

The FEUD at SINGLE SHOT

By Luke Short

Twelfth Installment
SYNOPSIS

With his partner, Rosy Rand, Dave Turner is on his way to his ranch at Single Shot. Both are returning from prison where they have served sentences for unjust convictions. On the train, which is carrying a large sum of money, Rosy's quick action and straight shooting holds a hold up while Dave saves the life of Martin Quinn, a gambler, who is being threatened by a desperado. Stopping at Single Shot, the sheriff tells Dave he is not wanted. Quinn defends Dave but Dave and Rand go to Soledad to meet Mary, Dave's sister, and proceeds on horseback to the ranch. Mary reveals she is married and tells Dave that the ranch is doing poorly, being beset by nesters and involved in a claim dispute. Next morning, at breakfast, Dave and Rosy discover that Mary is now cooking for the ranch hands—a bad sign. After discussing financial matters with Mary, Dave and Rosy saddle horses and leave for Single Shot to see the town banker, Mr. Pearson. Mortgage is renewed and Dave decides to get enough money to pay off mortgage by raising alfalfa and selling it. Following night, the lake is blown up, and Dave inwardly accuses Hammond. The latter blames Dave. A chance meeting of the two gives them an opportunity to clear away this false impression. The hunt now turns to Crowell, the mysterious man of means and ambitions. Rosy rushes to Winters' home to tell Mary of his suspicions about her husband and asks her help to prove his findings.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

He was ganked out of it by a dim warning whistle, a hissing, automatically, his right hand streaked to his gun. He had it just clear of leather when the rope settled and he was yanked from his saddle. The rope had tightened up above his elbow so that his forearm and gun were clear. Sixty feet off a rider, his rope dalled round the horn of his saddle, was just dismounting.

Dave took a snap shot, saw the horse shy into the man and both disappear behind a rock as he was dragged forward helplessly on his chest. Then it was quiet, and Dave struggled to roll off his arm and get his gun clear.

He aimed where the rope disappeared around the rock. He shot and the rope snapped. He lunged to his feet.

This time he didn't hear the rope. It came from behind him. Two of them, he thought. It settled from behind with the viciousness of a striking snake around his waist, yanking his gun arm down close to his body.

Dave turned. He saw two men approaching, one with both guns out.

"Maybe you'd like us to finish what Freeman didn't," he said with a sneer.

"So you know about Freeman, eh?" Dave asked.

Another of the men started to speak. He was a swarthy individual, dressed in tattered range clothes, and he spoke around a cheekful of tobacco. "Why shouldn't?" "Shut up, Lew," the heavy man ordered.

They walked behind a rock off the trail. The other man, a small vicious-looking hard-case with a rat's shifty eyes, prodded Dave with his gun.

Lew collected the horses. The man with the dead eyes looked at his horse and cursed. Dave's shot had creased the horse's neck, making it bleed.

"You better trade nags with me, Reilly," he said to the rat-face. "This blood is liable to cause questions."

"You goin' to town?"

"Sayres said to get 'em both, didn't he? And the red-headed hombre ain't here."

"What's—?" Dave began.

The outlaw with the dead eyes wheeled and drove his fist into Dave's face, sending him back against the rock.

"You'd better take him off the trail, tie him and git goin'," the heavier man said. "I'm leavin'." He walked over to Reilly's horse, mounted and rode off in the direction of town.

Reilly turned to Lew. "We better take the Five Points trail to the shack, hadn't we?"

"Yeah. There's too many damn prospectors wanderin' the other way." They ordered Dave to mount, then tied his feet in the stirrups and his hands behind his back. He rode the wounded horse, which made any attempt at escape more hopeless. Reilly grinned.

It was dark when they reached the ranch buildings. Dave could see nothing but several lighted windows in a building tucked in the folds of jagged rocky hills.

The door was immediately opened and Lew called for a lantern. A sandy-haired cowpuncher came out with it and Dave recognized him as the man who had stuck up Quinn on the train.

"Well, Turner, how's the hero, now?" he sneered. His face slid into sullen ugliness. "Let's get "Well, Turner, how's the hero, now?"

"You figured we'd blow out the trail behind us on the rim and then rode for the canyons, didn't you?" He laughed. "Well, there's another trail down that mountain. Try and find it if you ever get back."

Their ride was checked only once and that was when they had reached a pass that looked as if it would take them across the mountains to the east slope. The pass was narrow, guarded by two natural ramparts of rock.

As they were about to enter it, a voice hailed them.

"Don't come no further."

"Shet up, Cassidy," Lew called out.

"Where's the red-head?" Cassidy asked.

"Fat's after him," Lew growled.

that hombre off. I'm goin' to see how far my fist will go down his throat."

"I reckon you won't," a voice drawled from the door. The man who had spoken was lounging against the door. He was so big and tall that his head almost touched the top of the door. His light hair was closely cropped. His features were even and his lazy smile was as winning as a woman's. Was this the Sayres that Fat had mentioned?

Chinch whirled to glare at the speaker. "What's the difference, Sayres?"

"Cut it," Sayres snapped. "Step in, Turner."

Dave went in. The inside of the shack showed double-decked wall bunks surrounding a large table on which bottles cards and glasses were scattered.

"Sit down," Sayres said politely. Dave sat, wondering what was in store for him.

"Like a snake?" he asked Dave.

"I would," Dave answered.

Sayres lit a cigarette and put it in Dave's mouth. They sat quietly. Dave with tense muscles, until the other three men came in.

Sayres turned to Chinch. "Saddle up. You got to take the paper to Crowell."

Chinch glared at Sayres, who laughed softly. "If you're a good boy, Chinch, and don't sulk, I might give you a poke at him."

"Wondering what we're talkin' about, Turner?" Sayres said.

Dave shrugged carelessly and watched Sayres take a paper from his shirt pocket, unfold it, and lay it on the table.

"That's a deed to your half of the D Bar T," Sayres said evenly. "You're here to sign it."

"Maybe," Dave said.

Sayres laughed easily. "You take a lot of spookin', don't you?" Over his shoulder he said: "Take off your guns, boys and untie him."

Dave watched them take off their guns, after which they gathered around him and watched Lew untie the knots.

"Turner," Sayres began, "you're goin' to sign your ranch over to a man named Crowell, shall we say? I'm givin' you one chance. I'm askin' you to sign without bein' forced to. Will you?"

"No," Dave answered promptly.

"That's too bad," Sayres said softly. "Maybe I didn't make myself plain enough. We want the ranch. You sign your half away and the paper is produced to your sister. When she sees that you have signed we expect her to sign her half away. We're giving her quite a reasonable sum, Turner. Much more than the ranch is worth to you and her. Wouldn't it be better if you signed and not forced me to . . . he left the finish dangling.

"No."

"Get that hammer, Lew," Sayres said. Lew got a heavy hammer from one of the bunks.

"Now spread his left hand out, palm down, on the table," Sayres ordered.

Sayres drew a ten-penny spike from his shirt pocket.

"Observe this, Turner," Sayres said. "You see, I mean what I say." Placing the spike point on the back of Dave's hand just below the finger, he drove the nail through the flesh and onto the table.

"Now get the axe," Sayres said. Lew, white-faced, disappeared outside and came back with the axe.

"I might as well tell you the rest, Turner," Sayres said. "I'm going to cut your fingers off, one by one. Are you such a fool, Turner, that you think your sister can't be killed? If we wouldn't stop at torturing, do you think we'd stop at killing her?"

Dave's face was parchment-colored now, partly from the pain which he could endure, but mostly from what Sayres had just told him. He knew now that Sayres was not bluffing and that he could and would kill Mary and Winters after he had tortured him to death.

"I'll sign," Dave said weakly.

"Good," Sayres said jovially. He took a pen from a shelf near by along with a bottle of ink. Dave signed his name.

"I reckon there's not much to say to a coyote like you, Sayres," Dave said, his voice trembling with a suppressed rage. "Except this: if I live long enough, I'll kill you like I would a rattlesnake."

Chinch stepped forward. "What about that promise?"

Sayres shrugged. "Go ahead."

Chinch stepped up to Dave, who was still seated, planted his feet firmly and drew back his hand.

Dave lunged out of his chair and drove his bleeding fist into Chinch's face, sending him sprawling across the room and into a bunk where he lay in a daze.

Sayres laughed. Lunging off the table, he walked over to the bunk and slapped Chinch's face until the unconscious man groaned and sat erect.

"Still feel like curlin' your tail, Chinch?" Sayres asked.

Chinch glared at him.

"Now get saddled and hightail it," Sayres ordered. "Crowell's waiting. Get goin'." Chinch slunk out and Sayres turned to Lew.

"Take him out in the back room and put the leg irons on him."

Dave was prodded into a one-room addition at the rear of the shack which served as a storeroom of sorts. He was handcuffed, seated on the floor facing the log wall and his feet were manacled with a logging chain to the drop log of the addition. When they had finished, Sayres came in to look over the job and after grunting his approval left with the others.

Lew slammed the door shut after him but it swung open a few inches so that Dave could see them moving in front of the crack occasionally, and a dim shaft of light filtered into the room.

"Get something to eat," Sayres ordered.

Dave could hear the rattle of a frypan. His hand ached throbbing with the pumping of his heart and his fingers were stiff and numb. Lying on his back and staring at the ceiling he tried to read some sense into all that had happened to him. They were trying to get the ranch. Why?

Lew's voice broke into his reverie. "When'll the gal be here?"

"Not very long now. We got to get him out of the way," Sayres said.

"Everything to Build Anything"

Welcome, Old Timers!

Do You Recall This 1908 Hico Utility Advertisement?

● "Electric Lights Don't Blow Out Every Time a Window Is Raised" Was One of Main Arguments Advanced In Copy

Young people as well as the "old timers" attending the Hico Reunion will get a chuckle from the following copy which appeared in an advertisement published by the Hico Electric Light & Power Company in 1908:

"Wonders will never cease. You will never cease to wonder why you stood the worry, the danger and the inconvenience of oil lamps when you have once tried electric lights. It is absolutely imperative that you have your house wired for electric lights for the following very plain reasons:

"First, with the modern methods that the Hico Electric Light and Power Company use in installing lights, fire hazard is absolutely unknown. This fact is unquestioned, irrefutable. Kerosene and gasoline lights are recognized by the insurance companies as unsafe and all the policyholders are warned. Generally the use of these lights calls for a higher rate of insurance. Not so with electric lights.

"Second, electric lights look best. This is an undisputed fact. All of the swell decorations are made with electric lights, and the neatest, most up-to-date drug stores, hotels and restaurants are electric lighted. The neatest, coolest homes are electric lighted. The time spent in caring for coal oil lamps will do lots toward straightening up other parts of the home, and above all a kerosene lamp mars the effect of the most elaborate and painstaking arrangement of rooms. The fixtures and shades for an electric light are too cheap for anyone to overlook.

"Third, electric lights give the only really steady light. It is the only light that sheds its light where it should go. It throws its rays down, the coal oil throws its rays up, and the only way you can get it to reflect it. In that event you lose lots of light, and the reflector makes a coal oil lamp more bunglesome than ever.

"Fourth, electric lights are ideal for time saving. They need no care. They are always ready. Did you ever stop to consider that the average housekeeper of 30 years has spent one solid year of her life doing nothing but trimming and cleaning coal oil lamps? Think what these persons could have done with that amount of time if they had had electric lights. Did you ever consider how long it takes to get a light with coal oil when you wake in the night and are in a hurry? How many things are run over in the dark and broken? All for the sake of a few cents that should have been spent for electric lights.

"Fifth, electric lights don't blow out every time a window is raised. Think what a convenience they are in this respect in the summer time—and you don't have to look at a smoked chimney.

"Sixth, electric lights are always at your service. Burglars dread electric lit houses. You may hear one in some other part of the house and you switch a light on him. He is in the light and you are in the dark. That's the way you want it then, isn't it?

"Seventh, your house being wired for electric lights enables you to have an electric iron, which is the greatest convenience in the world. It is in the first place cheaper in cost of operation than heating irons on a stove with wood or coal. It is cleaner than any charcoal or gasoline heating. There is absolutely no danger. You don't have to run back and forth for a hot iron—it stays hot. You don't have to roast in a hot room with your ironing. Get out on the porch where it is cool or in any part of the house where there is a lamp cord. The electric iron gets scorching hot in 4 minutes.

"Can you consider these seven reasons and not have your house wired?"

Think of It! Just 30 years ago it was actually necessary for utility companies to sell prospective customers on the idea of using electricity for lighting and ironing!

Today, electricity is not only considered indispensable for these two purposes but also for refrigeration, radio, washing, vacuum cleaning, cooking and many other uses unthought of in 1908.

Year by year, electricity has enlarged its usefulness and year by year it has come down in unit cost. Today, the average Hico resident enjoys the manifold benefits of dependable electric service for only 10 cents a day—less than the cost of a package of cigarettes or a malted milk.

Betty Lou Gerson and her husband, Joseph Ainley, are back from a Caribbean cruise and Betty is hard at work rehearsing her new starring role in the "Win Your Lady" series which replaces Tyrone Power for the summer. Husband Joe is again directing the popular "First Nighter" series. Incidentally, the "First Nighter" moves to CBS on September 2 after eight successful years on the NBC networks . . . A team of five New York taxi drivers spelled down five pedestrians on a recent Friday night Spelling Bee . . . A pedestrian hasn't a chance, even on the air!

Tom Howard and George Shelton are the latest comedy nominees for a cigarette show starting in August . . . Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy will do their portion of the Sunday show from New York during July . . . Maestro Andre Kostelanetz and his bride, Lily Pons, will arrive in Buenos Aires on July 4, starting a South American vacation and honeymoon . . . Edward Arnold takes over Don Ameche's emcee spot this summer during the eight weeks Ameche will be sojourning in Europe . . . Les Tremayne, NBC leading man, is trying to find time to take up sculpture again . . . Les is a proficient artist but has been too busy with radio this year.

Radio actors in Chicago admit that Malcolm Meacham cannot be stumped by tongue twisters . . . They will be surprised to learn that Malcolm stammered until he was more than twenty years old . . . Although Dick and Pat, CBS blackface comedy team, have been in radio more than four years, they never had their pictures taken out of blackface makeup until last week . . . Milton Geiger, author of the thrilling new "Attorney at Law" series which will be heard in the "Fibber McGee" period during the summer, is another Rudy Vallee protege.

George Burns' pet name for Gracie Allen is Goochie . . . She calls him Nat . . . and Nat is George's real name . . . J. Anthony Smythe, known to millions of listeners as Father Barbour of "One Man's Family," is a bachelor! . . . Andy Devine is being ribbed plenty these days . . . Seems the big neon sign Andy put up to advertise Van Nuys, California, on a main trans-California highway, still doesn't light, weeks after Andy's election as mayor of Van Nuys . . . Nine motion picture players are heard regularly on the National Barn Dance . . . They are the four Vass sisters and their brother, Frank, and the Maple City Four.

Barbara Luddy, star of the NBC "First Nighter" program, bought a new riding habit before leaving on her recent California vacation . . . Tried it on after her return and found she had lost pounds . . . Cost her $15 for alterations . . . Lee Gillette, Lee Gotch and Bob James sang for a couple of years as the "Three Notes" . . . Two months ago they added a "fourth note" in the person of Lee Laetyn . . . Now, as the "Four Notes," they're in radio big time with a regular spot on the "Fibber McGee" program.

Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra will be heard with Burns and Allen beginning July 4 . . . Francis X. Bushman is heard regularly now on the "Betty and Bob" show . . . "Uncle Ezra's" thought for the day: "Do the thing you think is right; if it doesn't turn out for the best, at least you know you've made a try, and the Lord will do the rest . . ."

Burglars Visit Iredell Again

T. Mitchell's general store was robbed early Saturday by four men who abducted Allen Dawson, the night watchman, and Billy Denton, 17, from a downtown street and left them bound with their belts and handkerchiefs about three miles southeast of town. The robbers, who drove into town from the direction of Hico, went toward Meridian. They accosted Dawson and Denton in front of the Index newspaper office about 1 a. m., forced them to get in the car, and then drove to the Mitchell store. A 30-36 rifle, an automatic shotgun and three large sacks of ammunition and assorted wearing apparel were taken. Looting of the Pylant hardware store was believed thwarted by a burglar alarm. The bound pair worked loose from their bonds and walked to a neighboring farm house and the man brought them to town. Some officers started on their trail but so far haven't found them. Allen was abducted, bound and robbed here by three men June 14. It is sure had, and it is hoped that the robbers will be caught and punished.

Mrs. Mary Caroline Ellis

Mrs. Mary Caroline Ellis, age 89 years, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. F. Young, at Abilene, Tuesday night, July 26, at 10:20 o'clock. She was married to Mr. Ellis many years ago. He preceded her to the Glory World several years ago. Mrs. Ellis had been in ill health for more than nine years, and her condition had been considered serious for the past week. She had been living in Abilene for the past two months, going there from Spur. Mrs. Ellis was converted and joined the Methodist Church in her young days, and lived a devout Christian till the end. She had been confined to her bed for two years, but bore her afflictions with patience. She was a good woman and was loved by all. Mrs. Ellis and family lived here many years ago, and were well known by the older people. It was my pleasure to know her. I regard her a dear friend, and was very sorry to hear of her death. The good Christian life she lived causes us all to know where to find her. Her children will miss her very much. All of them did all they could for her recovery, but it was God's will to take her and she was ready. She was a true mother to her children and they were devoted children to her. The body was brought here from Abilene by an Elliott funeral coach Wednesday. The funeral of this good mother in Israel was held Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in the Methodist Church in the presence of a large crowd of relatives and friends. Rev. James conducted the funeral, and was assisted by Rev. Bennett. The floral offerings were very large and beautiful, which told of the esteem in which she was held by her friends. She is survived by three daughters and a son: Mrs. Lollar of Spur, Mrs. Lulu Allen of Quanah, Mrs. J. Z. Young of Abilene, and Guy S. Ellis of Iredell. All were at the funeral except Guy, who was ill. The body was laid to rest in the Riverside Cemetery, by the side of her husband. The children have the sympathy of their friends here in the loss of their dear mother. Several other relatives were here but I failed to get their names.

Elizabeth Woodall was in Meridian Saturday afternoon, where she had some dental work done. Mildred Harper has returned to her home from Kilgore where she visited her uncle, Allen Lawrence. Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Kraemer had as their guests the past week Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Phillips and children, John, William, Carroll and Anna Louise, all of Cuero, the "Turkey Trot Town." Mrs. A. W. Phillips is Mr. Kraemer's sister and Mr. Phillips is his nephew. Mr. and Mrs. Orion Miracle of Victoria also visited in the Kraemer home Tuesday and Wednesday. Mrs. Miracle is Mr. Kraemer's niece. Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Lamar, Jr., of Seagraves, Texas, are the proud and happy parents of twin daughters, born July 12, who have been named June and Jane. J. S. Lamar is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Lamar who lived here when J. S. Jr. was a boy in school.

Mrs. Agnes Humphrey and two daughters of Stamford came in Thursday night for a visit with her aunt, Mrs. Patterson. Mr. and Mrs. Falls and children have moved here from Clifton and are living in one of the Kraemer rental houses. A. J. Allen has returned from Fort Worth. Mr. and Mrs. S. Y. Jones took their daughter to Dallas Friday to have her arm straightened. Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Newsom and son of Big Spring visited relatives here this week. Billy Royce extended his visit. Mr. and Mrs. John Wyche are visiting their son, James, in Iowa Park. Mrs. Mayme Barrow of Marlin is visiting her niece, Mrs. Pike. Ruth Hensley has gone to Hillsboro to work. Mr. and Mrs. Bradley and children spent the past week and near Stephenville with her parents. Travis Huckaby and J. D. McElroy have returned from Big Spring to Iredell. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Newman and their daughter, Mrs. Tom Bryan, and children spent the week end at College Station with their son, Coleman Newman, and family. Frank Jackson of Elk City and A. P. Leath of Leady, Okla., have returned to their homes after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Jackson. Mrs. B. L. Mitchell and sons are visiting in Breckenridge. Mrs. W. F. Turner and daughter, Miss Lilly, left Sunday for a visit to Mrs. Turner's childhood home in Kentucky. Frank took them to Fort Worth, where they went from there on the bus. Their friends hope they will have a delightful time and a pleasant trip. Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Pope and little daughter of Fort Worth spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Madden. Mrs. Olin Brantley and children spent the week in Meridian. Miss Allene Nell of Clifton is visiting Mrs. Tom Strange. Allen Lawrence and son, Oliver, and family of Kilgore are visiting here with relatives. Miss Nina Newton, a nurse at Dallas, spent the week with her mother, Mrs. Ella Newton. Mrs. W. R. Newsom of Big Spring is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Parks. Mr. Will Lawrence and children of Hedley are visiting relatives here. A large crowd from here attended the singing at Hico Sunday. Misses Charlene Conley and Johnnie Gregory were visitors in Hico Saturday night.

Misses Sue Schoemaker and Louise Hensley left Sunday for Waco. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Basham of Hillsboro spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hensley. Mrs. Mary Bass Thompson of Fort Worth and her brother, Mike Bass, visited relatives here this week. Wanda McAden was in Waco last Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Potter and son of West Texas spent the week end with Mrs. A. D. Shipley. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Everett have rooms with Mrs. Gann on the North side. Mr. and Mrs. Laswell spent Sunday in Stephenville with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. LeLand Neighbors and son of De Leon visited here this week end. Mrs. Q. A. Fouts and son, Billy Joe, were in Stephenville at the hospital this week, where Billy Joe had his tonsils removed. Allen Dawson and Billy Denton were called to Gladewater a few days ago to identify the robbers here. Melvin Hudson visited in Dallas Sunday. Mrs. J. M. McAdoo spent the week with her daughter, Mrs. Parvin, near Glen Rose. Mr. and Mrs. Loyce Hensley took her Sunday.

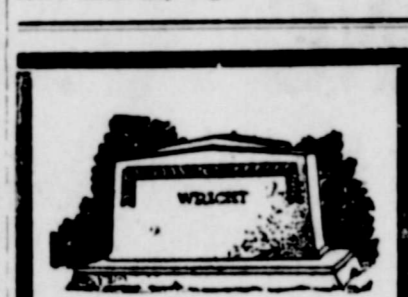

H. J. R. No. 20
HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION
Proposing an amendment to Article XVI, Section 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas; changing the form of the oath of office for members of the Legislature and all offices of the State of Texas; providing for an election upon such ployment, as a reward for the giving or withholding a vote at the election at which I was elected. So Constitutional Amendment, and making an appropriation therefor.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:
Section 1. That Article XVI, Section 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended to hereafter read as follows:
"Article XVI, Section 1. Official Oath. Members of the Legislature, and all officers, before they enter upon the duties of their offices, shall take the following Oath or Affirmation:
"I, do solemnly swear (or affirm), that I will faithfully execute the duties of the office of _____ of the State of Texas, and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States and of this State; and I furthermore solemnly swear (or affirm), that I have not directly nor indirectly paid, offered, or promised to pay, contributed, nor promised to contribute any money, or valuable thing, or promised any public office or employ me God."
Sec. 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to the electors of this State, qualified to vote on Constitutional Amendments, at an election to be held throughout the State on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1938, at which election each ballot shall have printed thereon the words:
"FOR the Amendment of Article XVI, Section 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, changing the form of the oath of office for members of the Legislature and all officers of the State of Texas."
"AGAINST the Amendment of Article XVI, Section 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, changing the form of the oath of office for members of the Legislature and all officers of the State of Texas."
Each voter shall scratch out with pen or pencil the clause which he desires to vote against so as to indicate whether he is voting for or against said proposed Amendment.
Sec. 3. The Governor of this State is hereby directed to issue the necessary proclamation ordering an election in conformity herewith to determine whether or not the proposed Constitutional Amendment set forth herein shall be adopted, and the Governor shall have the same published as required by the Constitution and laws of this State.
Sec. 4. The sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000), or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to pay the expense of such publication and election.

The above is a true and correct copy.
EDWARD CLARK,
Secretary of State

ELECTRIC COOKERY
is Clean

No Soot • No Smoke • No Grime

Take a tip on kitchen cleanliness from electric range owners. They'll tell you that it's much easier to keep your kitchen spic and span when you cook electrically. There's a reason: No soot, no smoke, no greasy film or dirt from electricity. Walls, curtains, the range itself—all stay bright and new-looking much longer. Save cleaning time and redecorating expense from now on. And enjoy kitchen coolness, more leisure time, better cooking results and the many other advantages of electric cookery. It costs less to cook electrically today than ever before.
