Exact Date of Corner Stone Laying Not Known.—Many Visitors Are Coming.

At a meeting of the citizens of Canyon Thursday afternoon it was definitely decided to give a barbeque at the time of the corner stone laying. Meat, bread, pickles and coffee will be served by the committee in charge and it is requested that all of the people of Canyon bring additional lunches, such as salads, cakes, pies, etc.

The exact date of this big celebration has not definitely been decided, but plans are rapidly being made and everything will soon be in readiness so that there will be nothing lacking for entertainment. A great many people from neighboring towns have expressed a desire for information concerning the event. It has been suggested that when the exact date is settled that the citizens of Canyon invite their friends from over the Panhandle for the larger the crowd the better the day will be.

The following are the members of committees:

Making New File.

County Clerk T. V. Reeves, with the assistance of Muggs Caraway is giving the clerk's office a general "spring cleaning in the fall." All the district and county court papers since 1890 up to the present time are being separated, criminal from civil, and filed away so that the clerk may lay his hands on any paper at a moment's notice.

Mr. Sample, from Nebraska, was in the city the past week buying calves. He says that the calves and stock generally are fatter, the grass finer and the crops better in the Panhandle than in his home state.

Mrs. W. L. Browning, who was hurt in a motorcycle accident at Lubbock, is improving rapidly and is able to be out on crutches. She returned to Canyon last week after being in the hospital at Lubbock for two weeks.

JUDGE Q. D. CORLEY COMING AUGUST 26

Armless Judge from Dallas Will Deliver Lecture at the Court House—All Invited.

Judge Quentin D. Corley, the armless judge of Dallas, will deliver a lecture at the district court room in Canyon on Thursday afternoon, August 26 at 3 o'clock.

Judge Corley has won national reputation for his wonderful success in overcoming the physical difficulties of having no arms.

He has invented different kinds of attachments which allow him to write, put on his collar, tie his neck tie, feed himself, bowl with the boy scouts and to drive his auto.

He is making a tour of the Panhandle in his machine and he will drive to Canyon. He is interested in the Panhandle and will make a close observation of the towns.

He is coming to Canyon to deliver a lecture on "Overcoming Difficulties". C. W. Warwick has guaranteed his expenses here. The lecture will be free, but a donation will be asked from the audience to meet the expenses. All money received above this amount will be turned over to the City Federation.

Wilkerson-Moreland Marriage

Among the many home weddings which have taken place during the past winter none came more as a surprise to the friends of the contracting parties as that of Miss Artie Moreland and Mr. Chas. T. Wilkerson. The wedding took place Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of the bride in this city. Only a few relatives and friends were present, Rev. Templeton officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mollie Moreland and has a host of warm friends, not only Canyon but over the entire Panhandle who wish this young couple the greatest of happiness.

Mr. Wilkerson is connected with a leading dry goods firm of Okmulgee, Oklahoma and the bride and groom left Tuesday directly after the ceremony for Okmulgee where they will make their future home.

Accident Results in Cut Lip.

Saturday morning Mrs. L. T. Devault tripped and fell against a sharp corner of a bench, cutting her upper lip through to the bone. Four stitches were required to close the wound which bled freely. In addition to the cut the right side of the face was bruised severely and she was rendered unconscious for a short time.

Good Rains.

J. Pluvius certainly gave Canyon her share of the rainfall the latter part of last week. Saturday night a heavy rain fell and then Sunday night a rain equally as heavy fell. It has retarded threshing to some extent, but the grain is in such shape that rain can hardly hurt it.

A. M. Ballew of Hale, Mo., was in the city this week looking after his land. He has made a number of trips here and says that he likes the country fine. He reports the crops light in Missouri owing to too much rain.

J. E. Rogers and Ed Harrell went to Amarillo Saturday and bought two 6 cylinder 50 horse power Studebaker cars.

JUDGE Q. D. CORLEY OF DALLAS

Albert Foster Dead.

Last Saturday Albert Foster passed away at his mother's home in Canyon. He took sick April 6th from which he never recovered. He was taken from Canyon to Amarillo August 5 and brought back on August 13 and died the next day.

Albert was the son of Mrs. Emma Foster and made his home in Canyon nearly all his life until the past three years.

On September 13, 1913, he was united in marriage to Miss Ruth Whitely of Silverton, living at Canyon for six months from which place he moved to Amarillo. He was living at Ft. Worth at the time he became sick.

Albert was the kind of man who made friends with everybody having a large circle of friends in every place he has lived. The mother, and wife, two brothers and two sisters remain to mourn his death.

The funeral services were held Sunday and the body laid to rest in Dreamland cemetery. Among the out-of-town relatives were: Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whitely of Silverton and Will Foster of Happy.

We wish to thank our many friends for their assistance during the sickness of our husband and brother. Especially do we thank Dr. Stewart.

Mrs. Ruth Foster,
Mrs. Emma Foster and children.

Normal Tennis Tournament.

The summer Normal tennis tournament for both boys and girls was held Monday and Tuesday of this week. A good crowd attended the games and ideal weather prevailed. Some extra fine fast playing was put up by the contestants especially for the boys' championship. Starr and McLaughlin winning out in the finals. Terrill and Clements won the girls' championship in doubles.

On Wednesday afternoon Starr won the singles for boys and Terrill won for the girls' championship.

Following is the list of contestants:

Boys,
Howard and Hooks.
Sparks and Brown.
Henderson and Hill.
Starr and McLaughlin.
Girls,
Clements and Terrill.
Calahan and Brown.

Face Burned Badly.

While building a fire Saturday morning in the Normal barber shop Russel Brown, one of the twins working at that place, was burned very severely by kerosene. He threw the liquid into the stove and the resultant flash burned the right ear and right side of the face. At present the burns are healing rapidly.

CANYON DEFEATS AMARILLO AGAIN

Closest Game of the Season results in 6 to 5 Score for the Local Ball Team.

Canyon won her sixth straight victory for the season Thursday afternoon by defeating Amarillo 6 to 5. The locals did not put up their usual snappy game until the last few innings while Amarillo had a better team than has met Canyon this year.

Word was in; the box for the locals, during the first seven periods and pitched a fine game. He allowed four hits, struck out three and walked one. Prichard ended the game, allowing two hits and struck out one. Wharton pitched all but one-half inning when he asked to be taken out. He struck out eight, walked two and hit two men. The locals garnered nine hits.

The game started by Amarillo scoring the first inning. Canyon came up and got three men on bases but failed to land a score. During the next five innings neither team scored, although Canyon twice advanced men to third. During the sixth inning an Amarillo umpire was taken from the game by unfair decisions, three of which were registered against him. During the seventh Amarillo scored again and added another in the first of the eighth. When Canyon came to bat in the eighth things began to pick up. With no scores so far the locals put three men on bases before an out was made and scored four men during the inning. This gave the lead to the locals, but during the first of the ninth Amarillo landed for two more. The locals then came up and with a two base hit and two stolen bases landed two scores and won the game with only one out.

Manager Luke reports a financial loss on the game, as has been the case on all but one game played here this year. Canyon has too good a team to receive no better support financially.

Play at Amarillo.

The music Committee of the First Christian Church, Amarillo invited the Wiggins Sisters to play on Wednesday night for the service at that church.

They rendered "Beautiful Night from Tales of Hoffman", with the following Orchestra arrangements:

Cornet, Miss Wiggins.
First Violin, Miss Columbia, Leta and Henry Moriarty.
Second Violin, Miss Loretta Wiggins.

Piano, Mrs. Moriarty.
They were assisted by Charley Lofton on the trombone.

Master Henry rendered a piano solo, Einsamer Wanderer.

Normal Annual Out.

Last week the 1915 issue of the "Le Mirage" was distributed among the pupils of the Normal. The "Le Mirage" is the Normal annual and is published solely by the pupils of that institution. It is an excellent copy, bound in leather and shows the kind of spirit which always has existed among the pupils.

One of the striking features of the book is the picture entitled, "Out of the old into the New". This shows the old building burning and in its flames a faint representation of the new building.

Campbell Family Reunion.

About fifty relatives and friends of the Campbell and Harrell families gathered at the Burch Campbell place last Wednesday for an old time reunion. A camping place was selected down on the canyon and fixed up in regular camp style with sleeping and eating quarters. The reunion lasted four days breaking up Sunday.

Among the friends and relatives who came from over the state were: Ed Reynolds of Ringo, Miss Alice Muldrow of Dallas, Miss Kathrine Harrell of Gainsville, Mrs. Gene Barks and daughter of Gainsville, John Reynolds and a host of other people who were unable to stay more than a day or so.

A big time was reported and efforts are being made to make this reunion an annual affair.

Fine Fruit Samples.

The News office has received a number of fine samples of Randall county fruit during the past week which speak louder than words for the excellent adaptability of Randall county as a fruit growing section.

Mrs. B. T. Johnson sent down a pair of peaches which were certainly fine. They were large red free stone Elbertas, with a very luscious flavor. The Johnson family have a fine orchard in town and always raise a good garden.

L. N. Hicks brought some peaches of the same variety and equally as fine in flavor.

J. E. Rogers brought in some yellow and some red plums which were almost as large as peaches. He has quite an orchard and says that all of the trees are loaded. He also reports a fine grape crop this year. Mr. Rogers says he counted 50 plums on an eighteen inch space on one of his trees.

C. R. McAfee has a combination peach and plum tree, half of each. While T. S. Minter was teaching in the Normal he grafted a plum to one of Mr. McAfee's peach trees and it is now bearing.

Repetition

Is essential to making an impression. The boy learns the multiplication table by saying it over and over until he can't say it wrong. It is no truer after it is learned than it was before. Repeating it a thousand times does not alter the facts. But repetition does make the knowledge certain.

Repeat

Your advertising to make it effective. Say it over and over in different ways if you like, but keep telling the essential fact. In this way you force those who see your name to remember you and to think of you when they think of your line of goods.

Neglecting treatment of piles is simply allowing the condition to become worse and inviting greater troubles. Don't wait. You can believe yourself of this distressing ailment by using

RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the tortures of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system. To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general health as to purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's great blood-maker, while its medicinal nourishment strengthens the organs to expel the impurities and rebuild your strength. Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

A comparison of the tax rates of the various Panhandle counties show that Randall county is one of the lowest if not the lowest in northwest Texas. Most of the county newspapers of last week published rates set by their commissioners of from 40 to 50 cents. Randall county's rate is 30 cents. The commissioners have the business interests of the county well founded and run the business economically.

Every young man in Randall county should hear the lecture of Judge Corley of Dallas in Canyon next Thursday. Sometimes a person gets it into his head that he is opposed by unsurmountable difficulties. The speaker will tell something about the difficulties he had to overcome when deprived of his arms. There are are other difficulties in life, worse than physical, according to Judge Corley, and it is the discussion of these that every young person should hear.

A great celebration will be held in Canyon at the time of the Normal corner stone. There will be hundreds of visitors in Canyon on that date. It is therefore very necessary that Canyon look her best on that date. Let every citizen strive to make his residence as attractive as possible. The business section of Canyon must be clean. The streets must be free of weeds. The lots of the residences must be neat. Begin this week to get things in order for the big event. Let every citizen do his part in making Canyon a clean town.

Money to loan on Improved Farm Land. J. S. Ulm, Clarendon, Texas.

Praises Panhandle Country.

Ludwig Held of Panhandle gave the Panhandle country a good advertisement in Kansas City the other day when he talked with the editor of the Drivers Telegram. Thirteen years ago Mr. Held sold an 800 acre farm in Menard county, Ill., at $187.50 an acre, and bought 6,400 acres in the Panhandle at about $3 an acre. He now values his big ranch at $20 an acre. This year Mr. Held raised 31 bushels of wheat to the acre, testing 62 pounds to the bushel. All this he told the Drivers Telegram, and more.

"We raise a variety of crops in the Panhandle country," Mr. Held said, "and no more crop failures than do the farmers of Illinois. Many of our farmers have paid for their land with the crops of two seasons. We consider our investments most valuable from the dollar viewpoint, and in addition we have a superior climate with an elevation of 3000 feet.

"This year the Panhandle is breaking all records. One of my neighbors raised 42 bushels of wheat to the acre. Feterita, kafir, sudan grass and cane, all high grade food for stock are sure crops. Kafir making 40 bushels to the acre when ground or mixed with silage or cane, will fatten cattle at far less expense than high priced feed in Illinois, giving us a great advantage over cattle feeders there and elsewhere in the corn belt. The rapid spread of stock farming in the Panhandle is soon going to make itself felt in the production of pork and beef. We need no longer to raise cattle to be sold as stockers to corn belt farmers to mature and finish. All this is going to be done right on our Panhandle farms."

Coulson-Carter.

Last Sunday morning at nine o'clock Randolph Carter, son of L. S. Carter of this city, and Miss Glennie Coulson of Hereford were married at the bride's home in Hereford. The bride is a former Normal student and daughter of a prominent druggist formerly in business in our neighboring city.

The young couple have no definite plans for the future but are now living in Hereford. We all join together in wishing Randolph and his bride a happy wedded life.

NEAR DEATH BY SMOTHERING

But Husband, With Aid of Cardui, Effects Her Deliverance.

Draper, N. C.—Mrs. Helen Dalton, of this place, says: "I suffered for years, with pains in my left side, and would often almost smother to death."

Medicines patched me up for awhile but then I would get worse again. Finally, my husband decided he wanted me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, so he bought me a bottle and I began using it. It did me more good than all the medicines I had taken.

I have induced many of my friends to try Cardui, and they all say they have been benefited by its use. There never has been, and never will be, a medicine to compare with Cardui. I believe it is a good medicine for all womanly troubles."

For over 50 years, Cardui has been relieving woman's sufferings and building weak women up to health and strength.

If you are a woman, give it a fair trial. It should surely help you, as it has a million others.

Get a bottle of Cardui to-day.

A STATE FAIR PRIZE WINNER.

Dallas, "The Show Window of Texas Industries"—that's the 1915 State Fair of Texas in an nutshell. The State Fair begins Saturday, October 16, and closes Sunday, October 31.

All of the important activities of the State will be represented as never before—agriculture and kindred industries; livestock and the dairy interests; manufacturing—in fact, a splendid array of exhibits mirroring the progress of Texas and the achievements of her people.

The State Fair will furnish an education so practical and so broad as to appeal to all—and particularly does this apply to the splendid exhibits now being prepared by the University of Texas, the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, the College of Industrial Arts; and other educational institutions of the state.

The girls and boys of the State are interested in judging contests and in the prizes offered for boys' and girls' club work; and in the splendid building housing the textile, culinary and fine arts departments there will be much to interest the women and girls of the State.

County exhibits filling to overflowing a mammoth building; three thousand head of registered stock; twenty-five hundred blue-blooded fowls; ten acres of machinery and implement exhibits; an automobile show of 1916 models; a fine art exhibit valued at more than $100,000; an industrial arts exhibit that will interest the housewife; a superb showing of styles and fashions in women's wear, millinery, jewels, in fact, something to interest every man, woman and child in the state—this gives some idea of the 1915 Exposition.

Offerings in the livestock department are the richest of any in the country. This year approximately $20,000 in premiums and specials will be awarded for exhibits of cattle, horses, sheep and swine. All of the big organizations in the country with livestock men as members are offering special premiums. Applications for stalls and pens received indicate that the display will be mammoth in proportion.

The dairy and creamery interests will be represented in three divisions—dairy cattle, dairy demonstration and dairy products departments. These three features are of special interest to dairymen and dairy cattle breeders; the awarding of the American Jersey Cattle Club's special premium for the best Jersey cow, get of sire, breeder's young herd, grand champion bull and grand champion female; the twelve days' competitive dairy test for butter fat; and educational displays and lectures dealing with the dairy and creamery business.

A staff of experts from the A. and M. College will spend their time at the Fair giving attention to helping Texas farmers with their home problems. The A. and M. exhibit for the coming Fair is being entirely reorganized.

D. 1915 in a suit numbered on the docket of said Court No. 788, wherein George Phillips is Plaintiff, and Mrs. Wm. Ross MacDonald (formerly Mrs. A. J. Jennings) and Wm. Ross MacDonald, her husband, are Defendants, and said petition alleging in substance, as follows, to-wit:

That heretofore, to wit, on or about the 7th day of March, A.D. 1918, defendant Mrs. Wm. Ross MacDonald, then known as Mrs. A. J. Jennings, a widow, made, executed and delivered to one C. O. Keiser, of said Randall county, her two several promissory notes for the sum of Two thousand and eighty Dollars, each, bearing date on the day and year aforesaid, due, one of said notes, "on or before three years" after March 1908, the other note due "on or before four years" after March A.D. 1908, payable to the order of said C. O. Keiser, bearing interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum from said date of execution, said interest payable annually, further providing for seven per cent interest on all past due installments of interest, and further stipulating for ten per cent additional on the principal and interest due on said notes if placed in the hands of an attorney for collection, or if collected by suit. That said notes were given for a part of the purchase money of the following described real estate and premises situated in Randall county, Texas, to-wit:

Section No. One Hundred and Seventy-four (174), in Block No. M. 9, Certificate No. 9-232, John H. Gibson, grantee, containing 640 acres, more or less, and situated about thirteen miles south and fifteen miles east of Canyon, county seat of said Randall county;

That said land was, on or about August 7th, 1908, conveyed by said C. O. Keiser, to the defendant, Mrs. Wm. Ross MacDonald, then Mrs. A. J. Jennings, by his deed of that date, of record in Vol. 16, page 161, Deed Records of said Randall county, in consideration, among other things, of the two vendor lien notes herein described, and that in said deed of conveyance a "Vendor's Lien" was reserved on said land to secure the payment of said notes, as is expressly stated in the face of said notes.

Plaintiff says that he is the legal owner of said notes, that they are due and unpaid, and that he has placed same in the hands of an attorney for collection and for suit, and has contracted to pay his attorney the ten per cent attorney's fees provided for in said notes; that defendants, tho' often requested, have failed and refused to pay said notes, each or either of them, and still refuse to his damage, the principal of said notes, $4160.00, the accrued interest, interest on interest and attorney's fees, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of Five Thousand Three Hundred and Fifty Dollars. Plaintiff prays judgment of the court for said sum of money, $5350.00, interest from this date and for his costs; for the foreclosure of his vendor's lien on said land, and premises; for an order that said land be sold to satisfy his debt; for a writ of possession, and for other and further relief, in law and in equity, as he maybe entitled to.

Herein fail not, but have before said court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the Seal of said Court, at office in Canyon, Texas, this 27th day of July A. D. 1915.

The MAID of the FOREST

A Romance of St. Clair's Defeat
 By RANDALL PARRISH
 ILLUSTRATED BY D. J. LAVIN
 COPYRIGHT A. C. MCCLURG & CO., 1915

"He is a renegade, a traitor," and Lappin's hand pointed at the man he accused, "the uniform he wears a lie. How do I know? Because he fought me yonder in the woods on the island; because he was in the cabin with the others. This is the man who was left for dead, who escaped. Do you recognize him now?"

I saw the red faces, and heard the scream of voices.

"Ay! you do; and the woman, the Wyandot squaw, helped him. I said so before; now we have the proof. You drove her out, afraid to treat her as an enemy, and she goes to him, thinking his uniform will frighten you into sparing the hunter from torture. She brings him here to threaten you with what England will do. What say you, Shawnees, to the dog!"

The voices burst into a wild yell that seemed to split the night, but the fur trader swung up his hand.

"Back all of ye!" he roared savagely. "I claim this man as mine! Who has better right? I'll throttle the life out of him with my bare hands before ye all. Have your warriors give us space, Sis-e-to-wah."

The chief of the Shawnees, his eyes blazing under tangled hair, uplifted his arms.

"Tis the white man's right," he ordered grimly. "I have spoken."

I drew in my breath deeply, yet what could I do? The rifle trembled in my grasp, but I dare not use it. The unfortunate Englishman stood in my place, was mistaken for me, but if I revealed myself it could serve no end—would only leave me helpless to aid the girl. I could not think of him at that moment, but only of her. What would be her fate when this struggle was over? Maddened by the fight, could those savages be controlled? Would she be spared? I had no time to think; my blood was like ice—I could only look, look at that hideous spectacle, reddened by flame, as my lips muttered a prayer, "God help me to do the best thing!"

It was all the work of an instant. Lappin whirled on his victim, flinging his gun to the ground.

"Face me, you cur, you spy!" he shouted. "Come out from behind that squaw. You got me once when my foot slipped. Let's see what you can do now. What! you won't! Well, you will!"

He thrust Rene back, hurling her with one sweep of his arm into the crowding ranks of warriors, one of whom clutched her as she fell. Then he struck the shrinking, startled Englishman a vicious blow in the face.

CHAPTER XIX.

In the Hands of Savages.

I saw the red welt on the white cheek left by the fur trader's rough hand, his arms flung up, a sudden passing of anger darkening his eyes. This was more than flesh and blood could stand, and not retaliate. Wild rage usurped the place of courage; his lips snarled like a cornered wolf; he had forgotten all but hate. It was not a man, but a maddened animal who crouched for a spring.

"Fight you! I will! Yes, to the death," he snapped out hotly. "But you lie when you say I fought you before; when you say I was in the cabin—you lie, you dog of a white savage—you lie!"

"Messieurs, it is a mistake," I caught the girl's protesting voice in the hush. "It was not—"

"A lie, hey!" Lappin broke in crashed with rage. "What am I—blind! I saw you, you hound, with my own eyes. Shut the squaw up. Oh! you will; then have it now!"

They met like two enraged bucks in the forest, clutched at each other in blind, deadly battle. They were men, evenly matched, bred with hatred. Never did I witness such fighting, such mad barbarism, the ferocity of which stopped at nothing. The soldier I knew was unarmed, but a knife dangled at Lappin's belt. Either he forgot it, or in his rage disdained to use the steel. Oh! how they fought—like two cats, snarling and snapping, throttling each other, occasionally an arm breaking free to send a clinched fist crashing into an exposed face. Once the soldier went down to his knees, and Lappin kicked him, only to be gripped himself and fung headlong. But they were up together, bleeding both, panting for breath, clothes half ripped off their bodies, cursing fiercely, as they rushed at each other once more. There was no mercy asked or given. Straining, stumbling, exerting every ounce of strength, using every trick, they swung back and forth across the open forest space. It was brutal, devilish. Ay! and so were those who watched.

Merciful Mother! What a sight that was! I, a soldier, and border-bred, hid my face in my arms—and yet I looked and saw. The very ferocity of it was a fascinating horror—the black, black night above, around; the forests shutting them in; the howling dogs snapping at their heels; the red glare of fire, and that ring of yelling savages, dancing back and forth to give the combatants room. Rene had disappeared—forced back into the half-crazed mass, as the savages surged forward; of Brady I caught no glimpse.

That was no scene to ever forget, to blot out with passing years. The wild savagery of it burned in on the brain; those dark faces, with wild eyes and dangling hair; the waving arms, and leaping bodies, the gleam of weapons tossed aloft, the jangle and din of excited voices in jargon of unknown tongues. How the red flames danced over them all, now in shadow, now in glare of light, making them appear fiends incarnate. And those two battling in the midst, huge men in death grapple, fighting as tigers fight— remorseless, merciless; tearing each other's flesh, battering each other's faces, gripping, clutching, straining in effort at mastery. Again and again they crunched into the crowd, reeling from blows, or hurled back by sheer strength of muscle; they sobbed forth curses, staggering with weakness. I saw Lappin drive his head into his opponent's stomach as though it were a battering-ram; I saw the soldier sink his teeth into the fur-trader's hand, as if he were a mad dog. 'Twas then the brute reached down and fumbled for his knife—found it, and, with one hoarse cry of triumph, sent the bright blade home. Twice he struck, and they went staggering down together, locked in each other's arms, the soldier dead ere he struck the ground.

It was bedlam then, followed by a breathless hush as Sis-e-to-wah pressed forward with uplifted arms. Two warriors lifted Lappin to his feet, and, as his gripping hand plucked out the knife from the wound, I saw the gush of blood crimsoning the dead man's side. An instant the victor stood glaring down, reeling in weakness, upheld by others. Then he laughed, waving the dripping blade.

"Ah! good!" he cried. "There is one more recruit for hell. Bring me the girl here. 'Tis time she had her lesson also."

They brought her forward, a red brave grasping either arm. I caught sight of her face, white, drawn, but not with fear, and sighted my rifle across the log at the white ruffian's breast. With clinched lips I lay, finger to trigger. Yet I waited—thank God, I waited. I know not what restrained me, only it was no fear of consequences to myself. It must have been the expression of the woman's uplifted face, the quick glance she cast about, as though in silent warning to me. I took it as a signal, a message of restraint. The fur trader, burly and brutal, still panting for breath, yet able to stand alone now, and conscious of his victory, thrust his reeking knife back into his belt with a coarse laugh.

"How do you like that, you Wyandot squaw?" he asked, leaning down into her face.

"When you have those men release my arms I will answer you," she returned quietly.

"Oh, you will, hey! You'll be glad enough to talk before I am through. Let go of her there—yes; that's what I mean. Now look here—there lies your English officer. He's paid the price of being a fool. Look at him; are you ready to speak now?"

"He was nothing to me," she said slowly, "nothing. But he fought a man's fight, and was killed by cowardly treachery."

"What! You squaw, you dare—" "Of course I dare. Do you suppose I fear you, Jules Lappin, or your gang of outlaws?" he voice scornful. "Why, I challenge you to lay hand on me. You know who I am; you have known in the topos of my father. I know who you are, and I despise you. You call me a Wyandot squaw; threaten-

BETTER CONSTRUCTION AT LOWER COST

STUDY THESE CUTS

Why Interlocking Tile is so Widely Used

For many years the public—you—has needed a building material that would be better than anything heretofore in use, and at the same time be within the reach of all in cost.

Interlocking Tile is being used from New England to the Pacific Slope, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, because it is filling this demand. In Texas every section is using this material for every class of building, it being more especially adapted to our climate than any other.

Nothing can compare with a material that builds fireproof walls that are cooler in summer, warmer in winter, stronger and more rigid, and at the same time cheaper than brick. Interlocking Tile does this.

Just why these apparently impossible, "too-good-to-be-true" things are so is fully explained in our literature, government reports, etc. Write for this data and information soon, even if you do not intend to build until later. You will be well repaid.

Notice to Teachers.

In making out the program for the Teachers' Institute to be held at the Public School building in Canyon, I omitted one item I deem very essential. I insist upon every teacher procuring—a copy of "Charters Teaching the Common Branches." This book may be ordered from Southern School Book Depository, Dallas, Texas. I hope every teacher who is interested in teaching the common branches will procure a copy and have it at the Institute.

SWISS HOTELS WONDROUS

Stand in Solitary Grandeur, But Lack Nothing That Makes for Comfort of Traveler.

You may climb up the heights by the aid of railways, funiculars, racks-and-pinions, diligences and sledges, and when nothing but your own feet will take you any further you will see in Switzerland a grand hotel, magically and incredibly raised aloft in the mountains.

It is solitary—no town, no houses, nothing but this hotel hemmed in on all sides by snowy crags and made impregnable by precipices and treacherous snow and ice.

At the great redrawing of the map of Europe, when the lesser nationalities are to disappear, the Switzer will take armed refuge in their farthest grand hotels and there defy the mandates of the concert.

For the hotel, no matter how remote it be, lacks nothing that is mentioned in the dictionary of comfort. Beyond its walls your life is not worth twelve hours' purchase.

You would not die of hunger, because you would perish of cold.

At best you might hit on some peasant's cottage in which the standards of existence had not changed for a century.

But once pass within the portals of the grand hotel, and you become the spoiled darling of an intricate organization that laughs at mountains, avalanches and frost.

ONE OF NATURE'S MARVELS

Great Stone Face of the Pyrenees Has Entranced Artists From All Parts of the World.

There is probably no more remarkably example of natural statuary in the world than the famous stone face of the Pyrenees, in Spain. The elevation stands alone, surrounded by valleys so that the profile dominates the skyline for many miles.

The chin is firmly modeled, while the lips seem to be tightly compressed. The line representing the nose is drawn with a strong bold stroke, giving it a truly Castilian character.

The mountain with this singular contour rises so high above the surrounding country that it may be seen for many miles. It is, besides, modeled on such heroic lines that the appearance of foliage, even the growth of forest, does not alter the lifelike appearance throughout the seasons.

The Moral Life.

Moral principle is not thinking the right thing, but doing it. It is giving 16 ounces to the pound and 36 inches to the yard. It is treating your neighbor kindly. It is not worrying others. There are some people who pride themselves on holding to high moral principle, who are an exceeding great annoyance to the people they meet. Of all the unprincipled things in this world, making people unhappy is the meanest. Yet there are many people who are sticklers to moral duty, doing that very thing every day. He is a mean thief who will take from another his peace of mind. One man told us he didn't sleep a whole night because of a needless remark a thoughtless friend made to him. There are many people who are such confirmed materialists that they think you can only do harm to a man by hitting him with a club or stealing his chickens. They don't seem to know there is a mental and spiritual world, where all real feeling dwells and where the deepest torture may be inflicted.—Ohio State Journal.

Billet for Every Bullet.

The proverb "every bullet has its billet," is attributed to William II. One of the earliest references to it is in "Tristram Shandy," where Corporal Trim says, "King William was of an opinion, an' please your honor, that everything was predestined for us in this world; insomuch that he would often say to his soldiers that 'every bullet has its billet.'" The story was known to Wesley, who records in his "Journal," under June 6, 1765, that he traveled with a Lieutenant Cook, who had been in campaigns against Indians, French and Spaniards, and had never been touched. "So true," says Wesley, "is the odd saying of King William that every bullet has its billet."

Odd Combination Kills.

Matthew Grissom, solicitor for a New York life insurance company, was burned to death in a peculiar way. He had set a steel trap for a rat, and the night before a neighbor's dog was shut up in the room by accident. The dog upset a can of gasoline, saturating the atmosphere of the room with gasoline fumes.

About four o'clock Grissom was awakened by the cries of the dog, took a light and went to release him. As he entered the room the fumes of the gasoline became ignited. An explosion followed, and Grissom was enveloped in the flames which filled the room, rendering escape impossible.

Art and Appetite.

"Your singing tonight was divine!" exclaimed an enthusiastic admirer to the prima donna. "I could see by the expression on your face and the light in your eyes that you were inspired."

"I fear you are mistaken," said the prima donna, with her most engaging smile. "Our art is so exacting that we don't care to eat a hearty meal before staging. I was ravenously hungry and I was thinking of all the good things I would order when the concert was ended."

what you will do; point me to this dead man whom you have murdered. Why? To frighten me—me? Very well, I'll answer you. I am a Wyandot; I am Running Water; but in my veins flows also the best blood of France. Mine is not a race of cowards and murderers, thieves and traders; my ancestors were soldiers and men. And you think I am afraid of you—your cur of the woods; afraid of you! Touch me, Jules Lappin, if you dare; I challenge you. Come, I wait for you to lay hand on me."

He stared at her sullenly, angry enough, yet with the bullying look gone from his mottled face. Something about the girl—her sharp words, her cool defiance—had left him uncertain.

"More than that, Jules Lappin," she went on passionately; "you are going to pay for all this," and she pointed down at the dead body. "pay for it, do you understand! That man was what he claimed to be—an aide to Hamilton. England pays her debts, Monsieur Lappin. Ay, and so do the Wyandots; have you forgotten that so soon! Have you forgotten what befell the Frenchman, Philippe Bridau? Have you blotted from memory already the fate of Michael Cosad? You were in our village when the chiefs of the Wyandots dealt out justice to these renegades. Answer me!"

The cool boldness of her words stunned the fellow. I could see him glance about into the dark woods, and then at the faces of the savages pressing about them. Few among them understood what was said, and their gestures, the fierce expression of their eyes, gave the renegade courage. He had already gone too far for retreat; his only chance now was to proceed—to browbeat this girl, frighten her, and trust to the wilderness for a hiding place.

"Stand aside, all of you; get back and give us room, yer red scum!" he roared, his rage increasing as he gave it vent in words. "Well, I've heard yer talk, all of it, you breed, an' that's what I care for your threats," and he snapped his fingers in her face. As she stood silent, motionless, looking straight at him with scorn unutterable in her eyes, the brute clinched his red fist, stepping forward as if he would strike.

"Curse yer! I'm a mind to let yer have some of the same medicine I gave him. You'll laugh at Jules Lappin, with as she held it forth in the glow of light. Brady's face was not toward me, nor revealed clearly by the fire, yet he held his head erect, his eyes roving over the devilish faces. The wounded jaw was bound about with a strip of bloody rag. Without speaking, it yet seemed to me he mocked them. Once he twisted in his bonds, and gazed at her as if he would utter some word, but changed his mind, and for the first time, a look of pain swept into his face. Lappin saw the effort, called out some foul insult, and a warrior sprang forward, striking the defenseless man across the lips, and driving his head back against the stump.

The vicious act drove me mad, and I stepped forth into the open, flinging my gun down in the underbrush. No eye in all that swarm was turned my way. In silence I moved forward until I was within a few yards of the struggling mass. Then I stopped, full in the red glare of fire, my arms uplifted, and gave utterance to a deep, sepulchral groan. God alone knows how awful was the apparition. To them, in startled horror, I was the dead man, standing there with ghastly face, and arms outstretched, my appearance rendered more terrible by the fitful gleam of fire, revealing features and form, glowing on torn red jacket, and head slashed by scalping knife, behind me the night and the black woods. No doubt it was a slight to bring fear to any heart, but to those murderers, their minds poisoned by superstition, it brought panic—a terror too terrible to resist. They knew me in the instant; I was the spirit of the dead; I had come back for vengeance; with clammy hands I was clutching for them; with sightless eyes I was seeking them out. There was one yell, breathing forth the terror of their souls; I saw eyes, wild with horror, starting at me; I saw men run and fall, scramble to their feet, and run again; I saw leaping bodies fight like fends in an effort to get free. Sis-et-wah, struck by the rush, shrieked like a woman, stared toward me from where he lay on the ground, found his feet and ran. I caught glimpses of Rene's face uplifted, the cross still before her eyes; of Lappin, hurled over by the rush, trampled into the earth by flying feet, finally regain his knees, his face white as death, as he stared back toward me with protruding eyes.

Again I groaned, the unearthly sound rising even above the din, seemingly echoed by the great forest and flung back to earth again by the black curtain overhead. Ay! it was an eerie sound! It even made my own flesh creep. Crazed by the terror of it, panic-stricken by the fears of others, the fur trader leaped to his feet, flung forward his rifle and fired. The ball sang past my ear, and I walked straight toward him, my ghastly face exposed to the fire, my hands reaching out in blind clutching. With one yell, piercing, the yelp of a frightened wolf, he turned and dashed for the woods, starting back over his shoulder even as he crashed headlong into the underbrush. For fear they might pause when once under cover—the first spasm of terror gone—I ran forward to the forest edge, giving utterance to another groan to spur them on. But this was not needed—terrible, awful terror had struck into their very souls. Not one doubted the evidence of his own eyes; they had seen the dead walk; their murdered and scalped victim rise again in ghost-like semblance, and they thought of nothing but escape—to get beyond the reach of those hands, the gaze of those accusing eyes. They were mad with the ghastly terror. I could hear the feeble bodies crash blindly into the underbrush, the discordant cries dying in the distance, the occasional thud as some frightened savage struck against a tree in the dark, or fell sprawling to the ground.

It was all over with so quickly I could scarcely realize what had actually occurred. Then I laughed and swore, my nerves dancing like so many demons. They were gone—gone! Those merciless red devils, those accursed murderers, those fends in human guise, nor was it likely they would stop in their mad flight until they dropped from sheer exhaustion, or the dawn of another day brought with it fresh courage.

And those others, who were yet there—Brady, tied still to the stake, the flames already licking the fagots at his feet, and mademoiselle praying to the Virgin—what would they think? Would they know, understand, what had really occurred, or had the terrible spectacle left them also in benumbed terror? The thought awoke me as from a stupor, and I turned about. The ground was a jumble of things, as if I looked upon a battle field, yet this was not what I really saw in that first swift glance. A man—a white man—ran leaping across the flame-lit opening, kicking aside the blazing fagots of wood already scorching Brady, hurling them to right and left in frantic haste, until he made passage through. I caught the glimmer of a knife in his hand; and then, by main strength, he dragged the weakened prisoner clear of the burning wood, and dropped him exhausted on the ground. As the fellow stood erect, staring about him, at the helpless huddle at his feet, at the white face of the girl, at the debris on every side, I recognized Simon Girty.

"Saints alive! What does all this mean?" he cried, grabbing up the gun dropped in his first swift effort at rescue. "You 'Running Water,' ay! and this is the Kentuckian who would have killed me. What's happened here? It looks like a shambles. Never before did I see a man burning himself. Who killed these—merciful God! What is that?"

His voice rose into a shriek as he stared at me, while I advanced toward him. With one terrified leap he sprang back, throwing up his rifle, and with hands shaking so, that I laughed outright. The sound coming unexpectedly from such ghastly lips must have been more horrible than a groan, for the frightened man dashed his weapon to the ground, and turned to run. His foot struck Brady's body and he went down, scrambling to his knees. I saw the old scout's head uplifted, the trembling girl bury her face in her hands, as if to shut out the sight.

"Don't run; there is nothing to be afraid of!" I cried hastily, stopping still in my tracks to better reassure them. "I am no ghost, but a friend. Hear me, mademoiselle!"

slowly forward. A yard from me she stopped, hesitating, not even yet thoroughly convinced of my identity.

"Is—is it really you, Joseph Hayward?" her lips faltered. "Tell me, I beg you, for—for I was never so frightened in my life."

"There is nothing for you to fear, mademoiselle," I said quickly, regretful enough to have startled her so. "I am Joseph Hayward, the American. I was but to save you. I played this part."

She buried her face in her hands, sobbing hysterically, her slender form trembling.

Total Number of Students.

The Normal is just closing out one of the most successful summer's work in its history. Not in regard to attendance but in point of excellency and efficiency in class work, it has surpassed all other summers. A total number of 482 students were enrolled during the summer, of which number about 245 were taking the regular course. Every section of the state was represented by the pupils and a good many came from out of the state.

There will be a two weeks vacation after which the winter session will begin. Secretary Shaw has had numerous requests for catalogues and indications point to the fact that by the first of the new year the number of the student body will be raised to equal that of two year ago before the building burned.
