FALSE IDEAS ABOUT ADVERTISING

It is about time that the theorists who are trying to reform everything were stopped from circulating false and erroneous ideas and labelling them as truth. We have in mind especially the pernicious notion which has been promulgated in Washington and elsewhere that advertised goods cost the consumer more than non-advertised goods, and therefore makers of non-advertised goods should be permitted to cut rates.

We have no fear that this sort of foolishness will have any permanent effect upon advertising. Every merchant and manufacturer knows better. Everyone who has had any experience in advertising knows that the better advertised a product is, the cheaper it can be sold. That ought to be clear to any one. Suppose, for example, Henry Ford had never advertised his cars. How much do you imagine you would have to pay for a Ford car? We can't tell exactly, but it would be many times more than the price for which you can now buy a Cadillac, a Lincoln or a Packard.

Advertising brought millions of buyers for Ford cars, and every additional car sold cut down the relative cost of all the other cars, and permitted a progressive reduction in price to the buyer.

Not long ago some bureaucrats in Washington undertook to set up a rule that advertised brands of gasoline must charge a cent a gallon more at the filling station than unadvertised kinds. In other words, the public must be penalized for desiring gasoline that it knows is good, instead of unbranded gasoline of the quality of which it has no assurance. And more recently the New York state milk authority has ordered distributors of bottled milk who advertise to charge a cent more than those who do not advertise are permitted to sell for.

That sort of thing is not progress. It is distinctly reactionary. It harks back to the days when the grocery store kept its crackers in an open box and dipped sugar with a scoop out of a barrel, after shooting the flies off. Anyone with a good memory will remember that the price of crackers and sugar and other food supplies did not go up, but instead went down, when advertising of package brands enabled producers to distribute on such an enormous scale that the "overhead" cost per package was reduced to almost nothing.

It is time that people understood more generally than they seem to do that advertising, intelligently and persistently done, does not raise prices but is the principal reason why Americans have so long been able to buy things far more cheaply than similar things can be bought in other countries.

ARE YOU A SAFE DRIVER? Summer isn't far away when the streets and highways of the nation will be crowded with traffic. Fine dry weather will bring out thousands of motorists—and roads will resound again to the roar of motors.

Now is the time to ask yourself if you are a safe driver—and don't answer too hurriedly. You can give yourself a little quiz that will help. Are you thoroughly conversant with the driving laws of your state? Do you adapt the speed at which you drive, to local conditions—in other words, are you aware that 20 miles an hour is dangerously fast at times, and slow at others? Do you stick to the right side of the road, and make certain that you can stop, under any circumstances, in the assured clear distance ahead? Are you careful not to pass on hills and curves?

Other questions of that kind will suggest themselves to you. But even if such a test honestly answered, puts you in the safe driving status, you aren't through. How about your car? When were the tires, the brakes, the steering, the lights, last inspected by a good mechanic? A substantial percentage of motorists put off repairs till tomorrow—and sometimes that tomorrow never comes.

Last year was one of the worst in the history of the automobile so far as needless sacrifice of life and property was concerned. Every motorist should give himself a safe driving test now—and if he is uncertain as to how to do it, traffic departments and safety organizations exist to help him. Bring accidents down in 1934!

Badly needed feed crops are being planted on rented cotton acres in Morris county, with half the plantings devoted to peas or other legumes which will enrich the soil and at the same time give some feed.

END THIS ECONOMIC WAR

We are glad to hear reports that the various nations of the world are getting tired of economic warfare with each other, and that some of them are prepared to declare a truce and enter into a peace parley. We are glad of it, because we believe the only permanent recovery must come about through the recovery of international trade, which is affecting the rest of the world even more than it affects us.

Just to illustrate, we find that England has put her quota restrictions on imports of American bacon and lard, Argentine beef and Danish and Dutch pork, and has shut out most American wheat by agreement with the British Dominions. Germany has put a ban on imports of American cotton, a high tariff on American lard and quota restrictions on other American farm products. France limits imports of American fruit and American machinery. Japan has decided to encourage the importation of cotton from India, discourage it from the United States. Brazil has burned 27 million bags of coffee to make this country, its chief consumer, pay a higher price for what is left. All the rubber-producing areas of the world have lately got together to try to work out a price agreement that will make automobile tires cost more.

In the name of nationalism we find Holland controlling hog production, Argentine compensating wheat growers with bonuses, tea-producing countries limiting the harvest of that product, Great Britain threatening Japan with exclusion of all Japanese goods, and so on through a long list.

The United States can do a great deal to break down this nationalistic spirit in international trade. With the powers now in the President's hands to control the international value of the dollar, and the further power which he has asked for to negotiate tariff reductions, we can say to these other nations that if they want to sell us their goods they must let down the bars against ours.

If they persist in building walls around themselves, then we shall have to proceed with the policy of nationalism of which the AAA is the principal exponent. But nothing more surely leads to the sort of friction that leads to war than just the sort of economic warfare that has been going on for several years, and so we are glad, as we have said, that there are some signs that some of the nations concerned are getting tired of it.

WANTED: MILLIONS OF HOMES

The gravity of the housing problem in America can be simply illustrated by a comparison of the number of families provided with new residential units in recent years.

In 1922, some 370,000 families secured new homes. In 1925, when the all-time high was reached, close to 500,000 home structures were built. The ten-year average from 1921-30 was 361,000 units each year. In 1933, new home construction dropped to less than 30,000.

Making the problem still more severe is the fact that during depression and obsolescence of existing homes were more than normally great. Thousands of houses literally went to pieces, due to lack of upkeep.

The result is that a heavy percentage of our people live in sub-standard dwellings. Doubling up, with several families occupying one home, is commonplace. It was recently estimated that 4,000,000 families lived in this manner. And population shifts have gone on, depression or no depression, creating tremendous shortages in various localities.

Better times are the herald of stimulated construction. A jump in building is coming as certainly as the tides, and it is going to advance building costs—both for materials and for skilled labor. The wise property owner, with money to spend, is beginning to realize that this is really the time to build and repair, while bargain prices still exist.

To bleach wooden kitchen drain boards that have become stained and dirty looking apply a hot saturated solution of oxalic acid and let it stand overnight. Wash well and when boards are thoroughly dry, soak them with a mixture of three parts linseed oil and one part turpentine. When the wood has absorbed all it will take, wipe off the surplus and polish.

To Save Wild Life

Boys and girls of our farms and villages would miss a lot if it were not for the wild bird and animal life and natural flowers, shrubs and trees. These things are among the most attractive features of country life. They bring a wealth of beauty and pleasure into the life of every person, young and old, who has an appreciation of them.

Scarcely a day passes throughout the year in the country which is not enriched in some way by some new turn in the wild things which live and grow in the fields and about the farmstead. What a thrill to hear the first note of the robin or catch the drumming of the prairie chicken, in some distant field. To see the V-shaped flight of wild geese over the south, or to hear the flute-like cry of the high flying crane, or the mellow whining of the jack snipe. What a never ending object of interest is a colony of muskrat or beaver. These are only a few of what might be named.

Among the flowers, shrubs and trees are objects of rarest beauty and interest to be found in such life. The delicacy of the wild rose in form and fragrance is unrivaled by any domestic variety, many nature lovers hold. The manner of growth and survival of hundreds of flowers and plants is of fascinating interest to those who understand it. The person who knows trees is never lonesome when among them.

For all these reasons the conservation and appreciation of wild life is recognized as an important subject for study in 4-H clubs. They are ideal to supplement the regular economical projects, and are constantly receiving more consideration. Minnesota has just announced that wild life studies will be a regular project this year in 4-H clubs which wish to adopt such projects. Suggested projects this far are winter feeding of birds, development and protection of breeding places for birds and desirable animals, fire prevention and helping to create respect for game laws.

To soften hard water in small lots add a little borax, or trisodium phosphate, which will cut the hardening salts.

MENUS AND RECIPES

Denton, May 8.—Texas produces large quantities of sugar and cane syrups. Pecans and peanuts are usually plentiful. Popcorn may always be obtained. Honey is produced in large amounts. All of these together with oranges, lemons, and figs, by no means complete the list of materials available and suitable for making wholesome and appealing confections in the home. Sweets are valuable in the dietary as a source of energy, but they should be used with intelligence and moderation. Good habits in the eating of confections should be formed early. Fruit confections are less concentrated than candies; thus, they supply bulk and also appreciable amount of valuable minerals.

HONEY PECAN FUDGE: Melt one square of unsweetened chocolate over hot water in the pan in which candy is to be cooked. Add 1-4 c strained honey. Stir gently to prevent burning. Cook to soft ball stage. Remove from fire. Add 2 T butter, but do not stir. Let cool to lukewarm. Add 1-2 t vanilla and beat until thick and creamy. Add one c pecan meats, coarsely chopped. Put in slightly greased pan, cut in squares or oblongs when thoroughly cooled.

PEANUT BRITTLE FUDGE: Add 2 squares of unsweetened chocolate (cut into rather small pieces) to 2-3c milk and place over a low flame. Stir constantly. Cook until mixture is smooth and well blended. Add 2 c sugar, 2 T white karo syrup, pinch salt. Stir until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils. Continue cooking to soft ball stage. While cooking, stir to prevent burning. Remove from fire. Add T butter, do not stir. Let cool to lukewarm. Add 2-2 t vanilla and beat until mixture begins to thicken and loses its gloss. Work in 2 T of peanut butter. Put in slightly greased pan. Cool and cut into squares.

DIVINITY: Mix together 2 c sugar, 1-2 c corn syrup, 1-2c water, pinch salt. Stir over slow fire until sugar has dissolved and mixture boils. Continue cooking without stirring until syrup reaches firm ball. Cool slightly. Slowly pour over 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten. Beat until firm. Add 1-2 t vanilla and 1-2c candied orange peel or lemon peel. Instead of candied peel, one c watermelon rind preserve may be used; the preserve should be strained out of juice and let dry in air before being chopped for using in divinity.

PIG-PECAN LOAF: Mix together 2 c sugar, one c brown sugar, 1-8 salt, one T karo syrup, 1-2 c milk. Stir over heat until sugars are dissolved; stir often enough to prevent burning. Cook to firm ball. Add one lb. dried figs, cut into fourths. Cook again, stir constantly. Remove from fire, add

MY HOME AND YOURS

By BERTHA EDSON LAY

Cellars, basements and dark places about the home are breeding places for "thousand-legged" worms. Clear all places of damp rubbish and dust frequently with pyrethrum powder.

Furniture that has been polished often and has become "smoky" should be wiped thoroughly with turpentine cloth which will take off the accumulation of oil from the old polish. Then repolish with any good furniture polish.

When cleaning any woodwork with water for refinishing be sure that the wood has had sufficient time to dry. Shellac or varnish on damp wood will turn white in spots after drying.

One of the best fabric bleaches is a chlorine bleach which can be had at almost any grocery store. Its technical name is Javelle water, but more often is sold under some trade name.

An alcohol stain on finished furniture can be removed by cleaning the stain with turpentine, then to the bare wood, then with finger-tip or small cotton wool apply stain in very thin coats until the correct tone has been attained. Finish with white shellac.

Scratched varnish on furniture should be wiped down well with turpentine cloth and then repolished. If scratches go through varnish, take off varnish to the wood and refinish entire piece.

Moist flakes or powdered cloths scattered at spots where ants frequent will drive them away, because they do not like the odor of either. There is also a thalate ant trap, now on general sale, which should be used for bad infestations.

2 T butter, but do not stir. Let cool to lukewarm. Add 1-2 t vanilla, beat until thick. Work in one c pecan meats, coarsely chopped. Pour on cloth wrung dry from hot water and shape into loaf. Cut into slices.

HONEY POPCORN BALLS: Cook together 3-4 c strained honey, 1-4 c light corn syrup until very hard ball is formed. Add one T butter. Pour syrup slowly over 3 quarts of popcorn slightly salted. Mix well. Form into balls with the hands. This recipe makes about 15 medium sized balls.

Sunday School Lesson

By Rev. Charles E. Dunn

The Future of the Kingdom. Lesson for May 20th. Matt. 25: 1-13.

Golden Text: Revelation 11:15. What is to be said concerning the meaning of this familiar parable of the wise and foolish bridesmaids? To begin, it is clear that the story emphasizes the necessity of watchfulness. "Watch therefore." Now watchfulness is another name for preparation. The watchful man is he who has paid the price of long, arduous training. Behind Enderwick's playing, so astonishing in its ease of execution, lie years of painstaking toil. When asked how long it had taken him to prepare a certain sermon, Beecher replied, "Forty years!" And the Duke of Wellington was so firmly moulded by years of discipline that it was said of him, "He does his duty as naturally as a horse eats oats."

been well trained. They showed foresight. The foolish bridesmaids were thoughtless. They lacked ordinary common sense. They probably knew little of the meaning of discipline.

Now there are two memorable lessons here. First of all, note the presence of a reserve supply. All of the ten members of this bridal party had lamps. But the five who were wise carried in addition, flasks containing oil. The foolish bridesmaids, on the other hand, carried no extra oil. They had some oil, but not enough. And so when the bridegroom was ready to receive them, their lamps flickered, they could not enter the bridal chamber on time, "and the door was shut."

Secondly, note that the extra oil carried by the wise virgins was available for immediate use. It was right at hand so that when the summons to the wedding was suddenly sounded they were able to take their places for the ceremony with no delay.

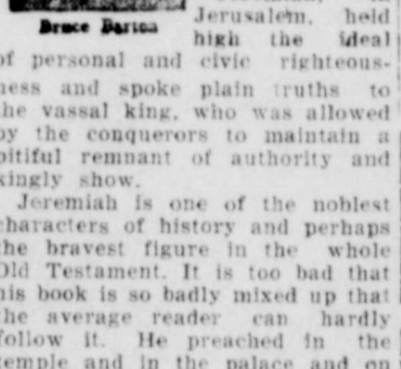

How important it is to carry a reserve of well-disciplined character always on tap! Then when the crises of life suddenly overtake us without warning, as they so often do, we are ready.

THE BOOK

the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible" and which contains Four Great Treasures

By BRUCE BARTON

Jeremiah Buys Land. Between the days of Isaiah himself and the times of the Unknown whose chapters conclude the book came the dark period of the exile, when Jerusalem was destroyed and its best families carried away captive to Babylon. To this dark period Ezekiel and Jeremiah belong.

Bruce Barton

Ezekiel living in Babylon, was sought by his exhortations to keep up the spirit of his fellow-country men and fix their hopes upon a restoration of the Holy City and the re-establishment of their national life.

Jeremiah, in Jerusalem, held high the ideal of personal and civic righteousness and spoke plain truths to the vassal king, who was allowed by the conquerors to maintain a pitiful remnant of authority and kingly show.

Jeremiah is one of the noblest characters of history and perhaps the bravest figure in the whole Old Testament. It is too bad that his book is so badly mixed up that the average reader can hardly follow it. He preached in the temple and in the palace and on the street corners, and even on the city dump; and neither promises nor threats could swerve him. Jehoiakim, the weak and futile king, let the temple go to ruin but fixed up his own palace with a rich lining of cedar and invited Jeremiah to inspect it. "Very nice indeed," sneered Jeremiah. "As a king you're a fine judge of cedar. Your father did justice to the poor and needy, and it was well with him."

But those eyes and thine heart are not hot but for covetousness, and far to shed innocent blood, and for oppression and for violence to do it.

For such plain speaking and for his warnings that the Assyrians were sure to visit punishment upon the city, Jeremiah was cast into prison. Then occurred one of the most interesting business transactions of the Old Testament. The Assyrians, as Jeremiah had prophesied, did come, and they made their camp in Anathoth, where he had his own little farm. Jeremiah had long wanted to buy an adjoining piece of land owned by a relative, Hanameel. That wily old man, seeing an army of Assyrians camped on the land, said to himself: "Jeremiah is down there in prison and probably hasn't heard that the Assyrians have arrived. This is a good time for me to unload on him." So he hurried to the prison, offered the land, and Jeremiah bought it. But Jeremiah was not fooled. He knew he was buying ten thousand Assyrians and he took care to have the purchase properly recorded in the presence of witnesses, and the documents safely put away.

For thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Houses and fields and vineyards shall be possessed again in this land.

The Family Doctor

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

VICTIMS. As time goes on, I become more impressed with the devastating effects on the health of the people by this so-called "depression." To be candid, I have never witnessed anything like it. Literally thousands of mature men and women are breaking down in their nervous systems—the break-down striking at the very foundation of the physical structure, sweeping the victims from the field of combat—the zone of making a living. Never, in my existence have I seen anything more devastating. I have urged my patients, "don't worry; there is nothing worth so much to the individual as his LIFE. And, life can be made little else than constant torture—worry! Yes, dear reader, we family doctors giving our life-energies to our patients—we advise people not to worry—only to catch ourselves doing the very same thing. Symptoms of impending break: General weakness in hands and legs. There may be numbness and tingling, with very little actual pain. Just a feebleness—feeling of incapacity, "unequal to the day's task." When these symptoms are felt, REST at whatever cost.

All sorts of surface sensations may be noticed; coldness of the hands and feet is common. I have observed "nervous chills" the sort not followed by noticeable fever. The patient himself remarks that "he can't stand anything any more." Some imagine that they have influenza, but the absence of cough and marked nasal symptoms prove no infection. There may be loss of appetite, languor, and above all, marked discouragement with daily affairs, the feeling that it isn't any use to try to venture further.

Mental break-down—nothing strikes me with more feeling of dread, Dethronement of reason! To all my readers, REST—before too late.

The Dollar Bride

by Mary Inlay Taylor

Nineteenth Installment THE STORY SO FAR

Nancy Gordon, loving Page Roemer, sells herself in marriage to Dr. Richard Morgan for fifteen thousand dollars, the amount her brother Roddy stole to give to a woman, Helena Haddon, sophisticated married woman, in love with Richard, does her best to make trouble for Nancy, although she knows nothing of the secret marriage. Mr. Gordon sells his home to repay Richard. Nancy permits Page to continue making love to her, but when she finds that he wants her to run away with him she recoils from him in horror. Taking shelter in the hotel of a poor woman whose baby is dying, Nancy realizes that Richard is the best man after all, and sends for him. Although she saves the baby's life, he repudiates the help of his wife, Helena, finding that they have spent the night together in the miserable hotel, spreads the scandal about town. Angie Fuller, Roddy's childhood sweetheart, and niece of Major Lomax, tries to stop the scandal. Just then Roddy returns home—drunk. His mother believes him crazy and sends for Dr. Morgan, who takes Roddy home with him. Nancy goes to Richard's to see her brother. "Rod," she says "have you been doing it again—stealing?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Her lips were dry. "Stealing?" "No!" he snapped, then his hands clenched on the edge of the bed and he choked back a sob. "She took that money—the money I stole to save her old father from jail—and bought a trousseau—and got married—and went to Europe!" He staggered to his feet, shaking his fist at space. "Went to Europe!" he shouted, "her old father was all a blooming lie—she went to Europe with the man she'd been engaged to for two years!"

Nancy, sitting alone on the edge of the bed now, gasped with relief. "I'm so glad," she cried, "so glad!"

Roddy stopped in his furious outburst to glare at her. "Money! She wanted money!" he shouted, "a woman who uses a man's love for her—to get money—he stopped, choking, "there's nothing bad enough for a woman like that!" he cried, "nothing!"

"I've got nothing to live for," Roddy went on, "the world's rotten—Im twenty-three and I've drained life to the dregs! I've thrown up my job, sis, I couldn't face it any longer—I'd lied enough for her. I resigned."

"Rod, you didn't—you didn't owe anything, did you?"

"No! Not a damn cent—what do I want with money? The whole world's like a rotten apple! I went on a spree, Nance, the biggest spree I ever had in my life. I drank up all I had. I— he sank down in a chair opposite and rested his head on his clenched fists—"I'm a darned loafer. I ought to be shot. I've disgraced you all, I've stolen. I'm out of work. Why don't you shoot me, Nance?"

His sister did not answer him; she was choked with her own misery. It had been no use, no use in the world; she had not saved Roddy, she had only made him worse!

"Oh, Roddy!" she gasped, "oh, Roddy, I wish I were dead!"

Roddy stared at her, his jaw dropping; suddenly the selfishness of his own anguish was penetrated Nancy's forlorn cry went to his heart.

"Nancy, I'm a rotter!" he groaned, "I'm no good on earth!"

"Neither am I!" Nancy's voice was smothered, "I'm—I'm just as bad! It's my fault—I—I've made everything worse—I—I've done all I can for nothing!" she cried.

"It hasn't—listen!" he came over and seized her by the shoulder, almost shaking her, "it hasn't gone for nothing—if you mean that confounded money? I paid it all in—they never said a word about it; I've thought, sometimes, that old Beaver knew—but he's only watched me, that's all. And now—well, they don't need to worry about me any more—I quit!"

"Roddy, we thought you'd try to make good!"

He crimsoned with shame. It seemed to take the high tragedy out of it.

Nancy, watching him, saw how he felt. She got up slowly from her seat on his bed and went to him. "Come home soon, Roddy," she whispered, "please come home—we all love you—all of us! Don't hurt us any more!"

Nancy shut the door softly and went downstairs.

Richard was standing with his back to his own door when she came down.

"Thank you for Roddy," she said with stiff lips, "please send him home."

"Nancy," said Richard hoarsely, "you're unhappy. I see it. I won't hold you against your will. You can get a divorce. I—you want it, don't you?"

She turned her face away, refusing to look at him.

"The sooner the better!" she cried, and ran past him out of the house.

The task of selling Mr. Gordon about Roddy fell to Nancy; her mother would not face it.

Mr. Gordon's face worked.

"Give him another chance, Papa! Poor Rod."

Mr. Gordon passed his other hand over his face, then he let it fall heavily on his daughter's shoulder.

"My poor girl! You ruined your life for that—that young skam-wag!"

She did not trust herself to look up.

"Nancy Virginia," her father said at last, slowly, "I won't have this secret kept any longer—you've got to get a divorce. I'll make that fellow give it to you!"

Nancy rose slowly to her feet. "He says I can have it," she told him, moving away from him. "He doesn't want me, that's all." She added with a little gasp.

She ran upstairs and shut herself in her own room. Dropping on the edge of the bed, she stared out of the window with unseeing eyes. In her pocket was a letter her soft fingers touched his brown hair with shy fondness. "Oh, Rod, there was a woman, you said—" "I hate her!" he vowed, "I was a fool, Angie. She fooled me. She begged for help for her old father—oh, a touching story—and she said she'd return it. I—I thought I could myself. Then I found out she was married," he blazed.

Angie dried her tears angrily. "She ought to have gone to jail!" "That's what Nance thinks," he admitted a little sheepishly, then, abruptly, he kissed Angie's hand.

"Roddy, you're going to work here? You'll—she hesitated—"you'll take Uncle Robert's offer?" He rose slowly and began to walk up and down with the same picturesque melancholy. "I think I'll ask Richard, you see Richard took me in—drunk—and took care of me," Roddy's voice choked, "pretty white, wasn't it? I'm grateful to Richard."

"Grateful!" Angie sprang up, her face crimson, "you've no reason to be grateful to Richard Morgan!" she cried impetuously, "no reason in the world!"

Roddy caught the change in her tone, and he saw the anger in her face. He stood still, with a look of surprise.

"What do you mean, Angie?" "Don't be grateful to that man!" she answered furiously, "that's all—I can't tell you why, but—let him alone, Rod!"

"Richard Morgan? Why? I don't understand—tell me, Angie."

She drew back at that, she saw the look on his face and suddenly remembered. If she told Nancy's brother the story that was going the rounds, the story that linked Nancy's name with Morgan's, Roddy would go to Richard and demand satisfaction. He would have to go—and it would mean death! The girl began to tremble; she had been a fool, what could she say?

ought to pay for what we do-ourselves."

He caught her hand and held it feverishly; he had forgotten his hatred of the sex.

"You don't despise me, do you?" he asked huskily.

She shook her head. Then, suddenly, without warning, she burst into tears. Her tears melted Roddy; he felt a rush of self pity as great as her pity for him.

"Oh, Roddy!" sighed the girl meltingly, and before she knew it she was married, he blazed.

"New York's done with you," corrected the Major grimly.

There's Haddon! Did you set out the chess table, Angie? All right, then, you take this young firebrand in hand and talk sense to him." He started down the hall to meet Haddon, but threw a word back over his shoulder, "Better take it, Rod, unless—you want to jockey for Polestar."

Roddy said nothing.

"Won't you sit down, Rod?"

He swung around and found her sitting in her corner, just as she used to sit.

"Angie, I'm not fit to lace your boots!" he cried impetuously.

She was startled, "I'm so sorry uncle was rude—" she faltered, "please don't mind it, Roddy. He—he means to be kind."

"No one could be dreadful enough to me," said Roddy fling himself on a low stool at her feet.

She was shocked but her heart began to beat in her throat. He was always impetuous. He had come back to tell her—he was sorry then!

"I've done awful things," he went on, in a passion of self-abnegation, "do you remember—when I was here last? I didn't come to see you."

"Yes, I know, I saw you go by—I thought you'd forgotten."

"I had," said Roddy, "I was ashamed to remember. I'm a rotter, Angie. I'd been stealing to help a bad woman out of trouble."

The girl shrank back into her corner. It was a long while before she could speak. "I—can't believe it, Roddy, you're—why, you're a Gordon!"

He turned crimson. She had touched the tenderest spot about him.

"I stole fifteen thousand dollars from the trust company, Angie. I ought to be in jail," he went on, pouring it all out in a molten stream of passionate regret and repentance. "My sister helped me. Nancy borrowed the money and kept me out of jail! A girl, Angie! I'm a lout—I let her do it!"

Angie's quick gasp escaped him. He was too much wrapped up in himself to perceive that he had given a key to a mystery. Richard had money—could Nancy have gone to him?

"I—I'm so glad you didn't go to jail!" she gasped, and then: "Rod you ought to have gone. We could myself. Then I found out she was married," he blazed.

Angie dried her tears angrily. "She ought to have gone to jail!" "That's what Nance thinks," he admitted a little sheepishly, then, abruptly, he kissed Angie's hand.

PROVED—
by millions of miles of testing by engineers

PROVED—
in the hands of hundreds of thousands of owners

Now we ask you to Drive it only 5 miles and you'll never be satisfied with any other low-priced car

WHY do you suppose Chevrolet keeps repeating, in all of its advertising, "Drive it only 5 miles"? Very frankly, here's the reason: Chevrolet engineers have tried out all the various makes of cars in today's low-price field. They have compared performance—on rough roads, in traffic, over hills, through sand and mud and water! And they have proved, to their complete satisfaction, the same things that hundreds of thousands of Chevrolet owners are proving in their daily driving. The Chevrolet ride simply can't be matched by any other in the low-price field. That's why we urge you to "Drive it only 5 miles"—and that's why we promise, "you'll never be satisfied with any other low-priced car."

Why the Sudden Change to Liquid Laxatives?

Doctors have always recognized the value of the laxative whose dose can be measured, and whose action can be thus regulated to suit individual need.

The public, too, is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that a properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. It forms no habit, you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription, and is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is at all druggists. Member N. R. A.

Lou Meyer Takes First Place In Auto Race With Ford V-8

OAKLAND, Calif., May 6.—Battling for a cash prize of $1,500, Lou Meyer, a leading contender for the 500-mile sweepstakes at Indianapolis Decoration Day, took first place in a Ford V-8 in the 250-mile stock car race at the Oakland Speedway this afternoon from a field of 20 entries.

Meyer's time for the race, which was supervised by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, was 3 hours, 13 minutes, 4.6 seconds, and his average speed for the course 77.68 miles per hour.

Sam Palmer, also driving a Ford V-8, took the second prize of $750, and also hung up the fastest time for a single mile lap of 81 miles per hour. Denny de Paolo, Ted Horn, Mel Kenealy and Al Gordon, all in Ford V-8's, took the next four places in the event. Four other drivers finished in the money. Eight of the 20 entries were Fords, the other 12 being of four other makes.

"I won the race," said Meyer at the finish, "because my Ford V-8 had tremendous pickup, power and speed and was able to keep going at high speed for the entire 250 miles. It's a great car to drive and I ought to know because I now have won two tough races in Ford V-8's this year."

Twelve thousand persons turned out for the race, which was run on the Oakland banked-curved oval under a brilliant California sun. No accidents of any nature marred the event.

Throughout the grind, Meyer drove a steady cautious race. In the early laps the race appeared to be between Palmer and Gordon, but just after he had caught up with Palmer in the 198th lap Gordon lost time in the pits and Palmer streaked ahead.

Soon afterward Meyer, who had been trailing up to this point, took the lead and never was headed. From the halfway mark the race settled down into a three-cornered battle between Meyer, Palmer and Paolo, with only a few seconds separating the three during most of the latter half of the race. Nearing the finish all three contenders opened their throttles, averaging more than 80 miles an hour for the last six laps.

Throughout the race the leaders thrilled the crowds with the way in which they guided their cars through the traffic of slower cars on the track, the quick acceleration of the Ford V-8 giving them several precious seconds each time it was necessary for them to slow down.

Kenealy, fifth-place winner, set a refueling record, when he appeared at the pits for his first refueling after 161 miles.

Mother's Day Surprise For Mrs. M. E. Baker.

Sunday was an enjoyable day for Mrs. M. E. Baker, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ike Malone. Her children planned a surprise for their mother, it being Mother's Day. All her children and grandchildren were present except three grandchildren who live far away.

The children all brought well-filled baskets, and lunch was spread on tables under the pretty shade trees.

When lunch was ready, little Katherine Laverne Herricks went in and asked Grandmother to eat lunch. She took her great-grandmother Baker and great-grandmother Chenault by the hand and led them to the table. Said Grandmother Baker, "Look at the cake!"

Then the surprise came when she saw the huge white cake with "M-o-t-h-e-r" on it that Mrs. Herrick and Mrs. Cecil Herrick had baked. An angel food cake with "Grandmother" on it was a gift from Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Herrick and baby.

All enjoyed lunch and also the iced tea and lemonade very much. After all had finished, Rev. A. P. Gilliam of Clifton said he would finish the surprise, so he made a lovely talk.

Those who enjoyed the day were Mrs. Baker's children, Mr. and Mrs. Ike Malone, Mr. and Mrs. Booth and son Earl, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Homer and daughter Emma Dee and son Paul, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Herrick and daughter, Essie Mae and Lucille, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Herrick and son W. C., Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Herrick and daughter Katherine Laverne of Fort Worth, a brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Farmer, Mrs. Lonnie Smith and H. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Clenton son Donald, all of Cleburne, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Paddock and sons E. T. and Morris, Truman Malone, L. L. and Cora Wright, Rev. G. P. Gilliam of Clifton and Mrs. S. J. Chenault of Hico.

Afternoon visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Patterson and son Donald and daughters Lucille and Nell, also Miss Doris Allison and Roy Davis of Fairy.

As there were more good things to eat than everybody could consume at lunch, all ate supper and left saying they had had a good time and wishing Mrs. Baker many more days like this one.

Strange Lives of the Dinosaurs, in a New Book

THE DINOSAURS, those strange monsters inhabiting the earth many ages ago, are described and pictured in the "Sinclair Dinosaur Book", issued for use by high schools, colleges, and libraries. The book is scientifically accurate in all details, its production having been supervised by Barnum Brown, Curator of Fossil Reptiles at the American Museum of Natural History, New York.

The dinosaurs in their native surroundings, also engaged in their terrible fights, are shown in a series of original paintings by James E. Allen. Reproductions of these paintings in full color illustrate the book. Among the illustrations is also a reproduction of a nest of dinosaur eggs discovered in Mongolia by an expedition from the American Museum of Natural History. Lives of the dinosaurs are described in authoritative text. The book includes a geologic time chart covering a cycle of almost 2,000,000,000 years, together with pictures of characteristic life appearing in all periods known to science. For the information of students who may have opportunity to study dinosaurs at first hand, the book lists natural history museums in the United States which display actual dinosaur remains. The demand for further information about these weird beasts which was created by the Sinclair Dinosaur Exhibit at the Chicago World's Fair led to the production of the book by the Sinclair Refining Company, New York.

The happy couple were told to follow these girls and in the dining room at the foot of the rainbow was a tub of water and by it was a large doll with a raincoat on and a parasol over them, and the girls sang "It Ain't Going to Rain No More" then the presents were brought to the happy couple who were seated in chairs prepared for them and such an array of beautiful gifts for a new married couple of which they were very happy to receive. During the time Miss Little gave a reading which all enjoyed. Everyone enjoyed the afternoon. Mrs. J. L. Tidwell had charge of the program. We Think Wilma Fay must be glad that school is out. W. H. has said too much about exams. Wilma Gene went to Hamilton Friday night. Teacher: "This exam will be conducted on the honor system. Please take three seats apart and in alternate rows." Alvin (sighing): "Well, since you don't want to marry me, after 'll perhaps you'll return my ring." Wilma Fay (acidly): "If you must know, your jeweler has already called for it." Jim: "Say, you just missed me." Dock: "Well, stand still and I'll try again." Gerald: "Sir, er — that is, — I would like to — er — that is, I mean I have been going with your daughter for five years." Father: "Well, what do you want — a pension?" eral student boys from Baylor University with him. One of these young men will preach Sunday morning. They will also give a religious play and some musical numbers. You are accordingly invited to hear them. Mrs. W. E. Goyme was called to the bedside of her sister, Mrs. Rilla Luckie, Friday afternoon of last week who had been conveyed to the Stamford sanitarium from her home near Albany. We were informed that she underwent an appendix operation Sunday. Mrs. Luckie is also the mother of a new baby girl. We sincerely hope that by this writing that she and the baby are doing nicely and that she is recovering nicely from the appendix operation. Mrs. Luckie taught school here for several years and has many friends here who hope to hear soon of her complete recovery. The musical arranged by Miss Hughes Friday night of last week was well attended and enjoyed by all present. Mr. and Mrs. Buck Ash of Hico were visitors with us. Mr. Ash assisted in the program. This is their first visit with us and we surely enjoyed the music by Mr. Ash. He is a talented musician. We invite them back again. The program consisted of musical numbers and jig dancing from babies to grandpas. We always enjoy these programs.

NOTICE DELINQUENT TAX PAYERS

You will recall that from time to time since 1930 the Legislature of Texas has been suspending interest and penalties on delinquent taxes. Last May, 1933, the last measure of this kind was enacted and under this law I am now collecting only 6 per cent penalty on all delinquent taxes prior to 1933, if they are paid by June 30th, 1934, this year. After this date, the old law prescribing 10 per cent penalty and 6 per cent interest per year will again be in force. FOR EXAMPLE: 30 per cent will be added to 1930 delinquent taxes 24 per cent will be added to 1931 delinquent taxes 18 per cent will be added to 1932 delinquent taxes 12 per cent will be added to 1933 delinquent taxes This means that after July 1st, 1934, this year I will be required to collect the above penalties and there will be no way to escape same. Therefore I am taking this method of acquainting you with these facts and would insist that all delinquent tax payers make a special effort to take care of back taxes before July 1st, 1934. R. J. DEATH OF J. E. RICH SADDENS COMMUNITY

Hearts were saddened when news spread over Hico and surrounding communities that J. E. Rich, another pioneer settler of this section, had passed away at his home near Olin at 6:05 Saturday evening, May 12, 1934.

Mr. Rich had not been well for more than two years, but his condition was not thought to be serious until a few months before his death. He was carried to various doctors for examination, and they all pronounced his trouble that dread disease, cancer, from which they gave him no hope of recovery.

RAMBLING ROUND NEW YORK

But go another fancy step and you get to the flamboyant doormen of the flashy but sometimes inelegant hotels and apartments. Another step and you catch your breath at the sight of the ushers in the movies—obsequiously polite in tin-soldier fashion. New York is full of uniforms. Subway guards wear French grey. Trainmen wear navy. Subway motemen wear striped blue and white dungarees. Then there are the postmen, the cops and the firemen—and so far they are quite sane. But a stiff fancier and you get to the stiff-bosomed, corporate liveried waiters and domestic servants whose quiet tidiness is the keynote.

There's something about a soldier, perhaps, but there's something amazing about these messenger boys of a radio company. The girls on the street just stare and stare and stare! To the circus in Madison Square Garden one night last week I heard all about the newest big thrill stunt borehand. A platform that looks about as high as the Empire State Building. A girl on it. No net beneath. A trapeze starts swinging about fifteen feet from the platform, started by a man pulling a rope from the ground. The girl dives off the platform. She catches the trapeze. Lord! The trapeze broke! She hurtles through space. She'll be killed! But look! She's not falling—she's swinging! The wires attached to her ankles have drawn taut. She swings head downward and there she is, walking coolly toward the dressing room. Ten minutes later your heart may begin to come back to normal speed!

Every time I see him I wonder how long it will be before that little 98 pound Filipino boy will find himself flying at the end of the leash on that Great Dane he walks in Central Park each day. I'd almost swear that the dog weighed more than the boy. I like dogs. I like Great Danes. But I can't for the life of me understand why anyone would keep one in an apartment in New York.

MY HOME AND YOURS

To prepare sand finished walls for wall papering first clean the wall thoroughly. Add plaster Paris to the glue size to make a thin paste. Brush this on and when it begins to set, rub the walls down with a rubber squeegee; the kind used to clean windows, thus producing a flat surface. Discolored enamel trim on kitchen ranges is usually caused from overheating and burning of spattered grease. A razor blade will take it off; so will gentle rubbing with fine steel wool, although care should be taken not to take off the enamel glaze. To prevent coloring keep the enamel wiped with a weak solution of washing soda. Before re-painting windows or glass doors, when putty has dried and fallen away, the wood should be cleaned and painted with clear linseed oil or thin paint, thus closing the pores in the wood and preventing the oil being drawn from the new putty. Oil stains on wall paper can often be taken out by putting a piece of blotting paper on the spot and pressing with a hot iron. Another method is to mix benzine with Fuller's earth, plaster Paris, or powdered whiting, making a thick paste. Spread over spot and when dry remove by brushing off the powder. Rust spots on fine linen can often be removed by spreading spotted linen over pan of boiling water and squeezing lemon juice on the stain spots. Rinse after a few minutes and repeat. Another method is to use powdered oxalic acid instead of lemon and moisten acid by dripping hot water. Rinse and repeat. Burned grease that has caked on a kitchen range can be removed by soaking with kerosene for two or three hours then rubbing with steel wool. After all grease has been removed wipe very thoroughly with turpentine or benzine to remove all traces. If there is a pilot light on your stove, be sure work.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C.—Your correspondent had the privilege a few days ago of talking and listening to the three most important men in the Administration on three successive days: President Roosevelt on Thursday, General Hugh Johnson on Friday and Professor Rexford Tugwell on Saturday.

First, a definite sensitiveness to criticism of the "New Deal," amounting almost to thin-skinnedness. Second, a definite effort to dispel the idea that there is something "radical" about the New Deal. Third, a definite purpose to slow down on Government borrowings and substitute for Government financing of private business new means to stimulate investment of private capital.

On that last point, a high Federal official recently compared the written Constitution to the old wooden man-of-war "Constitution" so lately rehabilitated and sent on a tour of the nation's seaports. It was a fine ship in its day, and everybody reveres it and respects it for the valuable service it did in the War of 1812, but nobody would think of sending it to sea to fight again!

Johnson and NRA General Johnson was insistent that the Government had no purpose to impose harmful restrictions upon business and industry; all that NRA was trying to do was to get business interests into cooperation for the common good. He was distressed at the idea that anything like force was being used or contemplated, and the notion that small business men were getting the worst of it under NRA was entirely wrong, he said. He did not think the Government had been moving too fast in imposing the codes, because any of them could be changed over night if it proved oppressive or didn't work.

dusty and what has been wrong with the industrial system in the past. The opposition has tried to discredit him with the public and with the President on the ground that he is a theorist who does not understand the human difficulties of making men behave according to a fixed plan, but he took the wind out of that the other day when he declared that no police force could be created large enough to make Americans do what they do not want to do, and he was interested only in programs that met with general public acceptance.

Opposition to the New Deal is now being largely focussed upon the allegation that what the Administration is doing, in many of its aspects, is not and ever was any of the Government's business. This is particularly directed at such projects as the Tennessee Valley development, the proposal to put more land under irrigation in various regions and move farmers off poor land on to this presumably good land, and to move people out of the cities on to "subsistence homesteads."

Each Chevrolet built this year at the General Motors building will bear a specially-designed medallion on the instrument panel. More than 200 employees will be engaged in building these cars. It was stated, material for the bodies and chassis will be brought into the plant each night after ten o'clock when the exposition closes.

Before re-painting windows or glass doors, when putty has dried and fallen away, the wood should be cleaned and painted with clear linseed oil or thin paint, thus closing the pores in the wood and preventing the oil being drawn from the new putty. Oil stains on wall paper can often be taken out by putting a piece of blotting paper on the spot and pressing with a hot iron.
