

The following suggestions will greatly increase nozzle tip life: Clean tips after each use. Water rinse and dry tips before storing. When unclogging tips, use a fine bristled brush or a toothpick—keep your pocketknife in your pocket.

NEW CHEMICAL REGISTERED FOR SOYBEANS

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has accepted registration of SALUTE 4EC herbicide for use alone as a preplant incorporated application for control of certain grass and broadleaf weeds infesting soybeans.

Plains Sorghum Producers will discuss farm program

Sorghum producers in the Texas Central Plains area will meet March 31 in Plainview, to discuss their options under the current farm program and compare it to the Market Oriented Production Plan proposed by the National Grain Sorghum Producers Association.

The NGSPPA plan, based on production goals set at the amount the market will absorb, would maintain exports, reduce government cost on sorghum production by 40 percent and more than triple the sorghum producer's net cash income. The plan was developed by sorghum leaders from six states who make up the board of the national association.

National Grain Sorghum Producers Association is sponsoring the meeting. Pat George, NGSPPA regional director, will be in charge. Other officers in the region are: Harley Wells and Guy Snelling, Hale County directors, and Warren Mitchell, Floyd County director.

National GSPA executive staff will be present to review the association's work in export and domestic market development, utilization research and the National Grain Sorghum Yield and Management Contest.

The meeting will be held at the Golden Corral Restaurant, 2606 Olton Road in Plainview at 7 p.m. A Dutch treat dinner is planned.

EXTENSION LAB DIAGNOSES PLANT DISEASE

Plant diseases impact strongly on agricultural crops as well as on the greenhouse and nursery industry of Texas, often causing heavy economic losses. The Texas Agricultural Extension Service Plant Disease Diagnostic Laboratory at Texas A&M University can help in diagnosing and controlling disease problems. Accurate diagnosis is of critical importance in effectively controlling plant diseases, says an Extension plant pathologist. Information on fees for the diagnostic service as well as instructions for submitting plant disease samples are available at any county extension office.

DEWORMING CATTLE PAYS

Deworming trials conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in cow-calf and stocker calf herds show that deworming is a profitable practice for beef producers. Production benefits of strategically timed deworming programs showed an average 28-pound advantage in weaning weights for spring-born calves from dewormed cows and a 16-pound gain advantage for stocker heifers dewormed in the spring. The 28-pound increase represents a 6 to 1 return for dollar invested, notes an Extension beef cattle specialist.

BEEF CONFERENCE SET FOR KERRVILLE

A special program dealing with beef cattle health will be held April 25-26 at the YO Hilton Hotel in Kerrville. The program is aimed at both beef cattle producers and veterinarians. Among discussion topics will be quality feeder calves, bull evaluation, maximizing immunity and minimizing stress in beef animals, parasite control, implants, beef checkoff, lean beef, supplemental feeding, estrous synchronization, drugs in cattle and brucellosis update, says an Extension veterinarian.

Resurrection...

Wonder of Christianity

For many Christians this is the season of Lent, forty days of intensive preparation for the season of the Resurrection (Easter). Resurrection is one of those theological words we have known since our childhood; it describes a saving and continuing event that is at the center of our consciousness. Like a great many good things, however, Resurrection has been discussed so much in a theological and past or historical way that the event itself has come to seem quite remote (as something that only happened to Jesus a long time ago). Too many of us have lost touch with the continuing dimension of Resurrection, the manner in which it is still an urgent part of our own living. It is more than something we believe. It is easier, of course, to debate the historical Resurrection or its place in our system of belief than it is to rediscover its dynamic power in our own day-to-day experience.

The wonder of Christianity lies in the way it continuously alerts us to the mysteries of ordinary living; it helps us always to see reality freshly, to perceive, in other words, how laden with truth and beauty our lives with each other really are. We are so accustomed to the various sour spots of everyday living that we find ourselves estranged from the marvels of living in a redeemed universe. Spiritual fulfillment always seems just around the bend or across the street, or something someone else has (they say) and I don't (they say). Our faith in the Resurrection, however, enables each of us to come alive again to the spiritual riches and opportunities that are close at hand. That is why the Lord said, in what I am told is the most accurate translation of the phrase, "the kingdom of God is in the midst of you". Resurrection completes the circle of our Christian experience. We are never left abandoned in the daily pain that makes us aware of the shadow of the cross in our lives; we never struggle alone but with a champion, Jesus, and his spirit. In following him, we are seeking One who has succeeded in doing what we are now trying to do. Seeking, struggle, suffering are not the end of things for the believer. Our faith helps us into our futures, bridging the moments of suffering with hope and giving a sense of meaning to our sacrifices as well as a sense of direction to our lives. Like Christ Jesus, a life lived for others empties us and scares us as well; but the reality of the Resurrection in our human experience fills us up again and heals us. We are never left gesturing against an empty sky or contemplating the darkness that has fallen around us. We need not merely grit our teeth and live as though life had no meaning. Resurrection, you see, is not just an intellectual promise, nor merely an historical event, but a daily experience for the Christian who knows that his faith lies not in just remembering and believing but in living here and now. How do we sense the ongoing mystery of the Resurrection in our own lives?

We have only to recall those moments in which we have felt enlarged or the times in which our lives have been deepened because of what somebody else has meant to us. We locate the Resurrection experience in our own lives by identifying those moments in which we have become more of ourselves; they are almost always related to the action of someone who has loved us enough to make the power of Resurrection a reality in our own lives. This happens, for example, when somebody trusts us, allowing us to find our own way without being manipulative. We are aware that the trusting person has not abandoned us and that, in fact, by giving us a vote of confidence he has given us some of his strength to help us find the way that is right for us.

The power of the Resurrection may become a reality in our lives when somebody responds with genuine understanding of us and some trial we may be experiencing. The understanding person does not necessarily agree or disagree with us, but he sees into our life in a way that enables us to see more of ourselves at the same time. Just to understand another person does not seem like much to that kind of person who feels that he must be busy altering and planning the lives of others with the intensity of a do-it-yourself home hobbyist. Just as home hobbyists sometimes make doors and windows that don't quite fit, so too the amateur activist's plans for others frequently do not fit. Indeed, to understand another person is a great thing, a hard work and requiring an absence of self-dedication - perhaps, in certain circumstances, the greatest experience of Resurrection that we can offer to another (as we await what only God can do).
