

ANOTHER CLEAN UP DAY FOR TOMORROW

MEN OF THE TOWN TO REPORT AT 7:30 A. M. FOR WORK.

Final Touches Will be Given the City Before the Arrival of the State Inspector.

The inspector for Holland's Magazine has not yet arrived and in order to put on the finishing touches to what the people of Canyon believe to be the "cleanest town in Texas," Mayor Wilson proclaims Friday of this week as another general clean up day. The business houses will not close but all are asked to furnish as many men as possible to aid in the work.

Since the rains many weeds are beginning to grow. Mayor Wilson asks the men to provide themselves with hoes and cut all these weeds. After this is done, each man should arm himself with a rake and begin operations on every bit of trash he finds. Ten or more teams are wanted to report early in the morning as there are several places which needs cleaning up badly.

Mayor Wilson asks that the people of the town be more careful about throwing out old papers and tin cans. Provide sacks for this rubbish so that the scavenger can haul it away.

Every man in Canyon is asked to give one more half days work a full day if necessary to putting on the finishing touches. The work will not be as hard as on the other days, but it must be done in order to have a clean city.

Baptist Meeting Successful.

The meeting of the woman's association at the Baptist church last week was well attended and of very great spiritual benefit to those in attendance. Representatives were here from Hereford, Tulla and Kress. The president Mrs. B. T. Johnson, wishes to thank Miss Kline and the boys in her band for the fine music given.

The associational meeting convened Wednesday night with a sermon by Rev. O. W. Dean of Tulla. The attendance was not large but the interest very great. Rev. J. T. Burnett of Canadian was a guest of the association.

Farmers Meeting.

All the farmers of Randall county are requested to meet at the courthouse Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock to discuss the prospects of sowing grain, to hear a report of the representatives who when to College Station, to discuss the establishment of an experimental farm at the Normal and other topics of general farming and stock raising interest. Pres. R. B. Cousins will address the meeting.

WELTON WINN, Pres.

Good Local Rains.

Good local rains have been reported all over the country during the past week. Nearly two inches have fallen west and southwest of town. In Canyon the fall has been rather light, most of which fell Monday morning and evening.

Eggs Up.

Bring us your eggs, 15 cents per dozen.

The Leader.

BAPTIST CALL PASTOR.

Rev. T. G. Netherton of Woodward, Okla., Called by Congregation at Meeting Sunday.

Rev. G. T. Netherton of Woodward, Okla., preached two excellent sermons at the Baptist church Sunday and after the evening service a congregational meeting was held at which time a call was extended to Mr. Netherton.

Rev. Netherton is a young man of exceptional ability. He has held several responsible charges in Okla., and comes very highly recommended. His sermons Sunday were very pleasing to the congregation.

He left for his home Monday and will wire his acceptance the latter part of the week should he decide to accept the call of the church.

Normal Faculty Changes.

J. G. Miller has been elected to a position in the Long Beach, Calif., schools and will not return to the Normal this year. R. A. Terrill has been transferred from the secretary's office to the head of the manual training department and Travis Shaw will be nominated secretary by Pres. Cousins at the next meeting of the board of normal regents. Mr. Blaine will have charge of the athletics formerly in the hands of Mr. Miller.

Appropriations Badly Cut.

The appropriations for the Normal college were about cut in two by Governor Colquitt. Both of the new buildings were cut from the bill. The school will receive about $50,000 each of the two following years.

Fair Catalogue Out.

The catalogue for the first annual Panhandle State Fair is being distributed. The fair will be held at Amarillo October 6-11. The list of prizes is large and there should be a large number of entries from Randall county. The racing program will be strong and an important feature of the fair.

L. L. Johnson, of the Santa Fe, was in the city Friday visiting the farm cooperators of the Santa Fe.

CONVENTION BEGINS ON NEXT WEDNESDAY

DELEGATES FROM NUMBER OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS COMING.

Convention Begins Wednesday and Closes Friday—Strong Corps of Speakers Coming.

The Panhandle Sunday School convention will begin in this city next Wednesday and will continue until Friday night. The program appears on page eight of this issue which shows that N. H. Wiggins, state secretary, has a strong corps of speakers on the tour with him and that the program in this city will be very excellent.

Circular letters to Sunday schools all over the Plains have brought several replies assuring that the attendance will be large.

The people of the town are planning to take care of the visiting delegates by furnishing entertainment in their homes during the three days. The program will be held at the Methodist church.

INSPECTION OF FOOD COMMITTEE

MORE FLIES THAN ORDINARY IN THE CITY REPORTED.

Visited Jurymen Sleeping Rooms in the Court House and Suggest Sheets for Beds.

The inspection committee in the Pure Campaign made the weekly inspection Tuesday morning. The inspection was not made last week. The following is the report of the committee: We find that there are more flies than ordinary at this inspection. We cannot account for this unless it be that some of the merchants have become negligent during the past week and thrown refuse into the street which should have been put into the covered garbage cans. We trust that on our next inspection we will find no flies at all.

On complaint of a man who was forced to spend a night in the jury room in the court house, we visited this room and found everything as clean and sanitary as the conveniences would permit. The room and beds are well kept, but we suggest that sheets are put on the beds. There are well laundered pillow cases used, but only blankets on the beds which have never been laundered. Some of the cots are also broken and should be replaced. We found the remainder of the building in good condition. We are glad to know that the commissioners have ordered new cuspidors.

We are told that since we called attention to spitting on the floors in a report a few weeks ago that this practice has diminished, but that it is still continued in some places. Canyon ought to have a rigidly enforced anti-spitting ordinance. We make this as a suggestion for the city council.

The inspector has not yet arrived but he is expected every day. We trust that all the people of the town will keep constantly on guard and help keep the town clean, not only in the business section but in all the streets.

We wish to call attention to the fact that the inspector of Holland's Magazine has been inspecting the churches, jails, secret society halls and school buildings in the towns he has visited. We have not inspected these, but we hope that the janitors of these places will put everything in order. It has been reported to us that in some of the churches old song books and Sunday school papers are piled in some of the corners and under the seats. We hope that these places will be cleaned up as every point on which we are marked down means just so much of a loss to the standing of the town in this contest.

The following is the classification of the stores:
Class A—City Pharmacy, Baltimore Hotel, Holland Drug Co., Cowboy Restaurant, West End Grocery, Black Bros., Leader, Burroughs & Jarrett, Pipkin's Store, Canyon Supply, Rogerson Hotel, Canyon Cafe, Court house.
Class B plus—Smith Hotel, Cowart's Candy Kitchen, Redburn's, Bob's Place.
Class B—Meat Market.
Class C—Normal Grocery.

CITY WELL COMPLETED.

491 Feet Deep With Water Standing 230 Feet from the Top—Engine Here Oct. 1st.

The new city well was completed Saturday. The hole is 8 inches in diameter and is 491 feet deep. This a little deeper than the contract called for, but the water was rising so much at the 425 foot mark that the city council decided to go another 75 feet. The pit will be dug and cemented this week and ready for the big engine which will arrive here October 1st. The new well has a capacity of 2000 gallons per minute but machinery will be used with only a capacity of 100 gallons per minute.

When the plant is finally completed the city will have two good wells and two good pumps and the council is contemplating putting in a centrifugal pump to pump water from the reservoir to the high tank in case of a large fire.

Jail in Use.

For the first time in several months the Randall county jail has an inmate. He is one J. D. Hughes with alias attached in half a dozen different forms. A few weeks ago a young fellow drifted into town one Saturday night and passed out a few $3.00 checks, worthless of course. It was not discovered until Monday when the banks opened. Sheriff Jennings got on his trail and located him at Hereford where the sheriff of Deaf Smith county was after the man on the same charge. He has been serving a jail sentence since then and will undoubtedly be convicted and serve a like sentence here.

State Tax Rate Increased.

The state tax board has fixed the state tax rate for the coming year at 45 cents on the $100 property valuations. This is a raise of 18 1-3 cents over last year when the rate was 26 2-3 cents.

More Silos.

F. P. Sims is putting down an underground silo on his place west of town 25 feet across and 30 feet deep.

M. P. Saunders near Happy is putting down two small underground silos.

INSTITUTE FOR COUNTY TEACHERS

About 100 Randall and Deaf Smith County Teachers Will Attend Five Days Session.

The teachers institute of Randall and Deaf Smith counties will begin next Monday morning at the Normal Auditorium and continue in session for five days. Nearly 100 teachers from the two counties will attend the session which promises to be of exceptional interest. The speakers on the program have been selected largely from the members of the Normal faculty, from the Hereford and Canyon public schools and from the larger rural schools.

The day's work will begin at 9:00 o'clock and close at 4:30. The people of the city are cordially invited to attend the session of the institute.

CANYON SCHOOL TO OPEN SEPTEMBER 8

ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE BY SUPT. E. F. KING.

Assignment of Teachers for the Coming Year—Prospects for Very Successful Year.

The Canyon public school will open Monday, Sept. 8. The following is an announcement made by Superintendent E. F. King regarding the work of the year: The following assignment of teachers in the Canyon Public Schools is made for the coming session. This assignment is only tentative and is subject to change.

HIGH SCHOOL.

E. F. King, Supt., Mathematics and Science:

Mrs. Ada T. Wray, principal, English and Mathematics.

Mrs. J. M. Shifon, History and Science.

Miss May Horn, Latin and German.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

W. P. Evans, Arithmetic, History and Geography.

Miss Caroline Cass, Reading, Language and Physiology.

PRIMARY DEPARTMENT.

Miss Minnie Conner, Fourth grade.

Miss Avis Baird, Third and High Second grades.

Miss Sue Garretson, First and low Second grades.

The Canyon Public School will open for a nine month's term on Monday Sept. 8th. The session will be divided into two terms of four and one half months each. The first term will close on Jan. 10, 1914 and the second term on May 16, 1914.

The pupils are requested to meet the teachers at the high school building at 9 o'clock on Sept. 8th to receive list of needed books and to have lessons assigned for the following day. As pupils must make a complete change of books this year there will be no other work attempted on the first day of school. Parents are requested to purchase no books for children until list made out by teacher is received. Especially should those pupils not classified purchase no books before receiving this list. The books that have been in use heretofore can be exchanged for the newly adopted books. This will enable those who wish to exchange the old books for new ones to save a considerable amount of the price fixed by the state. In the past, books of the same grade had to be exchanged, that is a first reader, had to be exchanged for a first reader, a fifth reader for a fifth reader, etc. This is not so this year. Any reader may be exchanged for any other reader. All that is necessary is the books one presents for exchange must be the books that have been in use during the last year. Books that have been out of use for several years will not be taken in exchange. Neither would a reader be exchanged for a geography or an arithmetic.

On Tuesday morning, Sept. 9, the school will begin its regular work.

From what I can learn of the teachers who are to work in our school during the coming year, I feel confident that the school board has employed a strong faculty and we are looking forward to a good year's work. We hope to make it one of the best in the history of the school. I

Thank You.

Friend Warwick:

Enclosed find $1.50 which I have borrowed from a friend here who did not know me very well. Send that little rag of yours to me for another twelve months. The editorial department may not be quite as strong as Henry Waterson or the famous Grady could make it, and the news columns may not have as much state news as the Dallas News, yet this little rag chronicles the haps and mishaps of the best country and the best people on the face of the globe. All that is worrying me now is that I am afraid that I cannot get together soon enough money to get back to God's country and His people. Yes, I love 'em all, even my enemies.

F. P. Hill Killed.

Prof. J. A. Hill received the sad news of his father's death at Moody Friday evening. Mr. Hill was hauling wood when the neckyoke broke going down a steep hill. His son was just in front of him with a load and a neighbor in behind him but neither saw just how the accident occurred. The wagon run over both his neck and his chest. He was hurried to a hospital but was never able to speak although he was conscious and able to shake his head in answer to questions. He was 68 years old and next summer would have been the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hill, when all the children were planning on making a surprise trip to the old home. Prof. Hill was unable to attend the funeral but his two sisters left on hearing of the accident. The many friends of Prof. Hill and his two sisters extend sympathy in this hour of sadness.

So Many People Die of Blood Poison.

A little scratch on the hand, a splinter or abrasion of the skin is often fatal because the poisonous germs start the infection. That's where Hunts Lightning Oil comes in handy as an application on the abrasion, kills all germs which may have lodged there, thereby preventing infection and death. It pays to keep this remedy in the home, especially where there are children. All drug stores have it in 25c and 50c bottles.

The Mexican Situation.

The trouble in Mexico has developed one fact of importance in the U. S. and that is that both the Federals and Constitutionalists are firm believers in Hunt's Lightning Oil, the great American remedy for neuralgia, rheumatism, cuts, burns and other aches and pains. No wonder since it makes the pain go away almost at once. All druggists sell it in 25c and 50c bottles.

Scratching For Fun.

We would have great sympathy for those who have to scratch continually, if there wasn't a remedy for the trouble, but as Hunt's Cure is Guaranteed to cure or money refunded, it would seem that those who scratch do so just for the fun of it. It's a special remedy for Itch, Eczema, tetter, ringworm, etc.

Commissioners Proceedings.

The following were the proceedings of the commissioners court for the August term:

The road petition of D. M. Stewart and others was granted for a public road beginning at the northwest corner of section 31 and southwest corner of section 2 in block B-5 and running east one mile, the same being 40 feet wide.

Under and by authority of chapter 62 of the general laws of Texas, 32nd legislature, 1911, the commissioners court appropriated and sets aside the sum of $400.00 for the fiscal year of 1914 to be used for the county jointly with the U. S. department of agriculture, $125 of said sum to be paid out Sept. 1, 1913 and $25.00 the first of each month to the county agent of said Farmers Cooperative Demonstration Work of the U. S. department of agriculture.

This action is taken on the understanding and condition that the U. S. Department has set aside and will expend the sum of $133.33 during said fiscal year, said sum to be paid out monthly for the salary of said agent and that the Farmers Cooperative Work of the U. S. department of agriculture will direct the work of said agent under its rules and regulations for the betterment of said county. Reports are to be made by the agent of the commissioners court.

The tax levy made by the court on July 5th was found to be irregular and an order passed to set it aside. The following levy was passed:

County advalorum, 10c on each $100 valuation.
Court house and jail, 3c.
Jury fund, 2c.
Sinking fund, 8c.
Road and bridge, 7c.

A contract was made with John Begrin to put in a cement curbing along the driveway through the court house yard, the price being $100.

Reports of the various county officers were examined and approved.

W. C. Baird, J. M. Black, S. B. Lofton, J. B. Kleinschmidt and T. F. Reid were appointed a jury of review for the following road as petitioned for by Nathan Schee. Beginning at the southeast corner of section 78 and northeast corner of 83 block 6 I. & G. N. Ry. Co. lands thence west to the southwest corners of said sections, thence south two miles.

The same men were appointed to review a road as petitioned for by Cyrus Eakman beginning at the northwest corner of section 94 block 1 T. T. R. Co., and running east three miles.

The same jury will review a road petitioned for by Henry Meyer beginning at the northeast corner of section 110 and the southeast corner of section 83 in block 6 I. & G. N. Ry. Co. and running west one mile.

Live Stock Agent Here.

Col. W. P. Anderson, live stock agent for the Santa Fe, was in the city Friday getting figures on the C. O. Keiser calves which were the highest priced Texas cattle ever sold on the Kansas City Market. Col. Anderson stated that the Santa Fe wished to use these figures in their advertising matter of the Parhandle country, reinforcing the oft repeated statement that this is one of the greatest stock farming and stock breeding and feeding sections in the United States. Col. Anderson stated that he has been traveling through the north and east very extensively this summer and has heard more favorable comments on this section of the country than any other year. The fame of the Keiser calves has been advertised so extensively through the north that every stockman is familiar with the facts.

Remarkable Cure of Dysentery.

"I was attacked with dysentery about July 15th, and used the doctor's medicine and other remedies with no relief, only getting worse all the time. I used two bottles of it and it gave me permanent relief," writes B. W. Hill of Snow Hill, N. C. For sale by all dealers. (Advertisement)

Ministers Leave This Week.

The families of Revs. J. S. Groves and C. Kilbourn left yesterday for Waxahachie where they will make their future home. It was announced in the News several weeks ago that these splendid families would soon leave but it was not decided until just recently as to what town they would go. Rev. Kilbourn will continue in the missionary work as he has done during the past few months. Rev. Groves was pastor of the local Presbyterian church until advanced age forced him to give up the ministry. His son-in-law, Rev. C. Kilbourn, was called by the church and very ably served as pastor for two years when he entered the mission field of West Texas.

Costly Treatment.

"I was troubled with constipation and digestion and spent hundreds of dollars for medicine and treatment," writes C. H. Hines, of Whitlow, Ark. "I went to a St. Louis hospital, also to a hospital in New Orleans, but no cure was effected. On returning home I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets, and worked right along. I used them for some time, and am now all right." Sold by all dealers. (Advertisement)

Skunk Farm.

T. C. Sims has some skunk pens on his farm west of the city which is causing considerable interest. Three pens are built 6x16 feet with woven wire fence and woven wire under ground three feet so that the skunks cannot dig their way out. In these pens are 48 skunks which have been captured or raised on the farm. They are the long striped animal and the hides are valued from $4.00 to $5.00 each besides the oil which is produced from the bodies after the skunk has been killed for their hides. This oil has great commercial value. The skunks demand fresh meat every day and jack rabbits are killed for this purpose.

The skunk industry has gained some importance in other sections of the country and is pronounced to be a very fine money maker. It is of interest to know that this is the first and only skunk farm ever conducted in this immediate territory.

After all is said about the governor's veto of such large sums of the appropriation bill for educational purposes, and anyone who wishes to cuss the governor has had his cuss out, the men who are largely to blame for the veto are the members of the legislature. The legislature was called primarily for the purpose of passing the appropriation bill. The bill was prepared and introduced into the house the first thing in the session. The remainder of the session was spent in debating other questions rather than taking care of the main question of the session and putting it up to the governor during the session so that the legislature would have an opportunity to override the veto the governor made. In each and every session this method obtains. It is wrong and the state institutions which are greatly injured by the veto of their appropriations should largely lay the blame at the door of the legislature and all the people seek to remedy this custom which prevails regarding the appropriation bill.

COATED TONGUE MEANS LAZY LIVER

A Lazy Liver Needs a Dose of Dodson's Liver Tone—Guaranteed to Take the Place of Calomel.

When your doctor looks to see if your tongue is coated, he is trying to find out if your liver is working properly. A few years ago doctors had to prescribe calomel—there was nothing else to give. Recently in many sections of the country Dodson's Liver Tone has practically taken the place of calomel as a liver remedy. Dodson's Liver Tone is mild, pleasant tasting and harmless, which makes it a fine medicine for use when your children become bilious and constipated. But the most remarkable feature of Dodson's Liver Tone is the fact that the City Pharmacy who sells it, guarantees it absolutely. The druggist will return your money without argument if a bottle fails to give entire satisfaction. Price 50 cents. We suggest that you get a bottle today and have it ready for the next member of your family whose liver goes wrong.

The general opinion in Canyon of the governor's veto in the appropriation bill is that it might have been worse. He deprived the school of all new buildings but gave everything else asked for. Compared with the university and A. & M. college, this Normal college received very good treatment. The Normal will continue to grow in its present quarters, but the possibility of great expansion may be delayed a little for two years when the needed buildings will undoubtedly be given.

Few people in this section of the country know what dry weather really is. There have been some pretty severe years in the Panhandle country at different times but none of them would compare with the parts of Kansas that we saw while returning from Iowa last week. The corn a few weeks ago looked like it would easily make 75 to 90 bushels to the acre. Today it stands bare, just like it had been hit by a hard October freeze. Some are trying to cut a little for fodder, but the blades are so dried that it will make little feed. The leaves on the trees are drying up and falling in many places. There are large areas that are without water and no means of getting except by hauling for miles. They cannot put down deep wells owing to the salt strata. If prospects are not very bright at times, don't get discouraged, but just look around a little and you will find that the Panhandle country is not the only one that occasionally has short crops.

Gov. Colquitt's wild declarations that he is the friend of education is not taken so seriously as it was last year. He was given an opportunity to help the state educational institutions at a most critical time, but for political or other purposes, refused to do so. His actions do not correspond well with his promises.

More good houses are needed in Canyon. There is hardly a day that some man is not here looking for a home in order to take advantage of the excellent schools, but oftentimes he has to take a house that does not suit him. Good houses have always been in demand in Canyon. Some men's ideas differ as to what a good house means. The fellow who has for rent a little old three room shack with cracks in the floors and walls

DON'T TAKE CHANCES. BUY GOODS OF KNOWN QUALITY

By HOLLAND.
HISTORY is full of warnings about buying a pig in a poke. This is only another way of saying that one should buy articles of known merit—articles that will bear inspection. The manufacturer who advertises his goods thereby shows his confidence in them. He would not spend money to tell of their merits unless they had merits. His advertisement is an invitation to you to test his sincerity by testing his goods. You take no chances in purchasing goods advertised in this paper. The advertisement is a guarantee of quality. big enough to throw a cat through may say he has a good house. There are many such kind for rent in Canyon. What Canyon needs is a large number of medium sized substantial houses. They will always be occupied and the good houses will always demand a good rent.

 want to take this opportunity to ask for the co-operation of every man, woman and child in Canyon to the end that we may have the most successful year possible. I have been told that the people of Canyon are very little given to faultfinding. If this be true, then Canyon is where I want to continue to live. However, we invite friendly criticism of our school work at all times, something that will be helpful. The right kind of criticism is not finding fault with one's efforts, but by pointing out errors and commending strong points, helping that one to improve. Besides, faultfinding usually does very little good in any line. We hope to have the patrons of the school visit the different rooms often and observe the work being done. Reports will be given to pupils at the end of each month and parents are asked to read carefully these reports and to commend the diligent and faithful and to stimulate and encourage the careless and indifferent. A meeting of the faculty is hereby called at the High School building for Saturday, Sept. 6, at 10 o'clock a. m. Very respectfully,
 E. F. King, Superintendent.

If you are not doing good work find the cause. One of the most frequent causes of dullness is school work or other mental labor is eye strain. If your nerves give you trouble it is probably due to unconscious eye strain. Your eyes may be under strain without you realizing the fact. What is a good light for others may not be sufficient for you. Some people require twice as much light as others for comfortable study. If you are not doing good work try a better light. HOME OF THE PLAIN BUZZARD

It is in the Grounds of the Zoo at Washington, but They're Not Captive Birds.

If one is interested in plain buzzards, a family, and a more or less happy family, may be observed in the grounds of the zoo. No, they are not captive birds and their reasons for choosing the zoo as a home are not clear to any ordinary observers, but anybody deeply interested in this subject might ask the parrots. Perhaps the buzzards argued that as long as eagles, hawks and owls lived contentedly and securely at the zoo and made no complaint about rations, it might also be a good place for buzzards. It may be that they reasoned that the zoo is a good place and a safe place to gloat over such aristocrats of the air as eagles and hawks and by taking up quarters in the same neighborhood they could "rub it in" on proud and scornful birds that had always looked down on them as mere buzzards. However, it is likely that the principal thought in the minds of buzzards was that here is a denceedly comfortable and commodious dead tree and there seems to be plenty of good eating in the vicinity.

Down Klingie road, after passing Rosemont avenue, one may see an opening in the wire fence of the zoo and the sign "To the foot bridge." The path will lead over the knob of a hill and down a very steep hill covered with dead oak leaves and thickly strewn with loose stones. At the foot of the hill this path leads to a gate opening on an old road, and once a saddle path, but now closed, which rambles along the east side of Rock creek.

Here is the foot bridge that crosses to the main traveled way of the zoo, the main road which connects with Beach drive in Rock Creek park. You should not pass out through this gate into the old road, but keep inside the wire mesh fence and walk south. It is rough traveling, across deep ravines and over stony, mossy hillsides, all grown with oak and some beech. Near the north fence of the elk inclosure, and where seven elk with soft eyes and alert ears will stare at you, you should notice a tall oak tree that is dead. Here is the buzzards' home.

The buzzards will probably guide you to it, for they seem to be home-keeping birds, and though they fly high above their quarters they do not stray far away. The condition of the ground—strewn with buzzard feathers—will tell you that the big birds roost there. Over the ground are scattered many bones. Many of them came out of butchers' meat, for they have sawed ends. Where the buzzards picked them up—well, ask the buzzards.

There is tremendous activity in the old dead oak tree early in the morning and as the sun is setting. The birds circle high before settling down for the night and on arising they rise high.

WASHINGTON WELL POLICED

Capital Has More Blue Coats Than Any Other City of the Same Size.

Police statistics, compiled by the bureau of the census, show that Washington has a larger number of patrolmen in proportion to population than any other city of comparable number of inhabitants.

The number of police in proportion to land area, which is considered by police officers a just basis for determining the need of most American cities for police protection, is smaller in the district than in many other municipalities of similar population.

The number of policemen in proportion to the number of miles of streets, according to statistics of 1907, contained in the report of the census bureau for the thirteenth decennial census—that of 1910—shows that the District has more policemen than any other city of the country except New York, Philadelphia, Boston, and Baltimore.

The District is regarded as presenting different problems than those of any other municipality. As the seat of the federal government, it, of course, occupies a unique position. Its population, composed in large part of government employes, is similarly unique. Its wide streets and large park areas make its territory almost equally unique.

IN THE CAPITOL GROUNDS

She Met the Friend She Expected, Even Though It Was a Rainy Day.

It was raining "daffodils," and no one was in the capitol grounds except one woman who was scurrying along a path that squirmed like a wet eel through the crystal showered grass.

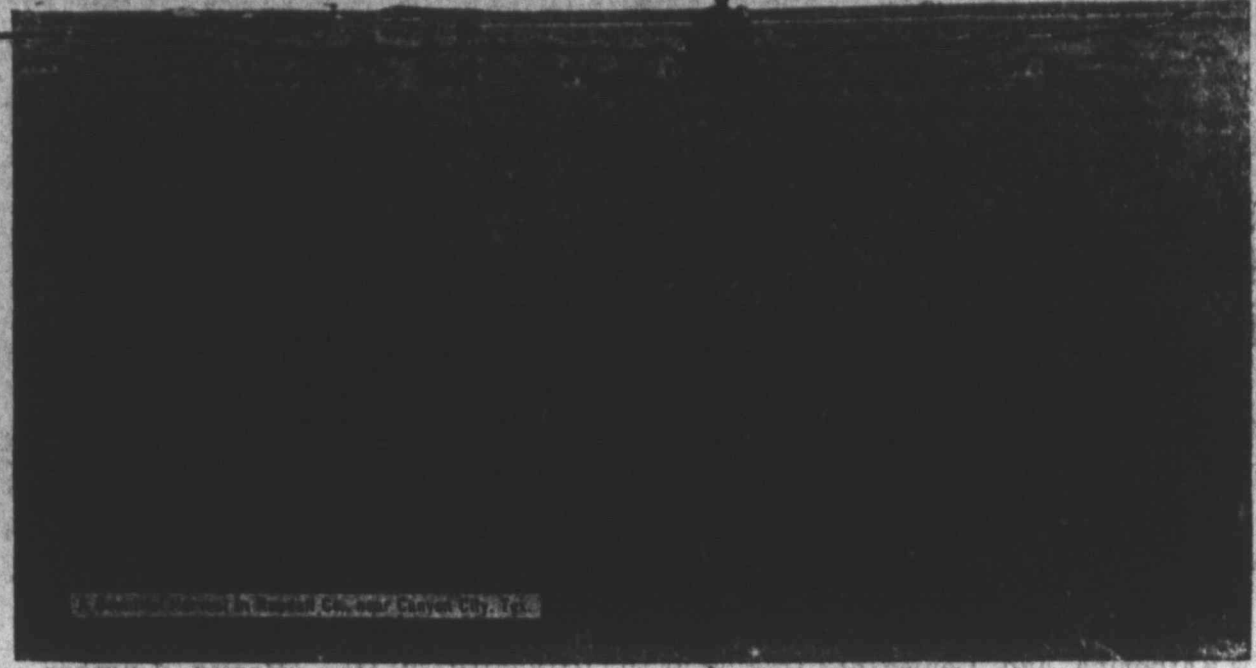

And, as she scurried, she looked over the grass and up the trees as if, somehow, she were expecting a friend. But the grass was so much soppy-green silence and the trees were nothing but frizzled pinches of foliage and occasional birds—mostly sparrows.

Then the woman paused long enough to take a pecan from her raincoat pocket and toss it on the grass. The nut had barely touched the ground before a squirrel flashed out from the rainy nowhere, grabbed the pecan and settled back on its haunches. The woman waved her hand and called out as she scurried on:

"Ta-ta, see you tomorrow."

The squirrel had no time for social amenities. He was too busy eating. But the woman was entirely satisfied. She knew the small thing had been expecting her.

And that is enough to ask of any squirrel.

THE PRODIGAL JUDGE

By VAUGHAN KESTER
Illustrations By D. MELVILLE

It might have baffled a far more mature intelligence than Hannibal's to comprehend those peculiar processes by which the judge sustained himself and his intimate fellowship with adversity—that it was his magnificence of mind which made the qualor of his daily life seem merely a passing phase—but the boy had managed to point a delicate distinction, and Betty grasped something of the hope and faith which never quite died out in Stocum Price's indomitable breast.

"But you always have enough to eat, dear?" she questioned anxiously. Hannibal promptly reassured her on this point. "You wouldn't let me think anything that was not true, Hannibal—you are quite sure you have never been hungry?"

"Never, Miss Betty; honest!" Betty gave a sigh of relief. She had been reproaching herself for her neglect of the child; she had meant to do so much for him and had done nothing! Now it was too late for her personally to interest herself in his behalf, yet before she left for the east she would provide for him. If she had felt it was possible to trust the judge she would have made him her agent, but even in his best aspect he seemed a dubious dependence. Tom, for quite different reasons, was equally out of the question. She thought of Mr. Mahaffy.

"What kind of a man is Mr. Mahaffy, Hannibal?"

"He's an awful nice man, Miss Betty, only he never lets on; a body's got to find it out for his own self—he ain't like the judge."

"Does he—drink, too, Hannibal?" questioned Betty.

"Oh, yes; when he can get the hicker, he does." It was evident that Hannibal was cheerfully tolerant of this weakness on the part of the austere Mahaffy. By this time Betty was ready to weep over the child, with his knowledge of shabby vice, and his fresh young faith in those old tattered demmons.

"But, no matter what they do, they are very, very kind to you?" she continued tremulously.

"Yes, ma'am—why, Miss Betty, they're lovely men!"

"And do you ever hear the things spoken of you learned about at Mrs. Ferris' Sunday-school?"

"When the judge is drunk he talks a heap about 'em. It's beautiful to hear him then; you'd love it, Miss Betty," and Hannibal smiled up sweetly into her face.

"Does he have you go to Sunday-school in Raleigh?"

The boy shook his head.

"I ain't got no clothes that's fitten to wear, nor no pennies to give, but the judge, he lows that as soon as he can make a raise I got to go, and he's learning me my letters—but we ain't a book. Miss Betty, I reckon it'd stump you some to guess how he's fixed it for me to learn?"

"He's drawn the letters for you, is that the way?" In spite of herself, Betty was experiencing a certain revulsion of feeling where the judge and Mahaffy were concerned. They were doubtless bad enough, but they could have been worse.

"No, ma'am; he done soaked the label off one of Mr. Pegloe's whisky bottles and pasted it on the wall just as high as my chin, so's I can see it good, and he's learning me that-a-way! Maybe you've seen the kind of bottle I mean—Pegloe's Mississippi Pilot; Pure Corn Whisky." But Hannibal's bright little face fell. He was quick to see that the educational system devised by the judge did not impress Betty at all favorably. She drew him into her arms.

"You shall have my books—the books I learned to read out of when I was a little girl, Hannibal!"

"I like learning from the label pretty well," said Hannibal loyally.

"But you'll like the books better, dear, when you see them. I know just where they are, for I happened on them on a shelf in the library only the other day."

After they had found and examined the books and Hannibal had grudgingly admitted that they might possess certain points of advantage over the label, he and Betty went out for a walk. It was now late afternoon and the sun was sinking behind the wall of the forest that rose along the Arkansas coast. Their steps had led them to the terrace—where they stood looking off into the west. It was here that Betty had said good-by to Bruce Carrington—it might have been months ago, and it was only days. She thought of Charley—Charley, with his youth and hope and high courage—unwittingly enough she had led him on to his death! A sob rose in her throat.

Hannibal looked up into her face. The memory of his own loss was never very long absent from his mind, and Miss Betty had been the victim of a similarly sinister tragedy. He recalled those first awful days of loneliness through which he had lived, when there was no Uncle Bob—soft-voiced, smiling and infinitely companionable.

"Why, Hannibal, you are crying—what about, dear?" asked Betty suddenly.

"No, ma'am; I ain't crying," said Hannibal stoutly, but his wet lashes gave the lie to his words.

"Are you homesick—do you wish to go back to the judge and Mr. Mahaffy?"

"No, ma'am—it ain't that—I was just thinking—"

"Thinking about what, dear?"

"About my Uncle Bob." The small face was very wistful.

"Oh—and you still miss him so much, Hannibal?"

"I bet I do—I reckon anybody who knew Uncle Bob would never get over missing him; they just couldn't, Miss Betty! The judge is mighty kind, and so is Mr. Mahaffy—they're awful kind, Miss Betty, and it seems like they get kinder all the time—but with Uncle Bob, when he liked you, he just laid himself out to let you know it!"

"That does make a great difference, doesn't it?" agreed Betty sadly, and two piteous tearful eyes were bent upon him.

"Don't you reckon if Uncle Bob is alive, like the judge says, and he's ever going to find me, he had ought to be here by now?" continued Hannibal anxiously.

"But it hasn't been such a great while, Hannibal; it's only that so much has happened to you. It he was very badly hurt it may have been weeks before he could travel; and then when he could, perhaps he went back to that tavern to try to learn what had become of you. But we may be quite certain he will never abandon his search until he has made every possible effort to find you, dear! That means he will sooner or later come to west Tennessee, for there will always be the hope that you have found your way here."

"Sometimes I get mighty tired waiting, Miss Betty," confessed the boy. "Seems like I just couldn't wait no longer—" He sighed gently, and then his face cleared. "You reckon he'll come most any time, don't you, Miss Betty?"

"Yes, Hannibal; any day or hour!"

"Whoop!" muttered Hannibal softly under his breath. Presently he asked: "Where does that branch take you to?" He nodded toward the bayou at the foot of the terraced bluff.

"It empties into the river," answered Betty.

Hannibal saw a small skiff beached among the cottonwoods that grew along the water's edge and his eyes lighted up instantly. He had a juvenile passion for boats.

"Why, you got a boat, ain't you, Miss Betty?" This was a charming and an important discovery.

"Would you like to go down to it?" inquired Betty.

"Deed I would! Does she leak any, Miss Betty?"

"I don't know about that. Do boats usually leak, Hannibal?"

"Why, you ain't ever been out rowing her, Miss Betty, have you?—and there ain't no better fun than rowing a boat!" They had started down the path.

"I used to think that, too, Hannibal; how do you suppose it is that when people grow up they forget all about the really nice things they might do?"

"What use is she if you don't go rowing in her?" persisted Hannibal.

"Oh, but it is used. Mr. Tom uses it in crossing to the other side where they are clearing land for cotton. It saves him a long walk or ride about the head of the bayou."

"Like I should take you out in her, Miss Betty?" demanded Hannibal with palpitating anxiety.

They had entered the scattering timber when Betty paused suddenly with a startled exclamation, and Hannibal felt her fingers close convulsively about his. The sound she had heard might have been only the rustling of the wind among the branches overhead in that shadowy silence, but Betty's nerves, the placid nerves of youth and perfect health, were shattered.

"Didn't you hear something, Hannibal?" she whispered fearfully.

For answer Hannibal pointed mysteriously, and glancing in the direction he indicated, Betty saw a woman advancing along the path toward them. The look of alarm slowly died out of his eyes.

"I think it's the overseer's niece," she told Hannibal, and they kept on toward the boat.

The girl came rapidly up the path, which closely followed the irregular line of the shore in its windings. Once she was seen to stop and glance back over her shoulder, her attitude intent and listening, then she hurried forward again. Just at the boat she three met.

"Good evening!" said Betty pleasantly.

The girl made no reply to this; she merely regarded Betty with a fixed stare. At length she broke the silence abruptly.

"I got something I want to say to you—you know who I am, I reckon?" She was a girl of about Betty's own age, with a certain dark, sullen beauty and that physical attraction which

"You Needn't Be Afraid, I Got Something Important to Say."

Tom, in spite of his vexed mood, had taken note of earlier in the day.

"You are Bess Hicks," said Betty. "Make the boy go back toward the house a spell—I got something I want to say to you." Betty hesitated. She was offended by the girl's manner, which was as rude as her speech. "I ain't going to hurt you—you needn't be afraid of me. I got something important to say—send him off, I tell you, there ain't no time to lose!" The girl stamped her foot impatiently.

Betty made a sign to Hannibal and he passed slowly back along the path. He went unwillingly, and he kept his head turned that he might see what was done, even if he were not to hear what was said.

"That will do, Hannibal—wait there—don't go any farther!" Betty called after him when he had reached a point sufficiently distant to be out of hearing of a conversation carried on in an ordinary tone. "Now, what is it? Speak quickly if you have anything to tell me!"

"I got a heap to say," answered the girl with a scowl. Her manner was still fierce and repellent, and she gave Betty a certain jealous regard out of her black eyes which the latter was at a loss to explain. "Where's Mr. Tom?" she demanded.

"Tom? Why, about the place, I suppose—in his office, perhaps." So it had to do with Tom. Betty felt sudden disgust with the situation.

"No, he ain't about the place, either! He done struck out for Memphis two hours after sun-up, and what's more, he ain't coming back here to-night—" There was a moment of silence. The girl looked about apprehensively. She continued, fixing her black eyes on Betty: "You're here done at Belle Plain—you know what happened when Mr. Tom started for Memphis last time—I reckon you ain't for it, that!"

Betty felt a pallor steal over her face. She rested a hand that shook on the trunk of a tree to steady herself. The girl laughed shortly.

"Don't be so scared; I reckon Belle Plain's as good as his if anything happened to you!"

By a great effort Betty gained a measure of control over herself. She took a step nearer and looked the girl steadily in the face.

"Perhaps you will stop this sort of talk, and tell me what is going to happen to me—if you know?" she said quietly.

"Why do you reckon Mr. Norton was shot? I can tell you why—it was all along of you—that was why!" The girl's furtive glance, which searched and watched the gathering shadows, came back as it always did to Betty's pale face. "You ain't no safer than he was, I tell you!" and she sucked in her breath sharply between her full red lips.

"What do you mean?" faltered Betty.

"Do you reckon you're safe here in the big house alone? Why do you reckon Mr. Tom cleared out for Memphis? It was because he couldn't be around and have anything happen to you—that was why!" and the girl sank her voice to a whisper. "You quit Belle Plain now—tonight—just as soon as you can!"

"This is absurd—you are trying to frighten me!"

"Did they stop with trying to frighten Charley Norton?" demanded Bess, with harsh insistence.

Whatever the promptings that inspired this warning, they plainly had nothing to do with either liking or sympathy. Her dominating emotion seemed to be a sullen sort of resentment which lit up her glance with a dull fire; yet her feelings were so clearly and so keenly personal that Betty understood the motive that had brought her there. The explanation, she found, left her wondering just where and how her own fate was linked with that of this poor white.

"You have been waiting some time to see me?" she asked.

"Ever since about noon."

"You were afraid to come to the house?"

"I didn't want to be seen there."

"And yet you knew I was alone."

"Alone—but how do you know who's watching the place?"

"Do you think there was reason to be afraid of that?" asked Betty.

Again the girl stamped her foot with angry impatience.

"You're just wastin' time—just foolin' it away—and you ain't got none to spare!"

"You must tell me what I have to fear—I must know more or I shall stay just where I am!"

"Well, then, stay!" The girl turned away, and then as quickly turned back and faced Betty once more. "I reckon he'd kill me if he knew—I reckon I've earned that already—"

"Of whom are you speaking?"

"He'll have you away from here to-night!"

"He? . . . who . . . and what if I refuse to go?"

"Did they ask Charley Norton whether he wanted to live or die?" came the sinister question.

A shiver passed through Betty. She was seeing it all again—Charley as he groped among the graves with the hand of death heavy upon him.

A moment later she was alone. The girl had disappeared. There were only the shifting shadows as the wind tossed the branches of the trees, and the bands of golden light that slanted along the empty path. The fear of the unknown leaped up afresh in Betty's soul; in an instant flying feet had borne her to the boy's side.

"Come—come quick, Hannibal!" she gasped out, and seized his hand.

"What is it, Miss Betty? What's the matter?" asked Hannibal as they fled panting up the terraces.

"I don't know—only we must get away from here just as soon as we can!" Then, seeing the look of alarm on the child's face, she added more quietly, "Don't be frightened, dear, only we must get away from Belle Plain at once." But where they were to go, she had not considered.

Reaching the house, they stole to Betty's room. Her well-filled purse was the important thing; that, together with some necessary clothing, went into a small hand-bag.

"You must carry this, Hannibal; if any one sees us leave the house they'll think it something you are taking away," she explained. Hannibal nodded understandingly.

"Don't you trust your niggers, Miss Betty?" he whispered as they went from the room.

"I only trust you, dear!"

"What makes you go? Was it something that woman told you? Are they coming after us, Miss Betty? Is it Captain Murrell?"

"Captain Murrell?" There was less of mystery now, but more of terror, and her hand stole up to her heart, and, white and slim, rested against the black fabric of her dress.

"Don't you be scared, Miss Betty!" said Hannibal.

They went silently from the house, and again crossed the lawn to the terrace. Under the leafy arch which canopied them there was already the deep purple of twilight.

"Do you reckon it were Captain Murrell shot Mr. Norton, Miss Betty?" asked Hannibal in a shuddering whisper.

"Hush—Oh, hush, Hannibal! It is too awful to even speak of— and, sobbing and half hysterical, she covered her face with her hands.

"But where are we going, Miss Betty?" asked the boy.

"I don't know, dear!" She had an agonizing sense of the night's approach and of her own utter helplessness.

"Till tell you what, Miss Betty, let's go to the judge and Mr. Mahaffy!" said Hannibal.

"Judge Price?" She had not thought of him as a possible protector.

"Why, Miss Betty, ain't I told you he ain't afraid of nothing? We could walk to Raleigh easy if you don't want your niggers to hook up a team for you."

Betty suddenly remembered the carriage which had taken the judge into town; she was sure it had not yet returned.

"We will go to the judge, Hannibal! George, who drove him into Raleigh, has not come back; if we hurry we may meet him on the road."

Screened by the thick shadows, they passed up the path that edged the bayou; at the head of the inlet they entered a clearing, and crossing

IS IT YOUR KIDNEYS?

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Canyon Citizen Gives a Valuable Hint.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is where danger often lies. You should realize that these troubles often lead to dropsy or Bright's disease. An effective remedy for weak or diseased kidneys is Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the experience of a Canyon resident who has tested Doan's.

T. A. Ridgway, farmer, Canyon, Texas, says: "I suffered from too frequent and profuse passage of the kidney secretions. Since using Doan's Kidney Pills I have much better control over my kidney action. I can recommend this remedy highly for weak kidneys."
