The Lamplighter

By Ken Towery

So now the Supreme Court, in a 5-4 vote, has determined that it is legally permissible to desecrate the flag.

The ACLU is ecstatic, as are liberals generally. The rest of the country is upset, unhappy, and determined to do something about it.

From where we sit, it was an astounding ruling. It was no surprise that the Court's three hard-core liberals would rule the way they did. The surprise came when they were joined by two members of the court who ordinarily have better sense. It is true that the two arrived at their decision through a different, and largely legalistic, route. But the effect was the same.

We have always regarded ourself as being a champion of the First Amendment to our Constitution. It says, quite simply: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

It seems strange that so simple a statement, so clear a statement, could result in so much controversy over the years. But it has, and in all probability the arguments will continue. Most of the problem, it seems to us, results from activist judicial interpretation of the "freedom of speech" clause in the Amendment. Speech has been expanded into "expression", and expression into action, even violent action. Thus the violent action of burning the nation's flag somehow becomes merely an "expression" of opinion, protected by the freedom of speech clause.

Without doubt the First Amendment has been and always will be under attack from various quarters, not the least of which is the government itself. In fact the whole of the Constitution is to protect the people from excesses of the government, a proclivity all governments seem to aspire to if not constrained in some manner.

The flag, in our view, does not belong to the government. It belongs to the people, a symbol of all those things which are fundamentally good about our country. Many, many people have fought for it, died for it. True, they were fighting and dying for what the flag stands for, rather than the flag itself. No one would deny the right of a citizen to stand on the street corner and denounce the flag and all it stands for. That could easily fall within the freedom of speech clause. But the physical act of desecrating the flag is something else entirely, in our view. If the people have no power, through legitimate acts of their elected representatives, to protect that, what power do we have?

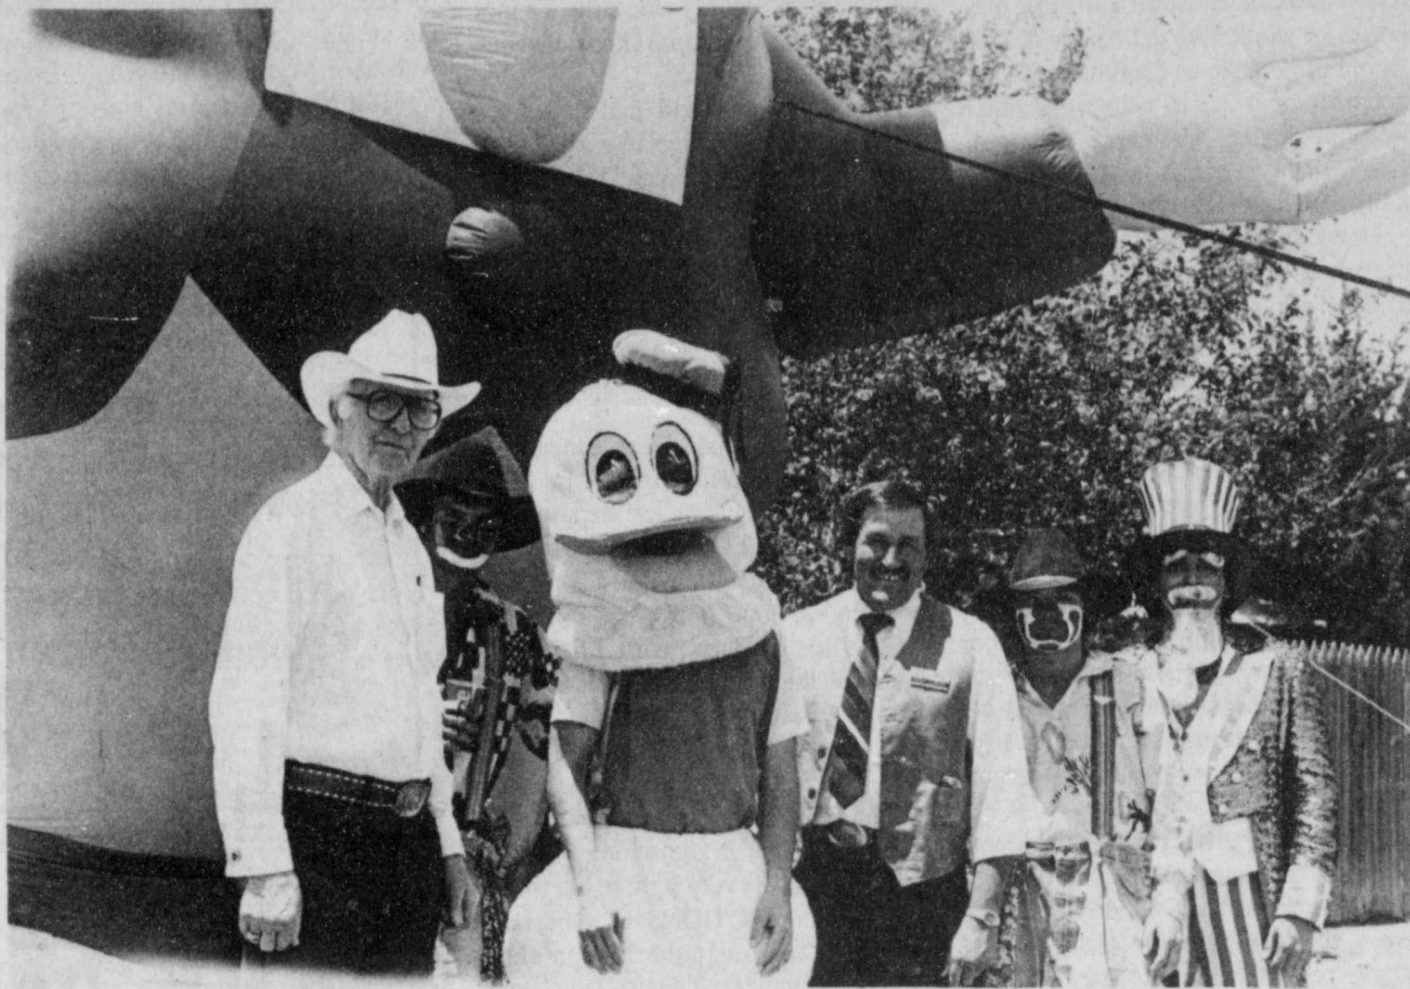

And while we are on the subject of the First Amendment, we might as well say a few words that will not sit well with some of our fellow publishers around the country.

Many of them pay extreme lip service to the First Amendment, but are careful to pick and choose when to sally forth. A case at point:

Back in the '60s, at the beginning of the "civil rights" movement in this country, a little weekly newspaper up in Oregon ran into a problem involving the First Amendment's freedom of the press clause. The paper had a history of publishing, at its own expense, a full page of pictures of high school kids who wanted summertime jobs. The paper thought it was performing a public service. Those kids who wanted jobs for the summer would submit a resume of their school work, a description of the kind of jobs they thought they would be good at, things like that. Included would be a picture of the youngster.

It was a highly successful program. The kids liked it. The community liked it. The little weekly paper liked it.

But then along came the lunacy of imagined racism. The local branch of Citizens urged to attend public meetings

Recent events in Floydada seem to indicate that many people are unaware they do have the opportunity to participate in the local governing processes.

In addition to voting in elections which select individuals to serve as members of the governing entities of this county, citizens may also attend meetings of these groups and direct questions to the officials they have elected.

Citizens may also express opinions during discussion of an item on a posted agenda.

Citizens are urged to attend meetings of the Floyd County Commissioners Court, the Floydada City Council, the Lockney City Council, the Floydada Independent School District and the Lockney Independent School District. This is a right guaranteed to everyone by the Texas Open Meetings and Open Records Act and all too often ignored by the general public.

Taking the time to attend meetings and make your views known allows the average person to be an active part of local government even though they do not hold an office. It also allows them to see their elected and appointed officials at work as they make the decisions pertaining to local government.

Ruben Barrientoz. The next scheduled session of the council is at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, July 11.

The Lockney City Council meets each month on the first Thursday at City Hall in Lockney at 9:00 a.m. Currently serving on the elected council are Kenneth Wofford, Ronnie Aston, Gary Marr, J. D. Copeland and Sam Fortenberry with Dan Smith as Mayor. The next regular session will be at 9:00 a.m. on Thursday, July 6.

Floydada Independent School District trustees meet monthly at the administrative offices on the second Monday of the month at 7:00 p.m. Serving as elected representatives on this board are Charlene Brown, Cyndiann Williams, Michael Hinsley, Don Hardy, Adolfo Garcia, Andy Hale and John Campbell. The next scheduled meeting of the Fisd trustees is on July 10, at 7:00 p.m.

Lockney Independent School District's board of trustees meets on the first Thursday of each month in the administrative offices in Lockney at 7:00 p.m. Serving on the board at the present time are Eddie Teeter, Lisa Mosley, Paul Glasson, Jim Bob Martin, Gary Mangold and Dickie Lambert. The next scheduled session for LISD is on Thursday, July 6 at 7:00 p.m.

Rowell Variety to close after 13 years of business

The Rowell Variety Store, opened by Henry and Viola Rowell and their son Lawson in 1976, will be closing at the end of the month.

Mrs. Rowell stated "We hate to close but it is time to do so." "We have appreciated the good people of Lockney."

Mr. and Mrs. Rowell owned the Sterley Grocery and she was postmaster of the Sterley Branch post office before buying the variety store from Mr. Stillman of Lubbock.

Mrs. Dorothy Shipp was running the variety store at that time and she stayed until the Rowells son, Lawson, came to join them in the store.

The store has been involved in many of the activities that are prevalent in a small town. They are members of the Lockney Chamber of Commerce. They support the Floyd County Fair each year and many school activities.

Rowell's Variety Store is a true variety store. They carry thousands of items from A to Z. They have sewing notions, office and school supplies, pots and pans, dishes, clothing, what-nots, toys, cards, candy, crafts gifts, kitchen gadgets and accessories, small appliances, knitting yarns, embroidery thread, lace and much much more.

The store was closed last Friday in order to get ready for the sale which begins Thursday, July 6 at 8:30 a.m. The Retail Group Incorporated will be assisting with the sale. According to Mrs. Rowell "We will be giving our customers excellent prices and quality items."

Rowell Variety will be giving away a 19 inch remote control television, a VCR with remote control and a microwave oven with carousel. Items will be given away according to the number of points accumulated by each customer.

Everything in the store will be on sale including the fixtures. The sale will continue through July 29.

CLOSING THE DOORS -- Rowell Variety in Lockney is closing its doors after thirteen years in the community.

Final business day is July 29. The owners, Henry and Viola Rowell, are planning to retire. Staff Photo

Floyd County -- The Early Years

Part 9: "The Early Years of the Twentieth Century"

By Bill Gray

The first decade of the twentieth century saw radical changes of lifestyles in Floyd County and the Texas Plains. The depressed economy of the mid-1890s was forgotten. The economic outlook gave farmers renewed optimism. The rise in farm prices was attributed to the improvement of European markets and the urbanization in the Northeast.

By 1900 most of the larger ranching interests had given way to farming, and the majority of land in Floyd County was under cultivation. The county's destiny was now confirmed. The area was to become one of the premier agricultural centers of Northwest Texas.

According to T.R. Fehrenbach in Lone Star, "Texas entered the 20th century with its basic society a full two generations, or about sixty years, behind the development of the American mainstream." The observation was no more apparent than in the rural, recently-settled regions of the state such as Floyd County.

Social and cultural levels had already been established, "backward" and primitive as they may have seemed. Though perhaps behind their counterparts even in other Texas locales, the bold and hardy people of Floyd County were a determined lot. And, they were busy.

They organized additional communities, such as Mickey (1903), Harmony (1904), and McCoy (1906). Others that sprang up during the years 1890-1910 came into existence as a result of the formation of schools: Allmon (1891), Blanco (1909), Curlew (1891), Fairview (1903), Hillcrest (1900), Homestead (1893), Lakeview (1892), Lone Star (1892), Mayview (1909), Meteor (1891), Muncy (1910), Providence (1910), Roseland (1892), Sandhill (1892), Starkey (1889), and Sunset (1895).

Of these settlements, only South Plains and Cedar Hill remain today with a "town" status. Most of these settlements survived only as long as the schools remained intact.

Although the rural schools in Floyd County have long since been dissolved into the Lockney and Floydada systems, most of the names remain today as reference points and geographic locations in

Letters To The Editor

To: Betty Goen
 "We're only Human" — What a convenient excuse! We (Hispanics) use it too and it sounds just as lame both ways.
 "Armbands" are necessary if you're looking only at the surface. But then all men have to wear them. Thank GOD we don't have to. On the other hand, I agree Respect is EARNED.

To: Bill Hicks
 Pertaining to the questions you asked I feel that no two single individuals could answer such questions as #1 and #2 for a whole population be it Mexican or Hispanic.
 They could however, answer on their own behalf but then so could you since you used the same words in a sentence.
 As for question #3 I'm sure the whole community, Hispanic, White and Black and any other persons living here have asked the same question.

And just as it is unimportant the percentage of Hispanics arrested compared to whites because our main goal is to clear Floydada of any crimes and criminals. Then so it is unimportant the percentage of any race paying taxes and wages as long as each individual pays any and all dues charged to him and that wages are paid in exchange for work.
 It is so wonderful how we have all managed to live together in harmony and will continue to do so no matter how many times we may stumble.

Considering that unlike a household where there is one head that makes rules and regulations to live by and anyone not abiding by them, can leave. We have survived under the majority rules theory which means we have several heads making rules and regulations.

I think it is ridiculous for anyone to use his or her color as a defense, excuse or reason for any actions one might make.

People are all prideful of their heritage and this is good. This is what keeps all races alive. And we all want our brothers and sisters to prosper and grow.

Therefore, we must learn to teach our sons and daughters to strive, work and to achieve position in their lives.

Let's not hide behind our race or look down on other races, we must take responsibility for what we do be it good or bad.

I would like to give praise to the words given by the Lamplighter. It is plain to see that there is no color blinding the Lamplighter views. For that I thank you.

I pray that GOD gives us all views likewise, to live by.

Mr. Pope,
 Your words were harsh and ugly and I won't even bother to argue your points.

I do believe you have forgotten what century we are in.

I suggest you sit back to a nice John Wayne movie and stay there.

Dear Editor,
 In school, teachers assign students a paragraph to read, followed by a series of statements from which the students are to select "the main idea" of the paragraph. This is also called reading for meaning. Teachers are often dismayed at how easily the students lose the main idea being presented, and misinterpret the author's statements, get sidetracked onto ideas that are far from the original kernel of information.

Ms. Betty Goen's letter was a plea for Hispanic citizens to be patient with Anglos who are trying to learn the right way to live in harmony and good will with their Hispanic neighbors. Anglos want to learn the required titles, whether Hispanic, Mexican, Mexican-American, Latin, Latin-American, Spanish, etc. There are so many choices Anglos honestly do not know which one an individual might prefer.

The writer pointed out something we all know — our nation is being overrun by illegal aliens who do not know our country's laws and mores or unwritten rules. Yet working Anglos and Hispanic citizens are expected to welcome them with welfare and free education. She asks that Anglos please be given time to adjust to this situation. Already Anglos are sharing their paychecks by paying taxes to provide them and the offspring they leave among us with welfare checks, food stamps, free school lunches, free medical care, free housing, free schools, at the same time the Anglos are working hard to provide for their own families. Anglos are asked to provide for the aliens, then are reprimanded for not smiling while they do so, and Mrs. Goen asked for a break for cooperation, consideration. Aliens come from more countries than just Mexico.

Also she pointed out a world-wide truism: when one moves to a new community, mind your manners if you want to be respected. We all know some people of all backgrounds do not realize there are rules and guidelines to live by. Those people stay in trouble among their own families, among their neighbors, in school, with the law. Some eventually wake up, catch on and live by the rules for a successful productive, happy life. Some never do; some don't give a heck; some are here only for a short time and skim along on the surface never really becoming a part of any community and move away to continue the same way. But the successful people of the world discipline themselves, seek to learn the rules, follow them more than just to get by, and excel. These people are only a small percentage of any society but they become the beacons for everyone else. They show how to have a better life for ourselves and our children. There are families, Anglo, Hispanic, Black, who came to Floydada with little more than what was on their backs and in their cars, who today are respected citizens, workers in their church, backers of education, taxpayers, homeowners, business people, job holders because they desired to succeed and disciplined themselves and their families to do so.

Her letter reminds our law officials that they too must live by the rules both written and unwritten, for success, for the jobs they were hired to do. They have the same laws, both, city, county and state, but seem to interpret them differ-ently. It is as though the football coaches on the same team were all determined to see that the players followed different opinions of the different coaches in a power struggle, rather than agreeing among themselves what rules the team would play by for victory. The players are pleading for the coaches to get professional or move to another team.

And finally, the letter writer admonished us all to reflect God's love, and follow the Golden Rule by treating others as we would like to be treated. This would truly make us glad to say we are neighbors and friends with one another from Floydada. We know that with God's help we can accomplish all things. So let's all ask Him for wisdom.

Thank you, editor, for the courage to provide a forum for all citizens to voice their beliefs, however different.

Sincerely,
 Mrs. Joyce Williams

Dear Editor,
 I am a female caucasian and I am not from Floydada. I grew up in the San Antonio area, where the Hispanic population is larger than the Caucasian. I was recently in Floydada visiting friends. They were explaining the sad situation that is occurring between different races. I proceeded to read the series of battering articles in the newspaper. My heart was broken and I will never forget what I read.

I almost forgot what century I am living in. Every single person on this good planet was born of God's will and grace, and made in His image. Every single person in this country is here because of a desire to live, speak, and love freely. I suppose it also includes hate freely. We are all immigrants to America and to Texas, whether we came here last year or two-hundred years ago. German, French, Spanish, Irish, African, and Mexican. Do not make that the issue in your argument. For any one of us could go back if we do not like the conditions.

I suggest those of you claiming that a particular race is unwanted, lower-class, or disgraceful, hold your comments for God when you see Him. He is interested in how you feel about it. Take it up with the one who made all the races. In every part of this country one can find a region where a particular race is looked down upon. The Caucasian people have a place, or a few like that where they are judged disgraceful. It can either be for their actions or merely for their pale skin.

I realize that neither this letter, nor a hundred like it, would be capable of softening the hardened hearts of you so righteous, determined, and full of hate. However, I felt it my duty; part of "carrying the cross". I'm also sure that there will be rebuttals from you who feel differently. However, I have but one thing to ask of you. If you are believers in Christ, as some of you profess to be, take only five minutes of your time today to contemplate and pray. Ask God what Christ would do if He walked down the beautiful streets of Floydada today. It is truly a shame and disgrace to have this taking place, and it would be especially so if anyone were to get hurt. The people of Floydada involved in this area are in my prayers, and I pray a special prayer for those hurting now that are subjected to discrimination. "I tell you the truth, whatever you bind here on earth will be bound in Heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in Heaven." Matthew 18:19.

Sincerely,
 Suzanne A. Tomerlin

Dear Editor,
 OK, now that I know you're listening, let's examine this Pandora's box that I've opened. First of all, if you didn't read the report in the Hesperian a few weeks ago on the City Council meeting, I suggest you dig out that issue and read it.

Many people will not understand why I jeopardized my personal integrity and safety. It is so much easier to just keep quiet and hope somebody else will take care of the problem.

So go ahead and express your anger and hate towards me. I represent a good portion of this county who either cannot or will not speak out, and I know that this group is not all white.

Hopefully, you will feel better for having put your feelings into words and expressed them "out loud." I especially appreciate the intelligent young lady who called me and voiced her disapproval with how I had handled the situation. Her ability to hang in there and keep talking through our differences makes her a definite asset to our community.

Being a Christian doesn't mean always to be mild-mannered Mr. Nice Guy, never offending or stepping on toes. Sometimes we need to point at a problem, and say "Hey you! I don't like what you're doing because it's wrong." And in this instance, while I have one finger pointed at you, I also have three fingers pointed back at me. Floyd County as a whole does have a prejudice problem.

And as usual some people continue to use "judge not" in the wrong context. Christians have every right in the world to judge the ACTIONS of others as being right or wrong either by man's law or especially by God's law. This is not the same as judging a PERSON good or bad by what he believes or who he is.

My anger is directed toward two things:

1. What are the real reasons and motives behind Mr. Morales' request to disband the police department and;

2. Illegal aliens who have flooded into our country beyond our ability to cope with them because of their sheer numbers.

The Immigration law basically was designed to let only a designated number of aliens into our country at a time because it takes time for communities to absorb new people into the job market.

The aliens' grasping at the American Dream has nearly bankrupted us all; not to mention the ill-will fostered because of their illegal actions. This is obviously the situation I was referring to in the first paragraph of my first letter.

Take a good look at yourself and everyone around you. Aren't we all different from every other individual in the world? God created each one of us as an unique entity in the vast seas of humanity. No matter how many billions of people there are on earth, God still knows each and every one of us by name and recognizes us as equally worthy of His love and forgiveness. His relationship to us is on a one-to-one basis.

So must we deal with our everyday life - one problem or one person at a time.

Now look at your everyday situations. Who do you get along with best? Isn't it those who treat you as an equal, who treat you fairly, who use a CHRISTIAN attitude in their community, and who recognize that you have rights, feelings, and opinions of your own no matter what their station in life compared to yours?

Does it matter what color they are? No, you've probably forgotten that some of these people are a different color.

By my letter I was admitting that I am prejudiced. I don't like it because prejudice is wrong and is evil in the sight of God; but I was hoping by being honest in sharing my struggle with their problem that others, whether they be brown, black or white, would be forced to take a serious look at themselves.

Prejudice is such an ugly word because we don't want to admit even to ourselves that we could feel such raw emotion towards another group or race of people just because they are different from ourselves.

I didn't really know what prejudice meant when I moved to Floydada. But for seventeen years I've seen first hand the struggles that farmers are having with labor. My family and in-laws are or were farmers. Two of my cousins happen to be Chief of Police in their respective towns, and they both happen to be super policemen, dedicated to arresting lawbreakers, whoever they may be.

Would each one of you do something for himself? Mull over these two questions during the next week:

1. Do you like yourself?
2. Can you forgive yourself?

I apologize for hurting the feelings of those Hispanics whose ancestors came to our country legally. You are unjustly receiving the fallout of our feelings toward your fellow countrymen who have abused this country and earlier citizens with their flagrant breaking of the immigration laws.

the county. The South Plains and Dougherty schools were the last to go, having been merged into the Lockney and Floydada systems only in recent years.

Other locations in the county refer to once-thriving post offices. At one time or another, there have been twenty-five post offices in the county. Four survive today — Floydada, Lockney, South Plains and Dougherty. The names of some are long forgotten, but some — like those of the schools — still lend their namesakes to various parts of the county.

From the 15 July 1965 edition of the Floyd County Hesperian, an account of the early post offices was compiled. Some of the stories are almost legendary today, but several are quite interesting.

The Ball post office was established in 17 May 1905, with George Ball as the first postmaster. It lasted only two years. Bourland lasted more than five years (1892-1897), with Arlander M. Bourland serving as the first postmaster. The Crawfish post office began in November, 1892, and remained until 2 June 1893. William T. Buckley was the only postmaster at Crawfish.

The post office at Curlew derived its name from a native bird of the Plains. This office began on 3 July 1891, and was absorbed into the Lockney office in 1919. Tom Hines was the official carrier, and brought the mail from Clarendon to Silvertown, and then to Curlew.

Homestead was established in 1893, with William Trowbridge as its first postmaster. It remained until 1898. Some were quite short-lived. Betty Hyman served the postal patrons at Julietta for only five months during 1892. The name of Meteor was very appropriate. Its lightning-like existence was from 14 June 1891 until 28 April 1894. James A. Randle was the first postmaster at Meteor.

In 1892 postal service commenced at Micomber, and continued until 1898. John K. Fullingim was the first postmaster. The Mickey family furnished almost all of the postmasters in charge of the office carrying their name. The Mickey office was operated for over forty years — a long life as compared to some of the others in Floyd County.

the NAACP charged that by publishing the pictures of the students, the paper was guilty of discriminating against black kids. The argument was that potential employers would know who was black and who was white, that they would hire white kids and not hire black kids and that this amounted to discrimination on the part of the newspaper and was therefore unlawful.

The newspaper contested this charge, but the NAACP took the case to the Oregon version of the EEOC (Equal Employment Opportunities Commission, one of those bureaucracies established under Lyndon's civil rights laws) and was upheld. The only recourse was for the paper to take the matter to the courts to see if the administrative ruling could be overturned.

Feeling the case was a clear cut test under the First Amendment, and since they had limited financial resources of their own, the paper appealed for help from publishers across the country. They even wrote me. I appealed to the leadership of the Texas Daily Newspapers Association, the organization encompassing the state's major newspapers, as well as our own Texas Press Association, the organization representing the state's smaller newspapers.

No dice. Those in a leadership position at that time simply did not want to get involved on the "wrong side" of the civil rights matter and appear to be siding with anyone who would "discriminate." And they told me so.

Faced with an almost total lack of support among the nation's publishers, the little paper dropped the matter. They ceased publishing their page. Nearly everybody lost. The kids, black and white, lost. The community lost. The First Amendment lost. The newspaper lost. Truth lost. The NAACP won. Wrong won. Cowardice won.

Still, those same publishers prate on and on about the sanctity of the First Amendment. They feel that burning the flag, desecrating the flag, falls under the protections guaranteed by the First Amendment. If you don't believe it, read the lead editorial of the Austin American-Statesman of Monday, June 24, 1989.

Needless to say, we do not agree.

Another obscure and long-forgotten post office was at Mirror, which lasted for four years in the late 1890s. Sterley and Aiken were to have post offices, but they weren't established until well into the 20th century.

An interesting account of the Hillcrest post office is reprinted from the 75th Anniversary of Floyd County edition of the Hesperian.

"Mr. and Mrs. Frank Montague were married in 1897, and settled on a section of land sixteen miles northeast of Floydada, with purchase price from the state of Texas set at $1 per acre, and improvements from L.H. Lewis, who had turned the land back to the state, of $300. The first Hillcrest post office was set up in the Montague home, the mail having been carried from Floydada to Childress by stage, the horses being changed at the Montague home.

Charlie Wilson, a brother of Mrs. Montague, was one of the stage drivers. Application for the post office was made in 1898, and in searching for a name the Montagues were anxious to avoid duplication. At that time, the Post Office Department would not accept two words as a proper post office name.

The couple had just read what they considered 'a sweet little story' that was entitled 'Hillcrest,' and they were overjoyed when this was accepted in Washington. It was quite appropriate from a geographical standpoint, too, for, as Mrs. Montague, later a resident of Floydada said, 'Our home was the first one after you came up on the caprock. It was very romantic and a great thrill to us when we were informed that our name, Hillcrest, had been accepted by the post office department. Mr. Montague was supposed to be the postmaster, but in reality I did the work. Occasionally he carried the mail, using a two wheel cart, drawn by two Spanish mules.'

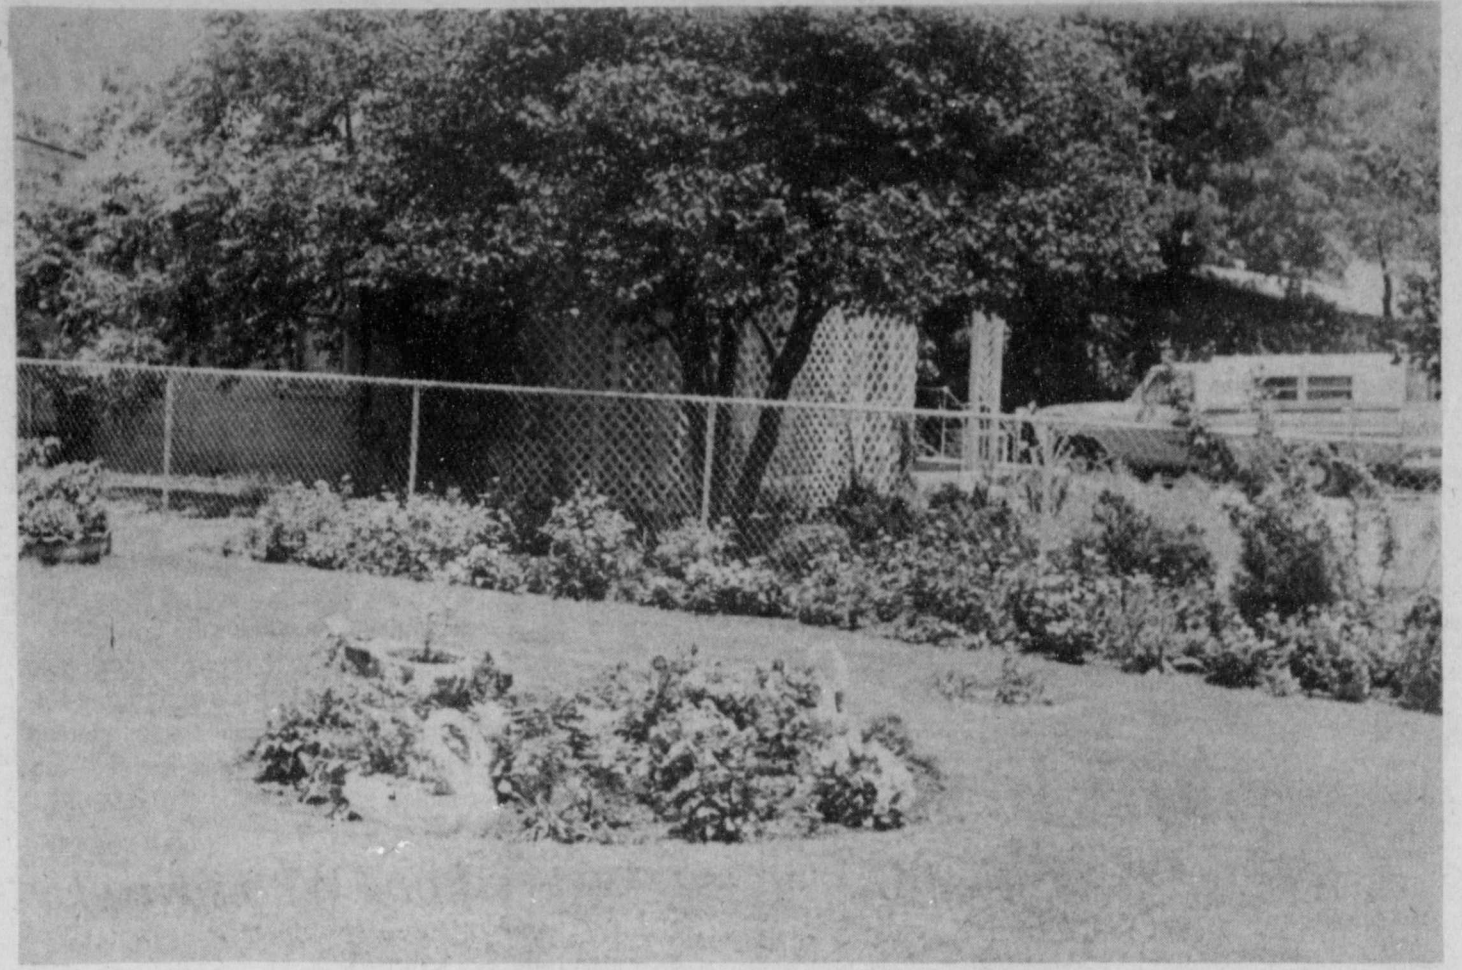

She spoke of the true western spirit of the mail carriers, who brought everything from pins to plows despite rain or snow. Festus A. Steen, brother of former Hesperian publisher Homer Steen, was the first mail carrier followed by T.H. Edwards, Tom W. Deen, later to be Floyd County judge; C.W. Thagard; and John Fawver.

In 1901 the Montagues moved to Floydada, moving their residence in which the post office had found a home; on April 26 of that year William B. Crabtree, who lived 14 miles 'as straight as the crow flies' east of Floydada, took over the office and was its only other postmaster until it was discontinued on February 28, 1911. This service was then absorbed by the Floydada set-up."

There are countless stories surrounding the names of the towns, schools, and post offices that have come and gone through the years in the county. Many families of modern-day Floyd County trace their origins to the remote and (sometimes) strange-sounding places and locations. They may no longer exist, but they are far from forgotten.

Dovel and Shurbet recite nuptials in Tulia

Mendy Lee Dovel of Tulia and Mark Shannon Shurbet of Floydada exchanged marriage promises in a 7 p.m. June 24 ceremony in the Central Church of Christ in Tulia. Jim Hale, associate minister, officiated. The couple married in the same church that the bride's parents were married in.

The former Miss Dovel is the daughter of Milton and Lanelle Dovel of Tulia. Don and Mary Shurbet of Floydada are parents of the bridegroom.

The bride was escorted by her father down the aisle where the pews were decorated with white satin bows.

Vows were exchanged for the double ring ceremony in front of a formal setting of tree and fan candelabras adorned with emerald. Ushers lighted the candles.

The bride chose a white, floor length bridal gown, designed from sheer organza. It featured an open neckline and was off the shoulders. Imported Venise lace, along with bridal pearls and sequins adorned the gown. It was styled with molded bodice and beaded Venise lace appliques decorating the front bodice.

The basque waistline was accented with points in front and back and a back bow. The gown had puffed short sleeves and a very full multi-tiered ruffled skirt.

Her bouffant double tiered illusion veil, trimmed with seed pearls, was secured to a pearl encrusted headband with sheer illusion gardenias accented with miniature cascading pearls.

The bridal bouquet was a cascade of cymbidium orchids, bridal pink roses accented with pearl wisps and needlepoint ivy.

Following tradition, the bride had her wedding gown as something new. A gold chain bracelet belonging to the groom's mother served as something old and borrowed and her garter was blue. She also carried a penny in each shoe minted in the years of the couple's birthdates.

Mary Beth Dovel of Amarillo served her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Tami Childress and Kristi Crooks of Lubbock and Ange Shurbet, sister of the bridegroom, of Amarillo.

They wore cotton floral tea length gowns with aqua/pink flowers on a white background. The gowns had short sleeves, puffy at the shoulders, molded bodice with a cutout keyhole in the back. They had bows at the back waist and full skirts.

The bridal attendants carried a long-stem bridal pink rose tied with white lace and pink satin ribbon.

Morgan White of Fort Worth, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Wearing a gown identical to the bridesmaids', she carried a basket of potpourri.

Dean Seymour of Floydada was best man. Groomsman included Brett Marble of South Plains, Scott Howard of Houston and Joe Paul Dovel of Canyon, brother of the bride.

The groom was dressed in a black tuxedo with tails, black cummerbund and bridal pink rosebuds as his boutonniere. All male attendants were attired in black tuxedos with pink rosebud boutonnieres.

Guests were seated by Mike Ruff of Dallas and Aaron Hendricks of Floydada.

"Because", "Twelfth of Never" and "The Lord's Prayer" were sung by His Image Singers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given in Fellowship Hall of the church.

The bride's table was decorated with a traditional three-tiered cake as the centerpiece adorned with a fresh arrangement of pink roses, pink alstromeria, yellow fressia and white daisies, accented with baby's breath and English ivy. On either side were silver candlesticks with complementary floral arrangements.

Frozen slush punch and coffee were served from silver appointments. The bridegroom's table was decorated with a fern and silver appointments. Guests helped themselves to assorted cheeses, finger sandwiches, chicken puffs, fresh fruit kabobs, arranged on pineapples served on crystal platters. This table was decorated with a fern and a cut crystal bowl.

Guests were registered by Mary Lisa McBride of Amarillo at a table decorated with a bud vase arranged with pink roses, pink alstromeria and yellow fressia accented with baby's breath.

Melissa Schulte of Amarillo, Christie Beth Borchardt and Judean Pletcher, both of Canyon, served at the reception.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at The Steak House.

Other bridal courtesies included miscellaneous showers in Tulia, Floydada and Lubbock and a lingerie shower in Lubbock.

Following a wedding trip to Jamaica, the couple will be at home in Floydada. For traveling, the bride chose a street length dress of white flowers on teal background, accented with a ruffled neckline and short sleeves.

The new Mrs. Shurbet attended Texas Tech University and is employed as a secretary for Medical Records of Lubbock.

Her husband, who studied at Clarendon Junior College, is the self-employed operator of Shurbet Backhoe Service in Floydada.

Harmony members hear "Self Help Devices"

By Ruth Scott

Harmony Extension Homemakers club met Monday, June 26, at community center with Imelda Murry as hostess. Maye Williams, vice president, presided in absence of Vivian Curtis, president. Roll call was answered with "A chore I hate to do around the house." For her "share an idea, Imelda showed a small clown that she had made using a small frame she made.

In the business session it was voted not to send a delegate to the state meeting at Corpus Christi in September.

Plans were made to attend the play "God's Country" to be in the Canyon of Crosby County on Friday August 4. Everyone is to meet at the Community Center at 7 p.m. Fifteen reserved seats have been bought.

Blanche Williams gave the program on "Self Help Devices for Daily Living." Some of the things she told us were:

As we grow older, we experience changes in hearing, vision, touch, mobility and dexterity-which is normal, but make daily tasks harder to complete. To make daily life safer, easier and more comfortable, work simplification techniques and self help devices are available. For the hard of hearing besides hearing aides, one could have flashing lights to replace fire alarm sound systems; doorbells and telephones; television attachments that increase the sound without disturbing other listeners.

You can stand in front of a person you are speaking to (give opportunity to read lips, use gestures to illustrate message, use short sentence.)

Touch: Studies suggest an agrelated decline in the ability to detect things by touch and a decreased sensitivity to pain and is more likely to be burned or cut and not know it until severe damage has occurred. This sensation is like trying to pick up things with glove on. It is hard for some older people to button their clothes, a hair pin could be used or velcro could be put on some clothing making it easier to fasten.

Install temperatures regulators on hot water heaters; Wrap exposed hot pipes and equipment; Use padded pot holders when handling hot dishes.

For one's suffering from arthritis and have lost their hand grip a soap dispenser sponge makes it easier to wash

Things they never told you about a heat pump.

Fact # 4

When you hear a sales pitch for a heat pump this summer, you need to think ahead to next winter.

A heat pump does such a poor job heating in our raw West Texas winters, they have to hook it up to a furnace to keep your family from being miserable when it gets cold.

After all, if your furnace has done a good job keeping your family warm all these years, does it make sense to attach something to it that doesn't work anywhere near as well?

Merrell's invite relatives, friends to celebration

The Merrell family has been a part of this country for 100 years and on June 15, 1989 the descendants and relatives of David Alexander and Mary Frances Edwards Merrell will gather for their annual reunion. This will be a special gathering due to the fact that the Merrell family has been on the same land, in what is now Floyd County, for 100 years.

Everyone is invited to come and celebrate with the Merrells, be you family, friends or neighbors. This will also be a reunion for the communities of Grey Mule, Edgin, Goodnight and Fairmont and anyone who has held picnics along the banks of the creek.

A short program has been planned for the morning and entertainment and activities are planned throughout the day. It will be a day of visiting and renewing acquaintances.

There will be demonstrations and displays pertaining to the way things were done in the days of the early settlers. Among them will be arrowheads, pottery and the ranch chuckwagon.

Items belonging to the Merrell family will be on display. Some of the items include the Merrell Family Bible, old coffee grinder, large family picture, pictures of the old house, chest made for childrens clothes, baby cradle, genealogy records and other items. These will be on display at the house.

VBS children experience life in Bible times

Lockney United Methodist Church has a unique experience in store for the children in the community entering Kindergarten through 6th grade. On July 31, August 1 and 2, a typical Bible times marketplace will be set up on church property. From 9:00 to 3:00, children will relive Bible times events, exploring and experiencing Bible time occupations and relationships. From their family clusters, with a mother figure in charge, the children will venture forth into the marketplace, where they will participate in the activities of the many and varied shops, such as weaver, ropemaker, potter, scribe stone cutter, mosaic, jeweler and basketweaver. In addition, they will experience Bible times songs, games and dances. Bible stories will be dramatized in their midst.

The three day experience will be climaxed by a celebration festival on the evening of August 2 with the children's whole family participating. Take advantage of this opportunity for your children to learn that the Bible is about real people and that Christianity is a living relationship with God.

Look for more details about this event later - make plans to come.

HAVE A NICE DAY!

Everyone is encouraged to bring pictures pertaining to the Merrell family, families of the area and scenes of the early days.

A big attraction will be the Plum Creek Brigade of mountain men. Their dress, weapons, and entire camp are pre-1840. They will be dressed in their buckskins and their camp will consist of teepees and other shelters of that time. They will demonstrate tomahawk throwing, and rifle firing. Their weapons are as authentic as is their entire camp.

Registration will begin at nine and continue until ten. Lunch will be served at twelve.

The noon meal will be catered by Roy Pigg. The menu will consist of brisket, sausage, potato salad, beans, fruit, dessert and rolls. If you would like to eat with the family they will need to know by July 10. Tickets for lunch will be six dollars for adults and three dollars for children under six years of age. You are asked to contact Virginia Taylor at 983-3639. Tickets can be purchased at the Floydada Chamber of Commerce in Floydada or from Donnie Meriwether in Lockney.

Come and help the Merrell family celebrate 100 years on the same Texas land.

'George Washington's Prayer'

By Bill Gray

Recently I came into possession of a book entitled Song and Service Book for Ship and Field. Published for the Chaplain Service of the U.S. Armed Forces in 1942 by A.S. Barnes and Company, Inc., New York, the book contains a collection of well-known hymns and traditional melodies.

It also has numerous prayers and various format for use in Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish services.

The following prayer caught my eye. With the controversy over flag burning and the renewal of patriotism throughout the country in recent years, the words penned by General and President George Washington on June 8, 1783, are as relevant today as they were over two hundred years ago (from the Nation, right down to our State County and City).

Here is "Washington's Prayer for the Nation":

"Almighty God, we make our earnest prayer that Thou wilt keep the United States in thy holy protection, that Thou wilt incline the hearts of the citizens to cultivate a spirit of subordination and obedience to government, and entertain a brotherly affection and love for one another and for their fellow citizens of the United States at large.

And finally that Thou wilt most graciously be pleased to dispose us all to do justice, to love mercy, and to demean ourselves with that charity, humility, and pacific temper of mind which were the characteristics of the Divine Author of our blessed religion, and without an humble imitation of whose example in these things, we can never hope to be a happy

Grant our supplications, we beseech Thee, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen." (Written at Newburg, June 8, 1783, and sent to the Governors of all the States.)

Carl Lemons News and Views from Cedar Hill

A new flag was up and flying in Cedar Hill this Independence Day. The location is 2-1/4 miles east of Cedar and to the right, South, 1-1/2 miles, on the old, original Conner Place. You can see it from Hwy. 97 as you drive east, that is if you happen to catch the wind blowing from the southwest. Marine Vetern, Rev. Jude Strickland, and his wife, the former Ella Marie Fortenberry, bought the place nearly a year ago. Based on that flag's recent installation, Brother Jude very likely has some pretty strong views on the burning of flags, might even preach a sermon on it.

A flag flies regularly at the Lindsey Lackey home and the flag-pole from the old South Plains school bears a flag at the Fred Marble home in South Plains; this is getting to be regular flag country.

Edna Gilly arrived at home again Saturday, July 1, and was here for the long Fourth of July Week-end. She was able to give her farming interests another inspection. On Wednesday she reported back to St. Mary's therapy center for additional treatments. Mark, Lori, and the kids were with her while she was at home.

Ruth Hall, born February 4, 1900, passed away June 30, 1989.

Charley Starkey, born January 1, 1900, passed away June 28, 1989.

Check the obituary column in this edition for a fuller account.

Mid-morning on a recent Monday found Miss Becky Warren, age 2 going on 3, in the cab of a tractor helping daddy keep a cultivator exactly on the cotton rows. A soft, cushiony sleeping bag was stashed in a corner just in case little eyes got sleepy. Becky has recently decided on a farming career, and there would be no better place to start than by being daddy's helper.

In order for mother Hope to have help with the inside work, Becky has ordered a baby sister for next February. A sister, mind you! A brother won't do! Who would want to saddle a brother with housework that he probably wouldn't like at all; anyway Becky already has "dibs" on helping daddy with the outside jobs. She does help mother most days, stays at the day care center one day each week while mother works, but learning all about wrenches and the big world out-of-doors, with daddy Don, that is her favorite thing.

CORRECTION: Gayle DuBois is not working with The Federal Crop Insurance group as stated last week, but rather she works for Goen & Goen in Floydada.

Use the right appliance for the job.

When it's time to carve the turkey, there are better things to use than a chain saw.

And when you need to heat and cool your home, there are better things than a heat pump.

A heat pump can't cool your home in summer as well as a high-efficiency air conditioner. And it can't warm your home in winter as well as a natural gas furnace.

Think of winter this summer. For comfortable efficient heating in your home, the most effective appliance ever made is a natural gas furnace. Period.

ENERGAS.

Don't mess with your furnace.

Floyd County Farm Conditions

By C. Mark Brown
Extension Agent-Entomology
GENERAL SITUATION

The crops seem to be recovering at this point from all the earlier adversities we faced throughout the planting season. Some re-planting still continues. In most of the two-county area, producers are about ready to see some more rainfall. Corn is now tasseling. Many sunflower fields are in bloom.

COTTON

Cotton growth stage ranges from 1 true leaf to 1/3 grown squares. We may see a few cotton blooms by July 4, but you can probably count them on your fingers.

Thrips continue to be light, with an average of less than one per plant, in the young cotton (1-3 true leaves) we are checking. It remains important though for producers to monitor young cotton on a field-by-field basis since no delays can be afforded in this cotton.

The majority of fields are in the second week of squaring. Fleahopper counts are generally light, averaging from 2 to 5 per 100 plants with excellent square set recorded. Exceptions include those fields heavily infested with whiteweed, although this is not a dead giveaway for fleahopper problems. By taking sweep net samples, we can detect heavy numbers of fleahoppers in some whiteweed patches and very few fleahoppers in other localized patches. I suspect these differences are due primarily to localized differences in overwintering fleahopper numbers. The highest count in cotton has been 37 fleahoppers per 100 plants and the lowest square set recorded was 76%.

We found light bollworm infestations in two program fields this week. One field is located near Big 4 and the other near Caprock. I have spot checked each of these fields behind the scoops once thus far, and have found some small dead worms. In spite of this, pre-bloom infestations are not unheard of in our area; and these worms can strip plants of their fruit. Those producers with early cotton and 3 to 4 1/3-grown squares per plant should monitor their fields closely for the presence of worms. If you are finding 1 small worm per 15 to 20 plants checked, and seeing problems such as this, and would be glad to visit with anyone about proper chemical selection in pre-bloom cotton so that we can do our part in preventing bollworm-budworm resistance to synthetic pyrethroids.

CORN

Corn is now at or nearing the tassel stage. Fields we are checking near Aiken and Dougherty remain relatively pest-free. Only a few Banks grass mites have been found in these fields, and colonies are not yet established. Past observations have indicated that mites have difficulty colonizing hail-damaged leaves. This seems to be the case this year.

Adult corn rootworm beetles feed on leaves, pollen, and tassels, but prefer silks. As corn begins silking, producers should check fields for the presence of these beetles, especially if the field is planted back on old corn ground. The more years that the field has been in corn production, the more likely the problem green silk stage, they can chew silks back to within 1/2 inch of the shuck, causing number of eggs laid in the field. However, insecticide applications can, of course, cause spider mite outbreaks by destroying beneficials. Insecticide treatments for beetle control should be used only when necessary. The best control practice for this pest is crop rotation.

SUNFLOWERS

As mentioned in last week's letter, blooming fields should be monitored for sunflower moths. These slender, buff-gray colored moths have been seen in blooming fields. The moths lay eggs in blooming florets that hatch into larvae in 24 to 72 hours. During the first 2 larval instars, which last about 6 days, larvae eat only pollen and floral parts and cause no economic damage. The third instar, however, burrows into seeds and heads. Sunflower moths are historically more numerous in early blooming fields. Hybrid flowers will flower for 12 to 15 days, as compared to 21 to 28 days with open-pollinated varieties.

SCOUTING PROGRAM

We have approximately 4600 acres currently enrolled in the Crosby-Floyd Scouting program, and 4 TPMA employed field scouts are checking this acreage. We have just about finalized our routes, so that participants can normally expect the scouts on the same day each week, with the exception of bad weather or other unforeseen delays. I will contact participants in the event of critical pest infestation. However, anytime you make an insecticide application that I am unaware of, please call me or your scouts for safety's sake so that we can re-enter treated fields after the proper time interval.

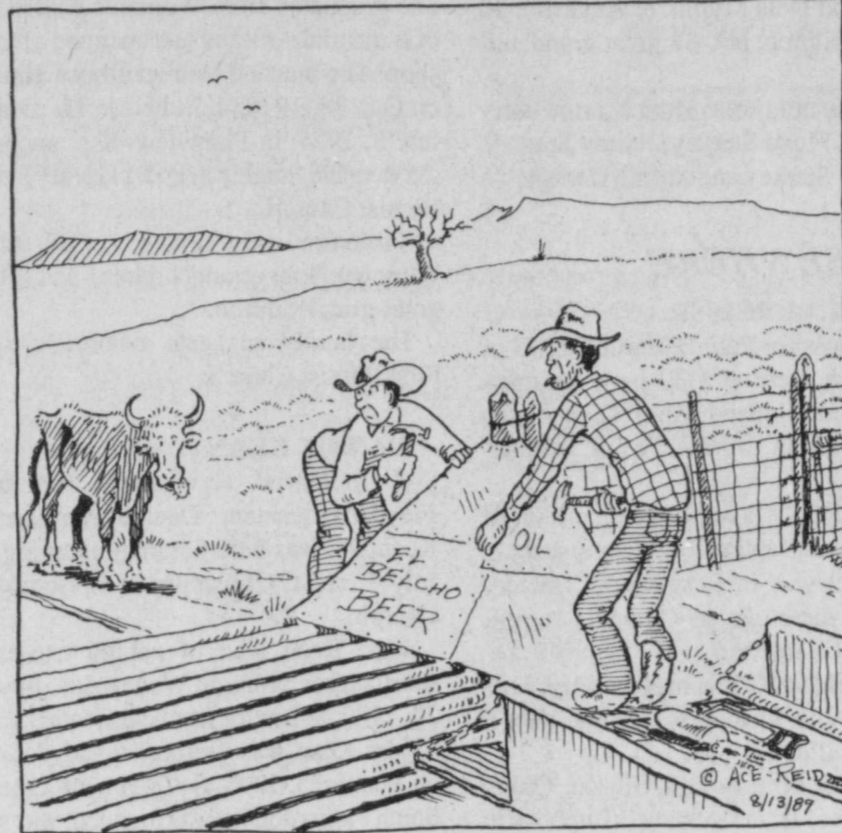

HIGH PLAINS SCOUT TRAINING WORKSHOP-PART II

The second day of our scout training workshop will be held on July 10, and will cover mid-to late-season pests. The workshop begins at 8:30 a.m. at the Mabee Regional Heritage Center on the Wayland Baptist University campus in Plainview. An in-field training session will be held that afternoon.

Everyone is welcome to attend! Bring your wife and kids, but don't let them know I gave you the idea.

WILDLIFE NOTES - A real speedster

He's half tail and feet. He's also a popular cartoon character that runs on blurring wheels. He's an odd bird but a real one. He's the roadrunner. National Wildlife magazine reports the roadrunner's name is right on target. When these wildly colored birds shift into high gear they can run as fast as 15 miles per hour. At that speed, the bird's thin muscular legs take 12 steps every second. Those fast feet coupled with spectacular eyesight give this real-life speedster an edge when tracking lizards and insects.

PRODUCERS ON TOUR—Texas Cotton producers representing Plains Cotton Growers recently participated in a new Cotton Foundation program designed to provide an exchange of information between producers from different regions of the U.S. cotton belt. The program is managed by the National Cotton Council through a grant from FMC Corporation. Producers participated in the Foundation's 1989 Cotton Outlook Conference in Charleston, SC, and then toured farms in the Carolinas. Among those participating were (from left) Kent Nix of Lamesa; Rae McDaniel of Lee County, SC, one of the host producers; Eddie Smith of Floydada; and Kevin Belt of Lockney.

1986 CCC certificates to expire

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reminds holders of cotton-specific commodity certificates issued under the 1986 upland cotton program, that the certificates will expire July 31 or nine months from the last day of the month they were issued.

The expiration dates had been extended to July 31 because of a cotton shortage in the Commodity Credit Corporation inventory. Holders of cotton-specific commodity certificates have had ample opportunity to exchange the certificates for either upland cotton or extra long staple cotton in CCC inventory. Therefore, no further extensions will be authorized.

Unlike generic commodity certificates, cotton-specific commodity certificates cannot be exchanged for cash or other CCC-owned commodities, but only for upland cotton or extra long staple cotton in CCC inventory.

For more information, contact Bruce Merkle, at (202) 447-6787.

Wheat and barley producers to receive 1988 0.92 payments

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation will make about $2 million in 0/92 program payments to eligible 1988-crop wheat and barley producers, according to Acting CCC Executive Vice President Vern Nepl. These payments will be made in commodity certificates by USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service's county offices after July 14.

CCC estimates payments to producers will be approximately $1 million each for wheat and barley. No payments are due oat producers.

Eligible wheat and barley producers received the five-month minimum 0/92 program payments with the deficiency payments made after the first five months of the applicable crop year. Wheat producers in the 0/92 program who elected to receive an advance of the "Findley" payment received that portion in December 1988.

Eligible wheat and barley producers in the 0/92 program are assured the emergency compensation or 12-month "Findley" minimum payment rates shown in the following table:

	Wheat	Barley	Oats
	—dollars per bushel—
A. Total minimum payment rates	1.53	0.76	0.30
B. 5-month minimum payment rate	1.47	0.71	0.30
C. 12-month minimum payment Rate (line A minus line B)	0.06	0.05	0.00

Onion tours set for Friday

Onion growers and shippers, seed company representatives, industry leaders and others may tour transplant onion variety trials and demonstrations Friday, (July 7), said Dr. Roland E. Roberts, vegetable specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The tour will begin at 9 a.m. at the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center on FM 1294, just east of Interstate 27 at the Shallowater exit.

The group will then visit several commercial onion growers in the Lubbock area.

Transplanted onions featured will be five intermediate-day Sunseeds, red hybrids, Tango, Midstar, Perla and 00048 varieties. The group will also see five breeding lines of transplanted short and intermediate-day types developed by Dr. Leonard Pike, Texas A&M onion breeder.

Plots of direct-seeded onions to be viewed include 43 intermediate and long-day types. These have all been precisionthinned to four inches apart in each row.

Dr. David Bender, assistant professor and vegetable researcher with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, will detail an onion-nitrogen nutrition research program under his direction.

"A second tour of the direct-seeded, long-day varieties will be held in August," said Roberts.

Mr. Moore died at 3 p.m. Wednesday, June 28, 1989 in Eisenhower Medical Center in Palm Springs after a lengthy illness.

He was born January 20, 1952 in Plainview. He graduated from Lockney High School in 1970 and received a bachelors degree in business administration in 1973 from Texas Tech University in Lubbock. He was a realtor in Houston before moving to Palm Springs, California in 1986 where he worked in real estate.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore of Lockney; four brothers Thomas of Garland, Robert of Houston, Paul of Lubbock, and Howard of Dallas; two sisters, Katherine Aull of Lubbock, and Barbara Moore of Garland.

DANA MURRELL

Funeral services for Dana Murrell, 23, of Lazbuddie, and formerly of Lockney, was held at 11 a.m. Friday in the First Baptist Church of Lazbuddie with the Rev. Gary Wilcox, pastor, and Dr. Joe Stettheimer, pastor of the Christian Fellowship Church at Cone, officiating. Burial will be in the Lazbuddie Cemetery by Ellis Funeral Home of Muleshoe.

Mrs. Murrell died at 6:25 p.m. Tuesday, June 25, 1989, in a two vehicle accident at the intersection of Texas Highway 214 and Farm-to-Market Road 145, two miles east and two miles north of Lazbuddie.

She was born Dana Poole on May 31, 1966 in Lockney. She married Barry Murrell October 17, 1986 in Las Vegas, Nevada, and had lived in Lazbuddie the past two and one half years, moving from Lubbock. She was a secretary for Shirley Anderson Grain and a member of the First Baptist Church.

Survivors include her husband; her mother, Wilma Poole of Marlin; her father, Junior Poole of Lockney; grandparents, Pearl Wright of Plainview and Mr. and Mrs. Sol Barclay of Lockney; four sisters, Doyle Black of Amarillo, Christi Martin of Westchester, Pennsylvania and Gala Poole and Lori Poole both of Marlin; and a brother Brent Poole of Lockney.

Social Security News

By Mary Jane Shanes

In recent years we have stressed the need to plan for retirement as early as possible. However, it should be noted that the earlier one plans to retire, the more planning is required.

Age 65 is the age for full benefits from social security and is also used by much of private industry. However, most social security beneficiaries retire before age 65, and a recent study indicated that age 62 is the most frequent age of retirement in private industry.

Reduced social security retirement benefits have been available at 62 for men since 1961 and for women since 1956. Benefits are reduced for each month before age 65 a person receives retirement benefits. At 62, a person receives 80 percent of the full benefit rate.

Reduced benefits are available at 60 for widows and widowers. Payments to widows and widowers range from 71-1/2 percent of the deceased spouse's benefit at 60 to 100 percent at 65.

People who work in some types of jobs—firemen, policemen, military service—may retire as early as age 55. In addition, some employers encourage workers to retire early as a means of cutting back on their payroll. This may mean several years of no earnings that could result in lowering the lifetime average earnings amount on which benefits are based. People who start a second job after retirement as many do, not only earn extra income to meet current living expenses, they also protect their social security benefits for when they finally retire at age 62 or later.

People who retire before 65 generally have to worry about what to do about their health insurance coverage since Medicare does not begin until 65. Social Security officials recommend that they retain their job-related group health insurance until they reach 65. A person may also consider joining a health maintenance organization with the provision that the coverage will be changed to supplement Medicare protection at 65.

People who decide to delay their retirement until after 65 should note that a delayed retirement credit of 3 percent a year increases their benefit for each year after 65 they postpone retiring. These retirement credits will increase gradually from 3 percent per year for workers 65 before 1990 to 8 percent per year for workers who reach 65 after 2008. People who decide to retire early should be sure to check with their social security office. The information we can provide can make the difference between a smooth road to retirement or a rocky one.

Reminders, information for Lockney trash pickup

The contractor has serviced the city since December, 1988 and would like to thank each of you for your cooperation and patience for the last few months as the garbage collection system was set up and operations started.

The following reminders and additional information is provided for you to get the best service possible and enjoyment of automated collection system.

1. Contractor is not required to dump containers having tires, tree limbs or branches, bricks, sheet rock (dry wall), shingles, car batteries, building materials, dirt, or other loose items. If a container is not dumped, check for a prohibited item, the container will not be dumped until item or items are removed. The driver will no longer remove the items.

2. The collection equipment is unable to lift or handle containers with bricks, blocks of cement, rocks, dirt, sheet rock (dry wall), plywood, paneling sheets, or lumber and other building materials. These items due to weight or bulk will cause serious damage to the collection equipment lift system and/or the equipment packing system.

3. Remember that the primary purpose of the containers is for household trash or waste, the trash you used to put in the barrels. The additional container space was provided for bad weather conditions. This means that during bad weather there should be at least one container in each alley with extra space.

4. Remember that a container is being shared. So if one household fills a container with normal household waste, add yard waste (grass clippings, tree branches, bush trimmings, etc.), add several medium to large boxes, then this household has probably used most of the available space, leaving very little space for the other household that shares the container, which causes a problem.

5. Using the example described above if you add bad weather conditions to the problem and the regular scheduled pickup is delayed, then a bigger problem has developed for all of those who share the container because now no one has room for household waste due to weather and the yard wastes.

6. The collection contractor has schedules to complete and operates routes in other cities which limits the availability of the truck being used. The truck cannot make special service calls due to misuse of the collection containers.

Examples: If a container is scheduled for pickup on Monday, but it has prohibited items in it, then it may be the next Monday before the container gets dumped causing a lot of inconvenience for all those concerned. Also, if a container is blocked by a vehicle or something stacked in front or too close to the sides, the container can not be dumped.

7. All construction contractors are reminded not to use the containers near a job site, to do so causes problems for the customers who are paying for the service. If a contractor fills a container before it would normally fill up means those customers who use the container have no place to dump their household waste before the next scheduled pickup. The collector contractor will furnish a contractor with a container at the job site if the job will last longer than five (5) days for the acceptable waste that can be dumped. Contact city office for container.

8. If you contract with a contractor for air conditioning/heating, plumbing, or building contractors, etc. be sure that the contractors contract has or should have a clause or paragraph concerning the removal of all waste material generated during the job by the contractor. In that way you do not become responsible for the removal of the waste material.

9. Do not block the containers. Do not stack or put tree trimmings, yard waste, and other items of waste in front or too close to the side of the container.

10. As much as possible keep all lids closed. Please tell the children who carry out trash to be sure to close the lids. Children should not be allowed to play in or around the containers.

11. Grass clippings, leaves, very small tree clippings are best used to fill low spots (water stands in low spots) or truck ruts in alley ways. This base mixed with the mud will eventually make a hard road way and create less problems during bad weather.
