

Here In HICO

Here In Hico can't undertake to call attention to all the things done by individuals for the benefit of the town. In fact, most of the time these things go unnoticed. But the service rendered Hico and community in the past few days by Chairman Earl Lynch of the census committee of the Hico Lions Club was so outstanding that we want to take the liberty of commending him on his efforts and the public-spiritedness evidenced.

Up to last week the census situation in Hico had been rather like Mark Twain explained the weather conditions—there was a lot of talk about it but nobody did anything to relieve the situation. Interest was noticeable everywhere, and it is true that several took a hand in matters and did no little amount of investigation and survey work. But when Mr. Burdette arrived in Hico last Friday morning, he went to Mr. Lynch for information. In Mr. Burdette's own words, it didn't take Lynch long to get into action. "I have never in any town been favored with the brand of cooperation that Mr. Lynch gave me," Mr. Burdette said. "Through his aid I have already been able to add a nice number of names to Hico's list, and before it is over we will go farther even than that."

Of course Lynch will tell you that he did nothing unusual. We don't say that he did. We do state however that we think the spirit shown was worthy of commendation, not only in this instance but in every case where Hico's interests are at stake. Big things done for the town usually carry their own reward and their own praise. It is the little things that happen every week and every day that are in a measure unnoticed, but when summed up go to make a town.

"Flowers for the living" is more than a beautiful sentiment. It is more fitting to give praise where praise is due now than to wait until someone is dead to show appreciation for the efforts put forth in behalf of a town by some citizen. The most commendable part about things like this is that the acts referred to are not done with any intention of receiving notice or being accorded praise. They are done through loyalty to the home town and interest in its welfare. There is nothing selfish attached to public work of this nature. It is for the benefit of all, and even realizing that some day not help in the least, every will some few citizens go about the task of building and bettering, hoping only for a reward in the thought that they are doing the right thing.

Always there are those who will laugh at some project exploited by some individual or organization—a project which is as much for their own good as for the interests of those who are working on the matter. Then there are those who will side in and give their "moral support" but who are unwilling or unable to find the time or money which is in need at the time. However, these things are to be expected, and it falls to the lot of the other class to double their efforts and carry the load of their neighbors.

It would indeed be ideal if every business man could agree on a plan whereby a united effort could be made to work for the good of Hico. We will say that this united spirit is more in evidence here than in other towns we have had occasion to be interested in. While we don't claim that the condition is or even approaches the ideal, it is very pleasing to note the harmony which exists among the business men when they are working for the common good. Leaders are thoughtful and modest and others bend their backs and work with a zeal that is creditable.

Let us hope that in the months to come this spirit may show an acceleration. None of us is going to get rich. All of us are due a living provided we have a service living providing we have a bona fide proposition and work at our job. More can be done through the continuance of our efforts to help our neighbor as well as ourselves than can be done through selfish planning and self-centered action. Co-operation pays, as has been proved time and again, and when we say co-operation we don't mean just talk—we mean just what we have tried to explain above.

HICO REVIEW CLUB SPONSOR TOURNAMENT HERE NEXT SATURDAY

A bridge tournament will be held at the Bluebonnet Country Club house next Saturday afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock, sponsored by the Review Club of Hico.

They extend a cordial invitation to all to be present and participate in this affair. The proceeds will be used for the Hico library.

Hico Lions See Results of Interest In Census Work

Having taken steps following the preliminary announcement of Hico's population a few weeks ago, to check up and have the figures corrected to include all of the city's population, it was very gratifying to members present last Friday at the regular meeting to realize that their interest and work had been to some avail.

At that time District Census Supervisor T. J. Burdette of Hillsboro was present, and assured the club that every individual within the corporate limits would be included in the 1930 census, and further solicited the aid of the Lions in helping to complete the work. Mr. Burdette said it had not been the intention of those in charge of the census to have incomplete reports, and he was just as interested in the matter as Hico residents. He said that as soon as he received a telephone call from the chairman of the census committee here, he stopped all work on the Hico enumeration and closed the books until such time as he could be on hand in person and size the situation up to his own satisfaction. This was the earliest possible time he could arrange to be in Hico, and he wished to impress on all that he was willing to do anything within his power to get a complete count, and would stay here until everyone was satisfied, including himself.

A committee was appointed to work with Mr. Burdette, headed by Lion Lynch, and this committee was successful through its untiring efforts in adding over a hundred names to the list of Hico residents. Mr. Burdette was highly pleased with the cooperation given him, and especially praised the spirit evidenced by Lion Lynch.

Another matter that came up before the club at this meeting was in regard to the wishes of the members as to plans for entertaining the district meeting of Lions here in June. By a vote of the members, the night of June 19, was selected as the date for this affair, and further arrangements were left up to Lion Tamer Lynch, aided by a committee of two other members, Lions Thies and Sadler. It was suggested that in view of the selection of these two members to aid in arrangements, the meeting should be lacking in neither transportation or refreshments. Mr. Sadler being the Ford dealer and Mr. Thies the manager of the Bell Ice & Dairy Products Co.

Since it has been planned for some time for the committee on paving to take a trip as guests of White's Uvalde Mines on an inspection trip to Lockhart, San Antonio and other South Texas points, Lion Wolfe urged those expecting to make the trip to set a date for same and make their arrangements to go on the date set. After some discussion it was decided to get off some time during the last week in May.

One thing noticeable at the last meeting was the lack of respect for one of the most important officers of the club—the Tail Twister, Lion McCullough who is the duly elected and constituted Tail Twister, shifted his duties to a deputy for the day, seemingly wishing to see how it should be handled. But reports coming from this deputy indicated that the members took his authority too lightly, and in some instances were loath to pay off fines assessed against them. Probably the recent affair at Sherman in which law and order were disregarded had some effect on the members along this line. Some of them might have been reading too much about mob rule and imbibed the spirit from same. However it is to be hoped that this spirit will not grow, but that the members will in the future abide by the decisions of the Tail Twister.

Visitors for this meeting were Mr. Burdette of Hillsboro, and W. E. Goynne of Fair. Mr. Goynne was inclined to make quite a nice talk, but explained that he had just that morning been under the tender care of Lion Dr. Baker, who left him in no shape to speak at length. However, he did express his appreciation for the invitation extended by Dr. Baker, and declared that he was glad to be present.

J. L. Wilson Suffering From Attack Of Heart Trouble

Friends of J. L. Wilson were greatly shocked on Tuesday to learn that he suffered a heart attack which has confined him to his home, and late Thursday evening his condition was still regarded as serious.

Mr. Wilson has been unusually active for a man of his age, conducting a blacksmith and machine shop in Hico where he has always been found on the job early every morning. For the past two days his place has remained closed, thus causing a lot of comment on this good man's absence from his usual place in Hico's business life.

Dr. C. M. Hall, who is attending Mr. Wilson, reported that his condition was very serious, but it is hoped that a turn for the better will be noticeable soon.

The Tale the Census Tells

By Albert T. Reid

Hico's Population Figures Increased During Past Week

District Supervisor of the Census T. J. Burdette, of Hillsboro, has been spending quite a bit of time in Hico for the past few days in an effort to wind up matters pertaining to the 1930 count, and has been successful in aiding the local enumerator, Dora Gamble, in "raking the woods" and increasing the number of names given to Hico in the preliminary figures a few weeks ago. This announcement was made subject to correction, and gave the number as 1334. After Mr. Burdette's visit last Friday and Saturday and again on Thursday of this week, the number stood at 1447, according to enumerator Gamble, and may be increased yet should more names be found that have not been included. He still has a number of blanks, and is anxious for anyone who is in doubt as to whether he or she has been enumerated to see him and be checked.

It was only through the cooperation of Hico citizens and organizations that the list was corrected, said Mr. Burdette, and he wishes to express his appreciation therefor, at the same time giving the assurance that it was his opinion that Hico now has one of the cleanest counts of any town in the United States, which was the aim of his department all the time.

Rural Carriers Of County Enjoy Hamilton Meet

About twenty-five members of the Hamilton County Rural Carriers Association met at Legion Park, Hamilton, Tuesday afternoon and evening, to enjoy an outing and business meeting.

The Hamilton postmistress, Mrs. Witty, assisted by her office force and wives of Hamilton carriers acted as hostesses, and showed their ability in that capacity by preparing a chicken dinner that was reported as approaching perfection, both as to quality and quantity.

Many of the wives of carriers were present as guests, and after each one attending had eaten his or her fill of the excellent picnic dinner, a business session was held. Chas. Dyer of Carlton and Robert Lee of Shive were elected as delegates to the State Convention at Lubbock, July 3, 4 and 5. B. O. Bridges of Fairy and B. B. Gamble of Hico were elected as delegates to the district meeting at Waco, May 30th.

The Association's last meeting was held at Hico last August, and it was announced that the next one would be held at the Leon Bridge near Hamilton, on the 4th of August, at which time it is expected that watermelons will furnish the main item of diet.

B. B. Gamble and E. S. Jackson of Hico attended from here, and declared that this was one of the most enjoyable occasions imaginable.

Mrs. R. Q. Lee, who sought to succeed her late husband as Representative in Congress from the Seventeenth Texas District, Wednesday conceded the election of Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene, who formerly held the office.

Hico Best Town Seen ON 1500-MILE TRIP Says J. P. Rogers, Sr.

"Kansas City was larger, some places were pretty and in some a lot of hospitality was shown us, but of the whole lot of towns we visited on our trip, Hico looks the best." These, or words to that effect, constituted the main part of the description given by J. P. Rogers, Sr. when asked by a News Review representative about his and his daughter's recent trip to Kansas City, Mo.

Mr. Rogers and Miss Thoma left Hico on May 4, going that day to Dallas, where they spent the night with relatives. Upon inquiring from an automobile club about the best road, they were advised to go by way of Gainesville, Oklahoma City and Topeka. They drove 350 miles the first day out of Dallas, spending that night at Perry, Oklahoma. They continued their trip early the next morning and arrived at Kansas City in the evening, where they visited with their daughter and sister, Mrs. A. S. Cupp, and her family, for two weeks.

Mr. Rogers had many things to say about the things he saw in the Missouri metropolis, stating that he enjoyed every minute of the time, and got a liberal education on many things that he had not previously given much thought to. One of the main items of interest was a trip to the building where the Kansas City Star is published. He was impressed with the magnitude of this industry, and told us that it was almost beyond conception. The building itself is impressive, but when he learned that there were 1300 employees on this one newspaper and that 115 tons of paper were required daily for the several editions printed, he was more than impressed—he was astounded.

The day before leaving for home while they were driving over the city, Mr. Rogers' party had the misfortune to suffer an automobile accident in which he came out on the worst end. He showed us an abrasion on the top of his head where he was thrown against some part of the top with the result that his head was cut and bruised up a little, but nothing serious. Other occupants of the car were shaken up and bruised some, but Mr. Rogers did not think any were hurt seriously enough to delay their departure for home the next morning.

Detours and mud-holes were encountered on the homeward trip, through Durant, Oklahoma, Denton and Sherman, and at times the cars on the road were lined up 30 or 40 in a row waiting to be pulled or pushed through the bad places. Highway department employes were on hand and they suffered no great inconvenience in this respect.

Mr. Rogers and Thoma arrived home last Sunday. They both reported a wonderful trip, Mr. Rogers seeming to have enjoyed it hugely, and he was very complimentary of his daughter's ability as a driver. He said Hico looked good to him, though, and that he was glad to be back among his friends.

Smallest Egg Makes Appearance At This Office

We've seen some large eggs this season, and also some small ones, but F. N. Ross brought in the prize-winner of the latter class Tuesday morning. He first showed us the box which contained the specimen, and that looked small enough, but the egg which he had put therein was indeed a midget, being about the size of the end of a finger. We won't say which finger, for Mr. Ross had had a little hard luck with his exhibit, and the shell was broken. But it was still in good enough condition to win the title as far as we are concerned.

Mr. Ross lives six miles east of Hico, near the Bosque-Hamilton County line, and although he said he came to town often, this was his first visit to the News Review office since this editor has been in charge. The egg he brought in came from one of his Rhode Island Red hens. This variety of poultry has been "showing off" this year apparently, for nearly every one of our freak eggs has been laid by a Rhode Island Red.

Graduates Will Be Addressed By Hon. T. L. Robinson

All examinations are over for the 1929-30 term of the Hico High Schools, and school matters are rapidly being brought to a close. The baccalaureate sermon was heard last Sunday morning, and graduating exercises proper will be held tonight, (Friday) at the High School auditorium.

Hon. Tom L. Robinson, District Attorney of Coryell County, will deliver the address of the evening. He is heralded as a very able and talented speaker, and it is expected that there will be a large and attentive crowd on hand to hear his words on this occasion.

The program for the exercises follows: Processional by the class. Invocation by Rev. A. C. Haynes. Salutatory Address by Mildred Persons. "Voices In the Woods" by the class.

Valedictory Address by Hester Jordan. Introducing the newly adopted State song, "Texas Our Texas" by Leon Rainwater and Senior Class. Presentation of Seventh Grade Diplomas by C. G. Masterson. Benediction by Rev. C. A. Morton.

Heap Big Injuns Travel In Style; Visit In Cleburne

(Cleburne Press)

When suit cases are used to carry the change in one might know that money is no object. This was the case last Saturday night in Cleburne when a family of Oklahoma Indians found themselves comfortably situated at the Santa Fe depot.

No one seemed to know why they had gotten off the train in Cleburne, not even the Indians themselves could give any reason. They had been down in South Texas, for what it was not known except to spend some of their easy money, but evidently they hadn't gone very far into their suitcase purse from the amount evidenced.

When the Indians realized that they were somewhere they didn't know where, preparations were started to spend the night. Then the argument began. The family consisted of mother, father, grown son and daughter and some smaller children. The son decided he would journey on to Fort Worth to spend the night, but the other members of the family were content then to remain over night here. It was agreed then among the family that the money must be divided as each had a right, so some of the officials about the station were called to help make the division. It developed that the money was carried in a suit case and that it was well nigh full of bills of large as well as small denominations. Certainly enough good American money to make the pale face arbitrators gaze in wonderment at the great heap dumped out on the floor. Amazing though it was, the task of dividing the funds equally among the family members was set on and after a time all was lovely.

Just about this time the son had a change of heart. He also decided to sojourn for the night in Cleburne, so the money was dumped back into the suitcase and said case dumped out on the station platform with the other luggage of the family. No more attention seemed to be paid to it than any other piece of baggage and the big injuns started off in quest of a place to sleep. They were directed to the best places in the city to lodge but they soon soon returned, contending that no place was found that just exactly suited their tastes. Whereupon they were informed that they had visited the best places in the city so they were satisfied to go back and make a trade for a night's lodging for the family.

Nothing more was heard from them until next morning when they returned to the Santa Fe station to journey on to their home, or somewhere else, they didn't seem to be very much concerned just where. When the train was made up that was to be theirs out of the city they "looked 'er over" and all decided that the accommodations were not in keeping with a family of their standing so they counseled again and this time reached a decision to have one just to their liking. A special car was engaged just for the Indian family to continue their journey in. This being provided, the visitors were again pacified and everything was "sittin' purty," so soon they were on their way. This certainly was a case of "Heap big Injuns got much money."

Fun Reported At Seniors Picnic At Glen Rose

One of the most outstanding incidents of the picnic enjoyed by members of the Senior Class of Hico at Glen Rose Wednesday of this week was an accident that befell the Methodist preacher, Rev. A. C. Haynes, and the president of the Senior Class, Leon Rainwater. Details of the affair are lacking, but from reports it seems that both these good Methodists were victims of an accident which came near changing their religion.

The Seniors, chaperoned by Rev. and Mrs. Haynes, left early Wednesday in a truck for the resort city of Glen Rose, where they enjoyed a full day of pleasure, including eating, swimming, horseback riding and other amusements. A sumptuous picnic dinner was prepared and spread, and every one attending reports a good time.

JIM D. WRIGHT IS NOW IN CHARGE OF THE C. D. PHILLIPS FILLING STATION

Jim D. Wright is now in charge of the C. D. Phillips Filling Station, and is having some improvements made in the way of adding a new pump and other things that enhance the convenience and attractiveness of that place. He will continue to sell Gulf products. Mr. Wright hopes to be able to keep the old customers of Mr. Phillips who have been served so well in the past, and solicit new ones, promising both to give the best attention to their needs. On account of ill health, Mr. Phillips was forced to give up his business interests and take measures toward regaining his health.

Keeping Up With TEXAS

Water from Lake Waco, the city's new source of water supply, secured from the Bosque River, and made possible by the construction of a dam across the river, about five miles northwest of Waco, was turned into the city mains Sunday. Heretofore water for domestic and industrial purposes has been secured from the Brazos River and artesian wells.

Funeral services for G. F. Fortenberry, 51, farmer and resident of Honey Grove, were conducted at the family residence Sunday afternoon. Mr. Fortenberry was shot and killed last Friday afternoon by Sam Johnson, a negro, who barricaded himself in a shack and kept officers and 3,000 citizens at bay for nearly three hours before he was dragged through the streets of Honey Grove and lynched.

He has never been up in an airplane, but wants to, according to the Rev. T. A. Boycan, 100-year-old preacher who lives at Lamesa, Dawson County. The aged pastor was born in Belfast, Ireland, Feb. 10, 1830. His parents brought him to America at 5, one year before Martin Van Buren was elected President of the United States. He was educated in the Catholic schools of New York for the priesthood, but later became a Protestant. He has been preaching as a Baptist minister for eighty-two years.

Two fast pursuit planes collided in mid-air and fell in wreckage from an estimated height of 4,500 feet near San Antonio Monday, yet nobody was injured. The pilots leaped to safety with their parachutes.

William Hendrix, 15, son of Mrs. W. C. Hendrix, was drowned Sunday afternoon when he and a companion jumped in Sulphur creek near the mouth of Ladonia. The creek was badly swollen from an all-night rain. Rescuers will be unable to locate the body until the stream goes down.

Preventive dentistry is having its effect and the teeth of the American are better than ever before, according to lecturers appearing Tuesday at the annual convention of the Texas State Dental Society, holding a clinic in Fort Worth.

Houston Wednesday held the place of first city in the state. And there is reason to believe the city will be second only to New Orleans in the entire South. San Antonio and Dallas were considered Houston's only rivals for first place in the state, Dallas was second and San Antonio third.

The body of Billy Wayne Gary, 11 months old, was drowned in Wichita River 14 miles south of Electra, about 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, was found resting on a sandbar Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock by members of a searching party which had kept an all-night vigil along the stream, with workers systematically dragging and diving in efforts to find it. The water has receded considerably since the accident, in which the child's grandmother, Mrs. B. B. McClure, had driven her car through the railing on the river bridge and dropped about 25 feet into the stream, swollen by recent rains. Mrs. McClure's lifeless body was removed from the submerged car less than one hour afterward. The child's mother, Mrs. Sadie Gary, and a neighbor, Mrs. W. M. Richardson were in the automobile but made their way to the bank and summoned aid.

Miss Nobody from Nowhere

BY ELIZABETH JORDAN

Fourth Installment.
WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.
 A beautiful young woman finds herself on the sidewalk in a strange city. She cannot remember her name or where she came from. She has nothing in her purse to tell herself who she is. A young man who has seen her in the hotel where she is stopping notices her and takes her to the hotel in a cab. There they find that she registered, in French, as "Miss Eve Nobody of Nowhere."
 The clerk has been calling her "Miss Parsons." The young man tells her she is in New York. His name is Eric Hamilton, of Chicago. She is terrified at her loss of memory. He asks his friend, Dr. Carrick, a nerve specialist, to call at the hotel. Dr. Carrick talks encouragingly, but says he will send a nurse to stay with the mysterious "Miss Parsons" that night.
 "Miss Nobody" listens while Hamilton tells her what the doctor has said, then steps into another room. When the nurse arrives, the girl has vanished from the hotel!

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
 Miss Adams remained in the taxicab at the club door while Hamilton went into the club-house and interviewed, in a small reception room, a psychiatrist who was at first somewhat resentful and then deeply interested. The Good Samaritan was soother by the discovery that the doctor's surprise over the patient's disappearance was as great as his own. To ilton reported to Miss Adams, "Where shall I have the driver take you?"

 She gave him her address and he paid the chauffeur in advance, adding, on a sudden memory, the amount due for a night's service. It was a comfort to watch the taxicab vanish toward Fifth Avenue. He had a frantic wish to be alone, to begin his quest at once. In a case like this every minute counted. But . . . where could he begin?
 Carrick's club was in the Forties, off Broadway, and the roar of the city came to Hamilton from every side as he stood at the curb for a moment, looking around for another taxicab.
 What a damned heartless world it was! There was a moon in the sky—a fat moon, which seemed to be leering down at him—This town was an awful place for a helpless girl to be alone, at night—"Miss Nobody from Nowhere"—and she had confessed that she hadn't brought much money—"God!" he breathed. It was as near a prayer as any he had uttered since he was a very little boy.
 As if in answer to it a calming memory came to him. He saw her as she had been in the park, as she had been with him, as she had been with the doctor—thinking clearly, deciding swiftly—terrified, yes, but "holding fast" in a situation that would have appalled the strongest soul; and his nerves steadied. She was fighting with her back to a blank wall, but even had gone, the room was in order, and the opposite door of the bedroom, which led into a rear hall of the hotel, was just closing on the modest exit of the porter. She stopped the man with a word, a ready hand mechanically reaching into her hand-bag for her purse. He was a young Frenchman, and as he came back into the room in answer to her summons his expectant smile suddenly broadened into a look of pleased recognition. "Good evening, mademoiselle," he said with the eagerness of a lonely person who sees a familiar face in a strange land; and he added in French, rather blankly, as he caught her expression of surprise, "But Mademoiselle does not remember me?"

 "No doubt I should do so," Eve answered in his own tongue, and again he smiled and brightened. "Just where did you see me?" she asked.
 He began to explain, volubly and happily, enchanted, it was clear, by this unexpected encounter with a former patron and perhaps foreseeing, too, agreeable possibilities of fees in the new association. They were standing near the entrance he had used, and with a gesture she drew him over the threshold and out into the hall, closing the door behind them.
 It was in Paris they had met, the porter explained, in the little Hotel Voltaire of the Quai Voltaire on the left bank, when Mademoiselle had spent the winter there—no, it was four years ago. It was not surprising that Mademoiselle did not remember him, he humbly admitted. He himself had been then of an unimpaired unimportance—not even her waiter, but merely a waiter's boy. Still, in that lowly capacity, he had daily seen Mademoiselle, and once or twice had done small services for her such as carrying notes to her friends.
 Despite his Gallic courtesy, it was clear that he was disappointed by her failure to recognize him, and Eve sought to soothe his hurt pride by a larger fee than the cot-bringing justified while with an increasing tremor she considered what the encounter might mean to her. The young Frenchman would earn much more than a fifty-cent tip before their interview ended, but the instinct of caution developed in her during the past few hours made her quiet her singing nerves and move slowly.

flow of compliments pour forth. Her mind was working clearly and rapidly. She had merely intended to get away from the hotel, without knowing how she was going to do it. Now she realized that this youth could help her and that she must establish a relationship between them which would enable her to keep in touch with him. Mentally she considered a plan while her brain subconsciously registered what the porter was saying.
 Undoubtedly, he assured her, the name would come to him at any minute. This, she knew, was possible. Sooner or later he ought to recall that name. He might recall, too, if he did not now remember them, the names of the friends to whom he carried those notes, the names of friends who had come to see her, episodes of the life she had lived in Paris—all or any of which, when he told them to her, could be the clues she needed. Yes, in those gesticulating and not over-clean young hands might lie the strings that would lead her back into the normal world.
 "What is your name?" she abruptly asked him.

"Marcel Carpentier, mademoiselle," he told her.
 "Listen, Marcel," she said, still in his own language. "Listen attentively. I have a plan and perhaps you can help me. If you can, I know you will, for we were acquaintances in France." She stopped with a gesture his eager assurance, looked understandingly at his brightening face, and went on: "Besides, I will of course pay you well for any time and trouble you give to my service."
 "I desire to leave this hotel, Marcel," she continued, "and to find a new home in this city. I must, of course, see the clerk and pay him when I go. But there are reasons why I wish no one to know where I am, except you. You I am sure I can trust."
 The tribute, she was glad to observe, left him almost speechless.
 "What can I do for Mademoiselle will be done," was all he could bring out, his black eyes avert with interest.
 "Thank you. Then tell me, first, do you know of a good place where I can go and live?—one which is not expensive," she added. "A place simple and clean and respectable, like the little hotel you speak of in Paris."

 She took it for granted that the little hotel in Paris had these qualities, and apparently she was right, for Marcel nodded and gave himself to ostentatious thought.
 He had been in the city less than half a year, and he had little knowledge of either hotels or lodging-houses; but now he remembered something. A friend of his, he told her, was the janitor of a downtown house which had little apartments of two or three rooms—a sitting room, a bedroom, even a bathroom, and of a price very reasonable.
 Eve came to a prompt decision. She went back into the bedroom and returned with a sheet of paper and a pencil.
 "Write the address for me," she directed, "and your full name, too. I will go and look at the house you speak of. If I do not settle there, I will let you know. Unless you hear from me, come there at eight tomorrow evening. I desire to have a long talk with you."
 She took the slip he gave her and handed him five dollars.
 "Remember," she warned, "I am trusting you. Not a word to any one."

Marcel took the bank-note and slowly pocketed it. His face was very serious. It was odd—all this. There was much in it he did not understand. She had not been thus in Paris. But he would serve the lady to the best of his ability.
 Eve packed in seven minutes. She was out of the hotel twenty-three minutes after she had left Hamilton. She walked across to the next avenue and there picked up a taxicab.

"And you have remembered my name all this time?" she asked, in a voice which she vainly tried to keep steady.

Hamilton the suspicion that his carelessness was responsible for the girl's flight had been the turn of the screw.
 "She left this for you," he ended, taking the envelope from his pocket and handing it over. "I'm hoping there's some clue in it."
 Doctor Carrick opened the envelope. It contained a blank sheet of paper and a bank-note for twenty dollars.
 He dropped the envelope and paper on the floor and Hamilton bent and picked them up.
 "May I have these?" he asked, and put them into his pocket with out waiting for permission.
 Carrick got up and strolled around the room, in the manner of one who thinks best on their feet.
 "You're sure no one else called on her, and that she didn't receive any telephone message?" he asked at last.

 He leaned forward and gave to the waiting driver the address of a newspaper on whose staff was one of his friends.
 When Eve left her visitor in her hotel sitting-room and went into her bed-room, supposedly to get ready for the nurse, she absently tripped over a projecting end of the cot she had ordered. The little episode underlined her dread of the night, and she stood staring at the cot as if already she saw its occupant there. It was in place, the chambermaid

 The young porter, however, observed nothing unusual about it, for here the entente between them so agreeable up till now, experienced a sudden chill. He flushed and stammered. It was incredible; it was unparadise; he abashed himself before her; but the fact was that for the moment he did not remember Mademoiselle's name. Her face, of course, one would never forget. Even though he himself had been a mere boy of seventeen when he last saw it, had he not remembered it at once, after four years? Eve let the $100 Per Acre!

Every now and then a news item appears stating that a certain man's farm was sold for $100 or more per acre.

Just what are the reasons why any farm should be so highly valued? Good land? Sure! Good buildings? Certainly! Well cared for? Of course! The answer to these questions is granted, but lots of farms fulfill these requirements and yet do not bring such a price.

How is the farm LOCATED? Ah! There's the answer.

It is on a good highway. It enjoys exceptionally good schools, supported by a prosperous community. It has convenient banking facilities. There is a nearby market where all farm products can be sold at good prices.

There are progressive stores well stocked with good merchandise in all lines, and easily accessible.

Since the town makes the farm valuable, then isn't it good business sense that the farmer exert every possible effort to improve the town?

Crisp Salads to Serve When Days Grow Warm

By JOSEPHINE D. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company.

A CRISP vegetable salad or a dainty concoction of fruit will make even the simplest meal attractive. And on these glorious spring days, when we wish to get away entirely from thought of winter—even in the foods we serve—salads are more than ever welcome.

Wise housewives take full advantage of the numerous fresh vegetables available during the spring and summer months. Instead of continually serving hot dishes for dinner, they frequently substitute a thoroughly chilled vegetable salad prepared with a snappy, well-seasoned French Dressing, or with Mayonnaise. Many a woman too, finds that a dainty fruit salad often will take the place of a dessert, and thus save her long hours in a hot kitchen making puddings, pies or cakes.

Following are recipes for a number of vegetable salads which are suitable for serving either as the main dish for luncheon or supper, or in place of cooked vegetables for dinner:

Jellied Vegetable Salad—1 1/2 tablespoons gelatin, 1/4 cup cold water, 1/3 cup boiling water, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 2 table-spoons lemon juice, 1/3 cup sliced celery, 1 cup shredded cabbage, 1 cup cooked peas, and a few drops of onion juice. Soak gelatin in the cold water five minutes and dissolve in the boiling water. Add vinegar, lemon juice, sugar, salt, onion juice and vegetables and mix thoroughly. Turn into a ring mold which has been dipped in cold water, and chill. Remove from mold to salad plate. Fill center with crisp lettuce, and serve with Mayonnaise Salad Dressing.

Lettuce Roll Salad—Mash a package of soft cream cheese. Add 1/2 cup cold cooked ham, finely ground, and 2 table-spoons India Relish. Spread a thin layer of this mixture on crisp lettuce leaves. Roll as you do jelly roll and put in a cool place to chill. Cut into 1/2 inch slices and place several slices on a crisp lettuce leaf. Serve with French Dressing, or with Mayonnaise Salad Dressing.

Tomato Sandwich Salad—Dip small red tomatoes into scalding water for a moment so the skin will come off easily—then chill and cut in half cross-wise through the center. On one half place a generous layer of Sandwich Relish or Cream Cheese mixed with Stuffed Spanish Olives. Cover with the other half of the tomato. In the top of the tomato make a little incision with a sharp knife and insert a sprig of crisp parsley.

Chicken and Vegetable Salad—2 cups cold diced chicken, 1/2 cup cooked carrots, diced, 1/2 cup cooked peas, 1/2 cup cooked string beans, cut in pieces, 1/2 cup cooked beets, diced, 1 table-spoon salt, 1 table-spoon paprika, 1 table-spoon chopped parsley. Mix the chicken and vegetables and add salt, paprika and parsley. Mix well with French Dressing and let stand in ice box until thoroughly chilled. Arrange in nests of lettuce leaves and top with Mayonnaise Salad Dressing. Garnish with beets cut in fancy shapes and asparagus tips.

Macedoine Salad—1 small cooked cauliflower, 1 cup cooked peas, 1 cup cooked carrots, cut in cubes, 1 cup shredded green pepper. Separate cauliflower in small pieces. Marinate each vegetable separately in French Dressing and let stand in ice box until thoroughly chilled. Arrange vegetables on crisp lettuce leaves in separate nests, and sprinkle with chopped green pepper. Serve with French Dressing.

JESUS DESCRIBES THE FUTURE OF THE KINGDOM
Matthew 25:1-13

During the morning of that last Tuesday of His ministry Jesus had necessarily been on the defensive as Sadducees, Herodians and Pharisees heckled Him while He sought to teach in the Temple courts. It may have been for the usual moon disciples to the Mount of Olives, just across the Kedron valley. He could not be in retirement for crowds thronged Him at every turn.

night and all would need burning lamps to lighten the way and to add to the celebration. While waiting for the men to come that way, the "ten virgins" dozed off. Then there was the outcry, "Behold! the Bridegroom!" There was orderly confusion while lamps were trimmed but consternation on the part of those who found they had no oil to replenish the lamps that were going out. Some things cannot be borrowed in a crisis and eternal salvation is one. Those who were not ready learned, too late, that "the door was shut."

The hour for the return of Christ to this earth is also uncertain. Scripture tells of related events, but even Jesus declared the time was only in the mind of the Father. In all ages since, some have prophesied the exact time of His Second Coming and all thus far have been wrong. That He will come again is as sure as ever. But in the uncertainty as to the exact time all can be prepared. The Golden Text is a safety exhortation: "Take ye heed, watch and pray; for ye know not when the time is," Mark 13:33. Those who live in constant fellowship with Him will surely be ready. Believers who are meanwhile with Him in glory will return with Him for the resurrection of their bodies and an earthly reign of righteousness. Some of the attendant details are found in I Thessalonians 4:13-5:11.

What Do You Say? Roger Babson declares that business men do not go to church, and he gives six reasons:

1. Because he isn't interested in theology.
2. Because he doesn't want other business men to attempt to do business with him on Sunday.
3. Because he doesn't get what he goes for.
4. Because he doesn't like to be called a hypocrite.
5. Because, if he is a good man, he doesn't feel the need to attend, and if he is not a good man, he is ashamed to attend.
6. Because he believes the church is allied with the employers' group.

BEDOUIN LOVE SONG
(By Bayard Taylor)

From the Desert I come to thee
On a stallion shod with fire;
And the winds are left behind
In the speed of my desire.
Under thy window I stand,
And the midnight hears my cry:
I love thee, I love but thee,
With a love that shall not die.

Till the sun grows cold,
And the stars are old,
And the leaves of the Judgment
Book unfold!

Look from thy window and see
My passion and my pain;
I lie on the sands below,
And I faint in thy disdain.
Let the night winds touch thy brow

With the heat of my burning sigh,
And melt thee to hear the vow
Of a love that shall not die.
Till the sun grows cold,
And the stars are old,
And the leaves of the Judgment
Book unfold!

My steps are nightly driven,
By the fever in my breast,
To hear from thy lattice breathed
The words that shall give me rest.
Open the door of thy heart,
And open thy chamber door,
And my kisses shall teach thy lips
The love that shall fade no more.
Till the sun grows cold,
And the stars are old,
And the leaves of the Judgment
Book unfold!

International Misunderstandings

American motion pictures go into every corner of the world. It is increasingly difficult for picture producers to make films which will not give offense somewhere. National pride is hurt when the people of any race or country are depicted against "Broken Blossoms," in which English people were shown in a derogatory light. "Street Angel" has been held by Mussolini's government to be offensive to Italians. The French think they were insulted in "Beau Geste." Russians say that "Volga Boatman" misrepresents the Russian people. There were riots in China over the "Thief of Bagdad" and "Welcome Danger" in which the villains were Chinese.

It seems to be true that the only people who can be portrayed on the screen in vicious or criminal characters are Americans. Of the movies are to escape censure somewhere or other. But in that case, what of the impression of America and the Americans which they convey to the people of other countries?

Recently a film was shown in France in which a Marine in Nicaragua is made to say that he and his comrades are there to protect the interests of big business. Numerous protests against this film were made to the authorities in Washington, who replied that they were powerless to stop its presentation. Doubtless it will be shown everywhere, including Latin-America, where the people just now have especially tender corns and look upon almost anything the United States does as an effort to tread on them.

No intelligent American believes that we have any imperialistic desires toward South America, but our neighbors down there do believe that we have, and anything, however trivial, which tends to foster that belief, is a stupid blunder, if nothing worse.

If people everywhere were governed by reason and thought logically they would understand that the screen audiences, including our own, do not reason. They are governed by their emotions and beliefs, and they believe that what they see at movies, if not literally true, is at least a true representation of the life and classes of people which it portrays. And that is, after all, the most serious charge against the motion picture. Its capacity for impairing the morals of the young is trivial compared with its capacity for implanting beliefs about life and people which are seldom more than half true and frequently totally false.

A Land of Opportunity

It is the fashion to lament that there are no more opportunities left for the adventurous young men. That has always been the fashion. Every generation has its quota of youngsters who believe that in the "good old days" all a man had to do to gain fame or fortune was to fare forth into the world and take his pick of the golden opportunities which were lying around loose for the first comer to utilize. But in every generation, fortunately, there is a goodly percentage of young men who realize what has always been true, that we make our own opportunities and if we have the spirit, the intelligence and the driving will to succeed there are as many opportunities now as there ever were.

The only difference between one decade and that which preceded it is that the opportunities are of a different kind, and every man must find out for himself what the new kind is. A newspaperman once asked the late Russell Sage, who died in the early part of this century at the age of 90, whether there were as many opportunities then as when he was a young man. He said there were more, and when questioned as to what they were he answered that he had found there was good money to be made in buying and selling railroads!

"But how is the young man of today going to get the opportunity to buy a railroad?" asked the reporter. "If he ain't smart enough to find 'em, he ain't smart enough to make money out of 'em," said the old man, with a grin.

The reporter went away convinced that he had been "kidded." Buy and sell railroads! What an old fogey Russell Sage was, not to realize that the railroads were all so tightly held that nobody but a multi-millionaire could deal in them! But less than twenty years later the Van Sweringen Brothers of Cleveland, starting without a penny, broke into the railroad business and in ten years have become the owners of a railroad system which, if the Interstate Commerce Commission approves their plan, will be the only system in America stretching from Coast to Coast. They did not believe the lack of opportunity, but went out and found their opportunity.

The other day A. P. Giannini announced that he was retiring from business on his 60th birthday, early in May. He started work in a fruit store in San Francisco at the age of twelve. At 34 he had started the Bank of Italy in that city. At fifty he was the controlling head of the largest chain of banks in the world. Giannini found his opportunity where others, less keen, had declared there were no opportunities left.

America has always been the Land of Opportunity. It is still the Land of Opportunity and, please God, it will always be the Land of Opportunity for every man who is intelligent enough to recognize Opportunity when he sees it and industrious enough to work out his own destiny.

MERGERS

Consolidation of several small enterprises to make a single large one is not confined to manufacturing industries. Senator Arthur Cappep, of Kansas, who knows what he is talking about most of the time, says that more than a million acres of Kansas farm lands are now owned by corporation bought thirty farms in the winter wheat region and merged them.

Corporate farming is more of a modern enterprise and less of a modern idea than farming by an individual is. According to Senator Cappep, these farm corporations hire men who leave their families behind, to go out in the Fall and put in the crop. In Summer they hire other men to come in and harvest the crop. The rest of the year nobody lives on the big farms.

That seems menacing to the Senator from Kansas. He thinks it will result in depletion of the soil, through lack of crop rotation, maintenance of fertility and diversification. It is hard to believe that any group of capital engaging in business on a large scale would be so short-sighted as not to take those things into consideration and apply the most modern principles of agriculture to their enterprise.

TRADEMARKS

It would be interesting to make a list of words which were invented to serve as trademarks for a particular product, but which have come into general use to describe anything resembling the original article. "Celluloid" is one of those words; it strictly means only the product of the Celluloid Company. "Kodak" is another; the same belongs to George Eastman's cameras but we use it to mean any small camera. When you say "Colt" everybody familiar with firearms knows you mean a large-caliber pistol. Probably nine men out of ten in the region where "five-gallon" hats are worn refer to their headgear as "Stetsons." "Winchester" is almost a synonym for "rifle." And everybody refers to the abbreviated masculine underwear which is now in such general use by the trade-mark of the first of its kind, "B. V. D.'s."

The adoption of such words in general usage is one of the ways in which language grows. A hundred years from now probably, nobody will say "dirigible" but everybody will know what you mean by a "zep."

LONGEVITY

Human life is not getting any longer, according to the men who make a business of studying vital statistics. The average life is longer because a larger proportion of babies live to grow up. Fewer people die in childhood and early life than formerly, but the man who reaches fifty-four, which is the average expectation of life of every new-born baby in America has no better chance of living to seventy than his grandfather did; not so good, according to some.

Certainly the average life of a President of the United States is shorter than it used to be. Col. Leonard P. Ayres of Cleveland, one of the world's famous statisticians, points out that Mr. Taft lived longer—72—than any other President since Millard Fillmore, who died 56 years ago. Out of the first eight Presidents Washington, who died at 67, had the shortest life; John Adams, living to 90, the longest; the others were 85, 83, 80, 78, 73 and 68 at their respective deaths. The average life of the eight was 80 years and a half. The four latest presidents who died averaged only 66 3-4 years of life each: McKinley and Harding died at 58, Roosevelt at 61, Harrison and Wilson each at 67, Hayes at 70, Cleveland at 71 and Taft at 72.

The job of President of the United States is getting harder, for one thing. For another, nearly all men work more intensively and wear out their hearts and nervous systems earlier than men did a hundred years ago.

DAIRYING
— By —
Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-eight years of veterinary work. Eminent authority on diseases and raising of dairy cows, other livestock, and poultry. Nationally known lecturer, writer and author.

Is Dairying a Safe Business?

That is a Natural Question in These Days When Wall Street Memories Are Still Fresh in the Public Mind.

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of articles on dairying written by the well known national dairy and poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S. of St. Louis, Mo. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

Every few years the country experiences a crash of one kind or another. It may be farm lands, oil or Wall Street stocks or any one of a dozen or more fields of financial adventure. A man has a right to ask: "Is any business safe?" I know of no business that is 100 per cent proof against risks. If there were such a business there would be very little profit in it.

It is perfectly natural for a farmer to want to analyze the dairy business before he enters it, either on a large or a small scale. I have attempted to show in this series of articles that fundamentally dairying is sound. Milk is an important food. The consumption of milk is increasing at a greater rate than our population. That means we must do one of two things; increase the number of dairy cattle, or increase their production, or both. In the last ten years the average yearly milk yield per milk cow in this country has increased nearly 120 gallons. It is entirely possible, at that rate of increase, for us to supply milk for a population without adding another cow to our herds.

There is no question about the market for milk. Refrigeration makes it possible to ship milk one mile or one thousand miles. The many products that are made from milk is in itself a stabilizing influence. I have shown that the dairy herd is not only an economical plant for production of food, but it pays dividends in helping to gasoline, ranging from two to six cents a gallon. The highest rates are in Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and New Mexico. That is natural, since those states have the largest highway systems in proportion to population and taxable property values. In Massachusetts, where the tax is only 2 cents and distances are shorter, the average motorist uses only 400 gallons a year and pays $8 toward highway maintenance and improvement. Last year the total gasoline tax collected in this country was $49,731,000.

The gasoline tax is one tax at which few persons grumble seriously. It is a tax the benefits of which are directly enjoyed by those who pay it.

maintain the fertility of farm lands.

There are two or three problems in the dairy business which the farmer should consider seriously. One of these is the labor situation. A hired hand is needed most during the few months of the grain crop season. With a dairy herd it is possible to keep this man all the year 'round. Except for the actual milking, dairy cattle are far less care in the summer-time than in winter, especially in the North. Therefore, dairying duties become heaviest when farm work is lightest.

Right here I would caution farmers about giving due consideration to hired hands in the matter of chores. One reason so many men object to working on a dairy farm is the long hours, and the deadly regularity of the duties. There is no reason why arrangements cannot be made so that milkers can have practically the same hours as field laborers. Also, plan to give hired men regular time off.

Many men do not like to work on a farm where milk cows are kept because of the conditions under which they have to work. It is not alone for the sake of the help that every farmer should have clean, well-lighted, well-ventilated stables. That goes without saying on any farm where cows are milked. But, the fact remains that no matter how small the herd may be the farmer who sees to the comfort of his cattle and employees will greatly reduce his labor worries.

The investment angle is the first consideration, naturally. The farmer who begins with a few cows and builds gradually, can master that problem with a limited amount of money. Some farmers are complaining that the milk business, once profitable, is now a loss because feed and labor are higher while the price of milk has not advanced proportionately. Those men are going to have to study their records carefully and do everything possible to increase production through better methods of feeding and care and better bred cows.

In dairying, as in other lines of business, we have men who compete for pleasure rather than profit. Others engage in it simply to keep their farm hands busy and are satisfied to break even. Still others keep herds solely to fertilize the soil. But let us not forget that the great bulk of the milk produced in this country come from the farmer where small herds are kept and not from specialized farms.

Dr. and Mrs. P. G. Hayes accompanied his mother to Fort Worth Sunday where she will visit her daughter before returning to her home in Arkansas. She spent the past two weeks here with her son and family.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

VACCINES

Some time ago I attended a meeting of my medical society, the program being a sort of symposium—"What I Know About Vaccines"; all members were to participate in the discussion. After several interesting talks, one physician, noted for his terseness and pointed expression, arose and said, "I can tell you in very short time what I know about vaccines—not a damn thing!"

Nevertheless the vaccines have come to stay. With their judicious and timely use, typhoid fever has all but become a thing of the past. We have learned to depend upon immunizing effects of certain vaccines, and thus prevent colds and like respiratory infections. It is believed that we can immunize against influenza, and I am perfectly sure that I have done so in many instances. Just how long the immunity holds good we do not know very definitely.

It is not to be wondered at that we don't know a very great number of things, such as the invisible line of immunity; but we do know that certain vaccines keep off certain diseases; the principle has been proven in our rather crude method of vaccinating again st smallpox. With diligent safeguarding we have almost banished that scourge from our shores.

Some individuals have complained to me that, "as soon as winter sets in I get a cold that stays with me till warm weather comes again"; and this very season I have vaccinated several that missed their "colds" this year so far. Your own physician, if you consult him about it, will do his utmost to prevent your getting sick; and he will know the best preparation to employ in your case. Of course there are many worthless preparations made to sell; that is the case with every branch of the health game. A vaccine, or immunizing preparation, made by a reliable, well-known manufacturer, is dependable.

"Vagabond Lover" To Show Here At Palace Next Week

Rudy Vallee's first great feature picture, "The Vagabond Lover," will introduce the wonder singer of radio to his army of admirers here at the Palace theatre Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Crooning four delightful new songs, Vallee makes his bow in a lavish production created by Radio Pictures under the direction of Marshall Neilan. With him are the Connecticut Yankees, the seven boys as familiar to Radio audiences as Rudy himself.

It is to Sally Blane, Radio Pictures' charming little starlet, that Rudy croons the four new love songs. They are "A Little Kiss Each Morning," "I Love You, Believe Me, I Love You," "I'll Be Reminded of You" and "If You Were the Only Girl in the World."

In supporting roles are Marie Dressler, Eddie Nugent, Danny O'Shea, Norman Peck, Nella Walker, Alan Roscoe, Malcolm Waite and Charles Sellon.

Entertain Few Friends In Honor Of Guest.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Woodward were host and hostess at bridge last Wednesday evening, entertaining as their honor guest, Mrs. S. T. L. Green of Granbury. Neighborhood guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Sellers, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Sadler, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. McCullough, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Lynch and Mrs. F. M. Mingus.

Gorgeous cut flowers adorned the rooms where three tables had been arranged for the games.

Mrs. F. M. Mingus won high score among the women and high score for the men went to H. C. Sadler.

At the conclusion of the games refreshments of Paradise pudding and cake were served.

John Arnold has accepted a position with the Oklahoma Construction Company, and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold left Dallas Sunday for Berger and will spend the next several months traveling from Berger to points in Minnesota.

WHAT MAKES A JOB GOOD?

One morning the elevator starter was breaking in a new elevator boy.

At noon the new boy was running the car alone. He had on a uniform, and was starting and stopping with the confidence of a veteran.

From apprentice to professional in a couple of hours.

What thoughts are in that young fellow's head as he receives his instructions from the gray-haired veteran?

How can he fail to look forward and see in the older man a picture of himself twenty years from now?

He is taking up a low paid job—a job with no future. Twenty years from now he will be just where he is today—only older, with a grasp on the job somewhat less secure. His experience will count for nothing, because it is experience that any other man can gain in a couple of days.

He may from time to time, force an increase in his pay. But the increases will not be large. Why?

Because he learned the job in two days. And in any other two days the company can find plenty of men who will learn just as fast and take the job away from him.

Recently I met in a hotel restaurant a friend of mine who has just come back from England after taking special work in surgery under some of the greatest men in the world.

He is thirty-one years old; it is fourteen years since he entered college.

For ten of those fourteen years he has been in medical schools, in hospitals, and in foreign countries studying.

Fourteen long years of hard, uninterrupted study. Years made more difficult by the necessity for self-support; and filled sometimes with questionings, as he has seen his college class-mates moving forward to their places as well paid physicians, and he lingering still in school.

Yet with what result?

He has acquired a specialized training such as only a few other men in New York possess.

He will begin life with an income of several thousands; he will pay back his educational debts in a couple of years; in ten years his income will be tens of thousands.

Fourteen years of his life went into the mastery of his profession. But he need have no fear of losing what he has gained. No other man can displace him, except at the cost of fourteen years of work.

And when he said it he epitomized the philosophy of Business.

The job that the gods sell for two hours' training is worth just what it costs.

Only that job is worth much which has tied to it the price tag of constant, unceasing study and work.

Drain—then refill with TEXACO

DRAIN—THEN REFILL WITH TEXACO

Most cars require a heavier grade of oil for warm weather. If you have forgotten to change to the correct Summer grade — do it today. But remember that “any oil” isn’t good enough. You have too much at stake to be satisfied with just “any oil.”

Drain — then refill with the correct grade of Texaco. With this clean, clear, golden motor oil in your crankcase you can rest assured of perfect lubrication. For Texaco is made only from the finest of selected crudes. It is refined and again refined, until it passes the exacting Texaco standards of purity. It is free from gummy residual tars which cause faulty valve action and sticking piston rings. It is free from all hard-carbon-forming elements which mean expensive repairs. The clean, clear, golden color of Texaco is visible evidence of its purity.

Let Texaco help your car give its best performance this Summer. Look for the Texaco Red Star with the Green T. Drain—then refill with Texaco. The Texaco chart tells the dealer the exact grade of Texaco for your car.

On Saturday evening another big rain came, as the clouds looked very bad. Storm houses were in great demand. The Duffau and Bosque got on another big rise but has gone down now. In the Spring Creek and some other communities, the hail destroyed all the grain. Some fields are wiped out and no reaper will be taken in there. The gardens also are cleaned up. The country people have the sympathy of their friends in their loss. Some of the trees were stripped of their leaves. Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Scales, who have a nice farm on the Paluxy, informed me that the hail storm damaged them $2,000 or $3,000. They also raise fine pecans and every tree is stripped of their leaves. It is hoped we will not have no more rain soon and not no more hail.

The diplomas were awarded to the following: Misses Maxidine Sadler, Eugenia Pike, Juanita Koonsman, Messrs Mino Laughlin, Elvis Loader, Fred Hewett and W. J. Cunningham. The address which was given by Hon. John Maxwell of Waco was fine. Each of the teachers have returned to their homes: Misses Gandy and Williams to Meridian; Christenson to Cranfills Gap; and Prof. Moore and family to Clifton. Each of the teachers made friends while here and will be missed in the church and social affairs of our city.

The Baptist W. M. S. entertained the Senior Class and faculty Tuesday evening. Rev. Lester made a good talk to the class on attending the Denominational Colleges. From a "tree of life" ships were passed containing good and bad influence to be met in life from which each Senior made a few minutes talk and we are proud to say that each one made a fine talk on their subjects. Next a class prophecy was read and enjoyed by all. A few good games were played after which refreshments were served with a toast to the seniors. The class fortunes were given the class, each reading theirs aloud. After a short farewell talk and prayer by Bro. Lester, we all went away glad of having this hour with our seniors and teachers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stevens and children of Gorman spent the week end here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oldham.

R. S. Echols was in Meridian Monday.

Farmers At Work, Results Noted In Subscription Business

The rains of the past week or two have kept the farmers out of the fields, but they have certainly been "hitting the ball" most of this week, judging from the small number of callers we have had at the office for the purpose of subscribing for the paper. The town people have evidently been helping their country citizens, for the number of that class is short also this week. However we are not fussing, for some of our good friends have found time to help fill our cash drawer, and we are taking this means of telling about their visits.

R. L. DUCKWORTH, Route 3, Iredell, came in Friday morning to renew his subscription. He lives 6 miles east of Hico, and said everything on his farm and near it was cut to pieces by the hail. He said their corn was almost waist high before the hail and their cotton had a good start, and the gardens were beautiful too, but now even the prairie grass was cut to pieces. Mr. Duckworth thought it was almost too late to replant, but was not giving up, and said he would try his luck on June corn. We hope that by this time he has found a way to help counteract his losses from hail.

C. G. ALEXANDER, city, who has been in Stephenville quite a lot lately where his wife has been in a sanitarium for an operation, came in last Friday to renew his subscription. Mr. Alexander said his wife was getting along fine, which will be good news to their many friends here. After he was in the office we learned that she was able to return home Tuesday.

MRS. R. W. COPELAND was in Saturday to renew the subscription of her father, J. W. Chandler, at Eastland. She stated that he enjoyed the paper very much, as he knew a great many people here, having made their acquaintance during his frequent visits with Mr. and Mrs. Copeland and family.

MISS WILENA PURCELL of the Hico city list renewed her subscription this week through the news stand operated by Miss Jonnie Hutchingson.

MRS. EVIE PROFFITT, also of Hico city list, renewed her subscription through the news stand. These last two subscriptions were brought in by Miss Jonnie Hutchingson and Miss Beulah Truss, the latter being housekeeper for Miss Jonnie, and also a great help to her in her business. In fact we believe she is about to take all of Leonard Howard's best customers away from him, for he hasn't been in to see us this week.

MRS. B. T. SLATER, 245 West Panhandle St., Slaton, Texas, gave us a dollar and a half Wednesday to send her the paper at her home. She and her son, B. T. Jr., have been visiting here since last Friday with her mother, Mrs. J. A. Anderson of Fairy. Mrs. Slater said she intended to return home today, and would look forward to the weekly visits of the News Review. She also requested that we notify her when her time was out, as she wanted to keep getting the paper all the time.

C. D. RICHBOURG handed a News Review reporter a dollar Thursday morning to send the News Review to them for a year. He is in the grocery department at the G. M. Carlton Bros. store.

Miss Arietta Shaffer Brings Hico Notice In California Paper

A clipping from a Los Angeles newspaper has been brought to the attention of the News Review, and since it concerns one who is very well known in Hico, we are reprinting it. The subject, Miss Arietta Shaffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Shaffer, has recently returned to California from a visit here, and it was on the occasion of her visit that the article was written. Although in some places the writer tells his story in a humorous vein, it is plain that Miss Arietta is well thought of in her adopted home. The clipping follows:

Miss Arietta Shaffer, taking advantage of the present lull in the local fields, plans and puts into effect a trip to her home in Texas, where she intends to visit with her father and mother, now living at Hico.

This long-desired vacation is now nearing its end, and the folks at the Alco plant, where Reta holds the position of chief secretary, are anxiously awaiting for her to put in an appearance, for while the Alco plant is one of the liveliest in the industry, there is a decided gloom hanging over the place due to the absence of Reta, whose genial personality, which she took with her, has left a huge vacancy.

The story is told on Reta, that will go a long way toward showing the power of this girl's winning smiles: When she first came to Hico, the stork furnished the transportation and their closest neighbor was some forty miles distant. Now Hico can boast of at least half a dozen families, all drawn to the locality by the same sunny disposition that now holds reign at the Alco plant.

Editor Urges People Of Texas To Eat Grass By-Products

Old Nebuchadnezzar, who according to the Bible story, went out into the fields and ate grass, had the right idea, scientists of today declare.

"The search for vitamins in food is one of the greatest works the modern scientist," according to Frank Briggs, editor of Farm and Ranch and president of the South-west Dairy Association. "In Arkansas, Dr. Barnett Sure of the state university, has isolated vitamin B out of the rice polish that is generally discarded and used only for cattle feed.

"And in the green grass of the spring he and other scientists have found the greatest quantities of vitamins A and D.

"We cannot be Nebuchadnezzars," Mr. Briggs points out, "but we can do the next best thing and eat the by-products of the grass, chiefly spring butter and milk.

"Texas is learning this lesson," he declared, "the consumption of its own dairy products in increasing rapidly. If we ever come to the point where we have an organized, statistical report of this industry, perhaps we will be able to assist cooperation between the producer, the manufacturer and the consumer. Today this is impossible because so little is known of the actual amount consumed, produced or imported and exported from the state."

According to dairy manufacturers of the state, every time a farmer spends five cents for substitutes it costs the dairy farmer of Texas $1.70.

Aside from losing the very necessary vitamin D, when a farmer uses butter substitute, he is not even using farm products of the state.

"The last report of the government; showed that only 28,000,000 pounds of cottonseed oil, against 171,000,000 pounds of coconut oil in the manufacture of synthetic butter. And this ratio is increasing all the time," Mr. Briggs said.

For a time the Texas dairy industry was not progressing as well as could be wished. Mr. Briggs pointed out, there being a butter surplus where there would not have been if everyone had been eating his health quota of butter. "But I am glad to report that this condition is changing steadily and I foresee new prosperity for the dairy farmer of Texas," the editor said.

Arthur J. Moore of Birmingham and Paul B. Kern of San Antonio were elected bishops Wednesday at the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at Dallas.
