Tomatoes Bring Profits.

Groesbeck.—From four 80-foot rows of tomatoes of four different varieties, Mrs. C. C. Spivey, garden demonstrator of Prairie Hill in Limestone county, has sold $25 worth at three and four cents per pound; has canned 75 containers, and given away five bushels of ripe fruit to her neighbors. In addition she was able to test to her own satisfaction which of the four varieties—June Pink, Earlyanna, Dwarf Champion and McGee—suited her garden and her taste the best. June Pink won out, producing more under the conditions.

AWAY OF LIFE BY BRUCE BARTON

RECIPE FOR MAKING A MILLION

A friend of mine who is still under thirty-five has made a fortune, and I asked him how he did it.

"I've been to your office several times," I said, "but you seem seldom to be there."

"No, I don't go to the office every day," he answered. "A good deal of the time I just sit and look out the window and think."

"When I make a decision I go out and put it into effect, and a little more than half the time I have had the good luck to be right. When I find I have made a mistake, I sit down and say: 'Now what did I do wrong? Were my facts inaccurate, or did I draw bad conclusions? How am I going to avoid that same mistake again?'"

I knew another man who owned a small but profitable business. He was methodical in his habits. On a certain day of each month he stayed away from the office, and everybody in his employ knew that the old man was "thinking."

From breakfast time until sundown on such a day he would sit before an open fire or an open porch, without pen or pencil or paper, or records or reports, and quietly think.

He attributed his modest success to this unvarying habit.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

International Sunday School Lesson for November 30.

ZACCHAEUS THE PUBLICAN —A BUSINESSMAN CONVERTED.

Luke 19:1-10.

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

During the past summer tree sitting became a fad with many ambitious youths, and even some women, who wanted to establish a new kind of record. Zacchaeus also used a tree when he had a supreme purpose in mind. It was while Jesus was passing through Jericho for the last time.

Curiosity was doubtless the motive that impelled him to get a sight of the Nazarene, about whom he had heard so much. When he tried to press near the bystanders would be none too gentle in elbowing him away. Then our man of determination ran around the crowd seeking some point of vantage on the road whither the company would pass. A sycamore tree with its outreaching, low-hanging branches revealed the possibility of an unobstructed view and to that place he climbed.

No matter how busy Jesus had been in meeting the outcries of individuals who needed help. He always was aware of every one else in the crowded throng. When in sight of the tressitter He looked up with recognition. Then the unparalleled thing occurred as Jesus in a kindly manner called Zacchaeus by name. There was still greater amazement when the Passerby invited Himself to be the Guest that day of the man who was held in contempt by the entire community.

When in the presence of Jesus there is instantly the consciousness of unworthiness. Involuntarily there is effort to measure up to His idea of righteousness. A quick audit of his record as tax collector revealed the excesses that had taken place in his office. What he had wrongfully gained called for restitution. At once one half of his goods are assigned to the poor.

EXCESS OF EATING

"We Eat More and More," reads a recent headline. A writer and compiler of statistics quoted from the Literary Digest says, "One hundred and fifty pounds a year is our increase in food consumption during a generation." He adds that "We consume fewer cereals and more sugar, fruits, and milk products."

He says quite an earful; he speaks of a time when dinner arrived at noon, and was the big meal of the day. Supper was usually cornmeal mush-and-milk, with fried mush, butter and molasses for breakfast the next morning.

These were the days when people got along with some 500 fewer diseases than we "enjoy" at the present time—and when a fellow died of old age. There is everything except wisdom in many of the dietary customs of this on-rushing age of early death and big inheritance taxes.

In the last generation we have jumped from thirty-four to forty-four pounds in fats and oils; thirty years ago, we consumed sixty-one pounds of sugar; today we swallow our hundred-and-fifth pound for the year just past. We eat, according to this authority, 142

'Konjola Truly Wonderful' Says This Happy Man

Dallas Man Suffering With Kidney Ailment Finds First Relief In New Medicine.

MR. W. E. ROWLEY

"For over a year and a half I suffered with rheumatism and kidney trouble," said Mr. W. E. Rowley, 216 Bryan street, Dallas. "I had dull aching pains across my back and was forced to rise frequently at night. A constant pain in my right leg caused me much misery and I lapsed in getting around. Pains in my back and side did not permit a good night's rest. I felt dull and listless and my vitality became lower and lower. "A friend, who knew my condition, told me about Konjola. Konjola did so much for me that I am at a loss to express my appreciation. The rheumatic pains in my leg have left me for the first time in a year. My kidneys are once again functioning properly. My sleep is no longer broken by pains in my side and back. I have only taken two bottles but I certainly shall continue the treatment." It is recommended that Konjola be taken over a six to eight week period. Best results are usually obtained in such cases.

Konjola is sold in Hico, Texas, at Porter's Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

FAIRY ITEMS

We had our first ice of the season here Friday morning, also a light frost, however vegetation wasn't damaged to any extent. The grain is looking fine.

Some of our neighbors hied away to the happy hunting ground a few days ago for a few days of recreation and sport. They all returned with fine success, having each one killed one or two deer.

The small boy of Mrs. Henry Burden had the misfortune to get his feet burned a few days ago by walking in hot ashes.

Mrs. O. C. Jordan of Cleburne is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Parks.

The play presenting "Fascinating Fannie Brown" rendered by P. T. A. Friday night was well attended.

Rev. Studer, the new pastor of the Methodist Church, preached his first sermon here Sunday. A large crowd attended the services.

Plans are to celebrate Thanksgiving here with an all day meeting at the school with dinner on the ground and a program at night.

Miss Eugenia Pike, a student at John Tarleton, visited here this week.

Rev. W. T. Jones, our new pastor, will preach here Sunday. Everyone come and hear him.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Farmer of Hico spent Sunday here with Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Strong.

Rev. Lester preached two fine sermons here Sunday morning and evening and at their Sunday school 103 were present. The Baptists are ahead of the Methodists on attendance at Sunday school. All come that can do so.

Lotus Gosdin of Dallas visited here Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Myers and baby left this week for Kopperl where they will reside. They are fine people and we are sorry to see them leave and hope they will like their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. "Si" Davis and children were here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester and daughter of near Meridian were guests of their son Rev. Lester here Sunday.

Mr. Delia Bum Main and his friend have returned to Dallas after a visit of ten days here with the former's mother, Mrs. Janie Main.

The shower that was given to Mrs. Oakley before she went away was attended by some of the Methodist ladies and some that couldn't come remembered her with beautiful gifts.

Mr. John Cox of Meridian was here Saturday.

Mr. D. Preston Hornbuckle of Meridian was here this week collecting taxes.

The recent frosts that have fallen have caused the leaves to change their dresses of green to those golden brown which are so beautiful.

Mrs. Sallie French returned Saturday from Waco where she had been with her brother, Mr. Newton, who passed away. She has the sympathy of her many friends in the loss of her brother.

Mr. J. S. Sanders has been ill this week, but is some better now.

Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell are visiting in Walnut Springs. Mr. John Lee came after them.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Horten and children and Mrs. Squires visited Mr. George Squires near Dublin who is very ill.

Mrs. J. L. Davis visited in Fort Worth Sunday, returning Monday.

The following is a clipping taken from the Weekly Gazette at Lake City, Florida:

Oakly-Carter

In the parlor of the First Baptist Church, overlooking Lake DeSoto, a quiet but beautiful wedding was solemnized by Dr. W. T. Hall when Mr. R. G. Oakly and Miss Fern Carter became husband and wife Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The parlor had been made lovely by the friends of the couple. There were pink radiance roses in profusion, intermingled with white flowers, and ferns with a background of pot plants.

Mrs. E. M. Moiles sang "Until" after which the bridal pair entered to the strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin by Mrs. Henry Edwards who continued her playing softly during the ceremony which included the ring ceremony.

Immediately after the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Oakly departed by car on a wedding trip showered with rice and congratulations.

Mr. Oakly has for the past six months been in charge of the fruit fly inspection office of this city, and during that time has made many friends who join in wishing him and his fair young bride the best that married life can bring.

There was a romantic touch to the wedding in that the bride came to Lake City a few days before the wedding all the way from Iredell, Texas, to meet her fiance, they having met when Mr. Oakly was on duty for the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Texas.

Among out-of-town friends of the groom present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Fowler, Misses Ruth and Mary Lee Fowler of Gainesville; Wm. E. Fowler of Orlando and E. M. Dieffenbach of Orlando, the last three gentlemen named being also connected with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

A number of friends from Lake City were also in attendance.

Mrs. Iva Johnson Cutcher was born May 25th at Waco 1896. At the age of 20 years she was converted and joined the Baptist church, and lived a consistent Christian life till the end which came November 15 at a sanitarium at Dallas. She has been married twice and by this union 4 children were born. Her second marriage was to Mr. Morris Cutcher, September 20, 1930. He with two of the children were at the funeral. It was not my privilege to know her but have been told she was a good Christian woman, ever ready to do the right thing and had a great number of friends here as she visited here a great deal.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon at the Baptist Church in the presence of a good crowd. Rev. Lester had charge of the funeral. The casket was open and all took the last sad look. She was a beautiful corpse and looked very peaceful as if she was only asleep.

Out of a family of 13 children she was the first one to die. It is very hard to see our loved ones pass away, but like David of old we can't bring them back but we can go to them.

Besides her husband and four children she leaves her parents, four sisters and eight brothers.

The friends of the relatives extend to them their sympathy.

Out-of-town relatives who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Bill Johnson and two sons, Guy and Bernes of Hale Center, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Roberson, Mr. and Mrs. Clint Johnson, Fred Johnson, and Mrs. Emma Patterson of Hale Center; Mr. Jack Sparks of Waco and Peggy Smith of Hillsboro.

BIGGER AND BETTER

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX HAS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

The introduction of the new Chevrolet Six marks the most impressive forward step in Chevrolet's twenty-year record of constant progress and improvement. For this Bigger and Better Six offers new beauty, new luxury, new completeness and new quality—yet it sells at lower prices!

In every curve and sweep of Chevrolet's modern lines—in every detail of its new Fisher bodies, you will see the fine hand of the master designer and the skillful craftsman. And the more closely you inspect it, the more deeply impressed you will be.

The improvements in the new Chevrolet Six begin at the smart new chrome-plated headlamps and extend throughout the entire car. The radiator is deeper. The lines are longer and lower, giving an air of exceptional fleetness and grace. And the interiors of the new Fisher bodies provide a new degree of comfort and luxury: greater roominess; fine quality mohair or broadcloth upholstery; more pleasing interior fittings; and a new, completely equipped instrument panel.

The chassis of the new Chevrolet Six has also been refined and advanced in a number of different ways. The frame is heavier, deeper and stronger than before. There is a smoother operating, long lived clutch; a sturdier front axle; an entirely new steering mechanism; an easier shifting transmission. In fact, every vital feature of the new car has been made better to provide more thorough satisfaction for the owner.

And along with these improvements, Chevrolet offers the smooth performance of a 50-horsepower, six-cylinder motor—four long semi-elliptic springs—four hydraulic shock absorbers—a safety gasoline tank at the rear of the car—and an economy of operation not surpassed by any automobile.

AT NEW LOW PRICES

Fine as it is, the new Chevrolet Six now sells at lower prices—making the economy and satisfaction of Chevrolet ownership even more outstanding. We urge you to come in and see the Bigger and Better Chevrolet. Its modern design reflects the spirit of the times—and it represents a value which will command the interest of every buyer in the low-price field.

KEEPUP THE GOOD WORK

The Red Cross is making its annual appeal for funds. In a few days the Christmas Seals of the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis will be offered for sale everywhere.

These are two noble causes, to which everybody ought to contribute.

The work of the Red Cross is continuous. Wherever there is life to be saved, homeless to be sheltered, victims of catastrophe to be recomforted, fed and started out anew in life, the Red Cross is the first agency in the field and the one which does the most good. By virtue of his office, the President of the United States, whoever he may be, is also president of the Red Cross. It is, in effect, an unofficial arm of the Federal government.

The recent drought gave the Red Cross an opportunity for service. So did the Mississippi flood a couple of years ago, the hurricane disaster in Florida, Porto Rico and Santo Domingo. And hundreds of minor disasters, constantly occurring, keep this organization busy. It has no money except what the public gives.

The work of the Tuberculosis organization is of almost equal importance. Tuberculosis is diminishing, but only because of the constant watchfulness and educational work of the devoted men and women who are giving their lives to that work. Buying Christmas seals for a cent apiece is an easy and practical way for everybody to help.

THANKSGIVING

Once more the people of the United States have been called upon by their President to observe the last Thursday in November as a day on which to give thanks for the manifold blessings which we have been vouchsafed.

Thanksgiving is one of the few days which is celebrated as a holiday in every part of the United States. Of New England origin, dating back to the days of the Plymouth colony, more than 300 years ago, its appropriateness has appealed to all America.

For we of this country have been more abundantly blessed than have been the people of any other nation in the world. We may "grumble" at "hard times" and point to inequalities as between man and man, and think we are pretty badly off, but we must remember that by comparison with any other part of the world we are exceedingly well off, that the inequalities that divide our people into the successful and the unsuccessful are far less marked than the inequalities which exist elsewhere between the upper and the lower classes.

The Pilgrim Fathers gave thanks to God on Thanksgiving Day for material blessings with which their physical condition had been ameliorated. We are all too prone today to take all of the credit for material progress to ourselves. Few today rely upon Divine Providence to take care of them, in spite of the express promise:

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

Our faith is less simple than that of our forebears. We do not look for direct and instantaneous answer to prayer. But down deep in our hearts we, as a people, still believe that somehow, if each does his individual best to live up to the spirit of religion, he will not suffer for lack of food and shelter and the normal comforts of life.

There is still faith in the words of the Psalmist:

"I have been young, and now I am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

This particular Thanksgiving Day of 1930 seems to us to be one upon which the religious origin of the occasion should be kept in mind. We have been through a hard year. We are still not "out of the woods" so far as material prosperity is concerned. But we have lost the faith in ourselves, in our neighbors, in our Nation and its ultimate high destiny, which all of our history justifies. So long as we hold to that faith and continue to believe that something higher than human power is still guiding us, we have every cause to be thankful.

PATRIOTISM

With control of Congress equally divided as between Republicans and Democrats, there is something both novel and refreshing in the offer of seven Democratic leaders to cooperate with President Hoover and the Republican party in every legislative effort to relieve economic conditions and restore prosperity.

This seems to us to be a symbol of a new era in American party politics. The Democrats reserve their right to take sharp issue with the Administration and with Republican legislators on all matters which are part of their party's program. But on subjects which are not partisan in their nature they promise what amount to a coalition government.

There are hundreds of such questions to be decided by every session of Congress. It has been the custom in the past for the party whose representative does not occupy the White House to oppose everything which the Administration wants, regardless of its merits. In the past this has resulted in delay and sometimes the complete failure of programs which would have benefitted everybody, merely because their sponsors were of a different political faith. Legislation has been partisan rather than business-like.

We hope both parties will prove their patriotism by living up to the promises which the Democrats have made and the Republicans have accepted.

NEW YORK.—Soft lights, faint fragrance of perfume, dying strains of the overture. The mighty curtain parts, and a vast, excited murmuring melts into a trance of hushed expectancy. New York society, attired in a billion dollars worth of fine feathers and magnificent jewels, sits around the glittering horseshoe for the opening of Metropolitan opera.

Meanwhile, a dozen blocks away nine hundred men—many of them well dressed—wait in line through a drizzling rain to be handed tickets. Not tickets to the opera, no. Tickets that entitle each of them to one free meal. The Salvation Army opens soup kitchens to relieve the unemployed. And 18,000 heads of families in Greater New York walk the streets, wondering how the little brood will eat tomorrow.

Heart-rending scenes occur every day in business offices—large blocks of workers are dismissed. The Army of the unemployed streets are full of tramping jobless. But they are not jobless tramps. Many are well dressed, highly educated, experts in their particular lines.

Never a day passes that the working man is not importuned to help someone find a job. Any kind of job. One business man states that he has so many calls from friends seeking employment that he has done practically nothing for a week but answer the telephone.

And yet—with the situation thus—New York continues to be the Mecca for unemployed from all parts of the country. The moment a dry-goods clerk or plumber's assistant loses his job in Cedar Rapids or Tuscaloosa, he makes a bee line for Broadway. The last place on earth to go!

The big city seems to hold out to such people the same sort of illusory promise that America holds for many immigrants: a land of limitless opportunity, of glittering hope.

If there were fewer Americans suffering from such delusions, there would be fewer despondent demerits jumping daisy from new York's high buildings, spattering themselves inelegantly on the hard, unfeeling pavements.

In view of these facts, I was vastly amused and surprised at He Got an incident that occurred Homesick red the other day.

A fine looking youngster he was, from a city in the Middle West. Yes, he had had training in advertising and in selling. He was a college graduate. And looked the part—neat, suave, and graced with impeccable manners. He had been "laid off" by a firm in the West, and was very anxious to get back to work.

Impressed by his appeal, I looked around a bit and—very much to my surprise—did find a job vacant, one that he could very well have filled. I telephoned the New York friend with whom the young man was staying and joyfully asked that he be summoned to the telephone.

"Sorry," came the reply, "he's gone back to—"

"What?" I exclaimed, "surely he hasn't given up hope already—he's only been here three days, and besides I told him there was something that looked promising."

"I know," said the voice at the end of the wire, "but the kid got homesick. And besides, I think there's a girl out West."

Joe Cook, the comedian and star of the current Broadway hit, "Barking Up the Wrong Tree," has Signatures a piano at his Lake Hopatcong, N. J., home on which he makes every guest burn his signature. The piano has 948 names on it. A few of them are Ring Lardner, Gilbert Seldes, Robert Benchley, Alexander Woollcott, Babe Ruth, Charles McArthur and Hudson Maxim.

For the foregoing information I am indebted to Miss Florence Marks of the Columbia Broadcasting system, over which Joe went on the air the other night. From the same source it is learned that Cook has on his estate a golf course with one hole so constructed that the player cannot fail to make a "hole in one."

—Which ought to go down in history as the greatest invention since the corkscrew.

VOICES

The head of a college of music has got into the newspapers by announcing that the pitch of American girls' voices is getting lower, and attributing this to "yelling at football games and smoking cigarettes."

It is much more probably that the American type is changing through the admixture of races, and that the average American girl has a better muscular development than her grandmother had. Physical training rather than cigarettes would tend to enlarge the breathing passages which affect the pitch of the voice.

If the change which this teacher has noticed is general, so much the better. The high-pitched American female voice, almost shrill, grates on sensitive ears. Women may admire sopranos, but most men prefer the deep-toned contraltos.

JUNK

Nearly a year's experience with the plan, adopted by all of the large automobile makers, of offering a bonus to dealers for "junking" used cars, seems to have had

HELPLESS WITH RHEUMATISM

"Rheumatism had me in such bad shape I couldn't walk for two years. At times I had to use crutches. My kidneys were over-active and kept me awake nights. My back hurt so I couldn't bend over. I spent hundreds of dollars for medicines that did me no good. I haven't missed a day from work since my third bottle of Sargon. I've taken 15 bottles and never had a rheumatic pain now. My kidneys seem normal; the pains in my back disappeared. There are few men my age as active as I am." Chas. A. Marsh, 570 Crescent St., Kansas City. Pinky Dinky

Comic strip titled 'Pinky Dinky JINGLES'. It features a boy named Pinky and a girl named Fatty. Pinky writes a letter to Fatty, and Fatty replies. The comic includes illustrations of the characters and their interactions. The text of the comic is as follows:
Pinky: 'I have been young, and now I am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread.'
Fatty: 'I got your letter received and I have not read it yet cause I could not make it out. I was glad to here you got a medal for spelling. Dad says I spell fine so I don't need a meddle to prove it like you do. I am mad at...'
Pinky: 'did and Fatty felled me home crying and told mom that it was my fault and mom gave him some more ice cream and he stood there licking ice cream while dad was licking me.'
Fatty: 'Fatty, we went to a party over at Ethel Jones and when they served ice cream and cake Fatty saw me put the cake in my pocket to take home to my rabbit. Fatty wouldn't eat any more ice cream so he put it in his pocket. You can imagine what happened. Well it...'
Pinky: 'TOM CAT SETTIN ON THE BACK YARD FENCE FEET ALL FULL OF BLISTERS PICKIN' HIS TETH WITH THE END OF HIS TAIL AND THE WIND BLOWIN' THRU HIS WHISKERS'

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
Giles Chitttenham sets out to make Julie Farrow love him, intending to throw her over in revenge for the suicide of his brother Rodney, whom Julie had cast off. He succeeds, but finds that he has fallen desperately in love with her himself. Then he discovers that it was not this Julie Farrow, but her cousin of the same name, who had driven his brother to death. But Giles is married, to an American girl named Sadie Barrow, with whom he has not lived for a long time. Sadie unexpectedly turns up in London, at a party at Giles' mother's house, but both keep silent about their marriage. Julie's disillusioned, and enters into the wild night life of London to try to drown her anguish. Lawrence Schofield wants to marry her. Lombard, who had first introduced her to Chitttenham, demands money from Giles with the threat that if he is not paid he will tell Schofield that Chitttenham and Julie spent the night together on the St. Bernard Pass. Later Julie confesses to Chitttenham that she loves him.

At a spiritual seance at Giles' mother's house Sadie Barrow, his wife, suddenly goes blind. She calls to him and he responds, revealing the fact that she is his wife. Julie who has sent Schofield away because of her love for Chitttenham, goes home in despair.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
Julie moved with difficulty. She was cold and aching in every limb. She slipped off her wet clothes and put on a warm dressing-gown her hands were shaking with cold. She was pouring the water from the kettle when a knock came on the front door—a heavy knock that sounded both urgent and insistent. Bim, perhaps! Julie put the kettle down and flew across the little hall. Bim, dear Bim, Julie felt as if already half her troubles were lifted from her as she drew back the latch—then she gave a little choking cry.

"You—!"
"Yes—you must let me come in, Julie," Chitttenham said, and without a word Julie stood aside. She was conscious instantly of something different—strange about him—something that killed both the mingled hope and anger that struggled for supremacy in her heart. She felt that if she went to his arms she would be repulsed—that if she showed him bitter scorn it would leave him unmoved—that nothing could touch him.

"I had to come—I'm sorry if you are angry with me—but I had to come—just to say good-bye—"
He turned and half raised his head, looking at Julie. Then suddenly his face changed—it was as if the strangeness were wiped out of it in a single flash, giving place to such a look of unutterable pain that Julie caught her breath in an involuntary cry.

"To say good-bye—?"
"Yes—he took a quick step towards her and then stopped—"Sadie is blind," he said.
Julie stared at him, her eyes blank, her lips parted; then after a long moment: "What do you mean?" she whispered.

Chitttenham made a little impatient gesture.

"Just that—what I have said, she is blind—apparently she has felt it coming and been dreading it for months. That is why she came from America without telling me—she went to see some German specialist—I don't know yet what he told her, she was too ill and frightened to be very coherent. And then this fellow Chryer on top of it all—you heard what he said about some one in the room never seeing the sunshine again. Didn't he speak of blindness—darkness—God knows what! The fellow should be locked up. Sadie took it to herself, of course, and the sudden shock finished it; perhaps it would have happened anyway, the doctor thinks so, but even he cannot tell, he says she may temporarily recover her sight—if she doesn't—"

He stopped abruptly, and Julie said in a shaking voice:

"How awful! How perfectly awful."
So it was. She felt shocked, stunned and yet it was quite impartially, every other emotion was clouded over, stifled by those first words which Chitttenham had spoken to her.

"I had to come, just to say goodbye."
What had he meant by that? Goodbye! How could they ever say goodbye after last night? He had said then that they would never part again. Chitttenham went on:

"I was sure you would understand what difference it makes, I was sure you would try to help me, Julie—dear! You see, she hasn't any one but me, you see there are some things it's impossible for a man to do when a woman's ill—and frightened—I couldn't leave her, how could I? You see—you wouldn't wish it, would you? It would be like—like trampling a woman down to reach our happiness, a blind woman, too, so defenceless—I—"

He broke down hopelessly. What could he say. What excuse or explanation could he offer that would sound plausible or justified?
He tried to take her hand, but she drew it sharply away. She felt that she could bear anything, he would not touch her her. He was right in what he said. Of course he was right. Sadie was his wife, and his place was to stand by her. No man could do less, she herself would despise him if he did less, and yet—behind everything a panic-stricken cry was trying to make itself heard in her heart:

"What about me? What about me?"
Then, as if in answer to the unspoken cry, Chitttenham was beside her—so close to her that for a wild moment she thought he must be going to take her in his arms, and her heart almost stood still, and then went racing on again so violently that it seemed to be choking her. And she looked up desperately, meeting his eyes fixed upon her with such a look of love and longing in them that it was more than she could bear. She put out her hands appealingly.

"Go away, please go away," she whispered.
"Julie," He caught her hands in his. "Forgive me, Julie. Say you forgive me, that you don't hate me, that you understand."

What do I want you to do? Why, nothing. There is nothing we can do, we must just go on. I always knew it would be like this, even last night. There's nothing we can do. I shall marry Lawrence seemed to be listening, and he let his arms fall from about her.

"I shall see you to-morrow."
Still no answer, and after a moment he went out into the little hall and opened the front door.
He was so sure she would call to him, perhaps run after him. He was so sure that in a moment she would be in his arms, her lips crushed against his—he counted the seconds feverishly by his heart-beats.

But Julie did not move, and she gave no sign.
Chitttenham looked back.
"Julie!"
He waited a moment, but the silence remained unbroken, and he went out of the flat, shutting the door behind him.

It seemed to Julie that she stood for hours, leaning against the wall, her body so tired that it was too much effort even to move over to the fire and a comfortable chair. Her head ached miserably. With a supreme effort she dragged herself across the room to the fire. It had burnt down, and she replenished it with shaking hands. She felt as if already a lifetime had passed since Chitttenham came to the flat, and yet only a moment ago he had been there with her, so close that she had but to put out her hand to touch him, and now he had gone, back to Sadie, back to his wife!

"I will never willingly see him again," Julie told herself passionately. "He has deceived me twice. I will never forgive him as long as I live."
She got up almost violently as though driven by the sudden reaction of thought.
She would send at once to Schofield. She would not lose a moment.

She went to the phone and called his number, but it was only after a long time that the hotel people could give her any news of him.

He was out at the moment, they said, but he was certainly returning that night.
There was a little pause—then: "Mr. Schofield is leaving London early tomorrow morning."
"Leaving—?"

Julie felt as if her last anchor had been torn from her—the waves of misery and utter loneliness seemed to beat up afresh all round her. The voice at the other end of the phone asked politely if a message could be taken.

"No—oh, no, thank you."
Julie hung up the receiver and turned away. Lawrence was leaving London, leaving her! She was seized with exaggerated panic. What was to become of her? Even Bim was weary of her, there was no place for her in the world. But Lawrence had loved her, must surely still love her. She remembered the despair in his eyes when she told him she would not marry him.

If she could only see him for a moment she was confident that everything would be all right—to see him just to see him! She felt like a child left alone in the dark, straining every nerve to get to the one person who can take away dread and the desolate sense of loneliness.
She took off her loose gown and dressed again with shaking fingers, she was still very cold, but her face and head felt burning.
She would put herself beyond Chitttenham's reach, to-morrow when he came he should find it too late.

If Lawrence would take her away to-night she would go with him. She was tired of hoping for things that never came true, afraid of a love that brought with it only pain. She went out into the wet, chilly night and took a taxi. She drove straight to the hotel where Lawrence was staying. No, he was not in yet, and they could not say at what hour he would be returning. It was past nine then. "I'll wait a little while and see if Mr. Schofield returns," Julie said.

The minutes ticked away, and later she supposed that she must have fallen into a stupor, out of which she was roused with a start to the sound of a chiming clock. Julie walked across to the porter. "I cannot wait any longer, I will leave a note for Mr. Schofield."

FOSTER

MOTHER OF THE WORLD

Who ever heard of a baby without MILK, or Christmas without Santa Claus, or a politician without Bull? Show us a farm without cows, and we will show you one that resembles the last rose of summer and wonders how it got that way.

Truly, the cow is "the foster mother of the world." Physicians recommend Pure, Raw Milk, from clean, healthy cows, tested for Tuberculosis and undulant fever as the best nourishment for infants.

We recommend the constantly improved farm herd, tested for production, with the "boarders" sifted out and sold to the packers, as the best panacea for farm relief in this cotton country.

The most progressive farmers believe in the staunchness of this said "foster mother of the world" to the extent that they KEEP A LITTLE AND SELL A LITTLE of the product this "mother" gives. Keep the milk stream running and you keep the life stream running surely, safely, and soundly.

"More Milk in the pail. More Money in the till."

THE SCRAP BOOK

THE THREE FISHERS

By Charles Kingsley
Three fishers went sailing away to the West,
Away to the West as the sun went down;
Each thought of the woman who loved him the best,
And the children stood watching them out of the town;
For men must work, and women must weep,
And there's little to earn, and many to keep,
Though the harbor bar be moaning.

Three wives sat up in the light-house tower
And they trimmed the lamps as the sun went down;
They looked at the squall, and they looked at the shower
And the night-rack came rolling up ragged and brown.
But men must work, and women must weep,
Though storms be sudden, and waters deep,
And the harbor bar be moaning.

Three corpses lay on the shining sands
In the morning gleam as the tide went down,
And the women are weeping and wringing their hands
For those who will never come home to the town;
For men must work, and women must weep,
And the sooner it's over, the sooner to sleep;
And good-by to the bar and its moaning.

Thanksgiving Service At Methodist Church Thursday Morning

Rev. A. C. Haynes, pastor of the Hico Methodist Church, announces that there will be Thanksgiving services at that church Thursday morning, from 9 to 11 o'clock, and invites all the people of the community to be present and take part in the services.

So far as the News Review has learned, this is the only church that will have services on this day, and it is expected that the public will take part in the form of union services.

DUFFAU NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. T. Campbell visited Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Tunnel Sunday afternoon.

O. M. Bramblett Jr. spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Duzan.

Traitt Arnold of Stephenville visited his folks, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Arnold and family a while Tuesday night of last week.

Elworth McAnally spent Sunday night with A. T. Lackey.

Mollie Bell and Vera Burgan spent Sunday with Misses Martha, Dona and Lula Land.

Nell Monroe visited Elsie McElroy Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Alexander, daughter, Louise, and their granddaughter, Jessie Alexander, visited Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Alexander of the Black Stump Valley Community Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Herod and little daughter spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Cavitt and family.

A number of young people from this community went to the singing last Sunday afternoon at Hico.

Violet Cavitt spent Sunday night with her sister, Mrs. Lester Herod.

The members of the Junior B. Y. P. U. were entertained last Saturday afternoon by their leader, Miss Vera Smart.

Times Get Better Judging From The Many Subscribers

If the number of subscribers both new and renewal, may be taken as an indication of the financial condition of this section, times are getting better. Not that the News Review management is getting rich from this source, or has more subscribers than can be cared for, but the business along this line for the past several days has been indeed encouraging.

This is one step toward better times every resident of the community may take. Money paid for subscription will not be missed, for a whole year's reading may be secured for a nominal sum. Then the subscriber gets his money back through savings on his purchases made possible by reading the ads; the merchant who advertises gets additional profits through a larger volume of business; and newspaper folks are able to make a living through the loyalty and good business judgment of the friends of the paper.

Simple, isn't it? When reduced to a minimum of words, this philosophy might be stated thusly: Subscribe for your home paper and encourage a speedy return of prosperity.

MRS. J. A. GUYTON telephoned the office and told us not to stop her paper, as she had a dollar ready as soon as she could get it to us. She stated that they enjoy the paper and don't want to miss a copy.

WILL J. STRINGER, Route 1, Hico, dropped in at our office to get a copy of the paper, and after reading it, came back and subscribed. He hinted that our politics might not come up to scratch, but we'll bet he can't fall out with us on any of our political ideas as may appear in the paper.

REV. A. C. HAYNES, pastor of the Hico Methodist Church, gave us a check for a dollar to continue his paper—and this was before Conference, when he wasn't sure he would be returned to Hico. Seems like he has made up his mind to read the News Review wherever he may be, and it was certainly good news to us when he was returned to Hico, for we need friends like this as citizens of Hico.

MISS FANNIE WOOD wants us to keep her name on the mailing list, and gave us the subscription price recently. She realized from her experience as manager of the Gulf States Telephone Company that it takes money to make the wheels of a business go 'round, and we appreciate her spirit.

H. M. WILLIAMS, working for the big city of Hico, "The best town this side of Ireland" as he stated it, decided he would be a better citizen if he subscribed for the paper, and entered his subscription a few days back.

MRS. J. C. RIDDLE, 3616 Colonial Avenue, Dallas, will receive the News Review in the future, since Mrs. R. C. Epperson drove by the office recently and handed us the money to pay for same.

MRS. S. I. STEPHENS, Route 6, renewed recently, saying that she would be visiting first one place and another, visiting with her children, but she wanted to keep up with Hico and thought she could best do this by reading the home paper.

MISS ANNE AND NETTIE WIESER will get the News Review at 214 North 9th Street, Waco, during the winter months, having paid their subscription recently and ordered their paper changed to that address.

H. L. KIGHT, whose headquarters are at Dublin, desires to keep up with happenings around Hico, and subscribed for the News Review last week. Mr. Kight also has a gin here, which is managed by Mr. McElroy.

ROY DAVIS, Fairy, will get the News Review for the coming year, having subscribed through W. E. Goyno.

G. W. LICETT, Fairy, also wants to read the news of his section in the News Review, and sent his money in by Mr. Goyno.

W. T. PITTS is another good Fairy friend, having subscribed through our agent, "Pickle" Goyno likewise.

JACK BLAKLEY is the other member of the Fairy quartette who subscribed through Mr. Goyno and whose names were all brought in at the same time. Most of these subscribers have taken the paper at one time or another, and we are glad to have them back as readers.

H. M. WIESER sent a check from Hamilton to pay for his subscription for the next 12 months.

W. E. KOONSMAN, Route 5, Hico, was in the office last Wednesday morning to subscribe for the paper. He said that his daughter, Faye, wanted to read it, and it was for this reason mainly that he was subscribing. Mr. Koonsman lives in the community where we are all hoping a big gas or oil well will come in some day, and we hope to be able to record the fact soon that Mr. Koonsman has been fortunate enough to profit by such an experience.

A. A. McELROY, Route 5, was in Wednesday morning to order the paper sent to his address. Mr. McElroy also lives in the oil district, owning a place near the Koonsman well.

W. C. PADDOCK, Route 4, Hico, sent his subscription in last Friday morning by Leonard Howard. He wanted a copy of last week's paper sent also, and we were glad to oblige him in this way.

FELIX MORAN, Rt. 3, Meridian who formerly lived around Hico, will keep up with his old home now that his children have been in to subscribe for the paper.

A Texas Ranger in a super drama of Western feud. Paramount Comedy.

Monday-Tuesday-Wednesday

CLARA BOW

in "True to the Navy"

The "IT" girl more "Itful" than ever—don't miss it. Paramount Sound News.

The big pictures still come to your Theatre Are you sending them?

M. writes: "Please change the address of my paper from Knowles, New Mexico, to Humble City, New Mexico, as we have a new postoffice to open tomorrow."

R. B. EDWARDS, Route 3, Hico, handed the editor a dollar Saturday afternoon while we were in the Lynch Hardware Store, and told us he had been intending to subscribe for some time, but had neglected it. Earl Lynch was responsible for our good luck in a way, as he introduced the editor to Mr. Edwards, so we guess we owe him a commission.

ROY SEARS, who lives north of town toward Stephenville now, came in Saturday afternoon and ordered the paper sent to their home, saying his wife wanted to read it. They have been living on the place where Tyrus King recently moved.

Thanks! Good Friends

—For the many turkeys we received at our produce house on the Thanksgiving market. These birds have been shipped to the Eastern markets, and we are now making preparations to handle more turkeys—

Christmas

Indications are that prices will be fair on the Christmas market, and if you still have some turkeys left, we will be glad to handle them for you, paying you all that the market will justify.

AND REMEMBER—
That we want to buy your Poultry, Eggs and Cream every day in the year.
