

ALL OF REGENTS COMING ON APRIL 21

Dedication Normal Building Assured for that date—Work Will be Completed April 15

President R. B. Cousins has word from President Sam Sparks, of the Board of Regents, that all of the members of the Board will be present at the dedication of the Normal on April 21. After the burning of the old building on March 25, 1914, the Board as a unit set out to build the greatest school building in the southwest. It was their aim to leave nothing undone that would add to the attractiveness or convenience of the new building, and truly they have succeeded. Acting under the desire to have every member of the Board present and believing that the pleasure of the occasion would be greatly marred, should any of these men who have worked so faithfully to procure this great building could not be present and take a part in the dedication of the same, Mr. Cousins asked Mr. Sparks to ascertain whether or not the time was convenient and if it was not, it would be postponed. Mr. Sparks has the assurance of each member that he can come on that date.

The opera chairs for the auditorium have been ordered and it is hoped that they will be in place by the 21. However, if they do not arrive by that time the auditorium will be temporarily seated and the exercises will proceed as planned.

Practically all of the work on the auditorium is finished. The floor was completed Tuesday. A little more wood work will be completed by the end of the week.

The plasterers will be through by the end of next week. They are now working on the stairways and have a few rooms in the basement, including the finishing coat of the swimming pool room.

The stone for finishing the outside steps will be here this week, after which the temporary tracks will be taken up. It is expected that the tracks will be off of the athletic field by Friday, after which time work will be started cleaning up the field, getting it ready for the baseball season.

Christian and Service are at work on the boiler house. This is a temporary frame building, erected until funds can be obtained from the legislature to build a brick building.

Trees are being set out on the campus, 150 in all, to replace those which have died and new ones in several places. As soon as the building material has been cleared away at the rear of the building, trees will be planted.

Pres. Cousins will go to Plainview Friday to speak at an educational rally, and will speak at the dedication of the school building at Littlefield on Saturday.

Big Grass Fire Sunday.

Fire which started south of Hereford Sunday morning was brought by the high west wind through Randall county, covering a strip several miles wide and destroying many sections of grass. The fire call first came into Canyon at noon. Hundreds of men and boys responded in machines and went out to meet the fire. By hard fighting the fire was kept south of the south creek and was checked at the road running southwest of the city where a stand was made by back firing. Owing to the high wind it was impossible to attempt firing the head fire and some of the men who went out several miles to meet it were forced to throw wide open their machines in order to keep ahead of the fire and get to the road where it was stopped.

The grass is so high and in such good condition that it makes prairie fires very dangerous. It is fortunate that no cattle were burned. Two houses near Hereford are reported to have been burned.

Get Mule Foot Hogs.

Besides running a store in Canyon, Jim Redfearn thinks he is a farmer—that is, he lets his father do the heavy end of the farmer and Jim acts as straw boss. Jim is always trying out the new things that come along, and he usually gets away with the good things that creep into his pathway. Jim's latest is the mule foot hog—the first of this breed to be tried out in his county. This hog is between a bacon and lard hog, has an extra soft black hair and its feet are like those of a mule, although it doesn't use them in the same promiscuous manner. The prominent feature about the hog is his inability to have cholera, which is some feature. The originators guarantee the hog to such an extent that they will replace any hog that dies of cholera. It is stated that they can be received on a farm infested with cholera, and turned right in with hogs which are dying and escape the disease. This is the guarantee for the hogs.

It is expected that Jim will be so anxious to get the mule foot hogs started in Randall county that he will give away a pig as a premium with every $1 sale of sugar.

Look Out Peaches—Don't Get Fresh.

Some peach trees are in bloom and the rest of them are considering seriously coming out into the cold, cold world—that is, it isn't cold now, but it is most likely to be ere long.

A very warm weather of the past week has done wonders in bringing out the early vegetation. Of course, the peach trees are the first to proclaim spring, and are usually the ones to suffer largest from the effects of spring.

The hopeful peach raisers recall the experience of last spring and trust that it may re-occur. The peach trees came out early. In fact, the leaves were well formed when a frost came. The foliage was so heavy that it protected the blossoms and there was an abundant peach crop for the year.

DISTRICT COURT CLOSES BUSINESS

Most of Local Cases to be Finished This Week—Haggart Trial Next Monday.

Practically all of the local business of the district court will be closed this week. Next week will be devoted to the Haggart case from Amarillo. Judge Umphres states that evidence will occupy about two days. Eighty-four men have been summoned for the jury in this case.

The following is the business of the past week:

State of Texas vs Oliver Tumbleson was dismissed on motion of the District Attorney.

State of Texas vs Enoch Wilson was dismissed on motion of the District Attorney.

State of Texas vs Robert Hazelwood, the defendant was found guilty of assault with intent to murder and was given two years in the penitentiary by the jury. This case was transferred here from Amarillo.

State of Texas vs Rube Sullenger, defendant was found not guilty. He was tried previously on the same charge and was convicted, being sentenced for two years.

Herman Wragge appear in court Tuesday and was given his final naturalization papers. Mr. Wragge came from Germany in 1903. He filed for naturalization in Nebraska, but the papers were dismissed, hence the delay in getting his final papers through.

DISCUSS PHONE SYSTEM FRIDAY

Business Men's Association Will Meet With District Manager and the City Council.

The monthly meeting of the Canyon Business Men's Association has been postponed from Thursday night until Friday night in order that District Superintendent Becker of Amarillo may come to the city and discuss the new phone system with the association. The meeting will be held at the News office promptly at 8 o'clock.

The City Council will meet with the business men and an invitation is extended to every business and professional man in Canyon whether he is a member of the association or not. The step to be taken is very important and every business man is highly interested.

Squires Strong for Plains.

State Bank Examiner Squires was in the city Friday, passing through on his official trip. He stated to a representative of the News that this winter was the first he had been privileged to visit the Plains country. He is from East Texas and says that this country certainly appeals to him. He reports all of the banks in excellent condition in this section. He states that the Hereford herds of cattle look better to him than the cotton fields of his section. He believes the Plains are the garden spot of Texas, and that it will not be long ere every foot of land is under cultivation.

Many men ought to be taken into dry dock and have the barnacles scraped off.

Black for Re-Election.

J. C. Black has announced his candidacy for re-election to the office of county Tax Assessor. He has served in this capacity for one term and trusts that the people of the county will see fit to give him a second term. He states that he is willing to let his record as an official during the past term stand as an index of his ability to serve the people in this capacity. He refers to the commissioners court and the state comptroller for reference to the work he has been doing in the office.

Mr. Black states that he will appreciate the vote and support of the voters of the county in the July primaries.

Burnett is New Baptist Secretary.

Rev. J. T. Burnett of this city last week accepted the field secretaryship of Wayland College, at Plainview. Mr. Burnett has long been a resident of this city, having served the local Baptist church as pastor and for the past few years has lived here while serving the section as missionary. Regarding his new work the Herald of Plainview says the following:

Incidentally, the Baptist Church in Plainview has been considerably strengthened during the past week by the acceptance of the field secretaryship of Wayland Baptist College by Rev. J. T. Burnett, of Canyon. He and his family will move to Plainview in the near future. Rev. Burnett was formerly pastor of the Baptist Church at Canadian, and has served congratulations in Canyon and Amarillo. He will devote his entire time to the interests of Wayland Baptist College.

CITY COUNCIL CAN NOT INCREASE LIGHTS

Expenditure on City Water Works has Put City Year Behind With Expenses.

So far as the City Council is concerned, there will be no additional street lights, nor all night service during the present fiscal year.

At the meeting Monday night the matter was taken up and it was found that the recent repairs made on the city wells and in the large installation of water meters had put the city far behind, and that the outstanding vouchers will take all of the taxes next August. The council expressed a desire for the service, but did not see how it could be done.

In order to partially handle the water situation it was voted to levy 10c per month on every water user for the purpose of installing and keeping up the meters. In many towns it is required that the water users pay for the meter—which amounts to about $11—but in Canyon this practice has never been made by the city. The council is going to put a meter on every water user in the city, which will lower the insurance rate and will tend to greatly decrease the useless water waste in homes and offices. The breakage at the city wells have been great and costly during the past month, which puts the city's finances in a bad condition.

The council has a committee to reply to the resolution of last week by the Canyon Business Men's Association regarding all night lights. They propose to take care of the all night service after next September, if the business men will take a subscription list of $25 per month for the period up to that time. The councilmen will cooperate in the circulating of the petition and believe that it would be a fine thing for the city to do.

Why add the weight of tomorrow's load to the burden of this day? The seas are not stormy enough for ballast like that.

A Surprise.

(Contributed)

The verdict of the jury in the case against Robert Hazlewood, tried here last week in the District Court, was a great surprise to those on the outside who heard the evidence. A conviction depended upon the identity of the defendant, as the party who made the assault; and if he were, then was his mental condition such as to make him responsible for his acts.

While the evidence was conflicting as to the identity of the defendant, there was evidence upon which a jury could find against him.

On the question of insanity, we are unable to see how the jury reached the verdict they returned in the case. The proof showed that the defendant had been twice convicted of insanity within two years before the assault charged against him was committed. Hence it can not be justly charged that his plea of insanity was trumped up for the occasion. The facts surrounding the assault irresistibly force one to the conclusion that it was the act of an insane person. No motive for the assault can be fairly deduced from the facts as we understand it, want of motive is the first and highest test of sanity in such cases.

A number of eminent physicians testified for the state and for the defendant, and they were substantially of but one opinion, that the defendant was insane, and had been for several years, and that he did not possess will-power sufficient to enable him to refrain from doing any act which might occur to him to do.

He was under sentence of conviction for insanity at the time of the assault and was admitted to the insane asylum, at Austin, about one month after the assault. The assistant superintendent of the asylum, who took personal charge of him, saw and treated him twice and sometimes three times a day, until in October, testified that defendant was insane when he was admitted; that he was insane when the sheriff of Potter county took him from the asylum to be tried for the offense for which he was convicted, and that he was then, at the time of the trial, insane to the extent that he was irresponsible for any act he might do. The testimony was corroborated, and in no way controverted, by every physician who testified in the case.

Three physicians, one summoned by the state and two by the defendant, testified that they had been the physician in the family of defendant for seven years; that they had treated defendant for his malady almost constantly during that time and that he had been insane during that period, and that he was insane at this time.

One or two non-experts testified for the state that at certain periods of a month or more from the time of the assault when the defendant was not under the influence of opiates, that they regarded him as sane; but testified further that when he was under the influence of opiates or stimulents he was absolutely insane.

The Court charged the jury, that in view of the fact that defendant was under conviction of insanity at the time of the alleged assault that it devolved on the state to show by evidence, beyond reasonable doubt, that at the very time of the assault defendant was sane, and had the power and ability to refrain from the commission of the act, if he did it. It was shown, without controversy, that defendant was under the influence of cocaine late in the afternoon, prior to the night of the assault; that as late as 11:30 that night he was under the influence of this drug to such an extent that he scarcely knew where he was. That friends tried to take him home.

That about 1 a. m. he got home so full of this drug that it was difficult for him to undress.

The assault is supposed to have been committed about 1:20 a. m. The family physician saw defendant in jail next morning; and he was then in very bad condition from the effects of cocaine.

The state met this alone by two or three witnesses who testified to having seen him at some time between 8 and 11 o'clock on the evening before the assault; but none of them had any conversation with him, but merely stated that they saw nothing indicating insanity. One of them said he seemed to be under the influence of alcohol that he was in a drug store each time and was ordered out of two of them.

Julia Clup Praised in New York.

Julia Clup, who will sing in Canyon April 21st, has the praise of the world's greatest musicians and critics.

In a recital in New York Feb. 11, she received the following words of praise by the Musical American:

The principal feature was two symphonic songs, "Moonrise" and "Requiem" by Joseph Stransky, the orchestra's conductor, sung by Julia Clup. These songs, though their subject matter is hardly of a grade to interest the public, are made with the taste and knowledge of a thorough musician, and for musicians who are able to understand and appreciate this form of art—though it requires a considerable musical education to do so—it was most interesting to observe the cleverness with which Mr. Stransky, especially in the second number, had made use of certain effects involving "Leitmotif" and the introduction of a short fugato. The voice part is declamatory rather than melodic and was capably done by Mme. Clup, who was in excellent voice and had more of an opportunity to please the audience in three Strauss songs (with piano accompaniment) of her second group which were received with great enthusiasm.

Thanks.

Seymour, Ind., Feb. 29, 1916. Randall County News, Canyon, Texas.

Dear Sirs: As I am a land owner in Randall County I think I ought to help boost things along, as your paper is doing more than its part in boosting the Panhandle. I believe from my heart in what I have seen in the Panhandle, there is a great future in store for that country.

I have been thousands of miles in different parts and must say I found nothing that appealed to me like the Panhandle of Texas.

With best wishes to your efforts, I am

What Happens when a Man Loses His Temper

A father lost his head and began beating his boy for being out late nights. When the whipping was over the old man said: "There, I guess that will hold you for a while. When I was a boy of your age, my father would not let me hang around late nights."

At this rebuke the boy replied, "He must have been a devil of a father."

This got the man's goat, and he yelled at the lad, with an emphasis on the adjective. "He was a dam sight better father than you have!"

Mothers.

Mothers are the queerest things!
'Member when John went away,
All but mother cried and cried
When they said good-bye that day.
She just talked, and seemed to be
Not the slightest bit upset—
Was the only one who smiled!
Others' eyes were streaming wet.

But when John came back again
On a furlough, safe and sound,
With a medal for his deeds,
And without a single wound,
While the rest of us hurraed,
Laughed and joked and danced about,
Mother kissed him, then she cried—
Cried and cried like all git out!

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form. Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good. Budding and Grafting Fruit Trees

From the Fansas Farmer— Budding is usually used in the propagating of the stone fruits, such as the peach, cherry and plum. The seedlings grown and used for the stocks must be in active growth when the budding is done. The bark must peel readily, leaving the active inner cells of the cambium layer upon the young woody growth. The bud which is to produce the new plant of the desired variety, must come in contact with this layer of active cells. In preparing the stock for the bud, two cuts are made through the bark in the form of a "T." The bark is then raised, being careful not to injure the inner layer. The bud which has been removed from the "bud stick" with a sharp, thin-bladed knife, is slipped in under the opened bark of the stock. It is held in place by wrapping it with cord or narrow strips of cotton cloth. These must be cut a week or two after the work is done. In budding peaches, care must be exercised to avoid using any fruit buds for propagation. The fruit buds of peaches are found on the new growth. Grafting is the method usually employed in propagating apple trees. The whip graft, such as is used in the nurseries, must be made in the winter time. The only method of grafting that is practical as the growing season begins, is cleft grafting. This is used in top working trees of some size where it is desired to introduce a new variety using the established tree as the stock. In cleft grafting the limb of the tree is sawed off and then split by the use of a heavy knife or a knife specially designed for the purpose. The twig of the variety desired is brought to a wedge shape at the lower end and is inserted in the cleft of the stock tree. It must be so placed that the cambium layer of the twig or scion comes in close contact with the similar layer in the stock. The split in the stock must be protected by covering it with grafting wax. One of the most commonly used preparations is that composed of rosin four parts, by weight, beeswax two parts, and tallow one part. These are melted together, and when melted are poured into water and as soon as it is hard enough to handle it is worked over until it becomes tough and light yellow in color. The hands must be greased when handling this wax. Some of this wax should be so placed on the graft as to keep all moisture out and prevent the germs of decay from getting a start.

Judgment.

It is not wise to use the judgment throne, unless you have no blemish of your own. Are you so free from every sin and vice, so pure in thought, so everlasting nice, that you dare judge the gents who mis-behave, call one a chump, another one a knave? Is your own record like the driven snow, that at a neighbor you the harpoon throw? This morn' I heard old Jabez Weatherwax rip sundry fellows up their absent backs; one bents his wife home with anguish fills, one borrows cash, one doesn't pay his bills; all have their faults, as Weatherwax explained; licentiousness is in their nature grained. And so I said, "O Jabez Weatherwax, a man like you, who high in virtue stacks, a man so wise, a man so trusty good, should not permit his wife to saw the wood, to pack in coal, since days are growing cool, to wash the clothes, and labor like a mule. I see her skinnin' as I pass your home, while you sit there, your whiskers white with foam, and roast your neighbors till the air is blue—and all of them are better men than you." This brought a round of rapturous applause, and Jabez folded up his safety jaws.—Walt Mason.

A Thought for the Week.
Here then, are the dominating and valuable working habits of President Wilson: punctuality, exactness, the incessant search for information, the knowledge that sentiment and human emotions must play some part in the driest routine of Government business ability as a rapid thinker, and an extraordinary mental alertness, which is the product of his habit of exercising his mind always. He is not only punctual himself, but he requires punctuality from others. If a man is ever late once for an appointment with the President, neither he nor the President ever forgets it. Like any other great man, he realizes that good brain work depends upon good, all-round physical condition. It might be well to mention here that he never smokes. In this he is like his two predecessors—Roosevelt and Taft.—American Magazine.

Talkin about cleaning up, have you ever noticed how the up-to-date railroads keep their premises? Canyon is proud to be on the main line of the Santa Fe. There is not a better road in the southwest and the premises of the road are kept in perfect condition. There are regular cleaning periods in all departments of the railroad. It is run in as systematic manner as are the trains on the rails. It pays the railroad to follow such rigid cleanliness program and it would pay every town on its line to follow its example. Let the Canyon people adopt the system of this great railroad.

What do you know about the fellow who passes a reporter on the street practically every day and never mentions a particular item of news and then gets mad because it doesn't appear in the paper? That's what just happened in Canyon, and the item of news was a new baby at the man's home. Heavens to Betsy, men, tell us the news or don't get sore if we fail to hear of it through another channel.

A joint toast program was held on last Thursday evening between the ex-students of the state university, who sat at banquet tables in Dallas and in New York. The line was open for one hour and Dr. Battle, acting president of the university made a short talk to the banqueters in the two cities from Austin. The wonders of the telephone have been revealed greatly during the past few months. The world is growing smaller every day.

The President scored another victory by the vote of the house Tuesday. And this time it was a Texan who was trying to oppose the President. Jeff McLemore was the man, a congressman at large, and here's hoping that after the July primaries he will be at large and without a congressional job. But Jeff is a wheel horse of the anti side of the house and will command their entire strength.

W. P. Lane is dead. He has been prominent in Texas politics for many years. No matter what you may have thought of W. P. Lane as a man, all must admit that he was a fighter for the cause which he thought was right and did much to promote the prohibition cause in the state.

Senator Gore tried to "stack the cards" in his contest in congress last week on the warning proposal, and is now boasting of it, since his defeat. He has hardly gained by such methods. He had many friends in the southwest who do not believe in that kind of politics.

The senate stood by the President by a vote of 68 to 14. Even if the resolution had passed, would it have had any more effect than for congress to pass a resolution warning men to keep away from the business end of a kicking mule? Hardly.

Gen. Villa is to seek refuge in the U. S., coming by way of El Paso. Wonder how much of that gold he is bringing.

Quannah Observer: Congressman Stephens writes the Observer that he is looking into the matter of "preparedness" and will in due time make his stand known to voters in his district. Which is what the voters want to know. Indian affairs do not interest voters of Mr. Stephens' district at all. But how he stands on the live question of the day—that is what they want to know. They stand for preparedness by a very large majority.

John will be for "preparedness" all right, when the time comes, and he sees how things stand in the district, but he has already has a say, which the people remember and no political changing of the mind, will save his scalp in July.

Clarendon News: In expressing doubt as to the truthfulness of a report published in the Randall County News about a rat eating the powder and shot out of a shot gun shell, Editor Jess Adams says of Editor Warwick, that heretofore Adams had looked upon Warwick as "a paragon of veracity." The word indicated by the dash was absolutely blotted out of the paper we read, so we are not certain whether he said "paragon" or "paroxysm."

Ge, but that story gets worse as it goes. It started with only the shot, now the powder is included and before long we expect to read about the entire drug store being devoured by the same said rat.

Motley County News: The advertising manager of Sears, Roebuck & Co. stated at a recent meeting of advertisers that his company kept a force of men whose sole duty it is to read the country newspapers. Where they find a sheet devoid of advertising from local merchants, they flood the section with their catalogues and advertising matter. Could anything be a better argument in favor of advertising? We to newspapers, he is in it to win.

Canyon is "blessed" with extra large shipments of these catalogues, and yet some merchants, who don't believe in doing much advertising, wonder how they can stop the mail order business.

Jerry Dalton of the Estelline News has bought the Memphis Democrat. There'll be a hot time in Memphis with Jerry at the head of the Democrat to make life miserable for Senator Johnson of the Herald.

It seems that Morris is in the race for the governorship to win. Most of the people thought his announcement was an advertising scheme for future use, but from letters he is sending out to newspapers, it is in it to win.

Newton D. Baker, former mayor of Cleveland has been appointed secretary of war by President Wilson.

"Informal" Census of Canyon.

At an "informal" meeting of some of the young men of the city the other evening it was decided to figure the census of Canyon. The delivery boys and the postoffice force furnished the information. The delivery boys furnished the information as to the location of the houses in Canyon and the people who lived in these houses and C. F. Hunt gave the number of people who received mail at these homes. Figuring on this basis, the young man found there were 1832 people in the city.

F. M. WILSON,
Mayor of Canyon City, Texas

Attest, C. R. Flesher, City Secretary,

—if it were not for advertising, what would you know of the necessities and luxuries of life? How would you order from your grocer, your druggist, your hatter, your clothier? Advertising has simplified the problem for you; it has acquainted you with the things you need and desire.

—think of food products, of shirts, of automobiles, of pianos. You know these articles by name, by brand; you know of them because you have seen them advertised. This, then, proves the value and necessity of advertising. Without advertising the world would be in a sorry plight of commercial ignorance.

—Mr. Merchant, your ad should be in the News every week, telling about your goods. The people are looking every week for a message from your store.

There is a Real Difference

Cream of tartar, derived from grapes, is used in Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder because it is the best and most healthful ingredient known for the purpose.

Phosphate and alum, which are derived from mineral sources, are used in some baking powders, instead of cream of tartar, because they are cheaper.

If you have been induced to use baking powders made from alum or phosphate, use Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder instead. You will be pleased with the results and the difference in the quality of the food.

SAVES DAUGHTER

Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End.

Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months. I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles. Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me. At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing. I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health. If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui today. Delay is dangerous. We know it will help you, for it has helped so many thousands of other weak women in the past 50 years."

How to get on in the World.

Most of our successful men began life without a dollar. They have won success by hard work and strict honesty. You do the same. Here are rules for getting on in the world:

1. Be honest. Dishonesty seldom makes one rich, and when it does, riches are a course. There is no such thing as dishonest success.
2. Work. The world is not going to pay for nothing. Ninety per cent of what men call genius is only a talent for hard work.
3. Enter into that business of trade you like best, and for which nature seems to have fitted you, provided it is honorable.
4. Be independent. Do not lean on others to do your thinking or to conquer difficulties.
5. Be conscientious in the discharge of every duty. Do your work thoroughly. No one can rise who slights his work.
6. Don't try to begin on top. Begin at the bottom and you will be surer of reaching the top, some time.

Facts About the Normal.

(By George R. Caldwell, in Daily and Weekly Panhandle.)

The new building of the West Texas State Normal College here is approaching completion and will be turned over by the Contractor on the 21st of the coming April.

The building will cost over Four Hundred Thousand dollars, as against the One Hundred and Ten Thousand dollars, cost of the one destroyed by fire the new building having the many advantages over the old one, inclusive of absolute fire proof construction; an additional story in height; and increased length of nine feet and four and one half feet width for the wings of the building; steel frame throughout; cement flooring; the use of hollow files in all partitions; and the placing of all the laboratories on the top floor, with a consequent maximum of light and minimum of dust.

The basement runs the full length and width of the building and contains both steam and hot air heating plants; ventilating fans; manual training and athletic equipment; and nine thousand gallon swimming pool with cold and heated water; baths; toilets, etc.

The first floor of the building is chiefly devoted to the administration offices; the second floor principally to the library and auditorium; while the third floor is the location of all the science, and agriculture.

The auditorium has 74 by 80 feet of floor space; a 40 foot ceiling; a stage depth of 25 feet; will seat twelve hundred people; and is the latest heard from in acoustics.

The library has at present seventy five hundred volumes, figures which are soon to be increased; and the various laboratories are of the latest scientific equipment.

The dimensions of the building are 337 by 300 feet and it is constructed of Elgin-Butler pressed brick with Jones county stone trimmings and interior finishings of soft yellow pine and some maple.

One Thousand Students

The college has now 600 students and President Cousins says that with the opening of this year's summer term in the new building the attendance will number 800 with a probable final development for the term to one thousand students.

College students come from all over Texas, with a considerable and steady growing attendance from New Mexico, Oklahoma and Colorado.

The building is to be equipped with lights on what is known as the "indirect plan", and present connection with the Canyon city electric plant, the building, however, is to soon have an individual light system and it already has its own water and sewage plant.

College Grounds.

The College grounds comprise forty acres, of which ten acres are being utilized for scientific and experimental agriculture use.

A large portion of the grounds are handsomely planted with shrubbery and floral planting and the now growing of several hundred black locust, maple and elm trees, to which one hundred trees are to be once added.

To Tell a Hen That Lays.

While the trap nest is the most dependable method by which to select birds of high egg production, the additional labor and expense involved prohibits its use under most farm conditions. Without the trapnest, one must resort to external indications.

When selecting pullets, choose only those from early hatches with strong constitutional development, early producing pullets, heavy eaters, early risers, later retires and active. Hens of highest egg production have a feminine appearance, fine head, alert eyes, comb, face, and wattles fine of texture and medium in size. They should stand square on their feet, legs wide apart; with the front end of the body slightly higher than the posterior end, long black and tail carried rather high. The body should present a wedge-shaped appearance, yielding ample room for the reproductive and digestive organs. Late molters make heavier winter egg producers.—S. M. SYNOPSIS.

Dugley Larnigan, district attorney, because of his fight on the vice and liquor trusts, is killed by an agent of a secret society, the committee of fifteen. The fight is continued by his son, Bruce, who is elected district attorney, and by another son, Tom. Bruce is in love with Dorothy Maxwell, whose father is head of the insurance trust.

for her car, determined to drive to the office of the Independent, the newspaper which Bruce Larnigan controlled in the interests of his battles for the people.

Almost the first person she met in the editorial office was Robert Harding, who hurried toward her eagerly. "I think I have found a way to help you," she said impulsively. "I have remembered that father has at home a book with the names of the members of the Fifteen and their secret by-words, minutes, and so on. That book ought to let us know who the mysterious head of the milk trust is. We can then force him to come out into the open."

"Good!" echoed Harding, with enthusiasm. "When you have the book let me know."
"I will," the girl promised, and then she caught her breath sharply. Just behind them stood Stanford Stone with a slight smile on his lips.

She felt that Stone was watching her intently as she passed out of the office, and she quickened her pace. But her mind was made up.

"I'll find the book," the girl decided, "and then take father to our home in the mountains. Mr. Harding can come there for it."

This decision made, she lost no time in carrying it out. Her search for the Journal of the Fifteen was a short one, as she knew the book was in her father's private desk in the library and had not been removed since his seizure. With the little red covered book in her possession she rushed preparations for their departure to the mountains so hurriedly that by 9 o'clock that evening she and her father were on their way and a note had been sent to Harding telling him where he could reach them.

It was at 10 o'clock the next morning that Dorothy, reading to her father in the cheery living room of their little country home, glanced up to see the figure of Stanford Stone entering the rustic gate of the grounds. She stopped abruptly. The precious book was in the bosom of her dress, but she knew that Stone would stop at nothing, not even physical violence to her, to gain possession of it. Her glance traveled swiftly about the room. On a table lay her father's silk hat. With a quick movement Dorothy caught up the hat and slipped the book into the lining just as Stanford Stone was announced.

Dorothy spoke a few words of careless greeting to him and left him alone with her father. Hardly had the door closed behind her when Stone bounded from his chair and sprang to the side of Mr. Maxwell. There was murder in his eyes.
"Curse you!" he growled. "Where is that book?"

Terror sprang into the eyes of the helpless old man, and then came a fortunate interruption. Voices sounded from outside, and Dorothy and Robert Harding appeared. Stone quickly changed his attitude and was gently stroking Maxwell's hair when the couple entered the room.

"I am going to take your father into the grounds for a little air, Miss Dorothy," he said. Catching up Maxwell's hat, to the girl's dismay, he caught the handle of the wheel chair and pushed it ahead of him.

Stone escorted Maxwell to the edge of the grounds without uttering a word, his mouth set in a hard, grim line. A gang of laborers had been at work on a rustic bridge spanning a high gully, at the bottom of which gushed an angry little torrent. Stone pushed Maxwell's chair out on to the edge of the bridge and glanced about him swiftly, debating as to the best method to force speech from the closed lips. A man in overalls was occupied in removing some of the old planks from the center of the bridge preparatory to substituting new and stronger ones. As Stone watched him the man put on his hat and started off whistling, evidently for nails or tools to complete his task, leaving a gaping hole perhaps six feet across.

Hardly was the laborer out of sight when Stone darted toward the opening thus exposed and hastily pulled back into place the old boards, adjusting them in such a way that they would be dislodged with the slightest weight placed upon them. As Stone strolled back to the chair Dorothy and Harding appeared from the house. Stone scowled, and then, turning his back, idly dropped Maxwell's hat over the bridge to determine the distance to the water below and ascertain whether a fall through the rotten timbers of the bridge would be fatal.

"I thought you might like to see Mr. Harding for a few minutes, father, before he goes. But where is your hat? You will catch cold."

"I am afraid, Miss Maxwell, that it is up to me to get your father a new hat," broke in Stanford Stone. "I accidentally knocked it off the bridge."

"Will you help me to the rescue, Mr. Harding?" asked Dorothy, pointing to the hat and ignoring Stone. Harding followed the direction of her pointing hand, saw the hat on the farther edge of the chasm-like ravine and offered his arm to the girl to help her across the bridge. She accepted with a little smile, and the two stepped on to the planks, while Stone drew back with stolid face. If they reached the middle of the bridge the two would plunge to their deaths through the rotten planks he had arranged.

Stone calmly drew out a cigarette and lighted it. And then he dropped the match with an imprecation. Something had made Dorothy Maxwell pause suddenly, wheel squarely about and stare back at her father.

"There is something on your mind, dad!" cried Dorothy. "There is something you are trying to tell me and can't. Oh, what is it?"

For a horrible moment the lips of Maxwell worked convulsively, but no words came from them.

Again the lips of the paralytic worked with frantic eagerness, and now as the girl bent pitiously nearer she heard husky, broken words.

"Don't cross the bridge, daughter—if—your—value—your—life!"

Dorothy sprang to her feet and whirled toward the spot where Stanford Stone had been standing. But he was gone.

Harding was aroused by a voice from the direction of the yard. He turned and saw the figure of a man who ordinarily would have passed as a prosperous merchant, but who was now in a plainly disheveled condition.

"Curse you!" he growled. "Where is that book?"

"My name is Burrows, John Burrows," said the newcomer, advancing and speaking in a thin, nervous voice. "I am the president of the Consolidated Milk Supply company. You are ruining me, Mr. Harding, with your ruinous price reductions in the city milk supply. I have come to ask you what terms you are willing to give and call off your fight."

"Terms?" snapped Harding, clenching his fists. "Do you think that I would stoop to make terms with a man of your type, Burrows? You are one of the miserable, despicable grafters of the Secret Fifteen. You are a man whom every decent citizen should be ashamed to see at liberty. You are one of the men responsible for the condition of poor Bruce Larnigan and for God knows how many more crimes! I shall tear you and your limb from limb before I am through!"

Impulsively Harding started toward the other, and quickly Burrows turned, with stark terror in his eyes, and ran straight out over the bridge! Dorothy cried out to him to come back, but the man either did not hear or was afraid to stop. On he dashed until suddenly he reached the rotten planks in the center and plunged with a wild shriek through the opening down into the chasm below.

Dorothy sank back into Harding's arms, sobbing pitiously, with the doomed man's shriek still ringing in her ears. Another of the Fifteen had paid the penalty of the Larnigan vengeance.

With the death of Burrows came the collapse, final and irrevocable, of the graft trust.

Realizing that they plotted and fought in vain against the energetic crusaders, Bruce and Tom Larnigan and Robert Harding, ably assisted by Dorothy Maxwell, the survivors of the formerly omnipotent Fifteen sought peace.

The terms were imposed by Bruce Larnigan, now happily recovering, and Robert Harding and were ratified by Tom Larnigan, returning from Brazil. These terms were severe, but just. All nefarious interference with the business of the country was stopped immediately. So far as possible restitution was made to the victims of the graft trust from the private fortunes of Stanford Stone, head and front of the graft trust, and his accomplices.

Naturally all this was not accomplished without much toil, for the ramifications of the graft trust's operations had extended far and wide into American life. But it was done, and then Stanford Stone, with a final malediction on the Larnigans and all connected with them, sailed for a long vacation in South America.

Dorothy Maxwell found a loving husband in Bruce Larnigan, and the two devoted themselves to making as comfortable as possible the few remaining years of her stricken father, who had, of course, been compelled to sever all connection with business. And Tom Larnigan, returning triumphantly from South America with much important evidence of smuggling for the government's secret service, was made happy by Kitty Rockford's acceptance of his proposal.

FINAL EPISODE
The Milk Battle
 Suggested by FREDERIC S. ISHAM, Author of "The Strollers," "Under the Rose," "Aladdin From Broadway," Etc.

"Is there a chance for his recovery?" The doctor, who was bending over the side of the wan faced young man in the wheel chair, shook his head slowly as he looked up at the young woman who had asked him the question.
 "I won't try to deceive you or raise false hopes, which may never be realized, Miss Maxwell. Mr. Larnigan is in a very critical condition. Death may come any day. The best we can do is to hope and pray."
 A sturdy, thoughtful man of perhaps thirty-five waved his hand toward her from an automobile, which had drawn up beside the gate.
 "Good morning Miss Maxwell. And how is our patient today?"
 "About the same, Mr. Harding," said the young woman sadly, as he assisted her to a seat beside him.
 Robert Harding, Bruce's lawyer cousin, reached over and patted her arm gently.

"There is one thing that I am going to do, Miss Dorothy, and in which you can give me real assistance. I am going to continue the battle against the graft trust where Bruce left off, and I am going to fight to the death!"
 The girl impulsively caught his hand. Harding told the girl that he had induced wealthy philanthropists to finance a milk company that would fight the milk trust.

Six weeks passed—six strenuous weeks on the part of Robert Harding and the newly organized People's Milk Supply company. The People's Milk company as a legitimate, sound business enterprise was coming into its own, but it was increasingly plain that the mysterious opposition it was receiving would stop at nothing to put it permanently out of commission. For instance, the prices of the trust began to drop steadily, so steadily, in fact, that from a financial viewpoint it became impossible for Harding and his associates to meet them.

Harding called a hurried meeting of his associates in his private office and the men responded with dubious faces, for the venture had already cost a considerable amount. "Gentlemen," announced Harding, coming to the point without delay, "we are here because we are confronted with a grave crisis in our affairs. Unless we can raise more immediate cash and are prepared to continue our operations for the near future at a loss I fear that we must decide that our project is a failure."
 In a short time $150,000 was realized, and Harding was delighted.

He telephoned the good news to Dorothy Maxwell, who received it with a thoughtful face. For a few moments she paced the floor of her room nervously. She knew in her own mind that the milk trust was one of the branches of that sinister organization known as the Fifteen, of which her father, as head of the insurance trust, at one time had been a member. How could she use this fact to the advantage of Harding? She debated the question anxiously. Finally she called

P. & O. No. 111 Lister

This Lister is known by farmers wherever sold as P. & O. No. 111, but the improved type is called No. 111 on account of important improvements.

There are more of them in the hands of farmers than all other makes combined—over 2,000 sold by one dealer, in one county in West Texas. The special features on this Lister made it deserving of its immense sale. Its use is not confined to preparing for row crops; it is now almost universally used for plowing for small grain crops by listing and re-listing, leaving the ground in oval waves, which not only catches and holds the moisture but prevents the loose soils of the West from blowing away.

The adjusting link on front end of beam is an important exclusive feature on the No. 111, absolutely preventing the point from running below the desired depth. The wheels are provided with dust-proof boxes, an immense help in the sandy loam lands of the West.

The feeding device absolutely deposits one seed at a time of any of the row crops, besides can be equipped for both corn and cotton. You will have to see this wonderful improvement to appreciate it. The lifting hoppers allow change of plates without emptying them. Furnished with either disc or shovel covers.

This Lister has embodied many other important features that will convince you that it is the best on the market.

The P. & O. No. 123 4-Wheel Lister

This Lister has all the advantages of the No. 111 and in addition has rear wheels. This is desired in many localities as it enables the operator to see the seed as planted. The rear wheels have cushion springs to hold them in line with the row and following the unevenness of the ground and conform to the ridge without straining the rear frame, compelling, also, the Lister to remain in proper working position at all times. The friction lock disengages automatically, allowing the wheels to castor and turn round in a very small space.

We manufacture the most complete line of Two Row implements on the market. Ask your dealer and if you cannot be supplied through him, write us for circular and special introductory offer.

Bailey May Ent'r Race.

A number of friends of Joseph W. Bailey recently wired Mr. Bailey, urging him to enter the race for U. S. Senator from Texas. The following letter was received in reply this week:

"I had left here for the West before your telegram of January 31st reached my office, and as I was absent for more than three weeks arguing three different cases for three different clients at three different places, I was not able to show you the courtesy of the prompt acknowledgment which I would otherwise have made.

"I greatly appreciate the good-will which your message implies, and I do not value it any the less because I am not now inclined to become a candidate for the Senate. I do not say positively that I will not make the race, because my friends have been, and still are, insisting so strenuously upon my candidacy that I may feel at last compelled to yield. I hope, however, that they will permit me to remain in private life, because I can enjoy a freedom from responsibility, care and attack which no man in public life ever escapes if he does his duty faithfully and fearlessly. Sincerely thanking you for the confidence and good-will with which you honor me, I am

Very truly your friend,
J. W. BAILEY.

The Nature Man.

The following is a synopsis of the Nature Man, which will be shown at the Happy Hour Saturday night.

The Nature Man is the most exciting, instructive and most fascinating film novelty of the season, declared a world renowned explorer recently. The Nature Man shows how Joe Knowles big game hunter, trapper and soldier went into the wilds of the Sierra Nevada Mountains in California and again in the trackless Maine woods without shelter, just as a new-born babe and fought for an existence, incidentally winning a bet of several thousand dollars. Knowles leaves civilization striped of everything except his brains. He makes a fire from two sticks which he rubs together until friction creates a flame; he clothes himself with the skins of animals he kills before the camera lens; builds his own shelter hut, canoe, traps and bows and arrows, and comes out of the forest at the end of six months with enough skins to provide him with a year's living expenses in civilization.

Block Number Six

Kenneth and Albert Edmonds returned home Monday from a three week's trapping excursion near Ceta. These boys with two younger brothers have done well this winter trapping in spare time, their work netting them $85, of which $24 was bounty on coyotes and jack rabbits.

In a "ciphering" contest between the members of the third grade arithmetic class at Keenan school Adelheid Meyer wrote the multiplication tables in ten minutes closely followed by Louise Meyer and James Jennings who finished in eleven minutes. In a free-for-all contest, Albert Meyer won in eight and one-half minutes.

Mrs. T. C. Jennings was a visitor at Keenan school Thursday. Wm Boehning has returned from a business trip to Tulia.

Edward Woolfe of Barrington, Ill., arrived here Monday and will work for Henry Miller this summer.

T. C. Jennings and William Michael are painting their houses.

Two new wells have been put down in the "Block" this spring, one by Geo. Wendelken and one by Emil Albers.

There will be an election for school trustees in district 14 on April 16.

We have with us Mr. and Mrs. Emil Albers and Mr. and Mrs. Wm Michael. These young people recently married at Wisner, Neb., and have come to Block Six to farm their own land. Mrs. Albers and Mrs. Michael are accomplished young women. Mrs. Albers taught for several years in Wisner. Mrs. Michael has spent one year in the University of Nebraska. Messrs. Albers and Michael are enterprising farmers and cattlemen. It is such men and women as these that the Panhandle delights to welcome.

When to Prune Ornamental Trees.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 29.—A little early care given to the pruning of ornamental trees and shrubs during the early part of March will do much to control their growing and flowering habits, and enable the home owner to have well former plants and well trained hedges or boundary plantings. The pruning of ornamental trees and shrubs is, in fact, one of the first duties that may profitably be performed in the home garden. The amateur, however, should not make a ruthless assault with shears or pruning knife upon everything in his yard. Flowering trees and shrubs that bloom in the spring or early summer should not receive radical pruning at this time, according to the garden specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Of course, if on these plants there are dead or weak branches, these should be taken out and any crossing limbs that are rubbing and seriously interfering with the growth of the bush should be removed. The tips of the limbs, however, should not be cut off nor should any young wood that does not interfere with the growth of the bush be removed. It must be borne in mind that the blossom buds for this year's flowering were formed last year, and every shoot removed takes off that much of the prospective blossoms.

Trees and shrubs that bear their flowers in midsummer and which were not pruned in the fall may be pruned at this time. Plants of this sort are the Rose of Sharon and the shrubby hydrangea. Where the largest possible mass effect is desired, these plants should be pruned but little. If the aim is to secure the largest possible trusses or blossom heads, last year's growth should be pruned back to two or three eyes to a stem. Such severe pruning however, is not conducive to the most attractive development of shrubs. Climbing roses should not be pruned at this time except for the removal of surplus or interfering branches. Every bit of wood removed now reduces the amount of bloom the plant will bear during the coming season. Roses used in border planting should be treated in exactly the same way as other shrubs, except that many of these species will be improved by having all their old wood cut away once in every five or six years. This would mean cutting all the old canes off within three or four inches of the ground and forcing the bush to throw up entirely new wood.

Roses used for cut flowers, like the hybrid perpetuals, the hybrid teas, and teas, should be severely pruned. The hybrid perpetuals may be cut as soon as freezing weather is past. Pruning of the hybrid teas and teas, however, should be left until the young growth has started. In both cases the plant should be cut to within six inches or one foot of the ground. Four or six eyes to a stem is about the proper amount of wood to leave.

These border battles between officers and outlaws are very bad for the state. First thing anybody knows we will be in the same class with New York and Chicago.—Albuquerque Journal.

That height reached at the expense of another's downfall can never be permanent.

The Face of Davenport, Iowa.

They are doing things in Davenport, Iowa in the way of beautifying their city, that may well make other communities sit up and take notice. Three years ago the Rotary Club of that city offered 47 cash prizes, from $2.50 to $25, to those who would clean up and beautify their yards of their homes. They got many persons interested, and there were 2000 entries. Last spring there were 7000 persons interested, and 7000 entries. As there are only 8000 homes in Davenport with yards attached to them, seven homes in every eight are busy cleaning up and beautifying. Each autumn the award of the prizes is an event in the largest opera house in the city. With private homes starting to make their yards blossom with flowers or vegetables, business houses became interested, and last year there were over 7000 feet of flower boxes in the windows of the leading business firms. Three large corporations caught the fever and transformed properties adjacent to their plants into flower gardens and miniature parks. And so, in three years, the face of a city has been transformed. What Davenport has done other cities can do. All that it needs is a little initiative on the part of some person or club or organization, and something has been started that will quickly take hold of the imitation of everyone in the community.—Ladies Home Journal.
