THE DIVORCE COURT MURDER

BY MILTON PROPPER

Fourth installment.
SYNOPSIS: Six persons are in an inner office of the law firm of Dawson, McQuire and Locke at Philadelphia. A master hearing in the divorce case of Rowland vs. Rowland is under way. Mrs. Rowland, represented by her lawyer, Mr. Willard, Mr. Rowland, the defendant and his attorney, Mr. Trumbull, the court clerk and Mr. Dawson, the master, are the six persons. There is a new development in the case. After failing to defend himself against the charge of adultery in earlier hearings, Mr. Rowland digs up evidence and asks the court's permission to produce witnesses and resist the suit. Judge Dawson overrules the heated objections of Mr. Willard, and orders Mr. Trumbull to bring in the first witness. Rowland's lawyer goes to get the witness but finds her dead—chloroformed. She is Mrs. Barbara Keith, wife of a prominent Philadelphia business man. Judge Dawson phoned for the police. Detective Tommy Rankin is assigned to the case. He is now questioning all of the parties involved in the case.

Mr. Simpson made the first surprised comment. "Why, that must be the... stuff, the criminal smothered her with Mr. Rankin," he exclaimed excitedly. "Why do you suppose he hid it in her purse? Surely that's a dangerous thing to do." The detective shrugged. "Why not? He couldn't carry it around and this is as safe a way to get rid of it as any."

Pocketing the checkbook, he returned the other articles casually to the handbag and addressed Mr. Dawson.

Rankin's voice showed his disappointment. "The door isn't latched," he announced. "I was afraid of that. Somebody in these offices has fastened the catch, which means that the whole world could have entered from the outside."

It was coincident with this startling discovery of the unlatched door that the telephone operator appeared at the door from the library to announce Dr. Sackett. The black-coated corner's physician entered behind her. He was followed by a photographer from Headquarters, and then by Johnson, the fingerprint expert. As soon as introductions had been made, Dr. Sackett, assisted by Dr. Clark, began his examination of the body. While Johnson was producing an insufflator and a magnifying glass from his kit for the detection of prints, Rankin cautioned him:

"Pay particular attention to the knobs of both doors and to the windows."

The expert acquiesced with a grunt. "While they're busy in here, we'd best continue the investigation in the library," Rankin suggested. "It's too crowded."

Accompanied by the two men he carried Mrs. Keith's pocketbook with him into the next room. It had been on the desk before her, a fine point-point bag.

In the library, Rankin went to the door into the main office, and beckoned Jenks.

"Here is your first job, Jenks," he said. "I want you to quit the entire force in there and learn what you can of their actions. I'm especially interested in finding out who came in here today—anyone at all, whether employees or clients—and when they did so."

Mr. Dawson shook his head. "If it's your object to learn who opened that door to fifteen-o-five, help you much. You really have no idea when it was unlocked, or by any of a dozen callers, who recently used the library."

"Except, Mr. Dawson," the detective countered, "that the criminal couldn't have foreseen until today—possibly not until Mrs. Keith arrived—that she would be in there, waiting alone. Do you recall the last time you noticed that latch on?"

"I have had occasion to try it or weeks, in fact. I haven't been using the office at all for longer than that. I'm only certain it wasn't opened by my key."

Rankin shrugged and spread his arms in a brief, comprehensive gesture.

He continued his instructions to Jenks. "See if any of the staff remembers finding the door locked more recently than Mr. Dawson does."

"At half past two, eh? And at what time did you leave her in that office to wait until you were ready for her testimony?"

"About ten minutes later, I should judge," the other replied. "Then Mr. Rowland went down to the street to dismiss the chauffeur, who was parked outside the building. She had ordered him to get her and use my car to get home."

"Are you certain," the detective probed, "he really went downstairs to speak to the chauffeur?"

The lawyer replied vigorously, in tones that brooked no doubt. "Positive, Mr. Rankin; in fact, I walked into the hall with him and saw him take the elevator. He was gone only a few minutes, less than five; I was phoning in the outer office when he returned."

"Then two-forty was the last time either of you saw her alive?" Rankin eyed him searchingly.

"You didn't enter fifteen-o-five again through either this library or the door from the hall, while you were out there?"

"Not until I found her dead," he returned. "We left her completely alone, Mr. Rowland and I went into Mr. Dawson's private office for the next ten minutes, where we could discuss today's strategy without being disturbed. I can vouch that he never left me the entire time, nor I him. Then Mr. Dawson arrived and we assembled for the hearing."

"Why was it arranged, Mr. Trumbull, that Mrs. Keith wait apart in there instead of outside in fifteen-o-seven? Had you some special reason for that?"

"It was done for privacy and to spare her all possible distress," the lawyer explained. "She was doing us a service in offering her evidence, but naturally, in her position, she desired no publicity. She even dressed inconspicuously. In the main office, under the eyes of employees and casual visitors, she would have felt uncomfortable. And she couldn't stay in the library with Mrs. Rowland and Mr. Willard; that would have been even more embarrassing."

"Perhaps I can best make progress with this case, Mr. Trumbull," he mentioned him to a chair—"by clearing up what happened here this afternoon before the meeting. But first I need information about Mrs. Keith. You stated at the hearing, I believe, that she is connected with a leading family in the city?"

"So she is, Mr. Rankin," Mr. Trumbull returned. "Mrs. Barbara Keith is the wife of Mortimer Keith and lives in Chestnut Hill at the Aldwick Apartments."

Obviously impressed, the detective raised his eyebrows and vented a low whistle.

"Mortimer Keith," he repeated, "the silk manufacturer?"

Once more, he could plead an affair familiarity with a name involved in the tragedy. Few indeed in Philadelphia had not heard of the Keith family, distinguished historically and politically since the American Revolution. Mortimer Keith was the last of his line, molded in the family tradition, austere, upright and reserved. When his ancestors' estate was threatened by depletion, his dominating personality and enterprising rebuilt both. He was well into middle age, Rankin vaguely recalled, when he married a beautiful woman much his junior, about four years earlier.

Whatever the previous importance of the crime, because of the prominence of the divorce action, it paled into insignificance before this new revelation. Murder was always murder; but the identity of the dead witness—no plebeian citizen or mere menial—gave it additional promise of being a genuine cause celebre.

"Yes, that's who she is," the lawyer replied to his query, "Mrs. Mortimer Keith."

"Then her husband will have to be notified of what's happened at once. I'll want to question him about Mrs. Keith as promptly as possible."

Cute as can be. Makes pictures about 3 inches long. You hold the Kodak up to high level. Price $1.00. We have them in stock.

How long before the meeting began today did you arrive with Mrs. Keith?

Then they had already arrived before you?

"Yes, I suppose so since they came earlier than I and waited for Mr. Dawson here. In fact, they were here when Mr. Rowland entered fifteen-o-seven with Mrs. Keith; he came out at once and closed this door between the rooms. So they saw us leave her at two-forty."

Rankin nodded. "Had they any idea in advance that it was she who would be Mr. Rowland's leading witness against them? That her name mentioned, for instance, is, before she arrived today? Was in your written defense?"

Mr. Trumbull's forehead wrinkled in a frown of uncertainty and reflection.

"No, the answer I filed was purely formal and withheld all the essential details. And considering the nature of Mrs. Keith's evidence, I don't believe his wife was in a position to learn her identity."

Continued Next Week.

LET US MAKE YOUR VACATION TRIP SAFER

Recent tests by a leading University show that Firestone High Speed Non-Skid Tires stop a car 15% quicker than any other of the leading makes.

For eight consecutive years Firestone Tires have been on the winning car in the dangerous Pike's Peak Race where a skid means death.

2 "Are they blowout-proof?"
 Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have the most amazing records for being blowout-proof of any tires ever built. In the gruelling 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis, May 30th, every one of the 33 cars was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Not one of the 33 drivers had tire trouble of any kind.

Ab Jenkins drove his 5,000 pound car on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over the hot salt beds of Utah, 3,000 miles, averaging 127.2 miles per hour, with temperatures as high as 120°, without tire trouble of any kind.

3 "Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

Firestone High Speed Tires not only give you more than 50% longer wear, but also lowest cost per mile. In fact, unequalled mileage records of thousands of car owners add undisputed evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

Equip your car with a set of Firestone Gum-Dipped Non-Skid Tires, the safest tires ever built and avoid the dangers of skidding and blowouts.

AVOID THE DANGER OF BLOWOUTS

Firestone removes the danger of blowouts by preventing their main cause—internal friction and heat. This is accomplished by Gum-Dipping.

THERE ARE THREE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS THAT WILL SOLVE YOUR PROBLEM OF WHAT TIRES TO BUY:

- "Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"
- "Are they blowout-proof?"
- "Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

University tests show Firestone High Speed Tires stop car 15% quicker.

Gum-Dipped cords give greater blowout protection. Gum-Dipping is not used in other tires.

Wider, flatter tread gives more than 50% longer non-skid wear.

Beneath what appeared to be another handkerchief, he found a small bottle.

"I think I'm ready now to inquire what the others, besides your force, can tell me of the tragedy," he announced. "I'll question your partners first."

"Neither of them is here, Mr. Rankin," the lawyer informed him. "Mr. Locke is in New York on an important case—gone since Monday. Mr. MacQuire is playing in a golf tournament this afternoon."

"Then I'll question the immediate parties to the hearing, and their lawyers. One at a time; if you'll be good enough to have Mr. Trumbull come in, I'll start with him."

When summoned, Allen Rowland's attorney entered the library from Mr. Dawson's office. Although still under thirty-five, he looked at least fifty years older.

After Mr. Dawson introduced him the detective began without further preliminaries.

"Perhaps I can best make progress with this case, Mr. Trumbull," he mentioned him to a chair—"by clearing up what happened here this afternoon before the meeting. But first I need information about Mrs. Keith. You stated at the hearing, I believe, that she is connected with a leading family in the city?"

He summoned the remaining policeman from the outer room and imparted directions for communicating with the manufacturer.

"Now, Mr. Trumbull," Rankin continued, after the officer had gone, "how long before the meeting began today did you arrive with Mrs. Keith?"

Mr. Trumbull shook his head. "I didn't bring her at all, Mr. Rankin. I came here alone and Mr. Rowland accompanied her into town. It was arranged that he go after her to her residence in Chestnut Hill, and join me here. I reached here about two-twenty-five; they drove in with Mrs. Keith's chauffeur five minutes afterward."

Sunday School Lesson

by Rev. Charles E. Duane

MOSES.
Lesson for July 7th. Exodus 24: 3-8.
Golden Text: Psalm 33:12.

Moses was one of the greatest leaders the world has ever seen. His people, exiled in Egypt, and pressed into compulsory building operations, needed a resourceful champion to argue them, bind them together in a well integrated arm, and persuade them they could successfully escape. Such was Moses, God's man of destiny.

He was the third child of Jochebed who hid him 3 months that he might escape the death decreed by the king for male babies. Then placing him in a chest, or ark made of papyrus stalks, coated with slime, she set him afloat on the Nile, where he was discovered by Pharaoh's daughter Thermutis. She had come to bathe in the sacred waters of the river, and her heart was touched with pity at the sight of the weeping babe. At once she took him home where he became her adopted son, and received the education of an Egyptian prince. Thus he grew learned in the lore of the Egyptian traditions. Moreover, according to Josephus, he was appointed general of the Egyptian army, defeating the Ethiopians, and was slated to be king.

But the privileges of the court and the army did not wean him away from his suffering people. He remained a patriotic Hebrew with a capacity for righteous though overzealous indignation. Exited by the sight of an Egyptian cruelly abusing a fellow Hebrew, he killed the tyrant, and hid his body in the sand. News of this murder reaching the ears of Pharaoh, Moses was compelled to flee to Midian, east of the Jordan, where he acquired that discipline, forbearance, and first hand communion with God which stood him in such good stead in the flight from Egypt and the wilderness.

What prophet! And what a lawgiver! His greatest achievement was to unite the Israelites in the worship of the one God.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, July 3.—A good many of the boys on Capitol Hill had the idea that after they had passed the bill extending what is left of N. R. A. until next April, and the necessary appropriation bills, they would have a chance to go back home and fix up their political fences. But the President wouldn't let them. He insisted that they must stay in session until they passed the Guffey Soft Coal Regulation Bill, the Social Security Bill, the Wagner Labor Disputes Bill, the Eccles Banking Bill, the amendments to the A. A. A. and a few other of the Administration's pet measures.

As if it were not punishment enough for them to have had to listen to Huey Long talking nearly 16 hours at a stretch, in his effort to hold up the N. R. A. Bill, now the Senators and Representatives have got to stick around in Washington's sticky sub-tropical summer climate for an indefinite period—perhaps all summer.

Perhaps it's the hot weather and perhaps it is worry over the political outlook for the 1936 elections, but it is a fact that throughout the Administration and in the halls of Congress tempers are being strained to the point of explosion, long smoldering jealousies and personal antagonisms are bursting into flame, and anything but peace and harmony prevails.

O'Neill Heads N. R. A.
The new "skeleton" N. R. A. has the extremely difficult job of trying to show voluntary trade organizations how they can operate as a unit to enforce fair business practices without violating the Anti-Trust Laws. James L. O'Neill, a vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, is the new administrator of N. R. A. Donald Richberg is completely out.

With the death of the old N. R. A. the Federal Alcohol Control Administration passed out of existence and what to set up in its place is puzzling both administration leaders and Congress. The old pre-prohibition laws were pretty effective. The Treasury was charmed with collecting taxes on every barrel of beer and gallon of whiskey, the Coast Guard and the Border Patrol had the task of preventing the smuggling of illicit liquor, and the old Webb-Kenyon Act rather effectively controlled the shipment of intoxicants from wet states into dry states.

Something approaching a revival of these old laws is under consideration, but the Treasury balks at taking the responsibility for running down moonshiners, while the Department of Justice does not want to have to set up anything like the old Prohibition Enforcement Unit.

Farmers Heard From
Opposition to the Transportation Bill, which would have control of highway busses and trucks under the Interstate Commerce Commission, as well as providing for railroad reorganization, has developed from an unexpected source—the farmers.

Nobody knows how many farmers there are who deliver their own products by their own trucks across state lines, but apparently there are many of them. Members of Congress from the rural districts are beginning to hear from them, protesting against the proposal to impose special taxes and regulations upon them.

As was forecast in these dispatches, Harry Hopkins is the winner over Harold Ickes in the dispute over how the Work Relief money will be spent. Mr. Ickes, as administrator of the P. W. A., wanted the public money spent under his jurisdiction to go into permanent and useful public improvements, such as slum clearance, grade crossing elimination, highway work on main roads, and housing. But Mr. Hopkins, Relief Administrator, has orders from the President to use the $4,000,000 fund in such a way as to put 3,500,000 men to work taking them of the relief rolls.

Simple arithmetic division of $4,000,000 by 3,500,000 gives a quotient of less than $1.200. Mr. Ickes' projects would require the spending of much more than half of the available fund for materials, leaving only a small fraction for wages. So the Hopkins program will have to be confined to kinds of work that can be done without buying great quantities of costly materials.

Sidelights and Rumors
There is a growing here a decided expectation that either Mr. Ickes will be forced out of the Administration or else that he will blow up and quit. The friction between the Secretary of the Interior and other high-ranking members of the Administration becomes more serious from day to day.

Donald Richberg, although leaving office, is still close to the President. He and Felix Frankfurter are rival legal advisers to the President. They have some what different points of view, and nobody is ever sure to which of them the President will listen. Neither of them is a particularly good politician; nor for that matter is any other high administration official except the President himself, now that Mr. Farley is reported about to leave the Cabinet.

Capitol Hill, on the other hand, fairly swarms with good politicians, which is one reason why every measure is being carefully considered with an eye to its probable political effect. The boys are beginning to suspect that they are going to have a fight on their hands in the 1936 elections, and it is more true than ever before that every move of any kind that is made with one eye upon the presidential contest next year.

Republicans, while not exactly jubilant, are talking more hopefully than at any time since 1932. The repercussions of the Springfield Grass Roots Convention are beginning to be heard, and they indicate more interest throughout the country in the future of the Republican Party, than had been anticipated.

RAMBLING ROUND NEW YORK

A New York night club proprietor is looking for six foot chorus girls who can ride horses. It's for his production, "Jumbo."

Don't make any wise cracks about the chap who wears a monocle in his left eye. It might be genuine, for the rank and file with the plain glass circles usually wear them on the right!

Drama puzzle: why do you like such a thoroughly disreputable character as The Scoundrel as portrayed by Noel Coward in Hecht and Mac Arthur's movie?

Sidewalk cafes are blooming—and more popular than ever in New York this summer.

A little girl tricycling along the Mall in Central Park with a side car riding a sleeping one year old dog hanging on to a nipple bottle. Whose idea could that have been?

The greatest summer luxury in New York is leaving New York. Grand Central and Pennsylvania Stations are crowded with weekenders every Friday and Saturday these days.

A recent week-end with the Edwin Howards in the Westport home which is a replica of the one designed by Mr. Howard and built within W. & J. Sloane's Fifth Avenue store and called "Sloane's Little House," some three or four years ago. The living room should really be called "The Great Hall." I think, for the feeling it gives you of horizontal spaciousness—in spite of the fact that the house was designed to be constructed for less than $5,000!

"The Lady of the Fountain" in the Plaza at Fifth Avenue and 59th Street, has been screened from view for nearly two years while repairs were being made to the fountain. At last she's back in public life.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

It is just 150 years since that little group of men gathered in Independence Hall in Philadelphia and affixed their names to the document which launched the United States of America upon its venturesome course. To any student of history it must be clear that these signers of The Declaration of Independence were those in whom two qualities of character predominated—determination and outrage. As Benjamin Franklin remarked, when he called upon all of those present to affix their signatures to the Declaration:

"If we don't hang together we will surely hang separately."

They literally took their lives in their hands, these rebellious subjects of the King of England who, as Woodrow Wilson phrased it, "felt themselves to be free men of England, and as free Englishmen could not tolerate the tyranny and oppression of the English King." They had no distinct idea of founding a new nation, these signers of The Declaration of Independence. They were the representatives of thirteen colonies, each of which had suffered grievances which its people could no longer bear, and each of which asserted its rights as a free and independent nation. They could not win that independence except by acting in common; but on the Fourth of July, 1776, it is doubtful whether any of them looked forward to anything more than a temporary alliance for war. The idea of a united group of nations as a permanent institution had hardly been born at that time.

From that little gathering in Philadelphia, however, has arisen the richest and most powerful nation the world has ever seen. The basic principle of human liberty embodied in The Declaration of Independence, is the foundation upon which our whole national existence and progress have been based.

THE WOMAN'S ANGLE

For hot weather, everyone seems to go for cold meals in a big way—and they have the advantage of being easily prepared. Cold cuts and tartar sauce is easily made by waiting until ready to serve and then mixing a tablespoon each of chopped pickle and chopped olives and 1-2 cup chopped parsley to a half cup of mayonnaise.

Fish in lemon aspic is simply prepared in advance for cold meals. Put two tablespoons gelatine in a quarter cup of water. Add a quarter cup hot water, a quarter teaspoon lemon salt, a tablespoon sugar, six tablespoons lemon juice. Cool, and then add one and a half cups of cooked flaked fish. Turn into a mold that has been rinsed in cold water. Chill, remove from mold and serve with tartar sauce.

Tomatoes have practically the same vitamin content as oranges. They may readily be used as a variant in the well balanced diet.

While one city may prefer to buy white eggs, another favors the brown shells. But the smart thing to do is to buy the cheaper of the two, for they both contain the same proportions of calcium, phosphorus, iron, vitamins A, B, and D, and the proteins and fats are the same, too.

FAIRYTES DOWN CLIFTON BY CLOSE SCORE SUNDAY

Marching to the mound with bokkins of fire in his big brown eyes, "Peavine" Trantham led the Clifton squad down last Sunday with a bang! "Even though his habit of pitching while intoxicated prohibited the home team from being victorious awhile back," he emerged with twelve strikeouts last Sunday, and allowed only four hits.

Hess filled his regular place behind the bat, and having tucked his cigar into a young lady's purse, chattered away, while the fans were being led to believe that "Baby Ray" Miller's ludicrous playing on first was due to the fact that one of the fans who recently resided in the Hackett home was present. During all this, we wonder if you spectators happened to see the second baseman—little Bucky Bridges, as he blithely displayed his benefaction of swell baseball playing to enthrall the crowd! A broad grin spread over the fair young countenance of "Butter Finger" Allison, as he gently drove the ball over the infield two times for a couple of singles. As a labyrinth of fans gathered around home plate to watch little "Panther" Proffitt speed around the diamond to make the first score for Fairy, the Clifton players and cronies lapsed into a down-hearted mood for the remainder of the game, or battle; which would you call it? The scoring of the day for Fairy was done by Hess, Proffitt and B. Bridges. That of Clifton by Rockway and Alexander. Until the latter part of the game, the scores were tied, but how can any team be superior to that of Fairy, when the Tigers really take a notion to "do something?"

"Fluffy" J. Bridges was rather rapturous as he bagged a couple of flies out in right field. This coxcomb young gentleman contemplated his every move with premonition. The "languid" minor-league "Mule" Herricks seemed slightly spiritless, as he didn't get a chance to hold his former reputation in the air. "Why did some of those Cliftoners not knock 'Mule' a fly? someone asked well, well, well, 'you're asking me!!' The coy "Johnson" Tommy Pitts was roused from his stupor when he was forced to assist in four put outs.

With nine little baseball players always ready to put forth every effort in behalf of those who are supporting them, in their fights for victory, there should be no complaint from those who offer no encouragement to the members of "our" ball team for any ordinary human ears!!!

Why do things like this happen? An elderly woman brushed against a younger on Fifth Avenue, apologized and went on. Not until she reached home did the younger woman discover why people stared at her. Her new spring coat had been slashed down the back from collar to the very hem!
