WE STILL HAVE LIBERTY.

The Statue of Liberty, which stands on Bedloe's Island in New York Harbor and greets the incoming passengers on the ships from other nations, was fifty years old last week. Miss Liberty is probably the most famous statue in the world. She was designed by the great French sculptor, Frederick Bartholdi, and given to the American people by the people of France, who raised a fund by popular subscription to cast that gigantic statue in bronze and set up in the Port of New York. This was a testimonial of the 100-year-old friendship between France and America, a tribute from one great democracy to another great democracy. These two nations, almost alone among the nations of the world, stood fifty years ago as the great exponents of the! principles of government of the people by the people. Unda: the pressurt of economic stress and subversive doctrines France now seems to have receded somewhat from its ancient liberty-loving ideals, but she still remains as one of the bulwarks of popular government. The liberty which Bartholdi's statue acclaimed still remains the most precious possession of the people of America. This nation so far has successfully resisted every attempt to curtail or bridge individual liberty of thought, speech and action.

It is to be hoped that fifty years from now the spirit symbolized by the great bronze statue in New York harbor will still be the proudest possession of the people of the United States.

The new Light Meter measures light as accurately as a thermometer measures tem-trast between paper and type, making reading easy for this man.

The Light Meter Tells Why!

BOTH of these men have normal eyesight. The seeing task is the same. The difference is the amount of light falling upon the papers. The Light Meter shows that the man at the left is straining his eyes under less than five footcandles of light . . . while the man at the right enjoys comfortable reading with better than 30 footcandles.

Now, thanks to the world's largest research laboratories, the lighting in your home can be measured as accurately as a thermometer measures temperature! Held under your reading lamp, the scientific new Light Meter tells instantly how much light you are getting and how much light you need for seeing without eyestrain.

We'll be glad to make a Light Meter check-up of the lighting in your home without cost or obligation to you. Just phone for an appointment today.

labor. Careful buying as well as selling is also a factor in farm profits and here again the telephone can give useful aid. With its day-by-day savings, its earnings and the protection it gives to home and family, the farm telephone is an economy, not an expense. No farmer, no matter how few his acres, can really afford to be without a
