There is considerable comment upon President Harding's plan of refunding the war debt of the European governments, which are due the United States. Those opposing the plan do so believing it not right that the American people be called upon to pay almost the entire cost of the world war. We are paying this debt now, whether we want to or not. The business interests of America are in their present deplorable condition owing to Europe's inability to buy our goods. We have the goods, but no market. We have material and men to make more goods, while the material remains in its raw state and the men and factories are idle. If America had made peace two years ago, refunding of the debt, or such part of it as necessary to maintain the staple rate of exchange between this country and Europe, business would have gone on. America is not an independent and isolated country. We need and must have a world market. That market is now cut off owing to the financial conditions of European countries which has driven the value of their money down almost to nothing. Refunding the war debts will go a great way toward relieving the situation.

Indications are strong that there will be a very great coal shortage next winter unless people start storing their winter's supply at once. The miners are under contract until next April, and there will be no wage reduction, therefore no reduction of price. There might possibly be a reduction in the freight rates, but this would not amount to more than 20c or 30c a ton. Very few people are storing coal. Very few dealers are storing coal. No mines are operating now as there is no demand for coal. There is little surplus coal in the country. Authorities believe this country is facing the greatest coal shortage we have ever had.

Ninety-nine percent of the American people are highly pleased with the elevation of ex-President William Howard Taft to the Supreme Court where he will sit as Chief Justice. Taft is one of the biggest men America has ever produced, and is loved by all except the few who love no one but themselves. One of President Wilson's mistakes was made when he did not appoint Taft to the Supreme Court. Taft was one of the few republicans who was big enough to overlook the mistakes of the war and throw his influence wholly to President Wilson that the war might be speedily won.

Every year the News is asked by citizens to call attention to the fact that Canyon has an ordinance that owners of chickens keep said chickens upon their own property. It is very disheartening to attempt to raise flowers with a bunch of chickens from your neighbor's yard feeding upon the flowers. There are two ways to stop this: First, file a complaint with the mayor and compel the owner of the chickens to pay a fine. Second, eat the chickens. The latter method is the quickest and most effective.

A few years ago it seemed likely that the nation with the biggest navy would be the ruler of the world. It is now evident from recent experiments that an airplane can put a $50,000,000 ship in the bottom of the ocean in no time. To protect this expensive target the war bounds now demand vast fleets of planes, submarine chasers, etc. America is now spending over 90 cents out of every dollar collected in federal taxes to pay for past and future wars. With this maddening pace maintained a few years more we will be constantly embroiled in wars.

Trades Day in Canyon next Monday. The day will be arranged for the busy people to come to the city, get the bargains offered, and return to their work. The farmers have no time to stop for amusements at this time of year. There will be more time for entertainment this fall after the harvest is over, and these features will then be taken up. Come and do your shopping in Canyon Monday.

When we've scrapped the Navy we won't be in shape to scrap anybody.—Washington Post.

Turn the wheat land as quickly as possible after the grain is cut. Preserve this splendid moisture in order to start next year's crop.

Most people would rather trade at home than away from home. However, the home merchant must first have the goods, and then tell the people about these goods if he expects to get the business.

Admitting Your Ignorance

We are all ignorant, high and low, great and little, wise and foolish, educated and uneducated. Some may know a trifle more than others; but as compared with the vast possibilities of knowledge the difference between ignorances is too insignificant to be of much account. Since that is so, it might be supposed that we should all be ready to admit our deficiencies, to acknowledge at once how little we know and to be only concerned humbly and patiently to supply the gaps in our information with such makeshifts as we may. On the contrary, it is amazing how most of us toil and struggle to conceal our ignorance. No device seems too petty, no pretense too mean, if only we can cover up from others the fact that we do not know any more than they do. Sometimes life appears to be spun over with a web of artificial culture that has no solidity and no permanence.

People seem to think that it injures their authority and standing to admit frankly that they have made a mistake, that their information was incomplete and that their calculations were incorrect. Teachers are possessed with this delusion. Ministers are led astray by it. Statesmen suffer from it. Parents constantly find that it vitiates their simple and natural relations with their children. They go miles round, evade, elude, palter and prevaricate, rather than say right out that they were wrong. They do not realize that what injures our characters and our usefulness more than anything else is to make a pretense of omniscience and have it exposed as only a pretense.

The truth is that nothing secures the confidence of all men so much as the humble, frank, free, straightforward admission of ignorance. The guide we trust is he who admits that our difficulties are his difficulties and that, if he can see just a trifle farther, it is only because he has toiled more arduously and has not obscured his vision by any undue assurance of more ample view. There is nothing that we admire more than such humanity in others; nothing that we are more reluctant to practice ourselves.

If the majority of us gave half the effort to remedying our ignorance that we give to concealing it, we should think more of ourselves, and others would think more of us, and the world would be a more practical place to live in.

In this country the word sterling, when stamped on silver, means simply that the manufacturer declares the article to be made of silver eleven twelfths fine; but the British marks, arranged in a column, give a sort of history of the article. Usually the first mark is the maker's sign; next comes a mark that shows where the article was made—for London, a leopard's head; for Birmingham, an anchor; and for Sheffield, famous for its silver, a crown. Dublin has the Irish harp, and Chester uses the city arms. The third mark, a lion, indicates the standard of fineness. The date mark, a letter, usually comes last. Since each city uses a different system for indicating the year when the article was made, it is necessary to know the "plate" of the town in order to find the date of a particular piece.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MAKES WISE DECISION

President Guy Norris and the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce did a wise thing Wednesday when they declined to carry advertising matter in a log of the Colorado-to-Gulf highway. There are many men with many schemes and all combined the small town business man contributes many of his dollars where no visible good ever comes. The average tourist spends little in a town outside of the garages, hotels and eating houses. Most of them leave home prepared to camp and have their supplies with them, purchased at home, on credit. They may have to replenish their larders before leaving Colorado but that does the small-town merchant no good. The Chamber of Commerce can make it profitable to every member of that organization if an end is put to fake advertising.—Childress Index.

"A Distinction Not Desired"

is how one of our great dailies has expressed the eyesight situation in Texas. Anyone may come to Texas and anyone may assume the title "Optometrist" and proceed to attempt the fitting of glasses. FORTY SEVEN of our States have laws regulating the fitting of glasses and it is UP TO YOU, Mr. Miss and Mrs. CITIZEN, to request your representatives in the Legislature to work and vote for an Optometry Law. Henry Ford Was Right When He Said:

"The Tractor will enable the farmer to work fewer hours in the day, giving him more time to enjoy life. I believe the tractor will make farming what it ought to be—the most pleasant, the most healthful, the most profitable business on earth."

This tractor has done much—very much—in bringing true Mr. Ford's prophecy; for in it is a machine which has harnessed one of the most dependable, efficient, adaptable, economical sources of power in the world—a machine that saves from thirty to fifty per cent of the farmer's time—a machine which many farmers claim plows, harrows or drills as much ground in the same time as four, six or even eight horses. And more—a machine that takes care of every power job on the farm.

Call and let's talk it over, or telephone or drop us a card and we will bring the facts to you.

Fact and Comment

To be a successful leader of boys a man must live the life he wants them to live. A boy is a critical, suspicious creature with high ideals and a sense of loyalty; but he has a perception of hypocrisy and insincerity that is uncanny. Most boys have a sense of humor; they like play-acting and jokes and have a wonderful capacity for getting into scrapes; yet their sense of justice is accurate, and they really like discipline, for it relieves them of responsibility. But it is useless to preach to a boy unless you are ready to back up your counsel by your example.

Organizations like the recently formed Builders' Guild of England may be the solution of our housing problem. The guild originated in a group of building laborers who were disgusted with conditions that classify minutely what one workman must and must not do, and what pay he must receive. The workmen organized for service, made contracts and went to putting up houses in workmanlike fashion, carpenters, plumbers, plasterers, brick-

The Wonders of America

By T. T. MAXEY

THE CROOKEDEST RAILROAD IN THE WORLD.

THE Mount Tamalpais and Muir Woods railway runs from Mill Valley, California, to the top of Mount Tamalpais—the guardian of our famous Golden Gate, the entrance to San Francisco bay. This miniature railway is but 20 miles long. The longest piece of straight track is 413 feet. It contains 281 curves. In one place the track parallels itself five times in a little more than 300 feet—forming an almost perfect double bow-knot. So crooked is this line that if all the curves were continuous, they would make 42 complete circles. It is one of the most wonderful pieces of engineering on the American continent.

The curious looking, oil-burning locomotive squirms its way tall first, pushing the train up the tortuous track, on a grade averaging six feet to the hundred, to the summit, 2,502 feet above the valley below.

The reason for it all is, of course, the view from the top of this peak which stands on the very edge of the U. S. A. Here, the eye, in one far-reaching sweep, commands a panorama of mountains, forest, bay, island, city and sea, lying between the Sierra mountains and the Pacific ocean which, 'tis said, is not surpassed from the summit of any other mountain peak in the world.

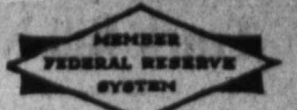

Worth mentioning in passing, too, is the fact that the government recording station here, shows more sunshine per day than any other recording station in this country.

The return trip is made by gravity—the train coasting all the way down.

layers and painters all helping one another and getting the job done at an immense saving in cost, though they received good wages. The old craft spirit dies hard.

The Wisdom of Health, an article by Dr. McKenzie, describes the system of supervision by which the University of Pennsylvania governs athletics and directs the physical training of its students. It took a long time for college authorities to admit that a training in health is as necessary as a training in the classics; nor did young men see at first that the college has a right to demand of them certain hours a week to correct physical defects of which they may be only vaguely aware. But nearly all of the larger colleges and many of the smaller ones now have a system of physical training; a matter that is in no small part the result of Dr. McKenzie's pioneer work.

Fat and Married Men More Honest

New York.—If Diogenes were still running around with lanterns looking for an honest man, he would find him among those classifications:

Fat, married, or hot-tempered.

This statement was made recently by an authority—William B. Joyce, President of the National Surety Company whose business it is to insure men's honesty.

Joyce's concern furnishes bonds for employes in positions of trust and, he pointed out, "if it were not for the fact that most persons are inherently honest we couldn't continue in business."

"Married men, because of the responsibility of their families, are more honest than bachelors in the ratio of about six to one," Joyce said.

"Fat men are naturally of a more contented disposition and are less liable to prey on society."

Hot-tempered men usually find an outlet for their harmful impulses in unrestrained language and rarely take what does not belong to them."

As regards rice, Joyce placed the Chinese first in honesty, with Anglo-Saxons next.

Women, he said, apparently are superior to men from the stand point of honesty, seldom stealing unless prompted by love or actual poverty.

Sen. Bledsoe Defends Truck Bill No. 101

(Lubbock Avalanche)
At the Rotary luncheon last Wednesday noon, Senator Bledsoe, who was invited to give some light on the much talked of Senate Bill No. 101, which has as its purpose the regulation of the operation of trucks over public highways, and defended the bill as one that is in the main, a just one.

"Few people have read the bill and know what it really stands for," Senator Bledsoe said, and as a proof of what he said he called upon the membership and visitors at the Rotary luncheon who had read the bill to hold their hands up, and but two or three acknowledged that they had given the matter enough consideration to read it and try to digest the meaning of the bill.

Senator Bledsoe said that many people undertook to lay the blame of the bill upon the railroads of the country, but added that if the railroads showed any interest in the passage of the bill at all he never found it out. He said that the object of the bill was primarily and solely for the purpose of protecting the highways of the State, and sighted as a positive proof that this was certainly needed in the case of the very large trucks, especially in the black land countries, where the roads were often made impassable for days after one of those trucks passed over it with his big tractor and trailers. He said the tax rate he believed not excessive, except possibly in the case of the extremely large tractors and even then in proportion to the damage done to roads, that he is of the opinion that the tax is nothing but just. He stated that the idea that the bill would affect the small trucks—the farmer with a Ford truck or similar capacity, was all a mistake—that this bill had no effect on that kind of a truck, and further than the regular registration fee that is required at the present time.

He gave as an example a truck operating between Lubbock and Crosbyton: He said that the probable cost of operating that truck over the roads would amount to about $50, which he believed was not an unreasonable tax for a man to pay for the maintenance of the roads, and that the tax went direct to the counties where the truck operated through. The mileage in Lubbock county would be taxed and paid in Lubbock county, and the Crosby county mileage would go to Crosby county. The owner of the truck paying the tax in the county in which he resided, and that county would distribute the tax to the counties where it belonged, according to the report of the truck driver or owner making the report.

He said the bill had been severely criticized, and the legislators had likewise come in for a good share of the cussing for letting such a bill pass, but the criticisms came largely from the big truck manufacturers and the uninformed, who had been pumped full of propaganda by the paid representatives of the truck makers.

Judge Bledsoe stated in conclusion that as for him, he was going to stand by the bill because he believed it a just one and for the better interests of the State Highways, and would work no injustice, that where a fellow used the roads he should be willing to help keep them up.

Investigate All Solicitors (Lubbock Avalanche)

"I shall be glad to subscribe to your fund if you will bring me a statement from the Chamber of Commerce that your credentials are all right," said one business man to two solicitors this past week for a fund for a maternity home.

"Oh, yes, we will be very glad to take our papers to the committee and have them look into our institution and we appreciate your kindness in referring us to that committee." They were very polite and nice, clean looking women—but they never applied to the Chamber of Commerce to have their papers vouched for.

Maybe they were all right and maybe not. A smart appearing woman of about 36 came into this city last fall on an identical proposition. She had a logical story, a whole flock of recommendations and certificates showing that she really did represent a recognized institution and she got from $5 to $20 from about three-fourths of the business men and houses of the city. She was never brought before the credentials committee of the Chamber of Commerce for investigation and left town some $200 or $300 to the good.

In Plainview the following day she was taken to the Board of City Development for investigation and placed under arrest for fake solicitation for telegrams sent to the institution she was supposed to represent failed to establish her identity. She city-slicked us out of a couple of hundred dollars.

Magazine solicitors, stock salesmen, solicitors of various sorts and kinds, mostly advertising, make these towns upon a schedule just like traveling salesmen. They represent nobody except themselves and when you pay $1, $2, $5, or $10, you are simply contributing to their support.

The money spent for fake schemes in this city each year will run into a tidy sum. Three-fourths of these could be weeded out by the Chamber of Commerce investigating committee. No legitimate solicitor or salesman would object to a committee looking into his recommendations and authority for doing business—no advertising promoter would object to having his scheme investigated by real businessmen—and no others are wanted. When they show up simply bring them around to the Chamber of Commerce.

Section 39. It shall be unlawful for any person to allow any slop, wash or waste water of any kind to flow over or under the pavement or sidewalk of any street, or into any alley or under any house or any vacant lot.

M. E. Sunday School Picnic

Over one hundred and forty people took part in the Methodist Sunday School Picnic on July 4th. There were two big wagon loads of Normal students and eight or ten cars of town people. Practically every farmer in the church worked in the harvest field all day and could not come to the picnic.

The Normal students rode out to the grounds on two big wagons pulled by a Case tractor which J. C. Dowd, local agent, kindly loaned for the purpose. After driving all over town to get the wagons ready and the water tank filled with water and ice, we stopped at the church to load the picnicers. And such a crowd, short and tall, fat and skinny, they all piled in. Those who could not find room for their feet inside the wagon hung them over the edge. But we made room for all.

As soon as we started again the drinking water began to splash out of the tank, and those who sat nearest were thoroughly sprinkled with ice cold Methodist water. While coming down the highway, the wind blew a perfect fog of dust around us and the drinking water was colored slightly with the same. No picnic is quite complete without some red lemonade, so some child dropped a red flag in the water, and it was then fully prepared for the occasion.

Axiom 1. The strongest tractor made will not pull a big load without lugs on the wheels. This was proved when we tried to cross the railroad.

A threatening black cloud in the west. The driver appealed for a vote on the course of action. The passengers voted to go on to the picnic. That shower passed around us.

We soon arrived at the creek. The little children immediately pulled off their shoes and stockings to wade in the water. The boys dug holes in the sand, built rock dams, and got themselves happily covered with mud. The students went on exploring expeditions to the canyon rocks and bluffs. We played tug-of-war, jump the rope, and other games until supper time.

And such a supper. We could hardly wait for grace to be said. Then everyone ate so much and so fast to get through before the next coming shower should reach us. But the shower arrived too soon, and all was hurry and rush to get things packed up and put away.

Axiom No. 2. The best tractor made will not run when the magneto is shorted with rain water. After frantic cranking we got a few shots from the engine, then it sputtered and died. First down—forty yards. More cranking—more sputter—second down—thirty yards. The rain continued. All who could not get under the wagons gave up the ship and started for home on foot. After long delay and a thorough dry cleaning of the magneto we started again. Yells of encouragement and manly shoulders to the wheel helped us up the slick hill, and after sliding around over the road for a mile or two we were home again, damp in large spots, but happy.

Some picnic! Hurrah for the Methodist Sunday School and the Fourth of July. —Reporter.

PRIZE ESSAY WINNERS

Clara Rush, Amarillo, First Place

Recently President Hill offered two prizes of $15.00 and $10.00 for the two best essays written on the following subject: "The Rewards of Teaching." One very interesting thing about the essays of all the contestants was the high estimate which was placed upon the teacher and his work. One vital weakness in the teaching profession today is the lack of high regard which those who are engaged in the work have for what they are doing. As a matter of self-respect, we, as teachers must become bold, aggressive champions of these principles and practices which stamp us as a distinct class.

The Rewards of Teaching (Clara Rush)

One never reaches the middle age of life but that he feels some anxiety to know whether or not he can be considered a success. The dreams of youth are bold dreams, not based on understanding; but at some time in our lives we are awakened to face a task. Each year we live the world grows bigger, the horizon seems to expand, and we realize more and more that we are accountable to an unseen Power who expects us to make something of ourselves. God expects us to be of service to others, but He has not set this task before us without a guide to lead us aright. He sent his Son, whose life exemplified service. How, then, are we best able to follow His example and render help to our fellow men?

What could better afford us this privilege than the field of teaching? In the art of teaching—and it truly is an art—the teacher has an opportunity to instill within the hearts and minds of his pupils the great fundamental truths of life. Some children in the world would never learn about these higher things of life if they were not taught to them in the school-room. Some of our greatest men of history have been influenced more by school teachers than by any other factor. And many who have never achieved greatness in the sense of serving one's country as president, or becoming a Napoleon, or a Pershing, but who helped to mould the characters of all with whom they came in contact, into something worth while, were made to become what they were by the impelling guidance of their school teachers. A day never passes that the teacher does not have a chance to correlate lessons from the text books with life. The crowning act of a teacher's work in producing citizenship is teaching the pupils to honor and reverence God, obey His law, and fear His commandments. Great is the teacher who can say that he helped to shape and develop a person into an all-round God-loving and God-fearing Christian citizen.

The child, God's greatest creation, is entrusted to the teacher to develop him as he sees fit to do. The child comes to the teacher with a mind as plastic as a lump of clay, which is to be moulded into something—either good or bad, according to the teacher's ideals and ability to understand and direct. The teaching of facts from the text books, while essential, is not the essential consideration. The physical development is also vitally necessary to the best mental and moral growth of any individual. So we see that the teacher must not neglect the physical, moral, and spiritual welfare to round out the life of the child in hand.

The teacher has the power to instill within the child the love of truth and beauty. Emerson says, "The firmest and noblest ground on which people can live is truth; the real with the real; a ground on which nothing is assumed." A good foundation is essential to everything, and why not have truth as our foundation in life? The children need to be taught that there is beauty on every side of them, and then they will appreciate life more. "There's beauty all around our paths, if but our watchful eyes can trace it midst familiar things, and through their lowly guise."

In our nation is to progress, our children should be taught to be patriotic, as well as to become educated, for what would education mean to a nation if its citizens were not patriotic? The teacher can impart to the children a knowledge of the country's affairs—what the nation stands for, the difficult problems it has to contend with, the way in which the government is run, its laws and taxes, and so on. And not only can he instruct them in regard to the affairs of their own nations, so that they get the view point not only of their fellow citizens in their state or nation, but also of the fellow citizens of the whole world.

The teacher can teach the children to be of service to their community in many ways. He can teach them to become leaders of the recreational and social phases of the community, as well as leaders of the spiritual, moral, and educational life.

The teachers have short working hours, which amounts to a great deal in itself. They have time to devote to self-improvement physically, mentally, and morally. They have a chance to meet interesting people from whom they can learn a great many things.

Their surroundings are pleasant, as well as profitable. "The importance and dignity of the teacher's work are emphasized by the very nature of that work. The function of the teacher secures for him at once an important and dignified place in the community. This is true because this very function is, essentially regarded, one of the highest and most efficient forms of personal intercourse. It is more comprehensive than ordinary domestic or friendly intercourse; it is more close-fitting and intimate than political and business intercourse; it is more apt to be free from certain embarrassments than is the former, while being more permanent and effective than the latter, in its relations to individuals."

Humbolt has said, "The aim of every man should be to secure the highest and most harmonious development of his powers to a complete and consistent whole." Therefore every faculty should be educated and every capacity developed to the highest possible degree. In no other field can this be done more readily than in the field of teaching.

NIGHT

(Lizzie Kate Smith)

'Tis time for night;
A flood of light
Spreads o'er the weary plains;
Like a caress,
Its gentleness
Smooths out all traces of pain.

A living dye
Now stains the sky,
And makes the earth to glow;
—Of light and shade
The world is made;
New hopes sad mortals know.

'Tis time for night;
A purple light
Steals o'er the drowsing plains;
In misty gray
It fades away,
And soothing quiet reigns.

The burning light,
The cooling night
Have tempered rolling plains,
And made them free
For you and me
To roam their vast domains.

To Alma Mater

When I look on thee, dear school,
Often I see not the buildings
Grand and magnificent,
But I see a little band,
Rich with great hope,
Sitting amid perils;
I see them as
They war with Indians,
As they fight for
Love and Liberty;
Then later, as
They frame a constitution,
For was not their purpose
Like unto thine?
And was not their spirit
Thy spirit also?
As each of us
Shall do his bit
And pass beyond
The horizon,
Our ideals of liberty
Shall stand for
All posterity. —B. W.

Mother

O, dearest mother so far away,
Where the west winds have full sway,
We know that thou art dreaming to-day,
Of thine own children who are away.

Under the broad and cloudless sky,
Under the sun so hot and dry,
Thou art toiling through every day
For thine own children so far away.

We feel the need of thy caress
Like those you used to give,
To fill our hearts with joyfulness,
As thru the tollsome days we live.

O, dearest mother as the years go by,
And the roses in thy cheeks fade and die,
We can never forget through all the days
Our little mother so dear always. —Ethel Kistler.

Every American boy should try to be the kind of a boy Theodore Roosevelt had in mind when he said: "What we have a right to expect from the American boy is that he shall turn out to be a good American man. Now, the chances are strong that he won't be much of a man unless he is a good deal of a boy. He must not be a coward or a weakling, a bully, a shirk, or a prig. He must work hard and play hard. He must be clean-minded and clean lived and able to hold his own under all circumstances and against all comers. It is only on these conditions that he will grow to be the kind of man of whom America can really be proud. In life, as in a football game, the principle to follow is: Hit the line hard; don't foul and don't shirk, but hit the line hard." —From The Prairie.

Legislators Will Not Visit the Panhandle

(Panhandle Herald)

During the recent session of the Legislature West Texas members conceived the idea of a visit of the entire membership of the legislature to Central, West Texas and the Panhandle by special train during the special session. It was contemplated that the railroads would make such an excursion possible by making a special rate for the movement of the train, but no concessions whatever will be made by the roads, and the fact that the cost of the trip was to be borne by the West Texas and the Panhandle towns, makes it out of the question to raise the fourteen thousand dollars necessary to cover the expense of the trip; therefore, it seems that the proposed trip must be abandoned.

The Herald very much regrets the failure to put the trip over for it meant so much to West Texas and Panhandle in that people who have never visited the Panhandle of Texas have an idea that we are a bunch of extravagant boosters out here, but a visit among us never fails to make converts out of the doubting Thomases.

The membership of the Legislature was anxious to make this trip and the failure to put it over is as much a disappointment to them as it is to us.

Railroads usually give reasonable concessions on trips of this kind, but why they are so "hard boiled" on this proposed excursion we are unable to understand. The Sheriffs of the State have been granted special rates to their State convention to be held in Amarillo in July and other special rates are being granted.

The railroads should be interested in the development of the Panhandle as much as any other interest, but perhaps a legislative trip does not appeal to them.

Your Eyes

How often after reading or writing have you said, "My how tired my eyes feel, I guess I will have to give them a rest." If the eyes are normal and have no defect they can do a great deal of work without becoming unduly tired. If on the other hand they are even slightly defective very little effort causes eye-strain with its resultant fatigue and discomfort.

The human eye is really a very delicate, living, optical instrument. It often stands much abuse and makes strenuous efforts to correct its imperfections. It should be about 24MM. about one inch in length and if it is either longer or shorter perfect, comfortable, vision is unlikely.

Let us take the eye that is a little too short from front backwards. Optometrists know this as a Hypermetropic eye but by the general public it is known as far-sighted. The possessor of such a pair of eyes may see perfectly but in order to keep the picture on the back of his eyes clear, a little muscle is called upon to over-exert itself. Eventually it becomes tired and strained and then the owner of these eyes knows that there is something the matter.

If he wisely consults an Optometrist he will find that first his eyes are carefully examined with instruments of the greatest precision. A trained Optometrist, can by means of these instruments determine whether or not glasses are needed and exactly the kind of glass that is needed. Further he can do this without asking you a single question. Wonderful! you say, no just the result of science and the labor of many years.

But you ask, "Is it safe to consult all of those who claim to be Optometrists?" Sad to say in Texas it is not, because while in 47 of our States, regulate this important profession Texas is yet without such helpful, constructive legislation. Here you must know that the Optometrist you consult is trained, but just as soon as our Law-Makers pass such a law you will have the assurance of knowing that only men who have shown a State Board their ability to fit glasses will be permitted to do this work and advertise themselves as Optometrists.

Dairyman Purchases $10,000 Cow

How would you like to own a $10,000 cow? Well, there is such a cow at the Cap Rock Jersey farm. Mr. S. A. Guy, the owner of this valuable dairy property, returned his latter part of last week from a business trip to New York and other Eastern points—where he made additional purchases of more fine cows and bulls for his dairy farm, one of the cows in the bunch costing him the princely sum of $10,000. This makes nearly 100 head of the finest Jersey cattle in the United States on this farm here at Crosbyton and we are all proud of them.—Crosbyton Review.

SKELETON OF HUGE MAMMAL UNEARTHED NEAR PLAINVIEW

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Stillwell, who own a tract of land in the extreme southeast portion of Plainview, between the east Petersburg road and the Santa Fe railway road bed, have recently discovered some huge bones that are supposed to be the bones of a mastodon. Mr. Stillwell has opened a sand pit, that has a stratum of sand seven feet in depth, beginning several feet under the ground. In excavating the sand he discovered the bones at a depth of twelve feet. They had in a manner decayed, but after they were removed and allowed to dry they became more firm, until they can be handled easily without crumbling.

Mr. Stillwell has arranged the bones in a manner resembling the bones in the hind legs of other animals. When in this position they measure seven feet and six inches in height from the ankle joint to the end of the ball on the hip joint. There appears a double ball and socket joint at the hip joint which is usually held together by a single ball and socket. This is creating considerable interest. The balls that appear at this joint are practically as large as a person's head.

The hip bones are four feet and nine inches in height, with the bone from the hock to the ankle two feet and nine inches in length. It is stated that the reason the bones became so brittle after drying is due to the fact that they underwent a period of oxidation before they were covered to this depth.

It is thought that the bones came from an animal that existed in pre-historic times. Mr. Stillwell states that in the stratum where these bones were discovered many small bones, shells and other similar substances were found. A formation resembling the head of the animal, which had so decayed that it was impossible to remove it, was found. Joints of the backbone and large teeth were also discovered. Bones of the limbs and large teeth have been taken to Mr. Stillwell's home and are being viewed by many with great interest.—Plainview Herald.

Preserving Eggs With Lime
 If water glass is not obtainable, lime may be used for preserving eggs, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. It is not considered as good as water glass, as in some instances eggs preserved by this method have tasted slightly of lime, although at other times limewater has proved entirely satisfactory.

To preserve with lime, dissolve 2 pounds of unslacked lime in a small quantity of water, and dilute with 5 gallons of water that has previously been boiled and cooled. Allow the mixture to stand until the lime settles, then pour off and use the clear liquid. Place clean, fresh eggs in a clean earthenware crock or jar, and pour the clear lime water into the vessel until the eggs are covered. At least 2 inches of the solution should cover the top layer of eggs.

Seeks Location of Old Indian Fight

(Canadian Record)
Mrs. Olive Dixon was on the train east bound through Canadian Sunday afternoon, going from Miami to Selling, Okla., where she hopes to see Amos Chapman, the only living participant of the Buffalo Wallow Indian fight of Sept. 12, 1874.

Mrs. Dixon expressed several reasons for making the trip. She has a great desire to meet face to face with one of the men who fought with her husband during one of the most trying experiences of his life, and she is going to make a personal appeal to Mr. Chapman to come and decide definitely the exact spot where the historic fight took place.

Failing to get Mr. Chapman to come she has a number of questions to ask him concerning the fight. Among the questions are, what type of guns were the men using that day and how far were the men apart when they first began to work their way up to the Wallow.

What make of guns were the Scouts using? Were they different from the soldiers as many now seem to think? Hemphill County people have been greatly interested in having the Buffalo Wallow located, with the idea of suitably marking the spot.

The Panhandle-Plains Historical Society at Canyon and the Oklahoma Historical Society of Oklahoma City have offered their assistance in marking the spot when it is definitely located.

LEGISLATURE MAY REPEAL MEASURE FOR HOSPITAL

Austin, June 29.—The coming session of the legislature may consider the matter of repealing the law appropriating $1,500,000 for a 600-bed hospital at Kerrville, it became known today.

Such proposed action is the result of reports from the board of control where it was learned that the soldiers' tubercular sanitarium opened at Kerrville, Thursday, June 21, with thirty-two beds available had received as patients only six soldiers up to Saturday night. It was further stated that a companion ward of thirty-two beds was finished and would be furnished this week, making a total of sixty-four beds available.

Governor Neff said today that the Federal Government had informed him in writing that it is now prepared to take care of any soldier tubercular case within thirty hours after receiving notice that the patient desired admittance to a government hospital.

A teaspoonful of Herbine will produce a copious and purifying bowel movement, improve appetite, restore mental activity and a fine feeling of vigor and cheerfulness. Price, 60c. Sold by Jarrett Drug Co. 154

Keep Your Word

You'll be rated as a bird, in the busy haunts of trade, if you always keep your word, never let a promise fade. If you promise you will pay for your wagon load of lime on the twenty-ninth of May, do your paying right on time. Then the smiling merchant prince will remark with beaming eye, "It is many ages since I have seen so prompt a guy." And the merchant prince will say to the other princes near, "There is no more honest jay from Dansheba clear to Beer." If you promise you will meet James Adolphus Arthur Mix on the corner of the street at ten minutes after six, do not make Adolphus wait for the fraction of an hour, or he'll think you are a skate, for his spirit will be sour. And upon a future day, when you need him in your biz, and approach him, he will say "Holy Moses and Gee Whiz! Once I had a date with you, and you kept it—in a horn; so I naturally view you and all your works with scorn." One has great renown for wit, one can wrestle like a Gotch, and another makes a hit when he warbles, "Lor-board Watch;" one can write a classy ode, one can rear up and orate, one can scorch along the road at Barney Oldfield gait. There are many kinds of fame, and some samples are absurd; but we all admire the game of the man who keeps his word. He is loaded to the guards with the laurel wreaths he's won, when the statesmen and the bards retail at ten cents a ton.—Walt Mason.

The man who conceals a fault shows that there is something within him to which that fault is distasteful.

A Second Lieutenant in the American forces in Germany receives $2120 a year, and extra allotments bring the figure up to about $2300. At the rate of exchange of 14½ francs to the dollar, the second lieutenant draws about 33,500 francs a year. Marshal Foch's salary is 33,000 francs.

FORTY-TWO MEN ON A DENVER FREIGHT TRAIN

Forty-two men arrived in Quanah Tuesday morning on a north-bound freight train. The men were not tramps nor Bolsheviks, but were men who needed work and were going to the harvest fields. They were peaceable, and the train crew did not seem to interfere with them.

When the train pulled out for the north the men took their places in the side-door Pullman. One man remarked to an Observer reporter that they had plenty of money with which to buy their eats but didn't have the price of tickets.—Quanah Observer.

Here's why CAMELS are the quality cigarette
BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand! Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.
Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.
Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper—secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.
Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.
If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigarettey aftertaste,
It's Camels for you.
