

LECTURE THURSDAY ON SWEET CLOVER

DISCUSSED BY G. W. McMILLEN, OF AMARILLO.

This Crop Promises to do Much for the Plains Country as Pasture and Feed Crop.

G. W. McMillen, of Amarillo, was in the city Thursday night to discuss before a large audience at the court house, Sweet Clover and its effect upon the Plains country. Mr. McMillen is from the clover district of Kentucky and claims that this crop is worth at least $100 per acre, that it is a great moisture preserver, that it is a fine fertilizer, that it is better than blue grass for pasture, that it is a great butter and fat producer and that it will make from 3 to 5 tons per acre.

The following articles appeared recently in the Daily Panhandle, of Amarillo, regarding this clover:

It is a fact generally recognized that the short grass of the Plains, while satisfactory as long as acres were unlimited and land considered of small value, must sooner or later give way to a more abundant growth of clover, grass or other forage plant which will fatten larger herds on smaller pastures.

It is firmly believed by many now that Sweet Clover is destined to fulfill this mission.

Sweet clover has a strong, sweetish fragrance, hence its name. Although called clover, it is nearer akin to alfalfa, resembling the latter so closely when green that few can tell them apart. The seeds of both are also very similar in appearance.

The arid, elevated regions of Asia, a country called Bokhara, is the native home of sweet clover. It has been found to adapt itself to most any conditions of climate and soil, and is known to thrive in nearly all parts of the world. Within the corporation limits of Amarillo it can be seen growing wild, some full ripe and heavy seeded, some green and succulent, in the same spot.

A HARDY PLANT.

Sweet Clover is a very hardy plant, rank of growth, but may easily be killed if mowed while blooming. It may be pastured at all times, and as long as some of the plants mature it will seed itself from year to year, as long as wanted. The first year's growth will not seed, but the second year starts the plant on its mission of self preservation. The plant has a long, deep tap-root, which enables it to obtain moisture when other plants die for want of it and keeps it from freezing or killing out in winter.

White and yellow sweet clover are the two varieties which find favor in sections of this country where its cultivation has reached any proportions. What has been said heretofore applies to both, except that there is also an annual of the yellow, and many different species of both biennial and annual yellow. It should be the aim of the one who intends to try sweet clover to be sure that he secures seed of the cultivated kind. The annual yellow is a wild plant and stock is little disposed to eat it.

GREAT CROP IN KENTUCKY.

E. E. Barton, of Falmouth, Kentucky, a member of the American Breeder's Association, in a treatise on the subject of sweet clover, writes thus:

"The plant attracted attention

NORMAL GIRLS WIN.

Defeat Amarillo High School Basketball Team Saturday Night 17 to 9.

In a fast and well played game Saturday night the Normal girls basketball team defeated the Amarillo high school team by a score of 17 to 9. Miss Lillian Lair, of this city, was the star of the game winning every point that the Normal scored. The other members of the team played well and greatly assisted Miss Lair in her excellent work.

Both teams played a good game but were very frequently fouled on minor points. Each side had at least a dozen chances at goal on fouls, Amarillo making three points by this method and the Normal scoring five. The Normal team was superior on team work and swiftness and better understood the game than their opponents.

The game was very interesting and showed that the Normal will have a very fast team before the end of the season.

The following was the line up of the teams:

Normal: Lair, Spiers forwards; Stone, Dobbins centers; Webster, Locke guards.

Amarillo: Aston, Sockwell forwards; Blackburn, Williken centers; Finklea, Vernon guards.

here years ago, first as a fertilizer and for its efficiency in stopping washes on hill lands. It was observed by some of the more alert land owners that Sweet Clover restored fertility to the soil in old, worn and neglected and even washed fields in a remarkably short time. More of our farmers began sowing it in a small way, experimenting with it and discovering new virtues, and its adaptability and value to a tobacco worn and badly washed hill country. In a few years it comes to take a front rank with the farmers as a fertilizer, and as a hay, pasture, and seed crop. Now in this country there are more acres of Sweet Clover than any other clover or grass. It takes hold and grows well in very thin and poor soils where neither grasses, red clover nor alfalfa will start or live."

All stock does well on Sweet Clover. The plant analysis shows that it contains about the same food elements as alfalfa and in some instances Sweet Clover has proved the richer of the two. The cultivated varieties of the clover are readily relished by all stock, while the wild varieties are bitter and not relished.

As with all seeds care should be taken to secure the best Sweet Clover seed. As far as known northern Kentucky produces the most satisfactory seed. It may be sowed broadcast on top of the ground or it may be drilled into prepared ground. By the former method it may be sowed late in fall to early spring. By the latter method the seed may be sowed alone or with oats or barley, but must be lightly covered, not over half inch. Sowed alone during April or May, lightly covered and rolled is an excellent method to start with. From one-third to one-half bushel of seed per acre is all that is required, according to stand desired and purpose in view. One bushel of Sweet Clover seed to six acres of pasture grown with other grasses is recommended.

Of one thing the Panhandle farmer and stock raiser may rest assured. Where now he feeds one steer on ten to fifteen acres of land, by means of Sweet Clover he has a bright prospect of feeding from one to five head on one acre. It is certainly worth a trial.

THIRD WEEK OF DISTRICT COURT

ALL BUSINESS WILL BE CLOSED DURING TODAY.

Much Business Transacted During the Term but Only Two Jury Cases are Tried.

Judge J. N. Browning will arrive in the city this morning to hear a few motions for new trials, after which he will close the business of the November term of district court. In commenting on the term Judge Browning said Tuesday: "It may not look like there has been a great amount of business transacted during the term but as a matter of fact more cases have been disposed of than any term since I have been Judge. I am well pleased with the work this term and after hearing a few motions Thursday will close the business of the term."

A jury appeared Monday but were dismissed Tuesday afternoon as there was no business for them. Only two cases were tried before a jury during the entire term.

The following was the business of the week:

Mrs. S. J. Cox vs. Ella F. Heald et al, was continued for service.

Henry Taylor vs. J. W. Cummings, was continued to perfect service.

School Notes.

Friday night Mr. Yoe gave a baloptican entertainment for the grammar grades. The slides were mostly scenes from United States history. A large number were present.

The boys of the high school will organize a debating society in the very near future. Mr. Yoe expects to make some great orators of them and even hopes some day to meet one, at least, in the Senate of the United States.

This week we have with us the Prang Educational Exhibit consisting of work of the students of the school of Industrial Arts of the Pennsylvania Museum. The exhibit is very instructive and the patrons of the school are cordially invited to come and enjoy the work.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS ARE DISCUSSED

ABLE ARTICLE BY COUNTY JUDGE, C. E. COSS.

Mr. Coss Points Out Many Excellent Things About the Local High School.

The following is an interesting article by C. E. Coss, County Judge of Randall county:

I wish to state to the Citizens of Canyon and Randall county, that I have spent a day and a half, and very pleasantly too, visiting our high school. I wish, however, that I could have spent a longer time, as the more I saw of it, the better pleased I was with its efficiency. It would furnish food for thought to any citizen who would take the time to make a visit and enter into a thorough investigation of our school.

If he will note carefully, he will be impressed with the following facts:

That the school is not overcrowded.

That their working tools have been greatly augmented.

That we have a corps of teachers who know how to handle the tools.

That the play ground has been delightfully arranged, and the number and variety of games increased.

That as a result of all these wholesome additions discipline has been reduced to a minimum.

We further gave particular attention to the methods of instruction used by the different teachers in conducting their classes, and the effect of these methods upon the student. We are proud to say that the pupils were very attentive and very much interested, especially those of the lower grades. Interest in all grades was far above the average.

We furthermore noticed that only a very few of the pupils were not taking part in play. We have noticed that, as a rule, those pupils who exercise most are the most studious.

We were very much pleased to note that our school has been provided with a laboratory, especially adapted to the teaching of physics. Every dollar spent in this way is a splendid investment. It is a time saver, not only for the pupil but the teacher and parent as well; and to double the amount invested in this manner would be money well spent.

To give the public a complete statement of all the good qualities of our school would require more space than the Editor would like to spare, therefore suffice it to say that our high school is second to none in this country. Any parent who will take the time to visit the school will be more than pleased with his visit. He will find a smile upon the faces of all the teachers. Not one of these cast-down, care-worn smiles, but a real smile.

You will be heartily welcomed into the school too, because each teacher has something to be proud of. She will show you work that speaks for itself. More than that, she feels confident in her ability to handle the work assigned her and therefore rests with a perfect smiling confidence upon that ability.

I have not written one word that I feel is untrue in this article. I am not writing to flatter our teachers. Each and every one of them is deserving of great credit for the splendid work they

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS WIN.

Administer Defeat to Normal Basketball Team Monday Afternoon in Good Game.

The High School girls basketball team defeated the Normal girls in a fast game Monday afternoon on the high school ground by a score of 15 to 16.

The Normal was not represented by exactly the same team that administered defeat to the Amarillo high school on Saturday night nor had they been used to the outdoor court. The high school played a fast clean game and showed great improvement since the Tulia game two weeks ago. During the first half the high school outplayed the Normal team and gained enough points to keep their lead during the second half after the Normal had rallied.

Gentry for the high school played by for the stellar game throwing eight field goals and Spiers starred for the Normal throwing six field goals and one foul, Lair threw one field goal.

The contest was fast and clean and only four fouls were called against both teams. The high school will go to Tulia Saturday to play the girls' team a second game.

Lineup of Monday's game:

Normal	F	High School	Craig
Lair	F	Gentry
Spiers	F	Foster
Stone	C	Ballard
Angel	C	Hicks
Webster	G	Miller
Rattikin	G

are accomplishing, and I do not hesitate to let the people of this town and county know what I think of our school.

C. E. Coss,
County Judge, Randall County.

Texas Needs Great Hogs.

Many articles have appeared in the press of late contending that Texas needs great men. The editors in some instances have questioned it; the politicians have denied it and the alleged greats have defied it but no one who reads Col. I. T. Pryor's report to the Texas Welfare Commission on live stock will deny that "Texas Needs Great Hogs."

According to the report there is shipped into the State $52,000,000 worth of pork and its products per annum. Our hogs are worth 27 per cent less than the average in the United States. We are badly in need of more hogs and better hogs. Men who can raise great hogs are the kind of great men Texas needs.

DON'T SHOCK YOUR LIVER WITH CALOMEL.

Dodson's Liver-Tone Persuades it to Work Naturally and Safely—No Restriction of Habits or Diet.

If you have a sick horse, you cannot make him work by beating him, and if you try it you are liable to ruin him forever. It's the same way with your liver. When it becomes torpid and sluggish, you can take calomel and whip it into action, but the calomel will leave your body weaker and sicker than ever. Calomel is a very powerful chemical made from mercury.

A perfect substitute for calomel, that has all of its medicinal properties with none of its dangerous and uncertain follow-ups, is Dodson's Liver-Tone.

The City Pharmacy sells Dodson's Liver-Tone with the guarantee that if you don't find it a perfect substitute for calomel, this store will give you your money back. Dodson's Liver-Tone is a true tonic for the liver, purely vegetable, and with such a pleasant taste that it is no trouble to get children to take it. It is absolutely impossible for it to do anyone any harm, because it simply persuades the liver to do what it ought to do—no more and no less.

Plainview Don't Get Orphanage.

The committee on location of state Odd Fellows orphanage and widows home held a meeting at Corsicana a week before last and heard the offers of the various towns asking for the institution. Judge H. C. Randolph presented Plainview's proposition, which was 200 acres of fine land, and a big irrigation well fully equipped, besides one of the healthiest locations in the state, etc.

After hearing the proposals the committee eliminated all towns except Bowie, Brownwood, Bonham and Comanche, and will visit these towns and then decide which place will get the home. One of the committee, S. E. Bateman, of Celina, said Plainview is the best location and so voted.

The Plainview committee offered to pay the expenses of the committee if it would visit Plainview.

It is the intention of Plainview to take matter onto the floor of the grand lodge at its next meeting, and try to get the home located here.—Plainview News.

MORE BANK TALK

Did it ever occur to you why all good business men keep a checking account with a bank? We'll tell you. It enables them to keep their funds in a more secure place than the office safe. It gives them a better standing in the business world. It enables them to pay their bills by check, the returned check being an undisputed receipt.

Individuals find a checking account very convenient and a source of saving. Money in one's pocket is often spent on the spur of the moment, while one is disposed to think twice before drawing on his balance in the bank. "Get the Savings Habit." Lay up for a rainy day. Start a bank account with Thanksgiving.

Please Father, lend a listening ear,
While I return thanks for things so dear.
My heart is filled with blessings sweet,
My life is blessed, with friends to greet.

Thankful for health, and a happy life,
The useful days, wherein's no strife;
My heart, each day, will thankful be,
To thee—who alone my heart can see.

Whilst others, over thorny paths do tread,
Without a friend—without daily bread.
Fragrant flowers, all along my path-way
Blossom—While friends and food are mine today.

And, so long as, here I still am living
On this earth, a great glad Thanksgiving,
Each day, from my heart will ascend
To Thee, my Saviour and best friend.

—Miss Fannie Jackson, Winchester Tennessee.

The announcement that President Wilson will call an session of congress to revise the tariff downward is well received over the country. Mr. Wilson realizes that tariff revision always scares many lines of business and he wishes to have the agony over and show the country that a really scientific revision does not affect legitimate business.

The suicidal of J. A. Wayland will greatly retard the progress of socialism. He was the spokesman and one of the foremost advocates of the socialistic property ownership doctrine, but at the same time owned at least $200,000 worth of very valuable property in Amarillo. Can you guess well?

MAN has acquired a hunger for land which he can call his own. The supply is limited---the demand unlimited! Land values have risen to prohibitive prices in older settled states!

The Panhandle Is Ready For The Farmer

Here is a deep, rich soil, ready for the plow. An ample rainfall and a most healthful and splendid climate. Adequate railroad facilities by which to reach the markets of the world.

A return to normal climatic conditions, a greatly increased acreage of winter wheat, spring wheat, oats and barley, an unqualifiedly successful demonstration that Kaffir corn and Milo maize cannot be excelled as material for ensilage, the "better farming" spirit and the results of studying and developing this land assures a prosperous year.

The successful outcome of flax culture, demonstrated last year under conditions much less favorable than can confidently be reckoned on in the future has added another to the list of our resources.

Farms can be bought here now cheaper than they can later on, at prices which are certain of a steady advance as the summer and fall emigration stimulates the demand.

My farms are all favorably located, as regards towns and railroads and give the buyer a wide range in selection. All the improved farms are rented [to] good farmers and will produce a substantial revenue this year.

I am in position to give terms to suit the purchaser.

Marjorie's little battle threw the desperado off his balance a trifle; as he recovered, Mallory struck him, and swept him on over against the back of a seat. At the same instant, Mallory's right hand went like lightning to the trigger guard, and gripped the fingers in a vise of steel, while he drove the man's elbow back against his side. Mallory's left hand meanwhile flung around his enemy's neck, and gave him a spinning fall that sent his left hand out for balance. It fell across the back of the seat, and Mallory plinoned it with elbow and knee before it could escape.

All in the same crowded moment, his left knuckles jolted the man's chin in the air, and so bewildered him that his muscles relaxed enough for Mallory's right fingers to squirm their way to the trigger, and aim the gun at the other robber, and finally to get entire control of it.

The thing had happened in such a flash that the second outlaw could hardly believe his eyes. The shriek of the astounded passengers, and the grunt of Mallory's prisoner, as he crashed backward, woke him to the need for action. He caught his other gun from its holster, and made for a double volley, but there was nothing to aim at. Mallory was crouched in the seat, and almost perfectly covered by a human shield.

Still, from force of habit and foolhardy pluck, Bill aimed at Mallory's right eyebrow, just about Jake's right ear, and shouted his old motto: "Hands up! you!"

"Hands up yourself!" answered Mallory, and his victim, shuddering at the fierce look in his comrade's eyes, gasped: "For God's sake, don't shoot, Bill!"

Even then the fellow stood his ground, and debated the issue, till Mallory threw such ringing determination into one last: "Hands up, or by God, I'll fire!" that he caved in, lifted his fingers from the triggers, turned the guns up, and slowly raised both hands above his head.

A profound "Ah!" of relief soured through the car, and Mallory, still keeping his eye on Bill, got down cautiously from the seat. The moment he released Jake's left hand, it darted to the holster where his second gun was waiting. But before he could clutch the butt of it, Mallory jabbed the muzzle of his own revolver in the man's back, and growled: "Put 'em up!" And the robber's left hand joined the right in air, while Mallory's left hand lifted the revolver.

Mallory stood for a moment, breathing hard and a little incredulous at his own swift, sweet triumph. Then he made an effort to speak as if this sort of thing were quite common with him, as if he overpowered a pair of outlaws every morning before breakfast, but his voice cracked as he said, in a drawing-room tone:

"Dr. Temple, would you mind relieving that man of those guns?"
Dr. Temple was so set up by this distinction that he answered: "Not by a—"

"Walter!" Mrs. Temple checked him, before he could utter the beautiful word, and Dr. Temple looked at her almost reproachfully, as he sighed: "Golly, I should like to swear just once more."

Then he reached up and disarmed the man who had taken his wallet and his wife's keepsakes. American children breathe in this desperado romance with their earliest traditions, and Dr. Temple felt all his boyhood zest surge back with a boy's tremendous rapture in a deed of daring-do. And now nothing could check his swagger, as he said to Mallory: "What shall we do with these dam-nd sinners?"

He felt like apologizing for the clerical relapse into a pulpism, but Mallory answered briskly: "We'd better take them into the smoking room. They scare the ladies. But first, will the conductor take those bags and distribute the contents to their rightful owners?"

The conductor was proud to act as lieutenant to this lieutenant, and he quickly relieved the robbers of their loot-kits.

Mallory smiled. "Don't give anybody my things," and then he jabbed his robber with one of the revolvers, and commanded: "Forward, march!"

The little triumphal procession moved off, with Bill in the lead, followed by Dr. Temple, looking like a whole field battery, followed by Jake, followed by Mallory, followed by the porter and as many of the other passengers as could crowd into the smoking room.

The rest went after those opulent food-bags.

CHAPTER XII.

Clonky-Clonky-Clonky.
Marjorie, as the supposed wife of the rescuing angel, was permitted first search, and the first thing she hunted for was a certain gold bracelet that was hers of late. She found it and seized it with a prayer on thanks, and concealed it among her own things.

Mrs. Temple gave her a guilty start, by speaking across a barrier: "Mrs. Mallory, your husband is the bravest man on earth."

"Oh, I know he is," Marjorie beamed, and added with a spasm of conscience: "but he isn't my husband!"

Mrs. Temple gasped in horror, but Marjorie dragged her close, and poured out the whole story, while the other passengers recovered their properties with as much joy as if they were all new gifts found on a bush.

Meanwhile, under Mallory's guidance, the porter fastened the outlaws together back to back with the straps of their own feed-bags. The porter was rejoicing that his harvest of tips was not blighted after all.

Mallory completed his bliss, by giving him Dr. Temple's brace of guns, and establishing him as jaller, with a warning: "Now, porter, don't take your eye off 'em."

"Lordy, I won't bat an eyelid."

"If either of these lads coughs, put a hole through both of 'em."

The porter chuckled: "My fingers is just a-tchin' fer them lovin' triggers."

Mallory pocketed two of the captured revolvers, lest a need might arise suddenly again. As he hurried down the aisle, he was received with cheers. The passengers gave him an ovation, but he only smiled timidly, and made haste to Marjorie's side.

She regarded him with such idolatry that he almost regretted his deed. But this mood soon passed in her excitement, and in a moment she was surreptitiously showing him the bracelet. He became an accessory after the fact, and shared her guilt, for when she groaned with a sudden droop: "She'll get it back!" he grimly answered, "Oh, no she won't!" hoisted the window, and flung the bracelet into a little pool by the side of the track, with a farewell: "Good-bye, trouble!"

As he drew his head in, a side glance showed him that up near the engine a third train-robber held the miserably weary train crew in line.

He found the conductor just about to pull the bell-ropes, to proceed. The conductor had forgotten all about the rest of the staff. Mallory took him aside, and told him the situation, then turned to Marjorie, said: "Excuse me a minute," and hurried forward. The conductor followed Mallory through the train into the baggage coach.

The first news the third outlaw had of the counter-revolution occurring in the sleeping car was a mysterious bullet that flicked the dust near his heel, and a sonorous shout of "Hands up!" As he whirled in amaze, he saw two revolvers aimed point blank at him from behind a trunk. He hoisted his guns without parley, and the train crew trussed him up in short order.

Mallory ran back to Marjorie, and the conductor followed more slowly, reassuring the passengers in the other cars, and making certain that the train was ready to move on its way.

Mallory went straight to Dr. Temple, with a burning demand:

"You dear old fraud, will you marry me?"

Dr. Temple laughed and nodded. Marjorie and Mrs. Temple had been telling him the story of the prolonged elopement, and he was eager to stone for his own deception, by putting an end to their misery.

"Just wait one moment," he said, and as a final proof of affection, he unbuttoned his collar and put it on backwards. Mrs. Temple brought out the discarded bib, and he donned it meekly. The transformation explained many a mystery the old man had enmeshed himself in.

Even as he made ready for the ceremony, the conductor appeared, looked him over, grinned, and reached for the bell-cord, with a cheerful: "All aboard!"

Mallory had a sort of superstitious dread, not entirely unfounded on experience, that if the train got under way again, it would run into some new obstacle to his marriage. He turned to the conductor:

"Say, old man, just hold the train till after my wedding, won't you?"

It was not much to ask in return for his services, but the conductor was tired of being second in command. He growled:

"Not a minute. We're way behind time."

"You might wait till I'm married," Mallory pleaded.

"Not on your life!" the conductor answered, and he pulled the bell-ropes twice; in the distance, the whistle answered twice.

Mallory's temper flared again. He cried: "This train doesn't go another step till I'm married!" He reached up and pulled the bell-rope once; in the distance the whistle sounded once.

This was high treason, and the conductor advanced on him threateningly, as he seized the cord once more.

"You touch that rope again, and I'll—"

"Oh, no, you won't," said Mallory, as he whistled a revolver from his right pocket and jammed it into the conductor's watch-pocket. The conductor came to attention.

Then Mallory, standing with his right hand on military duty, put out his left hand, and gave the word: "Now, parson."

He smiled still more as he heard Kathleen's voice wailing: "But I can't find my bracelet. Where's my bracelet?"

"Silence! Silence!" Dr. Temple commanded, and then: "Join hands, my children."

Marjorie shifted Snoozleums to her left arm, put her right hand into Mallory's, and Dr. Temple, standing between them, began to drone the ritual.

When the old clergyman had done his work, the young husband-at-last graciously rescinded military law, recalled the artillery from the conductor's very midst, and remembering Manila, smiled:

"You may fire when ready, conductor."

The conductor's rage had cooled, and he stepped the bridegroom on the back with one hand, as he pulled the cord with the other. The train began to creak and tug and shift. The ding-dong of the bell floated merrily back as from a lofty steeple, and the clickety-click, click-clickety-click quickened and softened into a pleasant gossip, as the speed grew, and the way was so smooth for the wheels that they seemed to be spinning on rails of velvet.
