

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roddy and daughters of Runge were here Tuesday night, guests in the Marvin Marshall home and with other friends. They also visited Mrs. Roddy's sister, Mrs. Benn Gleason and family at Fairy. They were enroute to Dallas and Honey Grove to visit her mother and his parents. Mr. Roddy was on his vacation from the postoffice department at Runge.

Dr. V. Hawes, who has been out of his dental office over the Corner Drug Store for the past three months due to ill health, has recuperated sufficiently to be back on the job again. He states that two weeks in the hospital the first of February, followed by a period of rest and building up, have put him back on the road to recovery. His many friends are glad to note his appearance in town and on the streets again.

MAIN STREET LOOKS AT BROADWAY

BY ERNEST CAMP JR

New York Taxicabs
New York's 30,000 or so taxicabs are to be seen scurrying around at all hours of the day and night and they are singularly cheap to ride in. That is, provided one does not engage them to go across town during the rush hours when the many delays will make riding in them one of the most expensive of all trips. The meter works just as fast when the cab is standing still as when it is under way, as in all towns.

The rate averages twenty cents a mile after the first quarter of a mile, which is fifteen cents, and visitors wonder how autos of the highest price makes can be used for such a cheap service. The cars are specially made to stand up to the wear and tear of the city streets and the frequent use of brakes. All New York taxicabs must be built to carry not fewer than five passengers, which is the reason why there are no Ford taxies used here. Efforts to introduce Fords have met with failure, as a car to conform to the law requires a longer wheel base than that of the low priced car. Many Tammany officials own stock in some of the big taxi operating companies, and have opposed any change in the law, the results being that the streets are cluttered up with long taxicabs when smaller cars would do quite as well.

The average taxicab driver earns about $35 a week and has to know a lot about the city to hold his job.

Rats
Even the average New Yorker does not know of the efforts put forth to keep rats out of the city, and incidentally the rest of the country. Incoming vessels from the foreign ports, where there are no departments of health, often swarm with rodents and they carry a menace to everybody in the country if allowed to come ashore.

To guard against their invasion, no vessel is permitted to tie up alongside of a dock, and all gangplanks are guarded to prevent rats from coming ashore. Even the heavy mooring hawsers, ropes many inches in diameter, are protected, a huge funnel with the big end opening towards the vessel being fixed in each rope to fence off the rats. But for that they would be able to saunter ashore with little difficulty.

The protection is only one of the many activities the government is engaged in at the big ports of entry.

Cats
Whether the rats used to be plentiful here that cats were needed as an offset, or whatever the reason, there are probably more cats to the square mile in New York than in any other city of the country. All hours of the day one can see them strolling about even in the busiest of streets and they are not bothered to any extent. In fact, New Yorkers are noticeable for their love for animals and small children, the latter particularly.

One of the most curious sights of the city to one who happens to stay out very late at night is the number of cats to be seen prowling about, ransacking garbage cans and often, indulging in voice culture, although most of the songs are given in backyards. Sleeping in a back room in a New York house, in a majority of cases, has to be done to the nocturnal wailing of tabbies. It is one of the least pleasant aspects of the city.

Some Tall Insurance
People along the "main stem" are pretty well case-hardened to almost all sorts of big deals, but one business transaction recently gave even city people a thrill. It was the placing of an insurance policy for $55,000,000 for three years on two associated risks. The annual premium was figured $91,300, and the risk was distributed among many companies, no single one caring to carry all those eggs in one basket.

The property insured was that of the new Hudson River bridge and the Holland tunnel, which runs under the same river and carries millions of passengers every year. As both structures are as near fireproof as human hands can make them the policy cannot be called fire insurance.

Use for Abandoned Farms
A new use for abandoned farms perhaps indicated by the way many New York people, able to leave the city over the week-end or perhaps squeeze a whole month or more of vacation, are buying up deserted country places.

Of course the men with money buy only the choicest farms, if they are located in the right country. The professional man, with only a comparatively small amount of money, is just as well satisfied to take over a farm that has been worked to death, buy a few goats, perhaps, and turn into the old farmhouse.

Some of these farms, with houses dating back a hundred or more years, can be acquired, it is said, for as low as $500, provided one is willing to go far away enough from the New York City Hall.

Even abandoned farms will grow fine shade trees and velvet lawns while, with the proper use of fertilizer, kitchen gardens can be installed on almost any piece of ground unless it is composed of solid granite.

ON TEXAS FARMS

By W. H. Darrow, Extension Service Editor

Wichita county has two canners and sealers which are loaned to farm families under the direction of the home demonstration agent for canning home raised meats and garden stuff. The equipment is always in use, and every borrower has declared intentions of buying his own equipment as soon as money can be saved.

H. E. Hampton, county agent of Caldwell county tells a good one. "Because the 21 loads of manure hauled to his garden from a neighbor's lot did so much to make his garden a great success in Dale county, H. P. Radkey had to look elsewhere for a supply this season. He has had to haul manure several miles because all the Dale community folks have decided to use their barnyard manure at home."

Wharton county 4-H club members raised hogs last year at a feed cost of 6 1-2 cents per pound and showed that good profits can be made out of 75-cent corn if combined with a protein supplement, even on an 8-cent hog market.

"If I can't get the point rows on my farm worked, I'll let them lay out and grow up to grass, and still make much more on what I have left than by farming the whole thing unterraced, besides saving my land," declared J. A. Whaley of Hall county at a terracing meeting at Memphis recently.

Ray Tyler of Alameda Harris county, says he has saved $4 per day for 40 days on a 15-acre demonstration pasture of oats, barley, sweet and bur clover. Milk production was increased 20 gallons per day.

Seven hundred pounds of dallis grass and Kobe lespedeza have been planted by 30 pasture demonstrators in Lavaca county.

"I sure do enjoy running this level," declares a Bastrop county club boy who is laying off terrace lines for the neighbors. "The married men have been telling me where to go and what to do for about 20 years. Now I have a chance to tell them where to go and they don't have any come-back."

Palo Pinto county goats have been torn from favorite brush heaps to become the docile occupants of tin cans on 4-H pantry shelves. Canned chevon has been found good by home demonstration club families.

The standard 4-H pantry canning budget for Gray county is 770 containers for families of five to seven members and 320 cans for families of two. Garden range from 22 to 31 varieties each.

Farm women in Dickens county constructed 98 hotbeds for early vegetables this spring.

Eight school grounds in Victoria county have had unsightly places screened by 1200 shrubs planted by 4-H club girls who have done the work as an extension of their home yard beautification demonstrations.

Home demonstration club women in Hardeman county made 139 hot beds for early vegetables this spring.

It cost less than $5 each to landscape 12 demonstration yards in Cooke county, using nursery and native plantings about 50-50.

Mrs. E. C. Allison and Mrs. Guy Hartzgraves of Fairy were here Monday, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dellis Seago.

This Week WASHINGTON

BY RADFORD MOBLEY

AUTOCASTER WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A recent poll among the delegates to the 1928 Democratic Convention showed Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, leading by an overwhelming majority as the logical standard bearer of that party in the 1932 presidential race. He led former Governor Alfred E. Smith, the last candidate, nearly four to one in the poll, 478 to 125 being the actual figures. The straw vote is considered as important in showing the way the affairs are also becoming active, a group of senators close to President Hoover having started a series of conferences for the purpose of picking a new chairman of that body. Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, the present incumbent, is known to desire to relinquish the office and only the difficulty of picking a man acceptable to all factions has caused him to continue in office. Two men are being named as his likely successor, Secretary of War Hurley and Postmaster General Brown, both of them men of the aggressive type. Secretary Hurley is said to be favored by the President, with whom he is one close confidential terms, while the Postmaster General has powerful support from leading Republican senators.

Indecision still exists as to the man who will be favored to run on the second place of the ticket. Vice President Curtis is anxious to learn if he will be backed for renomination in order that he can start making plans to make the race for senator in Kansas in the event another man is picked. A report that President Hoover desires to have Governor Theodore Roosevelt of Porto Rico named as his running mate has been put into circulation by several senators while others argue that Secretary Hurley would be a more logical candidate.

Both of the political parties are expected by close observers to sidestep the liquor issue in the 1932 platform and make their main appeal to voters on the question of governmental ownership of public utilities. Former campaigners, they say, show that socialistic questions are always to the fore in the years during and following agricultural and industrial depression. In the late '80s and early '90s, they point out, the Populist Party reached its greatest strength and elected many men to both houses of Congress, besides many governors of states. At that time national ownership of railroad and telegraph interests was made the leading issue. The coming campaign may see superpower and radio elevated to the main position on the platforms in an endeavor to supply a panacea for the current financial ills.

Reports from 43,000 farmers, as of March 1, indicate that twenty per cent less land will be planted to wheat this year in an effort to offset the present enormous surplus. Department of Agricultural officials declare they are pleased at the support they have been given by the farmers in limiting their planting and assert that the price of wheat and other grains will rise as a result of their action, even the report itself having a good effect.

Appointment of Sam H. Thompson, head of the American Farm Bureau Federation, to the Federal Farm Board, is expected to have an important influence in selling the Marketing Act to farmers as a substitute for "farm relief." The new member has the respect and confidence of all farmers, and his advice is likely to be followed by them. An idea of the importance of the appointment in Mr. Hoover's eyes is shown by the fact he held the battleship "Arizona" in Hampton Roads on his recent trip to the West Indies until assurance was received that Thompson's board of directors had agreed to his acceptance.

The country had 6,050,000 people on the unemployed list last month, according to figures issued by Secretary of Commerce Lamont. The statement was based upon reports from the nineteen largest cities and has been challenged because of the fact that people out of work flocked to those cities, making the result an over-statement. Since then considerable gains have been made, due to the approach of warmer weather.

Federal services placed 700,000 farm laborers in jobs in 1930 at an average cost of 13.5 cents per capita. The main activities of the Farm Labor Division of the government was centered in shifting labor according to the advancement of growing crops. In industrial ranks a growing movement toward establishment of the five-day week is seen, a decided impetus being given the plan by the depression.

Food prices continue to drop, a four per cent lowering in one month being shown by the Department of Labor in a recent report. The price of butter and eggs approached the pre-war level, the latter being due, perhaps, to the exceptionally warm weather of the late winter. Mutton and cotton alone of the larger crops showed a gain in price. Another government report shows that after all great wars of modern times a price recession in farm products of about one-half has always occurred. An upward trend cannot be expected it states, until 1933 or 1934.

Loans to veterans passed the $200,000,000 mark on the first of the month, according to a report from the Veterans' Bureau. This amount was paid out in the form of some 500,000 checks while applications now on hand numbered 1,571,291 on March 21. The average loan granted was $377. About 1,500 loans are being granted each day and it is expected the work will be fully caught up with by the middle of the summer and not require the six months originally thought necessary when the act was passed.

Thirteen families in Colston community, Young county, have canned 11 beeves since December. They found the value of calves on foot plus cost of canning to be $16.25 and the value in cans $67.30.

We now have DUBAY'S CERESAN for the treatment of Cotton Seed prior to planting. It reduces pink boll rot and leaf-spot, and is effective against certain boll-rots. It reduces damping-off or sore-shin. Permits early planting, better stands, making more vigorous plants. Ceresan frequently increases yields. This treatment is inexpensive.

We can also supply pamphlets on "How to Apply It."

Hints for the Home

by Nancy Hart

Spanish Eggs.
There is something very delicious about a Spanish omelet, yet it is not easy to make, because any sort of omelet making requires considerable culinary skill. But you can make scrambled eggs and serve them with Spanish sauce to make a dish that is delicious for breakfast, luncheon or dinner.

There is nothing difficult about making the scrambled eggs. Break the eggs into a bowl and stir sufficiently to break the yolks and mix a little with the whites. Melt a tablespoon of butter in the pan and immediately pour in the eggs. Keep the heat low so that the butter will not turn dark and stir the eggs so that they will be smooth and creamy and evenly cooked. Turn on a warmed platter when they are softly done throughout.

In the meantime make the sauce as follows: Melt two tablespoons of butter in another pan. Put into the pan a tablespoon or more of coarsely chopped onion and a like amount of chopped sweet green pepper. Let them cook in the butter without actually browning and then add a cup and a half of canned tomatoes or the equivalent of ripe, juicy raw tomatoes, and cook gently until the vegetables are soft. Pour over the scrambled eggs just before the Spanish sauce and then pile on top the rest of the scrambled eggs.

and add salt and pepper to taste. Have tomatoes on the top, add a few fine bread crumbs, and cook slowly until brown.

Macaroni and Cheese on Toast.
Have ready a cup of macaroni that has been boiled in salted water and cut up rather fine. This means a cup after cooking, not before, and the pieces should be half an inch or more in length. Melt a tablespoon of butter in a skillet, and add one tablespoon of cornstarch and stir until well mixed. Add a quarter teaspoon of salt, a dash of cayenne pepper, and a quarter of a teaspoon of mustard. Into this sauce stir first macaroni, then a half pound of mild American cheese, grated. Stir and simmer gently until the cheese has melted, then turn the mixture out on triangles of toasted bread. Serve at once.

With It.
Irish stew is best eaten with dumplings and boiled onions. Roast of beef can be accompanied by browned potatoes, string or buttered beans, or asparagus. Broiled beefsteak can be accompanied by mashed or scalloped potatoes, cauliflower or asparagus. French fried potatoes are also a proper accompaniment of broiled beefsteak. Boiled tongue is served with tomato sauce and spinach.

Stuffed Potatoes.
Six large potatoes, one-half teaspoon parsley, one-half teaspoon onion, pepper, salt. Wash the potatoes well. Bake them. When done, scrape out the inside. Mash light. Add one teaspoon butter and a little hot milk, the parsley and onion well chopped, pepper and salt. Mix well. Fill skins with mixture and brown in the oven.

J. T. Collier was in Stephenville Monday visiting a patient in the Stephenville hospital.
