

NORMAL REGENTS VISIT COLLEGE

EXPRESS PLEASURE AT WORK DONE IN LOCAL SCHOOL.

Entire Membership of Board on Tour of Inspection of Four State Normal Colleges.

The state board of regents for normal schools was in the city Tuesday to inspect the work done at the West Texas Normal college and expressed themselves well pleased with all lines of work and promised their support to every item in the estimate which President Cousins has made for the school's support for the coming two years with additional items which they pointed out were needed in the school. The day was very pleasantly spent in visiting the various departments of the school.

In the party were Hon. F. M. Bralley, state superintendent of public instruction and president of the board of regents; Hon. A. C. Goeth, of Austin; Hon. Peter Radford, of Ft. Worth; Hon. Walter Crawford, of Beaumont and Hon. W. H. Fuqua, of Amarillo.

The chapel period was extended for more than an hour and each of these gentlemen spoke along educational lines. The afternoon was spent in inspection of the building and investigating the needs of the school.

The party was entertained at luncheon by the Home Economics department.

Each member of the party expressed his great pleasure in finding such high class work in the local school. They promised to do all in their power to secure a liberal appropriation for the coming two years and added several items to the estimate Mr. Cousins had prepared several weeks ago.

The board left Tuesday evening and will visit the other normal schools during the week.

Concerning this trip Mr. Bralley said:

"The tour which the board of regents is making is required by law, enacted by the last legislature, and must assuredly result in a better understanding of the work and needs of the normal schools of Texas and in a general improvement of these thriving institutions.

"Texas has four state normals at Canyon, Denton, San Marcos and Huntsville. These have this year an enrollment of approximately 2,500 students, or 625 each. The present board assumed control of the normals about a year ago, since which time the requirements for admission have been raised from completion of the Ninth grade in the public schools to satisfactory completion of the second year in the High School. The Normal course of study has been increased from three to four years, which means that the Normals will do at least two years of college work and that the graduates will be competent to do acceptable work in the High Schools of the state.

"The board also directed installation at each normal of a department of practice and observation, so that those who graduate will have observed methods of teaching under experts, and actually will have had practical teaching experience.

"The faculties of the state normals have also been re-organized in harmony with the faculty of all first class colleges of the country. So thorough has been

LEG BROKEN SATURDAY.

The first football accident of the season occurred on the Normal gridiron about 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon when Cecil Winder's left leg was broken about half way between the ankle and knee. Cecil is unable to explain just how the accident occurred but says that he was tackled while running and another player fell upon his left leg. He was taken to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Winder, and for several days suffered very greatly from the accident.

This is the first accident from football in the city this year and the first for two years.

the work of improvement along all lines that the State Normal schools in Texas will from this time forward be regarded as standard normal schools.

"The general educational conditions in Texas were never more gratifying. Steady progress is reported from every point in the state, and the standard is being raised throughout the state. A more liberal policy on the part of succeeding legislatures will result in elevating the already high standard and will make of Texas the foremost in matters of education in the southwest."

The Baptist Church.

Using the seventh commandment as a text, the pastor will preach on "The Sacredness of Human Life," a special sermon-lecture to which he has given much time and thought. At the evening service he will preach the second of a series of sermons to young men on the general theme "Representative Men of the Bible," namely "The Young Man who Lost his Grip."

All are cordially invited to worship with us. Strangers welcomed.

HOLMES NICHOLS, Pastor.

GRAND JURY ENDS BUSINESS FRIDAY

ONLY SIX INDICTMENTS RETURNED ALL MISDEMEANORS.

Makes Timely Suggestions Regarding Care of the County Jail—Visit Other Buildings.

The grand jury was dismissed Friday after being in session for four days. They returned only six indictments, all of which were misdemeanors. In dismissing the jury, Judge Browning highly complimented the citizenship of this county for splendid way in which the law is obeyed.

The suggestion regarding the county jail is indeed timely and although seldom in use the jail should be looked after better than it has in the past.

The following is the report in full:

Canyon, Texas, Nov. 8th, 1912. Hon. J. N. Browning, district judge: The grand jury empaneled at the November term, 1912, of the district court, Randall county, having finished our labors request to be discharged for the term. We have inquired into all violations of the criminal laws reported to have been committed in the county and have presented six indictments for misdemeanors. We inspected the public buildings of the county and recommend that the county jail and premises be cleaned up or else abandoned for use because in its present condition it is unsafe to keep prisoners in on account of the heavy growth of weeds and grass all around the jail, and which are likely to communicate fire to the wooden building inclosing the steel cages, thereby endangering the lives of any persons confined therein.

We found the court house, public school buildings and the State Normal College building all in good condition, and specially commend the fine condition of the Normal and public school buildings.

R. E. BAIRD, Foreman.

Basketball Will Start.

Pug Cavet arrived in the city last night and basketball practice will start Monday night at the opera house. The Canyon team has been champions of the Panhandle for two years and without doubt will win out this season.

At a meeting of the players last Friday night C. F. Hunt was elected coach, Thad Lair captain and W. E. Lair manager. Tom Lair and Vincet Reeves are the other members of the championship team with Roy Shotwell, Fay Gober and Henry Gamble as substitutes.

Lecture Tonight.

At the court house tonight at 8 o'clock will be a lecture on sweet clover by G. W. McMillen, of Amarillo. This subject is of much interest to the farmers of Randall county and there should be a large attendance.

Bazaar and Pie Supper.

The ladies' aid society of the Ralph community will give a bazaar and pie supper at the Ralph school house on Saturday evening, Nov. 23, beginning at 7:30. Everybody invited. 34t2

RANDALL COUNTY SCHOOLS REPORT

PROSPEROUS CONDITION IS REPORTED THIS YEAR.

Nineteen Schools Have Attendance of 244—One Report Not Yet Filled.

The Randall county schools are in excellent condition according to the reports filed in the office of Judge W. D. Scott, ex-officio superintendent of county schools. The attendance is normal and the work is reported to be very satisfactory. There are nineteen school districts in the county and there are two schools in district number nine. The attendance is 244, with one report not yet filed.

The following is the list of schools, teachers with postoffice address, and number of pupils:

- District 1, Ella Farrer, Amarillo, 11.
- 2, Frank Crowley, Canyon, 15.
- 3, Elizabeth Hasser, Canyon, 5.

New Barn Complete.

Jno. A. Wallace has just completed a modern barn at his residence on West Houston street. It is one of the most complete barns in the city.

Basketball Saturday Night.

The Normal girls basketball team will play the Amarillo high school girls at the gymnasium Saturday night. The game will be fast as both teams have good players.

Japanese Art Exhibit.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will have a Japanese art exhibit on Nov. 22. A good program will be given in connection with the exhibit. t1

$4,000 FIRE TUESDAY NIGHT.

Large Barn and Contents Burn on L. C. Lair Farm South of the City—No Insurance.

The large barn on the L. C. Lair farm south of the city burned Tuesday night together with 85 tons of alfalfa, some wheat, one mule and several hundred dollars worth of harness, the total loss being at least $4,000 on which there was no insurance.

The barn was one of the best in the county having been built only three years ago at a cost of $1,800. It will cost considerably more to replace it at this time. All of the feed that had been raised on the farm this year was in the barn together with a large amount of harness. W. E. Lair, administrator of the estate, says that he hasn't any kind of a piece of harness left. One mule was saved from the flames. It was very fortunate that none of the other mules or horses were in the barn.

Tom Lair and Arch Sanford were staying on the place and were awakened by the light but were unable to save anything. The loss was very heavy to the estate and to W. E. Lair, personally, as he had considerable feed in the barn.

Arm Broken Wednesday.

Miss Maude Norwood, a Normal student, sustained a broken arm Wednesday afternoon at the gymnasium. She was confined to her room Thursday and Friday but has been in school this week. The break is in the wrist. Miss Norwood's home is in Floydada.

Build Addition.

G. W. Turner has just completed a good four room house north of the railway. There were originally two rooms in the house and has remodeled these and added two more. The house is now a neat little cottage.

CLARENDON TEAM DEFEATS NORMAL

NORMAL LOSES FIRST GAME OF SEASON LAST MONDAY.

Score of 12 to 0 for Methodists—Normal Boys Hold Until the Last Quarter.

The Normal football team met its first defeat of the season at Clarendon last Monday by the score of 12 to 0, Clarendon College being the victors. The locals were considerably out weighed by the husky looking Clarendon bunch, yet Canyon's line seemed to hold like a brick wall. On account of the high wind from the south, it was impossible to use long forward passes and other plays tending toward the open game. Only once did either team make a completed forward pass.

Clarendon started the game with a little more "pep" than the locals, who seemed slow to get into the different plays. During the first quarter nearly all the game was played in Canyon's territory, though not in necessarily dangerous striking distance. This quarter was featured by long end runs and a new fake brush off tackle by Clarendon, and Canyon's hard fought stand for downs, kicking out of danger.

In the second quarter Clarendon was almost played "off their feet" and Canyon rushed the ball to the five-yard line where a fumble by Clarendon came very near causing a safety the ball crossing the goal line twice and finally landing within a foot of the line.

No particular feature marked the third quarter. The ball was rushed from one end of the field to the other by both teams and represented the hardest fought period of the contest.

After four and one-half minutes of fast ball in the fourth quarter, Clarendon scored a touchdown on a 10-yard long end run. Goal was missed. In a few minutes more another touchdown was scored on a series of fake plays and this goal was also missed. The final score stood 12 to 0.

The local boys came home Tuesday morning and will go in to hard practice for the Thanksgiving game with Clarendon at Canyon. This game will probably decide, or help decide, the championship of the Panhandle schools.

Commissioners Court in Session.

The commissioners court met in regular session Monday morning. Their first duty was to canvass the vote of Randall county in the general election last week. Since then the reports of the various county officers have been examined and other business for the year closed. The bonds of the county officials for the coming two years will be made during the week.

Rev. Neal Returned to Canyon.

The Methodist conference at Abilene closed Sunday with the appointment of pastors to their charges for the coming year. Rev. F. M. Neal was returned to Canyon much to the pleasure of the Methodist congregation and citizenship of the town in general. Mr. Neal was also appointed to the position of district commissioner of education. Rev. Neal will begin his second year's pastorate in the city next Sunday.

Fame of Crops Spread.

The fame of Randall county's fine crops is spreading all over the state of Texas and reaching to other states. The following is taken from the Saturday edition of the Dallas News regarding the crops of one of Randall county's farmers:

Just what a long-headed, intelligent farmer, working along modern, intelligent lines, can do in the Panhandle of Texas is well illustrated in the case of H. J. Weber, who lives twelve miles southwest of Amarillo in Randall county.

Mr. Weber has 300 acres in cultivation, devoted almost entirely to feedstuffs. He planted 180 acres in kaffir corn this year, made an average of fifty bushels per acre, and states he will receive $1 per hundred for it. He put in 100 acres in maize, harvested forty-five bushels to the acre and sold the heads for $16 per ton. Off a twenty-five-acre cane patch he made two and a half tons to the acre, realizing $8 per ton. He worked a small garden, supplied his neighbors and his own table and in addition sold $40 worth of truck. He realizes an average of $13 per week income from the sale of butter and eggs. There are in all 500 chickens roaming over his broad acres.

Mr. Weber moved here from Iowa five years ago and used his head in meeting the wide differences in farming methods between Iowa and Texas, with the result that he has prospered amazingly. He has worked faithfully as a demonstrator under Mr. Bainer of the Santa Fe agricultural department.

(c) The maintenance of the Hospital for Tuberculous Children at Galveston.

The above article gives an idea of the work of the Texas Anti-Tuberculosis Association. This association was founded in the fall of 1908. Since then much active work has been done.

A Hospital for tubercular children is being erected at Galveston. It has been named in memory of Gov. Colquitt's youngest son, Walter, who died two years ago. The women of Texas under the leadership of Mrs. O. B. Colquitt, have taken up the sale of the Red Cross Xmas Seals in order to augment the funds for carrying on this work.

It has been a fad for some years to place Xmas seals on all Xmas mail. These Red Cross seals are quite pretty and by buying them at a cent apiece, you will be helping in a most worthy cause. If every body in the State of Texas would buy just one seal, there would be ample funds for the work. This is impossible and hence it is desired that everyone who can will buy a number of them.

Join us in the fight and help us save the children from this terrible disease.

From all over the state comes the statement that only a small percent of the voters really voted upon the constitutional amendments last week. This is a genuine case of referendum and shows how such a law would act. Had these questions been on separate ballots and not on the general ticket the percent voting on these questions would have been even much smaller. Still again, if an election had been called exclusively for the purpose of voting on the questions, the number of voters going to the polls would have been a small percent of those voting last week. The main spring of initiative, referendum and recall is prejudice, and let prejudice be taken out of these three questions and there would be nothing left. Any man can prejudice enough voters to get action where there is initiative and recall. In spite of the wide spread discussion of the amendments there were many voters in Randall county who did not know there were any to be voted upon.

One of the leading theaters in Chicago, the Columbia, has quit using billboards for advertising purposes and announces that it will use only newspaper advertising. The management says, "the graft and bother resulting from placards and billboard advertising makes them a nuisance to handle." The newspaper is more and more becoming recognized as the legitimate advertising medium.

An exchange, a republican paper, says that the G. O. P. "is all shot to hell." It is very evident that the Grand Old Party is suffering very badly in some part but whether it has been condemned to that particular place we are unable to say.

The republicans will now begin throwing their hats at business and shouting "boo" in hope of starting a panic such as occurred in 1893. But legitimate business is not going to get scared. There is going to be a revolution in business conditions because prices are abnormally high, but this does not mean that a panic will come. Governor Wilson is by no means a free trader, as has been charged. In fact there are few absolute free traders today in the country. What the democratic party demands is only a legitimate and scientific revision of the tariff—the very thing the republican party has always promised and never fulfilled. Business is not going to be disturbed by democratic government.

That slap the grand jury took at the jail was deserving. They could have justly added "any man who has not enough pride to cut the weeds on his lots ought not be allowed to own them," but that would have been a little out of their jurisdiction.

A large many farmers report that they have their kaffir and maize in the bundle or headed and are ready for winter weather. This has been a splendid fall and the farmers have taken advantage of the fine weather to gather the crops.

Secretary of State C. C. McDonald has resigned to form a law partnership with Claude B. Hudspeth, brother of Miss Hudspeth in the Normal faculty. Governor Colquitt has appointed John L. Wortham to fill the vacancy.

Every boy in Randall county that doesn't get into the kaffir corn contest is missing a fine opportunity to make some good money next year. Write to Mr. Bainer today and tell him to put your name on his list.

Ever once in awhile there bobs up a man who loudly proclaims that newspaper advertising don't pay. His competitor smiles, increases his advertising space and sadly (?) watches this wise competitor go broke.

Randall county crops are attracting attention in many states. They are the result of scientific farming and scientific farming is recognized everywhere to be the best. Let's have more of it.

No, no, the election is not entirely over. The slate makers still have time to make many more guesses at President Wilson's cabinet before he makes this announcement.

Are you a good guesser? The News is going to give you a chance at some kaffir, maize and wheat. You can win some money by guessing.

In spite of the loud remonstrances of the republican party the straw votes turned out to be the real stuff.

CAN YOU GUESS WELL?

$15 in Prizes Given by the News for Best Guesses on Some Wheat, Maize and Kaffir.

Are you a good guesser? Did you ever win a prize guessing? If you never were successful, the News will give you another chance to try your luck. However, luck has not so much to do with this guessing contest as a little figuring. If you are not good in mathematics perhaps you can get some help from your neighbor.

The announcement of this guessing contest will be found on another page of this edition. After you have read the announcement, come to the News office and take a look at the jar of grain. Then apply your mathematics a little. There is nothing but grain in the jar and absolutely no person knows how many grains are in the jar. A committee will be selected to count the grains later and the results announced on January 1.

If you have never won a prize, you may win this one.

The grain used in this jar is furnished by Mr. H. J. Weber.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

A pure, healthful, Cream of Tartar Baking Powder

When buying an article of food you are entitled to know exactly what you are buying—its quality and ingredients.

If this information is refused don't buy it. Some of the low grade baking powders are advertised, but the ingredients of the powders are scrupulously concealed.

A housekeeper would not use a baking powder containing alum if she knew it.

It is well when buying to examine the label on the can. Unless it shows the ingredient cream of tartar, don't buy it. Dr. Price's baking powder is absolutely free from alum.

Notice of Sheriff's Sale, Real Estate.

By virtue of an order of sale issued out of the Honorable District Court of Denton County, on the 8th day of November, A. D. 1912, in the case of Exchange National Bank, of Denton, Texas, versus B. L. Herring as principal and E. J. Witt as endorser and B. L. Hodge No. 5584, and to me, as Sheriff, directed and delivered, I have levied upon this 11th day of November A. D. 1912, and will, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., on the first Tuesday in January, A. D. 1913, it being the 7th day of said month, at the Court House door of said Randall County, in the town of Canyon, Texas, proceed to sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash in hand, all the right, title and interest which B. L. Herring as principal and E. J. Witt as endorser and B. L. Hodge, had on the 10th day of July, A. D. 1911, or at any time thereafter, of, in and to the following described property, to-wit:

All that lot or parcel of land situated in Randall county, Texas, being section number seven (7), Block number two (2) certificate SF9720, Original Grantee, R. A. Terrill, containing 414 acres of land, the same conveyed to the said B. L. Herring by R. R. Bates by deed dated July 10th, 1911, foreclosed as the same existed on the 10th day of July, 1911, said property being levied on as the property of B. L. Herring, E. J. Witt and B. L. Hodge to satisfy a judgment amounting to $763.29, in favor of Exchange National Bank of Denton and costs of suit.

Given under my hand this 11th day of November, A. D. 1912.

WORTH A. JENNINGS,
Sheriff Randall County, Texas.

MAN has acquired a hunger for land which he can call his own. The supply is limited---the demand unlimited! Land values have risen to prohibitive prices in older settled states!

The Panhandle Is Ready For The Farmer

Here is a deep, rich soil, ready for the plow. An ample rainfall and a most healthful and splendid climate. Adequate railroad facilities by which to reach the markets of the world.

A return to normal climatic conditions, a greatly increased acreage of winter wheat, spring wheat, oats and barley, an unqualifiedly successful demonstration that Kaffir corn and Milo maize cannot be excelled as material for ensilage, the "better farming" spirit and the results of studying and developing this land assures a prosperous year.

The successful outcome of flax culture, demonstrated last year under conditions much less favorable than can confidently be reckoned on in the future has added another to the list of our resources.

Farms can be bought here now cheaper than they can later on, at prices which are certain of a steady advance as the summer and fall emigration stimulates the demand.

My farms are all favorably located, as regards towns and railroads and give the buyer a wide range in selection. All the improved farms are rented to good farmers and will produce a substantial revenue this year.

I am in position to give terms to suit the purchaser.

EXCUSE ME!
RUPERT HUGHES
NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.
ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED BY HENRY W. SAVAGE.

The impatient robbers, themselves the prey of fearful anxieties, broke in, barking like a pair of coyotes in a jumble of commands: "Now, line up with your backs that way, and no back talk. These guns shoot awful edgy. And remember, as each party is finished with, they are to turn round and keep their hands up, on penalty of gettin' 'em shot off. Line up! Hands up! Give over there!"
Mrs. Jimmie Wellington took her time about moving into position, and her deliberation brought a howl of wrath from the robber: "Get into that line, you!"
Mrs. Wellington whirled on him: "How dare you, you brute?" And she turned up her nose at the gun.
The anxious conductor intervened: "Better obey, madame; he's an ugly lad."
"I don't mind being robbed," said Mrs. Jimmie, "but I won't endure rudeness."
The robber shook his head in despair, and he tried to wather her with sarcasm: "Pardon, mamselly, would you be so kind and condescendin' as to step into that there car before I blow your husband's gol-blame head off."
This brought her to terms. She hastened to her place, but put out a restraining hand on Jimmie, who needed no restraint. "Certainly, to save my dear husband. Don't strike him, Jimmie!"
Then each man stuck one revolver into its convenient holster, and, covering the passengers with the other, proceeded to frisk away valuables with a speed and agility that would have looked prettier if those impatient-looking muzzles had not pointed here, there and everywhere with such venomous threats.
And so they worked from each end of the car toward the middle. Their hands ran swiftly over bodies with a loathsome familiarity that could only be resented, not revenged. Their hands dived into pockets, and up sleeves, and into women's hair, everywhere that a jewel or a bill might be secreted. And always a rough growl or a swing of the revolver silenced any protest.
Their heinous fingers had hardly begun to ply, when the solemn stillness was broken by a chuckle and low hoot of laughter, a darkey's unctuous laughter. At such a place it was more shocking than at a funeral.
"What ails you?" was the nearest robber's demand.
The porter tried to wipe his streaming eyes without lowering his hands, as he chuckled on: "I—I—just thought of sumpum funny."
"Funny!" was the universal groan.
"I was just thinking," the porter snickered, "what mighty poor pickings you-all are goin' to git out of me. Whilst if you had 'a' waited till I got to Frisco, I'd jest natchelly been oosin' money."
The robber relieved him of a few dimes and quarters and ordered him to turn round, but the black face whirled back as he heard from the other end of the car Wedgewood's indignant complaint: "I say, this is an outrage!"
"Ah, close your trap and turn round, or I'll—"
The porter's smile died away. "Good Lawd," he sighed, "they're goin' to skin that British lion! And I just wore myself out on him."
The far-reaching effect of the whole procedure was just beginning to dawn on the porter. This little run on the bank meant a period of financial stringency for him. He watched the hurrying hands a moment or two, then his wrath rose to terrible proportions:
"Look here, man," he shouted at the robber, "ain't you-all goin' to leave these passengers nothin' a tall?"
"Not on purpose, nigger."
"No small change, or nothin'?"
"Nary a red."
"Then, passengers," the porter proclaimed, while the robber watched him in amazement; "then, passengers, I want to give you-all fair warnin' 'heah and now: No tips, no whisk-broom!"
Perhaps because their hearts were already overflowing with distress, the passengers endured this appalling threat without comment, and when there was a commotion at the other end of the line, all eyes rolled that way.
Mr. Baumann was making an effort to take his leave, with great politeness.
"Excuse, please. I want to get by, please!"
"Get by!" the other robber gasped.
"Why, you—"
"But I'm not a passenger," Mr. Baumann urged, with a confidential smile. "I've been going through the train myself."
"Much obliged! Hand over!" And a red hand rummaged his pockets. It was a heart-rending sight.
"Of all!" he wailed, "don't you allow no courtesies to the profession!" And when the inexorable thief continued to pluck his money, his watch, his scarf-pin, he grew wroth indeed. "Stop, stop, I refuse to pay. I'll go into bankruptcy foist." But still the larceny continued; fingers even lifted three cigars from his pockets, two for himself and a good one for a customer. This loss was grievous, but his wildest protest was: "Oh, here, my friend, you don't want my business carts."

"Keep 'em!" growled the thief, and then, glancing up, he saw on the tender inwards of Mr. Baumann's upheld palms two huge glisteners, which their owner had turned that way in a misguided effort to conceal the stones. The robber reached up for them.
"Take 'em. You're welcome!" said Mr. Baumann, with rare presence of mind. "Those Nevada neerles looks almost like real."
"Keep 'em," said the robber, as he passed on, and Mr. Baumann almost swooned with joy, for, as he whispered to Wedgewood a moment later: "They're really real!"
Now the eye-chain rolled the other way, for Little Jimmie Wellington was puffing with rage. The other robber, having massaged him thoroughly, but without success, for his pocketbook, noticed that Jimmie's left heel was protruding from his left shoe, and made Jimmie perform the almost incredible feat of standing on one foot, while he unshod him and took out the hidden wealth.
"There goes our honeymoon, Lucretia," he moaned. But she whispered proudly: "Never mind, I have my rings to pawn."
"Oh, you have, have you? Well, I'll be your little uncle," the kneeling robber laughed, as he overheard, and he continued his outrageous search till he found them, knotted in a handkerchief, under her hat.
She protested: "You wouldn't leave me in Reno without a diamond, would you?"
"I wouldn't, eh?" he grunted. "Do you think I'm in this business for my health?"
And he snatched off two earrings she had forgotten to remove. Fortunately, they were affixed to her lobes with fasteners.
Mrs. Jimmie was thoroughbred enough not to wince. She simply commented: "You brutes are almost as bad as the customs officers at New York."
And now another touch of light relieved the gloom. Kathleen was next in line, and she had been forcing her lips into their most attractive smile, and keeping her eyes winsomely melow, for the robber's benefit. Marjorie could not see the smile; she could only see that Kathleen was next. She whispered to Mallory:
"They'll get the bracelet! They'll get the bracelet!"
And Mallory could have danced with glee. But Kathleen leaned coquetishly toward the masked stranger, and threw all her art into her tone as she murmured:
"I'm sure you're too brave to take my things. I've always admired men with the courage of Claude Duval."
The robber was taken a trifle aback, but he growled: "I don't know the party you speak of—but cough up!"
"Listen to her," Marjorie whispered in horror; "she's flirting with the train-robber."
"What won't some women flirt with!" Mallory exclaimed.
The robber studied Kathleen a little more attentively, as he whipped off her necklace and her rings. She looked good to him, and so willing, that he muttered: "Say, lady, if you'll give me a kiss, I'll give you that diamond ring you got on."
"All right!" laughed Kathleen, with triumphant complacency.
"My God!" Mallory groaned, "what won't some women do for a diamond!"
The robber bent close, and was just raising his mask to collect his ransom, when his confederate glanced his way, and knowing his susceptible nature, foresaw his intention, and shouted: "Stop it, Jake. You tend strictly to business, or I'll blow your nose off."
"Oh, all right," grumbled the reluctant gallant, as he drew the ring from her finger. "Sorry, miss, but I can't make the trade," and he added with an unwonted gentleness: "You can turn round now."
Kathleen was glad to hide the blushes of defeat, but Marjorie was still more bitterly disappointed. She whispered to Mallory: "He didn't get the bracelet, after all."

CHAPTER XXXIX.
Wolves in the Fold.
Mallory's heart sank to its usual depth, but Marjorie had another of her inspirations. She started everybody by suddenly beckoning and calling: "Excuse me, Mr. Robber. Come here, please."
The curious gallant edged her way, keeping a sharp watch along the line: "That if you want?"

Marjorie leaned nearer, and spoke in a low tone with an amiable smile: "That lady who wanted to kiss you has a bracelet up her sleeve."
The robber stared across his mask, and wondered, but laughed, and grunted: "Much obliged." Then he went back, and tapped Kathleen on the shoulder. When she turned round, in the hope that he had reconsidered his refusal to make the trade, he infuriated her by growling: "Excuse me, miss, I overlooked a bet."
He ran his hand along her arm, and found her bracelet, and accomplished what Mallory had failed in, its removal.
"Don't, don't," cried Kathleen, "it's wiahed on."
"I wish it off," the villain laughed, and it joined the growing heap in the feed-bag.
Kathleen, doubly enraged, broke out viciously: "You're a common, sneaking—"
"Ah, turn round!" the man roared, and she obeyed in silence.
Then he explored Mrs. Whitecomb, but with such small reward that he said: "Say, you'd oughter have a pocketbook somewhere. Where's it at?"
Mrs. Whitecomb blushed furiously: "None of your business, you low brute."
"Perdooce, madame," the scoundrel snorted, "perdooce the purse, or I'll hunt for it myself."
Mrs. Whitecomb turned away, and after some management of her skirts, palmed her handbag into the eager palm with a wretched: "You're no gentleman, sir!"
"If I was, I'd be in Wall street," he laughed! "Now you can turn round."
And when she turned, he saw a bit of chain depending from her back hair. He tugged, and brought away the locket, and then proceeded to sound Ashton for hidden wealth.
And now Mrs. Temple began to sob, as she parted with an old-fashioned brooch and two old-fashioned rings that had been her little vanities for the quarter of a century and more. The old clergyman could have wept with her at the vandalism. He turned on the wretch with a heartick appeal:
"Can't you spare those? Didn't you ever have a mother?"
The robber started, his fierce eyes softened, his voice choked, and he gulped hard as he drew the back of his hand across his eyes.
"Aw, hell," he whimpered, "that ain't fair. If you're goin' to remind me of me poor old mo-mo-mother—"
But the one called Jake—the Claude Duval who had been prevented from a display of human sentiment, did not intend to be cheated. He thirtied: "Step it, Bill. You tend strictly to business, or I'll blow your mush-bowl off. You know your Maw died before you was born."
This reminder sobered the weeping thief at once, and he went back to work ruthlessly. "Oh, all right, Jake. Sorry, ma'am, but business is business." And he dumped Mrs. Temple's trinkets into the satchel. It was too much for the little old lady's little old husband. He fairly shrieked:
"Young man, you're a damned scoundrel, and the best argument I ever saw for hell-fire!"
Mrs. Temple's grief changed to horror at such a bolt from the blue: "Walter!" she gasped, "such language!"
But her husband answered in self-defense: "Even a minister has a right to swear once in his lifetime."
Mallory almost dropped in his tracks, and Marjorie keeled over on him, as he gasped: "Good Lord, Dr. Temple, you are a—minister?"
"Yes, my boy," the old man confessed, glad that the robbers had relieved him of his guilty secret along with the rest of his private properties. Mallory looked at the collapsing Marjorie and groaned: "And he was in the next berth all this time!"
The unmasking of the old fraud made a second sensation. Mrs. Fosdick called from far down the aisle: "Dr. Temple, you're not a detective?"
Mrs. Temple shouted back furiously: "How dare you?"
But Mrs. Fosdick was crying to her luscious-eyed mate: "Oh, Arthur, he's not a detective. Embrace me!"
And they embraced, while the robbers looked on aghast at the sudden oblivion they had fallen into. They focussed the attention on themselves again, however, with a ferocious: "Here, hands up!" But they did not see Mr. and Mrs. Fosdick steal a kiss behind their upraised arms, for the robber, to whose lot Mallory fell was

(Continued from page 7) gloating over his well-filled wallet. Mallory saw it go with fortitude, but noting a piece of legal paper, he said: "Say, old man, you don't want that marriage license, do you?"

The robber handled it as if it were hot—as if he had burned his fingers on some such document once before, and he stuffed it back in Mallory's pocket. "I should say not. Keep it. Turn round."

Meanwhile the other felon turned up another beautiful pile of bills in Dr. Temple's pocket. "Not so worse for a parson," he grinned. "You must be one of them Fifth Avenue skyscrapers."

And now Mrs. Temple's gentle eyes and voice filled with tears again: "Oh, don't take that. That's the money for his vacation—after thirty long years. Please don't take that."

Her appeals seemed always to find the tender spot of this robber's heart, for he hesitated, and called out: "Shall we overlook the parson's wad, podner?"

"Take it, and shut up, you molly-coddle!" was the answer he got, and the vacation funds joined the old gew-gaws.

And now everybody had been robbed but Marjorie. She happened to be at the center of the line, and both men reached her at the same time: "I seen her first," the first one shouted.

"You did not," the other roared. "I tell you I did."

"I tell you I did." They glared threateningly at each other, and their revolvers seemed to meet, like two game cocks, beak to beak.

The porter voiced the general hope, when he sighed: "Oh, Lawd, if they'd only shoot each other."

This brought the rivals to their evil senses, and they swept the line with those terrifying muzzles and that heart-stopping yelp: "Hands up!"

Bill said: "You take the east side of her, and I'll take the west."

"All right."

And they began to snatch away her side-combs, the little gold chain at her throat, the jeweled pin that Mallory had given her as the first token of his love.

The young soldier had foreseen this. He had foreseen the wild rage that would unseat his reason when he saw the dirty hands of thieves laid rudely on the sacred body of his beloved. But his soldier-schooling had drilled him to govern his impulses, to play the coward when there was no hope of successful battle, and to strike only when the moment was ripe with perfect opportunity.

He had kept telling himself that when the finger of one of these men touched so much as Marjorie's hem, he would be forced to fling himself on the profane miscreant. And he kept telling himself that the moment he did this, the other man would calmly blow a hole through him, and drop him at Marjorie's feet, while the other passengers shrank away in terror.

He told himself that, while it might be a fine impulse to leap to her defense, it was a fool impulse to leap off a precipice and leave Marjorie alone among strangers, with a dead man and a scandal, as the only rewards for his impulse. He yowed that he would hold himself in check, and let the robbers take everything, leaving him only the name of coward, provided they left him also the power to defend Marjorie better at another time.

And now that he saw the clumsy-handed thugs rifling his sweetheart's jewelry, he felt all that he had foreseen, and his head fought almost in vain against the white fire of his heart. Between them he trembled like a leaf, and the sweat globed on his forehead.

The worst of it was the shivering terror of Marjorie, and the pitiful eyes she turned on him. But he clenched his teeth and waited, thinking fiercely, watching, like a hovering eagle, a chance to swoop.

But the robbers kept glancing this way and that, and one motion would mean death. They themselves were so overwrought with their own ordeal and its immediate conclusion, that they would have killed anybody. Mallory shifted his foot cautiously, and instantly a gun was jabbed into his stomach, with a snarl: "Don't you move!"

"Who's moving?" Mallory answered, with a poor imitation of a careless laugh.

And now the man called Bill had reached Marjorie's right hand. He chorled: "Golly, look at the shiners."

But Jake, who had chosen Marjorie's left hand, roared: "Say, you cheated. All I get is this measly plain gold band."

"Oh, don't take that!" Marjorie gasped, clenching her hand.

Mallory's heart ached at the thought of this final sacrifice. He had the license, and the minister at last—and now the bands were going to carry off the wedding ring. He controlled himself with a desperate effort, and stooped to plead: "Say, old man, don't take that. That's not fair."

"Shut up, both of you," Jake growled, and jabbed him again with the gun.

He gave the ring a jerk, but Marjorie, in the very face of the weapon, would not let go. She struggled and tugged, weeping and imploring: "Oh, don't, don't take that! It's my wedding ring."

"Agh, what do I care!" the ruffian snarled, and wrenched her finger so viciously that she gave a little cry of pain.

That broke Mallory's heart. With a wild, bellowing, "Damn you!" he hurled himself at the man, with only his bare hands for weapons.

CHAPTER XL.

A Hero in Spite of Himself. Passion sent Mallory into the unequal fight with two armed and desperate outlaws. But reason had planned the way. He had been studying the robber all the time, as if the villain were a war-map, studying his gestures, his way of turning, and how he held the revolver. He had noted that the man, as he frisked the passengers, did not keep his finger on the trigger, but on the guard.

Maize and Peanuts for Hogs.

W. B. Starr, assistant agricultural agent of the Texas & Pacific Railway Company, headquarters at Longview, in discussing the care and feeding of his stock with a representative of the Texas Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's Association, said: "I have now ready for market, 182 head of hogs that will average 180 pounds each. These hogs were raised on peanuts and milo maize which I find will produce 12 pounds of fat to the bushel, at the rate of a pound to a pound and a half a day. I believe that I have doubled my money on my stock, for the use of peanuts and milo maize has minimized the cost of feeding far below the cost of corn. Peanuts are now selling at 72 cents per bushel on the market, but by feeding them to the hogs, the price per bushel would be $1.00, providing the hog sells for 8 cents and even at 6 cents for the hog, your peanuts, as a food, are worth 75 cents per bushel, and besides you are spared the cost and trouble of harvesting and marketing the crop which will amount to at least ten per cent. Therefore, I find it cheaper and more profitable to let the hogs run at large on the peanuts and milo maize field than to harvest the crop. I once believed that hogs could not be raised successfully without corn, but that theory has been dispelled by experimenting with peanuts and milo maize, two crops that abound extensively in my section of the country and are as good fat producers as corn and the cost per bushel is far less."

Former Canyon Boy Married.

Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Mr. Bedford D. Garmon and Miss Nina Mae Carhart were united in marriage at the residence of Rev. R. F. Jenkins, pastor of the First Baptist church in Amarillo.

Mr. Garmon is favorably known as manager of the Panhandle Lumber Co., at Panhandle and the bride is the popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Carhart, of Panhandle, where Mr. Carhart holds position as cashier of the Panhandle bank.

They came to Canyon Wednesday and were met at the station by the happy sisters, brothers and cousins and accompanied to the parental Garmon home, where the bride was introduced to her new father and mother. They were delightfully entertained at high noon informally, with an old fashion dinner, served by Miss Caddo Garmon, the groom's sister. The table was appropriately decorated in honor of cupid's knot. The young couple left on the 4:50 train to their home in Panhandle.
