Journalism Club Organized.

The Journalism Club was organized Monday afternoon and the following officers were elected:

Editor-in-Chief, Martha Porter; Assistant Editor-in-Chief, Alma Ragsdale; Sec.-Treas., Leighton Guyton; First Reporter, Jane Adams; Sports Editor, James Brown; Society Editor, Mary Helen Hall; School Yab, Yetta Blair; Editorialist, Louise Seago; Feature Editor, J. W. Dohoney.

The meetings will be held every other Monday night at the homes of the members. The first meeting will be held with Martha Porter. The club plans to have speakers from out of town and hopes to advance journalism.

Sport Spotlights.

As everyone knows Hico Antelopes suffered a defeat score of 38 and 0 with De Leon. Some say the Antelopes laid down on the job while others say the De Leon Bearcats have been fed on peanuts and therefore are huskies. Remembering what Coach Miles told them, the Antelopes fought hard through the last minute of the game, although the opposing score steadily increased.

Miles is making several changes on the Hico eleven. He is switching Red Russell back to his old position on left end. Randsals, who formerly played on end is going to try out for backfield. Brown, an ex-backfielder, was switched to right guard in the last game, but possibly will play left guard. Shelton may be changed from left to right tackle, and Little to Shelton's old position.

The backfield is undergoing several very important changes. Coach Miles thinks the four backs can do much better if he changes to a double winged formation. This will do away with the majority of the plays, but about 10 new plays will go into effect Friday.

Ray Morgan, an old player, who has been ineligible, will be in the game Friday.

Watch in the News Review and keep up with events you might not know.

Training Rules for Football.
For the benefit of those players who are not acquainted with High School training pointers, and especially for those freshmen and others who are not acquainted with general training practices, these suggestions are submitted:
Practicing training rules for football players are about the same as for any branch of athletics in which endurance, strength nerve, quickness, skill and head-up playing are required.

It is well that each player understand what is expected of him in the way of habits, diet, sleep, care of the body, and conduct on and off the field. No player should report for practice unless he is willing to obey these instructions and habits; sacrifices that are advisable if he is to be in the best possible physical condition.

The player who thinks that he can slyly break the training regulations, smoke an occasional cigarette, or keep late hours has the wrong idea, and he has no business trying for the team. He is almost sure to give himself away sooner or later and he is not only violating the trust placed in him, but he is doing himself, the school, the team and the coaches a great injustice.

Therefore, absolute obedience to this reasonable common-sense set of training regulations is necessary:

Every serious-minded high school athlete knows the value of eating well-cooked nourishing food at regular times:

- (1) Three regular, hearty meals a day. Don't overeat.
- (2) No eating between meals.
- (3) Plenty of sleep is also a distinct necessity. An hour's sleep before midnight is worth two hours after midnight. At least 8 to 10 hours sleep nightly.
- (4) Off the streets at 9:30 p. m., and in bed by at least 10:00 p. m.

Discourage the following habits or practices: (1) Use of tobacco, (2) Drinking, (3) Gambling, (4) Trips to soda fountains, (5) Use of pastries, (6) Misconduct on and off the field, (7) Roughhousing, (8) Classroom ineligibility, (9) Irregular attendance at practices, (10) Lateness to practice, (11) Long auto rides during school week, (12) Dates, except on week ends.

Senior News.

The members of the Senior class, after much discussion, finally decided on their class rings. They have been ordered from Herff-Jones Company, and they will be here in about five weeks. Of course, the class thinks they are the prettiest that have ever

Dear Sue:
Your friend, Red Russell, has a new mustache, which has completely ruined the girl friend's complexion.

I wonder what is taking all of Geary Cheek's time. It could be football and again it might be Louise Seago.

Another puzzle is why Hazel Shelton and Norman Johnson are so busy talking in the eighth period, and you never know what they are talking about.

Honey, it is real funny to see Alma Ragsdale and Jane Adams blush when the names of Chick Horton and F. S. Little are mentioned.

I guess my puzzle will be solved by the time you receive my next letter.

Yours,
LUE.

Mr. Miles (showing triplets to a visitor, 1935) "What do you think of them?"
Visitor (pointing to one in the middle) "I'd keep that one."

Overheard.

Mr. Masterson (pointing to a cigarette stub on auditorium floor) "Emory, is this yours?"

Emory Gamble: "Not at all, sir, you saw it first."

Coach Miles—"Who were the Four Horsemen?"
Red Russell—"Paul Revere, Jesse James, Buffao Bill, and Barney Google."

Sportsmanship.

Clean sportsmanship is one thing that the Hico Antelopes get credit for while on the football field. They love victory but can take defeat.

Junior News.

The Juniors are modeling their class after those of modern city schools. A scholarship committee has been appointed. The members are Alma Ragsdale, Martha Porter, Billy Hays, Robert Aiton, Nova Houser, Guy Eakins, and Charlene Malone.

A social committee, consisting of Nell Petty, Leighton Guyton, and Dorothy Meador was appointed. The program committee is Monnie Dee Knott, Billy Hays, Martha Porter and Alma Ragsdale.

Sophs.

We wonder why—??
Hazel Shelton likes Thursday nights?
Elizabeth Boustead likes Chickens?
Rhuey Bingham likes to live on the hill?
Norman Johnson has a new T model Ford?
Bill Rusk lives Hotels?
Carroll Smith goes to picture shows?

And we wonder why the Sophs get fussed at so terribly much? Because we are—oh, so good!

Spanish Club.

The Spanish I and II class met at Miss Norwood's home Monday night at 7:30 to organize the 1932 and 33 Spanish Club. The following officers were elected: President, Wilma Walton; Vice-President, Billy Hays; Sec.-Treas. Oda Davis; Mayo Hollis and Mildred Thomas were elected group captains.

The members sang Spanish songs and paid dues, which are necessary every three months. The Spanish Club will meet every other Monday night. Leighton Guyton will entertain the next time which will be October 24th. Pop sickles were served to the following: Mayo Hollis, Eugene Horton, Mildred Thomas, Oda Davis, Kelley Thomas, Wilma

FIRST LOVES

by FELIX RIESENBERG

Fifteenth Installment.

SYNOPSIS—Johnny Breen, 16 years old, who had spent all of his life aboard a tugboat, plying around New York City, was made motherless when an explosion sank the boat on which he, his mother and the man he called father, were living. He is the only survivor, struggling through the darkness to shore. At dawn, amid surroundings entirely unknown, his life in New York begins. Unable to read, knowing nothing of life, he is taken in by a Jewish family, living and doing a second-hand clothing business on the Bowery. From the hour he set foot in the city he had to fight his way through against bullies and toughs and soon became so proficient that he attracted the attention of a would-be manager of fighters who enters him in many boxing tournaments. It was here that Pug came into young Breen's life, an old fighter who was square and honest. He took Breen under his wing, set him to night school and eventually took him to a health farm he had acquired. The scene shifts and the family of Van Horns of Fifth Avenue is introduced. Gilbert Vas Horn, last of the old family, is a man about town, who meets Malone and Breen at one of the boxing shows. Van Horn has a hidden chapter in his life which had to do with his mother's maid years ago, who left the family when about to become a mother. It was reported that she married an old captain of a river craft. Van Horn has a ward, Josephine, about Breen's age. Van Horn, now interested in John, prevails upon him to let him finance a course in Civil Engineering at Columbia University. John and Josephine meet, become attached to each other, love grows and they become engaged shortly after Breen graduates from college. Josephine has another suitor, a man of the world named Rantoul. Josephine became restless as John sails for Paris to select her trousseau. At the last moment Rantoul sails on the same boat. At sea the great ocean liner crashes into an iceberg and sinks—all passengers in taking to the life-rafts. Van Horn perishes but Rantoul saves himself—with Josephine. Breen learns that Gilbert Van Horn was his father.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I kept after Gilbert for years to tell you he was your father. He kept putting it off, kept stalling, torturing himself. At heart, John, he was sound, but impractical. I don't seem to startle you with the news."

"Judge, I've been aware of it for some time," John turned. He was crying. He dashed away the tears. "I enjoyed going around with my dad. But—well, I said something once I would have given my right hand to recall. I knew the thing was working out. Now it's too late."

"Of course you have rights, in the estate."

"I have not thought of rights, Judge."

"But you haven't a leg to stand on, John. Gilbert never changed his will. I'm one of the trustees. There's not a scrap, not an atom of legal evidence to support you. The best evidence you have, John, is your appearance. My good boy, you are the image of Gilbert Van Horn as a young man. The portrait in the library, the one on the east wall, is you. But you have nothing tangible to support your claim."

"Claim?" John considered a while. "That's a new one on me. I'm not claiming anything. Great God, sir, I'm down far enough as it is. The fact that he will never be here again is all the trouble I can stand. What a hero—" John stood and looked through the window; the part was blurred before his eyes.

"The estate left to Josephine."

"Well, I'll marry it then," John looked at Judge Kelly, a smile flickering on his face.

"She's difficult, John. I'd have been better pleased if the thing had been divided."

"Forget that, Judge. I appreciate your feeling. Who else knows about this—this—relationship?"

"Not a soul, so far as I know. Malone has a theory—only Harbord might know. Gilbert confided in me, as his father did. God, what a city! The old name, the old tradition, gone."

"Come, Judge, you take things too seriously. I'll change my name, some day, perhaps."

"Then you won't do anything?"

"What can I do?"

"Marry Josephine, John, and we'll tell her afterward."

As Judge Marvin Kelly rode down town he shook his head, his head frosted with wisdom and filled with doubt. What a mixture life is!

John slept fitfully that night. The next day he would insist on seeing Josephine, he was eager to talk to her. Three days had passed since her return. The papers were still full of the disaster. Perhaps she was foolish enough to want to look her best when meeting him. Women are queer. He slept dreaming of his father, a poignant clutching at his heart. He dreamed of the sinking ship, of Van Horn, a hero, a hero, and of Josephine. They would often talk about his dad in after years.

John stepped out of his shower. Breakfast had been sent up. Then the mail came. He would be at the shaft at nine, the privilege of easier times and of his step-father.

"A letter, Mr. Breen. Special registered." He signed the receipt. It was a heavy envelope. John laughed, he was feeling better, something from Josephine. He was awkward, he tore the thing open, a heavy nub fell out, wrapped in tissue paper. He opened the little packet—it was the engagement ring—Josephine's ring!

John gasped. In his hand was a sheet of her blue note paper.

Dear John,

I am marrying Gerrit Rantoul. I owe my life to him. Don't blame me, John. It is best for us both now that poor dear, brave Gilbert is gone. Forgive me. Josephine

Years of slavish toil followed for John. He sunk himself in his work. Occasionally he heard of Josephine and Rantoul, married and in the vortex of young and gay America just before the war. Finally the acqueduct was finished. Talking it over with Harbord and Pug Malone one night, Judge Kelly went to a littered deck. He searched for a moment, then found a card. "My friend, Almon Strauss, has started something interesting. The Bureau of City Plan. An engineer named Colfax is in charge. I think there's a place for John if I say the word. A place for an enthusiast endowed with a modicum of brains. My sad past, gentlemen, leads me to the belief that the wiser a man is the less enthusiastic he gets. Solomon was an utter pessimist."

"Enthusiasm starts wars, and wisdom ends them." Harbord had lit his pipe. Malone, also smoking, thought deeply. "John Breen was thrown into this city with nothing but enthusiasm; he may find wisdom and perhaps happiness, within its walls."

For a year he had been at work with Colfax, an assistant engineer of the Bureau of City Plan. The city unfolded him, enthralled him. He seemed to be playing with a set of magic blocks, scheming, planning, and soon they would build.

One day, John had checked over reports of a field survey accounting for many acres of land safely under water and purchased by a commission spending other people's money. Colfax smoked interminably, cigar after cigar, his teeth champing at the rolls of weed, tossing the butts when burned to the middle.

"Do you sense this thing?" he asked, waving his hand in a general sweep. "I mean the thing that has us all—this lighting of a brand?" John hesitated in his reply. Colfax seemed unnerved, the night was insufferably hot, and he, too, came to the office with the din of war added to another clamor coming to a surge within him. Colfax thin but of fiery energy, seemed to radiate a restless gnawing sorrow.

"What I have said about the city bears out the rottenness abroad. Everything is wrong. It will drag us back in the wash of war. The reformers will fail, the people will fail, and the grab and gouge and bell of blood and hate will swing around the world, killing everything we do. This stuff," and Colfax brought his fist down with a bang on bundles of reports, "this might as well be burned, for the good it will do while I am here, or you too."

"I have worked years, given all that is in me, to set a standard. I seek a city to set up as an ideal habitation of men. You know my theories about the heating and feeding and sanitation of groups; you know the Colfax formula for the regeneration of waste materials and the return of nitrogen to the soil in an endless cycle. We must strive, Mr. Breen, to the utmost when the terrible waste will be overcome and men may live for something other than their appetites and greed.

When plenty will be common and the poor will only be poor in spirit, or in mind. You know this, you have seen the plans and the fitting of them to meet the transition from industrial truce to industrial peace and freedom.

Colfax suddenly stood upright and walked to the window looking out over dark roof tops. A strange feeling of prediction filled the small, white painted office. John had stepped to the window beside his chief and also looked out, as if seeking an answer.

"I have become convinced that my work is done," Colfax continued with out looking at John. "It is no use continuing, at least for me. I have written Almon Strauss a great man, Mr. Breen, not afraid to remain in Paris. For the next month I will set things to rights, turn over the records, and you can go on, or not, as you see fit."

"But—" John stammered. It seemed so unnatural.

"It is better so—"

It was dark when the two men left the Bureau. Colfax, who roomed alone, north of Fourteenth St.

He opened the little packet — it was the engagement ring — Josephine's ring.
