

Lockney Council okays three percent tax hike

The Lockney City Council voted in favor of a proposal to increase taxes slightly for 1989, in their regular monthly session, August 4.

The proposal will actually result in a slight decrease in taxes for most taxpayers. The 1988 taxes levied were 35.68 cents per $100 valuation. The effective tax rate which would raise the same amount of money on the 1989 tax levy would be 33.772 cents.

Based on these figures Lockney council members elected to increase the effective tax rate by 3%, making taxes for 1989, 34.785 cents per $100 valuation.

Mayor Smith updated councilmen on the requirements the city will face to keep their landfill open, after June 1, 1991. New EPA regulations have set forth very stringent guidelines for all city landfills. According to these regulations the following conditions will have to be met, by Lockney, in order to maintain a landfill:

- (1) Trash must be packed and buried each day the landfill is in use.
- (2) Open burning will be prohibited.
- (3) Explosive gases control will be required.

(4) Access control will be required - a 10 ft. chain link fence with 3 strands of barb wire around the perimeter must be erected.

- (5) Drainage control to prevent drainage flow both into and out of the landfill.
- (6) No liquids of any kind will be accepted into the landfill.
- (7) 5 water testing wells must be dug at a cost of $20,000 each

(8) 4 methane testing wells must be dug at a cost of $2,500 each
(9) Testing of water and methane must be done at a cost of $10,000 each year.

(10) A program must be implemented to detect and prevent the disposal at the landfill of federally regulated hazardous

Town hall meeting discusses streets

A town hall meeting was held Monday night at the Community building in Lockney for the purpose of discussing the condition of the dirt streets in the city limits. The property owners were asked to tell the City Council what they wanted done.

Present were Dan Smith, mayor of Lockney; councilmen, J. D. Copeland, Kenneth Wofford, Ronnie Aston, and Sam Fortenberry; commissioners Floyd Jackson and George Taylor, city secretary and assistant, Irma Lee Duckworth and Charlotte Hooten and city superintendent Dickie McCarty.

Approximately fifty property owners were present at the meeting. They heard the options that are open to them and discussed what needed to be done and how it could be accomplished.

Smith explained to the group that the grant money was no longer available for the paving of streets and that any paving that was done would have to be paid for by the property owner.

The second option discussed was to have caliche and gravel spread. The caliche used would be paid for by the property owner and would be spread by the county's maintainers.

Curb and gutters could be installed and then caliche spread was the third option discussed.

Old culverts would have to be removed and replaced in order for them to all be a standard size. They need to be 22 to 24 inches to conform to the height of the street. For those who did not want a culvert the group discussed putting in

Hernandez displays trophy winning classic Chevy

Juan Hernandez of Lockney is the proud owner of a classic 1957 Chevrolet and is gaining a winning record on the show car circuit.

The car was given to him by his father Marcelino Hernandez and it was originally owned by his grandmother.

The 1957 Chevy is probably the most sought after car to restore. Hernandez said that the car was a standard three speed with a 327 engine. It is completely stock and when he enters it in a car show it is entered in the classic division. Although there was not much work to be done to the car to put it in shape for showing, Juan has done most of the work himself.

The car, which sports the license plate Juan 57, was originally turquoise and white and Hernandez had it painted a bright brick red. The interior is done in black.

Hernandez took the car to Lubbock for his first show in 1988. Since that time he has shown in Plainview, Amarillo, Odessa, Midland, Laredo, Victoria and Dallas and has a multitude of first, second and third place trophies to show for the work he has done.

Categories at the car shows include Original (exactly as it came off the show room floor), Classic, Customized and Hot Rod. Hernandez explained that the difference between his car and those shown in the Original division is that Chevy is not the color that it was painted at the factory and the upholstery has been changed along with some chrome parts that he has added to the motor.

Several weekends ago Hernandez displayed the car at a car show at the Amarillo Dragstrip. He won second runner-up and the car caught the eye of a photographer from Classic Car magazine. Hernandez is hoping there will be a follow-up and that possibly they might do a story on his car.

Cars are judged on their looks. They must be spotless and waxed to a mirror shine. Points are given or taken away on the cars condition. Hernandez said that you also gained points if you hood and truck were open for inspection. Everything in the trunk must be in its place and not a speck of dirt anywhere.

"Lots of times I take my cousins with me to help me clean the car before the judges come," Hernandez commented. He has done most of the work on the car himself. Parts that he cannot find locally he orders from a specialty shop in California.

Showing cars is an expensive hobby. Hernandez estimates that if he had to replace the chrome trim that it would cost approximately $1200.

"A lot of car shows are attending by car clubs but I am the only one representing the Texas Style Car Club even though there are several other members. The biggest car shows are held in California and I hope to make it to several of them next summer," says Hernandez.

Hernandez is a graduate of Lockney high school and works at Dicks Automotive. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Marcelino Hernandez.

Council considers landfill options wastes and PCB's.

- (11) Documentation of each load brought into the landfill must be made.
- (12) A 1.5 million bond must be posted.
- (13) All pits must be lined to prevent leaching of wastes into groundwater.
- (14) Engineering will cost $75,000 to $100,00.
- (15) Permit will cost $5,000 to $10,000.
- (16) Cost estimates to keep City of Lockney landfill open range from $250,000 to $500,00.

"The Department of Health gave us a map showing all the landfills in the area," said Mayor Smith. "There are currently 130 landfills in operation in the Lubbock area and when the new rules go into effect they estimate that only 40 of them will stay in operation."

After hearing the regulations the councilmen decided that there was no way that the city landfill could remain open. Mayor Smith also informed the council that according to the new EPA regulations, it will also be expensive to close the landfill. "We will be required to fill in both pits completely - even the empty ones have to be filled up. Then the whole landfill will have to be seeded to grass. For 25 years the top cover of the landfill will have to be taken care of to insure there is no erosion. This has to be in effect by June 1, 1991. To close it, we will have to start early in the year, to get it to comply with EPA regulations."

"The Health Department also told me that there was no problem with our contract with Triple C," said Smith. "They said that Triple C is a large operation and has met the requirements to maintain their landfill. They will be able to continue to pick up city trash."

Bids for roofing the building under the city water tower and the building east of the tower were opened by councilmen. Latic Company, of Lubbock, bid $3,334,000. J.Q. Long, of Plainview, bid $2,205,000. Councilman Copeland made the motion to accept Long's bid, and Councilman Marr seconded the motion. The bid was accepted.

John Simpson and Gail Wyatt, of the Mackenzie Municipal Water Authority, presented the proposed 1989-90 budget to the council. They told the council that the over all budget was down although bond payments were up slightly. Simpson told the councilmen that Mackenzie was financially sound and was not experiencing a salinity problem like Lake Meredith.

Councilmen also discussed the problem the new location of the post office boxes are causing. Alderman Marr stated that the location is "creating a problem of traffic in the alley and for Dan Teuton's garage. It is becoming hazardous for anyone backing out of the garage." Mayor Smith agreed to talk to Postmaster Doug Meriwether to see if the problem could be worked out.

The financial statement was reviewed by councilmen and all bills were paid.

Present for the meeting were: Mayor Smith, Secretary Erma Lee Duckworth, Councilmen Aston, Marr, Copeland, Fortenberry, Wofford, and City Attorney Paul Lyles. Also present was John Simpson, Gail Wyatt and The Beacon reporter.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,

In this issue of the Beacon is an article about the new regulations for landfills to be enforced by the E.P.A. and the Texas Department of Health. I hope your readers will closely read these regulations so that all will understand why the City of Lockney will not continue to maintain the landfill after the spring of 1991.

In my opinion, this is another case of our federal government going too far. In fact, I believe it is another batch of regulations to attempt to do away with our small rural communities and force everyone to live in larger towns and cities. When the E.P.A. wrote these guidelines, they had to know that towns the size of Lockney could not meet these regulations. To keep the landfill open past June 1, 1991, would require not only all the city's cash reserves, but all the resources of the City of Lockney. Of course, the City of Lockney would have to go it alone as Floyd County has made it quite clear that all they will do is "dig the pits."

Currently in the Panhandle-South Plains region, there are 130 landfill sites. After these regulations go into effect, the Department of Health estimates there may be 40 left. Several counties will have no landfills. One has to wonder if the E.P.A. thinks people will suddenly stop generating trash once these regulations go into effect.

I have been informed that several of these new regulations are in theory only. That is, it has not been positively proven that several of the mishaps we are trying to prevent could happen.

Will these regulations be enforced? I have been assured that they will be. Since the Texas Department of Health receives a substantial amount of its budget from the E.P.A., they do not intend to lose it.

These guidelines are for the entire United States. They do not take local conditions into consideration. They seem to feel that "what's best for New York City is best for Lockney, Texas."

The citizens of Lockney are assured their household trash will continue to be disposed of after the landfill closes. The City of Lockney has a long-term contract with CCC Sanitation. They are a large company serving 15 towns. This gives them enough volume to justify bringing their landfill into compliance with the E.P.A. rules. What about the items that cannot go into the dumpsters? What about the people who live outside the city limits? To those questions I do not have an answer at this time. Everyone knows about half of the roofs in Lockney have recently been replaced. Where would all those old shingles have gone if there was no landfill?

In closing, is there anything to be done to stop these regulations? We all might contact our Congressman and Senators. After all Congress controls the E.P.A. and we, the citizens, elect Congress.

Sincerely,
Dan B. Smith, Mayor

CARD OF THANKS

To whom it may concern:
On July 25, 1989, Max Smith died. He was my brother-in-law. He was my girl's uncle and we loved him so much. I've never seen so much love displayed as I saw for "Uncle Max" on July 27. So many, many people, through the years knew and cared for him. Kids and grown-ups alike. When he got sick, again, all of you were there for him and his family. I always knew that he loved everyone there but to see it returned was overwhelming.

My love and thanks to all of you! A special thanks to Elvita and Nick, Richard, Peggy and Buddy, Dot and W.L., Shirley and a big hug to Dr. Mangold and Gary. God Bless! To the numerous people whom I can not name at this time, God speed! My gratitude and love to you also.

Sincerely and with love, dips instead.

Approximately twenty culverts are located at intersections and the city will replace those at the expense of the city.

Dan Smith stated that "Everybody on each street needs to cooperate with each other. This has to be a community effort. Each street will be done individually and each property owner can make up his own mind about what he wants done, but we hope that all homeowners will be in agreement."

Ronnie Aston commented that "This will be a major undertaking and we all need to make plans so that everyone gets what they need."

Property owners explained their individual needs and suggestions were offered by the council or the commissioners. Arvie Newton told the council that he had hauled in several loads of gravel over the years and was concerned that the road work would do away with the gravel that was there. The council assured him that they would replace the gravel that was lost at their expense.

Sam Fortenberry told the group that "What we mess up we will replace."

Those present were asked to come to the front and sign up so the council could get an idea of those who wanted work done. The group was told that rough estimates would be given to those who wanted them.

Everyone present was encouraged to talk to their neighbors and to work together in getting whole streets repaired.

"MERRY CHRISTMAS"

Do you think it is too early to think CHRISTMAS? Maybe not!

The members of the Lockney Chamber of Commerce think it is time to replace the down town Christmas decorations. Don't you?

We would like to make this a town project. Because of the expense and the time this will take, we are looking for volunteers to work and donations of funds. We know this can be completed by the first of December, but we must start now.

A plan to redo the old decorations and make new ones have been discussed. We would like to see the entire main street decorated, from Davis Lumber to the Lockney General Hospital.

If we make the frames and wrap the garland ourselves the cost of each design can almost be cut in half. Plans have been drafted for the new designs and to change the old ones to look completely different.

Letters will be sent to individual townspeople as well as the clubs. We are hoping to create interest from everyone since we all get pleasure from looking at the decorations during the holidays.

If this sounds like something you would be interested in please get in contact with me or Judy Jackson. We will be more than happy to answer any questions you might have or listen to any suggestions.

Sincerely,
Jim Bob Martin

"The Fashion, Cotton is the All-American Fiber, Retailers Say Cotton is Becoming the Fabric of Choice, Consumers Cotton Up to Natural Fiber's Pluses, Top Designers Sing Praises of Cotton, American Consumers Prefer Cotton Material and Key Word in Cotton - Fashion." Cotton Incorporated's strategy is to identify worldwide apparel and home fabric fashion directions that benefit cotton and to create excitement and fashion promotions that will keep U.S. mills, manufacturers and retailers on track in cotton production.

Hot Weather Dressing -- Keep it loose, simple and cotton

With tropic-like heat and humidity stretching from coast to coast, hot weather dressing experts say keeping cool and comfortable is a matter of maximizing the body's own natural cooling system. Norbert Brodil, chief of life support clothing systems and equipment branch of the U.S. Army Natick Research Development Engineering Center, says that both field and laboratory research has shown that for tropical conditions, loose-fitting cotton clothing is the best option for reducing heat stress. "All Army and Marine Corps combat camouflage uniforms for use in tropical zones are 100 percent cotton," Says Brodil. "Cotton offers good moisture removal and evaporative cooling." He adds that what you wear underneath is almost as important as what you wear on top and recommends starting with 100 percent cotton underwear. Mary Louise Hawkins, senior director of fashion marketing for Cotton Incorporated, says that cotton has long been considered essential to dressing for hot and humid weather due to the fiber's structure. "Cotton has superior ability for breathability and absorbency," says Hawkins.

Wayland designated bicentennial campus

The Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution has designated Wayland Baptist University a Bicentennial Campus, according to Dr. Geoff Wells, chairman of WBU's Bicentennial Committee.

The commission, established by Congress in 1983 and chaired by former Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, announced the designation earlier this week.

The bicentennial celebration of the U.S. Constitution began in 1987 to commemorate the signing of the document at the constitutional convention of 1787. The celebration continues through 1991, the 200th anniversary of the ratification of the Bill of Rights.

Wayland achieved the status after extensive work by Wells, an assistant professor of political science, and committee members Tom Ray, assistant professor of history, and Dr. Estelle Owens, chairperson of the Division of Social Sciences.

The university will participate in the celebration of the Constitution and its first government by sponsoring several programs involving both Wayland and the area community.

"We hope that the university's recognition as a Bicentennial Campus will help promote a better public understanding of the history and continuing significance of this important document," said Wells. He also indicated that several special local events had been planned in conjunction with the celebration.

"Being designated as a Bicentennial Campus is quite an honor for Wayland Baptist University," commented Dr. Lanny Hall, WBU president. "I appreciate the work of Dr. Wells and the Bicentennial Committee in bringing this distinction to Wayland."

Committee members presented Hall a framed Bicentennial Campus certificate, which will be on display in Gates Hall throughout the celebration.

FFA students attend state convention

Perez bestowed Lone Star Farmer Degree

Five students and their advisor from Lockney High School attended the Texas FFA convention held recently in Houston.

Those attending were Jeffrey Sutterfield, Chad Cook, Bryan Henderson, J. J. Perez, Heath Rexrode and Zane Bauer, FFA advisor.

J.J. Perez was awarded the Lone Star Farmer Degree along with winners from all ten districts in the state.

More than 5,500 Texas FFA delegates, members and guests were registered for the 61st annual state convention.

Organized in 1928, the FFA is a national organization of students enrolled in agricultural education in 50 states, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands and the District of Columbia. Texas now has 947 FFA chapters with nearly 55,000 active members and more than 600,000 former members. Each state association is required to have a minimum of four chapters and at least 125 members.

Jeff Rash of Gilmer, Area VI, was elected state president for the 1989-90 year. Vice-presidents representing each of the ten districts in the state were David Cobb, Lubbock-/Cooper, Area I;

James Henderson, Snyder, Area II; Ken Ullrich, Katy, Area III; Stacy Gilbert, Electra, Area VI; Michelle Schertz, Krum, Area V; Tracy Pitcock, Brady, Area VII; Bill Clifton, Cleburne, Area VIII; James Huggins, West Sabine, Area IX; and Trace Blair, Calallen, Area X.

Tammy Sutton of Ore City, Area VI, was winner of the sweetheart contest and runner-up was Mary Schaffer of Magnolia, Area III.

The Rockdale FFA chapter took honors as winner of the state talent contest while the Tahoka chapter won second place in the competition.

80 FFA members received a total of $537,400 in educational scholarships. The Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo donated $400,000 of that amount to 50 FFA members for four-year $8,000 scholarships.

The keynote address for the convention was given by Frederick D. McClure, assistant to President Bush for legislative affairs. McClure, a former FFA Texas state president and national secretary, noted his job "working for Bush was a direct result of working with the FFA for six years."

He received his bachelor of science degree in agriculture and economics from Texas A&M University where he was student body president. He went on to earn his juris doctor degree in 1981 from the Baylor University School of Law and has worked as a trial lawyer.

The state convention is a highlight of a years worth of activity by FFA members and all chapter members are invited to attend. Delegates from each chapter conduct the business of the state association and elect officers to represent them in the coming year.

The convention is divided into five general sessions. These sessions include the election of 1989-90 state FFA president from the state FFA officer candidates nominated by the 10 area FFA associations. From 10 area nominees, voting delegates also will select the state FFA sweetheart to represent the state association during 1989-90.

Other session activities include reports of retiring state officers, the national officer election run-offs, presentation of numerous awards and degrees, recognition of individual and chapter achievements in FFA contests and award programs and the installation of the new state officers.

Through active participation in the FFA the members learn by taking part in and conducting meetings, speaking in public, participating in contests based on occupational skills, earning awards and recognition and becoming involved in cooperative efforts and community improvement. Every member carries out a supervised agricultural experience program as preparation for an agricultural career.

The ultimate objective of the organization is to produce future leaders for American agriculture with its vital role of producing food, fiber and agribusiness employees.

LONGHORN CHEERLEADERS WIN AT CAMP--(L-R) Jessica Lemons, Daisey Blanco, Jennifer Fortenberry, Shedia Hill, Cindy Cook, Aimee Green, and Anna Cortez brought home several awards from the cheerleading camp they attended at ENMU. Kneeling is Jennifer Turbeville who will serve as the mascot for the group.

Varsity cheerleaders attend camp at ENMU

Lockney varsity cheerleaders attended the National Cheerleading Association Camp at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales, July 18-21. Those who attended were: Cindy Cook, Aimee Green, Jennifer Turbeville, Anna Cortez, Shedia Hill, Jennifer Fortenberry, Jessica Lemons and Daisey Blanco.

Each day started at 8 a.m. with cheer aerobics and ended in the evening around 9:30 p.m. with the final evaluation.

The squad not only learned new cheers and chants, they also learned new jumps and stunts. The classes were grouped as beginner, intermediate and advanced.

Anna Cortez was selected to participate in a style show which she modeled a new uniform with a matching cardigan.

The girls also had pom-pom classes which they learned a new dance everyday. Private coaching provided by the camp instructors was also available every night before evaluation.

The Lockney squad improved every evening at the final evaluation. The first night the squad received an excellent ribbon on a cheer they brought with them from home. The second night they received a superior ribbon on a cheer and a chant learned that day. The third night they not only received a superior ribbon, but they also earned a spirit stick. The last day of camp, the squad received a superior ribbon for their home cheer, a cheer they learned at camp, a chant they learned at camp, and their creativity cheer, (a cheer they created themselves).

On the last day of camp, the camp instructors select squads to participate in the award of excellence in which they choose the best squad of the camp. Out of 25 squads attending camp, 6 were nominated for the award of excellence. The Lockney Varsity Squad received one of these nominations.

Best working cowboys of Texas put skills to the test

Whoa there, Pardner. It's time to dust off your chaps and shine up your spurs for the best display of working cowboy prowess since the days of the Old West. The event: the ninth annual Texas Ranch Roundup.

"Part cowboy showdown, part reunion, the Texas Ranch roundup brings to life the color and camaraderie of the original 'rodeo' on the Texas frontier," says event coordinator Ruth Ann Allred of Falls Distributing Co. "When the cattle industry was young, entire ranch families would get together before fall roundup to visit and to watch as dads, brothers, cousins and hired hands competed against other 'outfits' at working cattle."

This tradition continues August 18 and 19 as teams of working cowboys, wagon bosses, ranch owners and family members from 11 of Texas' best known ranches gather in the Wichita County Mounted Patrol Arena for a weekend of tale swapping, trail cooking and friendly roping and riding competition.

"When the dust settles," Allred says, "one ranch will earn braggin' rights as the 'Best Ranch in Texas.'"

These seasoned cowhands, as lean and wiry as buffalo grass, will put their time-honored skills to the test during two nights of fast-moving Texas Ranch Roundup arena competition. Pattered closely after daily ranch chores, the events give Old West fans a first-hand look at cowboy life unmatched by television or modern-day professional rodeos.

The stars of the Texas Ranch Roundup are some of the state's best working cowboys. No professional bull riders here. No drug store cowboys, either. Just real, honest-to-goodness, sun up-to sun down cowhands — the kind who still earn their living working cattle on the open range, in much the same way as their grandfathers and great-grandfathers.

"Watching the cowboys out in the arena, you find yourself thinking you're actually riding shotgun out on the Pitchfork," says Allred. "Whether the job is bringing down 400-pound calves for branding, coaxing headstrong cattle into a pen, breaking spooked broncs or, yes, milking wild cows, the rule is 'do it as you would on the ranch.'"

Texas Ranch Roundup arena competition starts at 7:30 p.m. Friday, August 18 and resumes again Saturday evening, August 19; competition is followed each night by a little "boot scootin'" (that's cowboy lingo for dancing) under the north Texas sky.

In addition to a showdown of cattle working skills, the Texas Ranch Roundup features a ranch talent competion Saturday morning that further showcases the rugged, romantic life still enjoyed by cowboys. There's fiddle-playing, cowboy poetry, campfire songs, old-fashioned melodramas and displays of crafts, paintings and photographs by the ranchers and their families.

Around high noon Saturday, tempting aromas signal a chuckwagon cookoff as ranch "cookies" — rustle up their favorite dishes. For a $2 contribution to roundup charities, spectators can sample golden brown angle biscuits, baked in a cast iron pot in the ground, chicken-fried steak, juicy cobbler and other specialties. And, for a $5 contribution, hungry cowpokes can have a full "heaping helpin'" of great ranch cooking.

The ranch roundup's climax comes Saturday night with the naming of the top hand, top horse and the 1989 "Best Ranch in Texas."

Returning to defend its 1988 ranch roundup win is the W.T. Waggoner Estate (Vernon). Also competing this year are Cowan & Son Circle Bar Ranch (Seymour), Double U Hereford Ranch (Levelland), JA Cattle Co. (Palo Duro), Lewis Ranches (Clarendon), Moorhouse Ranch Co. (Benjamin), Pitchfork Land & Cattle Co., (Guthrie), R.A. Brown Ranch (Throckmorton), Renderbrook-Spade Ranch (Colorado City), and the Tongue River Ranch and Spur Headquarters Ranches (Dumont).

The Texas Ranch Roundup is co-sponsored annually by Budweiser and the North Texas Rehabilitation Center. Proceeds from the event benefit the North Texas Rehabilitation Center (Wichita Falls), the East Texas Rehabilitation Center (Abilene) and the West Texas Boys Ranch (San Angelo).

Roundup tickets are $9 reserved and $4 general admission. Tickets may be purchased at the gate or by calling Teresa Tillman at Cash-A-Check, 817/691-1723.

Governor appoints South Plains Committee for block grant review

Governor Bill Clements has announced his selections to 24 regional committees that will review local applications for federal block grants.

"Our 12-member regional Community Development Block Grant Review Committees ensure a strong local voice in the administration of federal funds," Clements said.

Federal block grants typically are used to finance public facilities and provide housing assistance.

The new appointees announced by the governor will serve terms ending January 1, 1991.

The regional review committees examine requests for federal Community Block Grant funds appropriated to smaller Texas cities and counties that are not direct recipients of federal money.

The regional recommendations ultimately will be forwarded to the State Community Development Review Committee for consideration. That panel, in turn, forwards its funding recommendations to the Texas Department of Commerce. The governor has final approval over all federal grants awarded under the program.

The South Plains region serves 15 West Texas counties — Bailey, Cochran, Crosby, Dickens, Floyd, Garza, Hale, Hockley, King, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Motley, Terry and Yoakum.

Appointees are Darrell Turner, Muleshoe mayor; Billy D. Carter, Cochran County commissioner; Giles McCrary, Post mayor; and E.V. Riddlehuber, Plainview mayor (appointed as chairman).

The South Texas region serves four counties — Jim Hogg, Starr, Webb and Zapata.

Economist addresses questions on food safety

The U.S. food supply is the safest in the world, thanks to strict safety procedures and pesticide monitoring, said an official with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Charles Hall, an economist in horticultural marketing, addressed some commonly asked questions about pesticide monitoring to ensure safe food products.

How and why are our foods monitored for pesticides?

Standards for pesticide licensing and use are set for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and monitored by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA). FDA personnel examine samples of produce as it leaves farms and orchards, at packing operations, wholesale markets, and major produce distribution centers, and as it enters the country from abroad.

Pesticides are monitored for three reasons:

—To enforce pesticide laws by identifying illegal (either too much residue remains or a chemical is found that is not authorized for use on that crop) pesticide residues and removing commodities with illegal residues from the marketplace.

—To deter the existence of illegal residues by identifying problems caused by international misuse or some other unintentional factor, such as unusual weather conditions or poor farming practices.

—To determine the incidence of pesticide residues in the food supply.

The FDA monitors chemicals that are used on frequently consumed foods as well as those chemicals of a particular health concern. This is not intended to test all produce because the only way to test for pesticides is to grind up the sample and analyze the extract.

What do monitoring results show?

Since 1961, the FDA has analyzed chemical residues in 234 individual foods, and, more recently, has studied the diets of 22 population groups based on age, sex, ethnicity and geography. With few exceptions, dietary intake of pesticides is hundreds, even thousands, of times lower than the Acceptable Daily Intake (ADI) levels established by the World Health Organization. Data from the FDA and state programs historically show the following:

—80 to 90 percent of foods contain no detectable residues of pesticides because the produce was not treated or the pesticide had already degraded.

—10 to 20 percent contain traces of some chemicals, but at allowable limits not considered a health threat, and which will further degrade by the time the food reaches the consumer.

—2 to 3 percent contain residues of a pesticide which is not licensed for use on that crop.

—0.2 to 0.3 percent of foods contain higher levels of pesticides than are allowed by federal standards and attempts are made to seize, destroy or hold produce until residues break down and the remaining residue is within "safe" limits.

What about foreign-grown produce?

There is no reason to believe that foreign produced fruits and vegetables are less safe than those grown domestically. Even though foreign countries typically do not have pesticide laws as strict as the U.S., all food imported to this country must meet U.S. standards in terms of which and how much residue is allowed on the food. If foreign produce contains illegal residues, it is returned or destroyed. In addition, the grower must obtain official certification on the next five shipments, before they leave the country, that the food does not contain what the U.S. considers illegal residues.

What is being done to improve our food supply?

National and state monitoring programs constantly are being revised to improve their efficiency and effectiveness. Also, farmers are learning to maximize produce quality while minimizing pesticide use. They are providing vital data to the government about how and when they use chemicals as well as what residues remain when food leaves the farm.

Food processors and chemical manufacturers are also providing more and better data concerning residues. All of this information is and will be used to make even more realistic assessments about food safety.
