NORMAL DEFEATS

FAST GAME ON LOCAL GROUNDS MONDAY AFTERNOON.

Conner Out of Game And Open Football Tried But Little During The Contest.

The Normal defeated the fast Seth Ward Methodist college team from Plainview Monday in a fast game on the local grounds by a score of 12 to 0. Starr proved to be the greatest ground gainer for the local, getting away for 58 yards in six runs around end Shotwell carried the ball 25 yards, Mede 28 and Prichard 19. The forward pass was used by the Normal successfully only twice and failed five times. Only 25 yards were made by this method.

The game was fast but there were more ranglings than usual among the officials over rules, and this greatly marred the interest of the game.

Conner was unable to be in the game on account of a lame back and Shotwell played at quarter. He played a good game, but tried only a few open plays which have been so effective against other teams met this sea-

Seth Ward has a strong team and were confident of winning the Panhandle championship this year, but were entirely outclassed by the locals. They tried the forward pass five times, two of which were successful and netted them 40 yards. They were penalized 35 yards during the game while the locals lost 20 yards by this method.

The first score came in 4 minutes and 40 seconds and was the result of six plays made by the locals. The ball was rushed 55 yards across the field. Goal failed. Seth Ward rushed the ball to the Normal 20 yard line and there lost it. The Normal started in with another rush and made another touchdown but failed at goal.

SANTA FE TRAIN COMING TUESDAY

EDUCATIONAL SPECIAL HERE FROM 9 TO 11 O'CLOCK.

Interesting Features for Men and Women Alike-All Randall County Cordially Invited.

Freighted with messages as terse, clear-cut and important, the Santa Fe System's Educational Special will arrive in Canyon, Tuesday November 18, remaining here between the hours of 9 and 11 o'clock in the fore-

During this time, the party of lecturers and demonstrators will be busy telling and showing our people (some of them are from Missouri), how to make advancements along the several lines of highly commendable en-

Getting away from the oneidea train, this special comes with a multiplicity of ideas, suggestions, rules and recipes, all of which have been tried and found worthy at the end of exhaustive tests.

Once, trains operated for the purpose of carrying lecturers and demonstrational equipment took cognizance solely of farm production-talking to farmers, and looking to an increase in tonnage, but this is changed, and the Educational Special is featuring a department exclusively for women and girls. This department is under the direction and management of Misses Lowen and Stoltzfus of the University of Texas. These young women will happier homes -homes administered more efficiently and with expenditure of less time, labor and money. Every woman and girl in Canyon and Randall county is not only cordially invited, but urged to be present.

While the ladies are having an inning, and that on an a scale never before contemplated on a demonstration train in this section of the country, it is not to be inferred that the farm topics have been omitted, for such is not the case. More than ever before have the needs of the farmer been understood and anticipated. Experts have been brought together with the one idea of setting before the producers of the World's wealth, ways and means through which greater abundance may be shown from the efforts of those engaged in agricultural lines.

No minute of the time will be lost, but each and every department will have its turn at the wheels of progress, so that when the train shall have passed on its way to the next point of its missionary endeavor, our people will be able of truth to say: 'Our time has been profitable spent-we have been benefitted by reason of the train's visita-

To miss this train, is to have real cause for regret. It comes to us without money and without price, simply requesting that we be present and avail ourselves of its offerings.

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

During the winter months especially, when we live an indoor life, the kidneys should receive some assistance when needed, as we take less exercise, drink less water and often, eat more rich heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, annoying bladder troubles, smarting or burning, brick-dust or sediment, sallow complexion, rheumatism, may be weak or irregular heat action, warns you that your kidneys require help immedlately to avoid more serious trouble.

Tell the People The Price

By HOLLAND.

ONE of the first questions asked when the question of buying goods comes up is, "What does it cost?" The man who is to pay the bill wants to know what that bill will be. The price is also a very good line on quality. Sane men know that goods are not offered at prices away below their value unless there is a good reason for the sacrifice.

. Consequently the curiosity regarding the price is legitimate and should be satisfied. The man looking for a house and able to pay only $20 a month rent is not interested in one that rents for $50, no matter how fine it is or how great a bargain. He would be wasting his time going to inspect such a residence.

Conversely, the man who is able and willing to pay $50 a month rent for a house would not care to look at one offered for $10.

Whether buying eggs, shoes. molasses, nails, toothpicks or automobiles, the buyer wants to know the price-that is, if he expects to pay the bill, and merchants do not care to sell goods to the man who has no such intention.

Bearing this in mind, the advertiser should not be afraid to quote prices. The price will have to be told some time. Why keep it a secret?

PETRIFIED FALLS IN ALGERIA

Remarkable Mineral Formation Which Puzzles Scientists Called "The Bath of the Damned."

With all the beauty of a cataract of living water, there is in Algeria a remarkable petrified waterfall which recently has been engaging the attention of scientists.

This is the Hammam-Meskhutin. which means "The Bath of the Damned," and is located 62 miles from Constantine, on the site of the ancient town of Cirta. This solidified cascade is the production of calcareous deposits from sulphurous and ferruginous mineral springs, issuing from the depths of the earth at a temperature of 95 degrees Centigrade.

"The Bath of the Damned," even from a near viewpoint, looks for all the world like a great wall of water dashing into a swirling pool at its foot, yet its gleaming, graceful curves and the apparently swirling eddies at its base are as fixed and immovable as if carved from the face of a granite cliff.

Many centuries have, of course, gone to the making of the deposits, and the springs were well known to the ancient Romans. The name Hammam-Meskhutin was given to the stone cataract in an allusion to a legend that the waterfall was petrified by Allah, punishing the impiety of unbelievers by turning all the members of a tribe into stone. At night, so the story runs, its stone dwellers of the remote past are freed from their strange fetters, come to life and resume their normal shapes.

LIQUOR CAUSE OF TRAGEDY

Philanthropist—Can you not from your own personal experience recall tragic deaths due directly to liquor? Tramp—I kin. One time me an me partner, on a long an weary journey—lookin for work, ye know—found two big bottles of whisky. We each took one, an we strapped em about our necks for convenience in carryin. Our pockets was worn out."

"Yes, yes—go on."

"Well, we come to a bridge with a rotten plank, an' both went through, an' me partner was drowned. Yes, sir, that there big bottle full o' whisky weighed so heavy he just sank like a stone. Poor pard! He was as fine a man as ever—"

"But you had a bottle about your aeck, too."
"I'd emptied mine."

One Black Sheep Needed,

A revival of religion was in prog-John were coal dealers. John was the first to come under the influence of very eloquent preaching. He was honest and sincere about it and joined the church. A week later Paul was influenced to abandon the world and the flesh, and he, to, became an enthusiastic suporter of the good work. Peter, however, held aloof from the meetings. None of the invitations of neighbors or brothers seemed to have any effect. Finally the clergyman called and made a personal appeal. Peter was rough and ignorant and a little inclined to profanity, but honest and frank in speech if not in act. He finally clinched his negative arguments with the clergyman when in reply to a question he said: "John has become a Christian and Paul has become a Christian and if I join your church who the-, excuse me, parson, will weigh the coal!"

When Joaquin Miller, the Poet of the Sierras, edited the Eugene Register, he ran a joke column that is still remembered among Eugene vet-

"Miller," said an aged Eugenist, "used to like to roast the coal man. Thus, I remember how, in a description of a wedding, he once wrote:

"The presents offered the bride were unusually sumptuous and abundant. Consipcuous among them was a ton of coal. This won general admiration and approval by reason of its quaint, old-fashioned massiveness, it being much heavier than the tons of coal of the present day."

Lobsters That Do Not Boil Red.
Native French lobsters are growing scarce as the result of a series of epidemics, and an attempt is being made to introduce those from Roumania, Hungary and Russia. But these foreign lobsters have little flesh on them and turn a dull color when they are boiled.

To give them if possible the attractive scarlet tint, appetizing odor and delicious taste of the native Professor Leger is making researches in his laboratory of piscicultured in the University of Grenoble, and he hopes, in naturalizing the foreign species, to give them some at least of the French characteristics.

Weish Descended From Noah.

The smaller a nation the longer the pedigree of the native. Thus every Scotsman of decent lineage is descended from the Bruce, every Irishman from the Red Kings and every Welshman from Noah. The last claim has been made for the family of the late Lord Tredegar. Coxe, writing in 1800, when touring in Monmouthshire, wrote that "fanciful genealogists derived the origin of the Morgans from the third son of Noah," but that there was a division of opinion in favor of

"When you sit in a cell for three months waiting for your trial, as I did, you think a lot. And so I got the idea that if I could talk to you I might be able to make you understand what's really wrong. And if I could do that and so help out the other girls, what has happened to me would not, after all, be quite so awful-so useless, somehow." Her voice lowered to a quick pleading, and she bent toward the man at the desk. "Mr. Gilder," she questioned, "do you really want to stop Give them a living chance to get enough food to eat and a decent room to sleep in and shoes that will keep their feet off the pavement winter mornings. Do you think that any girl wants to steal? Do you think that any girl wants to risk"-

By this time, however, Gilder had regained his power of speech, and he interrupted stormily:

"And is this what you have taken up my time for? You want to make a maudiin plea for guilty, dishonest girls, when I thought you really meant to bring me facts!" "We work nine hours a day," the girl's quiet voice went on, a curious pathos in the rich timbre of it, "nine hours a day for six days in the week. That's a fact, isn't it? And the trouble is an honest girl can't live on $6 a week. She can't do it and buy food

"And then I thought that perhaps you did not understand-that, if I were to tell you how things really are, it might be you would change them somehow."

"I!" he cried incredulously. "I change my business policy because you ask me to!'

There was something imperturbable in the quality of the voice as the girl went resolutely forward with her explanation.

"Do you know how we girls live? But, of course, you don't. Three of us in one room, doing our own cooking over the two burner gas stove and our own washing and ironing evenings. after being on our feet for nine hours." "I have provided chairs behind the counters," he stated.

"But have you ever seen a girl sitting in one of them?" she questioned "Please answer me. Have pectantly, with aggressive inquiry in you? Of course not," she said, after a little pause during which the owner had remained silent. She shook her riously. "I never stole anything in do you understand why? It's simply because every girl knows that the manager of her department would think he could get along without her if he were to see her sitting downloafing, you know! So she would be discharged. All it amounts to is that after being on her feet for nine hours the girl usually walks home in order to pleasure. "Why did you send that save car fare. Yes, she walks, whether sick or well. Anyhow, you are generally so tired, it don't make much difference which you are."

Inferno. HE inexorable voice went on in its monotone, as if he had not spoken.

"And when you are really sick and have to stop work what are you going to do then? Do you know. Mr. Gilder, that the first time a straight girl steals it's often because she had to have a doctor-or some luxury like that? And some of them do worse than steal. that-that"-"I'm not their guardian. I can't watch over them after they leave the store. They are paid the current rate of wages-as much as any other store pays." As he spoke the anger provoked by this unexpected assault on him out of the mouth of a convict flamed high in virtuous repudiation. "Why," he went on vehemently, "no man living does more for his employses than I do Who gave the girls their fine rest rooms upstairs? I did! Who gave them the cheap lunchrooms?

"But you won't pay them enough to

"I pay them the same as the other stores do," be repeated sullenly.

"But you won't pay them enough to live on!" "And so you claim that you were forced to steal. That's the plea you make for yourself and your friends." "I wasn't forced to steal," came the answer, spoken in the monotone that had marked her utterance throughout most of the interview. "I wasn't forced to steal, and I didn't steal. But, all the same, that's the plea, as you call it, that I'm making for the other girls. There are hundreds of them who steal because they don't get enough to eat. I said I would tell you how to stop the stealing. Well, I have done it. Give the girls a fair chance to be honest. You asked me for the names, Mr. Gilder. There's only one name on which to put the blame for the whole business, and that name is Edward Gilder!

Now, won't you do something about

At that naked question the owner of the store jumped up from his chair and stood glowering at the girl who risked a request so full of vituperation against

"How dare you speak to me like this?" be thundered.

"Why. I dared," Mary Turner explained, "because you have done all the harm you can to me. And now I'm trying to give you the chance to do better by the others. You ask me why I dare. I have a right to dare. I have been straight all my life. I have wanted decent food and warm clothes and a little happiness all the time I have worked for you, and I have gone without those things just to stay straight. The end of it all is, you are sending me to prison for something I didn't do. That's why I dare!"

Gilder could not trust himself just then to an audible command. He was seriously disturbed by the gently spoken truths that had issued from the girl's lips. He was not prepared with any answer, though he hotly resented every word of her accusation.

Cassidy faced about, and in his movement there was a tug at the wrist of the girl that set ber moving toward the door. Her realization of what this meant was shown in her final speech.

.The girl thrust forth her left hand. on that side where stood the officer-So vigorous was her movement that Cassidy's clasp was thrown off the wrist. But the bond between the two was not broken, for from wrist to wrist showed taut the steel chain of the manacles. The girl shook the links of the handcuffs in a gesture stronger than words.

"You are going to pay me for this!" she said. Her voice was little more than a whisper, but it was loud in the listener's heart "Yes, you are going to pay-for this!"

They were grim years, those three years during which Mary Turner serv ed her sentence in Curnsing. There was no time off for good behavior. "Aggie!" was the reply. In the time that followed Mary lived in the flat which Aggie Lynch occupied with her brother, Jim 'a pickpocket much esteemed among his fellow craftsmen. The period wrought transformations of a radical and bewilder: ing sort in both the appearance and the character of the girl.

Joe Garson, the forger, had long been acquainted with Aggie and her brother, though he considered them far beneath bim in the social scale, since their criminal work was not of that high kind on which he prided himself. But as he cast about for some woman to whom he might take the hapless girl he had rescued his thoughts fell on Aggie. > CHAPTER V. Keeping Within the Law. ARY'S heart leaped at the possibility back of those three might do anything, seek any revenge, work any evil, enjoy any mastery as long as she should keep within the law. There could be no punishment then. That was the lesson taught by the captain in high finance. He was at pains always in his stopendous robberies to keep within the law. To that end he employed lawyers of mighty cunning and learning to guidehis steps aright in such tortuous paths.

There, then, was the secret. Why should she not use the like means? Why, indeed? She had brains enough to devise, surely, Beyond that she needed only to keep her course most carefully within those limits of wrongdoing permitted by the statutes. The sole requirement would be a lawyer equally unscrupulous and astute.

She took Joe Garson into her confidence. He was vastly astonished at. the outset and not quite pleased. To his view this plan offered merely a fashion of setting difficulties in the way of achievement.

Presently, however, the sincerity and persistence of the girl won him over The task of convincing him would have been easier had he himself even truction by the satyr. known the torment of serving a term in prison. Thus far, however, the forger had always escaped the penalty of a compelling sort as she set them He showered every gallant attention forth in detail, and Garson agreed that the experiment should be made.

An agreement was made by which Joe Garson and certain of his more trusted intimates in the underworld were to put themselves under the ortheir activities. Furthermore, they bound themselves not to engage in any devious business without her consent. Aggle, too, was one of the company thus constituted, but she figured little in the preliminary discussions, since neither Mary nor the forger had much respect for the intellectual capabilities of the adventuress, though they appre clated to the full ber remarkable pow ers of influencing men to her will

It was not difficult to find a lawyer suited to the necessities of the under taking. Mary selected Sigismund Harris, an attorney, just in the prime of his mental vigors, who possessed a knowledge of the law only to be equaled by his disrespect for it.

Forthwith the scheme was set in operation. As a first step Mary Turner became a young lady of independent fortune, who had living with her a vital to her that she said nothing of cousin. Miss Agues Lynch. The flat was abandoned. In its stead was an apartment in the Nineties on Riverside drive, in which the ladies lived alone with two maids to serve them.

Garson had rooms in the neighbor bood, but Jim Lynch, who persistently refused the conditions of such an alliance, betook himself afar, to continue his reckless gathering of other folk's money in such wise as to make him amenable to the law the very first time be should be caught at it.

A few tentative ventures resulted in profits so large that the company grew mightly enthusiastic over the novel nanner of working. -The event established Mary as the arbiter in her own coterie. She next decided that a certain General Hastings would make an excellent sacrifice on the altar of justice-and to her own financial profit. His ardor cooled suddenly when Harris served a summons in a suit for $10,000 damages for breach of promise.

Even while this affair was still in the course of execution Mary found herself engaged in a direction that offered at least the hope of attaining her great desire-revenge against Edward Gilder. This opportunity came in the person of his son, Dick. After much contriving, she got an introduction to that young man. Forthwith she show ed herself so deliciously womanly, so intelligent, so daintily feminine, so singularly beautiful that the young man was enamored almost at once. The fact thrilled Mary to the depths of her beart, for in this son of the man whom she hated she saw the instrument of vengeance for which she had so longed. Yet this one thing was so her purposes, not even to Aggie, though that observant person may have possessed suspicions more or less near the truth.

It was some such suspicion that lay behind her speech as, in negligee, she sat smoking a cigarette, while watching Mary, who was adjusting her hat before the mirror of her dressing table one pleasant spring morning.

Say, he told me they've got a mat at the door with 'Welcome' on it in letters three feet high. Now, what do you think of that! And, oh, yes!" she continued happily, "Jim, he lifted a leather from a bull who was standing in the hallway there at headquarters! Jim sure does love excitement." Mary lifted her dark eyebrows in half amused inquiry.

"It's no use, Agnes," she declared, though without entire sincerity; "I can't quite keep up with your thieves' argot-your slang, you know. Just what did this brother of your do?" "Why, he copped the copper's kale,
