Hallowe'en is Hallowe'en

By Paul Graves

Now that Hallowe'en has passed and we have all celebrated and had a "grand and glorious" time, let us see just why we did this. Of course we all know that Hallowe'en was originally to celebrate All Saints Day—the day when all spirits, both good and evil, were supposed to be on earth.

Our forefathers were satisfied, on the evil night, by sitting by the fireside eating pecans and pumpkin pie or by playing daring games such as "ducking after apples" or "dressing up in sheets."

However, just leave it to the "younger generation" to start something different. Being a conscientious group of young people they would naturally try to keep the thought of Hallowe'en evil or mysterious, so they took after the evil spirits and tried their best to do justice by them.

Maybe this will explain a few strange sights, such as garbage or other unsightly sights strewn hither and yon, which you will see on Thursday morning or at the least you may be able to reason out the cause.

Interesting Personality in High School

Claiming the title of president of the Junior class seems to give Lucille Patterson quite a thrill. Even though this title is attached to her name she tries to live up to it by fulfilling her duty as being a member of the pep squad, Journalism Club, and a member of the Library Council, and she studies enough to be among the pupils making the honor roll.

Two New Typewriters Added to Typing Equipment

Two new typewriters have been added to the typing equipment. This makes a total of nine new Remington Typewriters. There are now 18 students taking typing. They are divided into two classes of nine each. Mr. Masterson, typing instructor has installed a system of charts by which each student can judge his own progress.

Library News

Mr. Lockhart, vocational agriculture instructor, has loaned the library additional reference books on various subjects pertaining to vocational agriculture. These books will be issued to all students.

Sixth Grade Presents Assembly Program Wednesday

The sixth grade presented a very interesting assembly program Wednesday which consisted of:

Eyes of Texas, Song by Class.
Home on the Range, Song by Class.

When Its Roundup Time in Texas, Song by Class.

Texas, a Paradise, Reading by Sara Jane Meador.
Beautiful Texas, Song by Class.
Information on Texas Capital—Mary Ella McCullough.

Texas, Oh, Texas!
The fifth grade will present the program next week.

Improvements On School Property Now In Progress

A new roof for the grammar school building will be among the improvements to the Hico Public School. The work has already been started and will be completed soon.

In addition to this will be the cleaning of the debris from the grounds and the opening of a street below the rock terrace on the west side of the grounds.

Senior News

Seniors are proudly showing off their new class rings and pins since their arrival Monday. The rings are made up in yellow gold with a background of sterling silver on which is imprinted "H High School."

Of course, Seniors think that their rings are most nearly perfect or should we say the most beautiful rings that Seniors ever had, and that may be so—for the rings are certainly not of the ordinary type.

Social Sandbag

Miss Marie Leeth gave a party at her home Saturday night in honor of the football team and the pep squad.

Otis and Dan Holliday entertained at the Holliday home Friday night for the football boys and the pep squad.

Misses Jean and Jane Wolfe entertained a group of their friends at their home Saturday night.

Sport Spotlight

Although Hico put up a valiant fight, she was defeated by the narrow margin of 14-6 at Meridian last Friday. Sport fans believe that if Smith, Hico's quarterback, had not been injured early in the game and that if Otho Horton had not been out of the game, we would have won.

The touchdown made in the first quarter was made by Smith who ran 72 yards to put the ball over Meridian's goal line.

Friday Hico will play a game on the local gridiron.

Campus Hawk

Girls, girls, we must watch these high school boys—Babe (Maude) Lambert is knocking most of them kinda coo-coo. Look what a catch Mavis and Lurline made in Dallas last week end—a new freshman in the high school.

What does John Oscar mean? When Miss Randals told him to turn around and face the front, he said, "There ain't nuthin' to look at up thar."

Someone had a flat near the school Friday night and left the majority of their implements.

What happened to so many out-houses Hallowe'en night?

"THE FAIRIES"

Written Weekly by Students of Fairy High School

Duty

Last week I promised I'd write on self-control provided my teachers would tell me what to say, but they insisted that I practice what I preached in my last editorial. Perhaps they meant for me to practice and I wouldn't need to preach? So I decided to write on duty.

From the very first minute of school to the very last minute it is our duty to honor, respect, and obey those who are to instruct. It is our duty to help in the upkeep of our school building and its surroundings. It is our duty to prepare the work that is assigned, to be on time when the bell rings, to be as young men and young women should be in all activities, to take part in athletics, to look upon each member of the faculty, not as a "hard-boiled egg" and one who is "always sticking his nose into our business" but as one who is willing to take upon himself the responsibility of instructing us to better prepare ourselves for life; and last, but not least, it is our duty as we assemble into our classes to keep smiling, and, above all, to speak a pleasant word to our teachers. Then leave our classes as pleasant as possible and try to keep our teachers smiling.

It is the duty of the teachers as well as the pupils, to be to the pupils what the pupils should be to the teachers.

There are a few personal duties that no one can do for us. No one can learn our lessons for us, and no one can be polite, kind, pleasant, thoughtful and considerate for us.

Duty calls us every day. We either shirk or obey. Which do we do?

Sport News

On Friday, October 26, Alexander came down to play Fairy on our home ground. The final score was 23 and 15, in favor of Alexander.

The starting Tigers were Miller and Allison, forwards; Davis, center; Freeman and Little, guards. The other five Tigers were Jaggers and Morrison, forwards; Clayton, center; Russell and Wright, guards. The high point men were Davis and Clayton, with five points each. Coach Miller was dissatisfied with the work the Tigers did.

We intend to play ball next Saturday, November 3rd, at the tournament here. We want everyone to come out and watch the games. Lunch will be served and we are going to have interesting team-work.

The Fairy outside girls challenged the school girls in a game after the boys' game. The game was close, with the school girls winning 9 to 8. The school girls surely have improved their team in the last week, and are going to be hard to be beat. They will play Robinson Springs after they practice some more. Captain Seago was the high point scorer, with eight points. The girls' line-up was as follows: Capt. Seago, Blacklock, Davis, forwards; and Herricks, Scott and Edmiston, guards.

P. T. A. Friday Night

P. T. A. met Friday night, October 26, in the high school auditorium. Mr. Brand from Hamilton gave an interesting talk, after which an enjoyable program was rendered.

All business matters having been attended to, the meeting closed with the assurance of a parent-teachers association this year that will long be remembered.

"Miss Adventure" Goes to Aleman

The outsiders took the play, "Miss Adventure" to Aleman last Thursday night, October 25. The money received went to the Aleman school. The outsiders are now planning to take the play to Union this coming Friday night.

"Wild Ginger" Comes to Fairy

Early McAnally, accompanied by experienced actors, presented the play, "Wild Ginger" at Fairy Saturday night, October 27. It was enjoyed by all present.

Chapel Monday Morning

Weekly chapel was held Monday morning in the high school auditorium. After four songs were sung, Mr. Horsley attended to a few business matters. Then each grade assembled to its class room where the weekly routine was begun.

In the Ray of the Spotlight

In the ray of the spotlight this week we have Ray Miller, one of those dignified Seniors.

Even though Ray has abounding humor and uses his spare time fighting with Dalton, we think he's all right. As a basketball player, Ray is one of the very best. As an intelligent pupil he's ??? Well, ask him! However, the Senior class is proud of Ray and hope that he enjoys being a Senior as much as the Seniors enjoy his being one.

The New Equipment

Mr. Miller and Mr. Pitts motored to Dallas Saturday to secure new equipment for the general science laboratory. The students of this class, as well as the teacher, are very much excited over their new supplies.

Juniors

The Juniors are progressing very well in all their studies. We are proud to welcome a new student in our class, Derwood Young, from Carlton.

Vance Blakley entertained the high school with a party at her home Tuesday night.

Wonder Why—

A. E. James and Annie Pearl Wyley always happen to be absent from school on the same days?

Pee Wee Allison talks to the sophomore girls so much?

Eursie Hackett and Evadean Gardner had to go to the detention hall?

Sammie Davis likes to study "Wild Westers" magazines?

Essie Mae Duncan sits sideways in her seat every morning?

Sophomores

The first six-weeks test is almost here and the ninth grade pupils are ready to go.

Wonder why—
Paul Hutton thought it so cold Mr. Nix has been cross?
Miss Stewart has been unhappy?
Jack is so sleepy?

The Freshmen failed to report to the Staff. Perhaps they are studying for test with this thought in mind. "An empty wagon makes the most noise."

Seventh Grade

Wonder who—
Argues with Mr. Nix in Arithmetic class?

Says "All right" most of the time?
Sings "All I Do Is Dream of You"?

Always sits by the girls? Does his name begin with a J?
Cried at the play last Saturday night?

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Sterling Scott has moved to Dallas where he will attend school. He is a good student and we will miss him very much.

Some excellent grades have been made this month in Arithmetic. Gene Tinkle and Nellie B. Brummitt have averaged a fraction over ninety-nine each.

The fifth and sixth grades enjoyed a theatre party Wednesday night at the Palace Theatre. Only four from the room were not present.

Third and Fourth Grades

The third and fourth grade teacher settled the dispute that has been in progress between them and the first and second grades. Ever since the carpenters started the new building the question, "Who gets the east room?" has been asked by everyone.

Mr. Horsley dropped two slips of paper marked "east room" and "west room" in his hat and the third and fourth grades were the lucky ones in the draw.

We welcome our new third grade student, Gladys Little, into our midst.

First and Second Grades

We are sorry that Johnnie and Leon Scott withdrew from our school Friday. We hope that they will enjoy their new location at Oak Cliff. We will certainly miss them. That leaves us twenty beginners and fifteen second graders. The basket ball team will specially miss "Speedy" as she was one of the best guards we had on our team.

We hope to move into our new building by Wednesday.

BRAND NEW EYES!

Don't let improper light damage them

HAPPY little fellow! He probably has perfect eyesight today... as most babies do. Yet he has only a sixty per cent chance of avoiding eye trouble by college age, if his is an average case!

The new Science of Seeing has revealed startling facts about eyes and seeing. We know now that our eyes, accustomed for centuries to generous outdoor light, are almost universally deprived of enough light indoors. Is it any wonder that 95 per cent of all people over sixty have defective eyesight?

The kindly service of the eye specialist does much to alleviate eye trouble. But prevention is equally important... and adequate light for all reading or close work is one of the first essentials.

Here is an easy rule you can put into effect now. Make sure that every member of your family has his own reading lamp... equipped with at least one 100 watt lamp, two 60's, or three 40's... according to the number of sockets.

If you will telephone us, we will gladly send a representative to make further suggestions on how lighting in your home may be improved. There is no charge for this service.

SYNOPSIS—"Prelude"—"Love Lightly." Mrs. Church warned gently, and Ellen wondered why? Posing for her talented mother, first as a new baby, then a bubbling child, then a charming young girl, Ellen had lived always in a make-believe land of beauty. Of the outside world her knowledge was meager. At 17 years of age, posing in the garden, Ellen at last is learning the story of her mother's broken life, the stolen kiss, marriage—then years of loneliness and as the mother waited for her husband, to share with him the secret of Ellen's coming, a message came, saying he would never return. So through the years Ellen and her mother lived alone. A few weeks after learning of the story of the mother's broken life, another message arrives, tragedy, telling of the father's death. The shock killed Mrs. Church. Bewildered, alone, warned to "Love Lightly," Ellen arrives in New York.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

"And so," said Ellen, "Little Goldlocks came to the big city. Or perhaps I should say Little Red Riding Hood. As I remember it, I did wear a red beret! With just exactly twenty dollars in the pocket of the old tweed coat—but with all of my bills paid, and the homestead still unmortgaged. You didn't know, did you, that I am a landowner? That I, whose knees shall be known to posterity, am the possessor of an estate!"

Even at twenty Ellen couldn't quite control the sudden tremor in her voice.

The man with the Vandyke beard reached, through the cloud of his pipe smoke, for her hand—which Ellen carefully removed from his vicinity. He shrugged and reached instead for the glass that stood at his elbow.

"For such a red hot, red capped little person," he said "you're startlingly chill! Know that, Ellen A.," she laughed, quite alone, at his pun, "a Church—and why should a church need fortifications with battlements and moats and a drawbridge?"

One of the two other girls was speaking.

"Shut up, Sandy," she said. "You're just about as funny as a wake!" Say, Ellen, her voice was shrill, "why don't you throw a party up at your place, some week end? The crowd of us could make perfectly swell whoopee."

If a shadow swept across the carefully rouged little face of Ellen Church, she veiled that shadow with a slim, raised hand. Her answer came with almost too much nonchalance.

"I haven't been near the place," she said, "since I turned the key in the lock and went out into the storm, with neither a wedding ring nor a baby. I'd have to have considerable of a weekend—and I mean my head! to take you all up there. Why, even at twenty Ellen couldn't quite control the sudden tremor in her voice. "Why, the place is full of ghosts."

The man with the Vandyke beard puffed away in silence for a moment.

"You were telling your life story," he reminded Ellen, at last. "Not that it's such a whale of a story, at that. There hasn't been a starvation, or a temptation, or a ruination, yet."

"And," the tremor had quite gone from Ellen's voice, "there won't be, either. Not while the old brain sits firmly just above the well known shoulders. Well, to make a short story long, I got in touch with the only soul I know, believe it or not, in New York. A person who had sold my mother's work, sort of an art agent you understand. Mother—she did all of her selling second hand, she wouldn't see art editors herself. You have to be pretty swell, there was a note of pride, a defensive sort of pride, in Ellen's voice, "to sell your stuff that way! But anyhow," the pride was gone from her voice now, "anyhow, I went to this agent and asked her advice. And she tried to help. 'Perhaps you'd better be an artist,' she said. 'It's in your blood. 'But it's left out of my fingers,' I told her. 'Well, what can you do?' she asked me. And I said, 'I'm a regular wad at posing.'"

A man without a beard and for that reason some years older than the Vandyke one, spoke.

"And so you are!" he told Ellen. "I never knew anyone who could catch an idea the way you do. I wish to heaven I could keep you busy all the time. Not that I wouldn't be afraid to have you in the studio all the time—" faith with the public. Claire Tremaine—the tall, willowy one, who posed for fashion work. Who with her boneless, carefree figure was just a little passe in this new age of fashion elegance.

They weren't of much importance, these two. Just white of egg, beaten to a stiff froth. Not a great deal of substance, or nourishment there!

Sandy Mackintosh? Somehow, although his work sold readily, he had a real flair for expression, he belonged with the two girls, Ellen told herself. His essays at love-making always bordered on the comic, for her. He was always ready to put her into one of his careless, charming illustrations, however, always ready to buy her a dinner at some place where the food was good, and the lights were low, and there was wine for the asking.

The older man, Dick Alven? He wasn't a lightweight! He didn't depend upon charm to put his drawings over. He didn't even care, always, that his paintings would interest dealers—rather than sell them! Ellen, her gaze creeping about the room, felt a thrill of affection as her eyes rested upon his face. For it was to Dick that she had first gone, quite by chance, in her quest for work. A slim, frightened child, in a scarlet cap and an unfashionable topcoat, she had come knocking at his studio door. And he, with curiosity written in every line of his face, had let her into the square, somber room in which he painted.

"So you want to pose?" he had questioned. "I fancy, from your looks, that you've just run away from school, with an old copy of 'The Common Law' tucked into your pocket. Well, I do need a model. But you'll find it hard, unromantic work!"

Ellen had answered haughtily, to cover the shiver in her heart, the quake in her soul.

"I've posed all my life," she told him. "I know it's not easy. But I'm used to it!"

Dick Alven's practiced, oddly personal yet oddly impersonal gaze had run the length of her slender body. He sighed.

"You're such a kid," he told her. "Do you pose for the figure?"

Ellen felt the blood mounting into her cheeks, pounding into her temples. But she answered with a certain doggedness.

"I have, of course, posed that way," she said. "I can, if there's no other work to be had. But I'd rather—not!"

Dick Alven had laughed. "I thought that would scare you out," he said. "I'd know you for an amateur any day. Who've you posed for—you little bluffer?"

Ellen's head was high. The blood had receded from her cheeks.

"I posed for Mrs. Church," she said. "You must have seen her work. She specialized in drawings of children. Of young girls. She." Ellen's lips all at once were quivering; all at once the tears stood, roundly in her eyes, "she was—my mother!"

Dick Alven, with a certain mute astonishment, had watched the tears spill over on to the pale cheeks. He had given himself a little shake, and had closed the studio door.

"Make yourself at home," he told Ellen. "I've an order for a sort of Kate Greenway mural, to dress up a halfbaked junior league inspired children's theatre. I can use you plenty."

And so Ellen entered the studio and buttoned herself into a high-waisted blue-bashed muslin dress, and started out upon her career as a professional model. It was as easy as that! Under Dick's tutelage, which almost amounted to chaperonage, she met other artists, secured other work.

It was getting late. The cigarette smoke was rising toward the ceiling of the room. As soon as the bunch left, Ellen thought, she would fling up the windows—and make the room sweet again.

"I think," she called now to the corner in which Gay and Sandy were sitting, very close, "that you'd better clear out. I'm working tomorrow, and I'm starting early."

Sandy eyed her reproachfully. "Women," he said, "they're all alike. Just puppies in mangers. Ellen won't let me touch her and. But the moment I seek any consolation in Gay, she throws me out. Jealous cat, I call her!"

Claire rose lithely from her place on the cushioned day bed. She stretched as a slim, lary panther stretches. Nobody had been making love to Claire.

"I'm ready to blow," she said. "This party hasn't been what you'd call a wof for excitement. The story of Ellen's past is too blameless to make what might be known as a hectic evening. See me home, Dick?" there was a slightly eager note in her drawing voice. "Can you go my way?"

But Dick, slowly, was shaking his head.

"I'm staying on here, for a bit, after the rest of you leave," he told her. "I want to talk with Ellen. I'm the guy she's working for tomorrow. We're starting on that Indian thing—and I want to talk to her about costumes."

Sandy, rising, had dragged the diminutive Gay to her feet.

"We'll drop you at your shanty, Claire," he said. "That is if you're really afraid to venture out alone on the sidewalks of New York!"

Claire shrugged.

"I'd suspect you, Ellen," she said, as she pulled the season's smartest hat over her beautifully arranged hair, "only it's hard to suspect anyone with milk—frozen milk—in her veins! I don't doubt," there was a queer note of almost envy in her voice, "that you and Dick will really talk about costumes."

Ellen tried, very hard, to copy the spirit of Claire's shrug.

"Be that," she said, "as it may!"

Then they were gone, the three of them. Clattering down the uncarpeted stairs, Sandy laughing—Gay's shrill giggle echoing his mirth.

"They're laughing about me," Ellen told Dick, and her tone was tranquil. "They think I'm something from another planet. That I have six toes on each foot and they're webbed. You tell 'em different, Dick. You've seen my feet."

But Dick was staring at her strangely, through the drifting smoke, most of which he was now creating, himself.

"Sandy may laugh at you," he said, "but he's in love with you Ellen."

Ellen, again attempted the shrug and it was more of a success this time.

"Oh—love!" she said. Just that. Dick went on.

"So," he said evenly, "am I, for that matter? I love you, Ellen. You know. Foolish, isn't it?"

Ellen agreed.

"Yes, it is, rather," she said. "Because I have reason to suppose, Dick, that love would stand for marriage, with you. You're that sort, Sandy? Possibly he isn't. But well, what would marriage with you mean, Dick? Figure it out, from my point of view. Only a new name, and a wedding ring. I'd work just as hard as I'm working now. I'd have the deuce of a lot more to worry about—babies for instance. And I wouldn't have lots of things that I have now, either."

Dick's voice rasped just a little. It was a very nice voice when it didn't have that grating note.

"What, for instance?" he questioned.

"Privacy, for instance!" Ellen answered, trying to make her tone flippant.

Dick was rising from his chair. His tall figure, despite his breadth of shoulder, gave the effect of gauntness. He came swiftly across the room and laid his hands, not too lightly, on Ellen's shoulders.

W. M. U. Held Regular Meeting At Church Monday

Twelve ladies were present for the regular meeting of the W. M. U. at the Baptist Church Monday afternoon.

The program was opened with a song, after which the devotionals was led by Mrs. J. W. Dohoney. She discussed the 12th chapter of Matthew with much interest.

Next Monday there will be a regular business meeting. All ladies of the church are invited to meet with us and learn more about Jesus.

Mrs. Smith Entertains For Son On His 10th Birthday

On Monday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock, Mrs. W. G. Smith entertained a number of the friends of her youngest son, Bill D. Smith, honoring the tenth anniversary of his birth. The fun started when various games were chosen and the entire party enjoyed each minute of diversion.

At the close of the games, Mrs. Smith served popcorn, punch and cake to Ruth and Ruby Lowe, Betty Baldwin, Pansy McMillan, Robert Earl Howard, O. D. Cunningham, Howard Stewart, and Owen and Odell Welborn.

Mrs. S. E. Blair Hostess to Hico Review Club Members

The Review Club met Saturday, Oct. 27, at the club room with Mrs. S. E. Blair hostess. Mrs. Lawrence Lane conducted a very interesting lesson on "Early Explorations in Texas."

As members were asked to bring guests, quite a few guests were present, and several contributed interesting facts about early history of our state.

The club voted to extend grateful thanks to Mrs. Aycock for her piano she let the club use; to Mr. Masterson for typing programs; to O. D. Hefner and his helpers for moving the piano.

After serving delicious punch, the club adjourned to meet Nov. 10, at which time the program will be as follows:

Hostess, Mrs. Currie; Leader, Mrs. Hays; Roll call; "Spanish Explorers; Weakness of Spain's Colonial System, Mrs. Bell; Three Types of Colonial Settlements, Mrs. Aycock; Settlement and History of San Antonio, Mrs. Jackson; Establishment of Boundary between Spanish and United States, Mrs. McCullough; Origin and Route of San Antonio Road, Miss Hughes; Why Spaniards, Mrs. Randalls; General Discussion.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank every one who was so kind to us during the illness and death of our loved one. May God bless you all is our prayers.

LUCKY GIRL

Her mother felt that family physicians and child specialists, and the hospitals must be right. A simple test that proves they are.

MRS. STRONG AND DAUGHTER, NANCY

If anyone in your family is occasionally sluggish or constipated; especially any child, you should know this medical truth:

You cannot get safe relief with any medicine if you cannot regulate the dose. And to regulate dosage, you should have a liquid laxative. With a liquid laxative, you can gradually reduce the dose. And that is the secret of safe relief from a sluggish, constipated condition.

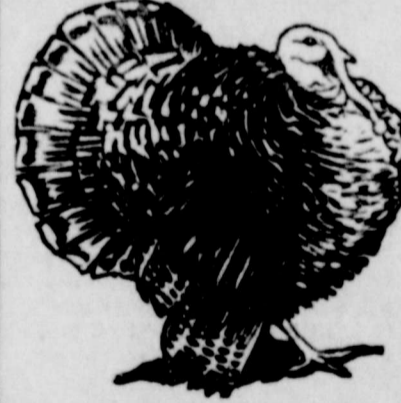

Why Doctors Use Liquid Laxatives

A liquid laxative can be measured. Its action can be thus controlled. If properly made, of natural laxative elements like senna and cascara, it forms no habit—even in the youngest child. And such a laxative will help the bowels to help themselves, not make matters worse. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative containing herbs, active senna, and cascara, and is the one widely used. You can always obtain it at any drugstore. Why not make the "liquid test" which has attracted so much attention of late? It helps nearly everyone who tries it. It may make you feel better than you have in a long time.

If you will risk sixty cents to discover the natural, comfortable action of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, we believe bowel worries will be over for your household.

MONEY

We don't pretend to understand money. We don't know anybody else who knows very much about money. About the only thing that is clear to us, and to most of the folk we know, is that money is something most of us haven't got enough of.

If there were any real understanding of money anywhere, it would seem to be among the big bankers and financiers, and perhaps in the Treasuries of the great nations of the world. But when we read about all the utterly divergent views about money and its importance in the scheme of things, expressed by the very men who, if the subject were fully understood, ought to be in complete agreement about it, we wonder why there should be so much difference of opinion on such things as gold, silver, paper currency, managed currency, the "commonly dollar" and all the other phases of the subject on which it seems as if no two people or nations agree.

We read that the nations composing the "gold bloc" which means those still on the gold standard, recently met in Brussels and decided to stay on gold. The next day we read that Holland is very likely to go off gold and join up with England under the sterling "managed" currency plan, although her representatives sat in with France, Belgium, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland and Italy in the gold bloc conference. We read about complaints from China that the American silver buying policy has injured their foreign trade, and we hear of professors and economists who are offering new advice every few days to our Government. And on top of that, we hear not only of schemes for increasing the volume of money in circulation, but a new scheme for "dated money" that would have to be spent within a given time or it wouldn't be any good.

Thinking about such things, and recalling some of the "token money" that was issued two or three years ago by communities in which the banks were closed, and which seemed to work pretty well, we wonder whether it makes much difference what we use for money. Our New England pioneers adopted the Indians' wampum currency, because they didn't have any other kind of money. In Virginia the early settlers used tobacco for money. It looks to us that money is whatever people are willing to accept for what they have to sell, and as if the world's big problem now is to get everybody to agree on one kind of money good everywhere. Inside the United States, however, those pieces of green paper that Uncle Sam issues are still good for their face value—when we can get them.

DON'T WORRY ABOUT THE FARMER'S FUTURE

There is much talk about the American farmer. Many believe that what seems to be his increasing dependence on governmental relief and aid will weaken his traditional qualities of self-reliance and honest individualism. A percentage of farmers is willing to depend upon political relief measures—but that percentage is very small. In all sections of the country, groups of farmers have banded together to fight their own battles and win their own victories. They regard relief as being purely temporary—a lift over a particularly bad place in the economic road. They have no intention of depending upon it for their future welfare.

These farmers constitute the memberships of genuine business organizations, which, through excellent and experienced management, are applying proven business methods to farm problems. The question of supply and demand, of production and marketing methods, of foreign markets, of tariff walls and embargoes—in brief, everything that affects the farmer—engage their attention. They work with these problems, not for a day or a week or a year, but until another political party comes into power, but continuously, permanently. They are here to stay. Those who have watched the cooperative grow and develop, have little doubt for the future of the progressive American farmer.

PERVERTED SPORTSMANSHIP

Sometimes we wonder whether people haven't let their "sporting" attitude toward everything wrap their judgment in such serious matters as crime and the pursuits of criminals. The notion that the fugitive from justice is entitled to a "sporting chance," that it is a sort of a game between the officers of the law and the criminal in which everybody is entitled to take part of either side, accounts in large measure, we think for the maudlin sympathy often exhibited toward offenders.

Boys are taught that it is not good sportsmanship to shoot birds except on the wing. But certainly that does not apply when the quarry is not "game" but vermin. One is taking no unfair advantage of a skunk to shoot it sitting, or of a rat to entrap or poison it by any means that can be devised.

We think a great deal of good would be accomplished if there were some way to impress upon young folk that flagrant violators of the law, murderers, kidnapers and robbers, are not "game" but vermin. The principle that every criminal is entitled to a fair trial has been warped by a sort of perverted sportsmanship into the feeling that every criminal has a right to his liberty as long as he is smart enough to keep out of the clutches of the law, regardless of the means he adopts, even killing, to evade his pursuers.

INSURANCE CANNOT PAY FOR FIRE

Many persons take chances with fire and fire hazards because they believe they have complete insurance coverage—that they cannot lose financially in case of fire. What those people don't realize is that complete fire coverage doesn't exist. It isn't for sale. No company can pay for materials destroyed when a blaze damages a home or business. But that side of the destruction is often the least of it. When a factory burns, men are thrown out of work. Their purchasing power is suddenly lowered or destroyed. They are often unable to meet their obligations. They can no longer buy the commodities and services local businesses sell. While out of work, they cannot maintain their homes properly, or do their part in developing their community.

No policy form could be prepared that would protect a community against those results of fire. Again, every sizable fire destroys taxable property. A blaze may raise a great industry which pays large taxes. With that source of taxation destroyed, taxes on all other property must be increased—and every citizen has to help pay the bill.

In brief, it is the indirect cost of fire, which insurance cannot protect us against, that makes the greatest total. Direct loss runs close to half a billion dollars a year—indirect loss is estimated at two or three times that amount.

TAX THE TAX!

Tax the farmer, tax his fowl. Tax the dog, tax his howl. Tax the hen, and tax her egg. Let the poor old farmer beg. Tax his pig and tax his squeals. Tax his boots run down at heels. Tax his plow and tax his clothes. Tax his rags that wipe his nose. Tax his home and tax his bed. Tax the bald spot on his head. Tax the ox, tax the ass. Tax his "Henry," tax his gas. Tax the road that he must pass. Make him travel on the grass. Tax his cow, tax her calf. Tax him if he dares to laugh. He is but a common man. So tax the poor man all you can. Tax the laborer, but be discreet. Tax the shoes right off his feet. Tax his bread, tax his meat. Tax him for walking on the street. Tax the payroll, tax the sale. Tax all his hard-earned paper kale. Tax his pipe, tax his smoke. Teach him government is no joke. Tax the coffins, tax the shrouds. Tax the souls beyond the clouds. Tax all business, tax all shops. Tax the income, tax all stocks. Tax the living, tax the dead. Tax the unborn, before they're fed. Tax the water, tax the air. Tax the sunlight, if you dare! Tax them all, and tax 'em well! And do your best to make life hell! —Roy (N. Mex.) Record.

The Last Round Up by A. B. Chapin

Te radio operator on many a ship has a rating equal to a second mate but because he can come aboard ship as a full-fledged chief operator without ever having been to sea before, the crew never show him the deference of his rank, but call him "Sparks" the same way they call the carpenter "Chips."

If roofs had been stripped from New York apartments the last week of September, strange sights would have been seen. Because of the lack of new buildings, many new tenants were living in the halls of buildings while their apartments were being decorated. One couple we know of were moved during the week into four different apartments in the same building while waiting for painters to finish their penthouse on the roof.

The story is told in New York that furniture and families waited patiently on the sidewalk as long as fourteen hours when trying to get into Knickerbocker Village, the new apartment development for white collar workers erected on the site of old tenements. Knickerbocker Village has a minimum of passenger elevators and no service elevators.

Free rides for 63,000 children were provided during the summer by one of New York's subways, transporting them from the slums to the parks and return.

"Ten Cents A Dance" is not only the title of a song. It's an actuality in New York. But it also costs ten cents a minute to sit out a dance with one of the dance hall "hostesses." And expert testimony in court recently was presented to show that the rooms were not called "love nests" but "sitting rooms." And that's what they were," said the witness.

A hefty buck deer horned right through the windows of a suburban food shop near New York, recently, and made free with a variety of spinach, carrots, cabbage and bananas. The police were too late to do anything about

LET'S TALK ABOUT CLOTHES

By a "Young Modern" Denton, Oct. 31.—On the eve of chilly autumn days, fall footwear makes its appearance, and bids for a more sophisticated contour in shoe designs, together with a brighter range of colors for the leather, suede and cloth materials. For countless numbers of years shoes have confined themselves to the leather field as mediums of expression. They relied upon combinations of different leathers for new effects, but this season the story has a new twist. Young sophisticates at Texas State College for Women (CIA) have reached into wider fields and are looking to a variety of materials for the "latest" in shoes.

Velvet, pinwale corduroy, gabardine and wovens are intriguingly combined with leather. They take the form of inserts or trims and while possessing great wearability they add lightness, both in weight and effect to the feet. Operas made entirely of velvet are gaining new popularity heights for late afternoon and evening wear. They maybe plain or accented with patent leather trim, just as you choose.

For actual street wear, the walking shoe type with the low or medium heel is built along the lines of English footwear. This group includes the four and six eyelet oxford of the brogue family developed in suede or calf, the flat and medium heeled strapped shoes and the spectator sport type pump. Smooth and grained leathers as well as suede and leather combinations all make their bid for your individual approval.

When the S. S. Hamburg docked at New York the other day it carried something the captain had never seen before: a stowaway who carried baggage. He was being returned from the S. S. Deutschland, which had been bound for Germany. The Hamburg also brought 8,000 canaries from the Hartz mountains.

The will that finds the way was with Mrs. S. H. Dittmore. Tom Green county home demonstration club woman, who subgranted her rose cutting bed with old tin cans and rooted 15 bushes in spite of the drought.

More than 250,000 acres of wheat planted for winter grazing purposes alone. In the South Plains area of the State, insured pretty good pickings for work stock there in spite of the drought made feed shortage.

Four-H club boys of Indiana recently put on a great show of lambs at the stockyards at Indianapolis. It was the fifth annual event. Judges said it would have "hustled" a veteran lamb producer to win a place in the competition.

The lambs were shown in three classes—pen of three, pen of five, and county group. When all the boys had brought out their entries of three lambs there were 66 pens shown. Top winner received a $19 cash prize, and the next 14 got prizes ranging from $3.00. Twenty-two lads entered pens of five lambs with prizes ranging from $12.00 to $5.00. Each county group received $5.00.

The prize money is provided by the stockyard company, packers and commission firms interested in raising the quality of lambs raised in the state. The project also has the active co-operation of Purdue extension leaders and club folks. Its educational effect reaches far beyond the actual club members participating.

The show's educational value does not stop with the ring competition. The lambs are auctioned off afterward and the judgment of the buyers reflected in what they pay for the lambs. It's the butcher's test. The boys learn quickly why the blocky, meaty lamb outsells the leggy, thin meated one.

The show is only one feature of this annual affair. Boys get a lot of advice from men of experience. They were urged by Dean Skinner, of the State Agricultural College, to adopt as a slogan, one acre of alfalfa for each five ewes and lambs. This will aid in making the adjustment from grain to forage which our agricultural situation requires.

The whole bunch was treated to a modern swimming hole when a big hotel turned its pool over to them.

Mrs. Hope Porter of the May pearl home demonstration club in Ellis county did not find it hard to persuade her husband to put up pantry shelves to contain 1000 cans and jars of home-grown food after she had put up the products.

Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Charles E. Dunn

Christian Growth. Lesson for November 4th. Luke 2:42-52.

Golden Text: 2nd Peter 3:18. The appealing story of the boy Jesus in the temple, asking and answering questions, and astounding his elders by his wisdom reminds us of the teaching task of the Christian Church. Every parish should provide abundant opportunity for the presentation and discussion of vital issues involved in the Christian vocation.

Protestantism is woefully weak in its exercise of the teaching function. The successful propaganda of the Roman Church puts it to shame. A Protestant can attend his meeting-house for years, and never find out what Protestantism really is. For this sad state of affairs the clergy are in part to blame. Vast numbers of them are not students.

They spend far more on gasoline than on books. Many ministers do not aim to instruct their people at all. They aspire to be promoters, showmen, Chatauqua masters.

But the people also are at fault. How much real reading, thinking and praying does the average person in the pew engage in? Not very much. His mind is pretty largely a blank. One is reminded of the complaint of Isaiah, "The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib; but Israel doth not know, my people doth not consider."

What is the remedy? First of all we must glorify the teaching function of the ministry. Of course the minister is a prophet as well as a priest, a shepherd, a friend, an administrator. But the minister is also a teacher whose duty it is to systematically instruct the flock committed to his care.

Secondly we must put our energy into religious education rather than revivalism. It used to be said, "When is a school not a school? When it is a Sunday School." May God speed the day when such a taunt will be out of place.

PAUL WRITES A MESSAGE

The work was going well everywhere, even in Thessalonica! And they hoped Paul would come back. Eagerly Paul called for parchment and, with Timothy as a volunteer stenographer, he dictated a letter to send back to Thessalonica.

He told them how he had left with his two companions, but on reaching Athens had changed his mind and sent Silas and Timothy back. When therefore we could no longer forbear, we thought it good to be left at Athens alone. And sent Timotheus, our brother, and minister of God, and our fellow-labourer in the gospel of Christ, to establish you.

It almost killed him to think that they might have forsaken their faith. But they had not; they were standing fast. But when Timotheus came from you unto us, and brought us good tidings of your faith and charity, and that ye have good remembrance of us always, desiring greatly to see us, as we also to see you.

Therefore, brethren, we are comforted over you in all our affliction and distress by your faith: For now we live, if ye stand fast in the Lord. So he dictated, fast as Timothy could write, and sent the letter by a messenger going north from Corinth. He put in sundry exhortations, a little doctrinal teaching, and started the message forth on its eventful journey. He did not know that he had begun a new Bible. He never suspected that this impetuously composed first letter to the Thessalonians was to be the first volume in a new sacred library. But it was; and that is the way the New Testament began.

He had to write a second letter to the Thessalonians to answer some questions growing out of the first one. These letters were lent to near-by churches and copied and read to the congregations. Paul heard how widely they were used and so he wrote more and more. He had learned to supplement living voice with the written page. If he were at work today he would not only preach; he would be a regular contributor to the press.

After eighteen months in Corinth he went back to Jerusalem and gave account of his second missionary journey. He had a string of new churches through Asia Minor, Macedonia and Greece. He had developed his method, and he was happy in the knowledge of a great success. He learned that in Galatia, in Asia Minor, where he had established churches, he had been followed by fundamentalists who were telling the people that Paul was not really an apostle; that he possessed no real authority; that the good news was defective because he did not teach the Mosaic law.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

A STITCH IN TIME

Well, let's see: I wonder if we have the family medicine cabinet all set, ready for the winter's severe trials that are more or less sure to come? Preparedness, you know. You might need some 2-grain capsules of quinine in a large-mouthed bottle, duly labeled. Handy to have. Few family doctors carry quinine or castor oil. O, yes see that the castor oil bottle is filled and a new clean label put on. And, first time you are in doctor's office, have him suggest for you a good, reliable "cold tablet" for emergency—so you can get in a dose or two while he is getting around to answer your call. No, don't trust the glib-tongued salesman with the "perfect" cure for constipation—peyer! Also, shun the prescriber who is forty miles from being a physician. Ask your doctor.

Freshen up the bottle of Tincture of Iodine—write a new label for that too. A small brush—and some medicine droppers are handy to have in the medicine cabinet. You might add a small bottle, one ounce—half filled with carbolic acid—and be absolutely sure about the label on that. A few drops in warm water to wash the accidental, lacerated wound.

Have the family doctor recommend an all-round antiseptic mouth wash and gargle, for cold, croupy nights. Stock a pint of it for home use. Don't forget a nice, wholesome jar of pure vaseline for applications. I always liked carbolated vaseline for antiseptic dressings. And yes, your "anti-constipation" tablets. Your doctor will make suggestions for you.

Mrs. Woodward Complimented Granbury Friends Thursday
Mrs. C. L. Woodward was hostess last Thursday when she entertained with a bridge-luncheon in compliment to eight of her Granbury friends, namely: Messames Jack Gordon, T. H. Dabney, G. Lancaster, A. B. Crawford, Joe Archer, J. Green, Nan Swofford, L. Crites, and Madeline Green.

For the occasion, the home was charmingly decorated with a profusion of zinnias and coral vines. The quartet tables were centered with baskets of the same flowers. The guests arrived at 10 o'clock and contract bridge was enjoyed throughout the day. The luncheon was served at 1 o'clock. In the afternoon punch was served.

Mrs. Gordon and Mrs. Crawford favored those present with several musical selections. At the conclusion of the games, Mrs. Woodward awarded prizes to the winners.

The personnel from Hico included Mrs. H. F. Sellers, Mrs. H. E. McCullough, Mrs. H. N. Wolfe, and Mrs. Roland L. Holford.

Spook Party Held by Mary Jane Barrow Wednesday Evening

Mary Jane Barrow entertained a group of little friends with a costume Halloween party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Barrow, Wednesday evening. Games and refreshments further accented the holiday motif.

The little hostess served fruit punch, devils food pumpkin faces, pop corn and apple sail boats to the following guests:

Salem

By MRS. W. C. ROGERS

Samuel Thomas Grissett was born July 1, 1856, in Pike County, Alabama, where he grew to manhood and married Miss Missouri Borden, Sept. 25, 1875. Born to this union were thirteen children, two boys and eleven girls, of which seven are living: Mrs. J. A. Pope, Sudan, Tex.; Mrs. W. J. Pope, Dublin, Tex.; Mrs. H. M. Burgess, Willington, Ala.; Mrs. S. E. Farrell, Hico; Mrs. O. M. Patrick, Fort Worth; Mrs. O. L. Wallace, Hamlin, Tex.; and Mrs. O. L. Burt, Greenville, Ala. Mrs. Grissett preceded him in death four years ago. He has been a member of the Primitive Baptist Church many years. His membership was in the Hopewell Church at Clairette, and he was a faithful member until his death, October 26, 1934. He was a good father and husband, known and loved by all throughout the country as "Uncle Sam." Three daughters were at his bedside when death came. Mrs. S. E. Farrell, Mrs. W. J. Pope, and Mrs. O. L. Wallace. Besides his seven daughters, he leaves one brother, E. P. Grissett of Stephenville, and a half-sister, Mrs. Benner Sheffield of Stephenville, thirty grandchildren and fifteen great-grandchildren. We tender our sympathy to the bereaved children. Their loss is His eternal gain.

The younger set enjoyed a Hal-low-een party Saturday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Jackson.

ALICE FAYE AND LEW AYRES STAR IN PICTURE AT LOCAL THEATRE SUNDAY-MONDAY

Here are five good reasons to see Fox Film's hilarious, comedy-romance, "She Learned About Sailors," which opens at the Palace Theatre Sunday matinee and shows again Monday night.

Alice Faye, beautiful blonde, playing the role of a smart girl who sings in a night club in an Asiatic Oriental seaport; Lew Ayres, the champion heart-breaker of the U. S. Navy, who takes shore leave at this port and falls like a ton of bricks for the fair Faye; and many others who have good parts in the story.

Don't fail to see this great picture.

Most all of this year's cotton is out and sold and while this is a kind of vacation time for the farmers, we would appreciate a good rain.

Lewis Osborne and his sister in law came Tuesday from Mt. Calm to see his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Osborne. Both Mr. and Mrs. Osborne have been quite sick for several days.

C. W. Giesecke and wife visited his brother, Elmer and family at Duffau Monday.

Roy Nix, wife and young daughter are visiting his father, W. J. Nix and family this week. Roy is located at Peacock at present, being on the bridge gang of the Wichita and has been for several years.

C. H. Miller came in Tuesday from Dalhart where the past two weeks he has been looking after his interests up there.

John (Hun) Ludwig came in Saturday to visit his sister, Mrs. H. J. Howerton and other relatives. It has been several years since John was here. Some five years his relatives advertised for him when his sister was sick but failed to locate him. He says he is now located at San Antonio.

Herbert Miller and mother of Purvis were here visiting their sister and daughter Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Higginbotham and Sammie McCollum attended the spooks' meeting at Purvis last Friday night gotten up by Herbert Miller and his school for the benefit of the same.

C. G. Land and wife of near Duffau attended church here Sunday.

John Land and family have moved this week to one of L. L. Lane's farms in the Duffau district.

Wool sacks solved the drapery problems of Mrs. Julius Sadowky for her small son's room.

MRS. TERRY THOMPSON CELEBRATED 76TH BIRTHDAY AT HOME HERE SUNDAY

An occasion long to be remembered by Mrs. Terry Thompson was enjoyed Sunday at her home here when all of her children, with the exception of one son, John Thompson of Douglas, Arizona, gathered at her home to assist her in celebrating her 76th birthday anniversary.

The guests arrived early in the day and at the noon hour when they entered the dining room, their eyes fell upon a huge dining table containing turkey and all the trimmings. The table was centered with a large white birthday cake with the inscription in pink and green icing, "A happy birthday," with 76 tiny candles burning brightly perched upon the cake. This was surrounded by queen's wreath and the entire room was decorated with vari-colored cut flowers.

The day passed all too quickly, and Mrs. Thompson declared it to be a day of happiness and success. The honoree is a typical mother, and one who anticipates the visits of her children. She has lived in Hico for many years, and her friends are numbered by her acquaintances.

Those present for this happy occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Mahon of Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Wright of Cross Plains; Mrs. Oscar Cox and Jimmie Ruth Thompson of De Leon; Mrs. Gladys Cannon of Waco; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Thompson and son, Terry, and Mrs. Daisy Dankers and son, Jack, of Hico.

Mrs. Thompson received many nice and useful gifts from relatives and friends, and a number of greetings and cards in remembrance of the anniversary.

HOUSE-TRUCK BURNED

Having fulfilled its mission of providing conveyance and housing at the same time for Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Smith during their travels over many States, a truck on which living quarters were mounted was destroyed by fire shortly before midnight last Friday.

Although the truck had been discarded as a vehicle several months ago, and set aside by the camp house on the S. E. Blair farm west of town, it contained several items of wearing apparel, food-stuffs and household necessities, which were completely lost.

The Hico Fire Department answered a call turned in by someone who noticed the blaze, and saved adjacent property from damage.

New Radio Shop in Hico

Roy Burleson and J. D. Gaze have opened up a radio shop in the part of the Petty Building formerly occupied by J. P. Rodgers, Sr., and are ready to do electrical work and repair all kinds of radios and electrical appliances.

The firm is going by the name of B. & G. Radio-Electric Service. Both young men are well experienced in this line of work. For the past several months Roy has been employed in a radio shop in San Angelo.

The new proprietors say they will appreciate any kind of work in their line, and will guarantee each job.

Mrs. A. B. Cox of Brady is here visiting her mother, Mrs. W. P. Cuthbert.

STATE HEALTH OFFICER POINTS OUT DANGERS OF WHOOPING COUGH

Austin, Texas, Oct. 5.—"There is no other communicable disease as dangerous as whooping cough to the very young, and there is no other disease causing an equal amount of suffering of which parents show such an unaccountable disregard, not only for the safety of their own little ones, but also for the lives of the neighbor's children," said Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer. "There is no natural immunity against this disease during the first six months of life as there is against measles. It is at this age that whooping cough strikes its hardest blow and over 50 percent of the deaths occurring in children are under one year of age. The disease is usually transmitted by direct contact with the secretions of the mouth or nose, and only a very short exposure is required to contract the infection. Handkerchiefs, drinking cups and toys also may transmit the infection."

"The infection is communicable from the appearance of the first symptoms and is most contagious at this early period when the nature of the affection can only be suspected. The incubation period is commonly seven days. A slight fever, running of the nose and a cough make their appearance so gradually and insidiously that a diagnosis is practically impossible unless a history of exposure is obtained. When the "whoop" appears there is no mistaking the disease. If there is whooping cough in your community, keep other children away from your little children and keep your children at home. Call your physician early. Isolation of all cases for at least two weeks from the development of the characteristic cough should be rigidly enforced."

Contract Bridge Club Entertained By Mrs. Holford Tuesday

The Halloween motif was carried out in every detail at the home of Mrs. Roland L. Holford Tuesday afternoon of this week when she was hostess to members and guests of the Contract Bridge Club. Marigolds in jack o'lanterns were used for the floral decorations, and the suggestion was further accentuated in the tallies.

A salad course was served to Mesdames F. M. Mingus, H. F. Sellers, H. N. Wolfe, C. W. Bates, Charles Shelton, H. E. McCullough, C. L. Woodward, Misses Saralee Hudson and Irene Frank. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. R. F. Higgs, Mrs. Homer Tudor and Miss Christine Newsom of Stephenville.
