

JARRETT GIVES IDEAS ON CITY'S PUBLIC SCHOOLS

CREDIT FOR EVERYTHING OFFERED IS THE GOAL.

Candidate Reception Committee and Street Marking Committee Named At Luncheon Tuesday.

The attendance at the weekly luncheon of the Commercial League Tuesday grew to 24, after a serious relapse during the past three weeks.

The luncheon will be held next Wednesday at the Canyon Cafe, owing to the fact that Clarence Ousley will be in the city that day, and Mr. Ousley will address the meetings. Frank R. Phillips will be leader for the day.

Secretary W. A. Warren reported that towns were seeking pledges for support for the next meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, which meets this year at Plainview on May 21-22. It was decided that the delegates from this League go uninvited to the meeting. Mr. Warren and R. A. Terrill are working out the plans for those wishing to attend from Canyon.

A motion was passed providing for a permanent entertainment committee for the purpose of meeting all candidates coming to the city to make political speeches this year. W. J. Flesher, W. A. Warren, E. H. Powell, C. R. Burrow and T. C. Thompson were appointed on this committee.

The grain rate was discussed, but no action taken since the grain dealers are to meet next week.

R. P. Jarrett took charge of the meeting and conveyed to the Commercial League and the people of Canyon the appreciation of President J. A. Hill for the cooperation extended during the visit of the Governor and Board of Regents.

Mr. Jarrett stated that as a member of the board of trustees of the Canyon Independent School District he had been thinking about some things which he believed should be presented to all of the people of the school district in order that they might be thinking of the future of the school.

Mr. Jarrett gave three things that had suggested themselves to him.

First. The idea had been advanced that the present school building be wrecked in the construction of a new building. Mr. Jarrett stated that since this idea had been advanced he had very carefully inspected the old building. It has sixteen rooms, not all correctly lighted and arranged, but they were in good condition. It would take $100,000 to replace this building at this time. It would not be good economy to wreck this building in the construction of a new house.

Second. Mr. Jarrett gave as his idea that the new building must be a high school building, separate and apart from the present building. He believes in the 6-3-2 plan; the first six grades being the grades school, the next three the junior high school and the last two the senior high school. He would place the junior and senior high school grades in the new building separate from the grades. Mr. Jarrett stated that it was the desire of the board of trustees to develop the schools along the lines that the people desired.

Third—The internal development of the school system as it now existed. There are now offered 20 units in the high school. There is affiliation upon 8%, and more will be added this year. There should be a definite idea in mind that there shall be no more expansion until everything presented is standard and credit given upon everything in any school to which the pupil desires to go.

Mr. Jarrett recalled his experience in schools where the idea prevailed that it was the amount of ground covered and not the depth which counted.

Mr. Jarrett wanted to see positive development in the school by adding more equipment. It takes good tools to make a good surgeon. A teacher cannot do good work without good equipment. The public schools do not have sufficient equipment as it should have.

Mr. Jarrett stated that there was definite evidence of great progress having been made in the schools during the past year by the work of the superintendent and board.

W. E. Lockhart was called upon, and gave his experience in trying to find homes in Canyon, and the difficulties under which a stranger labored in trying to find his way in Canyon. He suggested that steps be taken at once to put into effect a system

The first game was a good contest, but yesterday the Clarendon slugs almost made a race track of the diamond.

Wayland will be here Friday and Saturday for two games.

Ex-Service Men Are Asked for Complete Record of their Service

The American Legion is undertaking a service for the ex-service men in which a record of every man who has been in service is desired. Jack Jones has been asked to obtain this information for Randall county.

There are 48 questions on the blank dealing with the enlistment, outfit of service, disabilities resulting from service, compensation asked for and received, vocation training received, needs of other men you may know of, does the government owe you back pay, and as to your membership in the American Legion.

The blanks are being placed in the hands of some man in every town in this country, and an effort will be made to get a full and complete list of answers from all ex-service men. Mr. Jones would like to have all ex-service men get one of these lists from him at once.

RAIN CHECKS IN THIS SECTION.

Although every day this week has been very threatening, there has been no rain of consequence since last Friday. Rain has fallen in almost every direction from Canyon.

Very part of the Panhandle has been soaked with from five to ten inches of rain during the past ten days, and all are willing for the rain to cease for awhile in order that farm work may get started again.

Fire Prevention Study Will Lower Key Rate In Canyon 3 Percent

A representative of the State Fire Commission was in the city Saturday and made arrangements with Mayor J. D. Gamble and Superintendent-elect A. D. Payne to introduce the study of fire prevention in the public schools, upon which the commission will grant a reduction of three percent from the key rate of the city.

The course will be given in the third and fifth grades, one lesson per week. The city council has bought the required books to be furnished free to these grades. And from the seventh grade up through the high school, there must be a theme twice a year on the subject of fire prevention. The state fire commission will furnish a large number of pamphlets for the use of the high school students as a basis for their themes.

Practically all of the schools of the state are introducing this subject in their course of study in the English work.

MISS HART ELECTED TEACHER

A short session of the school board was held Tuesday evening at which time Miss Fannie Belle Hart was elected teacher in the grades for the coming year. Miss Hart graduated from the Normal two years ago and has been a very successful teacher. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Hart of this city.

Civic League After Men Who Spit on Public Sidewalks

The Civic Improvement League has declared war on the men who are in the habit of spitting upon the sidewalks of Canyon and in the public business places. In addition to being a very filthy habit, it is one of the very easiest way of spreading disease. The city has an ordinance prohibiting this spitting and it is going to be enforced.

Each business house in Canyon is asked to have a clean up day each month, instead of waiting for the semi-annual clean up days of the city.

It was reported at the meeting yesterday afternoon that on account of the agitation against hogs within the city limit, there had been a number moved outside the city and several owners were preparing to make the move. The city marshal asked those who have complaints against neighbors having hogs to see the mayor and the hog owners would be notified to get rid of their herds.

At the service last night, the sermon was directed to the men, and they were seated in the main part of the auditorium. The service tonight will be especially for the women and they will be given the main auditorium with the men occupying the choir loft and wings of the church.

The hour of the day services was changed this week to ten o'clock in the morning, and the attendance has been good. Prayer meetings are being held in the homes in the afternoon.

The Canyon Independent School District showed a total of 553 this year, and to this number will be added about 80 from common schools districts Nos. 2 and 18 which transferred into the independent school district after the census had been completed.

The total number of scholastics in Randall county this year will be 1040, of which more than 630 will be in the independent school district.

GOVERNOR NEFF AND MEMBERS OF BOARD OF REGENTS SPENT MONDAY IN OFFICIAL VISIT TO THE NORMAL

MORE THAN TWO THOUSAND HEAR GOVERNOR AT THE AUDITORIUM—HIGH PRAISE FOR WORK THAT THE SCHOOL IS DOING.

Declaring that he was a friend of education and all educational institutions of Texas, Governor was highly applauded by one of the largest audience ever gathered in Canyon, the Normal auditorium being filled to capacity, with probably more than a hundred being turned away at the door. There were more than 2000 present Monday morning to greet Governor Pat M. Neff and members of the Board of Regents.

President J. A. Hill presided over the meeting. He announced that A. C. Goeth, president of the board, was ill at his home, unable to attend, and that Robert J. Eckhardt of Taylor and A. B. Watkins of Athens had been detained at home on account of business matters. Only three members of the board and the secretary had been able to make the inspection trip.

Mr. Hill first introduced Miss Margie Neal of Carthage. Miss Neal had been appointed to the board by Governor Neff, and was a very useful member, who was making a very careful study of teacher-training institutions of Texas.

Miss Neal was very glad to be present. She stated that so long as she was needed, she would do her best, and give her best services to the schools of Texas, especially those with whose care was committed to the board of which she was a member. She congratulated the West Texas State Normal College as being the first normal in the state to be recognized as a senior college. She wished to impress upon the students that as a student of this institution they were taking as high grade work and were recognized as they would be in any institution, and that they should be proud of the standing this school gave them.

J. J. Bennett of Stephenville another member of the board was introduced. He claims West Texas as his home, but out here he meets many of his old friends from down in the state. He believed the West Texas State Normal College to be one of the greatest schools in the state, and was glad to be able to serve the school and state as a member of the board of regents.

H. A. Turner, secretary of the board, made his first trip to Canyon Monday, although he has been secretary of the board for ten years. He was glad that he had come. He was very proud of the Normal.

Martin O. Flowers, vice president of the board, and acting chairman during the tour of inspection spoke at some length as to the possibilities of the school. He stated that the board had come to study the needs of the school. They would try to judge the possibilities of the future development of the normals, and plan to fulfill the needs of the institutions. The school would be put on the witness stand during the board's visit. The faculty would be investigated, the students investigated, and citizens of the community investigated. The board was intensely interested in the young men and young women of Texas. They were interested in all institutions and in taxation. He believed that the Governor is going to find a better way to raise money than is now used.

Mr. Flowers stated that when the first board visited Canyon the members did not believe it possible to build a great school at Canyon. Today it is one of the best schools in the state. It is going to continue to grow. Every community in this section has been benefitted by the fact that the Normal was placed here.

There are many who would never have had a chance for education had not the school been placed out here, and the state would have lost in its citizenship.

Governor Neff had come to study the needs, stated Mr. Flowers. He was not here for political purposes. He would have been re-elected had he stayed in Austin and never made a single speech.

Clarence Ousley Will Speak in Canyon On Next Wednesday

Hon. Clarence Ousley, candidate for the United States senate, will speak in Canyon three times next Wednesday.

He will address the students of the Normal at the chapel period at ten o'clock next Wednesday; at noon he will speak at the luncheon of the Commercial League and at 7:30 he will speak at the District Court Room.

Mr. Ousley will speak at Happy at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Ousley was formerly director of Extension of the A. & M. College and was Assistant Secretary of Agriculture under President Wilson. He understands the agricultural needs of Texas as very few men in the state, and is making a very thorough campaign in his race for the senate.

not so pessimistic as some people about the educational condition of Texas. He recalled the growth that had been made in Texas since he graduated from the university. There is now new interest when the regents are joined by the governor in coming to investigate the problems of the institutions.

Mr. Hill stated that there were two problems facing the state. First that of placing trained teachers in every school of the state. The business of teaching was of as great importance as that of any of the other professions. Mr. Hill plead for a large and wise investment in the teacher training institutions of Texas. The second problem is the money. Mr. Hill believes that the tax problem will be solved and that it will be solved without increasing taxes, but that a just and equitable distribution of the tax burden will be made. Governor Neff was taking an honest and intelligent interest in an effort to solve the question.

Governor Neff's speech was purely along educational lines. "Not a word was uttered regarding politics or the political situation in Texas today."

The Governor stated that it was two years since he visited West Texas. What he has seen on his nine day trip has made him proud of this section, but he has seen nothing that made him so proud as the student body of the Normal. "People in this section of Texas come nearer representing 100 percent Americanism than any place else," was his statement that brought forth great cheers from the big audience.

Mr. Neff stated that in the communities he had visited, he found that schools were anxious to get teachers from this institution. "When the appropriation bills came to me, I vetoed about six million dollars of appropriations," stated the Governor, "but I vetoed not one cent of the Canyon normal's appropriation."

The Governor stated that he was a friend of education and of every institution of learning in Texas. There are fifteen state schools and 43 percent of all money appropriated by the state goes to these schools. The state cannot spend too much for education. He congratulated the students that they were receiving their education in Texas. No Texas boy or girl ought to go outside of the state to receive his education. He congratulated the school that so many students were helping pay their way through school.

The Governor stated that he wished to speak on the subject "Life is a single-handed fight," and in a very forceful and simple manner delivered a straight out sermon-lecture that was appealing and gripping in its effect upon the large audience. He pointed out the fact that every person was architect of their own fortune. No one cared who your parents were—they were interested only in what you were, and what you can do. He recalled instances of men who had

It seems that while Governor Pat Neff was enjoying the hospitality of the big hearted people of the Panhandle, and learning of the wonders of the west, it was also necessary for him to experience some of the littleness of this section, and experience a thing that possibly no other Governor has ever experienced and the really big people of this section trust that no other Governor will again witness.

The constitution of Texas gives the Governor certain powers. If it were not meant that the Governor should be free in exercising these powers, most certainly they would not have been granted to him. If it meant that any other body of the law should exercise itself as a safety-valve over the Governor, and in any have jurisdiction or control over this constitutional right, the constitution certainly would have very clearly made the matter plain.

But here comes the Potter County grand jury. It sends out the sheriff with instructions to bring before that body the Governor of this state. Does he know of law infringements in Potter county? No, he has spent one night in the county, and filled two pulpits on Sunday. He has neither been running with bootleggers or high-jackers. He has not been snooping around to get into a crap or poker game. He has been running with quite respectable people. But the grand jury summoned the Governor of Texas to tell them of a criminal case. The Governor of Texas appeared before the body in spite of the fact that he had very little time to spend from his official duties. The busy in hand was simply a case of the grand jury wanting to know why Governor Neff had pardoned a man who was convicted in the Armstrong county district court. The grand jury overstepped the constitutional rights of the Governor of Texas and demanded to know the why of the case. West Texas has for twenty-five years been clamoring for recognition on the part of Texas. The Governor of Texas came to see the needs of West Texas and went into sections and towns of the Panhandle to which no other Governor of Texas had ever gone. He had ridden through mud and rain and rough roads that he might learn the needs of this section. And then to be hauled into court in the metropolis of West Texas and the demand made of him by what right he had exercised a constitutional authority! No Governor, not all West Texans are like that. Most of we think that you are doing a good job in the management of the state's affairs, and while all of us are long on advice, we will still allow you to unmolested pursue your constitutional rights and powers.

Judge Napier of Wichita Falls is a candidate against Governor Neff on the Ku Klux Klan tickets. We know nothing of his ability but advanced our idea along this line last week. A candidate is going to have to show himself more qualified than merely being a member of the Ku Klux Klan before we will support him. Governor Neff may be a member of the Klan, but we doubt it. He has not answered last, and we hope he don't. Politics last, and we hope we won't. Politics are certainly getting on a pretty low level if we are going to elect our U. S. senator and Governor on account of their ability as a Klansman or an anti-Klansman.

Happy Happenings

The report of the M. E. Sunday School was unusually good Sunday morning, with 137 present, 6 new pupils and $7.11 collection. At 11 o'clock Rev. Beavers took charge of the services. A vocal duet was given by Mrs. F. M. Shenefelt and Miss Annie Crawford. The subject for the service was "The Old Time Religion," and the text was the first eleven verses of the first chapter of Second Timothy. No services were held at the Baptist or Presbyterian churches Sunday morning or evening, as the members attended services at the Methodist church. We appreciate very much the kindness of Revs. Hall and Miller to urge their members to attend our services. An offering was taken for Rev. Beavers Sunday morning and about $100 was raised. We cannot express our utmost appreciation of those from other denominations for their contributions in this offering. The services for the young people, which was held Friday night, was very impressive and a large number of elderly people as well as young people attended, enjoyed and appreciated this service. A service for children was held Saturday afternoon. It was an illustrated sermon and the children appreciated it very much. We feel that this meeting was, as we expected, a union meeting and not only a Methodist meeting, and we also feel that it was a success even though the rain prevented several of the night services. The meeting closed Sunday night.

IT'S YOU

If you want to have the kind of home town

Like the kind of a town you like, You needn't slip your clothes in a grip And start on a long, long hike;

For there's nothing that's really new, You'll only find what you left behind, It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town;

It isn't the town—it's you.

You wouldn't expect, if you mined your soil, Bumper crops that you used to get; Nor aught but ruins from feeding that stunts.

Nor payment without a debt, One gets returns from what he earns— Something must first be due.

If your town doesn't pay, look at it this way:

It isn't your town—it's you.

Real towns are not made by men afraid That others will get ahead, When every one works and nobody shirks.

You can raise a town from the dead; And if, while you make your personal stake,

Your neighbors can make one too, Your town will be what you want to be;

It isn't the town—it's you. —Anonymous.

A southwestern city has hit upon a cheap and efficient system of marking its streets. As a person drives along a street he can see the name of the cross streets as he approaches them.

Men without number who were cast adrift on the sea without water have died of thirst; yet it is now possible to distill enough moisture from the breath to sustain life. Those who have been caught in a great storm at sea usually describe the waves as "mountain high." Extensive and careful observations show that storm waves do sometimes attain a vertical height of forty feet and "tidal" waves a height of from sixty

HIGHER INSTITUTIONS OF LEARNING

(Excerpt from address by President Hill before the Texas Educational Survey committee, April 21, 1922.)

What "unnecessary duplications," if any, exist at the present time in the work of Texas institutions of higher learning?

So far as the Normal Colleges are concerned I do not think there is any "unnecessary duplication." Of course, there is practical uniformity in courses of study, standards of admission, graduation requirements, etc., but as we understand it this is just what the State desires and expects; and certainly it is what the State needs.

With reference to the other institutions of higher learning I hesitate to speak; first, because I am not as familiar with their practices as one should be to discuss this subject wisely; second, because my opinions may not be altogether orthodox. However, because you have a right to ask my judgment and have done so, I have no right to withhold it and for this reason I give you the following which I hope my associates will receive in the spirit in which it is given.

As I understand it there are three institutions in the State attempting to do extension work in Home Economics—A. & M. College, the University, and the College of Industrial Arts. I believe that this is unnecessary and wasteful duplication of effort. As our educational system is now organized I believe that this work should be centralized and that the logical place for such centralization is at the College of Industrial Arts.

I know full well the arguments of the other side, and some of them seem plausible; but if we are to follow the principle of "Major and Service Lines," I think there can be but one conclusion in this case.

Again, at Denton there is the North Texas State Normal College—one of the largest and best Normal Colleges in the whole country. Like other Texas Normal Colleges it is devoted, body and soul, to the training of teachers. In the same city is the College of Industrial Arts, created for the purpose of training young women in the science and art of home making and for such industrial work as women may be adapted to. Yet, this college, too, is laying no little emphasis upon teacher-training. It seems a little odd that the State would be willing to maintain two teachers' colleges in the same city. Economy in administration would seem to demand that the teacher-training activities of the College of Industrial Arts should be transferred to the North Texas State Normal College.

In this connection I may say that the charge has frequently been made that the Normal Colleges have invaded the fields of other institutions, forsaking, in a measure, the single purpose for which they were created. In reply to all such I wish to say that I think the Normal Colleges must have forgotten this reputation for the fact that there is no truth in it. Such statements are predicated upon utter ignorance of the facts. The truth is, there is not an institution of higher learning in Texas today, state or denominational, that has not been given the charge or the privilege of training teachers. Run down the entire roster and see if you can find an exception. The State has turned the entire herd into our pasture and has bidden them help themselves. She has then closed the gate to prevent our escape and is now complaining that we are eating other people's grass. We do not seriously object to sharing our grazing with our neighbors, since there is more than we can eat. We do not enjoy being punched and lashed for consuming the other fellow's hay which we have never so much as scented even afar off; and when, after growing fat in our pasture, they turn upon us and horn us, we ought to be excused by impartial judges if we bow our necks with some defiance and belch occasionally in protest. So much for "unnecessary duplication."

The former kaiser's palace in Berlin has been used as a movie studio since the war ended.

ON MAKING ALLOWANCES

Most people make allowances for themselves much more readily than for others. It is not that they are consciously self-indulgent or intentionally harsh or uncharitable; but in matters affecting themselves they are in possession of the facts, and in matters affecting others they are not. When they are making allowances for themselves it is because they definitely recognize some weakness or misfortune or unhappy circumstance that seems to them to warrant indulgence; their adoption of a more severe or critical attitude toward others whose conduct on some occasion has fallen short of the standard expected is owing as much to lack of imagination as to an exalted sense of justice.

When they themselves are brusque or unresponsive or irritable they know that it is because worry over illness in the family or their boy's poor standing at school or a bad turn in business or an unexpectedly large bill has made them so. But they do not attribute the brusqueness, unresponsiveness or irritability or another to a corresponding cause; they take it as a personal affront and resent it and perhaps give the offender a bad name when they talk about him. He is a snob, or a sour and "crouchy" character, or at the least he has no manners.

For men in public life the ordinary citizen is likely not to make allowances—especially when they are of the opposite political party to his own. He is on the watch for compromises with conscience; for votes and acts inconsistent with the high principles proclaimed; he judges harshly—often on inadequate evidence. Even lapses from perfect strength, straightforwardness and courage in the leaders of his own party he does not condone; he finds an unacknowledged, pleasure in the shortcomings of the eminent. But although he freely and vigorously condemns public men for yielding, he often excuses himself for the weakness that he has shown under pressure. And the excuse seems to him good—at least good enough. Censure, no less than charity, should begin at home.

COURTESY

The finest courtesy is that which comes from the spontaneous manifestation of good will. Yet often people who feel good will toward others are not notable for courtesy. When there is any failure in courtesy it can almost invariably be ascribed to fear. Perhaps the person is afraid of assuming too much importance and of appearing egotistical and therefore lurks in the background when he should come forward. Perhaps he fears that some one will think that he is trying to curry favor, and therefore he is so distantly polite as almost to be rude. Perhaps his good will is mingled with admiration as to make him awkward and embarrassed; the fear of being regarded as commonplace and unimportant as he cannot help knowing himself to be prevents him from showing proper courtesy. Or, on the other hand the fear that courtesy will be interpreted as weakness causes him to be assertive, overbearing or truculent.

Fear is the great enemy to happiness and accomplishment. One of the most effective ways in which fear works is through curbing or suppressing the courteous manners and actions that, if it were not established in a position of authority, would display themselves as the natural expression of the heart.

MAN WORTH 98 CENTS

A woman tired of hearing men boast of their importance dug up the fact that, according to scientific investigation, the ingredients of a man, plus water, are as follows:

Fat enough for seven bars of soap.
Iron enough for a medium sized nail.
Sugar enough to fill a slinker.
Lime enough to white wash a chicken coop.

Phosphorous enough to make 2,200 match tips.

Magnesium enough for a dose of magnesia.

Potassium enough to explode a toy cannon.

Sulphur enough to rid a dog of fleas.

This whole collection is worth 98 cents, and that in a day when things are three times as high as they used to be.

Makers of phonograph records in London say the demand for private discs is increasing. Persons are having records of their own accomplishments made and are sending them to their friends instead of sending letters or gifts. The prattle and talk of children at various ages is being filed away with their baby clothes.

More than $1,000,000 was lost in fires in the United States during the five years between 1915 and 1920, of which $90,000,000 was attributable to smoking hazards—smouldering cigarette butts in waste paper baskets and other carelessness.

The Chinese are developing a liking for American cosmetics. Highly perfumed toilet waters for washing the hair are being imported into China and the cheap face creams, soaps and powders of the domestic variety are giving way to the better imported products of this class.

COACH BURTON DISCUSSES ATHLETICS IN SCHOOLS

Twelve years as a student of college foot ball have taught me many things about the game, the most important of which is that the game is not played by eleven men who actually don the moleskin and encounter the rival team on the gridiron, but by the entire institution which these men represent, the faculty, the alumni, students and friends. Until the winning spirit invades the campus and fastens itself upon every one connected with the college very few games or other contests will be won. In too many instances the students have been taught to be good losers instead of glorious winners. I know two schools of the same State, with the same rank, the same financial support and in every way the same opportunities. One taught its students to win (fairly of course), and every man or woman representing that institution in any kind of a contest felt that the eyes of the whole school were upon him and that nothing but the very best effort on his part would be acceptable. The other institution taught its students never to enter a contest unless they could lose with good grace. The first school was seldom defeated; the second met defeat on every hand. After leaving school the students of the first institution met success almost invariably while those of the second filled the secondary positions of the community. Why was this? One had been taught to win, to put forth every effort and not be satisfied with the losers share; while the other had been taught to accept the lesser things in life and do it with good grace. Now the question comes will we satisfy ourselves with the lesser things in life, or will we fight for the winning positions?

The standing of our foot ball team next fall is a matter that concerns every one of us. The responsibility of the mental and physical condition of the men who will represent you cannot be shifted entirely upon the coach. The question is often asked, "Should I inform the coach if by chance I should see a member of the team break the training rules?" Coach Heisman of the University of Pennsylvania has this to say: "A man who fails to report such an act is as guilty of treason as is the man who will break training and then offer himself as a man physically fit to enter the contest. I believe that there are men who break training who do not realize the seriousness of it. He is not only doing himself an injustice, but is doing every man and woman connected with the school a grave injustice. He may be the cause of a play's failing which will upset the whole season's work of coaches and team." I look at the matter in very much the same way as does Coach Heisman, yet I believe that it is as much the duty of the student body and others connected with the school to enforce the training rules as it is the duty of the Coach. I believe that there are men who will break training that could not be induced to sell the signal code to the opponents. But is there any difference in the gravity of the offense?—Only in the minds of those would-be supporters of the team. I have no patience with the man who will encourage a player to break training and then the next day go to the game and yell himself hoarse for the team he has been instrumental in debasing. Neither have I any patience with the college "flapper" who will encourage the player to stay up late and listen to her soft cooings that do not mean anything and then go to the game the next day and yell herself black in the face for the team she has helped to weaken. When the students of this or any other college reach the point where they demand the very best there is in a man who represents them on the athletic field or on the platform; then the school will come into its own and will be a winner. It is easy for a player to stay within the bounds of the training rules if he feels that it is expected of him by every one from the senior on down; while it is a very easy matter to break training if he feels that all the student body will shield such an act from the coach.

Now I want to make this appeal to every man who will try for a place on the team next fall. Begin now to get yourself in physical condition for the fight that is to come. Do not wait until training starts, for the team will virtually be picked within the first three weeks. And unless you are in good condition you will not be doing justice to yourself.

Then I want to urge every student who wants a winning team next fall to use his influence with the men who will try for places to the end that they will be physically fit to give the school every ounce of fight that is in them. Let them know that it is the man who is willing to make the sacrifice that you are willing to back and not the man who tries to get by with his vices instead of honest training.

Savers are Winners

It is very interesting to observe enthusiastic savers. We watch them as they come regularly to the bank to make their deposits. There is on their faces the smile that is peculiar to winners.

The glory is not alone in the amount they have saved; they know that it is not always easy to save and are proud to have succeeded.

Remember, it always gives us pleasure to help those who are trying to get ahead.

THE JOY OF WORK

We seem as a nation to be suffering from a mania for play. The huge development of pleasure-chasing automobiles merely symbolizes our universal restless eagerness to be running after something, anything, that we can classify as diversion. Under pressure from tormenting constituents our legislatures are piling up holidays. And the cry of labor everywhere is, "Cut down hours; cut down hours," until it seems as if brief, tired minutes were all that would be left for work. The obvious deduction is that work is always something to be got rid of, as if it were a curse.

Yet work is life. Proper recreation and relaxation are of course essential, even for the effective doing of work itself; and it may be that the past has been sometimes neglectful of these in due proportion. But that does not mean that men would ever thrive if they had all holidays, or even mainly holidays. Experience has shown over and over again, proclaims, cries out to us, that if the ordinary healthy man has his whole existence made of leisure he does not know what to do with it and in the end rots out in degeneration and misery.

No, work is what we live for, and work makes all the dignity of life. But everything depends on how we look at work. If we consider it as merely something that must be done because it cannot be avoided, something to be dodged and scamped and slighted the minute the employer is not looking, if we regard it as hateful drudgery and nothing else, it naturally becomes a curse and a burden.

Put thought into your work, put pride into it, put yourself into it. Your work is yourself, or ought to be. It is your creation, the expression and embodiment of all in you that is really worth standing room in the world. If your work is worth while, you are worth while. If not, not. If you take no joy in your work, neither man nor God will take any joy in you.

The fine lines of George Herbert are still good to carry about with us:

Who sweeps a room as for Thy laws
Makes that and th' action fine.

NAMES

In an age when everything is regulated by law it seems strange that no one has yet thought of appointing a commission to superintend the naming of children. Names seem to be a mere matter of whim and casual fancy. Yet just think that you are attaching to a soul a stamp that is to cling to it in its whole progress through the world, that may never be got rid of, that with time becomes really an integral part of the man or woman, and in a sense the most important part, since it is what comes first to the ears of strangers and carries with it a vague significance that can never quite be shaken off.

Great imaginative writers have often been impressed with the singular influence and almost fatality of names. In the strange, wandering, fascinating novel of Sterne the hero is intended to receive the name of Trismegistus, which, little as it appeals to us, is supposed to be particularly fortunate. Instead, he is called Tristram, an appellation of dire infelicity and one that brings a long succession of semihumorous woes.

In practical life, also, what odd and almost incredible collocations of sounds occur to form a human name, and what strange incompatibility there is at times between a man's name and his occupation in life! Thus, a faithful and distinguished soldier of the Civil War had the family name of Coward, and to make the concatenation perfect his parents, with the alphabet to choose from, made his first initial A. But, apart from such violent and exceptional instances, we all know that there is a slight yet pervasive and enduring suggestiveness in names. Some flow with ease and grace and aptness, so that we likht to speak them and hear them and dwell upon them. Others are so accented, so fraught with sharp consonants and heavy vowels, that the very sound of them are oppressive. Of course association affects and overcomes all these things, but they do not count, and a little steady pressure tells in a long life.

If you have a child to christen, do not pick the first fantastic name that strikes you, nor yet fasten upon a harmless infant some ugly Biblical curiosity because it happened to belong to your grandfather, but stop and think whether the name you choose is one you yourself would like to carry for seventy-five years.

REPORT OF VISITING COMMITTEE FROM THE STATE UNIVERSITY VERY HIGHLY PRAISES WORK IN NORMAL COLLEGE

The committee from the University of Texas, composed of Drs. W. S. Sutton, R. A. Law and W. R. Splawn, visited the West Texas State Normal College two weeks ago. This visit was made upon the invitation of the Normal for the purpose of investigating its equipment, the personnel of its faculty and courses of instruction. Immediately upon the return of the committee to Austin, reports were filed with Registrar E. J. Matthews at the University and sent to President J. A. Hill.

Dean Sutton said of the department of education: "The curricula which obtains in the department of education manifests a greater degree of desirable differentiation than usually obtains. The education courses, each of which is built up on a two full years' work in education, should be accepted by the University as advanced courses. The library facilities, so far as education is concerned, at least meet minimum requirements."

The chief adverse criticism as made by Dr. Sutton concerns the training school. "The training school of the Normal is housed in the main or administration building. If the work of the training school be done efficiently as its importance justifies, there should be erected upon the campus a large and commodious and properly adapted building, in which all the activities of the training school may be efficiently and economically carried on. The training school building would serve as a model school, which might be visited with interest and profit by teachers, principals and superintendents, and would cost, it seems to me, not less than $100,000, a sum which viewed in the light of the work to be done by the training school, is, in my judgment modest indeed."

Reporting the Latin department, Dr. Sutton says: "The Latin department is in charge of Prof. B. A. Stafford, who knows the subject and knows how to teach it."

Under "General Conditions," Dr. Sutton said: "The college certainly meets minimum requirements fixed by the Texas Association of Colleges. The administrative building is an excellent building, well adapted for school purposes. It gives me pleasure to testify to the fact that, so far as I was able to discover, the spirit of the president and the faculty of the West Texas State Normal College is admirable."

Dr. Splawn's report also has been received by President Hill. Dr. R. A. Law, who was to report on the English and modern language departments, has not yet forwarded his report. Dr. Splawn pointed out the need of a separate training school building. Incidentally, it may be said that a training school building was asked for from the recent Legislature, but suffered the fate of all building projects at that time.

Taking briefly from Dr. Splawn's report are the following:

"The program for the teachers is much more satisfactory than in most young colleges. A good beginning has been made in the selection of books for the library. They should, by all means have a separate building for their training school."

"After visiting one of the classes of the head of the department of history, and after a conference with him, I was confirmed in the opinion that I had formed from reading Professor Ramsdell's recommendation. Strong courses are being given by Professor Sheffy. I find that Mr. Dufflot of this department (sociology) is a most excellent teacher. I visited two of his classes. He organizes and presents his material exceedingly well."

"I was particularly impressed by the determination of the president, the dean and the members of the committee to maintain high standards. There is no doubt about the demand for the services of the Canyon College. It is well located, has a great constituency and should be so equipped as to serve the students in that section of the State. This I am confident will be done."

The president, the dean and the committee are greatly delighted with the committee's report as far as it has been made and feel sure that the reports yet to be made will be as favorable as those above mentioned.

GOVERNOR NEFF AND REGENTS SPENT MONDAY AT NORMAL

lives of men who had risen by sheer will power from obscure places in life to world powers. The world was looking for boys and girls who can do things. He was jealous of the students before him who were moulding their lives for future usefulness. He considered this visit to the Normal the climax of his nine days of pleasant observation in the Panhandle section.

Governor Neff was highly pleased to learn of the large number in the college who were working their way through college. He prophesied for them a most brilliant and useful future.

President Hill stated at the close of the Governor's speech that had he been able to give work to all who had asked for work, there would be fully two hundred more students in the school today than are now attending.

President Hill stated that Governor Neff was anxious to meet all in the large audience, and asked all to file across the stage and shake hands with the Governor. For more than half an hour hand-shaking was the order of the day, and more than a thousand greeted the Governor.

Luncheon was served at Cousins Hall at 12:45, with President and Mrs. J. A. Hill hosts for the occasion. The following were present at the luncheon: Governor Neff, Mr. Flowers, Miss Neal, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Turner, Frank G. Evans of the Star-Telegram, E. M. Dealey of the Dallas News, Mayor J. D. Gamble, Dr. F. M. Wilson, City Health Officer, Dr. D. M. Stewart, County Health Officer, G. G. Foster, president of the school board, A. D. Payne, Supt.-Elect, W. A. Warren, secretary of the Commercial League, Mrs. J. B. Gamble, president of the Book Club, Mrs. C. R. Burrow, president of the Civic League, County Judge Worth A. Jennings, Rev. Ted P. Hollifield of the Presbyterian church, Rev. J. H. Hicks of the Methodist church, Rev. B. F. Fronabarger of the Baptist church, C. W. Warwick of the Randall County News, J. J. Powell, president of the Alumni association, Miss Annie I. Hibbets, president of the Randall Co. Alumni association, Mody C. Boatright chairman of the Students Council, Secretary of the College Travis Shaw, members of the Faculty Advisory Council, composed of the following: Dean L. G. Allen, H. W. Morelock, D. A. Shirley, M. B. Johnson, Wallace R. Clark, F. P. Guenther, L. F. Sheffy, R. P. Jarrett, John S. Humphreys, B. A. Stafford, Misses Ritchie, Hudspeth and Watkins.

During the morning's program the band played several highly appreciated numbers, and during the luncheon the orchestra of the college played. The visitors were highly pleased with the music of the day, the Governor and members of the board of regents commenting upon the excellency of the music and expressing the belief that there was not a better music department in the state than in the Normal.

At three o'clock the business session was held, President Hill making his annual report to the board of regents. Governor Neff attended the meeting and was highly interested in all suggestion made by Mr. Hill. The President especially stressed in his report the great needs of the training school building and the need of completing the dormitory.

The party was taken to Amarillo in order that it might continue on the tour of inspection of the various normal schools of the state.

President Hill left this morning for Austin where the annual business meeting of the board of regents will be held and the presidents of the normals will submit their budgets for their schools for the years 1923 and 1924.

The visitors expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the results of the inspection and the reception accorded them during the stay.

MOODY TO PRACTICE DENTISTRY

Dr. W. R. Moody is moving to town and preparing to open dental offices during the coming week. Dr. Moody has lived in Randall county for the past three years, but has not practiced his profession during that time. He graduated in 1910 and with Superintendent of the State Dental College during 1911 when he went to Hillsboro and practiced for five years. During this time he returned to Dallas giving eight lectures annually in the course of "Gold Inlays." On account of his health he was forced to move to the west, and has been farming in Randall county for three years.

The following clipping from the Hillsboro Millor of Jan. 18, 1911 tells something of Dr. Moody's work:

"The many friends of Dr. Roscoe Moody of this city will be pleased to learn that he has been selected to fill the vacancy in the infirmary of the State Dental College at Dallas caused by the recent death of Dr. Kenneth A. King, who was killed in the recent railroad accident at Abbott and who had charge of that department of the college.

"Dr. Moody is Hill county reared, being the son of Dr. and Mrs. M. F. Moody of this city, and is a young man with an exceptionally clean moral character as well as having marked ability in his chosen profession.

"Soon after Dr. C. C. Weaver of this city, who was Dr. King's predecessor in the Dental College, assumed the position of secretary and had charge of the infirmary, Dr. Moody came to the College as a student (from which he afterward graduated) and by his splendid character and close application to studies soon won the esteem and respect of the entire college force and Dr. Weaver was pleased to inform the Mirror of these facts, and to express extreme gratification upon the appointment, since he is still intimately familiar with the business of the college.

"While deeply regretting the removal of such young men as Dr. Moody has proved himself to be during his entire lifetime, the Mirror takes pleasure in joining his many friends in congratulating him upon the deserved compliment paid him by such an institution as the State Dental College and wishing for him all the good things of this life that unqualified merit deserves."

THE WINGS OF RICHES

The proverb says that riches have wings, and all of us who have riches ourselves or observe them in others know that no swift bird of prey slips more easily through the air than money slips out of a wide-mouthed pocket or purse. To-day we have it, to-morrow we have it not.

The first great wing of riches is indulgence. It is so simple and so extravagantly easy to spend money for the comfort of life when we have it, and, alas! even when we are without it. It costs money to be well in these days, probably in any days. Drugs cost money, doctors cost money, nurses cost a great deal of money. So-called preventive hygiene of all kinds is a vast and subtle consumer of cash; no doubt a beneficial invention, but a costly one. It costs money to be clean. The modern world, and, since we have learned that cleanliness means health as well as comfort, we are desperately anxious to have all the means of cleanliness, and we have to pay for them. Above all, it costs money to do what others do. Ourselves, our wives, our children, must live like other selves and their wives and children and have the things they have, not because we want them, but because we do not want to be without them.

The second wing of riches is carelessness and that is an even more subtle and treacherous dissipater of wealth than indulgence. Especially those who are not used to money and come suddenly into possession of it cannot imagine how it goes. The purse is full, the bank is full: oh, yes, I can have this, I can have that, I can certainly have the other. The dollars slip away on luxuries, on charities, on necessities, on nothing at all, as it seems, and that is the most exasperating. You wake up one morning and find the purse and the bank empty.

For those who have money and want to keep it, or for those who want to get it, a stern clipping of the two wings is absolutely essential. Set self-control against indulgence. Remember that nine tenths of our needs are merely habit and that those habits, once broken and cast aside, lose all power over us. Set system and forethought against carelessness. There is nothing like accounts to insure you against wasteful and foolish expenditure. Make it a principle to know why you spend and how you spend; and if riches do not cling to you, at least they will be more reluctant in their flight.

A tusked wild boar ended a football match at Beaumont, Switzerland, when it charged the players in the midst of a game. After running wildly about the field it was shot by a gamekeeper. The boar weighed 120 pounds and was later served to the players and their guests at a banquet. The game was declared a draw.
