

City of Lockney ends fiscal year 'in the black'

The city of Lockney ended its 1988-89 fiscal year "in the black" the council was told Thursday morning during its regular monthly meeting.

This year's ending balance was $14,334.00.

A budget of $627,817.00 was adopted for the 1989-90 fiscal year. "Only 10%, or $62,780.00 of this money comes from property tax," stated Mayor Dan Smith.

A deficit budget was adopted in 1988 and several items have been purchased that were not budgeted for. The city spent $8,600 for a tractor, $14,000.00 for a computer, $20,000 on the landfill, the water tower was painted, work was done on the swimming pool and several houses were demolished.

Questioning the mayor after the meeting about where the money comes from for these unbudgeted expenditures he replied, "In drawing up the budget we try to be very conservative with income and liberal with expenses. Due to past cost cutting we had the funds available to make the necessary purchases and repairs needed. In the fiscal year just finished several major items had to be replaced or repaired. The city is now going on it's own in-house computer and is ready for the 1990's."

Property taxes were raised 3% and the garbage fee was raised by $2.00 making Lockney one of the towns in this area with the lowest taxes, according to Dan Smith, "This is in keeping with the traditional conservative fiscal policies the city of Lockney follows."

"In February, 1990 the final payment will be made on City Hall and the city of Lockney will be in better financial condition," the Mayor told the council.

The budget after discussion was voted on and accepted.

The council received one bid for the purchase of a backhoe. Yellowhouse Machinery, of Lubbock, bid $28,057 with trade in, for a John Deere 210-C with cab.

Jeff Rowland, representing Yellowhouse Machinery explained the six month warranty covering the machine and the additional 18 month warranty on the power train.

After discussion, Alderman Johnson made the motion to accept the bid from Yellowhouse and Alderman Copeland seconded the motion.

A contract for street work was considered and tabled.

Violet Cooper was named manager of the swimming pool. Mayor Smith later complimented Cooper's work saying, "We appreciate the work Violet has done in the past and look forward to her managing the pool in 1989."

Alderman Aston reported that the sealing of the rock at the pool will be finished before the pool opens, and that the fence needed to be treated.

Mayor Smith said that the sign that designated that the fence was erected courtesy of Caprock Industries was ready to be hung.

The discussion on dances at the Community Center was tabled until City Attorney Paul Lyle was present.

Alderman Johnson reported that the 911 system regional meeting will be held next week and that he will attend.

City Secretary Erma Lee Duckworth reported that the computer would be here on Thursday.

A report was given on the dirt the city is hauling in to fill holes in the streets. The highway department is cleaning out bar ditches East of Lockney and the city is using its truck to do this work.

First items on the agenda included the paying of the bills and the reading of the minutes of the previous regular and called meetings.

Present were Mayor Dan Smith, Alderman Jerry Johnson, J.D. Copeland, Gary Marr, Ronnie Aston and Kenneth Wofford; City secretary Erma Lee Duckworth; Dickie McCarty, superintendent of the Street and Water Department; Jeff Rowland, representative of Yellowhouse Machinery and The Beacon reporter.

1989 CITIZENSHIP GIRLS--Sundai Workman, Loretta Turner, Jessica Marks and Melinda Basaldua, seniors at Lockney High School, were honored by the El Progreso Study Club at a dinner held Tuesday, April 3. The girls are recognized for citizenship, character, leadership and scholarship. Staff Photo by Neta Marble

LHS girls earn citizenship honors

Sundai Workman, Jessica Marks, Loretta Turner and Melinda Basaldua, along with their mothers, were recently honored by the El Progreso Study Club as the 1989 Citizenship Girls from Lockney High School. The young ladies are chosen each year by the faculty using scholarship, citizenship, character and leadership as guidelines for their selection.

The young ladies and their mothers were treated to supper at the Golden Corral restaurant in Plainview last Tuesday night. They, along with club members, enjoyed a trip to the soup and salad bar with custom made sundays for dessert.

Following the meal Merle Mooney asked those present to introduce themselves and then expressed her pride, and that of the club, in the young ladies for being selected as the 1989 honorees.

She then gave a brief history of the Citizenship Girls.

Selection of the Citizenship Girls began in 1953 by the Business and Professional Women's Club. That organization disbanded in 1987 and El Progreso took over "with great pride," the tradition of honoring four outstanding members of the graduating class.

For the past 34 years, four senior girls have been honored annually. During the first two years an eighth grade girl was also honored. That practice was discontinued after the second year.

Including the 1989 honorees, 144 young ladies have been selected as Citizenship Girls and Mooney commented, "It is an honor to be selected as a Citizenship Girl, and we are very proud of you four who this year have been added to that long list."

Mooney had also researched through past honorees and found that several of El Progreso's members had daughters who were honored in the past. These include Arla Copeland's daughter, Frances, who was among the first honorees in 1953. Alice Mitchell's and Faye Ferguson's daughters, Shirley and Debra, were honored in 1959. Dimon Schacht's daughter, Nancy, was chosen in 1961. Faye Ferguson's second daughter, Jonita, was selected in 1964. Kathleen Thornton's daughter, Patricia, was honored in 1965 and Linnie Abbott's daughter, Linda, was chosen in 1966. Mooney's daughter Debby, was selected in 1968, and in 1969 her step-daughter, Debby, was selected.

Mooney told the honorees and their mothers that the new plaque bearing their names will be hung in the LHS library along with the plaques from past years. She also told an interesting story of the first plaque. The plaque from 1953 and 1954 was misplaced and had not been seen for several years. It was found in recent years in the old boiler room. "How it got there and why it was put there may never be known; however, we are very glad that it has been found and will now hang in the library with the others."

Following Mooney's presentation, each of the girls was called on to tell about one of the other honorees. They each gave descriptions of what activities and events the girls have been involved in through their high school years, what activities they participated in outside school and what their future plans include.

Schools celebrate Library Week

The libraries of Lockney Independent School District will join with other libraries across the nation in celebrating National Library Week April 9-15. Among the activities planned are a reading contest in elementary school with winners receiving T-shirts and a faculty tea in high school to show new acquisitions.

The Lockney school libraries contain not only books but many audio-visual materials such as filmstrips, videos, cassettes, and slides. They, thus, qualify as Library Media Centers (LMC). The main objective of the school library is to support school curricula which are designed to make students self-supporting, self-governing, self-educating, and contributing members of society. By using the library the student is able to find information independently on any subject of interest.

Instruction in library/information skills takes place in one-to-one situations between the library media specialist and the student as well as in large group sessions. The library curriculum is intended to produce an adult who feels at home in a library setting, recognizes the potential for continuing his education through the use of libraries, and serves his community as an active informed citizen.

Lockney school libraries are staffed fulltime by long-time aides: Charlotte Brock, high school, eight years of experience; Emma Collins, junior high, eight years of experience; and Naomi Johnston, elementary school, 18 years of service. In addition, the Lockney I. S. D. employs Carolyn Courtney, a certified librarian, on a part-time basis. Mrs. Courtney holds the bachelor's and master's degrees and has done post-graduate work in library science at the University of North Texas.

Pre-school clinic scheduled April 19

The 39th annual pre-school clinic, sponsored by Athena Study Club, will be held on Wednesday, April 19, at Lockney Elementary School, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

The purpose of the annual event is to pre-register youngsters who will enter the Lockney school system for the first time in September 1989. Included is this category are children who will reach their fifth birthday on or before September 1, 1989, and who are attending school for the first time. Also, children who are six years old and have never attended school previously should be at this clinic.

As in years past, children will receive a physical examination, vision screening, dental exams and speech screening. Conducting the physicals will be Drs. W.J. Mangold, Gary Mangold, and W.E. Prater. Dr. Stewart Webb will conduct the vision screening, Dr. Ricky Cross will examine teeth and Karen Quebe will hold the speech screening.

Also on hand will be South Plains Health Provider, which will give free immunizations for those who need them. The entire clinic is free to all those who have children who will be entering Lockney schools in September 1989.

It is very important that parents bring the child's birth certificate and immunization records, school officials say.

In addition to being screened for health, vision, dental and speech problems, children will also be pre-enrolled in kindergarten. Pre-registration of children saves time for both parents and school officials in that youngsters may come to their first day of school with a minimum of fuss since all but the usual first of school paper work is filled out.

Also by pre-registering, school officials will know the appropriate number of kindergarteners to plan for.

Total rebates to date in 1989 amount to $30,649.98, a 115.65 percent increase over the $14,212.74 collected last year.

Cooling naturally results in savings

With summer approaching, it's time to start thinking of ways to beat the impending Texas heat. One way to feel more comfortable and save money too is by utilizing natural cooling techniques. Shading and ventilation are two natural cooling methods that offer an alternative to air conditioning and can result in significant energy savings.

The best way to reduce solar heat gain is to block the sun before it enters our home by shading walls and windows. Shading devices such as shutters, porches, overhangs, trellises, shrubs, and trees can prevent 95 percent of the sun's heat from reaching a home's interior.

Shading south-facing windows can best be accomplished by using deciduous trees that block the summer sun but shed their leaves in winter to allow for solar heating. It is important to provide ventilation at the top of awnings or similar devices so that hot air does not become trapped under the overhang and add to the heat load.

Interior shades, blinds, and drapes will reflect 20 to 50 percent of the sun's radiant energy back through the glass. This defense against unwanted solar gain is improved with opaque materials, lighter colors, reflective backings, and shades that fit close to the glass. Because some heat inevitably escapes into the home instead of being reflected back to the outside, interior shading is most effective when used along with exterior shading devices.

When using cross ventilation, it is important to realize that the wind creates area of high and low pressure around the house. High-pressure areas form where wind strikes the building and "backs up." Low pressure areas occur when velocities are high and eddies form on the downwind side.

Tomake the best use of cross ventilation, open the windows about half-way on the high pressure side of the house to allow air to enter the house there. Open them completely on the low pressure side to draw the air out of the house.

Better ventilation will occur when windows are located on opposite or adjacent walls rather than only on one wall. Also, a greater area will be cooled if the air flow has to change direction in the room. For this to occur, inlets and outlets should not be located directly opposite each other.

Another way to keep incoming air as cool as possible is to minimize the amount of pavement in the wind's path. Concrete or asphalt driveways and patios absorb heat from the sun, raising the temperature of the air coming in contact with these surfaces. Shading paved area will reduce this unwanted heat gain, as will substituting materials such as grass, wood decking, white marble chips, and gravel.

Nutrition challenge faces many women

Though today's woman is far more independent and career-oriented than her female counterparts of previous generations, she still faces many feminine challenges. Included in these challenges is nutrition.

Shelley Fillipp, outpatient dietitian at Methodist Hospital, offers the following facts to help today's women understand common nutritional concerns.

ANEMIA — A deficiency of the essential mineral iron, which helps transport oxygen throughout the body, is the most common cause of anemia. Women are particularly susceptible to iron deficiencies because of menstrual bleeding and diets which often lack sufficient quantities of iron.

The U. S. recommended daily allowance of iron for an adult woman is 18 milligrams. However, many American women with daily caloric intakes of between 1,500 and 2,000 calories per day will obtain only nine to 12 milligrams of iron.

To obtain more iron in the diet, Ms. Fillipp suggests adding lean meat, shrimp, bran, turkey, dry beans, peas and prunes to the menu. Cooking with cast iron utensils is another excellent method of adding significant amounts of iron to the diet. In fact, the abandonment of these utensils is thought to be one of the reasons why anemia is far more prevalent today.

OSTEOPOROSIS — For adult women, a diet deficient in calcium can cause the removal of this vital mineral from their bones. Over time, this calcium deficiency can result in osteoporosis, a debilitating bone disease which affects an estimated 20 million women (mostly over 45).

Ms. Fillipp said women are particularly susceptible to osteoporosis because their bone mass is less than men. The bone loss is also accelerated in postmenopausal women.

To ensure maintaining levels of calcium, women should include the following calcium rich foods in their daily diets: yogurt, sardines, collard greens, milk and kale. Calcium supplements can also battle osteoporosis.

Care Center Capers

A long-awaited bus ride was taken last Monday, April 3, after being treated to ice cream cones by Myrtle Gibson. The residents then traveled on to Floydada to do some shopping.

On Tuesday the ladies were all glad to see their hairdresser, Carla Miller. She had missed a Tuesday of hairfixing because her son had been ill.

Wednesday was our birthday party, held in honor this month of Mr. Andres Pena. Residents were served cake and punch by hostesses Mavis Reecer and Annabelle Bramlett. We wish to thank the Main Street Church of Christ for thinking of us every month and giving their time and effort to bring us a special day of celebration.

Thursday afternoon was spent setting up a fish aquarium in our living room, which we hope will soon have occupants. We were thrilled to find out that while we were working on that project, Bessie Jackson had been popping some hot, buttery popcorn.

Friday's bingo game was enjoyable. Myrtle Gibson donated snack cakes to be used as bingo prizes.

We would like to thank Mrs. Kellison for having shared her beautiful geraniums with us in these past few months.

Senior volunteers set fun fair and balloon launch in Lubbock

In honor of National Volunteer week, April 9-15, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) and Lubbock Village retirement community will sponsor a Volunteers' Fun Fair and Balloon Launch Friday, April 14 at 2:00 p.m. All area senior volunteers are invited to attend.

The festivities, which will include free games, food, and entertainment, will be held at Lubbock Village. The Fun Fair is provided by the various agencies who use senior volunteers in their programs.

Also, as part of the day's activities, Mayor Peck McMinn will head a balloon launch and give a proclamation address on behalf of Lubbock's senior volunteers. Five hundred forty balloons will be launched, each of which will contain a "thank you" and the name of an RSVP volunteer. The balloon launch commemorates the 10th anniversary of the Lubbock RSVP program.

RSVP was brought to Lubbock in 1979 as a means of providing opportunities for persons 60 years of age and older to participate more fully in the community through volunteer service. There are no education, income or experience requirements, nor dues or membership fees. At present RSVP has 540 members in seventy work stations throughout Lubbock County.

The Fun Fair and Balloon Launch is free to all area senior volunteers. Reservations are requested and can be made by calling 792-0111.

In case of bad weather conditions, the fair and balloon launch will be postponed until Friday, April 21.
