

MARSHALL SPEAKS FOR AMERICANISM

Declares Hyphenates Should be Ousted Bespeaks Golden Rule Before Large Audience Tuesday

Eradication of the hyphenated American and the application of the golden rule to all of the business and political institutions of the nation were urged by Thomas R. Marshall, Vice President of the United States in an address in the Normal auditorium, Tuesday night, as the one and only method of confronting the problems facing the nation today.

Mr. Marshall was introduced to his audience, amid cheers, by President J. A. Hill.

Mr. Marshall referred only casually to the result of the recent presidential election. He expressed the belief that the desire of the majority had ruled, and that as ever under democratic rule, the voice of the people would hold the upper hand.

"I am not discouraged over the outlook," declared the Vice President. "In traveling over the country during the past year, I have become confident that there are no great men, only those who do something for God and their fellowmen. And as I stop and consider, I believe that the greatest among these is Evangeline Booth. During the recent war, it was the southland, the states which once threatened to disrupt the union, which were making the cry for volunteers in order to preserve those principles on which the union is founded—those principles transmitted to us from the fathers.

"We were told, with the signing of the armistice, that the world had been made safe for democracy. We were told with the handing down of the Magna Charta that the world had been made safe for democracy. We were told with the signing of the Declaration of Independence that the world had been made safe for democracy. And as I am carried back through the ages, I remember of reading that with the crucifixion of the Son of God, on Calvary, between two thieves, that the world had been made safe for democracy. There will always be some evil to take the place of an outgoing one.

"Evidence of the present day one is the hyphenated American. If I had the power, I would make it so that no one should stand under that flag of stars and stripes who could not speak, write and understand the English language. I used to be in favor of and glory in the fact that America was called the melting pot. Now I believe that if the man who enters this country from abroad will not melt, that he should be sent home to his land across the sea. I would take the ballot from those who do not write, read and speak the English language. I am not enamored with the English language for any reason other than that it is the language spoken by Americans."

The speaker here related an incident which occurred while he was serving as governor of Indiana in 1908, and when 2700 foreigners employed at the Gary steel mills, lined up and cast their first American ballot.

"I will not say for certain, but I am of the belief that most of them voted the republican ticket," declared Mr. Marshall. "And I always will believe that it was a political trick, because in an investigation which followed the election in 1908, it was brought out that when the foreigners entered the restaurants, and were asked what their orders would be, they replied Taft."

"Only a month ago," declared Mr. Marshall, "did I learn the facts. I was again in Indiana and a fine, representative American approached me and declared that he wished to correct my interpretation of the incident regarding the voting at Gary. He declared that he was one of the 2,700 men who had lined up and voted and that he, like all of the others had voted for Taft, because he was of the impression that Taft was running for president of the Gary Steel mills."

This incident was cited by the speaker, he declared, to show the necessity for those who cast a ballot, to be familiar at least, with the English language.

Declaring that the basis of democracy is the golden rule, Vice President Marshall said that while touring the country during the months when the United States had entered the war on the side of the allies, he found that his education was not what he had believed it to be.

"I had read in the constitution where the American citizen was insured health, life and the pursuit of happiness. And I believe that it means to live bodily, to enjoy the health of body. But I found that I was wrong. I found that many who are enjoying the things of life were dead. And I found that the spirit of Washington, of Jefferson, of Grant and Lee, who have long rested among our illustrious dead, were alive and lending their efforts and enlisting workers in the fight for survival of Democracy.

"I pity America if the time should come when the roll is called and no one makes answer for the 100,000 lives which were lost on the foreign fields of battle, if there is no one to answer, 'Absent, in the discharge of duty.'"

"There is a hopeful sign for America in the declaration of the Russian soviet that they are unable to secure a foothold in the free land of America."

Denouncing class formation in the United States, Vice President Marshall declared that he was glad that the workers were now getting good returns for their work. "But we do not want an industrial America. We want an industrious America. The man who does not give a full day's work for a full day's pay is not an American freeman. He is a slave to his passion, to his envy and to his greed. Likewise the profiteer, who imagines that liberty entitles him to gouge the public, is a slave of the same kind."

The blame for failure to obtain good government and the kind of government desired rests with the majority of the people, the speaker said. He criticized the enactment of too many laws.

"Conditions which are facing the American people today cannot be put down by armed forces," concluded Mr. Marshall. "The greatest aristocrat will in the end prove to be the greatest Democrat. In every organization there is some great aristocrat who is the guiding hand. We find this in government, in civic clubs and in labor organizations. It is now the duty of all Americans to select their greatest aristocrats and place them in the responsible positions. We cannot imprison an idea. We must out-think it. Thus will America successfully confront the problems facing it."

THANKSGIVING SERVICE IS WELL ATTENDED THURSDAY

There was a good crowd at the union Thanksgiving service held in the Methodist church last Thursday morning. Rev. Ted P. Hollifield preached a very appropriate sermon upon the Thanksgiving occasion.

A collection was taken, amounting to $100 which was placed in the hands of the pastors of the town to be used as they see fit for relief work whenever occasion demands.

ROTARY CLUB WILL BE ENTERTAINED TONIGHT

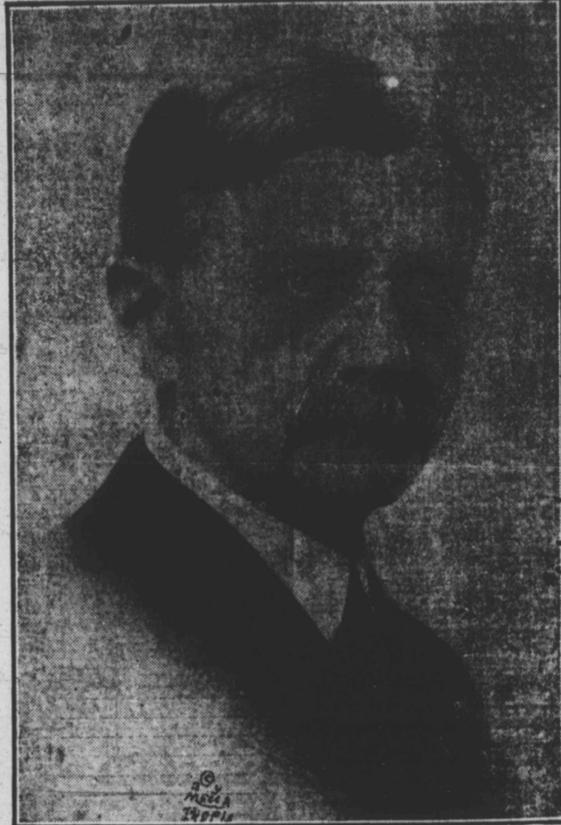

Nearly one hundred members of the Amarillo Rotary Club will be entertained this evening at a luncheon at Cousins Hall at 6 o'clock, following which a reception and program will be held. The visitors will be shown through the new dormitory and the Normal building.

COUNTY OFFICIALS TAKE OATH YESTERDAY MORNING

Yesterday morning, December first, saw considerable changing in the court house when the new officials were sworn in by County Clerk O. W. Gano, and the hold overs took up their duties for the coming two years.

COMMERCIAL LEAGUE LUNCHEON TUESDAY

Members of League and Friends Invited to Cousins Hall at 6:30—Toast Program is Announced.

The annual luncheon and election of officers of the Randall County Commercial League will be held at Cousins Hall next Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock. This luncheon was postponed from Friday night of last week owing to the fact that President J. A. Hill was unable to be present at that time.

Following the luncheon served by Miss Rambo and the young ladies of the Domestic Science Department the following will be the toast program:

Toast Master—Ted P. Hollifield.

What the Randall County Commercial League has accomplished during the past year.—C. W. Warwick.

What the Randall County Commercial League should undertake during the coming year.—C. F. Walker.

How can the city council help the Normal College.—J. W. Reid.

Canyon's Opportunity as viewed by an Outsider.—Mrs. E. F. Guthrie of Hereford.

The American Legion and its relation to the town and community.—H. C. Gamble.

Conserving the Public Health.—City Health Officer, Dr. F. M. Wilson.

How can the Commercial League help the Normal College.—D. A. Shirley and Supt. C. L. Sone.

How can the Normal College best serve the town and county.—President J. A. Hill.

How can the churches help the Normal College.—Rev. B. F. Fronbarger.

All speakers will be limited to five minutes.

Board of Stewards Entertained
The members of the Board of Stewards of the Methodist church, together with their families, were entertained Thanksgiving evening at the W. J. Fleisher home, dinner being served by M. B. Johnson and W. J. Fleisher.

After the social hour the regular monthly business meeting of the Board was held.

Took Shriners Degree
A very large delegation of Canyon people attended the Shriner meeting in Amarillo last week, seven Canyon men taking the degree work.

DEEDS FILED LAST WEEK IN COUNTY

The following deeds have been recorded in the County Clerk's Office the past week and reported to the News by the Randall County Abstract Company:

Wayside Items

Slight fall of snow with a little rain Sunday; made traveling bad for a few hours. However, Monday's sunshine dispelled all trace of either. Snow would possibly benefit the growing wheat but as a number are not thru sowing, farmers generally would like fair weather.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather, no services at the church last Sabbath.

Mrs. W. H. Hamblen, who has recently been threatened with paralysis and daughter Ida May, went to Canyon Saturday to be treated.

Mrs. Ruby Aycock's boys are thought to be some better with the whooping cough. The older one has been very bad.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Dogie Brooks, living south of Wayside a few miles, sympathize with them in the loss of their home and part of contents by fire last Friday. It is thought to have caught by explosion of oil stoves.

Walter Butler, who spent the summer at Wayside, but is now working in Amarillo, spent Saturday and Sunday with his brother, Marshal who makes his home with J. S. Sluder. He will spend the winter at the Sluder's.

Mrs. D. H. Hamblen and Velma Marvin and Mattie, with their mother Mrs. H. P. Hamblen, visited relatives near Amarillo Saturday night and Sunday.

COMMITTEE SEEKS POWER LINE FORM AMARILLO PLANT

A. J. Arnold, manager of the Canyon Light and Power Co., together with representatives from Happy and Tulia visited the power company in Amarillo on Wednesday of last week with a view of laying before the local manager the proposition of building a line from Amarillo to Canyon and on to Happy and Tulia.

Mr. Arnold states that they received but little encouragement from the Amarillo manager, but he was starting that day for New York to attend a meeting of the officials of his company and promised to bring the matter to the attention of the company. The cost of material and labor is prohibitive at this time, was the opinion of the Amarillo manager. He states that the plant in Amarillo is ready and willing to furnish "juice" to all surrounding towns when the time comes that high power lines can be put in.

The gas in Amarillo is said to have cut the fuel cost of the Amarillo plant about 40 per cent. Mr. Arnold believes that it is only a question of time when material and labor will have decreased from the present level that the Amarillo plant will furnish power to every town on the plains. He further states that Canyon is the nearest opening for the Amarillo plant and that he is certain this town will first be reached by the distributing line. He is very anxious for the line to come as his cost of producing "juice" in his local plant is more under present conditions than he could buy the power from the Amarillo concern if the line were established.

High School Notes

Our football boys went to Claude Thanksgiving to play the last game of the season. They went with high hopes of victory, but were surprised to find a well equipped team of good football players. The boys, however, gave their quarterback their full support in every way. The score was 19 to 3 in favor of Claude. The team went in a very crippled position, four of the best men being out almost all of the game. Several others were forced to take their places in a crippled condition themselves.

The basket ball boys have organized and doing good hard work in order to be in condition for the games matched next month.

The third grade led by their teacher, Mrs. J. C. Hays, prepared a Thanksgiving feast Thanksgiving eve. To this feast the Superintendent and teachers were invited. The teachers all testify that the dinner was no play affair, but very substantial and satisfying and complete.

The dinner was served on neat made and hand painted platters. Hand made and hand painted napkins were furnished, all the work of these fine little people. Cocoa also was served. The teachers highly appreciate the entertainment and will never forget it.

The Scribblers Club is progressing very nicely with about twenty-five members. Many good stories have been written and are being written. Three prizes have been offered for the best Christmas stories. Miss Loretti Wiggins and her sister, Miss Fair, are offering the first and second prizes and the club is offering the third.

The monthly tests have been given but the grades do not show up in most cases as well as they did last month, but everyone is sure of making up for it the following month.

B. Y. P. U. Training School
A. J. Carson, field secretary of the B. Y. P. U. of Texas, is here this week conducting a training school for the young people of the church. There has been a large attendance and deep interest among the young people of the town.

Mrs. L. A. Briar Very Sick
Mrs. L. A. Briar, mother of Mrs. C. O. Keiser and Mrs. A. W. Hamill, is very sick at the Keiser home. This morning she is reported to have spent a good night and is seemingly a little improved.

Attended State Association
President J. A. Hill, Dean L. G. Allen, Prof. R. P. Jarrett and Miss Hudspeth attended the teachers association at Ft. Worth Thanksgiving. Miss Hudspeth was one of the speakers on the program.

Snow Falls Sunday—But Weather Continues Warm
Sunday was the most blustery day of the season, with large flakes of snow falling throughout the day. The temperature did not drop much during the day, and practically all of the snow melted as it fell.

Monday threatened real winter weather, with a northwest wind getting colder toward evening. However, with a change of the wind to the southwest during the night, the temperature moderated very much, and the cold was averted. The fall weather has been very pleasing to all.

PISTOL SHOT THROUGH HEART CAUSES DEATH OF SON OF
JOE FOSTER—BODY DISCOVERED MONDAY EVENING.

Roy Foster was found dead on the bed in his room at the Crystal Cafe Monday evening about eight o'clock. A pistol lay on the bed, and examination showed a bullet hole near the heart. He had evidently been dead since Saturday night, when last seen on the streets of the city. At the inquest concluded Tuesday afternoon, Judge A. N. Henson found that the young man came to his death by a self-inflicted pistol shot.

Roy Foster was the son of Joe Foster. He was 21 years of age in October and has spent all his life in this community. He was of a retiring disposition, and was not well known among the people of the community. He kept his sorrows to himself, but always had a smile on his face when he greeted his friends. Brooding over disappointment which had come into his life is supposed to have caused him to take the fatal step which ended in his death.

He was on the streets of the city Saturday evening and was seen by many people. He went to his room at the Crystal Cafe. Mrs. Lovejoy went to the room Sunday morning but found the door locked. Supposing that Roy was asleep, she did not attempt to arouse him. She found the same condition Monday morning, and thought he had decided not to go out to his work on account of the bad weather. Monday evening one of Roy's friends went to the room after a hat. He found the door locked, with paper sticking in the keyhole. He punched the paper out and was surprised to see the lights on and Roy lying on the bed in his clothes. He called Mr. Lovejoy and they climbed up to the outside window, attempting to arouse the young man. Becoming alarmed at no response, officers were called and the door broken open. Roy lay on his side with a pool of blood on the bed clothes from the result of a bullet wound near the heart. There was no evidence of struggle as everything in the room was in order. A 25 automatic pistol lay near by. There was but one cartridge in the gun. One loaded shell to fit the gun was found in the dresser drawer. The general condition of the body would indicate that Roy had been dead since Saturday night.

The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Methodist church, conducted by Rev. Simeon Shaw. A very large concourse of friends gathered to pay their respects to the memory of the young man and mingle their tears in sympathy with the members of the family who are shocked and bereaved at the sudden death of Roy. The body was laid to rest in Dreamland Cemetery. All of the citizens of this community deeply sympathize with Mr. Foster and his good family in their hour of supreme sadness.

KUHLMAN AND OKKENG LEFT MONDAY TO VISIT GERMANY

Herman Kuhlman and Okke Okkenga left Monday for Germany where they will visit for about three months.

Both of the boys came to America several years ago and are among the leading farmers of Randall county. They have made good here and are well pleased with the county. Their friends say that wedding bells will ring before they return to America.

Three Rabbit Guards
We had a fine orchard of apple trees on which we had spent much love and care, and they were just beginning to bear when the rabbits, during a heavy snow, ruined every tree. The rabbits had gone on top of the drifts and had taken every particle of bark, clear up to the branches. We planted a new orchard, and decided that no rabbits should ever get any more of our apple bark.

To protect the trees, we tried many different things. We desired some thing cheap and that would not require much work. We tried washes and paints, but did not find any that gave entire satisfaction. We prefer the offensive washes and paints to those that are poisonous, for poisonous washes are dangerous to domestic animals, and even to children. Usually, neither the paints nor the washes last thru the winter, and two or three applications are necessary. Such things as lead, tar, grease and creosote sometimes kill young trees. The best and safest wash we have ever used is made as follows:

Boil together 1-2 pound of quicklime, 1-2 pound of sulphur in 2 quarts of water 1 hour. Dilute this mixture with hot water to make about 1 gallon and a half, and add to this a pint of strong soap suds. When the mass has cooled, stir in not quite 2 ounces of carbolic acid. Use this while it is fresh and apply with a brush or rag. Usually one application lasts thru the winter, unless there is too much rain or wet snow, when, of course, the stuff is washed off.

Feeding the rabbits in winter helps some to keep them away from the trees. You will never find them eating bark in summer. Where we have a few unprotected and less valuable trees, we scatter cabbage leaves, corn or turnips, and sometimes fruit tree limbs pruned off, if they are in edible condition. Most fall prunings, however, are too dry.

According to our experience, the best and safest way to protect the fruit trees is to wrap them. We have used three kinds of wrappers, newspapers, building paper and tall reeds, all of which are satisfactory. When newspapers are used they should be wrapped around in several thicknesses, and tied with string. We use wrappers 3 feet high where possible. Building paper is good. It stands a lot of rain. Tar paper is not good. We have found tall, stiff reeds, cheap and satisfactory wrappers. We cut the reeds in the fall, and put several handfuls around each tree, and tie securely with twine. The wrappers are taken away and burned in the spring. We now use reed wrappers every winter. As a protection against field mice, we mounded up some ground around each tree late in the fall.—Capper's Farmer.

Machinery Aid to Agriculture
Today practically all farm operations can be done by some machine. The power required for operating is not generated by man, but by animal or mechanical motor directed by man. This marks an important economic and social change in the agricultural world. The man on the farm is no longer the slave of manual labor; he is a director of operations by which the energy furnished by nature is transformed into useful work.—Breeder's Gazette.

Better Sires Campaign Completes First Year

A wider recognition of good-purebred sires and definite knowledge showing how they improve domestic live stock are the outstanding results of the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement, which completed its first year October 1. The purpose of the work is to improve the average quality and general usefulness of live stock in the United States.

During the year, 2,756 persons enrolled and each received an official emblem denoting participation in the movement. These persons listed with the department a total of 131,482 animals and in addition 170,030 head of poultry. According to a summary of results just made public, there is a very small proportion of inferior female stock in herds and flocks headed by purebred sires. Very few of the females are scrubs, only 2.7 per cent. with poultry the figures are still lower, 2.2 per cent. While live-stock experts have generally recognized the beneficial influence of good sires on the quality of farm animals, the very low percentage of scrubs is a surprise even to officials in charge of the better-sires campaign. Taken as a whole the majority of female animals bred to purebred sires are grades. But approximately two-thirds of the sows are purebred; also two-thirds of all poultry listed are of pure breeding.

Of the 46 States cooperating with the United States Department of Agriculture in advancing the merits and use of purebred sires, Virginia, Nebraska, South Carolina, Massachusetts, and Washington have been especially prominent. In Virginia 881 live stock owners have signed agreements to use purebred sires in all classes of animals kept and to follow methods leading to further livestock improvements. Progress has been measured and reported every three months since the campaign started. During the last quarterly period the greatest activity has been manifest in Nebraska, the work being especially prominent in Lancaster, Thurston, Dodge, Cuming, and Dakota counties. The most active single county, however, was Greenville County South Carolina, to which 177 emblems were awarded during the last three months.

Everyone who keeps any kind of domestic live stock is eligible to participate in this Nation-wide plan of improvement. The vast majority of those active in the work are farmers and stockmen; members of boys' and girls' live-stock clubs are likewise taking part. The improvement of all livestock in the United States is a fundamental step toward more economical production and enabling this country more effectively to meet foreign competition. Effective examples in support of this policy are the enrollments by President Wilson of his flock of sheep and by Secretary of Agriculture Meredith of his herd of dairy cattle in behalf of better sires.

In the administration of the improved live-stock program, the United States Department of Agriculture is furnishing data, posters, illustrations and other suitable material to persons interested in raising the quality of stock in their localities. During the coming year the work is to be amplified with a view to furnishing live-stock growers new and useful information on breeding. One branch of this work on the cause and prevention of runty live stock is already in progress.

Do You Pay Rats?

It is estimated that an average of $2 per year is the levy made by rats upon every man, woman and child in the state of Pennsylvania. It is reasonable to believe that a like charge is made by rats upon every man, woman and child in the United States.

Now in view of the fact that thousands of families are so situated that they pay rats nothing, it is reasonable to believe that those who are in the employ of rats pay much larger tribute to them than $2 per year.

We presume that the average levy made by rats upon every farmer in the United States, is quite a large sum in this day of high-priced food-stuffs.

At any rate the subject is worthy of consideration right now when preparations for winter are being made.

We know of no particular advantage in having rats around farms and, therefore, we know of no particular reason why farm buildings should not be made rat-proof nor why rat killing campaigns should not take place wherever rats live, eat, spread disease and levy toll upon those who permit them to do so.—The Dairy Farmer.

Better Clothes--Less Money

Franklin's Lesson to Us

A striking illustration of how money grows is pointed out by the Sioux City Journal as follows:

"The will of Benjamin Franklin, who died in 1790, contained a bequest of $5,000 to the City of Boston and the State of Massachusetts, as a mark of respect for having appointed him as agent in England at the handsome salary of $10,000 yearly. The will also provided that the money should be put out at 5 per cent interest for 100 years. At the end of that time 31-131 of the accumulated money should be reinvested at 5 per cent for another 100 years. The remainder becomes available for public benefits. At the expiration of the second century the whole amount becomes so.

"When the first century ended Jan. 1, 1891, the $5,000 had grown to $431,343. That amount is equally divisible by 131 and is the reason for the peculiar fraction of division which Franklin made a part of the bequest. He had worked out the amount the gift would be worth at that time. In accordance with the provisions of the will, the sum was divided. The reinvested amount was $102,083. The city and state received the remainder, which amounted to $329,300. This sum was set aside for public works.

"On Jan. 1, 1920, the interest-bearing fund had reached $281,195. By the end of the century, that is, 1991, it will have reached approximately $6,000,000. The gift was insignificant when it was made. Had the State and city used it then, neither would have realized more than a remembrance from it. But Franklin saw the possibilities of the accumulated interest and when the end of the second century arrives the State and city will have a fund worth while."

It is more than likely that Franklin saw more than the possibilities of the accumulated interest. Indeed, it is safe to say that the lesson that this bequest would impart to posterity appealed to him more strongly than the fact that the bequest would be larger than it would have been had he not made the peculiar restrictions. Franklin knew better than any leader of American thought that the people of this country stood in greater need of something else than mere bequests of money. He knew that it needed more than anything else to learn the value and character of money and the value also of the homely virtue of thrift. That $5,000 should grow to nearly a half million dollars in 100 years is something that anyone familiar with the rudiments of mathematics could work out for himself. But to provide a specific $5,000 which did actually grow to nearly a half million dollars in 100 years is to demonstrate it in a fashion that drives the lesson home more emphatically than a whole library of books on the subject and many years of sermons could possibly drive it home. Moreover, even those totally ignorant of the simplest laws of interest, in the face of this demonstration, can believe that less than one-fourth of the sum to which original amount has become will grow to be $6,000,000 in another 100 years.

And yet if Franklin had lived the full 200 years and donated to the State of Massachusetts $5,000 every year, the total of his donations would have been only one-sixth of what the remainder of his bequest will be when it becomes available.—Star-Telegram

On a Business Basis

I don't know much about farmers, but unless there is a new species somewhere that I have been unable to discover, farmers don't raise food to keep the world from starving any more than a haberdasher sells clothes to keep people from going around naked!

The agricultural problem must be settled on a basis of business rather than sentiment.

The farmer needs co-operation instead of pity.

He needs constructive assistance rather than altruistic ideals. Agriculture and industry must move forward hand in hand. There must be an understanding and a sympathetic interest between business man and farmer. Industry looks to agriculture as a stabilizing influence. The farmer must look to industry for modern business methods.

Psychological efficiency is just as necessary on the farm as in the factory. Agriculture will in the future be conducted on a business basis. Enthusiasm is a vital tangible business force—that must not be overlooked.

If all of us were sufficiently sold on the future prosperity of agriculture, that ray of prosperity would not be long in coming.

Agriculture needs an advertising manager. The farmer needs a press-agent.—H. G. Weaver.

The Old Straw Stack

That old straw stack left from last year is doubtless still in good condition for use as a mulch on the winter wheat and rye fields. Especially if the wheat or rye has been sown on corn or grain stubble, a mulch of two tons or so of old straw to the acre will be a distinct advantage to the crop, because it will protect it from the rigors of the winter and will also aid in holding the moisture.

Success is not made by lying awake at night, but by keeping awake in the daytime.

How About Your Hog Shelter?

Hogs, more than any other farm animals, require adequate shelter both winter and summer. During the winter they need protection from the cold because they do not have the thick coat possessed by other animals to keep them warm. During the summer they need protection from the hot sun by some form of shade.

The construction of expensive hog houses is not always warranted. If it is possible to provide the necessary protection by means of cheap shelter, it should be done. Many farmers make a practice of keeping the hogs in small colony houses which are found to be satisfactory. The advantage of these is that they can be moved from place to place and used winter and summer. During the winter they should be kept in a protected place if possible and banked with straw or manure for warmth. There are two types of these houses, namely the "A" shaped and the "shedroof" house. The latter is more desirable, as it allows a greater amount of room and is cooler in the summer because the roof does not come so close to the ground. The use of movable colony houses also makes it possible to keep the hogs apart in case of an outbreak of a contagious disease. The number of hogs allowed for each one of these houses depends upon the size of the houses and the hogs. During the winter, four brood sows can easily be kept in one house measuring 8x8 feet. During farrowing time, each sow should be allowed a separate house or some other place suitable for farrowing. The cost of constructing a house of this size need not exceed $15. The following material is necessary to construct a portable house:

- 2 pieces 2x6x8 for runners.
- 8 pieces 2x4x16 for frame.
- 8 pieces 1x12x12.
- 5 pieces 1x12x16.
- 6 pieces 1x12x14.
- 9 pieces 1x2x6.
- Two 4-light windows.
- Hinges and nails.
- 100 square feet roofing.

In case hogs are turned out on pasture and cots or permanent houses are not provided, temporary protection should be put so that they can get into the shade. Pasture, with trees generally affords the necessary shade if these cannot be had, construct a frame covered with old burlap.

Cheaper Meat Animals

Meat animals have been selling by farmers for a whole year ending with September, 1920, at prices that were lower than they were in the preceding year by 14 per cent. The fall in prices, compared with the former years, began in September, 1919. These statements are based on prices ascertained by the Bureau of Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture.

Prices of these animals were gradually increasing to the calendar year 1914, but they fell 8 per cent in 1915, followed by a gain of 17 per cent in 1916, of 49 per cent in 1917, when the peak of gain was reached, of 17 per cent in 1918, and of less than 1 per cent in 1919. Now, for the last 4 months of 1919 and for 1920 to September, there has been a recession of price movement with a drop of 14 per cent.

A Milking Shorthorn Record

A new butterfat record for Shorthorn cows has been made by Snowdrop, a white eight year old cow, owned by Sherwood Farm, Far Hills, New Jersey. During the year ending Oct. 20, 1920, she gave 15,550 pounds of milk, testing 4.45 per cent, 691 pounds of butterfat.

Snowdrop's largest yield of milk butterfat in any month was in December, 1919, when she gave 1603 pounds of milk, testing 4.364 per cent, 70 pounds of butterfat. She gave over 50 pounds of butterfat during every full month of lactation, except the last September, when it fell less than two pounds below the mark. She was kept under practical farm conditions, being out of doors every day during the winter except for two of the stormiest days, and being out doors day and night after the middle of April. She was on poor pasture for a month prior to calving, receiving no grain.

Foreign Advertising Representative THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Vice President Marshall said a number of very wise things in his address Tuesday night. His one statement, "I believe in the golden rule until I get mad," contained a sermon on self control. The old adage, "whom the gods would destroy they first make mad," is a truth that needs preaching today of all days. Anger burns up more energy than a day's work. Anger never was known to accomplish anything. Anger is a sign of the weakest kind of weakness. The man or woman with a chip on his shoulder always gets it knocked off. Such a person was never known to take a prominent part in his own community or in the world in general. Mr. Marshall wished to convey the idea that madness would upset the world. His statement was well put. The golden rule and every other high ideal of a man's life vanishes with the coming of madness.

The present financial condition in America is not something unlooked for or unexpected. It came as a natural result of the long period of advancing prices, prosperity and accompanying wastefulness of the people in general. The financiers of the country do not believe it will be of long duration. The period of readjustment is fast taking place, and within a very short time the country will see a resumption of normal conditions. In the meanwhile, it is a good time to smile and keep working hard.

Those people of this county who have seen the natural gas burning in Amarillo are very anxious that a pipe line extend to Canyon. It would make a wonderful saving in fuel and add greatly to the desirability of Canyon as a resident city.

Every Randall county booster should attend the luncheon at Cousins Hall Tuesday night.

Happy Happenings

Quite cold and windy Sunday; quite a little snow, melting as fast as it hit the ground. Fine weather Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. William Cowan left Friday for Plainview. She was accompanied by Mr. Cowan and children, Earl and Mesdames Earl Whitney and Lester Jones, who returned home Saturday. Mr. Cowan returning Monday. Earl will stay with his mother. She will be under treatment for several days before she has an operation for tumor. At last report she was resting nicely.

Mrs. J. G. Evans entertained her Sunday School class Friday night. All report a lovely time.

Last Wednesday evening from 2 til 4:30 o'clock the Ladies of the Missionary Society entertained a number of ladies at the home of Mrs. A. L. Harrison.

Alton Grounds has been quite sick with pneumonia. He was some better at last report.

Miss Loraine Flesher of Canyon, spent the week-end with home folks. Misses Helen Elrod and Dovie Morris came home with her as her guests.

Mrs. G. N. Caler was called to Hereford Monday by the illness of her sister, Mrs. Burns.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lash were shopping in Canyon Saturday.

Miss Dorothy Reynolds left Wednesday for her home in Michigan. She has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Chas. Trebish for the past month.

J. E. Bragg has been quite sick the past week.

Rev. and Mrs. C. W. McNeely and daughter Inez, were visiting in Tulla Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cha r Wesbite of Amarillo spent Thanksgiving at the parental Joe Waite home. Charles returned on the evening train, but Mrs. Waite will stay for some time.

Several from here attended the box supper at the Jowell School, Miss Nellie Francy teacher. The program was fine and the boxes sold well and a cake was bid on for the prettiest girl. Misses Todd and Nellie Francy tied in the votes.

Miss Mildred McManigal took her school children to the canyons Thanksgiving for a weenie roast and marshmallow toast. Misses Carrie and Laura Bader accompanied them. All report a fine time and hope to go again soon.

Lester Smith of Amarillo spent the week end here with home folks.

Rev. C. W. McNeely preached a Thanksgiving sermon at the Methodist church Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Flesher entertained a number for dinner Monday in honor of Miss Loraine's 15th birthday. There were about twenty present. All report a lovely time.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Fox returned to their home in Amarillo Monday after visiting for several days at the parental John Hendrix home.

E. F. Arnold was a business caller in Tulla Monday.

Mrs. Whittell and children of Canadian are visiting at the parental L. M. Zook home.

Mrs. J. M. Flesher left Wednesday for Canyon to visit the W. J. Flesher home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Evans and Miss Daile returned Friday from Texhoma where they spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Holland.

Mrs. B. F. Johnson of Canyon was here Tuesday where she gave a talk to the B. W. M. W. at the Baptist church. A number of the ladies of the other churches were also present.

O. O. Baker was an Amarillo caller Tuesday.

Floyd Swearingen and Vanis Foster were visiting in Canyon Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest White, Mrs. W. C. White, Misses Grae White and Eva McManigal were shopping in Amarillo Wednesday.

Miss Ethel Sanford was quite badly burned Saturday by water boiling on her.

The ladies of Randall county who are studying "Hygiene and Home Care for the Sick" under the supervision of the county nurse, Miss Botsai, met with Mrs. O. H. Rahlfs on Monday afternoon and had a very interesting lesson. The class will finish the course this week, and the next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. C. S. Sanford, Wednesday afternoon. Miss Botsai was in France during the war and nursed many of the boys over there.

Missionary Rally

The Ladies' Missionary Society of Happy met Nov. 24, at the hospitable home of Mrs. Harrison for a social entertainment and Missionary Rally. About eighteen members and nine visitors being present. The house was tastefully decorated in autumn colors and pumpkins used as receptacles for stalks of grain lent quite a festive air to the occasion. The afternoon was spent in visiting, interspersed with music and a short program and guessing contest which was much enjoyed by all. After which refreshments were served consisting of sandwiches, fruit salad, pie, and coffee with whipped cream. All departed feeling that they had been very pleasantly entertained.

One Who was there.

FORWARD!

Agriculture was at the fore during the great convention of the American Bankers association at Washington last month. Never before had there been such keen interest in the banker-farmer movement. It was virtually a culmination to the years of endeavor given over to the task of demonstrating to the American banker that he owed a great duty to agriculture and country life.

There was a successful tour of the United States Department of Agriculture where bankers from almost every state saw for themselves a few of the things which are being accomplished and realized what more might be done provided there was sufficient financial support.

There was an inspiring, informal session of bankers and their wives, under the auspices of the Agricultural Commission, where banker-farmer leaders from many states gave of their experiences.

And finally there was an inspiring address to the general convention by the Secretary of Agriculture—an address which was received with unique enthusiasm by a crowded convention room. Mr. Meredith views his responsibility as one of "selling" the Department of Agriculture to the people. Certainly he "sold" it to that assemblage of bankers—and "sold" agriculture along with it. Mr. Phillip's comment on the address to the general convention, when the Secretary concluded, evidently echoed the universal sentiment.

No one could mistake the attitude of the Department of Agriculture as regards the potential power of the bankers of the United States as an agency for good in agriculture. The leaders of the Department frequently pointed out the avenues of cooperation where bankers could proceed and were certain that no other class could do so much good work.

The keen interest of the convention in agriculture was naturally a matter of deep gratification to the members of the Agricultural Commission and to the state leaders. But J. R. Wheeler of Wisconsin struck the keynote at the conference when he pointed out the ineffectiveness of holding such a meeting unless each banker went home resolved to put to practical application its suggestions and inspirations.

It is the belief of the Agricultural Commission that the surface of banker-farmer cooperation has only been scratched; that if every bank which stands in the center of an agricultural community can be inspired to action, rich reward will come to bankers, farmers, to every soul in the nation.

One of the things which the Commission would like to do would be to place the Banker-Farmer on the desk of every banker in the country. But this will require local cooperation by bankers' state associations. The Banker-Farmer does not want to blow its own horn too much but it feels that it has played a large part in arousing the interest of the bankers of the United States in the basic industry.

For the new year the Commission invites closer cooperation by the bankers' associations. It requests chairmen of state association committees on agriculture to furnish The Banker-Farmer with frequent reports of activities which may be of great value to other states. Secretaries of state associations, hard-pressed men as they are, can cooperate greatly by calling out attention to matters concerning banker-farmer work in their states.

Naturally the Commission is at the service of the state associations and will be glad to cooperate in any manner in which it can. It suggests to state association officers the immediate necessity of stirring to action such committees as are merely perfunctory. But it calls their attention to the fact that many committees are sadly hampered by lack of funds. This should be corrected. Such plans as that of aggressive Arkansas which raised a special fund to provide the sinews of war for its committee may be considered.

Few bankers who were at Washington will question the opportunity or obligation of the banker in the matter of agriculture. The impetus which the banker-farmer movement gained by that remarkable meeting should not be lost. There never was such an auspicious time for bankers' state associations to galvanize their committees into action.—The Banker-Farmer.

SAVE THE WOMEN

The great war proved that Colorado men are red-blooded. They won undying fame on the battle field and in the ranks at home. No knight of old would answer the call of womanhood in distress more quickly than Colorado men. And yet on Colorado farms today there are thousands of women who seem doomed to go down to premature graves because of overwork. Of what good is the accumulation of land and money, men, when mother may go to her long rest thru overwork? Of what good, mother, your uncomplaining sacrifice if son and comforts that the city offers? Let's face these possibilities.

Every woman knows how difficult it is to get competent help. As we travel up and down and across Colorado daughter leave home because they have been denied the conveniences rado we find hundreds of women in farm homes who are doing the work of two women. In many homes, thank God, there are little ones and then the mother must be nurse as well as housekeeper, dairy maid, poultry woman and sometimes gardener. What time has she for social activities, church work or recreation? Is it any wonder if she becomes irritable or negligent of her personal appearance? Is it any wonder, either, that she succumbs to illness when she has no strength left to fight disease? Influenza took heavy toll in farm homes. "The money invested in modernizing our home was worth ten times its cost when five members of our family had 'flu' at one time," a Colorado farmer told us.

Running water, electric lights and all the labor saving conveniences that come with the installation of such plants are not cures for all farm ills. Nor will a heating system keep you from contracting disease. But dollar for dollar such investments will render greater returns in happiness and satisfaction than any other investment you ever made.—Field and Farm.

Price cuts haven't reached the stage of quantity reduction.—Marion Star.

REPAIRING--

Reduces Building Expenses

Once or more each year it is a good piece of business sense to look about your home and itemize the various needs of the improvements. Deterioration because of age, lack of paint and exposure to climatic actions often make it essential that care be given them. A good way to see that these things are attended to is to do it the very first chance.

We will be glad to furnish material for repair work.

Origin of Macaroni

Macaroni is said to have originated in Sicily. A wealthy nobleman of Palermo had a wonderful cook, who, upon one occasion, devised a new dish consisting of tubes of pastry served with a rice sauce. At the first mouthful, the nobleman cried, "Carri" or "the darling." With the second taste he cried, "Ma Carri!" in English, "O, but what darlings!" Presently with much enthusiasm for the new concoction, he cried, "Ma Caroni!" or "Ah, but the dearest darlings!" Thus he unwittingly gave a name to the food that we know as macaroni.

Our Thanksgiving Carol

On this glad Thanksgiving morning,
With our hearts so light and free,
Bring we songs of joyful praises,
Blessed Lord, to Thee.

Thou hast guided and protected,
Led us safely day by day,
Kept us free from harm and danger
All along the way.

And we thank Thee, Blessed Savior,
For our pleasure, strength, and health,
And Thy promises so tender,
For in those is all our wealth.

May we in these earthly regions
Never cease Thy praise to sing,
Till to rest and life eternal,
We in joy our way shall wing.
—E. M.

Testing seed for germination saved many bushels to the yield in the past and is just as valuable a practice today as ever. It is foolish to work a crop when you do not really know anything about the kind of seed you have planted. Taking chances often proves expensive.

A Valuable Shade Tree

The best thing in the way of a tree ever originated in Colorado is the Populus Andrewsii, as named by Professor Sargent of the Arnold arboretum at Boston. D. M. Andrews discovered it growing near Boulder. Being a hybrid between the Broad-leaved and Lence-leaved cottonwoods it is intermediate in form of leaf and habit of growth, producing a symmetrical head, neither too spreading nor too narrow. The foliage is very dark green and luxuriant, of thick texture and quite glossy. It has the peculiar character of certain hybrids, an exceptional vigor of growth, far exceeding either of its parents. The method employed in its propagation insures the preservation of this character. A tree in the nursery made a growth from the ground in three years measuring thirteen inches in circumference; at the age of four years the same tree measured twenty-two inches in circumference, which is equivalent to an increase in diameter of two inches during its fourth year. Another noteworthy feature is the absence of cotton; it is absolutely and permanently cottonless. The wood is tough and pliable so that even in winter the twigs will bend in a circle without breaking. The variety has not been on the market until the present year and the trees are yet scarce, but are bound to become very popular in time.—Field and Farm.

Farm Home Burns

The farm home of C. T. Pierce and family burned Saturday. They live near the Goldston school house and the family is numbered among the most-enterprising in Donley county. Immediately after the disaster, good neighbors began to render assistance wherever possible. Frank Elmore came to town and gathered up a free will offering to the amount of $108.55 and merchandise to the value of $35. —Clarendon News.

UNCLE SILAS SAYS

"When I was young and full of pep I made plenty of money and never had a care. I was as happy as a jay bird in a tree full of doodle-bugs. Things changed as I grew older."

No doubt there was a change. There always is. If you spend all as you go along you are sure to find the going much rougher at the very time when you are least able to stand it. "Come easy, go easy" is all right so long as things continue to come. After that, needy and dependent old age stares you in the face. Save a little as you go along and keep it in our Bank. That is the sure remedy.

OVER HUNDRED ROOTERS ACCOMPANY TEAM

Special Train Carried Normal Students and Others to Clarendon Thanksgiving.

After considerable trouble, the required number of passengers for a special train was secured last week; and at 10:10 a. m., Thursday, about one hundred and fifty Normal students, members of the football team, High School students, and town people boarded the train for Clarendon. The special was not run directly from Canyon, but two coaches were added to the local passenger which carried us to Amarillo.

Upon reaching Amarillo, we walked over to the Fort Worth and Denver station, where, together with a number of Amarillo people and old students, we made our way into our special train of three coaches. But, before entering the train, numerous college yells and songs were led by Mr. and Mrs. "Pep."

We left Amarillo with about one hundred and eighty-five people on the train that we thought we would have so much trouble filling. At Claude the Canyon High School team climbed off the train to play the High School football team at that place. By this time, most of the girls had "coupled up" with boys, and were making money for the "news butch."

We arrived in Clarendon at about 1:00 o'clock, to find two or three hundred Clarendon College students at the station to cheer us, and to find it, to our surprise, advertised that a special train carrying four hundred Normal students and the College band would be in Clarendon. Our entire Normal delegation bombarded the restaurants, cafes, and hotels. And when the supply of the eating houses was exhausted, we went into the soft drink stands.

After our Thanksgiving dinner, (did you get any?) we made our way out to the Clarendon College. Here we found a so-called football gridiron, which covered part of a hill and part of a valley. Of course, we don't mean any harm to Clarendon College, for we don't suppose it is their fault.

At 2:30 o'clock the battle was on, with Clarendon rooters on one side of the gridiron and Canyon rooters on the other. By 4:00 o'clock the game had ended in Clarendon's favor with a score of 12 to 0. An account of the game may be found elsewhere in this paper. Canyon left the field, feeling that she had done her best and that she had played the game "fair and square." We believe yet that Canyon could have won the game if we hadn't been handicapped by the injuries of some of our players.

After numerous yells and songs, we boarded the train for home at 6:30 p. m., all glad that they had come, even if they did lose. We arrived in Amarillo on time, and boarded the south-bound Santa Fe for home. As we neared Canyon, the dark form of our Alma Mater loomed up before us. We stepped off the train at station to be greeted by those who stayed at home.

Clarendon Wins Thanksgiving Game

In the Game Thanksgiving with Clarendon College at Clarendon, the tide was turned against the Normalites when the Methodists took them into camp to the tune of 12-0. Meades of Clarendon succeeded during the first half in kicking two goals out of three trials, thus netting his team six points. A touchdown, also made by Meades, in the last quarter made the final score 12 to 0. The game was featured by many incomplete forward passes and fumbles. A shower of rain fell during the second half and seriously handicapped the players, but did not interrupt the game. On the whole the affair was a poor exhibition of football, neither side showing itself master of the game. The Canyon line, especially Golden and Tucker, did excellent work; but the back field was badly disorganized on account of the absence of McCorkle.

Floyd County Club Organized November 18th, about thirty Floyd County and former Floyd students responded to an invitation to meet in room 210. After a brief explanation of the purpose of the meeting had been given by Ray V. Jones, Floyd Trowbridge was appointed temporary chairman and immediately called a business session for the purpose of perfecting the organization of a Floyd County Club. The following officers were elected for the first quarter: President, Ray V. Jones; vice president, Floyd Trowbridge; secretary, Tina Jackson; assistant secretary and treasurer, Velma Moore; reporter to home papers, Susie Stanley and Zee Foster; reporter to "The Prairie," C. R. Wilson. The chairman then appointed a committee to plan a social entertainment, and the club adjourned to meet the following week.

All Floyd county students are urged to become members and to cooperate in making this one of the liveliest and most beneficial of the college social organizations.

French Club Organized

The members of all the French classes met at the Service home, Monday evening, November 15, by the invitation of Miss Elizabeth Reck. When everyone had arrived, the following delightful program was rendered: Piano Solo—Miss Saxche Simms. A Ghost Story—Miss Mary Morgan Brown.

Vocal Solo—Miss Rose Stewart. La Source—Miss Elizabeth Reck. La Tombe et La Rose—Lois Baumgartner.

Piano Solo—Miss Dessig Mae Steele.

Immediately after the program, Dan Sanders presented to the assembly a proposition, to organize a French Club. The purpose of this club is to help everyone who studies French to acquire a better use of the language and to become familiar with current French. It was unanimously voted that such a club should be organized. As a result, the following officers were elected:

President—Dan Sanders. Vice President—Miss Elizabeth Reck.

Secretary—Saxche Simms. Press Reporter and Annual Representative—Lois Baumgartner.

For honorary members, those present who do not study French were elected—Miss Brown; Miss McClesky, Mrs. Guenther, Mrs. Wirt, Mrs. Baum, the Service family and Madge Miller.

Everyone expressed his enjoyment of the evening, and his pleasure at the organization of the club. The meeting adjourned to meet at Mrs. Guenther's Monday evening, November 22.

Art Exhibit Coming From the fourth to the tenth of December there will be an exhibition of Medici Prints, under the supervision of the Art Department. The Medici prints are produced in Europe and are considered the superior of any others made in other parts of Europe or America. It will consist of forty-five copies from famous old master painters. To meet the expense of transportation we will charge a small admission of twenty cents for adults and ten cents for children.

Wm. Jennings Wasn't There

But Rip Van Winkle was—and true to form! Family relations had not improved. Mrs. Van Winkle had not heard of the League of Nations, but she enforced peace in the home—at Rip's expense. Prohibition was no hindrance to Rip—may, he found the modern "kick" quite satisfactory! Rip should not be judged too harshly, however; instead, blame the four college Literary Societies that gave the impromptu program in honor of the Wayland football team: The classic readings and musical numbers were received enthusiastically, while a humorous male quartet delighted the large audience.

After Rip had been initiated into the modern sinful life, a pleasing announcement sent the merry students scurrying to room 105. There every one established or renewed pleasant acquaintances, munching the while on apples, cakes, and "all-day-suckers" distributed liberally by the Societies.

November

When the reddened leaves are falling, And the meadow's brown as sear, And the birds fly over crying, "We lament the dying year," When the tiny webs of silver Gleam in autumn's mellow sun, And the slow and winding river Seems to murmur sadly, "Done!" Then to know that autumn's ended, That dear winter's here instead, And with smiles and tears then blended, We bless the living, mourn the dead.

Now that calico has dropped 50 per cent, all that is needed is to induce the girls to wear it.—Washington Post.

Shaw on Bloomers "A hideous compromise," is what George Bernard Shaw calls the bloomer suit for the bicycle girl in McCall's for October.

"In the nineties, when the bicycle became fashionable and practical for women, an attempt was made to discard skirts. It failed for a very obvious reason, which nevertheless nobody seemed to see. When a woman borrowed her husband's or brother's Norfolk jacket and breeches and they fitted her reasonably well, she looked perfectly correct, natural, and very often smart. Unfortunately she seldom did this. Instead, she got a Parisian dressmaker to make a hideous epieene compromise—consisting of a pair of voluminous breeches obviously ashamed of themselves and a weak little coat that was elegant in the wrong way and in the wrong place. This was unbearable, and as open-framed bicycles were available, it perished of its own silly prudery."

The Telephone Pole Ad Is a Thing of the Past

In the old days when every farmer drove the plough-horse to town, he had time to amble along and read the sale bills on the way.

Now, the average farmer has his eyes glued to the road while driving his six-cylinder car, and the telephone poles fly by like pickets on a fence.

Newspaper advertising is just as far ahead of telephone pole bills as the auto is ahead of the horse. Both are necessary and do good work. But the Newspaper, like the auto, gets more done quicker.

For the Newspaper is taken into the home and read at leisure. It is originally purchased because its particular editorial policy—its individual business appeals, and the reader has confidence in its judgment. The confidence is reflected on the ads that that Newspaper carries and the advertisers get the benefit of dependability.

An ad in this paper is bound to bring results. We can help you prepare it, and can supply you with attractive illustrations to use in it. Let our ad man call and explain the big benefits of using Bonnet-Brown Sales Service in your ads.

Sea Sleds for Airplanes
 Boston Post: Giant sea sleds capable of carrying airplanes out in midocean are being developed by a Boston concern. Some are equipped with four motors, totaling 1,750 horse power, and have a speed of fifty-five miles an hour.

In the event of war with a foreign nation these sea sleds would be utilized to transport heavy bombing planes across the ocean. Thousands could be sent at a comparatively low cost.

While it is possible for an airplane to leave the deck of a sea sled, there is not sufficient room for a landing to be made. The flying machine would have to work out its own salvation once its wheels left the sled.

These sea sleds are built to lift and run on the surface of the water. When a speed of fifty miles an hour is reached it is possible for an airplane to open its motors and leave the deck without any further runway.

Experiments made off the New England coast show that a small airplane can "take off" when the sea sled is making but forty miles an hour in a heavy sea. Other tests are being made to develop the high power planing sea sleds into pleasure craft, as well as for military and naval purposes.

Gordon S. Orme of New Orleans, a wealthy sportsman, has had a thirty two footer built for his use in the Gulf of Mexico. Factories have been established in Atlantic City to aid in producing the sea sleds, which are now being tested off the New England coast.

Hoover Paid it Back
 Everybody's: There was a $1,000,000 defalcation! Technically the firm was not responsible. But the Junior partner, Herbert Hoover, said that every cent must be paid back. It was a happening that meant for him the greatest setback in his otherwise almost monotonously successful career. And yet, although this happening meant temporary financial ruin for him, it was, in its way, only another success, a success of revealing significance to those who would like to know the real man that Herbert Hoover is.

After one of his returns to London he discovered a defalcation of staggering proportions. By the issuance and sale of false stock and by other means the firm or its creditors had been committed to a loss of over $1,000,000. Technically the operations of the defaulter were of such a character that the firm could not be held legally liable. But the junior partner swept the technicalities aside with a single gesture. He announced that they would make good all the obligations incurred by the defaulter. This meant the immediate loss of his own personal fortune and it meant a serious difference of opinion with the absent head of the firm, whose frantic cables came, however, too late to overrule the decision of the junior partner.

Then ensued a long, bitter struggle, most of it falling on the junior partner with the Quaker conscience to make good the losses without actually putting the firm out of business. For going on with the business was essential to the making good. I was a gruelling four year's struggle, with success at the end of it. And the Quaker engineer, now grown forever out of youth to the man who has experienced the down as well as the up in life, gave up his connection with the firm and launched on that career of independent and self-responsible activity which has been his ever since. This was in 1908. Herbert Hoover is now 46 years old and he probably could be called the leading consulting mining engineer in the world.

Facts and comment
 The remains of what is described as the largest and most mysterious land animal that ever walked the earth have been found in Baluchistan. The creature was probably more like a rhinoceros than like any other animal of to-day, but it had a neck that suggests that of the giraffe. Two of the neck bones, compared with similar bones of the largest previously known land animals, make them look small, and nothing but dynamite or a stump puller could have drawn one of its teeth.

More and more students are applying for admission to the colleges, until it has become a serious problem to know what to do with them. In spite of stricter entrance requirements, the tide is unchecked. A New England college, which a few years ago did not have more than seven or eight hundred students, this year rejected two thousand applicants after accepting six hundred for the freshman class. Other increases in enrollment are almost as great as healthy a sign in our after-the-war growth as anyone could hope for.

In company with other foreigners, Americans who are living in England are subject both to the British income taxes and to those of their own country, an expensive predicament from which there seems to be no immediate escape. The report of the British commission on income tax, which has just appeared, says that the commission cannot recommend any change in the taxation of an income both by the government of the United Kingdom and by the government of a foreign state, and that foreigners who are living abroad should continue to be taxed on their British income at the full standard rate without allowances or reliefs.

Farmers who are now trying to harvest their apple crop with labor that is both inadequate in quantity and often incompetent, will envy their brother coconut farmers of Borneo, who gather most of their crop with the aid of trained monkeys. The monkeys, which are of the large and usually savage species "Macacus nemestrinus," are sent up the trees with long cords attached to them.

On command, they twist off the clusters of nuts and throw them down. Well-trained animals are worth from eight to twenty dollars. Thus, the Borneo fruit-grower has little reason to complain of the scarcity of farm labor; all he has to guard against is being bitten by his "hired man."

Farmers Facing a Loss
Farmers are facing big losses on the 1920 wheat crop. In fact, all farm products have reacted unfavorably to the general movement of a reduction in the cost of living. As usual, the reductions in the finished product are only nominal when compared with the declines in farm products. The reason for this is that agencies controlled by dealers and middlemen are in position to dictate prices on what the farmer produces. Other agencies, also outside of farmer control, are in position to say how and to what extent the farmer shall be financed. Between these two forces the farmer is apparently helpless. He may protest, but his remedy is not yet fully developed, although it is coming.

In the issue of September 1 we called attention to what happened on the Chicago Board of Trade, immediately on resumption of trading in futures, which had been forbidden as a war measure by the government. The wheat price went down in the face of an abnormal foreign demand and a congestion of freight traffic that made market supplies very light.

Obviously if speculation in wheat was a bad thing for the nation in war times, it could be no better now for either producer or consumer. The only benefit—if such it may be called—is to the speculator. Still, when any serious legislative efforts are made to stop speculation in foodstuffs the cry is raised that it is interfering with "the law of supply and demand."

Let the general public be told that a fair price for the wheat of 1920 need not stand in the way of a decline in the price of bread. No less an authority than Herbert Hoover, recently gave the public figures showing that the cost of wheat in a 12-cent loaf is 3 cents. Why attempt to take all of the cut out of the wheat raiser? But we are anticipating. Bread has not declined though wheat and flour have come down. The questions asked by T. C. Atkeson, Washington representative of the National Grange, are pertinent:

"While the farmer and the manufacturer are reducing their prices and accepting less for their products, what is labor doing and willing to do? Will Henry Ford's workmen be willing now that the cost of living is reduced from 6 to 11 per cent, and the price of what they make has gone down from 10 to 30 per cent—to come across and offer to reduce their wages in equal proportion? Or will this offer be made by the operatives in the cotton and woolen mills, or the hired help on the wheat and corn farms? The controlling arguments for increasing wages before wage and arbitration boards was the cost of living had advanced, making wage increases necessary. Is the reverse argument good and will it now operate?"

The farmer expects to bear his part of the burden of readjustment, but why saddle him with the whole load?

What is the remedy? Co-operative control of the leading staples by the farmer? The farmer is entitled to and must have a say in determining the market value of his product. Such movements as that undertaken by the Committee of Seventeen, backed by the Farm Bureau Federation and other leading organizations, for an overhead wheat marketing organization, are on the right track toward an equitable solution of these problems—and equity means a fair deal to the producer and consumer. This is not class propaganda or radical agitation, nor does it mean a change in the social system. It means that the farmer has ceased to bemoan his fate and is actively engaged in working out his own salvation along economically sound and safe lines.—Alvin T. Steinel in Western Farm Life.

"This is mighty fine whiskey. Where in the world do you get such good stuff?"

Dairying in Oklahoma
Dairying has made considerable growth during the past two years. In fact figures taken from the creameries of Oklahoma and ice cream factories and also figures from the Bureau of Markets indicate that the dairy industry of Oklahoma has increased approximately thirty-five per cent. Even with this growth the dairy industry could be improved to a wonderful extent by the dairymen of the state adopting a definite program. This program should be definite in its object and should include the four following fundamentals:

1. Better cows.
 2. A definite feeding system.
 3. Better bulls.
 4. Conveniences to save labor.
- Better cows can be secured by the aid of cow testing associations and cow testing clubs, eliminating the poorer cows and improving the herd by breeding the better ones to a sire of high production records. Also better cows can be secured by purchase. A definite feeding system practical for present conditions would include pasture as many months of the year as possible. A silo filled with the crop which gives the greatest tonnage per acre. These two should be supplemented with a grain ration well balanced, this grain ration to be fed according to production which is approximately one pound of grain mixture to four pounds of milk.

Every dairyman in Oklahoma should use if possible a bull whose dam had at least a record of 500 pounds of butter fat. If they can not secure these by individual purchase they can get them by means of a bull association. The Extension office at the A. and M. College, Stillwater, can assist in any of the above methods of improving the dairy industry. They can also furnish blue prints for dairy buildings, plans for dairy barns, milk house and dwelling house. There are many conveniences costing but very little which will to a great extent cut down labor.—C. W. Radway.

FORD DEALERS

Seeking Dupes by the Catalog Route

Glaring headlines of the dailies a short time ago carried the announcement that the big catalog houses had reduced their prices from 20 to 30 per cent. No doubt this announcement was hailed with joy by a long-suffering public. No doubt thousands wrote in for the latest issue of the catalog and that with visions of a big saving. If you did, you know the result. Such firms seek to take every advantage of the unwary purchaser. Every scheme not contrary to the postal regulations is resorted to in order to separate the would-be saver from his coin. Prices are given on goods that are not in stock and never was. That scheme catches the eye of some and in many instances induces the economist to mail in his order accompanied by hard cash. The firm fills your order and "regrets" that they are out of the very things that were really a bargain tho they do not state so in so many words.

A careful comparison of their latest catalogs with those issued in the spring will surprise the average person for instead of a decrease, there has been from twenty-five cents to a dollar added to their shoes and other wares in the same proportion. Take boys' school shoes for instance. The price given in the spring catalog for the split hide shoe, numbering from 5 to 3, was $1.85. The latest price given in this fall catalog is $2.18. Dry goods that sold for twenty-seven cents by the yard in the spring is now thirty-two. Compare the prices before ordering. The writer took occasion to compare their $3.85 shoe in children's sizes with those of local dealers. The local price in Clarendon was $3.00 for an all-leather shoe of the same size.

Before mailing your order, find out how much profiteering tax you have to pay on the late rise in prices. Compare the prices with those of your local merchant. If you can get goods cheaper at home then it is your duty to buy at home. If you think your home merchant pays more tax to support your schools, give him your trade. If you thing that your home merchant gives more to the support of your churches, roads and charitable needs, then give him your trade. Don't be skinned by the cunning advertisement of a mail order house written by an expert. Deal in facts. They deal in cold cash and care nothing for your welfare. See what you are getting when you plank down the money. If the catalog man has ever assisted in the upbuilding of your churches, schools, roads or anything else in your community, let it be known and the writer of this article will commit financial suicide by sending all his future business to the catalog houses himself.—Clarendon News.

The sort of woman who marry men to reform them ought to find reforming politics a wonderful outlet for their activities.—Columbia (S. C.) Record.

A CANYON INTERVIEW

Mr. Hileman Tells His Experience

The following brief account of an interview with a Canyon man nine years ago, and its sequel, will be read with keen interest by every citizen. R. E. Hileman, prop. bicycle shop, Canyon, says: "I found positive relief in using Doan's Kidney Pills for lameness across the small of my back and for my kidneys. I got this medicine at the druggist, east side of Square. I certainly can conscientiously recommend them for lumbago and for embarrassment caused by the kidney secretions. I am quite over all difficulties of that nature since I used them." (Statement given Jan. 17, 1911.)

On May 1, 1919, Mr. Hileman added: "Since I used and recommended Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago, I have taken them whenever in need of such a remedy. Doan's have never failed to give instant relief and I am always glad to say a good word in favor of them." 60c. at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo N. Y.

Too Absorbed to Report

Harper's: Making newspaper reporters out of college boys and girls is not without its trials and tribulations. Dean Walter Williams of the University of Missouri School of Journalism will bear testimony to this fact. Once, he says, he sent a member of one of the reporting classes over to a near by town to report a railroad wreck. The press hour grew near and there was no story from the reporter. Dean Williams waited and waited for a report of the wreck to come in. Finally, in sheer desperation, he wired the student reporter, asking him what the trouble was and why he hadn't sent in his story. The reply came back. "Too much excitement. Wait till things quiet down."

It is too bad that our ancestors did not live long enough to realize how smart we are.—Detroit Journal.

It seems to be easier to curtail the credits than it is to credit some of the curtailments that we hear about.

YOU certainly want to save money, and you would like to have better bakings. Then use Calumet. It's the biggest thing you can do to improve the quality of your bakings—and lower baking costs. Calumet is made in the largest, most sanitary Baking Powder Factories in the World. No Baking Powder is made under better conditions—none can be better in quality. It contains only such ingredients as have been officially endorsed by the U. S. Pure Food Authorities. An absolute guarantee that it is pure.

It received highest Awards, World's Pure Food Exposition, Chicago — Paris Exposition, Paris, France—positive proof of its superior merit. It is used by more housewives, domestic scientists and chefs than any other brand. That would not be the case, if it were possible to secure a higher quality leavener. It is sold at a moderate price. All you have to do is to compare costs to determine how much you can save by buying Calumet. Pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. Instead of 16 oz. cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

Calumet Cream Cake Recipe
—3 cups pastry flour, 3 level teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder, 1/2 cup butter, 1 1/2 cups granulated sugar, Yolks of 3 eggs, 1/2 cup cold water. Whites of 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon orange extract. Then mix in the regular way.

How a prospective mother prepared for baby's coming.

Nature's Evolution
Of all the vital adventures in life, the birth of a baby is the climax of nature's most wonderful evolution. During this period, nature is supposed to be preparing the internal organism of a woman for a safe and speedy delivery; but it is more the exception than the rule when nature, unaided, performs her part at the crisis in a manner to relieve pain and contribute to comfort. "I was afraid," writes a prospective mother, "until an experienced mother told me about MOTHER'S FRIEND,"—but now I cannot recommend MOTHER'S FRIEND too highly for I know it helped me wonderfully, and I can almost say my baby was born without pain. At the present time I am using it again, as I do not want to go thru the ordeal without it." Three generations of prospective mothers have used MOTHER'S FRIEND. When gently applied, during the period of expectancy, it soothes the fine network of nerves, lubricates the broad, flat, abdominal muscles and prepares the way for an easier, quicker and practical delivery. For valuable booklet—"MOTHERHOOD and The BABY"—free, fill in coupon below and mail direct to the makers of MOTHER'S FRIEND. WARNING: Avoid using plain oils, greases and substitutes—they act only on the skin and may cause harm without doing good.

Presbyterian Church

We are on the last lap of this grand old year. The first thing you know 1920 is going to be gone with you still among those who have not taken advantage of the religious opportunities that God and your Country have afforded you. The advisability and the necessity of the church you firmly believe in, but you have not expressed that belief in any tangible form.

There is just one time to do this and that time is now. Be among those who assemble themselves together on next Sunday in the various churches of worship to "praise God from whom all blessings flow."

The Presbyterians invite you to worship with them if you are in our city without a church home. We will endeavor to do you good.

The services on Sunday are as follows:

Sunday School at 9:45 a. m., J. W. Reid, Supt.

Morning worship at 11 o'clock. Preaching by the pastor.

Intermediate, Christian Endeavor at 3 p. m., Mrs. Harvey Cash, director.

Evening worship at 7 o'clock. Preaching by the pastor. Subject:

"The Bible—What View Should We of Today Take of That Book?" This will be the beginning of a series of sermon-lectures on the Bible and the especial phase to be discussed at this hour will be, "Inspiration."

Senior Christian Endeavor at 8 p. m., Miss Harriet Graham, director.

To the above mentioned services we extend a most cordial invitation and welcome to all.

TED P. HOLIFIELD, Pastor.

Last Saturday evening, in honor of Miss Minnie Adams of Farwell, Mr. and Mrs. David Thomas and Miss Margaret Elliott entertained a few friends. Several tables were arranged for progressive party-two. The house was decorated with cut flowers and pot plants. During the evening punch was served and Miss Rambo gave a toast to Miss Adams. Refreshments of hot chocolate and cake were served to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Powell and Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Baucum. Misses Pennington, Parker, Keffer, Babston, Boatright, Baldwin, Hall, Cullum, of Friona, Adams of Farwell and Rambo; and Messrs. Sanders, Parker, Hale, Robert Hill, Baldwin, Boatright, Lewis Hill, Carl Mauer and Jordan.

With many good wishes to Miss Adams the guests departed declaring that they had spent a most pleasant evening.

making incursions upon the settlements. The settlers, therefore, hailed the approach of winter with delight, since at this season they felt safe in removing from the forts to comfortable cabins on their farms. But sometimes the settlers misjudged an early cold spell for the real approach of winter and moved to their farms too soon. The return of summer gave the Indians another chance for depredations upon the settlers. This period between the seeming and the actual approach of winter was called "Indian Summer."

Origin of "Hobson's Choice"

"Hobson's choice" (this or nothing) originated in the sixteenth century. A certain Thomas Hobson was a carrier between London and Cambridge. When letting out his horses to hire, he would allow the customer no choice as to which animal he took, but would allow each horse to leave the stable only in his turn. Hobson's choice" became a current expression in London and Cambridge, where it found its way into our literature.

Drilling continues at the Prairie Oil & Gas Co. well, 3 miles north of here, but slowly on account of considerable caving in. The formation is different at the same depth to that in the East Gas well. It is thought probably the same lime rock struck in the east gas well will be struck in the north well, but it will be considerable deeper.—Channing News.

"Motor Density"

The people of the United States own over seven and a half million automobiles, or about one for every 14 persons. The "motor density" is greater in the rural districts than in the cities, and in the Middle West than in the South and East. It is highest in South Dakota, which has an automobile for every 6.1 persons, and lowest in Alabama, which has one for every 39.9 persons. Texas has one automobile for every 14.1 persons.
