TODAY and TOMORROW

CHARACTER religion
As I grow older I lose faith in many accepted theories about life. Especially am I skeptical about the possibility of "reforming" people. We may elevate the moral standards of society as a whole and have done it, but the individual who comes to adolescence with anti-social or criminal tendencies is hard to make over. "As the twig is bent the tree's inclined."

I am all for every social movement which is designed to start children off with an understanding of the rules of the game of life, and of consequences to those who try to substitute their own rules for those of the social order of their time. Children brought up on the unchangeable precepts and principles of honesty, decency and good behavior seldom need reforming. But all the reform schools and prison discipline in the world won't change the brain-patterns, the habits, tastes and inclinations of those who have come to maturity. Their characters have been formed in childhood.

I have known a few cases, and heard of others, in which men's characters have been changed almost miraculously, by the power of religion. I know of nothing short of Divine intervention that will make people over.

HEREDITY influence
What qualities we inherit from our parents have much to do with our own characters. How much, I don't know; some scientists say a great deal, some say very little. It seems clear to me that every human being is the sum of all his ancestors.

As a boy I mare a story which has stuck in my memory for half a century. A magician, strolling through the forest, encountered an old charcoal burner, who was sure that he had been "changed" from some other form and asked the magician to change him back. The wizard pronounced the proper incantation, and the old charcoal burner changed at once—into a baby! Years later the magician passed along the same path and again encountered a charcoal burner, whom he recognized as the same one he had changed.

Many things beside heredity go to the formation of character, but the physical and mental traits and abilities which are born in us have much to do with determining the relative influence of the other things.

ENVIRONMENT social value
I give childhood environment a large part of the credit or blame—for the character of any individual. But I can't follow the reasoning of many of my friends who are devoted to the uplifting of humanity, and who seem to think that all that is necessary to make better citizens is to provide the poor with up-to-date homes and sanitary plumbing. I don't believe that such things have any effect on character.

It is the fashion nowadays to assume that all that counts is material wealth. Make people prosperous and they will be good. Any one who has lived as long as I have knows that is not true. The only prosperity that builds character is that which a man achieves by their own industry and self-denial. I have known a few contented persons. Most of them were poor. I have known many splendid characters who came from city slums and back-country farms, and I know men born to wealth who are utter scoundrels.

The environment that influences character is the character of the people who live in the home, not the walls and the roof. Children gain their impressions of right and wrong from their families, their schoolmates and everyone else with whom they come into contact. Any housing program which cannot guarantee that the human environment of the next generation shall be of a quality to build character is of precious little social value.

HEALTH new discoveries
Medical science is just beginning to learn something about the defects upon human character of various physical defects. Aliments broadly classed as "neuroses" which doctors used to dismiss as "just nerves" have been found to come, often, from defective action of one or another of the more or less mysterious glands in the human body and brain. Other forms of illness have definite effects upon the mental and moral character of the victim, and some mental disturbances, traceable to childhood influences, throw the whole nervous system out of balance and warp the entire outlook on life.

We haven't learned, yet, enough about these newly-discovered flaws in the human machine to make many predictions, but I believe that they have a great deal to do with

Gas Company Now Ready For Winter With New Pipe Line

Reporting everything ready for the rapidly-nearing winter months, which will require considerably larger quantities of natural gas for cooking and heating purposes, H. C. Frizzell, district manager of the Southern Union Gas Company, was in Hico winding up final details of the construction of a new pipe line, now complete and filled with gas.

Engineers of the company have been in Hico since the first of the week, measuring the exact mileage of the line, which intersects a large trunk line about seven miles from Hico, near Fairy. An inventory of materials used in the new line was made, and inspection showed it to be ready for the use for which it was built.

In making the additional investment occasioned by the new construction, Mr. Frizzell explained to the City Council some months ago, the company naturally expects an increased business. Since 1929, when they were granted a franchise for providing gas to residents in Hico, the company has served its patrons from a local field, seven miles northwest of town. Failure of the wells in this field to supply gas in quantities sufficient to supply the demand have caused patrons considerable inconvenience and the company a great deal of expense in past winter months.

Mr. Frizzell pointed out that he was enthusiastic over the prospects for an increased volume of business under the present arrangement, however, and said that he took a great deal of personal pride in being able to assure local patrons of an ample and dependable supply of gas at all times, for all purposes.

W. M. Marcum, local manager of the Southern Union, reports encouraging reaction on the part of the people to the assurance of an abundance of gas through the auxiliary supply of the new lines, boosting the gas from the local field, and says that the office is being visited by many customers for gas appliances, anxious to get fixed for the first cold spell of the season. New stoves, water heaters and other devices are on display at the salesroom, and every effort will be made to supply the demands of the public for new appliances.

JUDGE BALLARD W. GEORGE OF WACO VISITS HERE WITH CONSTITUENTS WEDNESDAY
Greeting and getting acquainted with people in this part of his district, Judge Ballard W. George of Waco, Associate Justice of the Court of Criminal Appeals, was in Hico several hours Wednesday, together with Mrs. George. They were already acquainted with a great many local people, but added materially to their friends through their visit.

Appointed July 14, 1937, by the Governor of Texas, to fill out the unexpired term of the late Judge J. A. Stanford, Mr. George is the first judge to serve on this bench in the past 13 years that wasn't previously a lawyer out of Waco. Previous to his appointment, they were citizens of Corsicana, where he was prominent and popular.

Mr. George stated his intention of becoming a candidate for a full six-year term in the office he now holds by appointment, and is planning his campaign for next year. While his duties on the bench will not permit him as much time as he would like in which to visit with the voters of the district, he asks their thoughtful consideration of his forthcoming candidacy, and promises to render the best service within his ability in case they decide to elect him to the office he seeks.

character. The time may come when everybody who sins against the social order—that is, breaks one of the rules of the game of life which society has set up for the protection of its members—will be sent to a clinic or a hospital instead of to jail, and locked up only if he is incurably dangerous.

JUDGMENT understanding
The only sure basis of judgment of any man is an understanding of his character. Character, once formed, does not change. That is why we value men in public life by what they have done in the past rather than on what they promise for the future. If a man lied it is silly to believe him now. If in his past career he has shown himself indifferent to the rights of others, intolerant of opposition and defiant of the established rules we do not intrust him with authority. He has revealed his character, and character does not change.

The first thing employers want to know about a candidate for an important job is his character record in other jobs, his reputation among those who know him best.

When I hear a man whose character I know well accused of doing something wrong, I can tell whether the accusation is true or not by whether it fits his character or not. If it is "out of character" it is a false charge.

EXPOSITION MANAGEMENT PLANS FALL FESTIVAL OF FUN, FROLIC AND SPORTS

DALLAS, Sept. 16.—With six weeks to go before the Texas and Pan American Exposition closes, the management has planned a Fall Festival, "45 days of fun, frolic and sports."

Stressing entertainments and sports, an elaborate program was launched September 15, when the Fall Festival was formally inaugurated. The message proved to be from somewhere else besides Carlton, but the planes searched out this entire community before returning to their base at San Antonio.

This week the body of the filler and the wreckage of his plane were located near Grapeland, as told in the following news dispatch:
GRAPELAND, Sept. 13.—A badly wrecked army plane, missing for two weeks, was found late today in a thickly wooded section 12 miles southwest of Grapeland.

The body of the pilot, Cadet Guy W. Edgerton, 24, of Kenly, N. C., was found in the debris.
Found by Farm Boy
The craft, the object of Texas' greatest aerial search, was found about 4 p. m. by a youth, Isaac Johnson, who was searching for stray cows.

Wreckage of the plane was strewn over an acre of cutover timber. It was so buried in the woods as not to be visible from the air.
First details of the find were brought to Grapeland by Dan Hill, one of the first to reach the scene. Hill said there was no evidence of fire in the wreckage.

Edgerton, a member of a squadron of 12 planes, of a training flight, became lost two weeks ago tonight when the flyers ran into a thunderstorm in this area while returning to Kelly field, San Antonio, from Barksdale field, Shreveport.

Others Landed Safely.
Other members of the flight either reached their destination or landed safely in widely separated towns in central and south Texas.
The wreckage was found in the vicinity where residents reported seeing a burning plane. The report sent a number of searchers to the scene, but a burnt-out flare, apparently dropped by one of the army planes, was the only object found.

Election Ordered For Saturday On School Consolidation
Over the signature of County Judge J. C. Barrow, official notices of an election important to local voters have been posted in Hico. The purpose of the election is stated in the first paragraph of the notice, as follows:

"Notice is hereby given that an election will be held on the 18th day of September, 1937, at the Hico City Hall in Hico, Texas, in the Hico County Line Independent School District of Hamilton County to determine whether a majority of the legally qualified voters of said School District desire to consolidate the said district with the Unity County Line Common School District No. 24 of Bosque County, said School Districts thereby forming the Hico Consolidated Independent County Line School District No. 9, of this County."

W. M. Cheney has been appointed presiding officer of the election, and he will be assisted by two judges and two clerks.
The new directory for Fall 1937 is now on the press, and will be put in the hands of subscribers early next week, according to Miss Fannie Wood, local manager of the company. In the new directory, it is stated, there will be information important to all subscribers, and Miss Wood asks that when the new directories are out all subscribers consult same before placing calls.

HICO POULTRY BREEDER NAMED VICE-PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL ASEL CLUB
Notification was received this week by J. T. Gregory of his selection as Vice-President of the National Aseel Club, an association of poultry breeders of this type birds, with headquarters at Chipewah Falls, Wisconsin. The information came to Mr. Gregory from Gerald F. Wright, secretary of the organization, who insisted on acceptance of the place by the local man, and mentioned that the selection had been made at the suggestion of the national president, B. B. Hawley.

The secretary also announces the initiation, in the near future, of a quarterly publication, devoted to the interests of raisers of this type of birds, in which avocation Mr. Gregory is a pioneer, having been breeding them for about 30 years. He has notified the secretary of his acceptance of the position.

COTTON GINNING REPORT
Census report shows that 517 bales of cotton were ginned in Hamilton County, Texas, from the crop of 1937 prior to Sept. 1st as compared with 106 bales for the crop of 1936.

Body of Missing Pilot and Wreckage Of Plane Found

Two weeks ago four army planes landed at Blair Field, Hico, with a searching party from Kelly Field, San Antonio, tracing down a telephone message supposedly placed from Carlton giving information about a plane and filler, missing since the previous Monday night.

The message proved to be from somewhere else besides Carlton, but the planes searched out this entire community before returning to their base at San Antonio.

This week the body of the filler and the wreckage of his plane were located near Grapeland, as told in the following news dispatch:

LOCAL LADY TO LEAVE THIS WEEK FOR EDUCATIONAL TOUR TO PURINA MILLS

Mrs. G. C. Keeney of the Keeney Hatchery, will leave Fort Worth Saturday for a trip to the Purina Mills experimental farm at Gray Summit, Mo., with a delegation of men and women composed of Texas dealers and feeders on an educational tour. Approximately 400 have signed for the trip. The list includes some of the most important ranchmen, cattle and sheep feeders, poultrymen and dairymen in Texas, according to R. W. Bridges, manager of the Fort Worth plant, who is sponsoring the trip.

The train will arrive in St. Louis early Monday morning, Sept. 20, and go to the experimental farm near there. Trippers will spend the day at the farm and will have an opportunity to observe feeding results on the different classes of livestock, poultry, dogs and rabbits. This is the largest farm of its kind in the country and is visited annually by thousands of people seeking information and data about feeding.

Lunch will be served at the farm and that night a banquet and show will be held at the main Purina plant in St. Louis. Tuesday morning will be spent going through the mill and the laboratories at the plant. Tuesday afternoon chartered buses will take the trippers to such points of interest as the Lindbergh ocean flight, trophies, the zoo, the famous Shaw's botanical garden, Forest Park, the downtown business section and the residential districts, and then to a baseball game between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Texas party will leave Tuesday afternoon and arrive in Fort Worth Wednesday morning.

Gulf States Telephone Co. General Manager Tells About Changes
Accompanied by his son, Morris Sheppard Burton, Oscar Burton of Tyler was in Hico last Saturday morning on an inspection trip in his position as general manager of the Gulf States Telephone Company, which serves Hico along with a number of other towns in Texas.

On his trip here, Mr. Burton called attention to a number of changes being made in the arrangement of the company's offices and equipment, stating that the changes would facilitate the handling of the company's business at the local exchange, and at the same time make for greater efficiency and economy of operation.

A completely rebuilt switchboard, of a capacity adequate to handle the lines served by the company in this territory, has been installed, and the equipment has been concentrated in the middle portion of the building which has been used for a number of years by the telephone exchange. All the equipment has undergone a thorough inspection and overhauling, according to Mr. Burton, to the end that mechanical interference in service be kept at an absolute minimum. A crew of workmen has been engaged in this work for several days, and the final switchover to the new board was made early this week, causing so little interference in service that it is doubtful if anyone outside the office knew of the change.

The new directory for Fall 1937 is now on the press, and will be put in the hands of subscribers early next week, according to Miss Fannie Wood, local manager of the company. In the new directory, it is stated, there will be information important to all subscribers, and Miss Wood asks that when the new directories are out all subscribers consult same before placing calls.

Hico's Entry Into Class B Football Finally Approved

Final approval of Hico's entry into District 26, Class B football was received this week. With the approval of the Hico entry the schedule has been completed and the Tigers are now preparing for a busy season of football.

Season tickets went on sale this week and the price for five home games to adults is only $1.00; and 50c to high school students. Regular price for each game is 25c and 15c.

The Hico Tigers are coached by J. I. Grimland and he has 29 boys working out under his guidance each afternoon. Coach Grimland will have to build his team around the following seven lettermen:

Captain Dan Holliday, quarter back; Cecil Ogle, half; C. Odell, center; Grady Brown, guard; Derwood Polk, guard; Bill Hall, tackle; and Jack Hollis, end.

Along with the seven lettermen are the following boys that are working out: A. T. McFadden, half; Joe Powers, half; Bill Pontremoli, half; Ralph Horton, full back; Albert Brown, end; Guy Willie, guard; Bill Nix, guard; Sam Able, guard; Jim Willie, tackle; Wayne Polk, guard; O. W. Hefner, fullback; Meredith Woods, end; Otho Carlton, end; Winifred Houston, end; Oran Massengale, guard; Harold Russell, guard; and Max Ragdale, half. Owen and Odell Welborn, Sammy Leeth, O. D. Cunningham, and Charles French complete the squad.

Grimland is especially pleased with the work of Holliday, McFadden, Hefner and Ogle in the backfield. In the line, Hall, Odell, G. Brown, Jim and Guy Willie, Polk, and Hollis look very promising. Jim Willie, 186, and Bill Hall, 175, seem able to take care of the tackle positions in excellent manner. Guy Willis, 168, and Bill Nix, 185, are ahead on guard assignments. A. C. Odell, 170, has center position clinched. Hollis, Hefner and Woods are leading the candidates for the end positions. The starting line should average 175. Holliday has been selected to call signals and is the triple threat, being a good passer, punter and ball carrier.

Gold footballs will be given the best all round back, the best all round lineman, and the best "hustler" throughout the season. Friday afternoon, a practice game with the Hico All-Stars will be played. Admission free. Everyone invited to attend at 3:15.

Keeping Up With TEXAS

Bill Miller, 40 years a well driller at Clarendon, dug up a blind Albino frog after 15-foot depth while drilling a water well south of that city. The unusual reptile rode to the surface on the drill-head and reached the slush pit without a scratch. Miller described the frog as the color of the white clay he was drilling in and said it was about the size of a tree frog. It hopped about somewhat feebly and blindly, he said.

Riley Swift, 35, met the kind of death he always feared, and tried to guard against. Swift was found dangling at the end of a rope tied to a willow tree, his head submerged in the waters of Lytle Creek, on the eastern edge of Abilene. He had been fishing. Swift was afraid of water and was subject to dizzy spells. He always took the precaution when fishing of tying himself to a stationary object on the bank with a rope.

This time, he had either tied the rope six inches too long or it had slipped. Justice of the Peace, conducting the inquest, said he apparently had drowned accidentally. Swift was unmarried and employed in an Abilene cafe.

Gov. James V. Allred's call for a special tax session of the legislature on Sept. 27 likely will be issued this week, he said. It will be short. Legislators will be called to pass measures "raising revenue by taxation for the necessary functions of state government." And for no other purpose, Allred said.

Two men were killed near Cleburne late Saturday night in a shooting which followed a threat of suicide. Lon Peterson, 54, and Henry Bush, 44, farm laborers, were slain almost instantly at the home of Bush in the Ham Creek community southwest of Cleburne, where Peterson and his 15-year-old daughter, Lou Ola, were boarding. The only witnesses were Mrs. Bush and Peterson's daughter. The infant daughter of Mrs. Bush lay asleep in a nearby bed. Mrs. Bush told officers her husband kissed the sleeping baby "goodbye" and threatened to kill himself. She said Peterson, "who had never interfered in the family trouble," told Bush to "cut it out. I am not going to let you act that way in front of the women folks." Mrs. Bush said she thought her husband was turning to put his 16-gauge shotgun on the rack when he wheeled and fired at Peterson, the shot striking Peterson in the left side. Peterson, with a .22-caliber rifle, shot Bush through the heart.

A permanent organization of the Texas Soil and Water Conservation Association was perfected in Temple Monday in the first state convention ever called in Texas solely for discussion of soil and water conservation problems. V. C. Marshall of Healdenshew, Bell County, was elected president; Tom C. Hefner of Crystal Falls, vice president; and Joseph C. Peacock of Palestine, executive secretary. Temple was selected as permanent association headquarters.

In its twelfth week, the Frontier Fiesta at Fort Worth, attracted another gay crowd Monday night with Tris Speaker, famed Grey Eagle of baseball, as honored guest, and a day named in his honor. Hill County, the outfielder's birthplace, sent the largest single delegation to the show. Cleburne, first town for which he played professional baseball, also was represented. Speaker spoke over WBP from Sunset Trail at 6 p. m.

A 15-year-old boy Monday looked into the face of the father he thought had been killed in a plane crash 12 years ago. The reunion occurred at police station. Fort Worth after detectives, prompted by 15-year-old Rex Richter, Jr., finally found Mr. Richter at his work, at Adolph's Automotive Service, 115 Commerce St. Mr. Richter, veteran aviator, barnstormer, stage actor and trumper, almost fainted for the first time in his life. "Good God" was the only thing he could say. The son had hitch-hiked and ridden box cars many miles for that meeting and he made the most of it. The boy was parted from his father shortly after birth when his parents separated. Two years later an airplane crashed near Hattiesburg, Miss. The pilot was tagged beyond recognition. On the cockpit was the name "Rex Richter. This summer, Rex Jr. to see his grandparents in Snohomish, Wash., parents of Mr. Richter. While there, Rex Jr. learned of a letter, written by a Fort Worth woman acquaintance of Mr. Richter, which revealed that the aviator was alive and working as an auto mechanic in Fort Worth. The boy set out for Texas.

MEET THE APPLE

The chain store industry will soon inaugurate an aggressive producer-consumer selling campaign on behalf of America's largest fruit crop—the luscious apple.

The campaign is the result of recent conferences held between growers and representatives of the chains. This year's crop, the growers pointed out, will total more than 194,000,000 bushels—65 per cent over the 1936 crop.

The chains listened to the growers' story, presented by spokesmen from a dozen states, and proffered their assistance. They realize that their problem in this case is exceptionally difficult, but they have accepted the challenge, even as they have done successfully in the past with producer-consumer campaigns on behalf of beef, lamb, peaches, turkeys, etc.

This is a big job—if successful, consumers as well as farmers will reap the benefits.

A NATION OF SMOKERS

All world's records of cigarette production were broken in July of this year, the Internal Revenue Bureau reports. In that one month the factories of the United States turned out fifteen and a quarter billion cigarettes.

On this one month's output of cigarettes the manufacturers paid a tax of six cents for each package of 20, or $3 a thousand. The tax, of course, is included in the price of the cigarettes.

The Government's revenue from cigarettes at the July rate of production runs to 45 1/2 million dollars a month, or at the rate of $45 million dollars a year.

POLITICAL THIRD PARTIES

There is a great deal of talk being heard these days about the possibility of new political parties. The idea seems to be that one is to be composed of the more conservative elements of the present Republican party and the "old-line" Democrats who are opposed to the New Deal.

Accuracy is as important a factor in coffee making as in cake making. Both the water and the coffee should be measured every time you make the infusion. This is easy to do if you use a coffee pot with markings for the water and the coffee. This type of percolator assures you of uniform results.

The PENTHOUSE MURDER

Final Installment

SYNOPSIS: A card game is in session in Elmer Henderson's penthouse atop a New York skyscraper. The players are: Henderson, Police inspector, Flaherty, Martin Prazier, Archie Doane, Max Michaelis, and his friend Williams, a stockbroker.

They are waiting for Stephen Fitzgerald. When he fails to appear, a telephone call brings the information that he is out with a girl. Fitzgerald and Henderson are both romantically interested in Lydia Lane, the famous actress, but Archie Doane reveals that she is engaged to marry him.

Doane leaves the party early when Fitzgerald fails to appear. A short time later he telephones Inspector Flaherty with the frantic news that he has found Fitzgerald and Miss Lane dead in Lydia Lane's penthouse apartment.

When Flaherty and the medical examiner reach the apartment, they find that Miss Lane is still alive. She is rushed to a hospital where blood transfusions and care promise to restore her.

All circumstantial evidence points to Archie Doane as the murderer, especially when the murder gun is found carefully planted in the chimney clean-out in the basement. Miss Lane's French maid, Adele Marceau, has been overheard threatening to shoot Fitzgerald if he did not stop annoying her. The janitor reports that Mademoiselle Marceau works in a night club on her day off and that she had talked to him in the basement on the night of the murder.

Medical examination reveals that Lydia Lane had been given a hypodermic injection of a hypnotic drug before being shot, and that Fitzgerald's body also shows the mark of a hypodermic needle on his leg.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Still that was only a possibility. Unless I could connect Henderson with sufficient knowledge of drugs to warrant the assumption that he had administered something to Miss Lane which had caused unconsciousness and something to Fitz, after the shooting, phone until Archie called you, Dan, all tended to confirm my suspicions. Then came this telegram from Joe Everett. I won't bother to read it all—it's necessary now—but he reports, in brief, that Elmer Henderson formerly practiced medicine there, specializing in diseases of women and particularly in the use of the so-called 'twilight sleep' in childbirth. He was convicted of criminal malpractice, served a year in prison, and his license to practice was revoked. Then he turned to electrical invention and produced a new method of recording sound on films.

"I know, even before we heard Miss Lane's story in the hospital just now, that Henderson was the murderer. I felt that I had enough evidence on which to convict him. I am neither a policeman or a prosecutor, but there was no way to extricate my client, Archie Doane, from the suspicion, if not the direct accusation of murder, unless I could prove that some one else did this crime.

"I had hoped to confront Henderson here with the evidence I had accumulated and to see him arrested and punished for his deed but he had forestalled us. He was keen enough to note the presence of my private detectives, too, and to guess what they meant. So he chose the gambler's way out. He had lost, and he paid.

"Am I right, Henderson?"

The man across the table was sagging in his chair, his head drooping, as Michaelis finished. He roused himself and turned his face toward the lawyer. "Absolutely right in every detail," he said, in a voice which had lost its resonance and tone.

"May I ask one question, then?" Henderson nodded assent.

"Mere curiosity, but did you lurk Fitz to Miss Lane's by the same device that later called Doane there?"

Again the nod of assent.

"You placed a pin in her dress in the taxi, to account to her for the prick of the hypodermic needle? You knew she would be unconscious within a few minutes after you had left her at her without an inflection of pity in his voice, as the ambulance surgeon rose from his examination of what had been Elmer Henderson, and shook his head.

If he had not suggested the chimney, we might never have looked there," said Martin Prazier. "That would have made no difference to his plans," said Max Michaelis.

"Sooner or later the weapon would have been found. Meantime Archie would have been under suspicion, and the finding of the gun would have sent him to the chair—except for the snow."

He glanced at the two documents they had witnessed.

"Brief but complete," he said, as he passed one of them to Inspector Flaherty. "This confession belongs in your records, Dan."

He cast his eyes over the other paper.

"Equally brief and equally complete," he said, "Henderson's will leaves everything to Lydia Lane. He was a game one."

"How did you know he was going to confess?" asked the Inspector, as he turned toward the telephone to summon the medical examiner.

"I didn't until he held us at the door. I suspected then that he was administering poison to himself. I was sure of it when he mentioned the men I had posted around the building. It was the way a gambler like Henderson would take the easiest way when the game was up."

THE END

KNOW TEXAS Tons of Honey.

DENTON, Sept. 15.—First in size and second in sweetness—that's Texas' place, since it ranks second in the United States in the production of honey. In the section around Uvalde from one to two million pounds of honey are brought to market annually. One reason for the successful production of honey in this state is that the climate is particularly well adapted. Another factor is the abundance of cotton blossoms, which are better than any other flowers in making honey.

Good Brain—Good Bite.

"Most active and intelligent flea in the world" is the title belonging to the West Texas sand flea. Trainers in circuses and side shows in the northern states send messengers all the way down here to get this particular kind of flea, because they say it takes a shorter time to teach them tricks and they are longer-lived. Those who have come in contact with the insect may wish to give it another title—the hardest biter.

Common Clay.

Texas clays are used in everything from pottery-making to road-building. Commercial refractory clays are sold for the manufacture of fire brick, terra cotta, floor tiles and art pottery. Coarser clays yield the common red-pressed brick, drain tile and earthenware. Two other products are kaolin, utilized in the making of fine pottery, and earth for the desodorizing of oils. Many of the ordinary clays are used extensively for road-building.

He was sagging in his chair, his head drooping.

to keep the semblance of life in him for hours with a bullet through his heart, I had nothing tangible to go on.

"After I left you gentlemen and had got Archie bedded down for the night I called up a private detective agency and had them station four men to watch this building and Henderson. I hoped that his suspicious would not be aroused before we were ready to act, and I did not want to plant a suspicion on Dan's your mind, Dan, until I had more information. That would have possibly been doing him a tremendous injustice, but I felt responsible if he should attempt flight.

"Then I telephoned to my friend Joe Everett, the lawyer in Pasadena of whom you heard me speak to Henderson last night, and I asked him to get a full report by wire at the earliest possible moment.

"Then I called two eminent medical men out of their comfortable beds, greatly to their disgust. One of them assured me that I was correct in my recollection of the efficacy of adrenalin in a case of gunshot wound in the heart; a strong hypodermic injection of it had been known to keep a man alive five hours. The other eminent medico told me that any one of several drugs, including hyoscine, could be administered hypodermically or by the mouth to produce a state bordering on hypnotism, in which the patient would be to all intents and purposes unconscious, but would suffer no permanent harm and have no recollection afterwards of what had occurred.

"I formed no conclusion then as to how or when a drug had been administered to Miss Lane, as we did not know then about the pin which, as she supposed, had punctured her leg. And it was only guesswork that Fritz had been given a hypodermic of adrenalin.

"Adele Marceau's story about the pin, the medical examiner's report of finding the mark of the needle in Fitz's leg, the telephone company's report of no calls from that rooms? You returned to your own rooms and called Fitzgerald to her apartment with her filmed voice over your telephone? You then hurried back to Miss Lane's apartment, met Fitzgerald there, perhaps pretended that you, too, had received the same summons? And you shot him while he was about to call for medical help for the unconscious girl? And then you shot Miss Lane through the arm, to give color to the theory of an attempted double murder? Then you threw the gun down the chimney?"

The sagging head nodded again.

"You planned it from the beginning, to lure Archie Doane to the apartment and let him be discovered there with another explanation of the crime than that he had done it. You wanted Lydia Lane yourself, and you thought to get your two rivals out of the way by having one executed for the murder of the other. You made sure that he had reached his rooms by ringing up and asking for a fictitious person."

The drooping figure across the table raised his head again.

"And a keener mind than mine frustrated a perfect crime," said Elmer Henderson, as his chin dropped on his chest and his body seemed to relax and slip downward.

"Say the omniscient mind of God, rather," said Max Michaelis, as the others eased the lifeless body to the floor just as the ambulance surgeon's ring sounded at the doorway. "But for the evidence of the snow it would have been a perfect crime—the evidence supplied from above which proved that Archie Doane could not have done it.

A perfect crime. Not a detail overlooked—except the snow.

"I was brought up, gentlemen, to believe in a just and avenging Deity. The events we have just witnessed confirm my belief that the hand of God does sometimes intervene to save the innocent and punish the guilty."

"The end of a game little crook," said Dan Flaherty, not

Engagement of Agnes Smitherman To Wm. Horsley Todd

(Hamilton Herald-Record)
On Thursday afternoon of last week Miss Carolyn Williams and her mother, Mrs. E. R. Williams entertained with a delightfully planned party and gift shower at their home with Miss Agnes Smitherman, bride elect of Prof. William Horsley, of Fair, as honoree.

The decorative theme in pink and white was carried throughout the house by the artistic placing of crepe myrtle and dusty miller in vases, bowls and baskets at every vantage point. Each guest received in a pink and white bride's book, and inscribed therein a happy wish for the future of the bonny bride.

In a contest game, the "Vegetable Courtship" the winners, Mrs. Willie Jones and Miss Evelyn Ruth Sanders were privileged to deliver a beautifully decorated pink and white tub full of gifts to Miss Smitherman. After the packages had been opened by the thrilled and delighted honoree, the articles were passed among the guests and gave each one the pleasure of seeing all the lovely things presented to this popular young girl who is soon to become mistress of an enchanted realm of her own, called Home. Tea dainties were passed and on the plates were tiny wedding bells in pink and white inscribed with the names, Agnes Smitherman-William Horsley, and the date, September, 1937.

Every one was loath to go, other games were played before the goodbyes were said and cordial good wishes expressed for the realization of every dream of happiness by the lovely young friend, soon to be wed.

The cost of the exhibits will not exceed $225,000.00. The above drawing is an artist's conception of how the proposed State of Texas building will look in a fair setting.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 7.—The thrilling story of Texas will be carried to New York and San Francisco world's fairs in sound and color films if the Legislature adopts plans of the Texas Planning Board. The cost of the exhibits at both fairs will not exceed $225,000.

The sound and color film, depicting the industrial, agricultural, recreational, cultural and economic life of the state, would be shown in an air conditioned replica of the Alamo.

The planners discarded the old type of fair and exposition exhibit as being too costly and wholly inadequate to show the 50,000,000 visitors expected at New York, and the 20,000,000 the San Francisco fairmen expect to attend the Golden Gate International Exposition, just what Texas is today.

The Board chose the historic Alamo as best illustrating the spirit of Texas. Plans for each replica were drawn by Adams & Adams, San Antonio architects who helped to design the Hall of State at Dallas. As submitted by the architects the building plans call for an exact replica of the Alamo at New York and a slightly smaller replica at San Francisco.

In each the chapel of the Alamo will be used as a lounging salon where Texans visiting the fairs may meet and rest in air conditioned comfort.

The auditorium will seat 500 persons at New York and about 350 at San Francisco. Each auditorium is modeled after the lines of the museum now nearing completion on the Alamo grounds in San Antonio.

An advantage of the sound movies, Hull Youngblood, vice chairman of the Board said, is that in the year and a half before the fairs open the cameras could get each phase of Texas life at its seasonal peak, thus assuring a presentation which would depict Texas as it really is.

The Board's recommendations provide for a director at each exhibit, stenographic help, motion picture operators, attendants and porters. Special literature extolling the advantages of Texas as a playground, an industrial state, an agricultural empire and as a cultural center also is provided for in the plan.

Due to constitutional restrictions the financing of the exhibits probably will have to be done by popular subscription. The board is submitting a plan whereby such financing can be done under the laws of the state.

A general law probably will be passed at the coming special session of the Legislature empowering the governor to appoint a joint world's fair commission, which, in turn, would be empowered to incorporate as a non-profit organization to raise funds for a Texas exhibit at San Francisco and New York in 1939.

The same procedure was followed in 1904 when Texas exhibited at the St. Louis world's fair, and again in 1933 when Texas had a small exhibit at the Century of Progress in Chicago.

MRS. ROOSEVELT LIKES FAIR "SAMPLE"

NEW YORK (Special).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, like more than 200,000 other persons from all over the world, has already sampled the New York World's Fair of 1939 by visiting the exhibit the Fair Corporation maintains for the public on the Fifth Avenue floor of the Empire State building.

"I am much interested in this Fair," said Mrs. Roosevelt, after she had seen the ingeniously illuminated models and animated displays that promise so many wonders for the "Nation's Fair." "It seems to me that there is opportunity here to do a remarkable piece of work from the educational standpoint. The conception of the whole Fair as outlined to me sounds very provocative of thought." The theme of the Fair is "Building the World of Tomorrow."

FAKE EYE SPECIALIST RACKET NOW PRACTICALLY WIPE OUT; P. O. DEPT. EXPLAINS STEPS TAKEN TO DO THIS

Some months ago Postmaster James A. Farley made public a statement which contained an exposure of the fake eye specialist racket, which had been in operation in this country for approximately twenty years. During that period its operators had filched from the public, particularly aged farm people, several million dollars.

Five people were involved in the first case which came to the attention of the inspectors, four fake eye specialists and a fence who collected for them through the mails a two thousand, five hundred dollar check which was obtained from the victim. All of these have been arrested. Four have received substantial sentences and one is in jail awaiting trial.

RESETTLEMENT OFFICE IS RECENTLY RENAMED "FARM SECURITY ADMINISTRATION"

The local office of the Resettlement Administration of Hamilton has been officially advised that the name of the Agency had been changed from "Resettlement Administration" to "Farm Security Administration" by order of Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture, effective at once.
The purpose of the organization has not been changed in the least, according to Supervisor C. P. Emmett. "We will continue," said Mr. Emmett, "to aid deserving farmers in attaining a greater measure of economic independence, along the same lines as heretofore." The office is now accepting applications from eligible farmers for loans for 1938.

The local office of the Resettlement Administration reports that farmers applying this year for 1938 are having considerable success to secure contracts for a 3 to 5 year tenure. In discussing this feature Supervisor Emmett said: "The Resettlement officials do not consider a long tenure as absolutely essential to success, but do consider a long tenure of vital importance. Most of our applicants start from the ground and cannot hope to repay their loans in one year. We recognize this by making all loans for capital goods payable in installments, running from three to five years. Naturally we are able to loan to those farmers having a 3 to 5 year tenure contract on a much more liberal basis than we could if the contract holds for only one year.
"Landlords appear to appreciate the fact that a tenant with a long time tenure contract can afford to make improvements on a basis not possible under a one year tenure."

Clients of the Resettlement who are farming river bottom or creek bottom land are bringing in some samples of corn, which warn the cockles of an old farmer's heart. Large ears, well filled, out and tight on the cob, they indicate that Hamilton County livestock are in for a period of plenty the coming year.
Requests for duplicate Social Security Account Numbers by applicants who have lost their cards should be accompanied by a new application marked "Duplicate requested," with a supplementary statement as to the reason, such as "card lost," and the place and approximate date of filing an original application.
One way to be unhappy is to wish you were somebody else.

786 PERSONS DIED OF AP. PENDICITIS IN TEXAS DURING THE PAST YEAR

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 15.—During the past year 786 persons died of appendicitis in Texas, according to Vital Statistics compilations of the State Department of Health. Many of these deaths might have been prevented had the patient been more aware of the disease and its symptoms.

There are two forms of appendicitis, acute and chronic. The form that appears suddenly, with great pain and sickness is acute. Chronic appendicitis may extend over a long period of time and consists of slight attacks at intervals, but, at some time, there will usually occur an attack worse than any before and the disease may then become serious.

"In the presence of abdominal pain, give nothing by mouth. Never give laxatives. Apply an ice pack. Call your family physician. Abdominal pain which persists over a period of six hours is usually serious," advice State Health Officer Geo. W. Cox.

Hospital records show that the above advice has reduced appendicitis deaths 75 per cent. When otherwise healthy people are operated upon soon after the beginning of the "pain in the stomach" caused by appendicitis, little danger is experienced, but the surgeon's work is made more difficult and the patient's chance of recovery considerably lessened when there is a long delay in seeking medical help, and especially if a cathartic has been given.

How to prevent appendicitis? Keep the body in perfect health as long as possible. Watch your teeth, your tonsils, any place where an infection may occur. Get plenty of good food, plenty of sleep, plenty of exercise. Have a thorough medical examination at least once a year and have your teeth examined and cleaned by a dentist at least once every six months. This kind of watchfulness will not only help you to avoid appendicitis, it will help you to avoid many other illnesses as well.

PIONEER PREACHER BURIED
The Rev. Hendrix George Washington Whisenant, aged 77, died at his home in the Greyville community last Tuesday, and was buried at the Liveoak cemetery in the neighborhood of Purvis, on Wednesday afternoon, the Barrow Undertakers having charge, and the local Baptist minister, E. E. Dawson, having the service.

The Rev. Mr. Whisenant has been in ill health for the last twenty years, and has been bed-ridden for the last few months. He leaves a wife and several nephews as survivors. His ministry began in the community where he was buried, but he served numerous churches in this section and in McCulloch county.

He was born in Habersham county, Georgia, and first settled in Upshur county, Texas, when he came to this state. Later he came to Erath county, and there married Miss Sarah Hasseltine Butler, who survives him. No children were born to this union, but they reared three orphans, two of whom still live, one residing in California and the other in Michigan.

Bragging about your operations makes others wish you had died.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Sept. 14.—The people who will have the job of administering the laws enacted by the session of Congress lately adjourned are busy now studying the new legislation and working out plans to put it into effect. These people, the permanent staff of the Executive Department, constitute the eyes, ears and hands of the President. They are all, with few exceptions, responsible to him directly or through the members of the Cabinet or the heads of the special administration units.

President Roosevelt has, here in Washington and scattered throughout the Nation, more of these helpers than any President has ever had, except President Wilson in war time. Mr. Wilson had 917,760 assistants. Mr. Roosevelt has 841,664. Their monthly payroll is $127,306,459, according to the latest report of the Civil Service Commission. The number of these Federal employees has been steadily increasing for the past four years.

Part of the increase is due to the adoption by the Government of the 40-hour week, necessitating employing more persons to do the same amount of work. This has been especially felt in the Post Office, where operations are continuous, and the growth of business activity has increased the amount of work to be done.

United States Housing Authority

The administration of the Wagner Housing Act, passed in the closing days of the session, will not call for the creation of a brand-new bureau, though it will require additions to the staff of the housing division of the Department of the Interior. The law creates the United States Housing Authority and places it under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, adding another responsibility to the long list of jobs which Secretary Ickes already had.

The housing division of the P. W. A. under his direction, has provided funds and supervised the construction of many thousands of low-cost dwelling units to replace city slums, and has a large staff of men and women who already know more about the problems involved in carrying out the provisions of the new Housing Act than a new organization could learn in several years.

The Housing Act, as finally made into law, provides for loans from the Federal Treasury to states and municipalities, or housing authorities created by them, of money to be paid back in 60 years for the purpose of replacing "slum" houses with modern homes for the poor.

Unemployed Census

The new Act is expected to stimulate the building industry and help reduce unemployment by providing work for artisans in the building trades and all of the industries producing building materials.

Another new administrative activity imposed on the Executive Department by the Congress is that of taking a census of the unemployed. Strictly speaking, what the law sponsored by Representative Mary T. Norton of New Jersey calls for is not a census. It does not provide for an accurate count of the jobless, nor any inquiry as to how they got that way and whether they are employable. It merely requires the Government to provide facilities whereby those who have no work may register voluntarily before April 1, 1938.

Since the records of the Works Progress Administration already contain a fairly accurate picture of the persons who have sought work relief, and the United States Employment Service has a record of all persons seeking employment from it, it is felt here that the plan can only supply information concerning the unemployed who are still unknown to the relief agencies. Since there is no compulsion on any such person to register, it seems unlikely that those in need of work who have been too proud or too lazy to ask for assistance agencies will bother, to any great extent, to register for the so-called "census."

The Works Progress Administration has lately reported its estimate that there are about 7,700,000 persons now unemployed, outside of the agricultural industries. This figure compares with estimates of between 13,000,000 and 18,000,000 at the depth of the depression. The number of those then unemployed has been reduced by the re-employment of some 5,200,000 in private industry, but the total is augmented by an estimated 4,000,000 young men who have reached employable age in the past four years and have not been able to find jobs. The W. P. A. estimates are challenged in many quarters as being too high, especially in the number of new workers entering the field annually. This is generally figured at half a million a year.

Some Feasts!

Claiming the production of the world's largest watermelon, weight 183 pounds, Cass County nevertheless stands second to Parker County in the amount of production per acre, in which Parker leads the nation. According to the 1935 census over 3,975 melons were produced in the seventy odd counties who farm them throughout the south central part of the state. The yearly crop is valued at $556,000.

Unemployment Compensation

Unemployment Compensation can never entirely take the place of relief. Compensation is to pay the employee who normally works in a covered classification, when he becomes unemployed. It is not intended for those who are unable to work, or those who have been unemployed for an extended time.
