TODAY and TOMORROW

SNOW WHITE ... Living myth I seldom go to the movies unless dragged there by some of my family. The general run of screen pictures bore me, chiefly because they falsify the realities of life. But a few nights ago I was alone in Washington and I went to a movie which fascinated me so that I sat through a second showing. "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" makes no pretense of picturing reality. It is a fairy-tale told on the screen with life and color, translating into action the imaginary world of folklore and ancient myth which is the dream heritage of all of us. This great movie, which probably everyone who reads this has seen, is more than that, however. It is, as I see it, the most successful effort yet made to realize the artistic possibilities of the movies.

To my thinking, the motion picture people put too much emphasis on the personalities of the actors, not enough on the story and its telling. Walt Disney has proved, in "Snow White" that grown-ups and children alike can be as interested in a film which does not pretend to be anything but a picture.

SLEEP ... In the morning From my earliest boyhood I have rebelled against getting up early in the morning. I had Ben Franklin's maxim, "Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise" drummed into me from infancy, but it always seemed to me that there was a catch in it somewhere.

Now comes Dr. Joseph Jastrow, world-famous psychologist, and confirms my life-long belief. He says, in so many words, that "there is absolutely no virtue in early rising." He is in favor of getting all the sleep possible in the early morning.

The old adage doubtless was sound in Ben Franklin's day, when most folk were farmers and had to be up at sunrise or earlier to feed cows and do other farm chores. There wasn't any good excuse to stay up late, either, before the days of electric light. You ruined your eyes if you tried to read by candle-light; there was no radio to listen to, no movies to see. Why shouldn't folks go to bed early in those days? I agree with Dr. Jastrow that there is no common-sense in having a fixed hour for getting up, regardless of whether one is sleepy or not.

FLYING ... most intricate To be an airplane transport pilot is the ambition of a great and growing number of American boys. But it is also a job which calls for long, hard work in training. The modern transport or military plane is the most complicated piece of machinery ever made, and as such it requires more brains, skill, competence and judgment to operate than anything else that moves.

There is already a demand for competent pilots greater than the supply, and that demand will increase with the building of more trans-oceanic passenger planes and the growth of the Army and Navy air services. Not long ago I visited the Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Florida, one of the four great training schools for aviators which the Government maintains to develop pilots not only for military service but for commercial aviation as well. I was impressed by the high level of intelligence and the immense amount of work and study required before a flying cadet got his wings.

It's nice work if you can get it, but to pilot an international Clipper plane one must not only know how to fly and have perfect health, but he must be a weather expert, a skilled mechanic, a first-class seaman, a master mariner, a radio technician, an aeronautical engineer and airplane mechanic, and a celestial navigator, with a lawyer's knowledge of international law.

FISH ... for study Did you ever stand on the bottom of the sea and look up at the fishes swimming over your head? That was the sensation I had a few weeks ago when I visited a new Marine Studio that had just been completed with the most modern facilities for keeping alive fish. In great concrete tanks with windows in their sides and bottom all sorts of marine animals and fish swim in seawater which has been filtered until it is so clear one can take photographs through it.

The purpose is to make it possible for scientists to study marine life under normal conditions, but just as a show it is as entertaining as anything I have ever seen. Watching shrimps wriggle their feet as they swim, sharks of various sizes and kinds, and that most interesting of sea mammals, the porpoise, is far more fascinating than I can make it sound.

SUBSCRIBERS NEWS AND VIEWS

After being out of the fold for longer than we like to admit possible on the part of a good friend, J. B. Pool, Route 6, walked into the office Monday and calmly announced that he wanted to renew his subscription to "the great religious weekly." He admitted that it had been months since he'd received a Hico paper, so he took one of last week's to keep him satisfied until the next one came out.

R. E. Bass, City, appears in our office as regularly as his subscription expires to renew again. If for some reason he can't come, Mrs. Bass always finds the time. For such devoted readers as these we diligently scour the community for news and hope that it meets with their approval.

J. R. McMillan who has been "raking in the dough" the last few weeks selling automobile licenses to Hico people, let us in on his good fortune by leaving a part of his salary with us to pay for another year of the paper. So now we've "got his number."

We hereby warn Grady Barrow that sometime about the first of May we will be around to collect for a year's subscription to the paper. Since he is the busiest man in town and one you can never find, we took the liberty of marking his time up and asking him later if he didn't want it.

A. A. Fewell, City, who journeys to Dublin every week to sing over Station KPPL, decided that his daughter, Mrs. R. B. McClure, of Meridian would like to receive the home news again, and since Mr. Fewell does not have time to write it all, he compromised by sending the paper instead.

POST OFFICE ... Bids Are Asked Here Preparatory to Arranging For Quarters For the Ensuing Five-Year Period

Announcement was made this week through Postmaster Jimmie L. Holford that bids to furnish quarters suitable for post office purposes at Hico for the next five years must be in the office of Post-office Inspector A. S. Page at Fort Worth not later than May 10. The new contract for a post office building and equipment begins October 1, 1933.

A building of about 1500 to 1800 square feet is desired, and important considerations are a reasonably central location, good lighting, and entrances for mail, rear or side. General building requirements, and form of proposal, together with information concerning the provisions of the lease, may be obtained from the Postmaster or by writing A. S. Page, Post Office Inspector, Fort Worth, Texas. A copy of the advertisement for proposals to lease post office quarters has been posted on the bulletin board at the local office, says Mrs. Holford.

BOXING ... Bouts Close Tonight Wednesday Night's Engagements Relive Increasing Interest In Local Tournament

Tonight the winners of preliminary bouts in the F. F. A. boxing tournament will battle for titles in their individual classes. Boxers from Hamilton, Fair, Carlton, Olin, Iredell, and Black Stump are expected to be present with a large following of fans from their respective home towns.

The Battle Royal will be the feature fight of the night, with six or eight boys, all blindfolded, in the ring at once, slinging, smashing rights and lefts at each other for six minutes of wild fighting.

Results of Wednesday night's fights were as follows: Lively, Hico, 79 pounds, decision; Simons, Hico, 79 pounds. Leeth, Hico, 109, fought Self, Hico, 108, to a tie. Smith, Carlton, 141, outpointed McKinley, Hamilton, 147. Russell, Fair, 151, technical knockout over Yoakum, Iredell, 151. Hale, Hamilton, decision Fulbright, Hico, 165. Rucker, Black Stump, 221, outpointed Land, Hico, 225. Parsley, Hamilton, 113, winner over Todd, Olin, 118. Homer, Hico, 139, decision McFadden, Hico, 139. Pantremoli, Hico, 124, winner over Woods, Hico, 127. Christopher, Black Stump, 167, outpointed Duckworth, Hico, 171. Marshall, Hico, 120, fought Ross, Hico, 115, to a draw.

This tournament is being sponsored by the Hico F. F. A. boys. BABE HORTON, Asst. F. F. A. Reporter, Hico.

W. A. Stubblefield, Route 3, a frequent visitor to our office, re-sizable a bit of bad news when he walked in Saturday. And some good news, too. He had an argument with his wife about the date of expiration of his paper and he found out he was right. Private to Mr. Stubblefield, The Flying Jenny says you'd better quit telling her Dad that she doesn't need those dimes he puts in her dime bank.

Mrs. M. Ellington of Clifton receives the paper as a gift from her son, John. Mrs. Ellington's granddaughters are frequent winners in the Fireboys Amateur program, and we know she enjoys reading about them so we are marking her time up another year.

M. D. Booth and wife, Route 1, recently returned from a visit with relatives in Magnolia, Arkansas, where his parents still live. Mr. Booth can tell some wild tales about this little town as oil was discovered there several weeks ago, and he admits that it is "not the same as it used to be." Saturday Mr. Booth took another trip to our office to renew his subscription to the paper.

F. H. Dickson, Route 4, only has to be reminded. He renewed from Leonard Howard, who relayed the transaction details to us.

H. Smith, local agent for the good old Katy Railroad, dropped in last week end and thrust upon us a dollar to pay for renewal of his subscription to "the best weekly paper in Hico" for another year. After we got to know Mr. Smith a little better, we are going to insist that he refer to this sheet as "the best weekly newspaper published in a Hamilton County town on a through railroad."

SCHOOL BOARD ... Members Take Office Monday Night Session Sees Start Made Toward Electing Teachers For the Coming Year

D. F. McCarty was elected president of the Board of Trustees of the County Line Independent School District at a meeting of that body at the high school Monday night. Other officers elected were G. C. Keeney, vice-president, and H. N. Wolfe, secretary.

G. C. Keeney, George Powledge, and D. R. Proffitt, recently elected members of the board, were sworn in. The vacancy left by Mrs. P. G. Hays, former member who has moved to Richland Springs, will be filled at an early date, according to Supt. Ray D. Brown.

Other business transacted in Monday night's meeting was the re-election of a number of the teachers, including J. I. Grimland, high school principal and coach; H. D. Gilmore, vocational agriculture; Mrs. J. I. Grimland, commercial work; and Mrs. R. O. Seagrest, mathematics.

The following were re-elected to positions in the grammar school faculty: R. B. Jackson, principal; Miss Opal Harris, sixth grade; Mrs. John D. Higgins, fifth grade; Miss Katherine Mithelland, fourth grade; Miss Mabry Spivey, third grade; and Mrs. Ellen Holton and Mrs. John Rainwater, primary.

Committees will be appointed at the next meeting of the board, at which time they also expect to fill the remaining vacancies existing in the list of teachers.

KARL CROWLEY ... Candidate For Governor, To Be Honored With Capital Dinner

Karl Crowley of Fort Worth who is retiring as solicitor of the Post Office Department to run for Governor of Texas, will be given a dinner by friends in Washington Thursday night shortly before he leaves for Texas to open his campaign.

Councilman and former Mayor George Seagrest received a letter from Mr. Crowley Monday informing him that Crowley will open State headquarters in the Baker Hotel April 19, and of the Washington dinner.

Postmaster General James A. Parsley, who is also Democratic National Chairman, will be toastmaster. Mr. Crowley wrote, "Speakers will include Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Attorney General Homer Cummings and other Cabinet members. James Roosevelt, son of the President, and his right-hand man in contacts with Congress, also will attend.

NEW COUNCIL Seated Monday Night

Mayor and Three Councilmen Take the Oath of Office; Retiring Officials In Last Meeting

With retiring Mayor H. F. Sellers presiding, City Council met Monday night of this week at City Hall in called session for the purpose of canvassing the vote on the recent election, and seating the new officials of the city elected by that vote. Retiring Councilman J. W. Riechbourg, C. P. Coston, who was re-elected, and hold-over members H. E. McCullough and R. L. Holford were in attendance. S. J. Cheek, the fifth member, who did not offer for re-election, was out of town. After canvassing the returns, Mayor Sellers officially declared L. N. Lane elected as mayor to serve for the ensuing two-year period, along with councilmen as set forth above.

In relinquishing his seat, Mr. Sellers thanked the council with which he declared it had been a distinct pleasure to work; bespoke for his successor the same kind of cooperation he had enjoyed; and pleaded for a continuance of concerted effort toward the best interests of the City of Hico. He pointed out that many things had come up during his term of office, some of them unpleasant and perhaps conducive of criticism at the way in which they had been handled, but stated that he along with the rest of the council had endeavored to look at all sides of every question, and acted as they thought fitting for the best interests of everyone concerned, and for which course he had no apologies to offer. He predicted for Mr. Lane a very successful tenure of office, with a continuance of similar policies in the transaction of the manifold duties incurred by his acceptance of the office.

Mr. Lane, in accepting the chair vacated by the retiring mayor, renewed his previous promises of service, and stated that he was conversant with the duties and obligations of a mayor through previous service in a similar capacity. He praised Mr. Sellers for the way the city's business had been handled under his direction, and forecasted a bright and harmonious administration for the next two years. He also paid tribute to the two retiring councilmen, the one who was re-elected, and to the two new aldermen.

Mr. Riechbourg stated that the past two years had been the most enjoyable in respect to harmonious relations and accomplishments of any of his previous years of service in the same capacity, and said that since there were new things coming up all the time, he realized that the office was requiring more and more thought and time all the time. He said that if everyone could but serve on the council for at least one term, he would see that things looked different than when one was on the "outside looking in."

As one of his first acts of office, Mr. Lane requested that a recorder be selected, and the council acted at once by appointing him to serve in that capacity, followed by the appointment of committees as follows, the first-named member to act as chairman of that committee:

Finance: H. E. McCullough, J. W. Leeth, W. M. Cheney. Water: C. P. Coston, H. E. McCullough, R. L. Holford. Street: J. W. Leeth, H. E. McCullough, R. L. Holford. City Park: R. L. Holford, J. W. Leeth, C. P. Coston. Sanitation: R. L. Holford, C. P. Coston, W. M. Cheney.

Sewer: W. M. Cheney, H. E. McCullough, C. P. Coston. City Ordinance: W. M. Cheney, C. P. Coston, R. L. Holford. The first regular meeting of the newly constituted council will be held Monday night, May 2, at which time a large crowd of visitors was present at last Monday night's called meeting.

Baptist Services Sunday ... Rev. A. A. Davis of Carbon will preach again at the morning and evening services at the Hico Baptist Church next Sunday.

Sunday school at 10. ... Preaching at 11 o'clock and at 7:30 o'clock. All members and friends of the Baptist Church are urgently requested to be present.

Increase in Suckers ... A mimeographed form letter has been prepared by Fred C. Pabst, collector of the customs at Galveston, so numerous have been the inquiries by letter and telegrams from persons interested in a mythical Mexican money trunk supposed to be in the customs house there, the collector disclosed Wednesday. "The sucker crop is sure increasing rapidly," Mr. Pabst said, in discussing developments in connection with the notorious Mexican money trunk swindle, which now have been in progress for several years. Many racketeers are to $3,000 to the victims who are calling at the customs house in person. They are always anxious to conceal their identity.

Conducting Methodist Revival

REV. E. H. LIGHTFOOT OF CLEBURNE

Interest and attendance have been steadily increasing in the revival at the Methodist Church. The splendid Gospel messages of the Presiding Elder, Rev. E. H. Lightfoot, are being appreciated. Plans for some great services for the remaining part of the week are being made. "Good Friday" services are expected to be especially meaningful. The subject for the morning hour will be "The Three Crosses." The Stewards will sponsor the Friday evening service, and the men of the church are especially asked to support the officials in this service. Then Easter Day will be the great climax to the series of services. Can you help—or be helped by participation? We count on all Methodists. All others are cordially invited to have part. J. C. MANN, Pastor.

DOCUMENT Replete With History

Collection of Old Papers Throws Light On Past Local and State History

"In the Name of the Republic of Texas" reads a historical document discovered among a collection of old papers of the Hico Cemetery Corporation when the directors recently found it necessary to renew their charter with the State Department of Texas. The document is the original land grant issued by Anson Jones, president of the Republic, to Mary Wood of 640 acres which includes the plot on which the cemetery is now located. The grant is described as being in Milam County, "on the main prong of the Bosque River."

The large blue seal of the Republic is attached by a ribbon to the left-hand corner of the grant which is written on parchment and dated February 11, 1846, in the tenth year of the independence of Texas.

The charter of the Cemetery Corporation itself is fifty years old, bearing the date of Dec. 1, 1886, and signed by R. V. Cox, W. H. Keffer, R. E. Langston, O. R. Morrison, Daniel Pingree, and others. It was signed before R. Stinnett, justice of the peace and ex-officio notary public, and filed for record in the office of County Clerk Ralph B. Edgar. None of the charter members are living now.

The documents are at present filed in the office of E. H. Persons, local attorney, who has been detailed to obtain a renewal of the charter.

Keeping Up With TEXAS

A man and woman who walked into the office of the sheriff of Dallas County surprised the sheriff and his deputies Tuesday. The woman became angry and took a firm hold on her husband's necktie and proceeded to "work him over." Grimacing deputies separated the pair and put the man in jail for safe keeping. The irony of the situation was that the woman wanted her husband arrested for "aggravated assault."

A backwash from the tide of empire reached Fort Worth Tuesday in a notice mailed to a Fort Worth paper from the New York information office of the German Railroads. It said: "We beg to announce that the American office of the Austrian State Tourist Department, formerly at 630 Fifth Ave., New York, has been closed. The German Railroads Information Office in New York, and our branches in Chicago, San Francisco, and Toronto, will henceforth conduct all promotion and information activities for what is now the Austrian part of Germany."

Some burglar seems to have succumbed to the gardening urge, as Fort Worth police this week investigated the theft of two lawnmowers, a wheelbarrow, and a garden rake, stolen from the garages of Fort Worth residents.

An excited little girl, dressed for the first time in her new Easter ensemble, looked hopefully at the physician. "Will you please hurry, Mr. Doctor, the recital began in a few minutes." The doctor told her to be quiet and not to be impatient. But nine-year-old Sarah Jane Harris of Fort Worth didn't get to say her piece at the recital because she died Tuesday of injuries received in a head-on car collision. She was fatally injured while riding with her father to the Elks Club where she was to appear in a recital sponsored by the expression class of the D. McRae School. Her mother died less than two years ago.

David K. Andrews, a diplomat, apparently the scion of a wealthy Southern family, and a leader of the social set with which he traveled as a representative of the U. S. Government in Mexico, began a new life Monday at 50. A victim of amnesia, which doctors think might have been caused by an injury to his head in an automobile accident several years ago, he can recall only the events in his life that started with a train ride Monday. He was identified by San Antonio police after reporting to their station. He had received a telegram from the Tampano consulate where Andrews is assistant to the consular general saying that he was absent without leave from his post there, and that his father in the U. S. State Department had been notified.

A 14-year-old Fort Worth boy not only stole a car, but he induced the owner after he had returned from a joy ride in the stolen car, he left it with the motor running and a note pinned to the seat on the subject of leaving keys in a parked car.

A one-round battle that ended in a fatal knockout was reported from Marsalis Park Zoo in Dallas Tuesday by Park Director Foster Trosby. A leopard and a panther, both about three years old, had been reared together in the zoo. A few weeks ago they were separated for a short period while some cage alterations were being made. A short time after they were put back together in a cage the leopard pounced upon the panther and broke the animal's neck with one fell swoop.

A familiar sight to thousands in downtown Houston was missing Wednesday. Trixie, who trotted ahead of E. J. Walker, a cripple, with his hat full of pencils in her mouth, was killed by a car. Walker was crossing Main and Capitol on his scooter, and the dog was lagging behind when a car made the turn, knocking him to the street and fatally hurting the dog. The driver said she was unable to see Walker after she had stopped for the traffic signal. The dog was given to Walker six years ago and had been his constant companion on the street.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt sent a message of gratitude this week to the Corsicana Camp Fire Girls for a bouquet of Texas bluebonnets which brightened her White House room. The First Lady expressed her thanks to Betty Wheelock and Catey Kinslow. Corsicana delegates to the national conservation rally, when the Camp Fire Girls went to the White House yesterday for a tea and a look at the garden. Other Texas girls in the group were Christine Dial and Betty Claybourne of Sherman, Naomi James of Wichita Falls, Betty Brooks of Fort Worth, and Jeaneette Breunig of Dallas.

INDOOR BASEBALL ... Tournament Postponed On Account Of District Track Meet

Coach Joel I. Grimland, principal of Hico High School and athletic director of the Hamilton Co. Interscholastic League, announces that the indoor baseball tournament which had been scheduled for April 16 would be postponed until April 30 because of a conflict with the district meet slated for April 16 at Brownwood.

Seriously Ill ... Mrs. J. H. Parker, who has been seriously ill since Tuesday night, was reported greatly improved at noon Thursday. A host of friends and relatives were called in Wednesday, including Mrs. Angus French and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Looney, Iredell; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Looney, Rising Star; and Mrs. Ada McElroy and son, Leroy, Stephenville.

JOTS.... JOKES & JINGLES

-BU-
JENNIE MAE

I have been worried 'all this week—ever since I found out about the new shades of chicks coming out this season. Mrs. Keeney can furnish you with almost any shade—pink, green, yellow, blue, etc. They are perfect surprises for the children on Easter—real live little pink and blue chicks.

Ever since the boss became a sensation overnight with that "Keep Cam With Camels" slogan. I've been lying awake nights trying to figure out some get-rich-quick scheme. I realize that when the big cigarette moguls start swamping him trying to buy the rights to that slogan he is going to wonder if it is worth it all. No more will there be peace and quiet around this office on Fridays. There will be a bigger rush than there ever was before, even on press day. It will really ruin this little newspaper, having all those city slickers hanging around from morning until night trying to wangle him out of that idea. The paper will undoubtedly go to wrack and ruin, so I have thought up a way to insure my future. I will be able to make an easy living by putting up a concession in a corner of the office and selling hot dogs to the thousands who'll come every year to visit the shrine of American ingenuity—the humble little printing shop wherein was born the million dollar idea, "Keep Cam With Camels."

Congratulations to Mrs. Tullus Randall, E. H. Randall, and Walter Williamson, who celebrated birthdays on April 13. The same to Carmen Shelton Hooper who finished another year on April 12 and was the recipient of a trip to Fort Worth by her husband as a token of his affection on her first birthday occurring during a state of connubial bliss.

Easter Sunday, April 17, will be the thirtieth anniversary of the great flood here that washed away 26 houses, according to L. A. Powledge, who also recalls the lost and found ad that J. C. Rodgers put in the paper, advertising for a red house that, presumably, had been washed away.

The topic that we're to discuss in the senior play. That fuss you heard was a fight they had—Freddie and Jimmie and Belmont's lad Alyne Robertson was a maid. One who was very rarely paid. Ann Persons, the Irish cook, T. McFadden, a two-timing crook.

Jean and Jane Wolfe were the dizziest dames. Dotty and Duffy were their names. Mary Jane Clark, a flighty phoney, trying to marry a man for money.

C. A. Giesecke and Dan Holladay. About Dotty and Duffy, they were "hattaway."

Jack Hollis would marry the widow for money. Joe Powers, a sheik, they thought was a honey.

Katherine Massingill hated all men. But all things came to a happy end. When Bill Nix, a rich and wise old man returned and asked for the widow's hand.

Seen Around Town: Sim Everett, nursing a finger through which he had stuck a large needle. Mary Brown, in a quaint blue bonnet. Rubilee Malone and sister, Mary Bob, enjoying the senior play. Jeanette French, glad to be home after a long stay in Dallas during which she has been taking a business course. Heated arguments and discussions over ladder matches being played at the Bluebonnet Club golf course. Goodwyn Phillips, sunning in his yard on Sunday. H. P. Sellers, enjoying more spive time since being released from official duties. Several of the college set, home for the Easter holidays. J. L. Goodman, giving his shop a thorough spring cleaning.

Millerville

By CHAS. W. GIESECKE

The freeze of last week end got most all of the fruit, and gardens and corn were killed to the ground but most of it will come out.

C. L. White and family of Hico spent Sunday with their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Glover and son, Cody.

C. H. Miller came in Sunday from Waco, returning there Sunday evening. He has been busy there for some time and will finish this week.

Several from here attended the Senior Play at Hico Monday night. Miss Mabel Nix of Dublin is visiting homefolks this week, W. J. Nix and family.

Millerville School has begun to practice their play for the last of school, "Monstache Joe." J. A. Norrod recently had in his home a Mr. Perry of Navarro Co., Tex., returning from Sanatorium, Texas, where he had taken his wife for treatment.

Bro. Oran Columbus will preach Sunday at eleven, also at night. You have an invitation to attend these services.

LOVE'S DREAM By IDA MINGUS CLAY

A maiden sat beneath the moon Replete with wooing light, And myriad coquettish stars Were gay that lovely night, And as she gazed with eyes aglow, At this celestial gleam, There came to her a happy hope That brought a golden dream.

A passing boy, imbued with joy, Espied this pretty miss, And when their tender glances met Each felt romantic bliss. Then Cupid shot a deadly dart And pierced their hearts clear through, Enticing them to beat as one To make Love's dream come true.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our many friends for their sympathy and loving-kindness and assistance at the death of our dear father, Mr. W. J. White, Especially do we thank Mr. Barrow for his understanding kindness.—THE CHILDREN.

William Henry Boyd
William Henry Boyd was born December 24, 1856, in Guinette County, Georgia, and died at the home of his son, W. E. Boyd, on April 5th, 1938.

He was married to Miss Martha Jane Cox in December, 1878. To this union were born eight children, six boys and two girls, of which five survive, as follows: H. S. Boyd, R. L. Boyd, J. H. Boyd, and Mrs. D. L. Fields, all of Cleburne county, Alabama, and W. E. Boyd of Ireddell.

He was converted and joined the Methodist church early in life and lived a faithful member to the last. He was an every-day Christian.

In December, 1885, he moved to Cleburne county, Alabama, and stayed there until the death of his wife, which occurred September 2, 1930. The following December he came to Texas and made his home with his son W. E. Boyd.

He has made two trips back to his old home to visit his children since he left there.

He was a good man and had many friends for he was a true friend to all. He was ill for some time, everything possible being done for him by his loved ones.

He will be missed by his children and friends, but they know where he is and they can say as David said of old, "I can't forget him back, but I can go to him." So all can meet him in the sweet by and by.

THE KIDNAP MURDER Case

by S. S. Van Dine

Twelfth installment.

SYNOPSIS
Kaspar Kenting disappears. Philo Vance, District Attorney Markham and Sergeant Heath of the Homicide Bureau investigate the Kenting home and question Kenyon Kenting and Mrs. Kenting. Kaspar's brother and wife, in the presence of Eldridge Fleel, Kenting family attorney, Vance doubts the kidnapping story. He further questions Weems, the butler, Mrs. Kenting's mother, Mrs. Falloway, and son, Framer Falloway, and Porter Quaggy, raconteur friend of Kaspar's and last person to be with him. All reveal an undercurrent of hostility to Kaspar. At this time a ransom note arrives demanding $50,000 and freedom from police interference. Vance and Markham consult the Kentings and Fleel, their lawyer. It is decided to allow the police a free hand in dealing with the supposed kidnapers. A dummy package is substituted for the money and then secreted in a tree in Central Park according to instructions. The police capture Mrs. Falloway who admits to Vance she is really trying to forestall an attempt by her son, Framer, to get the money. She is not held. Immediately afterward, Madeline Kenting, wife of Kaspar, also disappears suddenly. That night, while walking home, Eldridge Fleel is machine-gunned at close range from a passing automobile but not hurt. Vance suspects a ruse.

Heath turned his head and spoke out of the corner of his mouth. "Kaspar Kenting's body has been found in the East River around 150th Street. The report came in right after Snitkin got back to Headquarters. He's got all the details."
"The East River—eh?" Vance spoke quietly and without emotion. "Yes, it could easily be. Very distressing . . . He said no more; nor was there any further talk until we reached Vance's apartment."
Snitkin was already waiting in the upper hallway, just outside the library.
"Go ahead, Snitkin," ordered Heath.
Snitkin began: "There's a small inlet up there in the river, which isn't over three feet deep, and the er members of the family through the harrowing experience."

"Mrs. Kenting's room, as well as the window-sill and the ladder, was gone over thoroughly for finger-prints."
"And none was found, of course, except the Sergeant's and mine."
"You're right," conceded Markham. "The person or persons must have worn gloves."
"Assuming there was a person—or persons."
"All right, all right," Markham was beginning to be annoyed. "You're so damned cryptic about everything, and so reticent, that I have no way of knowing what prompted that last remark of yours."
"Personally, I'd say you wouldn't find them until you have located

"That—that beautiful alexandrite is gone! I'm sure it's been stolen!"

Markham silently followed Vance toward the park.
Quaggy turned too and walked with us the short distance to the entrance of his apartment-hotel, where he took leave of us. At the great iron-grilled door he turned and said tauntingly: "Many thanks for not arresting me."
"Oh, that's quite all right, Mr. Quaggy," Vance returned, halting momentarily and smiling. "The case isn't over yet, don't you know, Cheerio."
At the corner Vance very deliberately lighted a cigarette and seated himself on the wide stone balustrade.
"I'm not bloodthirsty at all, Markham," he said, looking quizzically at the District Attorney; "but I rather wish the gentleman with the machine-gun had potted Mr. Fleel. And he was at such short range. I've never welded a machine-gun myself, but I'm sure I could have done better than that."
"I'll warrant the Sergeant and McLaughlin overhaul that car somehow," Markham was apparently following his own trend of thought.
"Oh, I dare say," sighed Vance. "But I doubt if it will get us forward. One can't send a green coupe to the electric chair. Silly notion—what?"
There were several moments of silence, and when a taxicab drew up directly in front of us, the door swung open and Heath and McLaughlin stepped out.
"We got the car all right," announced Heath triumphantly. "The same dirty-green coupe McLaughlin here saw outside the Kenting house Wednesday morning."
"Where did you find it, Sergeant?" asked Markham.
"Right up there in the transverse leading through the park. It was half-way up on the curb. Abandoned. After the guys in it ditched the car they musta come out and hopped a taxicab up the street, because shortly after the green coupe turned into the transverse two guys walked out and, according to the driver here, took the cab in front of his."
"Without waiting for a reply from either Markham or Vance, Heath swung about and beckoned imperiously to the chauffeur of the cab from which he had just alighted. A short round man of perhaps thirty struggled out of the front seat and joined us.
"Look here, you," bawled out Heath, "do you know the name of the man who was running the cab ahead of you on the stairs tonight who took the two guys what come out of the transverse?"
"Sure I know him."
"Know where he lives?"
"Sure I know where he lives. Up on Kelly Street, in the Bronx."
"Get hold of that baby as soon as you can, and tell him to beat it down to the Homicide Bureau pronto. I wanna know where he took those two guys that came out of the transverse."
"I can tell ya that right now, officer," came the chauffeur's respectful answer. "I was standin' talkin' to Abe when the fares came over from the park. I opened the door for 'em myself. An' they told Abe to drive like hell to the uptown station of the Lexington Avenue subway at 86th Street."
"Ah!" It was Vance who spoke up. "That's very interesting. Uptown—eh, what?"
"Anyway, I wanna see this buddy of yours," Heath went on to the chauffeur, ignoring Vance's interpolated comment. "Get me, fellow!"
"Sure I getcha, officer," the chauffeur returned subserviently. "Abe ought to be back on the stand in half an hour."
"That's O. K.," growled Heath. As we drove rapidly down Central Park West, Markham nervously lighted a cigar and asked Heath, who was sitting on the seat in front of him:
"Well, what about that telephone call you got at the Kenting house, Sergeant?"

fellow on the beat—Nelson. I think it was—saw this baby lying on the bank, with his legs out of the water, along about nine o'clock tonight. So he called in and reported it right away, and they sent over a buggy from the local station. The Medical Examiner of the Bronx gave the body the once-over, and it seems the fellow didn't even die from drowning. He was already dead when he was dumped into the water. His head was bashed in."
"Well, the doc guessed the guy had been dead twelve hours maybe. There's no telling how long he'd been lying there in the inlet."
"What about identification?" asked Heath officiously.
"Oh, there was plenty of identification, Sarge," Snitkin answered. "The guy not only fit the description like a glove, but his clothes and his pockets was full of identification. And there was a fancy pocket comb with his initials on it."
"A pocket comb—eh?" Vance nodded with satisfaction. "Very interesting, Markham. When a gentleman carries a pocket comb he would certainly not add a toilet comb to his equipment. . . . Forgive the interruption, Snitkin. Go on."
"Well, there was monograms on damn-near everything else he had in his pockets. According to the boys at the local station, he was either the Kaspar Kenting, we're looking for, or he wasn't nobody."
Snitkin was dismissed and ten minutes later Heath followed. When we were alone Markham asked:
"How did you know Kaspar Kenting was dead when I spoke to you on the stairway yesterday morning?"
"You flatter me," said Vance. "I didn't really know. I merely assumed it—basin' my conclusion on the indications."
"So that's your mood," snorted Markham hopelessly. "I'm telling you, you outrageous top, that this is a damned serious situation—what happened to Fleel tonight ought to prove that."
"I know only too well, Markham, how serious the situation is," he said in a grave and curiously subdued voice. "But there's really nothing we can do. We must wait—please believe me. Our hands are tied. The most serious part of the whole affair is that is not a kidnapping case at all, in the conventional sense. It goes deeper than that. It's cold-blooded, diabolical murder. But I can't quite see my way yet to proving it. I'm far more worried than you, Markham. The whole thing is unspeakably horrible. There are subtle and abnormal elements mixed up in the situation. It's an abominable affair, but as we sit here tonight, I want to tell you that I don't know—I don't know—I'm afraid to make a move until we learn more."
"I shall never forget the following day. It will ever remain in my memory as one of the great horrors of my life."
The day began conventionally enough.
"I think we'll take a spin down to Markham's office, Van," Vance said. "There's nothing to do here and there may be some news which Markham naively regards as too trivial to telephone me about."
We arrived at Markham's office a few minutes before ten o'clock.
"Glad you came, Vance," was Markham's greeting.
"Ah!" Vance sat down lazily. "Any tidin's, glad or otherwise?"
"Well," said Markham in a hard practical voice. "Kenyon Kenting was taken to the uptown morgue this morning and he identified his brother's body beyond a doubt. And I saw no need to put any other members of the family through the harrowing experience."

"Mrs. Kenting's room, as well as the window-sill and the ladder, was gone over thoroughly for finger-prints."
"And none was found, of course, except the Sergeant's and mine."
"You're right," conceded Markham. "The person or persons must have worn gloves."
"Assuming there was a person—or persons."
"All right, all right," Markham was beginning to be annoyed. "You're so damned cryptic about everything, and so reticent, that I have no way of knowing what prompted that last remark of yours."
"Personally, I'd say you wouldn't find them until you have located the car in which Mrs. Kenting was probably driven away last night."
"What do you mean—what car?" demanded Markham.
"I haven't the slightest idea," said Vance laconically. "But I hardly think the lady walked out of sight. . . . And, by the way, Markham, speakin' of cars, what enormous array of information did you marshal about the green coupe the energetic Sergeant found so conveniently waiting for him in the transverse? . . . Doubtless stolen, eh, what?"
Markham nodded glumly.
"Yes, Vance, that's just it. Belongs to a perfectly respectable spinster on upper West End Avenue."
"What about Abe, the buddy of the chauffeur who drove us home last night? I suppose Heath or some of the Torquemadas in Centre Street put the poor devil through the requisite torture."
"You read too many trashy books, Vance," Markham was indignant. "Heath talked to the driver of the number one cab at head-quarters within an hour of the time he left here last night. He merely corroborated what our chauffeur told us—namely, that he dropped the two men who came out of the transverse at the uptown entrance of the Lexington Avenue subway."
"Well, your information seems to be typically thorough and typologically useless," said Vance. "Did any one do a bit of checkin' up to ascertain whether there were any unaccounted-for semiprecious stones round town?"
"Good heavens, no! What have your semiprecious stones to do with a case of kidnapping?"
"My dear Markham!" protested Vance. "I have told you—and I thought, in my naive way, that it had even been demonstrated to you—that this is not a case of kidnapping. Won't you even permit a subtle killer to set the stage for himself—to indulge in a bit of spectacular decour, so to speak? That collection of old Karl Kenting's gems has a dashed lot to do with the case. . . ."
"I'm not worried as much about such vague factors in the case as I am about the attack on Fleel," Markham interrupted.
"Oh, that," Vance shrugged. "A mere bit of technique. And the operator of the sub-machine gun was kind enough to miss his target. As I told Fleel, he was very lucky."
At this moment Markham's secretary, coming swiftly through the swinging leather door, interrupted the conversation.
"Chief," he announced, "there's a young fellow outside who's terribly excited and insists on seeing you at once. Says it's about the Kenting case. Gives his name as Falloway."
"Oh, send him in, by all means," said Vance, before Markham had time to answer.

"FARM EGG CONSUMPTION NEEDED"

With over 5,000,000 farms producing eggs to say nothing of several hundred thousand poultry raisers on small tracts, back lots, etc., there is the greatest opportunity to increase the consumption of eggs right among the producers of eggs themselves.
It has been estimated that around thirty-five million of the one hundred twenty million population is located either on the farm or in small villages where they raise poultry.
Here is a tremendous field for the poultry raisers themselves to increase the use of their own product by using more of the product right at home.
If the average farm family only would use a dozen more eggs a week, this would entirely remove the surplus of eggs.
Conservative estimates have been that the over production of eggs at the present time is somewhere around one million more cases of 30 dozen each than normally expected.
This little extra of a million cases simply broke the camel's back of the egg market when we had a nice open winter and eggs continued to arrive beyond anyone's expectation.
Now, it is up to the poultry producers themselves to use more eggs and to increase the consumption of eggs right on the farm so as to stabilize the price.
It is true the Government has been helping by removing some of the surplus. Chain Food, Drug and Independent grocery stores are urging increased consumption of eggs right now, but the producers themselves can do the most to remove this surplus by encouraging consumption at home, thus using more of their own good product.
Today, eggs are one of the most inexpensive foods on the market and have always been one of the very best in every way.
Thus, the producer of eggs should eat more eggs and will have to pay out less cash for other products that he does not produce.
With the egg production now at its height, and with practically all eggs of the highest quality, it is timely for the farmers and poultry raisers to consume more eggs at home so as to reduce the surplus and thus tend to get a better price for those eggs that are sold.—Exchange.

Your Newspaper

The merchant's relations to his newspaper are supposed to be those of an advertiser. This is a narrow vein. Your paper is an institution. The merchant can no more escape its influence than anybody else, whether he advertises or not.

Yet, as a consistent advertiser, his relations with the local newspaper become definitely constructive. He becomes a part of this institution without which no community can express itself. Whatever its merits or demerits, the home town paper is an expression of the community, it is the "voice of the people" in a sense that cannot hold true for any other medium.

THIS INSTITUTION KEEPS FRIENDS IN TOUCH WITH FRIENDS

To the best of its ability it answers Who, What, When, Where and Why. It interprets community life. Week by week it tells the story of the town and community.

Most people are so accustomed to the home town paper that they take it as a matter of course. If they occasionally think anything about it at all, they think of its deficiencies. They are present largely because it is run by fallible human beings. The wonder about your paper is that it contains so few mistakes.

TO THE MERCHANT, ESPECIALLY, YOUR PAPER IS AN OPPORTUNITY

His business, too, is a local enterprise. Unless it can find some kind of expression in the paper, both the paper and the business house have, to an important extent, failed to function. Each is affected somewhat by every successive failure in this respect.

IT DOES NOT COST A GREAT DEAL OF MONEY TO ADVERTISE IN THE LOCAL PAPER

Most advertisers are overjudicious rather than extravagant. It is the continual message that counts. Sporadic advertisements now and then are of doubtful value. Perhaps they are better than no advertising at all. Every advertisement placed by a business house should blend into every other advertisement it places. The merchant should think in terms of a campaign rather than in terms of a single insertion.—Exchange.

HATRED To a visitor from Mars this Earth must be a strange and confusing place.

That is the situation of the social order today. We do not understand each other and we fear that which we do not understand.

At the root of it all is intolerance and inability or refusal to recognize the right of every man and every social group to have its own ideas and to live in accordance with its own standards.

BREEDING CANNON-FOODER The German government, in the past five years, has grafted more than 900,000 "marriage id" loans of 700 marks to young couples starting out in life.

ough for the present population? And when a nation is unable to pay its bills, as Germany is, constantly pleading poverty to its creditors but constantly bearing down on its people for more taxes with which to build up its military forces, how can it spend money so freely to encourage matrimony?

The most plausible answer is that the German government is anticipating the next war and looking forward to the deaths of another ten or twelve millions of its young men, and so is taking precautions to see that there are enough children left to carry on after their fathers have been sacrificed on the altars of the War Gods.

There are Americans who actually believe that this country needs a more disciplined and regulated social system. Well, one of the results of a regimented and controlled social system is that young men and women are braced to marry so that they can breed more children to grow up into cannon-fodder for the greater glory of the dictators who control their nation.

Once more the Supreme Court has handed down a decision reaffirming the time-honored Constitutional right of the Freedom of the Press and expanding the definition of any and all kinds of printed matter without restraint.

The question came before the Court in the form of an appeal from a city ordinance of Griffin, Georgia, which prohibited the distribution, either free or by sale, of any circulars, handbills, advertising or other literature without a license from the city authorities.

This, Chief Justice Hughes said in delivering the Supreme Court's opinion, "strikes at the very foundation of the press by subjecting it to license and censorship."

There exists no power of Government to restrain anybody from printing and distributing by any means he chooses any truth so long as the Constitution of the United States remains the supreme law of the land.—Exchange.

Coming North in mid-March, I encountered my first snowstorm of the season in Northern Virginia. All the way up to my Pennsylvania home I was struck, as I have been before, with the sure signs along the highway indicating the normal climate of the regions I passed through.

The Rocketship Soars—At New York World's Fair

NEW YORK — (Special)—The dream of the mechanical age and perhaps the commonplace event of the World of Tomorrow—a trip to Mars in a rocketship—will be produced in tangible form in steel and glass when a model working rocketport is placed into operation at the New York World's Fair 1939. Now being constructed by Raymond Loewy, industrial designer, the operating planet-line will be part of a free, focal exhibit in the transportation section of the Fair. More than a thousand visitors will be able to see the show at one time. After an interesting, activated display of transportation from the day of the cave man to the present, illumination in the auditorium will be shifted to spotlight the rocketport. Airplanes, liners, railroad trains and taxicabs of futuristic design will bring passengers and twinkling elevators will begin loading the rocketship's cargo. When the time comes for departure, sirens will sound, machinery will hum, a giant crane will lift the rocketship and place it in the breech of the gun and a brilliant flash and an explosion will indicate that the world-folk are off on a visit to another planet. By means of an ingenious invention resembling the shutter of a camera, placed in the sky-ceiling, the audience will seem to see the rocketship vanish into the vast reaches of space.

Girl Athlete Forgets Olympic Dream To Train for Teaching

RUTH MARSHIK

DENTON, Texas—Ruth Marshik, who was widely publicized by Dallas newspapers when she was 13 as a possible successor to the great Mildred "Babe" Didrickson, has traded her dream of competing in the Olympics for the more modest aim of becoming a teacher of physical education. Enrolled as a freshman at the North Texas State Teachers College, Denton, the girl who in 1935 was the holder of an unofficial women's high jump in the United States is now pretty and, on the whole, a very normal young woman. Maybe she's above average in scholarship and health. She's five feet seven inches tall, weighs over 132, never worries about excess poundage, plays softball a good deal, still clears the bar at a good figure. Probably studies more than the average co-ed, has a good sense of humor, likes domestic life, and chews her pencil for a pastime. Pictures show her on the tennis court, clearing the same bar used when she first entered big-time athletic competition against Babe Didrickson and other female stars in the 1932 A. A. U. Meet at Denton, examining book titles in the browsing room of the North Texas State Teachers College library.

At top: Erno Rapee, A.S.C.A.P. Below: Maurice Baron, A.S.C.A.P. Insert: Al Stillman, A.S.C.A.P.

COMPOSERS and authors by no means depend for their livelihood on the results of their creative talents. Royalties from the sale of sheet music and phonograph records have diminished to but ten per cent of their former values. Royalties received through the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, which licenses the public-performance-for-profit rights of their works, are never sufficient to give these creators a life of ease. Song writers must work. They cannot live on airs. Most of them choose for their daily occupation a position in the amusement field, with theatres, production companies, orchestral units, etc. They manage to distinguish themselves in these occupations, since generally genius is versatile. Three members of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, and on occasion, a fourth, are intimately associated with the creation and production of music in the largest theatre in the world, the Radio City Music Hall. Erno Rapee, A.S.C.A.P., director of all music and conductor of the great orchestra, is the head of the Music Production Department. Maurice Baron, A.S.C.A.P., dean of the staff's composers and arrangers, has the job of creating new music or arranging older music to fit every revue staged in the theatre. Al Stillman, A.S.C.A.P., is the staff librettist of the Music Hall, and must write the words to fit the music which fits the revue. On occasion Kay Swift, A.S.C.A.P., distinguished woman composer, now associated with the World's Fair, has contributed her talents to the work of presenting musical entertainment in the Hall. Mr. Rapee is the composer of "Charmaine," "Diana" and "Angels in Blue." Mr. Baron is the composer of "Serenade Orientale," "Indian Wedding Festival" and "Lake Song." Mr. Stillman has written the lyrics for "Virginia," "Forever and a Day," and "Tell Me That You Love Me." Miss Swift is the composer of "Fine and Dandy," "Can't We Be Friends" and "A Moonlight Memory."

Uncle Sam's "Peace Table" at New York World's Fair 1939

NEW YORK—(Special)—Giant teamshovels are tearing away at the soil and hundreds of men are working on the $3,000,000 Federal Area for the New York World's Fair where Uncle Sam will preside, figuratively, at a 1939 world peace table that is expected to have a lasting beneficial effect upon international relations. Uncle Sam will be represented by a huge Federal Building which will be placed at the head of a Hall of Nations, where foreign countries, 64 of which have agreed to participate, will show their official exhibits at the Fair. All the buildings will be grouped around an enormous parade ground which will be the scene of parades, pageants, drills and other colorful events of a like nature, and where many thousands of Fair visitors will gather on opening day to listen to a speech by President Roosevelt. The architect is Howard L. Cheney.

This structure, which is now being built under the direction of the United States New York World's Fair Commission, will contain exhibits interpreting the background and functions of the legislative, judicial and executive branches of government. Secretary of Agriculture Henry

A. Wallace is Chairman of the Commission and its membership includes Secretary of Commerce Roper, Secretary of Labor Perkins, Senators Wagner and Copeland of New York and White of Maine and Representatives Merritt and Wadsworth of New York and McReynolds of Tennessee.

Easter

George MacDonald expressed the right thought when he wrote "Songs of Spring Days": "The holy spirit of Spring is working silently. Then is when the holy festival comes, called Easter. This day is observed in many branches of the Christian church to commemorate Christ's resurrection."

Many customs, beautiful and quaint, have been and still are observed in churches and in homes as an expression of joy because Christ rose from the dead. Church bodies have special services for this closing of the forty days of Lent, and flowers of white, especially Easter lilies, decorate the altars as a sign of purity and of light. The sending of Easter eggs is a custom thought to have originated with the Persians—the eggs being symbols of new life. Coloring them red typifies the blood of redemption; other colors have no special significance.

Seniors

The Seniors are progressing fairly well in some things these days. Civics seems to be the biggest hindrance to a peaceful mind among this group. When Mr. Horsley insists that we know the representatives from our state, we begin to take on that "imposed on" expression. There is one Senior boy, Andy Duncan, who seems especially to be having troubles. When the conversation happens to be about consuls, Andy suddenly has bright ideas about ambassadors and all such things. Mr. Horsley quite naturally asks Andy to at least keep in two blocks of the conversation.

A Plea!

We would especially appreciate having the happenings of this school reported each Monday morning by ten o'clock. Now, we don't mean to be hard-boiled folks, but it is difficult to do justice to the news of our school in twenty or thirty minutes. And newspapers insist on copy being turned in promptly. For this reason, please, help us by being a little more considerate.—The Editors.

Milk A Mainstay Of Farm Income

ABILITY of the dairy industry to maintain cash payments to farmers for milk and employee payrolls is evidence, says the Milk Industry Foundation, that this $3 1/2 billion dollar industry is a mainstay of agricultural and industrial purchasing power during periods of recession.

Milk, the largest source of farm cash income, was also the only major farm commodity except cotton to return farmers more cash in January than the same month of 1937. Farm cash income from milk of $132,000,000 for January was the largest for the month in eight years and 14.5 per cent greater than in January 1937. Total farm cash from marketings of all other farm products was down 10 per cent.

Total farm cash income from milk for the twelve months of 1937 was $1,475,000,000, an increase of $55,000,000 over 1936 and $490,000,000 greater than the low of 1932. An important factor in the steady increase of dairy farm income results from the axiom that farmers benefit most from milk sold in fluid form to homes, stores, hotels, restaurants.

Foundation reports from 136 markets throughout the country show that, peroville of milk companies were 4.3 per cent higher and employment down only 1.8 per cent in January 1938 compared with January 1937.

Further evidence of the importance of fluid milk distribution to economic stability is that, despite curbed business activity during the last quarter of 1937, milk company payrolls increased 4.8 per cent and employment .7 per cent over the last quarter of 1936.

Year	Farm Cash Milk Income (in Millions of Dollars)
1933	$990
1934	$1133
1935	$1289
1936	$1417
1937	$1475

DORIS DUKE

Her Pappy Made $101,000,000 — But Didn't Get A "Dinged Bit of Fun" Out of Money

The richest girl in the world is married now and worth $53,000,000. She has often been called the Poor Little Rich Girl because wherever she goes, reporters and cameramen pester the life out of her. She can't even go out and shop for a hat without two or three detectives, armed with pistols, trailing at her heels to protect her.

The story of the Duke millions reaches back to the close of the Civil War. Those were bitter days for the South—armies had ravaged the land; the fields were barren and deserted. Suffering was intense. People boiled chestnuts and cotton seed to make a substitute for coffee and brewed a concoction of blackberry leaves and sassafras roots to take the place of tea. Even the earthen floors of smoke houses, saturated with the drippings of bacon, were dug up and boiled to get salt.

Washington Duke, the grandfather of the richest girl in the world, had found under Lee at Richmond and had suffered in the notorious Libby Prison. After Lee's surrender, he returned to his farm in Durham, North Carolina.

The Confederate government had given him a span of blind mules, old and decrepit with age, and he had traded a $5 Confederate note to a Northern soldier for a half-dollar.

With their mules and covered wagon, they headed for the Southern part of the state where tobacco was scarce. They bartered tobacco for-bacon and cotton. At night, they camped by the side of the road, fried bacon and sweet potatoes, and slept under the stars. This was a lot more fun than raising tobacco so they decided to devote their lives to the business of selling tobacco.

But as time went on, they encountered fierce and savage competition. Hundreds of firms were making pipe tobacco—big, rich, powerful firms. James Buchanan Duke, the father of Doris Duke, knew that he had to do something different and do it at once—or he would be sunk. So he hit upon an idea that made him a hundred million dollars. He decided to make cigarettes. That may not sound so original today when American smoke one hundred and twenty-five billion cigarettes every year; but in 1881, it was revolutionary. Russians and Turks had been smoking cigarettes for generations, and British soldiers had brought them back from the Crimean War; but America, the land that gave tobacco to the world, had no cigarettes until 1867.

When "Buck" started, cigarettes were rolled by hand. He perfected a machine that increased the manufacture from twenty-five hundred to one million a day.

He did a bond-office business and when Congress reduced the tax on tobacco, he stunned his competitors by slashing the price in half and flooding the market with cigarettes at five cents a box.

He died worth $101,000,000 and he used to boast that he had made more millionaires than any other man in America. Yet he went to school for only four or five years. He once said: "A college education is all right for preachers and lawyers, but what use would it be to me? Superior brains are not necessary in business."

Curiously enough, this man who felt that he himself didn't need an education, gave $40,000,000 to found a University which bears his name today. It is Duke University in Durham, North Carolina, and one of its trustees is Doris Duke—probably the youngest University trustee in the world.

"Buck" Duke hated publicity, and he gave only one interview in his life. At that interview, the reporter asked him, "Mr. Duke, is there any satisfaction in just having a million dollars?" "Buck" Duke shook his head and said, "Naw, not a dinged bit."

Amusement Zone Of New York Fair Biggest in History

NEW YORK (Special)—An amusement zone designed to accommodate at one time the entire population of cities the size of Akron, Atlanta, Birmingham, Dallas, Denver or St. Paul will greet the millions of visitors to the New York World's Fair 1939.

Grover A. Whalen, president of the Fair corporation, announced that the largest entertainment section ever constructed, it will contain enough shows, devices, restaurants, villages, shaded rest spots, secondary streets and plazas to handle more than 250,000 fun-seekers.

One huge theater-restaurant alone will have seats for 5,000. Another music auditorium will seat 2,500. An amphitheater to contain huge crowds will be built by the state of New York at a cost of $1,600,000; erected at the head of one of the lakes it will be the scene of operas, aquatic exhibitions, pageants and other extravaganzas.

The visitor to the Fair will walk about two miles merely to pass through the amusement section which will be laid out in the form of an oval loop with no "dead end" streets.

The 250-acre tract will be divided into at least thirteen villages or zones and every concession will conform in design and atmosphere to the particular zone in which it is located.

An example will be the "Little Old New York" village, where the theater will be a replica of the famous old Park theater, the principal cafe will duplicate Steve Brodie's saloon and the attendant's will dress in character. All architecture will be attuned to that picturesque period. Admission to the zones will be free.
