VOLUME LI HICO, TEXAS, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1935. NUMBER 18.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Sept. 10.—The President, after a short vacation, is going on the road to sell the New Deal to the people of the United States. In his sample case he will carry a line of new goods, produced under his direction by the 74th Congress in its first session.

First on his list of goods is the Social Security Act, with old age pensions for everybody and unemployed insurance for industrial workers. Mr. Roosevelt regards this as perhaps his choicest piece of merchandise. In the cities he will show the Wagner Labor Disputes Act, with its protection of the right of collective bargaining, while in the rural districts he will exhibit the amendments to the Agricultural Administration Act and the revised Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage law.

For everybody's benefit, the President can display the new Banking Act, increasing the Federal Reserve Board's control of credit; the act for the Federal regulation of public utility holding companies; the interstate bus and truck regulation act, and the billion-dollar appropriation for national defense.

Also, in Sample Case—The bulkier item in his sample case is the $4,800,000,000 appropriation for Work Relief. It is calculated to appeal strongly to people of every section and class. How much of a display Mr. Roosevelt will make of the new income tax law is a bit doubtful. Congress did not construct that according to his specifications, since the main feature which he urged, the inheritance tax, was omitted. However it will serve as it stands as evidence of his intention to carry out the promise of his inaugural address, of a more equitable distribution of wealth.

For the coal miners and the bituminous coal industry he can point with justifiable pride to the Guffey-Snyder Act, applying NIRA principles to the soft coal industry. For railroad workers, he can point to the Wagner-Crosser railway pension law.

Those are only the major items of New Deal legislation enacted at the session of Congress just ended. There is still much unfinished business in both Houses. Left hanging in the air are the Pure Food and Drug bill, ship subsidy legislation, war-profits regulation (although a neutrality resolution prohibiting sales of war supplies to belligerents was rushed through in the closing hours of the session), regulation of commodity exchanges, regulation of water transportation, the Bankhead farm tenant relief bill, the Black 30-hour week bill, and the Wagner plan for general prohibition of child labor.

OLDEST BROTHER OF MRS. WILLIE PLATT SAW SERVICE THROUGH CIVIL WAR

Telling something of the life of Albert Glass, Minden's "Grand Old Man," a Louisiana paper recently carried the following article which concerns the oldest brother of Mrs. Willie Platt of Hico: MINDEN, La., Aug. 26.—Alberta Glass, sole surviving veteran of the war between the states living in Webster parish, observed his nineteenth birthday anniversary here on Sunday, Aug. 25. Nearly a century ago Albert Glass, pioneer resident of Minden, first saw the light of day. Not only is Mr. Glass sole survivor here of the greatest conflict on this continent, but he is also the oldest living alumnus of Louisiana State university.

Mr. Glass was a student at the Louisiana State university when the university was located near Alexandria in Rapides parish. General William Tecumseh Sherman was the superintendent of cadets at the state university when Mr. Glass was a student. General Sherman returned north in April of 1861 to join the Northern forces. Cadet Glass returned to his home in Webster parish to enlist in the Southern army.

Cadet Glass served during the duration of the war. He saw service from Louisiana to Virginia, spending much of his military activities with the Southern army in Virginia, returning home to Webster parish to live the balance of his days in peace. No, there was no peace, for the end of the war in April, 1865, was not the end of the war—but a mere end to warfare in the field.

Agriculture was just able to breathe; commerce had died; trade had fled. Only men and women of the stoutest hearts and determination hoped for a better day and fought to bring that day to light. Schools closed after the war and during the period of reconstruction the state university reopened in Baton Rouge in one building, and the tuition fee was paid in farm products. Teachers taught without pay, but a stout federal force was maintained in the barracks, now the site of the state capital in Baton Rouge.

But the new day came even to Louisiana; the darkness of reconstruction disappeared, and with the dawn came peace, schools and the social order; a revival of agriculture, booming commerce—a larger and wealthier population. It is to such men as Mr. Glass Louisiana owes thanks for the great cities, railroads, high schools, great universities, colleges, free public libraries and marvelous highways. And above all does this generation owe thanks to the men and women of yesterday for the peace, the democratic form of government, and all of the things which make life today. A host of friends throughout this city and section today are extending congratulations to Mr. Glass.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bell and twin daughters of Groesbeck were in Hico and Carlton over the week end visiting relatives and friends. Marvin renewed for the News Review while in Hico, and said they were well pleased with their lumber business in Groesbeck.

NOTICE

Fast driving and traffic violations in the city of Hico have become so prevalent that we must ask the cooperation of all drivers in enforcing the laws. Present practices endanger the lives of citizens, children especially, and we want the violations stopped before someone is killed. Voluntary cooperation will be appreciated, and willful reckless driving will result in the violator's being brought into court.

Caring for the Pullets.

Greatest profits in egg production are realized when proper care and management are given to the pullets. When the old hens are in a molt in the fall and egg prices begin to soar, then more care should be taken to get the pullets into production and keep them in production.

The important points to note in caring for the pullets are: First, getting them into production at the proper age; second, feeding so as to produce a good sized egg; and third, keeping them in production through the fall and winter.

Before the pullets ever start laying they should be moved into permanent winter quarters, as a change in houses after production starts may result in a partial molt, which will stop egg production for a while.

The time for pullets to start laying is from five to six months of age for Leghorns and from six to seven months for heavier breeds, provided the pullets have been fed and grown up properly. Some pullets, however, will start production as early as four months of age. Eggs from early maturing pullets like this are usually small, but the owner of the pullets should not try to hold the whole flock back for only a few of the early maturing pullets.

With this in mind a laying mash should be fed the pullets around four and a half months for both heavy and light breeds.

The only difference between the laying mash and the growing mash is 5 per cent bone meal in place of 5 per cent of the meat scrap. This makes the ration for growing chicks as follows: Yellow corn meal, 20 per cent. Ground oats, 20 per cent. Wheat bran, 20 per cent. Wheat shorts, 20 per cent. Meat scraps, 15 per cent. Bone meal, 5 per cent. With the increase of meat scrap 5 per cent for the laying ration, eliminate the 5 per cent bone meal. The good poultry man will get his pullets in good condition before they start production for two reasons: First, the fat pullet will lay a larger egg, because the yolk of the egg will be increased in size due to the large amount of yolk producing material in the pullet's body; the other reason is to help keep the pullet from going into a false neck molt. The pullet that is hatched early in the year has a tendency to start producing early, and before winter her body gets run down from heavy production and she goes into a fall molt to build her body up again. The careful poultry man, however, will watch the weight of his pullets and will increase the amount of scratch grain if the weight of the pullets starts down.

The public has a cordial invitation and we especially urge the members to be at all these services.

We have more than a welcome for you—a message of life.

Roup and chicken pox are the most dreaded diseases among pullets in the fall and winter. The best cure is prevention, and these diseases may best be prevented by housing in quarters that are dry, free from draughts, yet with proper ventilation and plenty of sunshine. Vaccination for chicken pox has proved well worth while, but the poultryman must be sure to get his vaccine from a reliable dealer.

Roup and chicken pox are very prevalent in the fall when there is a great deal of cold, damp weather. Every precaution should be taken to keep the young pullets protected from such weather. On days when the weather is bad, the pullets should be kept up in their dry, clean houses, where there is ample straw on the floor for litter. By keeping the pullets housed on such days it also keeps them nearer the most hoppers. The increased consumption of mash means an increase in egg production.

Lights are being used more and more by commercial egg producers. It does increase egg production by increasing the length of hours that the pullets have for working. It is not a desirable practice to put hens or pullets under artificial lights as the forcing of egg production has a tendency to lower the vitality of the chickens' body, and this of course lowers the value of the eggs as hatching eggs.

The pullets need plenty of green feed through the fall and winter. The best green feed is that green feed the poultryman can most easily get. The green feeds for poultry in order of importance are as follows: Alfalfa, clover of all kinds, rape, wheat, oats, kale, dill, beets, turnips, and turnip greens.

SENATOR HUEY P. LONG OF LOUISIANA IS VICTIM OF ASSASSIN'S BULLET SUNDAY

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 10.—The State that Huey P. Long ruled with a dictatorial hand prepared tonight to give him a state funeral and burial in the shadow of the monumental Capitol he built, while a struggle began to determine whether the power he wielded is to be passed on.

The 42-year-old United States Senator, former Governor, "share the wealth" advocate and potential presidential candidate, died early today the victim of an assassin's bullet.

Stunned by the suddenness of his passing, his lieutenants sought to keep together the amazing political machine he created and directed single-handed.

Shot through the abdomen by a young, mild mannered Baton Rouge physician, Dr. Carl A. Weiss, Jr. in the corridor of the Statehouse Sunday night, Senator Long had been in a grave condition since. Five blood transfusions and an operation, and the physical stamina and determination that had carried him to a unique place in American politics, had not been enough to save his life.

His assassin, a 29-year-old man who was known to oppose bitterly but passively Senator Long's policies, was slain on the spot by body-guards of the Senator.

Control of Long's Louisiana empire was in confusion as his lieutenants sought to solidify their ranks and preserve the power they inherited.

Plans for the funeral arrangements are in the hands of a committee composed of Governor Allen, Seymour Weiss, New Orleans hotel manager and treasurer of the Long organization; Earl Long, his brother, and Earl L. Christenberry, the Senator's secretary.

Mrs. Long and her three children, Rose, Russell and Palmer Reid, who were at the bedside when the Senator died, left shortly afterward for their hotel and were holding up bravely. Later they returned to their New Orleans home. Tears were in the eyes of Governor Allen and others close to the Long regime.

Keeping Up With TEXAS

Gov. James V. Alfred said Monday that at the start of the coming special legislative session, next week, he would submit the subject of vitalizing the amendment repealing the fee system and placing local officers on a salary basis. The old-age pension will be another subject to be submitted at this time.

The department of agriculture said Tuesday a cotton crop this year of 11,489,000 bales of 500 lbs. gross weight was indicated by September 1 conditions. A month ago a crop of 11,798,000 bales was indicated. Last year's production was 9,636,559 bales and the 1933 crop totaled 12,947,626 bales. Ginnings of this year's crop to September 1 was reported by the census bureau as 1,132,739 running bales, counting round as half bales. To that date last year ginnings were 1,402,845 and two years ago, 1,369,139 bales.

Texas applications for public works loans and grants totaling more than $20,000,000 have been turned down by Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, because their cost per man year is considered too high, it was learned Tuesday. Rejection of the Texas requests, one of the largest state groups turned down, was disclosed at the same time reports showed that although President Roosevelt allotted $909,000,000 of the four billion dollar works relief appropriation for public works projects on the loan and grant basis, only about $125,000,000 has as yet been allotted to projects of this character and only one week remains before the deadline.

Twenty-five years after the alleged crime, a reward was offered Tuesday for the apprehension of a man accused of murder. The reward of $250 was posted by Governor Alfred for the apprehension of Ben B. Myatt, charged in Falls County for the murder of his wife on July 22, 1910. The county sheriff recently asked the reward be posted, stating they were "working on" the case, according to the Governor's office.

Charley Brown, Dublin blacksmith, is in a critical condition in that city from injuries received when the walls of his shop collapsed. He was in the doorway when the walls fell. His neck was broken and his body almost completely paralyzed. Little hope is held for his recovery.

Chain letters made their appearance in Dallas again Wednesday, this time in the interest of a memorial fund to the memory of the man who killed Huey Long. The letters asked that the recipient mail $1 to Mrs. Carl A. Weiss, Jr. of Baton Rouge, widow of the surgeon who shot Long and was in turn killed by Long's bodyguards. The recipient also was asked to make five copies of the letter and send them to friends.

Police in Fort Worth learned of the meanness burglar in town Tuesday night he rifled the safe of the Salvation Army used clothes depot at 1306 Main Street. But for all his trouble the crasher (a rear door) the yegman got only 6 cents out of the open safe. Capt. G. Ribble discovered the loss when he opened the place Wednesday morning. "If he will come around today I'll give him something to do that won't be such hard work and poor pay," said the captain.

Welding
... the best way to make a perfect union of two pieces of metal is by welding them together.

... and the best way to get a more pleasing flavor and a better taste in a cigarette is by welding together the different types of tobacco ...

That is just what we do in making CHESTERFIELD Cigarettes—the three types of mild ripe home-grown tobaccos, that is tobaccos grown in this country, are welded together. Then they are welded with aromatic Turkish.

When these tobaccos are welded together you get a combined flavor which is entirely different from any one type of tobacco.

It is this welding of the right amounts of the right kind of tobaccos that makes CHESTERFIELD a milder and better-tasting cigarette.

THE DIVORCE COURT MURDER

BY MILTON PROPPER

Fourteenth installment.
SYNOPSIS—Barbara Keith, wife of a prominent Philadelphia business man, is murdered as she waits alone in a side room to testify in the divorce case of Rowland vs. Rowland. She was to have testified for the husband, a friend, who was defendant in the action. Detective Tommy Rankin is assigned to the case from police headquarters. His preliminary investigation disclosed that both Mr. and Mrs. Rowland had gathered evidence against the other of infidelity. The will of Mrs. Rowland's first husband directed her lawyer brother, Mr. Willard, to handle the estate until she remarried when the new husband was to come into control. Detective Rankin finds motives and the evidence of guilt for the murder of Mrs. Keith, leading to the doors of virtually all of the principals are the two Rowlands, Mr. Willard, Mr. Keith, husband of the murdered woman, Hugh Campbell, paramour of Mrs. Rowland, and his underworld confederates.

once permitted herself to confide in me. When I asked how she got into this trouble, she didn't try to justify herself, but only Garrett. He wasn't naturally bad, she claimed, and she did her best to stop him from going wrong. But he admired his friend's smartness and his influence, and the temptation of easy money was too much for him. I could tell she clearly feared and despised the fellow."

Rankin presented himself, by appointment made over the telephone at the law office of Mr. Nathan Lewis. Evidently the lawyer had prospered since the day, six years before, when he was appointed by the court, an impetuous young lawyer, to defend Ellen Trent.

gating in the East. Her name is Barbara Keith and she was once your client, charged with concealing and disposing of stolen goods. You knew her as Ellen Trent."

pose he realized her opposition and enmity."
"He could hardly help it, the way she always tried to persuade Garrett to break away. It was a continual struggle for ascendancy over him; she told me that when she'd almost win him away, Dennis could bring him back to heel with a word."
"But the police didn't catch him even with her information?" Rankin vouchsafed.
Mr. Lewis toyed with a pen on his desk and pushed back his chair as he replied.
"No, he escaped again," he related, "by the skin of his teeth, just before they broke in."
"And nothing was heard of him afterward? No trace of his whereabouts?"
The lawyer shook his head. "No, he dropped completely out of the picture."
"But at least you have Miss Trent's description of him," the detective put in.
"The police could give you that," Mr. Lewis replied. "It was their job to hunt him. And I believe they still hold such of Dennis' possessions as didn't have other rightful owners."
"In that case, I'll want to see them at once," abruptly Rankin rose and extended his hand.
But instead of shaking hands, Mr. Lewis glanced at his watch and also rose.
"If you don't mind, Mr. Rankin," he said, "I'd like to go along with you to Headquarters. Recalling how favorably the girl impressed me, I'm interested in the case and wish to learn what develops. In fact, if Dennis is responsible for her murder, I feel almost involved in it myself."
"Why certainly, Mr. Lewis," the detective returned pleasantly. "You're quite welcome to join me and follow it up."
The lawyer had put into words the possibility to which his investigations and all the information he obtained on this journey pointed. Certainly, Fred Dennis had ample reason for harboring malice against Ellen Trent and desiring her death. From the beginning, her opposition to his control over her sweetheart, Garrett, constantly threatened to disrupt his plans and endanger his criminal enterprises. Then, with Dave Garrett's death, her more active hostility resulted calamitously for him. She made him a fugitive from justice. It was hardly likely that a man of his character, vicious and revengeful, yet astute and daring, would hesitate to commit murder in retaliation.
He was familiar with Barbara Keith's past and in a position to disclose it; and as part of his revenge, he could blackmail her by anonymously calling her husband's attention to them, he would establish her relations with Garrett and her prison sentence as a thief. He might even have been aware of the expected baby. To silence him, Mrs. Keith would undoubtedly have been willing to pay dearly.

Continued Next Week.

T. L. Tension, cashier of the Texas prison system, has remitted $61,255.83 to the state treasury. The sum included $55,000, he said, from the sale of 1935 cotton. So far this season, 1446 bales have been sold for a total of $89,492.36. Prison officials estimate the convicts will pick 3000 bales. "The cotton season is now in its peak in the system," Tension said. At this time last year, the cotton crop had brought in $96,000. Cut worms and a reduction in the acreage has hurt this year.

YOUR SCHOOLS ARE AT THE Cross Roads

Tax assessments for school purposes are made uniform, contemplating collection of each year's levies as they mature. For several years local payments have lagged, thus bringing about a condition which has become serious.

The board of the Hico County Line Independent School District in a recent meeting made a survey of the situation and found that the local schools are at the cross roads. Unless collections are made on a great amount of delinquent taxes the standard must be lowered. This would not be fair to those who pay the taxes as they accumulate.

Therefore it was decided that unless delinquent taxes are paid by October 15th, suits will be instituted to force collection of same. There is another alternative, however, which would be far better for all parties concerned.

Timothy. Lesson for September 15th. 2 Tim. 1:1-14. Golden Text: 2 Tim. 2:15. Of all Paul's friends Timothy makes the strongest appeal both because he was associated with the apostle for a longer period than any other, and was bound to him by the ties of a very ardent affection. "My own son in the faith" Paul lovingly calls him (1 Tim. 1:2).

Timothy was nurtured at Lystra by a Jewish mother and a Greek father. He was carefully instructed in the Holy Scriptures by both his mother and grandmother (2 Tim. 1:5, and 3:15). It is probable that he witnessed the stoning of Paul by the citizens of Lystra, and saw him dragged from the city as though dead. Perhaps he helped to carry the wounded apostle back to safety and friendship, and assisted in the bathing of his wounds. It may even be that Paul was entertained at Lystra in Timothy's home. At any rate, Timothy was converted by this visit of Paul's, and became his travelling-companion after the rites of circumcision and ordination had been performed.

And what devoted service he gave! While others were fickle and wavering, Timothy, as a "good minister of Jesus Christ" gave the very best he had. No wonder Paul, in notifying the Philippians that he hoped to send Timothy to them, wrote, "I have no one likeminded with him, who will cherish a genuine care for you. Everybody concerns himself about his own interests, not about those of Jesus Christ. But you know Timothy's approved worth." (Phil. 2:20-22). Here is fidelity indeed.

This faithfulness persisted to the end. For Timothy was with the worn-out Paul as he rotted away in his filthy Roman prison, giving him, we may be sure, real cheer and comfort. Perhaps he accompanied the intrepid apostle to the place of his execution. We do not know. But we can be certain that Timothy, to the last, remained true to Paul's gospel.

Sport Fans Follow The American Boy

Boys and young men of this city who wish to improve their tennis service, their basketball-shooting eyes, their forward passing talent, or their crawl stroke, can enlist the aid of the nation's foremost coaches and players by subscribing to THE AMERICAN BOY magazine and following the sports interviews and fiction stories that appear each month.

"When I was in high school," says a famous decathlon champion, "I read a track article in THE AMERICAN BOY that gave me my first clear-cut idea of the western style of high jumping. At practice I laid the open magazine on the grass and studied it as I worked out. That afternoon I increased the height of my jump three inches."

That was a long time ago, but today thousands of future champions just as eagerly follow THE AMERICAN BOY.

"This year," states Griffith Ogden Ellis, editor, "our staff writers have gone to the two greatest football teams of the country—Minnesota and Pittsburgh—for first-hand tips on strategy, blocking, tackling, passing, and the fine points of play. They have interviewed Jack Medina, the world's fastest swimmer, and his coach, Ray Daughters, Gone to Eastern High School of Washington, D. C. Eastern Interscholastic basketball champions. In the past they have followed the Grapefruit Circuit of the major leagues in Florida, sat on the bench at the Rose Bowl, sought out the famous runners, divers, all-American ends, tackles, and backfield men, to bring their story of how to play the game to the young men of America."

In addition to our fiction, adventure, exploration, hobby, counsel, and vocational help, we shall continue to encourage young men to improve their game in every line of sport.

Send your subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, 7439 Second Blvd., Detroit, Mich. Enclose with your name and address $1 for a year's subscription, $2 for three years, and add 50c a year if you want the subscription to go to a foreign address. On newsstands, 10c a copy.

Railroad Man's Prayer.

The following is the text of a "Railroad man's prayer" pasted on the fireman's side of a switch-engine in the Northern Pacific yards at Spokane:

"Now that I have flagged These life my feet from the rough roads of life and plant them safely on the deck of the train salvation. Let me use the safety lamp of prudence, make couplings with the links of love, and let my hand be the Bible and keep all switches closed that lead off the main line into the siding with blind ends. Have every semaphore on the line show a white light of hope that I may make the run of life without stopping. Give me the ten commandments as a working card, and when I have finished the run on schedule time and pull into the terminal, may the superintendent of the universe say: 'Well done good and faithful servant: come into the general's office to sign the pay roll and receive your check for eternal happiness.'—Exchange.
