Landfill opened to county for three weeks

Although still waiting on the county commissioners decision on the landfill contract submitted to them by the City of Lockney, city councilmen voted on Tuesday to open the Lockney Landfill for three weeks to all county residents.

Councilmen voted unanimously to accept the motion by Councilman Ronnie Aston calling for the landfill to open May 16 and remain open until June 3 while the city waits for the county to take action on the new landfill contract. The motion further outlined that all trash that is burnable needs to be burned before coming to the landfill.

The amended street contract turned in to the county had also not been discussed at the last commissioners meeting, so the city council took no action at this time.

The city attorney, Paul Lyle was present for the canvassing of votes. Councilman J.D. Copeland made the motion to accept the election results, Jerry Wofford seconded and the council voted unanimously.

Mayor Dan Smith and Councilmen Sam Fortenberry and Kenneth Wofford were sworn in by Lyle as the newly elected city officials.

Department heads were appointed by Mayor Smith. They are: Ronnie Aston, city farm; Gary Marr, police department; Dee Copeland, landfill; Kenneth

Another Lockney business closes

by NETA MARBLE

Another store is closing in our small town of Lockney and we are quilty.

How many times have you driven to Plainview when you could have bought the item you needed in Lockney?

How many times have you thought you were saving money by driving to Plainview, Lubbock or Amarillo when in reality you did not.

Before you drive off to the big city stop and think that the money you spend there will not benefit the town of Lockney. The money you spend there will benefit Plainview, Lubbock or Amarillo. It will not be spent for the good of your town of Lockney.

The big cities do not support your school. They do not buy ads in the yearbook, the fair program or the other activities that your children ask the local merchants to help them with. In essence you are supporting their schools, and their activities.

When this store closes it will be because we did not care enough about our town to support it.

Workshop focuses on dangers of cults

A daylong workshop on cults and satanic worship which was held Thursday, May 4, in Lubbock, was attended by Lockney Police Officers Jerry Edwards, Ray Macha, and Floyd County Deputies Ellis Butler and Charlie Overstreet.

Speakers from the Dallas-Fort Worth Chapter of the Cult Awareness Council urged an audience of more than 200 law enforcement officers, mental health professionals, educators and counselors to educate themselves about the symbols and rituals used by the occult, and to intervene early if they suspect someone of being involved in satanic worship.

Literature brought back by the Floyd County officers outlined the different types of cults, how recruitment is made and how to recognize if your child is involved. According to the Cult Awareness Council literature there is a difference in 'cults' and the much publicized - 'occult.'

A cult is a system of belief and worship. It does not have anything to do with the worshipping of Satan. Occult, on the other hand, is the actual worship of the devil (Satanism).

There are four categories of a destructive cult: (1) Self designated as a religion, (2) Business, (3) Political, (4) Commercially sold Self-Improvement Programs.

A destructive cult uses deception in recruitment, mind control techniques in courses, or indoctrinations. It exploits people under their control. Followers "appear free", but are psychologically trapped.

People who are recruited in cults usually fall into one of the following categories: (1) intelligent, (2) in a transition period, (3) trusting, (4) indecisive, (5) middle and upper socioeconomic level.

Recruitment is carried out by skilled people. They usually seek out travelers and distressed individuals. People in transitional periods of their life, such as divorce, are sought after. As are, elderly persons and naive teenagers.

The recruiter will show a great deal of concern for the individuals well being. They will demonstrate acute shared interests in the prospects ideas and an interest in his goals. (For example, if the prospect says he is a guitar player, the recruiter will say he knows a lot of musicians or has influence with a band). The recruiter will maintain close physical proximity, eye contact constantly and possibly use a sexual come-on. A great deal of personal information will be extracted from the prospect, and if deemed worthwhile the prospect will be showered with attention and lavish concern until he makes the commitment to join the group.

The cult can appear attractive to some people because it is a relief from adulthood. It may seem to provide a sense of meaning and purpose. Companionship is offered and the prospect has a sense of being loved.

What the prospect does not see is what will happen to him, once inside the cult. The victim's time will be totally controlled. He will be detached from his family and any other kind of social support system. No independent thinking or personal property is allowed. You will be under complete control of the leaders and you can't go anywhere without someone with you.

Coercive Persuasion is then used by the cult to keep the victim in the group. This includes radically altering the reality of the new member and getting him to accept a new reality. The victim's perspective of his past will be drastically altered and he will eventually accept a new belief system.

The Cult Awareness Council outlined a few ways to prevent becoming involved in a cult. When approached about joining a group, ask questions and get a lot of information on the organization before attending a meeting of any kind or going anywhere with a recruiter. Find out about the top leader, such as; who he is, his background, and his criminal record. Find out what the group believes in. Does it believe the ends justify the means? Is deception allowed in certain circumstances? What are members expected to do once they join? Do you have to quit school or work, donate your money or property? Do you

Program attempts to help ex-offenders secure jobs

Youths at risk in communities where crime is on an upswing need help urgently if they are to break away from the crime cycle.

Carl Robins, now with the Texas Employment Commission working on Project Rio (Re-Integration of Offenders), said it may be easier to keep youths from entering crime than to rehabilitate them. "At least it should be less expensive," he said.

Robins addressed the South Texas Press Association in Corpus Christi on Friday, April 21.

Describing the drug scene and the prison jungle, Robins told media members that he has spent 27 years in prison as a result of his personal drug and alcohol addiction.

Robins said his addiction had wrecked his plans and those of his family for more than two decades. Ultimately, he sought help of rehabilitation and support groups who helped him overcome his problem. For the past five years, he has been counseling others and helping them with their problems through Project Rio.

"The program is designed to help ex-offenders find employment, and provides employment counseling, placement services and educational workshops," Robins said.

He said the program provides training for ex-offenders which helps them become employable, since those unable to find jobs are three times more likely to return to prison.

Robins said the program also increases public awareness and emphasized that 75 percent of the offender populations are convicted for non-violent crimes.

"In the workshops, the releasees learn how to obtain and hold a job, prepare an application, do an employment history and resume, improve job interviewing skills, telephone techniques and learn how to use community resources," Robins said.

He said the really critical concern is how to stop crime. He believes it will take efforts by everyone for real success. "Project Rio, now functioning in 59 Texas cities, is presently reaching about 90 percent of the people who are coming out of prison and returning to those cities," Robins said.

Ed Deswysen, publisher of the Kingsville Record and first vice president of the association, arranged for computer demonstrations for desktop publishing. Managing the clinic were Bob Odom, editor, and Jim Allen, advertising manager, both with the Kingsville newspaper.

For more information, contact Ed Deswysen at (512) 592-43-4 or Mary Mahoney at (409) 845-2211.

have to cut yourself off from family members and friends who may oppose the membership?

Being aware that cults come in all different forms may be the best prevention for people. There are many self-help groups, raise your self-esteem groups, groups that say they are going to do something good for the world, and even so-called "religious groups" that are actually cults seeking to completely control members.

SATANISM

Four layers of Satanism, as outlined by the Cult Awareness Council are: (1) Fun and Games, (2) Dabblers - half help groups, (3) Serious Involvement, (4) Hard Core Satanists.

The council urged those gathered at the workshop to intervene early if they suspected someone of being involved in satanic worship. They told those gathered of the signs of active involvement in satanic practices. The list below are some of the signs for parents to look for in their children, but be aware that many of the things listed below are at times experimented with by young people and does not mean they are into occult worship. The difference between experimenting and being actively involved in cults or Satanic practices is defined by level of degree. "Level of degree" can be evidenced by level of obsession that goes far beyond a passing interest in the subject matter. Parents and teachers should watch for: (1) Obsession with heavy metal/black metal rock music and material (clothes, posters, etc.) Examples of heavy metal groups are: Twisted Sister, Motley Crue, Iron Maiden, Ozzy Osbourne, Judas Priest, Kiss, AC/DC, DIO, Black Sabbath, Blue Oyster Cult, Megadeth, & Dokken, (2) unusual collection of occult jewelry and books on the occult, (3) drug use, (4) unexplained paranoid fear of the world, people, or anything beyond the youth's bedroom, (5) extremely secretive, (6) fear of discussing cults/Satanism, (7) unexplained, or confusing, or rapid personality changes, (8) unusual misbehavior/vandalism, cruelty to animals.

Information on cults and cult involvement can be obtained by writing the Cult Awareness Council at P.O. Box 610922, D/FW Airport, Dallas, Texas 75261, or calling (214) 855-0377.

Historic Preservation Week theme focuses on housing

The theme for the 17th annual National Historic Preservation Week, May 14-20, is "Look Homeward, America." Citing the state's rich and varied heritage, Governor William Clements also has proclaimed this period as Preservation Week in Texas.

Across the state and the country, communities will be organizing house tours, workshops, block parties, and fund-raising events in the name of protecting America's most cherished ideal: the home.

"Historic preservation gives Americans a deeper understanding of their diverse architectural and cultural heritage," said Curtis Tunnell, executive director of the Texas Historical Commission. "It contributes to the livability of Texas' towns and cities, and rural areas, and promotes local pride and community self-help."

Cosponsored by the THC and the National Trust for Historic Preservation, this event celebrates such different habitats as streetcar suburbs, vintage inner-city apartments, rural farmhouses, shotgun houses, and bungalows.

The THC is the state agency for historic preservation. It seeks to oversee preservation efforts by placing historical markers, working with cities and towns to revitalize their central business districts, identifying and protecting archeological sites, working with county historical commissions, and administering federal preservation programs in the state.

The National Trust for Historic Preservation is a nonprofit membership organization dedicated to the preservation of historic buildings, districts, and maritime resources in the country.

For more information about Preservation Week, contact your county historical commission or the THC at 512/463-6100.

Savings bonds semi-annual rate set at 7.81%

The semiannual market-based interest rate for United States Savings Bonds, in effect from May 1 through October 31, 1989, has been set at 7.81 percent, the Treasury Department announced on May 1. The new rate is a substantial increase from the previous semiannual rate, 7.35 percent, which was in effect from November 1, 1988, through April 30, 1989.

Jerrold B. Speers, Executive Director of the U. S. Savings Bonds Division, hailed the new rate as "terrific news for savers and yet another reason why we expect the Savings Bonds campaign now underway to be a huge success. When looked at in combination with the other benefits of Bonds - including tax advantages, complete safety against loss, ease of purchase - it is clear that this new rate makes Savings Bonds an unbeatable deal."

Savings Bonds semiannual rates are changed each May 1 and November 1 to reflect market activity during the pre-

May 20 designated for 1989 Pioneer Roundup

The Plainview Business and Professional Women's Club has announced Saturday, May 20 as the date for the 1989 Pioneer Round-Up. This will be the 61st year the Club has sponsored this annual event, according to Pat Ray, president of the sponsoring club.

The Pioneer Round-Up was started as a method of honoring pioneers of this area. This continues to be one of the purposes of the event, but in addition, it has become an entertainment feature for people of all ages in Plainview, Hale County and surrounding areas.

Activities will be held in the Ollie Liner Center on the south edge of Plainview. The reception will be held in the meeting room at the Center and pioneers will gather for this at 10:00 a.m. on Saturday morning. The traditional Pioneer Round-Up parade will roll at 2:30 p.m.

The Saturday evening's program will begin at 6:00 when the chuck wagon supper will be served until 8:00 p.m. in the large assembly room at the Ollie Liner Center with the program to follow.

A square dance will conclude the day's activities.

All local and area people are invited to this Pioneer Round-Up for a day of entertainment and to honor those pioneers who came to this country many years ago. The fourth annual Pioneer Ballon Festival has been scheduled to coincide with the Round-Up making even more activities available to people of this area.

Legal hotline offered for Texans over the age of 60

Often, the people who need a lawyer the most can least afford one. A new service, the Legal Hotline for Older Texans, is now being offered to any Texan 60 years of age or older.

"We want this to be a first resort for older Texans when they have problems or questions about legal matters," said Randall Chapman, director of Texas Legal Services Center. "Our primary aim is to provide older Texans, especially those on a low, fixed-income, with free or low-cost legal services."

Hotline attorneys determine if callers have a legal problem, give free legal information and advice over the phone, and provide brief services such as calling a third party or writing a letter to resolve a legal problem. Problems that cannot be resolved by the Hotline will be referred to legal aid organizations for low-income clients, or local attorneys in private practices who agree to charge reduced fees.

Hotline services are free. People requiring follow-up services may be referred to a local attorney.

"Licensed attorney's will help resolve such caller's problems with Social Security, health care, consumer problems and elder abuse," Chapman said. "Our service will place a lot of emphasis on public benefits and health care. I believe our primary clients, elderly on low, fixed-incomes, are in dire need of these particular services."

O.P. (Bob) Bobbitt, executive director of the Texas Department on Aging, believes the Hotline will enhance the efforts of his department in providing legal services to the elderly. "This hotline will be a very useful resource to the elderly, especially the homebound and those who may be institutionalized. We are presently enhancing our efforts in the area of benefits counseling and legal services are certainly an integral part of it," he said.

The Legal Hotline for Older Texans is primarily supported by a grant from the American Association of Retired Persons, with additional in-kind support from the State bar of Texas and the Texas Department on Aging.

The Legal Hotline for Older Texans toll-free statewide number is 1-800-444-9114. Austin residents may call 477-3950.

The hours of operation are 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

May 11 there will be a Pot Luck Supper.

Africanized bees overrated as health threat

According to a Texas Department of Health official, the public concern about health threats from Africanized honey bees (AHB) is largely unwarranted and not supported by facts.

"There is really no cause for the public to be alarmed about Africanized honey bees," Bobby Davis of Austin told members of the Texas Africanized Honey Bee Advisory Committee at a recent meeting at Texas A&M University. The committee is chaired by Dr. Fowden Maxwell, head of Texas A&M's Department of Entomology.

"The public health impact of these bees will be minimal," said Davis, a medical entomologist who represents the Texas commissioner of health on the committee. "Africanized bees will not overwhelm either the public or the private health sector in Texas. It hasn't happened in countries where the bees are already present, and it won't happen here."

"Help Save the Sights of America" the theme of Sight-Saving Month

"Help Save the Sights of America" is a theme of the 40th Annual National Sight-Saving Month. Sight-Saving Month was established by the National Society to Prevent Blindness in 1949 to increase public awareness about preventing blindness and preserving sight. Over the years, this event was expanded to promote early detection of eye problems and proper eye care and safety.

Sight-Saving Month is sponsored by the National Society to Prevent Blindness and its 26 affiliates throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. Prevent Blindness is the oldest national voluntary health agency that works to prevent the needless loss of sight through community service programs, public and professional education, and research.

The following is information on preserving vision that you can share with others.

Help Your Child to See

* The wonders of the world are often seen through the eyes of a child. Yet without good vision, a child's ability to learn about the world is lessened. Vision problems affect one in 20 preschoolers and one in four school-age children.

The National Society to Prevent Blindness says the best defence against the development of serious vision problems and unnecessary loss of sight is to have your child's eyes examined regularly.

* Most eye problems can be corrected if they are detected and treated early, says the National Society to Prevent Blindness. In infancy, your child's vision may be tested by your pediatrician or family physician. Later, the child should have an exam by an eye care specialist.

* The National Society to Prevent Blindness reports that some children are at high risk for developing eye problems and should be followed closely by their doctors for signs of possible eye problems.

High risk factors include premature birth, family history of eye problems, mother with health problems such as diabetes, and eye injuries (complications form injuries may not appear until much later.)
