Portuguese language, different lifestyle in store for Lockneyite

Tracy Beedy future missionary

Learning a new language will be one of the major obstacles to Tracy Beedy as she prepares to become a baptist missionary in Brazil.

Miss Beedy spent the first 27 years of her life conversing and reading strictly in English. Now, she plans to spend one year in a Brazil language school learning Portuguese.

After attending the language school for one year and mastering Portuguese, she will be assigned as coordinator for Holistic ministries — a ministry designed to meet all human needs: spiritual, physical and emotional. She will be working under auspices of Brazilian Baptist Convention in the state of Bahia, located in the northeast part of Brazil.

Bahia is "about the same size as Texas," the Lockney native says. "But Bahia is not by any means the largest state in Brazil."

Miss Beedy explains that "I will have an office in the state Baptist building, but I won't be in it very much." This will be in Salvador, capital city of Bahia.

LARGE AREA

Her work will leave her highly mobile, "serving throughout the entire state." Her duties will be a mixture of agriculture, coordinating medical work and possibly community development, nutrition and maybe a little education.

"I will not be directly involved in the medical field, but I will be attempting to persuade doctors to volunteer their time to serve in specific areas."

She anticipates working with other missionaries, most of whom are involved in the fields of agriculture and education.

Due to her dedication, Miss Beedy has only minor reservations — "I know I'll get homesick for Lockney" — about her future. She realizes that she will not have an opportunity to return home on furlough for a minimum of three years.

She is, however, anxious to get started. During the transition period, she will be learning about a different culture and "I'll be learning their language and customs in order to get around."

She has no experience with Portuguese. "They don't want me to learn any Portuguese until I get there so that I can learn their accent." She adds that "Portuguese is similar to Spanish and it is not terribly difficult to learn. They use the same letter system we use."

While residing in an apartment in Campinas when she first arrives in Brazil, she is to study for one year at a language school operated by the Brazilian Baptist Convention.

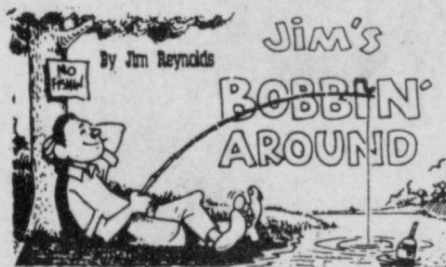

"So far as I know I will be living alone the first year," she says.

Campanas is a suburb of Sao Paulo, a major Brazilian city. Portuguese is "the main language in that area." It is the common language for the whole country.

Miss Beedy anticipates using her agricultural background extensively in Brazil.

Risk probability for coronary event established by electrocardiography

[CORRECTION: In a Beacon article last week explaining the new ultrasound system at the hospital, administrator Terry Keltz placed cost of the equipment at "approximately $30,000." However, a typographical error showed the value to be $3,000 instead of the correct $30,000.]

[Third in a series]

A Marquette Electronics Case 12 Exercise Electrocardiography System at Lockney General Hospital-Cogdell Clinic is described by Dr. William E. Prater Jr. as being used "to establish a risk probability factor for a coronary event in the next five years."

The newest member of the hospital-clinic staff says the instrument is "another clinic tool — not cut and dried — which gives us the feel" for diagnosing the likelihood of a future cardiac event.

Patients for whom the electrocardiography might be particularly beneficial are described by a recent medical journal article which addresses "Who Should Undergo Exercise Testing?" It states:

EXERCISE TESTING

"It is felt that if a subject at least 40 years old is considering beginning an exercise program, then an exercise test should probably be done as a baseline evaluation.

"For the general health evaluation (the annual or biannual physical examination), the role of the exercise test is still in question. If a patient is 'health-oriented' and desires a comprehensive evaluation of his or her health profile, including the risk of experiencing coronary events, then the exercise test should be performed.

"The exercise test is an excellent predictor of coronary events, and if there is a negative result at a high level of functional capacity, the likelihood of developing coronary artery disease in the future is quite low.

"In high-risk patients (those with elevated blood pressure and cholesterol and who are cigarette smokers) the exercise test is appropriate for evaluation and detection of myocardial ischemia. The test is of particular benefit in this group in predicting future coronary events."

Other individuals who might be advised to take the exercise test are those who are overweight, those who have a family history of coronary attacks and previous coronary patients whose physical condition is being monitored.

The "screening tool" allows the doctor to determine whether further testing for a blockage or other problems is deemed necessary.

"It will allow us to provide services not previously available" at the local medical facility, Dr. Prater emphasizes.

LATEST TECHNOLOGY

Terry Keltz, administrator of the clinic-hospital, places cost of the elec-trocardiography system at "around $25,000." Keltz terms the instrument as "the latest technology" in its field.

It was installed last week.

Keltz explains that the device "does all 12 leads of an electric cardiogram at the same time during an exercise."

The 12 "leads" allow various areas of cardiac muscles to be examined.

The system has a computer that controls the phases of the exercise. Speed and grade of the treadmill are controlled by the computer, which also performs various analysis of the ECG (EKG or electrocardiogram) signals. It also controls time the treadmill is held at that setting.

Time a patient spends on the machine varies according to one's age and physical condition. The attending physician determines when the exercise should be terminated, frequently at the suggestion of the patient.

The system is equipped with a 10 megabyte Winchester hard disc that allows complete storage of all patient ECG data. This gives the physician "post-test analytical capabilities by allowing him to call up previous ECGs for review."

Another feature is a micro-floppy disc drive for storage and playback of previous ECGs.

Keltz, who administered numerous EKGs in a former position, says an updated machine, such as the one installed at the local medical facility, has been needed "for years." He explains that all muscles emit signals. The electrocardiography system screens or filters artifacts so the physician can evaluate signals specifically from cardiac muscles.

TRUE HEART SIGNALS

This system uses its computer to decipher the true heart signal and to eliminate respiratory artifacts. Older machines were unable to separate and define cardiac muscle signals from those originating from other muscles.

Data on different types of exercises can be stored on the computer and called up at a later date when needed by

NO EXCUSES

People have a multitude of excuses for not attending church, a few original but most being the same old stuff.

The Rev. Debbie Drash, pastor of St. Luke's United Methodist Church in Baton Rouge, La., decided on a "No Excuses" Sunday.

Anyone away from church that Sunday had better have a GOOD excuse. Suggestions offered to deter the normal excuses include:

- * For people who say, "Sunday is my only day to sleep in," cots will be placed in the church foyer.

- * The member who claims "the roof would cave in if I ever went to church" will be provided with a steel crash helmet.

- * For those who think the church is too cold, blankets will be available; for those who think it's too hot, fans.

- * For those who say the preacher speaks too softly, hearing aids, for those who say she speaks too loudly, ear plugs.

- * TV dinners will be given to those who claim they can't go to church and also cook Sunday dinner.

- * For those who like to see God in nature, one corner of the sanctuary will be landscaped with trees, grass and a fishing pond.

- * Those who enjoy Sunday golf will

Final non-district football outing on Friday

The following Friday the Horns host

Springlake-Earth in the first of five District 3-AA encounters which will determine whether the Longhorns advance into the playoffs.

Coach Jim Clark's youthful Longhorns have gained experience in the four non-conference battles to date. This experience has been invaluable to the team which has a number of underclassmen in the line.

Muleshoe, which owns a 3-1 record, has its best team in several seasons. The Mules are one of five (from a six-team loop) District 2-AAA squads which could enter league warfare with 5-0 or 4-1 records.

They have beat Olton 35-12, Hart 28-0 and Springlake-Earth 39-0. The lone Muleshoe setback was 13-7 at the hands of Boys Ranch.

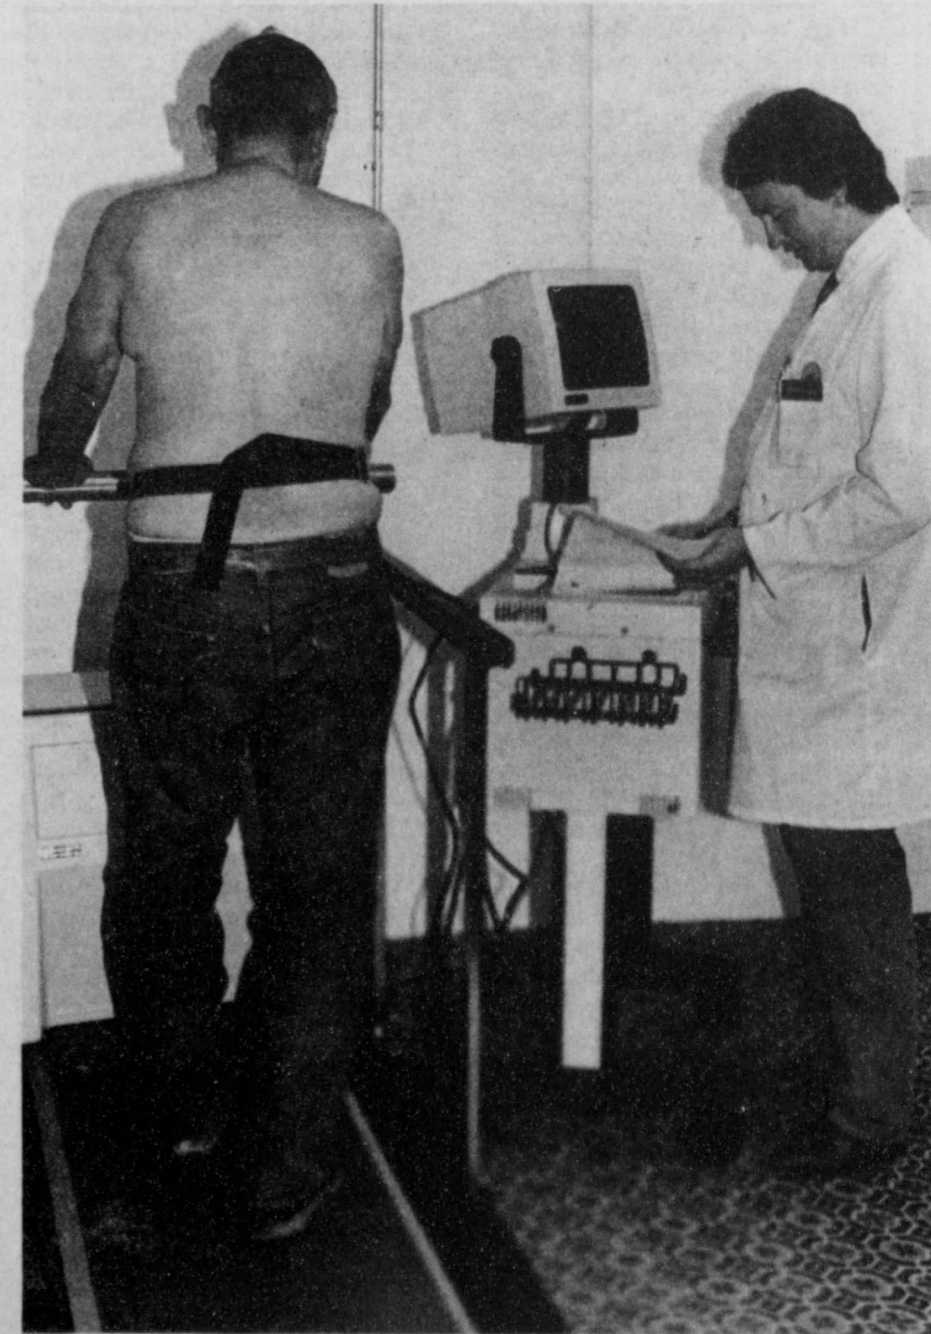

New senior center complete

The new Lockney Senior Citizens Center is complete, except for the installation of the vent-a-hood, and is being prepared for the upcoming open house on October 11. The public is cordially invited to attend the open house from 2:00 to 4:00 that Sunday and see the building.

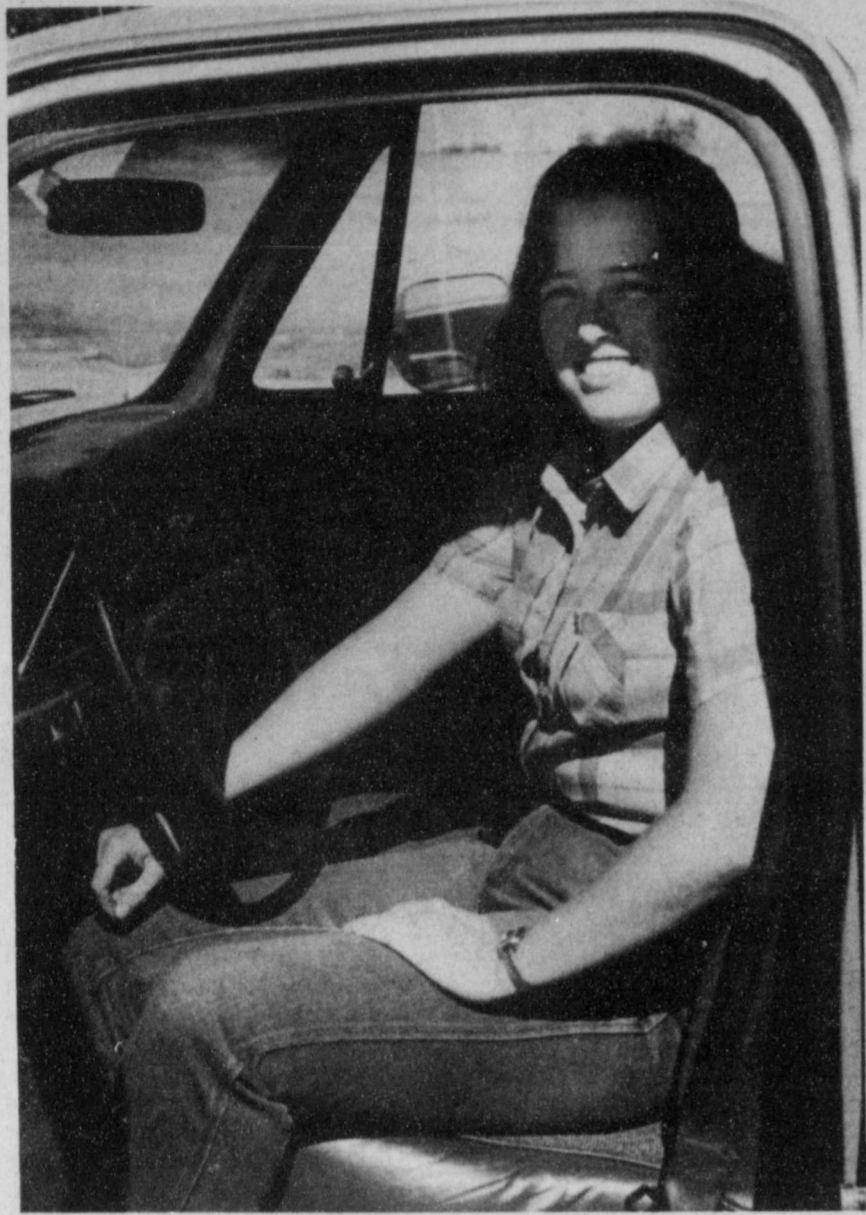

All the kitchen items have been put in cabinets and drawers and a chairperson has been appointed to head each and every aspect of the open house so that all will be ready for the "Big Day."

In addition to the open house, monthly events for October will include a salad supper on October 1 at 6:30 p.m. and the monthly birthday party will be a costume event at the end of the month, so everyone needs to begin thinking about what costume they will wear.

TRACY BEEDY

Portuguese language, different lifestyle in store for Lockneyite

Tracy Beedy future missionary

World War II."

Tracy Beedy has followed in her father's footsteps in several areas. The only daughter of Austin and Clara Beedy secured a private pilot's license at age 18 and currently is working toward a commercial license. Her dad has been an aerial sprayer for "over 30 years."

Miss Beedy, who regards her future mission endeavors as "both interesting and challenging," graduated from Lockney High School in 1978 and enrolled in Texas A&M University. Four years later, 20 percent of the degrees in Agronomy go to women.

PREPARATION

"Much" of her life since being called into the ministry seven years ago has been in preparation for mission work. She returned to Lockney for 18 months following her graduation from Texas A&M and then was associated with an agricultural chemical company in Plainview for 2½ years. For the past year she has studied at the Southwest Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth.

Why, one wonders, did she not immediately enter the mission field following graduation?

"The board (Southern Baptist Convention Foreign Missions Board) will not appoint anyone who does not have two years of actual experience in their specialty field," she relates. Her "field" is agriculture.

Her future does present a challenge. In addition to learning a new language and new customs, her mission assignment is to the country with the largest Catholic population in the world. Brazil is followed in this category by Italy and Poland, and, in fourth place, the United States.

Tracy Beedy is allowing herself the luxury of free time, a commodity she has not been long on, prior to Oct. 12, when she begins her journey to Brazil. Leaving from Lubbock, she will fly to Dallas, Atlanta, Miami, Rio and finally Sao Paulo.

Then comes a major transition in the life of the Lockneyite. But not everything will change, because once her actual mission work gets underway she will be permitted to wear jeans and boots in the field. This will allow her the luxury of shades of West Texas in Brazil. come a missionary in 1980 while attending Texas A&M University.

MISSIONARY CAREER

"I expect to have a career with the board" (Southern Baptist Convention Foreign Missions Board), she explains. Her tenure in Brazil is indefinite.

"The way things are changing now, it is doubtful that any missionary would spend his entire career in the same country," she remarks. Baptist missionaries normally serve flexible two to four year terms.

Although Brazil's population is 95 percent Catholic and the nation has "the largest Catholic population in one country in the world," Southern Baptist work is making rapid strides.

"We're getting churches together faster than we (Southern Baptists) can put buildings up," Miss Beedy says, adding that certain Brazil mission fields are "just exploding."

A young male American missionary — "I had one class with him at seminary but I never really got acquainted" — will "do nothing but build church buildings." He is "about six months ahead of me" in reaching Brazil.

"Three" Southern Baptist seminaries have been founded in Brazil.

Since learning that her mission appointment is to Brazil, Miss Beedy has learned as much as possible about the nation. It is "a large country and a country with wide contrasts." The Amazon River area is a rain forest, while the northeast sector is "kind of a desert grassland, similar to Central Texas. The southern part of Brazil is rolling grassland."

COFFEE, COCOA REVENUE

In Brazil, "Lots of their revenue comes from exports of coffee and cocoa. They still have large sugar plantations." Southern Brazil has become a major soybean production area, which is highly competitive with U.S. soybean producers.

By contrast, Sao Paulo is "a major manufacturing center which is similar to New York City. "Thirteen million plus" persons reside in Sao Paulo.

The Lockneyite mentions an area of southern central Brazil which is populated primarily by German migrants. "A good deal of German and Italian immigration came after the physician. "Once the patient is hooked up," Keltz says, "the new electrocardiography system is capable of completing a 12-lead EKG in 12 seconds.

A visual reading is available on the screen, in addition to a "hard copy" being produced and data being stored on a floppy disc.

"During a test, if the patient has arrhythmia (abnormal heartbeat or abnormal heart rhythm) the machine has the ability to check and record the arrhythmia without being prompted to do so," Keltz adds.

After a patient's data — age, height, weight and medication — are entered, the equipment computes the target heart rate for the patient. At the conclusion of the test, the computer presents the percentage of attainment of the target rate. A "final report" also is produced.

The electrocardiography system is the third major — and ultramodern — piece of equipment added at Lockney General Hospital-Cogdell Clinic in recent weeks.

Battle heats for Dallas Cowboys grid tickets

Contention for the tickets to the Dallas Cowboys, Miami Dolphins football game on November 22, in Dallas, is heating up as we draw to midseason of our annual football contest. This will be the second year in a row that the Lockney Beacon will award tickets to some lucky winner.

Heading this year's race for the tickets are Slick Stennett and Johnny Dorman who each have 40 points. They came in tying this week after the fourth week of point tabulations.

Closely following Stennett and Dorman are Boyd Lee, Mike Means, and Kenneth Wofford with 39 points each. Having a total tally of 38 points are Dickie McCarty, Dr. Gary Mangold and girls, and Cindy Means.

Joining the ticket race with 37 points are Joe Copeland, Retha Wofford, Jared Mosley and Roy Saucedo. Following close behind them with 36 points are Ronnie Hardin, Eddie Fortenberry and Karla Josey. Having 35 points are W.L. Carthel and Phil Cotham and having totals of 34 points each are Glenda Wilson and Clementine Carthel.

It is very important for those wishing to stay in the ticket race to enter each week. Entries must be delivered to the Beacon office no later than 5:00 p.m. each Friday. All the above mentioned entrants in the contest are still in contention for the tickets. All it takes is one week of upsets for the totals to change so keep those entries coming in.

FOURTH WEEK WINNERS

Winners in the fourth week of the football contest were three young men who each missed three on their contests. They will each receive checks for their efforts.

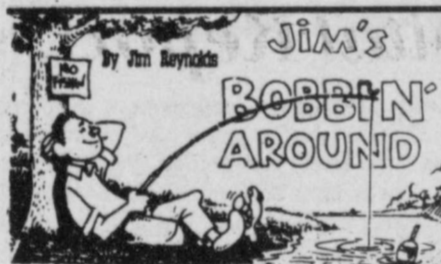

Taking first place were brothers Jared and Johnnie Mosley, each missing four on their entries. They both were seven points off the tie breaker score. Jared had a total of 35 points and Johnnie had a total of 21. The brothers will split the first and second place money and will receive a check for $8.00 each.

Taking third place in the contest was Boyd Lee who also missed only three games, but was eight points off the tie breaker score. Lee will receive the third place check of $4.00.

We would also like to give honorable mention to those who only missed four in the contest this week. They include Mike and Cindy Means, Kenneth and Retha Wofford, Johnny Dorman, Roy Saucedo, Phil Cotham, W.L. Carthel, Randy Hancock, Philip Garza, Karla Josey and Dale Jahay.

For those wondering, we did not count any of the pro games this week, therefore there were only 12 available points on the contest. Also, everyone missed the two college games which ended in a tie. If you feel that there is going to be a tie score in a game it must be indicated on the entry as such.

Winners in this week's contest may pick up their checks at the Beacon office on Friday of this week.

WHO NEEDS A NEW CAR?

So proud was Joe of his brand new car. He still liked his car as it grew older, but finally the clunker's speedometer showed 97,000 miles and Father Time was taking his toll on the vehicle.

Deciding it was time for a change, the old gent began shopping for a new car. However, a salesman at each dealership he visited had a car "just right" for the fellow but shook his head and explained that he couldn't offer much trade-in on the old jalopy because it was a high-mileage car.

At six dealerships, he received the same story. At the seventh dealership a fellow told him it was illegal, but suggested that the man roll back his speedometer. He followed the advice and rolled the speedometer back to 25,000 miles.

"You're still driving the old car," his shocked wife exclaimed when he returned home. "I thought you were going to trade."

"No need to trade," the old gent replied. "This car only has 25,000 miles on it!"

RINGING IN EARS

A lady complained to the doctor about having a constant "ringing" in her ears.

When asked what she should do about it, the doctor suggested that she get an unlisted number.

Virginia Strickland is featured artist at bank

Virginia Strickland has been the artist of the month at the First National Bank for September.

Strickland has been painting all her life, but began studying with Carl Pruitt at San Jacinto College in Pasadena, California in 1977. She also studied in Austin with Carol Gibson Sayle in addition to attending many workshops and studying with other artists.

She was born and raised in the Cedar Hill community and among her other works of art, she was commissioned by several family members to copy a painting she had done of her grandmother's home place. She ended up making three copies of her original work.

Strickland lived in Galveston and while there co-owned an art gallery with three other artists. She was commissioned to do several art works that included oil fields and lots of landscapes and seascapes. One of these commissions included a four foot by six foot painting which she commented "took several months to complete."

Though she has only completed one painting in recent years due to recovering from heart problems, she looks forward to the time when she can go back to painting full time. She and husband, Leonard moved back to Lockney three years ago.

Among her hobbies, in addition to painting, Strickland says she likes to fish and travel.

Virginia and Leonard have two children, Tommy who lives in Duchesne, Utah and Carol who lives in Austin.

Evans, Reed united in marriage

A formal ceremony uniting Reagan Reed and Kevin Evans was held at 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 26, in the 9th and Columbia Church of Christ in Plainview. The private family ceremony was conducted by Johnny Peck of the Garland Street Church.

Parents of the couple are Tommy and Alice Reed of Chino, California and Bill and Karen Evans of Lockney.

The couple exchanged nuptials while standing before an area adorned with woodwardia palms and brass candelabras. Candelabras held bouquets of red roses and baby's breath.

Musical selections for the event were presented by "His Image Singers" of Tula.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight lace and satin with a high neckline and sleeves coming to a point at the hands. The bodice was covered in candlelight lace down over the hips joining the satin skirt below the hips. The back was accented with a low "V" and a bow at the neckline. Six rows of pearls and iridescent beads were strung across the "V." The lace was highlighted with sequins, beads and pearls. All of the beading was done by Ruth Reed, grandmother of the bride. The bride's bouquet was a refined crescent of white cymbidium orchids, red roses and baby's breath.

In times like these... By Mary Jo Fielding

A defector has bared Cuba's secrets. In two programs beamed repeatedly to Cuba on U.S. sponsored Radio Marti, Aspillaga Lombard, 40, a soft-spoken and a much major in the Cuba's intelligence service told of his defection to the U.S., out of disgust and frustration with the Castro regime.

According to U.S. officials, Aspillaga walked off his job as Cuba's intelligence chief in Fraque on June 6, drove an embassy car across the border to Austria, and introduced himself to the U.S. diplomats in Vienna. His crossover came just nine days after the defection of another high-ranking Cuban official, Air Force Brigadier General Rafael del Pino Diaz, who has also been heard on Radio Marti. Apparently neither Aspillaga nor Del Pino knew the other planned to defect.

In Aspillaga's radio broadcasts from Washington, where he is being debriefed by the CIA, he described Castro's lavish lifestyle. The Cuban leader, he claims, has a private fleet of yachts and keeps a luxury home in each of Cuba's 14 provinces. While the populace contends with housing shortages, Castro reserves "hundreds of houses in Havana's Jaimanitas section for the use of the security guards and aides."

The most damaging revelations concern the extent and nature of Cuba's intelligence and military operations. According to Aspillaga, Cuba has steadily acquired U.S. technology, in violation of the American trade ban, through Panamanian Strongman Manuel Antonio Nosiega, who reaped millions from the transactions. Noriega, he said, helped Cuba send arms to Nicaragua and to rebel groups in El Salvador, Honduras and Colombia.

Horns fall to Winds Friday night

"I thought the team played really good in spots, but we hurt ourselves with mistakes in key situations," said Coach Jim Clark summing up Lockney's defeat at the hands of the Whirlwinds last Friday night. The Horns fell to the Winds by a score of 28 to 0. This is the first time the Winds have claimed the county championship trophy since 1983.

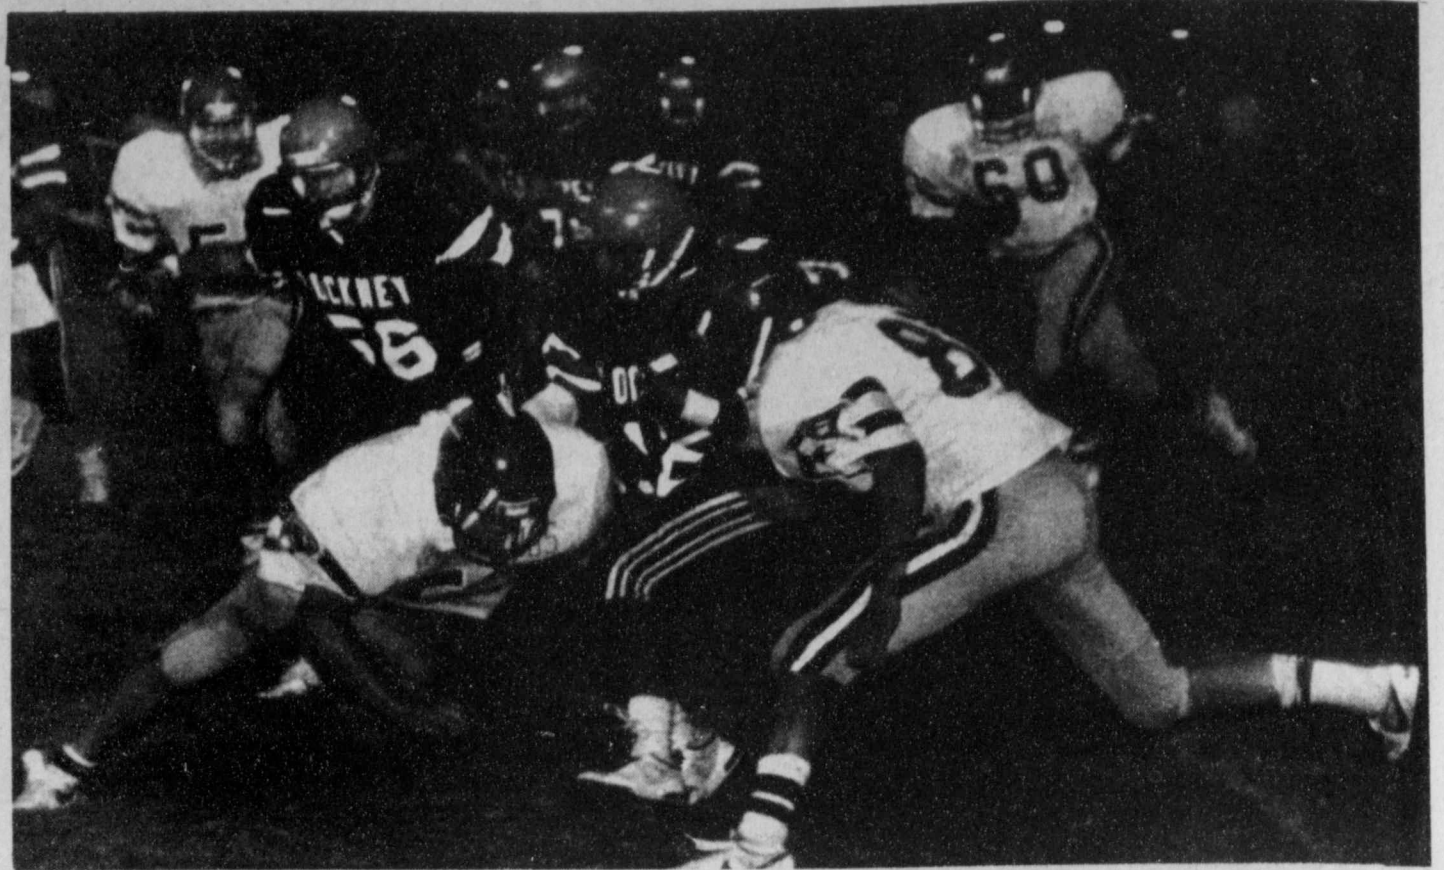

Clark also commented "Overall, we played the best we could, it just so happened that they were a little better that night than we were. Mistakes were our main downfall. Three of their four touchdowns came from 20 yards or less out and those came after we lost the ball through turnovers. After viewing the films I feel that the boys put out a good effort, they just couldn't contain Floydada like we might have liked. In all it was a good, clean game for both teams.

FACING MULESHOE
This Friday night the Horns will face Muleshoe, there, in their last game before district play begins.

Of the game Coach Clark said, "Muleshoe is tough. They have been down for the past two years, but this year they are much improved and will play alot like Floydada. In order for us to win, we will have to contain Michael Dunham (#44). He is by far the best player on the team, both offensively and defensively and we have to control him. It will take a solid effort by the line to be able to move the ball."

Taking on Muleshoe, the Horns are in good shape, physically. Joel Mitchell got a deep bruise on his shoulder and Javier Bernal aggravated his knee injury during the Floydada game. Other than that the team is in physically good shape. Wesley Teeter will be suiting up for the Springlake-Earth game, which will open district play on October 10.

KEEPER — Quarterback Jimmy Ballejo takes the ball up field through two Wind players as teammate Joel Mitchell (#66) looks on. The Horns lost their bid to keep the county championship trophy by a score of 28 to 0. This is the first time since 1983 that the Winds have been able to take the trophy home. It has been in Lockney since 1984. — Staff photo

Eighth grade Shorthorns downed

The eighth grade Shorthorns also fell victim to the Winds by a score of 22 to 6 last Thursday in their bout played on Horn home turf.

Lockney's only score of the game came in the fourth quarter when Juan Vargas took the ball in from four yards out. The conversion attempt failed.

Of his team, coach Marcy Kemp commented, "When we eliminate the major mistakes we are making, we will be on the long end of the score card. We are improving each week. We will compete favorably once we enter district play, which will be on October 8 in Springlake-Earth."

The eighth grade Shorthorns now have a record of 0 and 2.

Seventh grade falls to Winds

The Lockney seventh grade Shorthorns fell to the Floydada Whirlwinds last Thursday in a 20 to 8 decision, played in Lockney last Thursday afternoon.

The Shorthorns only score came in the fourth quarter when Damian Luna took a quarterback sneak up the middle. The play was set up by Sammy Salas. Salas added two points on a run over the left tackle.

The Winds scored on an intercepted pass return and a run through the line in the first quarter, and on a six yard run in the fourth quarter.

Outstanding Lockney players in the game were Sammy Salas with 16 carries for 67 yards, Chris Gonzales with 6 carries for 12 yards and Daniel Perez with 3 carries for 14 yards.

JV shut out by Floydada

The Lockney junior varsity football team traveled to Floydada last Thursday to face the Winds and were shut out by a score of 18 to 0.

The Winds scored touchdowns in the first, second and fourth quarters of the game.

"We did not block Floydada well enough to move the ball on them. They didn't break any long runs on us, they just marched the ball down the field on us. Each of the touchdown runs was less than five yards long," commented coach Phil Cotham.

National Yearbook Week noted October 4-10

The school yearbook, an integral part of American culture, receives much deserved recognition during the first National Yearbook Week, October 4-10.

The Yearbook Printers Association (YPA), an organization representing the major yearbook printers in the United States, initiated the effort to recognize the work of scholastic yearbook journalists. Senate and House of Representatives co-sponsors introduced a joint resolution which was subsequently passed and signed by President Reagan.

The resolution acknowledges that student involvement in yearbook production develops journalistic, photographic and business skills.

Yearbook experience teaches planning, organizing, writing, editing, sales, marketing, photography and design. Yearbook production requires business, artistic and mathematical skills as much as it requires language skills.

"Establishing a recommitment to the historical value of yearbooks is one of the goals of National Yearbook Week," according to J.E. Peters, vice president of Sales and Marketing for Taylor Publishing Company and YPA member.

Due to the economic climate and a shift in the emphasis of educational curriculum, many schools throughout the country have restructured academic programs. Journalism and yearbook courses have suffered as a result.

Vernon. Juniors in the class are Sonia Garcia and Raetta Starnes.

Members of the journalism class at Lockney High School who will be making up the 1988 edition of the LHS Roundup include seniors Rosellen Arjona, Ron Cates, Fernando Elias, Carol Gonzales, Todd Hallmark, Julia Segovia, Connie Vasquez, and Donna

The journalism class will be selling 1988 annuals on Tuesday, October 13. Cost of the books will be $12 each at that time and must be paid for at that time. If the order is not placed and paid for on that day, the price will be increased to $15.
