Lockney Centennial Committee meets

Twenty representatives from the various churches and organizations in Lockney and the surrounding communities met Tuesday, September 12 at 6:00 p.m. in the Community Room of the First National Bank to discuss plans for the centennial birthday party of Floyd County.

June Sherman, chairman of the group, led the discussion. She told the group that a historical marker for the Lockney Cemetery is being ordered. It will be unveiled during the 1990 celebrations.

The First Baptist Church and the First United Methodist Church, both of Lockney, are also planning to erect historical markers. Each of the churches will also be celebrating their 100th birthdays.

The Methodist Church is planning an Easter sunrise service and old time revival.

The First Baptist Church is working on a "Memory Book" that will contain stories of church families and events down through the years. Anyone who would like to write a story and have it included in the book is encouraged to do so. The first Sunday in August has been set as a special time. Former pastors will bring the messages and be a part of the services.

J.D. Copeland reported that there will be a special ceremony commemorating Memorial Day at the Lockney Cemetery.

The Floyd County Arts Association is planning to have a quilt contest. They will be giving to prize of one thousand dollars to the person who quilts the best quilt representing the history of Floyd County. They will also sponsor an art show at the Floyd County Fair and are planning on a special showing of painting and photographs of Floyd County.

It was suggested that the schools need to be involved in the activities so that the students will feel a part of the history. Many ideas were forthcoming for the Floyd County Fair. Several stated that they would like to see the fair as it might have been one hundred years ago. It was suggested that a day could be set aside for demonstrations in various aspects of community life, such as sheep shearing, candle making, soap making, blacksmithing, and others. Each community will be encouraged to bring in community exhibits that will be judged in competition with each other as they were in the past. Homemakers should plan on bringing their best jams, fruits and vegetables and farmers their best stalks of maize, cotton and other crops.

The Lockney Beacon and the Floyd County Hesperian will be putting out a special Centennial edition of the newspaper and many stories and pictures will be needed. Everyone will be encouraged to bring these in to the paper. This newspaper needs to be very representative of the happenings of the county in these 100 years.

An "Old Fashioned Day" was mentioned. This is one of the suggestions that would make a good project for an organization. Games, food, dances in the street, a band concert, demonstrations and a melodrama were a few of the ideas that were discussed.

The possibility of touring several of the historic homes in Lockney was also brought up.

The 4-H Club is willing to help with a clean-up and fix-up campaign. Each business in town needs to take a good look at his building and make any repairs that are needed. Homes and yards also were included in this discussion.

County wide plans have been made for the Kick-Off Breakfast which will be held in Lockney on the morning of January 6. There will be a Cinco de Mayo celebration in May. A dedication of the centennial marker at the courthouse in conjunction with Old Settlers Day is planned for the weekend of May 28. In October there will be a wagon train ride through Motley, Briscoe and Floyd Counties. Motley and Briscoe counties will also be celebrating their 100th birthdays. Plans are being made for a June 19 party commemorating the day the slaves were freed in Texas. There will be a baseball tournament and many more activities.

Everyone is urged to make their plans and arrange to have them included in the Centennial Calendar that will be printed and available the first of the year.

The representatives from each group were asked to take ideas back to their organizations and it was announced that the committee will meet at a later date for further discussion and to finalize plans.

House Joint Resolution 102 proposes a constitutional amendment that would increase the salary of members of the legislature to one-fourth of the Governor's salary and increase the salary of the Lieutenant Governor and the Speaker of the House of Representatives to one-half of the Governor's salary. The annual salary of members of the legislature, the Lieutenant Governor, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives is currently $7,200. Under this provision, the annual salary of the Lieutenant Governor and the Speaker would be $46,716, and the annual salary of members of the legislature would be $23,358, based on the Governor's current annual salary of $93,432. The increase for the Lieutenant Governor would take effect when the term of that office begins in 1991. The salary increase for the Lieutenant Governor would not make members of the legislature ineligible to run for the office of Lieutenant Governor.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment to limit the salary of the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the house of representatives to not more than one-half of the governor's salary and to limit the salary of a member of the legislature to not more than one-fourth of the governor's salary."

The Texas agricultural fund would be used to provide financial assistance to develop, increase, improve, or expand the production, processing, marketing, or export of crops or products grown or produced in Texas by Texas agricultural businesses. ### PROPOSITION NO. 16 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 34 proposes a constitutional amendment allowing the legislature to pass general laws authorizing the creation of hospital districts upon approval of a majority of the qualified voters of the district. The amendment would also permit the legislature to authorize the creation of hospital districts by general or special law in counties with populations of 75,000 or less and to authorize the commissioners courts of such counties to levy ad valorem taxes and issue general obligation bonds for the support and maintenance of such districts.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment granting to the people the right to decide whether to create and maintain hospital districts to protect the public well-being in a manner independent of the legislature."

PROPOSITION NO. 17 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 33 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow the legislature, by general law, to authorize the use of public money to provide local fire departments and other public fire-fighting organizations loans or other financial assistance to purchase fire-fighting equipment and to aid in complying with federal and state law. The legislature would also be allowed to authorize the use of public money for scholarships and grants to educate and train members of these organizations. Part of the money could be used for administrative costs of this program. The legislature would provide for the terms and conditions of all such scholarships, grants, loans, and other financial assistance.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment authorizing the state to provide scholarships, grants, loans, and other financial assistance to local fire departments and other public fire-fighting organizations to purchase fire-fighting equipment, to aid in providing necessary equipment and facilities to comply with federal and state law, and to educate and train their members."

PROPOSITION NO. 18 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 44 proposes a constitutional amendment that would repeal subsection (e) of Article III, Section 50-d of the constitution. Article III, Section 50-d currently allows the Texas Water Development Board to issue and sell Texas agricultural water conservation bonds in an amount not to exceed $200 million, if two-thirds of the members of each house of the legislature approve. Under subsection (e), this authority will expire in November, 1989. Repeal of subsection (e) by passage of this amendment would continue in effect the authority to issue and sell the bonds.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment to eliminate certain time limitations relating to the issuance of Texas agricultural water conservation bonds."

PROPOSITION NO. 19 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 59 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow local governments to invest their funds as authorized by the legislature. Currently, the constitutional prohibition against a grant of public money to an individual, association, or corporation or against becoming a stockholder in a corporation, association, or company prevents local governments from making some kinds of investments. This proposed amendment would allow local governments to make any investments authorized by the legislature.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment to authorize local governments to invest their funds as provided by law."

PROPOSITION NO. 20 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 16 proposes a constitutional amendment which, if passed, would abolish the office of county surveyor in Cass, Ector, Garza, Smith, Bexar, Harris, and Webb Counties. A majority of the voters in an affected county must vote in favor of this proposed amendment before the office is abolished in that county. If the office of county surveyor is abolished in any of these counties, the powers, duties, and functions of the office are transferred to a county officer or employee designated by the commissioners court of the county in which the office is abolished.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment to abolish the office of county surveyor in Cass, Ector, Garza, Smith, Bexar, Harris, and Webb Counties."

PROPOSITION NO. 21 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 74 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the legislature to enact laws authorizing the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board or its successor to provide for, issue, and sell an additional $75 million in general obligation bonds as college savings bonds. The form, terms, and denominations of the bonds would be prescribed by law. The interest rate and installments would be prescribed by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board or its successor. The maximum net effective interest rate would be set by law. Proceeds from the sale of the bonds would be credited to the Texas opportunity plan fund, which is used to make loans to students to attend institutions of higher education in Texas. The bonds and interest on the bonds would be payable from the first money coming into the treasury in each fiscal year that is not already appropriated by the constitution, less the amount remaining in the sinking fund at the close of the prior fiscal year.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment providing for the issuance of general obligation bonds as college savings bonds to provide educational loans to students and to encourage the public to save for a college education."

A new incentive to save for education

By Lloyd Bentsen

There's a new incentive to save for education that will benefit many people in Texas and across the country.

Beginning next January, if you purchase a U.S. savings bond and then cash it in to pay the costs of education, all or part of the interest you earn may be tax free.

Since 1980 the price of a college education has increased at a rate twice that of inflation. The Education Department estimates that 18 years from now the cost of attending a public university could be $60,000 and some private universities may cost as much as $200,000.

Unfortunately, the overall U.S. savings rate is at a forty-year low, and fewer Americans are putting money aside to pay for college. Studies have shown that only half of the families who expect their children to attend college save anything at all for their education. And those parents who are saving for college save only about $500 a year. If some education costs are reaching into the six figure range, that won't go very far.

Americans need more assistance and more incentives to save for their children's education. Planning ahead may be the only way most people will be able to cover these escalating costs. That's why as Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee I worked last year to pass this new law making it easier to save for the future.

The rules are simple. Depending on your income, all or a portion of the interest earned on U.S. savings bonds used to pay for educational expenses may be tax free.

For a married couple, with a joint income of less than $60,000, all interest earned would be tax free. And as your income rises between $60,000 and $90,000, a declining portion of the interest can be excluded from taxes. For single persons and heads of households who earn less than $40,000, all interest is tax free, and for incomes between $40,000 and $55,000 a portion of the income can be excluded from taxes.

The bonds can be used to finance your own education, or an education for your spouse or children. Specifically, the savings bonds must be used to pay for higher education or certain vocational schools' tuition or fees. The bonds could also be used to purchase a U.S. savings bond. No new administrative machinery will be required and the program is already well-known. In fact, many companies offer their employees the option of purchasing savings bonds through payroll deductions.

The Free Mail Game

By Wayne E. Gable

Into your mailbox they come in droves, those flashy newsletters from the nation's capitol, proclaiming your congressman's heroic endeavors. He's lighting for your state or district, making the difference in Washington for you—he's a true American! And he's hoping you'll remember this in the next election.

It's a campaign ploy, but the congressman's campaign fund doesn't pay for it. We, the American taxpayers, do. Each year congressmen spend millions of tax dollars supporting this "free-mail" privilege, known as the congressional frank.

However, this year some key legislators are ready to act on the taxpayers' behalf by cracking down on the frivolous mailings. They have placed provisions in next year's spending bills that would put a limit on congressional mail expenses.

Congressmen have learned throughout the years that name recognition is a key to winning elections. So they use the franked-mail privilege to blanket constituencies with their names. All they have to do is send out more "official mail" on election years, and that's exactly what they've done. A study by the Congressional Research Service shows that since 1978, the House has sent at least 100 million more pieces of mail in election years than during off-years. No wonder 99 percent of the House incumbents seeking reelection won in 1988.

Newsletters are the most prominent abuse of the congressional frank. Congressmen use them to sensationalize their latest endeavors in Washington. For example, Maryland citizens recently received a newsletter with a bold headline that proclaimed that their senator was "fighting for Maryland." The document then shows various photographs of the senator fighting this good fight, accomplishing such deeds as joining the Maryland National Guard on maneuvers. The first question that must be posed is: who is the senator fighting against? Secondly, how does a photo opportunity with the National Guard constitute fighting for Maryland? These newsletters amount to one thing: self-promotion for the next election.

For congressmen, franking is almost a game—a game of schemes and strategy. The congressmen's goal is to please all of the people all of the time. However, constituents' political beliefs can range from one extreme to the other, so congressmen rely on franked mail to control with whom they leave which impression. The scheme begins soon after the congressmen get to Washington, when many congressmen send out questionnaires to their constituents. Through these questionnaires, the congressmen learn which issues concern particular constituents.

The results are compiled into long lists according to age, race, opinions and other such factors. This way the congressmen can target their mailings to please each special group. For example, if the congressman supported disaster assistance for farmers, then only farmers and other constituents concerned about the area's farms would receive a letter relaying the congressman's endeavors on their behalf.

Another well-known franking abuse is simply the over-use of "town meeting" announcements. To assure name recognition in the upcoming election, congressmen commonly send these announcements far beyond the area where anyone would reasonably attend.

For years, Congress has played this franked-mail game, but now is the time for the game to end. This year the Senate has attached provisions to its appropriations bill that would make some long-needed changes in congressional mail. The package also reduces the number of mass mailings any legislator can send each year from six to two. Senator Harry Reid (D-NV) has taken a lead in the movement, saying, "We have to get this mail monster under control." Although the House appropriated $124 million for mail costs next year, the Senate took a stand and cut it to $80 million.

Unfortunately, the amount appropriated is nothing but a number. Congress can spend as much as it wants, well over this amount, and suffer no consequences. For example, in 1988 Congress appropriated $82 million for mail expenses, but it actually spent $133 million. If Congress spends more than the appropriated amount and fails to produce "after the fact" supplemental funds, the U.S. Postal Service, and ultimately U.S. taxpayers, must foot the bill for the rest. No other government agency could get away with such a scheme; it would be illegal. But Congress conveniently excludes itself from such laws.

The Senate appropriations bill includes provisions that would close this loophole. The Postal Service would simply stop accepting mail after Congress spent the appropriated amount.

The American taxpayers have paid for Congress's self-promoting campaign ploys long enough. It's time for legislators to stop telling their sensationalized stories and start taking action on behalf of those they represent.

Domestic cotton prices are rising

With U. S. stocks dropping, foreign supplies tight and weather threatening the cotton crop at home and abroad, domestic cotton prices are rising. Skillful marketing while prices are high can mean premium payoff for American producers, says a cotton marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The market has a mind of its own, and it's hard to anticipate how high it will go, when it will top out and how much it might drop," said Dr. Carl Anderson, Extension Service Agricultural economist. "The estimated supply and demand numbers may change as the crop season progresses."

As the market moves up, skillful marketing becomes more critical for the producer, the Extension Service specialist said. Put options and forward contracts provide price insurance, he said.

"The put options are particularly useful, as they allow you to sell for a possible higher price. There are no margin calls on options you purchase. You pay a premium and commission charges.

"Forward contracts, if available, establish a price; but the price is fixed. Put options can be purchased out-of-the-money (below the futures price) for a lower premium. The insured price is lower.

"The higher futures go, the higher the price you can insure for your money. Then, should the market continue up, you can still forward contract or sell, depending upon your situation."

The Commodity Credit Corporation cotton loan at 50 cents a pound doesn't appear to be a good alternative for the 1989 crop, Anderson said. "The market price will likely exceed the loan rate enough to make that a poor choice," he said.

"Speculating in the cash market by doing nothing is taking a big chance that the market will stay up until you can sell. With the flexibility of options, you have many marketing alternatives to work with," Anderson said.

The July crop report from the U.S. Department of Agriculture shows fewer acres planted than expected.

"That means the new U.S. crop may fall some three million bales short of expected usage," Anderson said. If that happens, the 7.5-million-bale stock on hand this July would drop to around a 4-million-bale supply a year from now.

Planted acreage for U.S. upland cotton is estimated at 10.2 million acres, 500,000 acres less than March estimates. If 9.2 million acres—or 90 percent—is harvested and yields about 580 pounds an acre, the upland crop would provide 11.1 million bales. Last year the yield was 15.1 million bales.

The total domestic and export demand for cotton this year is estimated at 15.5 million bales, the largest use in 10 years, Anderson said.

"The September 12 (USDA) crop production report will be a better look at the 1989 crop potential," Anderson said. "Whichever way the crop size goes, the market will try to run ahead of the USDA report."

The U. S. export market is bright, the Extension Service economist said. "Foreign cotton stocks have declined from 38 million bales at the end of 1984 to only 22 million bales for this season. Meanwhile, consumption has steadily increased to 77 million bales, 13 million more than five years ago."

A foreign crop of 69 million bales is predicted this year. This is eight million less than the estimated foreign demand.

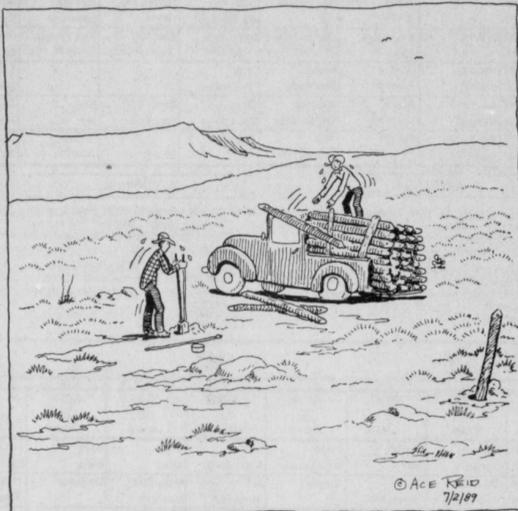

"Under these conditions, the market usually outruns supply and demand," Anderson said. "In short crop years, the market tends to peak early."

A high price discourages use, makes prices of synthetics more competitive and encourages cotton production, he said.

"The Southern Hemisphere countries will plant more cotton this fall. And next year, everybody will plant more cotton," he predicted.

Scientists seek environmental answers

The heat wave that left many Texans sweltering in recent weeks may become the standard rather than the exception unless the global warming trend can be stemmed. But scientists with two state agencies say more trees can help solve the problem.

The problem, scientists and environmentalists say, is caused by carbon dioxide pollution from abundant use of fossil fuels. This pollution prevents the sun's rays from reflecting off the earth back into space. Trapped inside the earth's atmosphere, the rays cause an increase in temperature.

Scientists with the Texas Forest Service and Texas Agricultural Extension Service are among those evaluating the feasibility of planting enough trees around the world to ease the global warming threat.

Through photosynthesis, trees convert carbon dioxide and water to nourishing carbohydrates.

"Trees are half carbon by weight," said Ed Barron, head of the forest management department with the Texas Forest Service in College Station. "An acre of trees takes in 2.6 million pounds of carbon dioxide a year."

But the world's tree population has drastically decreased. Each year, 25 million acres of tropical forest are lost to urbanization, agriculture and Third World use of wood for fuel.

There are 45 million acres in the U.S. in the Conservation Reserve Program, with 2.5 million acres planted to trees. The goal would be to have 10 million of these acres in trees, Barron said.

Along with forestry plantings, urban plantings can also be used. "An urban tree has 15 times the benefit of a forest tree because of its energy-saving value," Barron said. "Some 51 million homes could be shaded better. This would mean planting 100 million trees that would cut carbon dioxide emission in the air by 20 million tons a year."

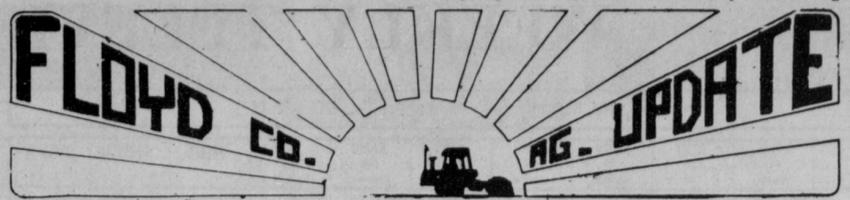

Several programs promote tree planting in Texas, said Dr. Michael Walterscheidt, forestry specialist with the Extension Service in College Station. Several organizations have formed the Tree Awareness Committee, he said. "We're working with school districts and garden clubs to develop tree planting programs," he said.

"Planting trees is only part of the answer," said Robert Fewin, silviculturist with the Texas Forest Service at Lubbock. "The warming trend is a long-term process that could be accelerated if we don't make changes in our lifestyle."

Energy sources which don't emit carbon dioxide must be developed and put into use, he said. Solar and hydroelectric sources already are feasible in some situations and safe nuclear energy technology can provide an alternative source, scientists say.

"There has to be a national awareness created," Barron said. "Utilities—which rely on coal, fuel oil and natural gas—and automobiles are the largest users of carbon-emitting energy."

Although the technology isn't on line to shift immediately to fuels which don't emit carbon, "planting trees will buy the time to research, develop and plan new energy sources," Barron said.

Ginners convention set for Saturday

The 1989 annual meeting of the Plains Ginners' Association will be held Saturday, September 23, in the Lubbock Plaza and Conference Center, 3201 South Loop 289, Lubbock, at 9:30 a.m., according to PGA President Bob Newton of Enochs. Adjournment is planned for 2:00 p.m.

Program content for the session, Newton says, has been tailored to fit the need of attendees for the latest information, together with knowledgeable projections, on current issues of importance to ginners and other components of the High Plains cotton industry. An estimated 200 interested parties are expected to attend.

In the order scheduled on the program after Newton gives his President's Annual Report to the membership, speakers include Steve Verett of Ralls, President of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.; Charles Bragg, National Cotton Council Vice President for Producer Affairs, Memphis, Tenn.; Tony Williams, Executive Vice President of the Texas Cotton Ginners' Association, Austin, and State Representative Rick Perry of Haskell.

Verett will report on the work of the Industry Cotton Marketing Advisory Committee, of which he is a member, and on the cotton breeding progress being seen in PCG's Plains Cotton Improvement Program and other PCG initiatives.

Bragg has been asked to discuss the U.S. Department of Agriculture's announcement, due by November 1, of the acreage reduction percentage and other details of the 1990 cotton program. He also is expected to outline NCC activities in regard to upcoming congressional deliberations on a new farm bill to succeed current law which expires with the 1990 crop year.

Williams has entitled his remarks "1990's — A Decade of Challenge for Texas Ginners." The major thrust of his remarks will review the contentious matter of excessive and rising workers' compensation insurance rates and the ways in which ginners can contribute to a solution, pending regulation of water and environmental contamination, plus changes in the cotton grading system and their implications for future ginning procedures and equipment.

Topping the speakers' list, Representative Perry will provide insight into the Texas Legislature's long and continuing efforts to reform Texas workers' compensation law under which insurance premiums are among the highest in the nation while worker benefits are at the bottom of the scale. Perry has been a strong advocate of House Bill 1, a business-oriented reform measure authored by representative Richard Smith of Bryan. Senate opponents rejected the bill in the Legislature's regular session and the two houses failed to reach a compromise in a special summer session. A second special session has been called for this fall.

Master of Ceremonies for the Saturday meeting will be Larry Nelson of Tulia, Vice President of both the PGA and PCG. Nine new directors will be elected at the meeting as well new officers.

A luncheon and style show is slated to begin at 12:00 noon, followed by the presentation of golf trophies from a tournament to be played at Hillcrest Country Club the preceding day. Tee times between 8:00 and 11:00 a.m. may be reserved by calling Tournament Chairman Bill Quattlebaum at Southern Cotton Oil in Lubbock. Joint sponsors for the luncheon are PCG, Lamesa Cotton Oil, Plains Cooperative Oil Mill, Levelland Vegetable Oil, Paymaster Oil Mill and Southern Cotton Oil.

Price lowered on liquified gas sticker

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said that drivers whose vehicles run on liquified gas will see a welcome reduction in their tax rates beginning September 1.

"Legislators lowered the tax rate on this fuel and they made it a fairer one," Bullock said. "That's always good news to take to the taxpayers."

Since liquified gas is most commonly used for nontaxable purposes such as home heating or chemical processing, the tax is not collected at the time of sale, Bullock said.

Instead, those using the fuel for taxable purposes such as driving on the public highway must buy a decal annually from the Comptroller's office. The decal is then displayed on the vehicle as proof that tax has been paid.

The decal price is based on the registered gross weight of the vehicle and the mileage driven during the previous year.

Legislators lowered the decal price to allow for the increased fuel efficiency of today's vehicles. The decals will cost less even though the driver reports the same mileage as last year.

"Drivers were paying today's taxes on yesterday's mileage," Bullock said. "It was unfair and I'm glad our legislators changed it."

As of September 1, decal prices start at $30 for a vehicle weighing less than 4,000 pounds that was driven 5,000 miles or less the previous year. Decal prices peak at $744 for a vehicle weighing 43,501 pounds or more that was driven 15,000 or more the previous year.

There are about 26,000 vehicles in Texas using the decals, according to Bullock.

SOIL NEEDS TO BE TESTED BEFORE SOWING WHEAT

Farmers should take time in the next few weeks to collect soil samples from fields they plan to plant to wheat or other fall-seeded small grains.

Soil test results done now will be returned early enough to allow plenty of time to apply recommended nutrients and incorporate them into the soil during final seedbed preparation, said Brent Crossland, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Incorporating or knifing nutrients into a moist seedbed is important to reduce nitrogen volatilization losses associated with surface-applied urea-containing fertilizers, said Crossland. It also allows placement of non-mo'lie nutrients such as phosphorous into the active root zone of plants.

Small grains that are to be grazed naturally require more fertilizer than ungrazed grain because of nutrients removed by grazing. About 30 to 40 pounds of nitrogen are removed in forages grazed by stocker cattle for each 100 pounds of beef produced per acre. "This nitrogen, less some recycling, must be replaced to provide adequate nutrition for grain production after livestock are removed," said Crossland.

A soil test remains the best way to determine fertilizer needs. It discloses how much of a given nutrient to apply, which depends on such factors as the level of that nutrient in the soil, residue levels, cropping history, available moisture, grazing practices and general management.

A general "rule of thumb" indicates that wheat requires about 2 pounds of nitrogen per bushel of grain produced, said Crossland. Therefore, a 30-bushel yield would remove about 60 pounds of available nitrogen per acre. Crossland said a soil test will determine the amount of residual nitrate-nitrogen in the soil and reduce nitrogen recommendations by that amount.

PECAN TREES REQUIRE SPECIAL CARE

Like many trees, pecans need special attention in the summer. That means taking time to apply zinc sprays to control aphids and scab and pruning and irrigating as well, said Brent Crossland, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

To overcome the problem of pecan scab, use fungicide sprays of Benlate, Topsin or Super Tin. Scab can develop on pecan trees in any part of Texas when the weather is wet and warm, said Crossland.

Pecan growers also have had to worry about sticky, sugar-covered leaves each summer due to aphid infestations. Zolone or malathion sprays can give homeowners good control.

Summertime drought is a sure bet for part of the state every year, and pecans will suffer if they do not receive from one to two inches of water per week each summer through September, Crossland said. A mature pecan tree will use more than 100 gallons of water per day. If pecan trees go more than three weeks without water, serious crop loss can occur.

Weeds and grass also use soil moisture, so keep competitive vegetation to a minimum under pecan trees. With shallow soil and vegetation to a minimum under pecan trees, a weekly irrigation will be needed, said Crossland.

Owners of young pecan trees should be aware that weeds slow down growth more than anything else. It is best to use a contact herbicide such as Roundup to keep the limb-spread area weed-free.

All pecan trees less than four years of age should have only one main trunk. If there are two, three or four trunks developing simply cut the weaker ones out and leave the strongest one, recommended Crossland.

Young trees also should receive zinc sprays every two weeks of the summer to insure maximum growth.

Nominations are being accepted for extension education award

Nominations are now being accepted for the fifth annual Cotton Extension Education Award.

Any outstanding county, state or federal Extension worker or team whose educational activities contribute significantly to progress in the U.S. cotton industry may be nominated by October 13.

The recipient will receive $10,000, and another $5,000 will be presented to support the recipient's Extension educational activities.

The award is made possible by a grant to The Cotton Foundation from Hoechst-Roussel Agri-Vet's Agricultural Chemical Group. Staff support for the award is provided by the National Cotton Council.

Foundation President Cliett Lowman said Extension workers in all disciplines are eligible for the award.

"A strong Extension education program in this country affords our nation's cotton producers the opportunity to quickly put to use the latest technology," said Lowman, general manager of King Ranch Farms, Kingsville, Texas. "By recognizing these exceptional educational efforts, Hoechst-Roussel is helping to reinforce our Extension programs and U.S. cotton."

The 1990 recipient will be announced during the Beltwide Cotton Conferences in Las Vegas, January 10-13.

Extension workers nominated or renominated in 1988 are automatically eligible for the award, but those nominated in 1987 have to be renominated. Forms and further information are available from Mrs. Deborah Richter, National Cotton Council, P.O. Box 12285, Memphis, Tennessee 38182, (901) 274-9030.

PTA chili supper deemed 'a big success'

The officers of Lockney PTA would like to say a big "thank-you" to everyone who has joined PTA this year. We hope to have another very successful year. Mrs. Rasco's class should be very pleased they had the most sign up and will receive $10.00 and a party! Door prizes were won by Amy Watson and Ashleigh Jones. The teachers with the most attendance were Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. Lam, they received room decorations and suckers.

At the meeting President Sandra Cummings announced that with your PTA membership card you can receive 10% discount at Taco Bell and Burger King.

The guest speakers were Mrs. Evans and Mr. Hallmark. Mrs. Evans talked on the 80-day rule of attendance, and stressed the importance of children being in school. She also spoke of a new program for self-esteem. The idea "Winners love to learn and learners love to win", a gift that last a lifetime would reward students showing a great amount of effort, attendance, and participation. She also mentioned open house, September 19. Mr. Hallmark wanted to remind everyone of some new laws that have gone into effect. Such as: you must wear a helmet while riding a motor cycle as of September 1; The Dropout Law, if you dropout of school, you'll have to be 18 years old to obtain a drivers license; finally, no one under 12 can ride in the back of an open pickup, and no one can ride in the back going over 35 mph. Mr. Hallmark also mentioned the need for more funding for the schools.

We hope everyone will join PTA and help us get our membership to 250! Come on Lockney, you can do it!

The PTA would also like to express their thanks to Caprock, Ind. for supplying the meat.

LONGHORN HEAD COACH

JIM CLARK

Longhorns defeat Petersburg, 33-7

by Holly Norwood

"I was tickled to death," Lockney Head Coach Jim Clark told the Quarterback Club Monday night. "I was real proud of the team as a whole. The offensive line was opening the holes we needed. We got down in the 20-yard line five times and scored every time. The defense held tough the whole night. It was the best we looked in a long time."

Petersburg came out running and scored on their first possession. Buff's Marquez scored on a 27 yard run with the point after kick good. The Horns fighting back scored immediately only to have the TD called back on a penalty. Horns Michael Monroe answered the call with a two yard TD run. The point after attempt failed.

With three seconds left in the half, a poised Lockney offense set up their final play. A successful air attack by the Horns put Lockney on the board for the second time. Horns QB Peralez nailed Joe Luis Guerrero with a series savings 13 yard pass. An 11-yard pass to Juan Vargas took the Horns to the locker room at half ahead 12-7.

Things only went downhill for Petersburg in the second half while Lockney totally dominated the half scoring 21 unanswered points.

Lockney took advantage of a Petersburg fumbled punt. The Horns with excellent field position on the Buff's 30 yard line were unstoppable. Horns fullback Phillip Glasson scored on a three yard dive. Joe Luis Guerrero's kick made it 19-7, Lockney.

Monroe capitalized on the next Horn series leading Lockney downfield on a 65 yard drive. Another key pass to Guerrero for 21 yards, set up a Monroe TD. Monroe plowed over the Buff defense for his second score of the night. Guerrero's kick was good. Lockney increased the lead 26-7.

Lockney's fire breathing defense stopped the only hope of Petersburg scoring. Guerrero sacked the Buff QB for an 11 yard loss. Vargas continuing the defense attack, intercepted the ball. A Buff's interception by Horn Joe Luna on Petersburg's next possession finalized any hope of Petersburg scoring.

Horns backup QB Kip Holt lead the Lockney offense up the field 30 yards to top off the first win of the season. Holt snuck in for a one yard score with Carlos Rendon's good extra point kick. Final score was Lockney 33, Petersburg 7.

Lockney will face the undefeated Floydada Whirlwinds Friday night here. "Floydada has a good coach and football team," Clark said, "but that doesn't mean we can't play with them. They put 11 men on the field and so do we. It all boils down to mental attitude and execution."

Longhorn of the Week was Michael Monroe. Named Offensive Player of the Week was Joe Luis Guerrero and Defensive Player of the Week was Kip Holt. Spirit of the Week was standing on third down and supporting the Horns.
