GREYVILLE CHURCH

Rev. Don Whitmore will preach at Greyville Sunday at the 10 o'clock hour and at the evening service. Don is a Howard Payne student and has had good results in some of his previous services.

Shoplifting with "Jots"

Don't be a dunce this fall. With all the new things coming out in the shops, there's no reason why you shouldn't know all about them. And with fall coming on, you may wake up some morning with one of those blue northern sending chills up your spine. Will you have something appropriate to wear? Remember we warned you.

You'll pray for cold weather if you have one of those bright polo coats that J. W. Richbourg is showing. They are by Justmoor—original Hollywood creations—in several shades of rust and in tan. Another sport coat in beige and brown tweed is the perfect thing for school, football games or traveling.

Have you seen the new "discovery" prints? Shades of Christopher Columbus! They actually have his picture on them. Shown at Petty's, these prints are good for dinner dresses, pajamas, housecoats, or anything else you like made of bright-colored print. The scenes show Columbus landing at the end of his famous voyage and planting the Spanish flag on American soil. Sir Walter Raleigh laying his cloak in the mud for the Queen to walk on. Or was it the Queen?

Speaking of discoveries, these new Nesco Roasters were invented for the busy woman. Community Public Service is offering the 11-quart size for only 15.95. You can put a complete dinner, including a meat and three or four vegetables in the Roaster, season as desired, and you don't have to look at it again. Just set the heat and go off to town and spend the rest of the morning if you like. It can't burn. But when lunch time comes, we'll guarantee that you'll have a hot, well-cooked meal, all ready to serve.

Hey kids! You'll get a free souvenir if you buy your school supplies at Porter's Drug. Mr. Porter has an extra special on tablets and notebook fillers and when you make a purchase you get the gift free. Don't forget to tell your mothers about the Speedy-Clean Chicken Fryers they can get by making their purchases at Porter's.

We were a walking advertisement Monday for the new Coty perfumes the Corner Drug has received. A new shipment, including 40 bottles and all the Coty odors, was unpacked Monday and placed in the novel display case that came with them. The "sampling" bottles are mounted on a chromium disc that revolves. Bernard announced us with "Paris."

Your tea, coffee, sugar and meal will be out of sight in a jiffy to locate if you have one of the red-and-white matched sets from Teague's. Decorated with floral patterns, the set also includes a wastebasket, dust pan, salt and pepper shakers and almost anything else you need in the kitchen. The prices vary.

You'll be a potential skater of star ranking if you invest in one of the cute Sonja Henie sweaters in green and brown or navy and red. The knitted jumper waist is fastened down the front with natural wood buttons. A saucy cap that matches the sweaters makes a quaint costume that's different, but oh, so practical.

If you have arrived at the exasperation point with regards your hair, let Carmen's Beauty Shop do some experimenting with your tresses. They have some new books containing pictures of the latest up-on-the-head coiffures. With the new hats covering only the faintest bit of your hair, something definite will have to be done. Better start planning now.

Girls trying out the system of cooperative living while going to college report a new low in living costs. An average of $5.30 per student each month is the latest record at Texas State College for Women.

Mrs. Mary Jane Strickland Cooper

Mary Jane Strickland was born in Cleburne County, Alabama, November 21, 1885. She moved with her parents to Texas in 1898. At the age of fourteen she was converted and joined the Baptist Church at the place known as Footout, near Iredell. She was married to L. D. Cooper January 2, 1906. To this union four children were born, two boys and two girls. Two preceded her in death. Elva, a girl, died in 1914. Thurmon, a boy, died in 1918. The two living are Mrs. Odessa Jordan and Laird Cooper at Alexander.

On Thursday morning, August 25, the Lord called her to a better home where there would be no more pain, sickness nor death. She had been in ill health for about six years. On Tuesday, August 15, she decided to go to the Gorman Hospital for treatment, and was operated on, from which she never did recover.

She was a true, devoted wife to her husband and a good mother to her family. To know her was to love her. She was ever ready to do anything that would help others. She was a true, good Christian, but being in such bad health she could not attend church regularly. But her heart was always there. She will be missed very much in the community where she had lived so long. But she has gone to meet her husband who passed away June 1, 1935. She has gone to rest; her troubles and trials are over. She was ready to go for her work here on earth was done. At the hour of 9:40 o'clock Thursday morning she went to meet her loved ones and her Maker. She is gone, but not forgotten. If she could have spoken to her bereaved ones she no doubt would have said, "Weep not for me, dear ones, for I am at rest."

The body of this loved one was brought from the Gorman Sanitarium to Barrow undertaking parlors and later moved to the home of her sister, Mrs. Laura Munnerlyn, in Hico. Her body remained there until Friday at 1:15, when it was taken to the Methodist Cemetery at Green's Creek for burial.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Morman of Alexander. The casket was opened and all took the last sad look. She looked as if she was just asleep. The floral offerings were large and beautiful, which told of the love and high esteem in which she was held. She leaves to mourn her going the two children, two stepchildren, two grandchildren, five granddaughters, four girls and one boy; also three sisters and one brother. Mrs. Matilda Furnace of Belton, Texas; Doble Strickland of Dublin, Texas; Mrs. Laura Munnerlyn of Hico, and Mrs. Annie Boyd of Iredell, and a host of other relatives and friends.

Those who attended the funeral from other places were Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper and Mr. and Mrs. Jess McCoy, Mrs. Annie Boyd and son, W. E., all of Iredell; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Moore and two children of Paluxy, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Munnerlyn and son John Henry of Hico, Mr. and Mrs. Doble Strickland and daughter, Earlene, and Mrs. Lulah Cooper of Dublin.

CAN BE COLLECTED!

"The Texas statutes authorize cities to file suits in Justice Court for the collection of delinquent taxes on personal property." — Texas Municipalities.

Collection of taxes by suit means added expense and embarrassment to property owners, which city officials are making every effort to avoid. The FEUD at SINGLE SHOT

By Luke Short

Sixteenth Installment
SYNOPSIS

With his partner, Rosy Rand, Dave Turner is on his way to his ranch at Single Shot. Both are returning from prison where they have served sentences for unjust convictions. On the train, which is carrying a large sum of money, Rosy's quick action and straight shooting foil a hold-up while Dave saves the life of Martin Quinn, a gambler, who is being threatened by a desperado. Stopping at Single Shot, the sheriff tells Dave he is not wanted. Quinn defends Dave but Dave and Rand go to Soledad to meet Mary, Dave's sister, and proceeds on horseback to the ranch. Mary reveals she is married and tells Dave that the ranch is doing poorly, being beset by nesters and involved in a claim dispute. Next morning at breakfast, Dave and Rosy discover that Mary is now cooking for the ranch hands—a bad sign. After discussing financial matters with Mary, Dave and Rosy saddle horses and leave for Single Shot to see the town banker, Mr. Pearson. Mortgage is renewed and Dave decides to get enough money to pay off mortgage by raising alfalfa and selling it. Following night, the lake is blown up, and Dave inwardly accuses Hammond. The latter blames Dave. A chance meeting of the two gives them an opportunity to clear away this false impression. The hunt now turns to Crowell, the mysterious man of means and ambitions. Rosy rushes to Winter's home to tell Mary of his suspicions about her husband and asks her help to prove his findings. Laredo evolves a scheme to arrest Crowell as a murder suspect in order to hold him for questioning. By a clever ruse, Dave escapes his captors and then frees Dorsey who was held prisoner for ransom.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"You're hit," she cried. "Are you?"

"I forgot," Dave answered. The last shot of the outlaw had seared his arm. Dorsey bandaged it expertly.

"How did you get here?" he asked. "I heard 'em talk about a girl and I thought it was Mary."

"I went home a little after dark. I put Pancho in the stable and went in the house. In the kitchen a man grabbed me and told me not to make any noise. There were two of them and one asked the other if they'd left the note. Then they put a sack over my head and tied me on my horse and we rode all night. It seemed. They treated me all right. She looked at Dave. Her eyes puzzled. "What's this all about?"

"I dunno," Dave answered. "I was forced to sign over my half of our ranch to Crowell."

"Crowell? The man you and Dad are looking for? The one behind the dynamiting?"

"Yeah," Dave nodded. "I thought he was behind it but there's someone else. Some one they all call boss. He's payin' Crowell for gettin' the ranch an mine. Sayres and his gang for the dynamiting." A wave of anger swept over Dave. "I'm goin' to get out of here and track him down like—"

"Yes, that's your way, isn't it?" Dave swung around to face her. "Why, what else should I do? What would any man—" he caught himself. "Here's the horses," he said quietly.

It was close to dusk when Dave and Dorsey neared the pass. Dave had been scanning the rocky ridge ahead of them that barred their way to the valley.

"It's a prison," he pronounced. "What will we do?" Dorsey asked.

"A little more butchering," Dave said. "We've got to get by the guard at the pass," Dave said, "and he'll shoot."

They pulled in at a small draw and dismounted. Dave took the carbine from the saddle boot.

Dorsey came close to him and laid a hand on his sleeve.

"Isn't there any other way besides blood?" she asked quietly.

He shook his head somberly. "It's us or them. It's gone too far to settle with words—or with law."

"I didn't make this war. When I got out of prison I swore it would take plenty to rawhide me into goin' for my gun. His eyes narrowed and he looked off to the far horizon. "But that's not the way the world gives a man what belongs to him. I reckon. It's fight or die. I died for eight years. I'm goin' to live now for a while."

Dorsey caught her breath. "Then it is true," she said slowly, "you are hard. You're cruel and ruthless. You're a murderer!"

Dave flinched as if struck with a whip.

"Dorsey," his voice was pleading, "can't you see?"

"Please go," she said quietly. Dave's lips were a grim line as he turned on his heel and strode off into the gathering dusk.

Dave paused to remove his boots. In the stillness, they seemed to make the noise of an army on the march. Paused, he suddenly jerked erect and listened. Behind him, farther down the ridge he could hear the crunching of bootsoles on rock.

"Some ranny saw me and is followin'," he thought savagely. He raised his head above the edge of the rock and waited.

Slowly, the man was making his way forward against the skyline. Dave saw him raise up and listen. Dave drew a bead on him, then let his Colt slack. A shot would let the guard for sure and give him away. The man was close now. He could hear the quiet breathing of the man as he paused by the rock, apparently listening. Strangely, then, the man seated himself on the rock behind which Dave had hidden.

With noiseless effort, Dave hoisted himself out of the crevice, got a toe-hold on the rock and lunged at the sitting figure. The force of his spring took them both sprawling on the ground. Dave's hand was on the stranger's throat, but the force of the man's great strength was not easy to calm.

Suddenly, the man ceased struggling and Dave eased off his hands.

Then: "Dave Turner, jug-headed murderin' fool!"

"Rosy! My God—I thought you'd be dead."

"I near am," Rosy muttered.

"How'd you know it was me?" Dave asked.

"When you lowered your head, I hit that place where the bush-whacker slammed you, but you was hanging on to me like a burr. I aimed to play dead so's you'd get your hand off my throat."

"Did the guard see you?"

"I don't think so."

"And he's on this rock?"

Rosy said he was. They sat a moment listening to see if they had alarmed the guard, but the night was soundless.

"Dorsey Hammond's here," Dave said tonelessly. "They kidnaped her."

"Dorsey Hammond?" Rosy asked.

ed incredulously. "Why—I never heard about it. Are you sure?" He checked himself. "Let's get on. We got some work ahead of us. Near as I can make out, this here rock he's on is cup-shaped, and a little higher than the rest of the hill."

They decided that Dave was to go down the slope, circle around, hide himself and open fire. Rosy was to approach the rampart from the ridge.

"Then let's go," Rosy said.

Dave disappeared down the side of the scarp and Rosy continued ahead. Warming his way forward for nearly twenty minutes, pausing to listen occasionally, he finally achieved a round nob of rock which he had noted from below as being close to the rampart.

He could smell cigarette smoke, hear the slight movement of the man on top in the cup. A veering of the wind carried the smell of cedar smoke to him and he guessed the man had built a small fire.

He smiled. "Fool," he thought.

struck a match and saw the man was dead, three bullets in his chest. He loaded his Colt thoughtfully, shrugged and let himself down the slope.

Dave was waiting with Dorsey at the pass when he reached it.

It took Laredo three minutes to get a saddled horse from the livery stable after he had left the sheriff's office.

He rode slowly north up the valley, leading the horse. When he was out of sight of the town, he left the road and started up the mountains to the east. Where the mountains broke for the railroad tracks in a deep pass he paralleled the tracks for three miles or so.

When he heard the freight train come slogging up the grade he watched it quietly. As the last three cars disappeared, Laredo saw a man swing off the caboose.

Then the man turned and surveyed the country around him. Laredo stood up and waved an arm and the man walked over to him. The newcomer was dressed in laced boots, clean but faded breeches and an open-necked khaki shirt. He was a middle-aged man, broad of face and quiet of eye. He smoked a pipe set comfortably in a wide mouth.

He greeted Laredo quietly, a glint of amusement in his deepest eyes.

"Hullo, cowboy."

"Howdy, Chuck."

They mounted and started back over the same trail Laredo had come. Laredo's companion studied him. Finally, he spoke.

"When are you going to tell me what this is all about, Laredo? Why all the secrecy?"

"It's a long story, Chuck. A lot of it I don't know, and I'm depending on you to tell me."

"What about?"

"I dunno," Laredo persisted. "That's what I got you up here for. All we got to do now is to ride for a while and then you can tell me."

"Ride how far? I should catch the night train out."

And after that Laredo did not talk. When they had passed the lake on the way to the D Bar T, Laredo left the trail that angled down to the ranch and picked his own. The two horsemen skirted the base of Old Cartridge which jutted down to the lake and headed north toward the mountains.

As dusk settled into dark, Chuck gave up trying to keep directions and let his horse have its head. With the precision of years of practice, Laredo went deeper and deeper into the canyons.

They had ridden an hour in this when Laredo drew up.

He dismounted and Chuck heard him go off a short distance. When he returned, something clanged at his side.

"Here's a lantern," he said.

"Light up and come with me."

Chuck did as he was bid and in the flickering circle of light cast by the lantern he followed Laredo.

The canyon narrowed until its width could be spanned by stretching the arms, and a cool darkness of wet rock surrounded them. Suddenly they stepped out of the bottleneck on to the sparse grass of a little amphitheater.

"Here's the place," Laredo said. He squatted on his heels by the lantern and rolled a cigarette carefully.

"For a month, off and on, I been watchin' a hombre dig here. What I want to know is, what is it he dug?"

He picked up the lantern and

THE CASE OF THE CHAIN STORES

The tendency of state legislatures to try to tax chain stores out of existence is meeting increased resistance. Housewives organized in consumer groups, aided by farmers' organizations who find in the chain stores one of their most dependable cash markets, succeeded in preventing the enactment of laws aimed at the chains in any of the 1938 legislative sessions.

Now organized labor has joined the ranks of the defenders of the chain stores. According to Standard Trade and Securities Reports, one of the more conservative and trustworthy of the business analytical services, the unions are not only opposed to anything which tends to raise retail prices, but, the report says: "A more important reason for this attitude on the part of labor unions is the fact that they have been able to make progress in organizing workers in the chains, whereas they have had little success with the independents and have encountered violent opposition from that source."

It is the conclusion of that authority that the peak of the movement for state chain-store taxes has passed, and that by the time state legislatures meet again the opposition will have grown even stronger.

The punitive taxation of chain stores on a national scale, however, is still a live issue. Representative Wright Patman of Texas, whose re-election is assured following his recent renomination, proposes to push his bill which would put an end to all chain stores except small voluntary chains consisting of groups of independent merchants.

The Patman plan is for a graduated Federal tax starting at $50 a year on chains operating not more than fifteen stores, to $1,000 on each store above 500 in one chain ownership. Then his bill would multiply the tax by the number of states in which the chain does business, so that in the case of an oil company operating filling stations in every state, or a food, drug, tobacco or shoe store with retail outlets all over the country, the tax would run as high as $48,000 a year on each store in the chain.

No one questions the constitutional right of Congress to levy taxes for the general welfare, but what constitutes the general welfare? Is it served by legislation designed to increase the cost of living to the consumers, in order to enable a limited few to make larger profits? We do not think it is.

FIRE TAKES 1,500 LIVES

This year, if precedent holds, some 1,500 people will be cremated in burning buildings. Six thousand more will die as the results of burns and scalds.

When an airplane crashes and a dozen people burn to death, the news makes international headlines and the world is horrified. Yet the public at large is callous to the fact that our annual total of deaths from fires is greater than the toll would be from 600 airplanes carrying to flaming doom 12 persons each.

Practically every one of those thousands of fire deaths could be easily prevented. Due to carelessness of adults, children are among the principal sufferers. Unprotected stoves, matches left about, steam and hot water—these are major causes of death and suffering among the very young. Death takes no holiday when those things which may cause fires and scalds are in a child's reach.

Equally dangerous, particularly in the case of children, is the practice of starting stoves and furnaces with kerosene, gasoline, or other inflammable liquids. You may get away with it a thousand times. But the thousandth and first time may mean a job for the undertaker—with you and possibly others as the objects of interest.

Next time you read of a spectacular disaster, reflect that something equally horrible can occur in your home. Think of this before you stir up a balky fire with kerosene. Think of it again when children are about. It is easy to prevent a fire—but it is impossible to make up for the consequences of a fire that takes a life.

A GIRDLE AROUND THE EARTH

When Charles G. Lindbergh flew from New York to Paris in 1927 the highest speed which his "Spirit of St. Louis" was capable of maintaining was an average of 62 miles an hour. That was miraculous for a long flight only 11 years ago.

Howard Hughes flew from New York around the world the other day in 3 days, 19 hours and 17 minutes. His modern airship, "New York World's Fair 1939" maintained an average flying speed of 268 miles an hour over 15,000 miles. Even taking time out for refueling stops, his actual elapsed time was 162 miles an hour.

By all the world this feat of American aviators in a modern American airplane is hailed as the most convincing demonstration yet made of the superiority of American inventiveness and technical skill in the field of aviation. There is every reason why America should be first in the air. The men who built the first planes and made the first flights were Americans. They taught the world how to fly, and this country has been teaching other nations ever since.

Flying is still in its infancy. It is only 35 years since the Wright Brothers made their first successful effort of human beings to lift themselves off the ground in a heavier-than-air machine. Just 30 years ago Glenn Curtiss made the first public airplane flight anywhere in the world. Greatly as the airplane's size, power, speed and safety have been improved since those days, the scientists and technicians who are devoting their lives to its improvement tell us we haven't seen anything yet. Flying today is about where railroadng was at the time of the Civil War.

The establishment of regular flying service across the Atlantic is now only a year or so in the future. Planes are already being built for the trans-Atlantic passenger airways. The big American aircraft companies are working on still larger and faster planes, to carry 100 passengers and ten tons of freight. Time and space have been conquered. The world is shrinking. American ingenuity and resourcefulness have put a girdle around the earth and the straps are being pulled tighter every day.

OLYMPIC GAMES TO FINLAND

The Japanese government has notified the world that it will not be possible to hold the Olympic Games of 1940 in Tokyo, as had been planned. This decision comes at a time when the sentiment of practically all the civilized world is anti-Japanese and much embarrassment and friction between the athletes of different nations will be averted by this decision.

The prospect now is that the 1940 Olympics will be held at Helsinki, the capital of Finland. This will be appropriate for several reasons. Finland was the second choice after the Games of 1936 when Tokyo was selected. The little nation of fewer than 4 million inhabitants has produced more world champions in sport, in proportion to its size, than any other nation. And to Americans especially, as well as to believers in democracy everywhere, Finland is an outstanding example of a little nation whose people have made a great success in self-government by their rugged independence, industry and respect for the rights of others. Among the nations of the world, Finland has never disregarded its international obligations.

To sport-loving Americans the prospect of a visit to Finland for the Olympic games of 1940 is alluring. An opportunity to see the Baltic region and its peoples comes so seldom to the ordinary American, but if the games are held in Helsinki, the prospect is for low-rate steamship excursions in the Summer of 1940, giving hundreds of thousands their first chance to visit one of the most interesting parts of this world.

INDUSTRY AND AGRICULTURE

The best news that has come out in a long time is the report from Detroit that the big automobile companies are calling men back to work and that the rains have changed the "dust bowl" back into productive farms which promise the largest yield of wheat in a quarter of a century.

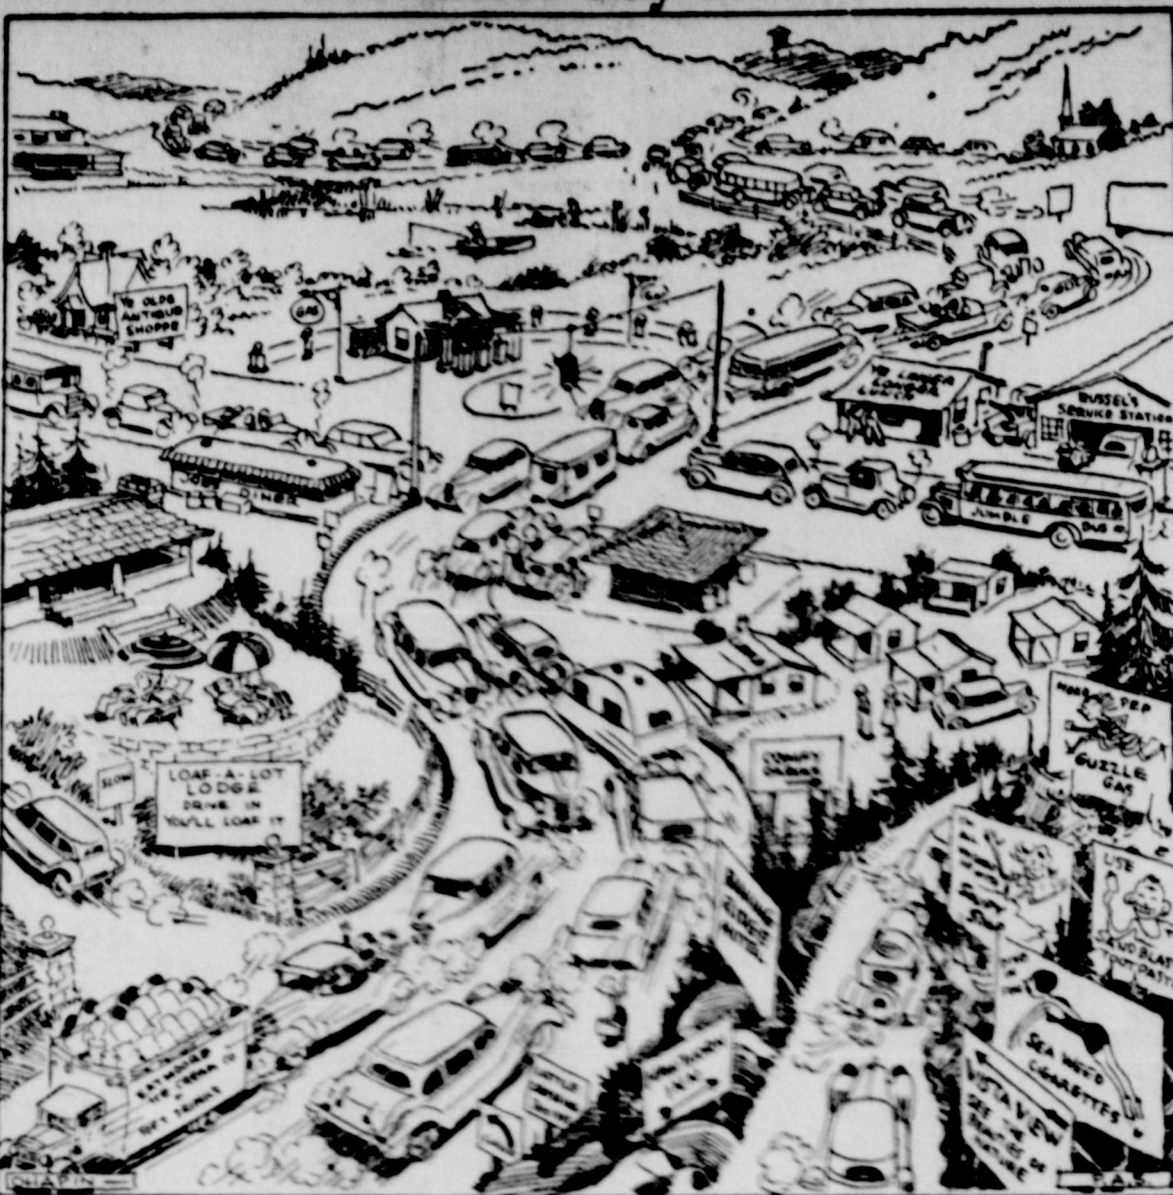

The motor manufacturers reduced their output for 1938, with the result that most of the stock is practically sold out, and in the "over-priced cars" buyers are gobbling up the best of the "used" cars of last year's models. Now the makers of the popular-priced cars are looking forward to larger sales than ever of their new models, and are preparing to put them on the market earlier than usual.

One of the reasons for the car-builders' optimism is the certainty that there will be many millions more dollars flowing into the pockets of farmers at this year's bounteous harvest. It is marked. That much of this money will be spent for new cars is regarded as certain, for the motor-car is as essential to farm life as the horse and buggy used to be. Probably the worst examples of worn-out cars still doing duty can be found in the regions where farmers have been little or no money coming in for the past few years.

Prosperity in America has always been measured by the productivity of our farms and the ability of the rural population to buy the products of our factories. That is as true today as it ever was, though the proportion of farm folk to city dwellers continues to diminish.

There are still more than six million families living on farms, twice as many more living in rural communities and small towns dependent to a large measure upon the prosperity of the farmer. And the automobile industry is only one of many equally dependent on farming.

The Labor Day Parade

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Aug. 30. (Autocast)

— Results of party primaries for nominations of Senate and House candidates, to the end of August, combined with deaths and withdrawals, make it certain that there will be at least six new Senators and 20 new members of the lower House in the 76th Congress. That is not the whole story of the changes in the complexion of the next Congress, for many nominations are still to be made by conventions or primaries, and then on November 8, all of the candidates will have to face the final test at the polls.

In Georgia, for example, reports which Washington observers receive indicate that neither Senator George, whom the President has placed on his "purge" list, nor Federal Attorney Lawrence Camp, the Presidential favorite for the Senatorial nomination, is as likely to win at the primary as former Governor Eugene Talmadge.

Whatever the results of the primaries and the election, however, the Senate would still have a Democratic majority even if every Democratic Senatorial candidate were beaten by a Republican, and that, of course is impossible. Only one-third of the Senatorial terms expire this year, and more than a majority of the entire Senate consists of Democratic hold-overs.

New Deal to Old Line

There is little expectation here of displacement of any considerable number of Democratic Senators by Republicans, though several shifts from "New Deal" Democrats to "Old Line" Democrats are expected in the Upper House. That is regarded as fairly certain in New York's representation, for there, unless there should be a general shift of the voters to the Republican ticket, which is not seriously regarded as possible, one of the two Senators to be elected is pretty certain to be a conservative Democrat opposed to the Administration policies.

Governor Lehman, regarded as the certain nominee for the Senate vacancy caused by the death of Senator Copeland, comes into that category, and at present there is no Republican in sight who is considered to have a chance to defeat him.

Republicans are building more hope for a Senatorial gain in Pennsylvania, where the Democratic candidate, Governor Earle, is considered to have lost a great deal of his prestige. Pennsylvania is one state in which the Republican leaders feel confident they stand a good chance of gaining seats in the House also.

Anti-New Dealer O'Connor

A bitter fight is being waged by the Administration forces against Representative O'Connor of New York, who is not only Anti-New Dealer but holds the powerful position of Chairman of the Committee on Rules. That committee can kill any piece of legislation which is obnoxious to the majority of its members, and Mr. O'Connor has been an effective obstacle in the way of much of the President's legislative program.

The replacement of half a dozen New Deal Senators by either Republicans or conservative Democrats is now considered probable. On the House side a shift of not less than fifty seats from Democratic to Republican, and the election of conservatives to several of the seats now held by the New Dealers, is the analysis of the outlook made by the most impartial observers here. Such a shift could seriously complicate the next session situation for the White House not only as to legislation but as to the outlook for the 1940 Presidential campaign.

Many observers here believe a big increase in Republican membership, with the stimulation that would give to Anti-New-Dealer Democratic maneuvering for 1940, could virtually halt the Roosevelt program and eliminate the possibility of a Presidential third term. Others, especially Democrats with New Deal tendencies, take the opposite view.

The pressure upon the President to attack New Deal doubters at the Democratic primaries comes from those of his advisers who believe that it is good strategy for Mr. Roosevelt, even at the risk of losing some Congress seats to Republicans, to enhance his personal standing with the voters and put himself in a position to dictate the terms of any party harmony pact in 1940. That is what all of the Democratic party "purge" is all about.

Wage-Hour Laws Difficulties

The Federal Commission to establish regulations for the control of wage hours in industry, under the new law which takes effect on October 1, is having considerable difficulty in working out schedules which will meet the approval of labor on one hand and of employers on the other.

The matter of regional differentials is giving a great deal of trouble. Southern employers insisting that they are entitled to a lower minimum wage rate and longer permissible hours of work than is the North.

Another complication is the contention of powerful labor leaders that the regulations set up by the commission must be such as to prevent any reduction of wages to the legal minimum by industries which are now paying more than the minimum.

Close observers here see a revival of the feud between William Green and his American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis of the Committee of Industrial Organization, over the rulings of the Commission, whatever these may turn out to be.

At present the feeling is that the Federation is gaining in prestige and political influence and the C. I. O. is losing. Further acrimony is expected when the President's committee which has been studying European labor laws makes its report which is expected to point toward more restrictions upon the rights of employers.

The House of Hazards

By Mac Arthur

Sunday School Lesson

by Rev. Charles E. Dunn

Lesson for September 4th: 1 Samuel 7:3-13.

Golden Text: 1 Samuel 7:3.

Subject: Spiritual Revival.

It would be difficult to overestimate the importance of the work of Samuel. Certainly he was one of the makers of Israel. Arriving on the scene at a critical time, when the nation was threatened without by the Philistines, and from within by tribal jealousies, Samuel realized the imperative need of unity under strong leadership. It was his privilege to weld together the dismayed patriots of Israel into a united nation under Saul, the first of their kings, whom he himself selected.

It cannot be said, however, that Samuel is particularly attractive. He seems like a stern Puritan whose judgments commanded respect but who lacked personal charm. There is a strain of severity in him not congenial to our American temperament. Furthermore it is significant that Samuel no more than Eli, did not succeed as a father. His sons, like those of Eli, were guilty of scandalous behavior.

Taking bribes freely, their corrupt conduct dragged Samuel's name into disrepute. No wonder that the people, with almost cruel candor, cried out, "You are old, and your sons are not following in your footsteps. Now appoint a king for us."

But there is no doubt of Samuel's integrity. An incorruptible judge, he was able, with a good conscience, to say in his old age, "When have I maltreated, whom have I defrauded, from whom have I accepted a bribe?" And the people answered that he was innocent of any such misconduct. Would that more officials in high position show as clean a slate!

One more point of lesser importance may be mentioned. Samuel is the only ghost in our Old Testament. The story of his appearance from the grave at night at Endor, in the presence of the witch and the disguised king, is a noteworthy bit of vivid narrative. The shriek of the sorceress, Samuel's bitter words of doom, and the fainting of Saul remind us strongly of the creepy atmosphere of Shakespeare's "Macbeth."

The DOCTOR Tolls the Story

by W.E. Aughinbaugh, M.D.

A Real Adventurer

It is always the adventurer who accomplishes things that are unbelievable, and most adventures begin by running away from home.

Undoubtedly the man, who in my opinion, has established a new high for adventures is Captain Charles J. McGuinness. He ran away to sea when ten years of age and after many cruises to the out of the way places of the world, was twice shipwrecked. Later he joined the British Navy during the World War, was ordered to Africa, deserted his ship because patrol duty was lacking in interest, "signed on" the South African Engineers for service in German East Africa, enlisted in the Irish Revolutionary Army, ran guns from Germany to his compatriots, was caught, sentenced to death by a British court martial, escaped, went to the South Pole with Admiral Byrd as his first officer, and returned to become a rum runner from Canadian ports to the United States.

Worst Experience

"Mac," I asked him, "which of all your experiences was the very worst?"

Without a moment's hesitation, he said: "A German general named von Lettow Vorbeck, in the German East Africa campaign against the British, gave me my worst and most outstanding experience. An enormous convoy of mules and wagons laden with food and war materials was making slow progress through the dense bush between Tanga and Korogwe and I was in command. The Germans had gotten wind of our coming and lined the trail with thousands of nests of bees, wasps and hornets, all connected with electric wires running to headquarters. When the German scouts reported to us, a switch was thrown which agitated the pests and the enraged millions of stinging insects attacked man and beast, absolutely stampeding the cavalcade. In one-half hour that German general had won a major victory without firing a single shot, or exposing any soldier to danger. I was one of the men who suffered from bee-stings and got after being captured by them," concluded Mac.

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

August fur sales are in full swing so if you are buying a new fur coat keep in mind a few pointers. First, be sure that your coat is the correct size. One that is too small causes unnecessary strain on the skins and makes them wear poorly. Second, be very careful about style. Choose a conservative classic cut, one that will be wearable for several seasons because a fur coat is an investment that one doesn't make every year. An important rule of style for individuals is that tall, slender figures may wear long-haired furs and short figures should wear flat, sleek furs. For long hard wear, such furs as Alaska seal, Hudson seal, Japanese mink, racoon, beaver, Persian lamb and muskrat are best to choose.

Gingerbread sandwiches are delicious to serve with iced tea on a blazing August afternoon. Bake gingerbread in a loaf. When a day old, cut in thin slices and fill with a mixture of rich cottage cheese or a packaged cream cheese, chopped nuts and dates.

Keep on spraying your flowers with a nicotine solution if you would prevent an attack of aphids. This is the time when aphids start laying eggs to carry through for next year, so every flying female aphid you destroy by spraying means millions less to fight next season.

If you would gather roses next June, start your bed now. In August, first visit all the rose gardens in your vicinity and observe the plants. From this careful study make your list of varieties you want for your own planting and place your order for fall or early spring delivery. You know August is the best month for Hybrid Teas and no rose garden is complete without them. Hardy Perpetuals, the ideal hybrid Tea rose is one whose foliage is fine in August with buds opening into perfect blossoms. The varieties boasting this condition are the best choice an amateur can make when looking around for roses that will do well for him.

Remember the rule of serving one hot dish every meal. A main course of cold cuts and vegetable salad might be preceded by a hot cream soup. A chilled first course should be followed by a hot dish such as a casserole of vegetables or combination meat and vegetable casserole.

MODERN WOMEN

EARLENE WHITE

President of The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

I was so struck with the delightful sentiment shown by a group of women in Flint, Michigan in the observance of the nineteenth birthday of Mrs. Emma A. Fox. Although the occasion was some time ago, I have only just heard about it and I have thought how splendid it was of each of her ninety friends to drop a rosebud in Mrs. Fox's lap, one for each year she has lived. Although she is past ninety now, she takes an airplane to keep engagements in other cities, attends club conventions, and acts as a parliamentarian. She is the author of "Parliamentary Usage," which is considered as the authority on this subject by many national, state and local societies. She herself serves as parliamentarian of three national and three state organizations. And last year she took over a class in parliamentary procedure for the University of Michigan Extension service.

Women are taking a different view of politics and political work in England, according to Marion Ryan, American journalist who has lived for some time in London. Their interest today is more practical and personal. And candidates do a great deal of canvassing themselves. There is Dr. Edith Somerskill, Labor candidate, who surprised everybody but the agents who prepared the way for her, by being elected to Parliament by a large majority. University graduates try to get some party organization as soon as they leave college. They may do social work at first, but they strive for a secretaryship or some other post. They may take four weeks in training at party offices followed by a test of their political knowledge which, if passed, helps the aspirant on the road to the House of Commons, if that is her aim.

PERSONALITIES IN MUSIC

The Student That Inspired Dvorak

By Daniel I. McNamara

"SWING low, sweet chariot"

The stirring strains of this Negro spiritual are mirrored in the second theme of the first movement of Dvorak's "New World Symphony." Dvorak died in 1904, but the young Negro student who first revealed to the famous Bohemian composer the beauties of this refrain and of scores of other spirituals has lived to become one of the most notable figures in American music—Harry T. Burleigh, A.S.C.A.P., famous baritone soloist and composer.

Burleigh had won a scholarship in the National Conservatory of Music in New York while Dvorak was its head in the early '90s. Born in Erie, Pennsylvania, December 6, 1866, he learned music first from his talented mother, a college graduate whose cultivated mind flowered in the genius of her son. Dvorak often listened hours at a time while the young student played the spirituals he had learned from his mother. Their lasting impression on Dvorak is seen in the music of his New World Symphony, first performed at Carnegie Hall in 1893.

While still a student, Burleigh won appointment as baritone soloist in St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church. Now, as the only Negro member of a choir of 150 voices, he is completing his forty-fifth year of continuous service. Worshipers in the famous institution long since have come to regard Burleigh's singing as an integral part of their devotion.

As a concert singer he has appeared before distinguished audiences in Europe and America; and twice sang before King Edward VII. A tireless student, Burleigh is a master of German, French, and Italian. He has an honorary degree of Master of Arts from Atlanta University, and of Doctor of Music from Howard University. When Victor Herbert organized the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers in 1914 as an agency of musical copyright protection, he invited Burleigh to become a charter member.

Burleigh's first successful composition, "Jean," has been a concert favorite for many years. His arrangement of "Deep River" was one of his earlier efforts. John McCormack sang his "Little Mother of Mine" the world over. His list of original compositions runs into the hundreds. Burleigh leads a busy life, but finds ample time to befriend many struggling young artists. He gave up the concert stage ten years ago for more attention to his church work and editorial duties with a music publishing house. He shows no evidence of advancing years, his rich voice ringing out in solo parts with the full vigor of his early concert triumphs. Burleigh deprecates his part in the New World Symphony, but musicians who know the facts trace in Dvorak's impressive symphonic creation the unmistakable influence of the young student who himself was destined to achieve fame as a composer long after Dvorak had passed on.

WHO WROTE IT

"School Days"

HE has been called the "Columbus of the show world," the discoverer of Eddie Cantor, George Jessel, Walter Winchell, Groucho Marx, Jack Pearl, Sally Rand and literally hundreds of other talented entertainers.

He came to America, one of eight children, in the steerage, via Rotterdam. He earned a glass jar full of coppers and silver singing to the first and second class passengers. As a boy he worked in a cigar factory and went to school, but the urge to entertain sent him singing to the cafes and dance halls of New York. When he was thirteen, he was known as "The Boy Tenor," and was earning $30 per week. Lottie Gilson, the famous musical star, really gave him his first chance, when she persuaded Tony Pastor to put him on when Maggie Cline could not fulfill her engagement at the famous vaudeville theatre. He toured vaudeville for years with success and many celebrities started with his troupe.

He began to write songs. The first to catch the public favor was "The Brave Crew Of The Maine," later followed by "I Can't Tell Why I Love You," "Way Down Yonder In The Cornfield," "Tummy," "Anna Held's 'I Just Can't Make My Eyes Behave' and many others. He was one of the first to join the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers in 1914. Lately he has been in Hollywood, and is still discovering new talent.

LISTEN TO THIS

By TOM FIZDALE

If the new "Story of the Month" innovation by NBC is successful, it is very likely to set a new trend in daily radio serials . . . The idea is to streamline the present serial drama to run for a month or six weeks, much like the current continued fiction stories in magazines, rather than to continue the same story for years at a time . . . Advantages are an appeal to a more diversified audience by having a new story or, at least, a new situation, every month or so, precluding the possibility of a story "running dry" . . . Biggest disadvantage is possibility of losing audience because of a weak story and losing the effect of a long-time build up . . . In any case, it is the listeners who will decide and it's an experiment worth watching.

Jane Froman

Beautiful Jane Froman, whose golden voice catapulted her from a network solo spot to leading lady of the "Follies," motion pictures and big-time radio, will visit the city that was her springboard to fame when she is guest soloist at Chicago's famous Grant Park concerts late this month . . . Jane arrived in Chicago after studying journalism and voice at the University of Missouri and an apprenticeship in radio in Cincinnati . . . Her lovely voice, her beauty and her winning personality put her on top where she remains one of the most gracious of stars . . . Judy Starr, Hal Kemp's 85 pound vocalist, said "I do" with Jackie Shair, another member of the band, last week . . . Bayard Vellier, "Valiant Lady" author, has been dubbed "Squire" by his fellow New Canaanites.

It is very possible that you may be seeing that new comedy hit, "The Laugh Liner," in the movies next winter . . . Billy House, the 290 pound star of the show, is due in Hollywood to make another Paramount picture this fall and Jack Fulton, singing star on the show, is being eyed for the flickers . . . House believes that "The Laugh Liner" has all of the elements for a good motion picture vehicle, and because of his long experience in the show business, it is probable that the movie biggies may agree with him . . . Uncle Ezra's "Station E-Z-R-A" on NBC is taking its first vacation in four years . . . Will be back on the air later this fall . . . In the meantime, the "Jumpin' Jenny Wren" will continue to be heard Saturday nights on the "National Barn Dance."

"Fibber McGee and Molly," in private life Mr. and Mrs. James Jordan, have just completed a fishing trip in the north woods of Ontario and are now off to Yellowstone National Park for a look-see at some more of nature's wonders . . . "Molly" is practically recovered from her long illness and is looking forward to being back on the show when it returns to the NBC-Red network in its old Tuesday spot on September 6 . . . Until that time they will both continue to take it easy and relax.

Prof. William (Wild Bill) McGovern, whose Tuesday chats on NBC are swell, is one professor who should hit big time radio . . . Adventurer, explorer, linguist, he is one of the most colorful as well as most intelligent commentators on the air . . . Joan Kay, the Marian Moore of "Arnold Grimm's Daughter" is back from a Florida vacation . . . Paul Whitman's fourteen-year-old son is taking drum lessons during rehearsal each week . . . George McCall set some kind of a record last week when he flew from Hollywood to New York to spend two hours.

IREDELL ITEMS

By MISS ST. LA JONES, Local Correspondent

John A. Minus
Iredell and community were shocked Tuesday morning when the news came that John A. Minus had died suddenly while at work at the Pettit ranch, following an attack of acute indigestion which resulted in a heart attack, on August 24 at 9:30.
John, as he was called by all, was born here on March 9, 1886. He was reared and educated here. He was married to Miss Helen Jones in 1912. To this union five children were born, all of whom survive.
He worked at Sweetwater for the Gulf Oil Corporation; later he was connected with the Katy shops at Walnut Springs until they were discontinued. He later moved to the farm where the family now reside.
John had the rare gift of being a true friend in the fullest meaning. He was a true husband and father to his wife and children. He was left to mourn his loss. I had known John ever since he was a small boy.
He was always very jolly. I was very sorry to hear of his untimely death, but God saw best to take him. He went without a struggle. He was a worker—never was he at all.
He will be greatly missed by his family, relatives and friends, for everyone liked John and he was a friend to all.
The body was taken to Walnut Springs and prepared for burial and brought here to the home of his sister, Mrs. Brashear, Tuesday night.
He was a member of the Baptist Church and did many good deeds that no one will know the extent of till the day of all days comes and everything will be revealed.
Besides his wife he is survived by five children: Mrs. J. C. Hanchew, Jr., Francis Rhea, and three sons, Jacob, Jones and Elworth, all of Iredell; three sisters, Mrs. Rebecca Tidwell, Brownsville, California, and Mrs. Lizzie Brashear of Iredell; and one brother, J. W. Minus, of Strawn; two grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.
The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon in the presence of a large crowd of relatives and friends who came to pay their last respects to his memory. The funeral was preached by Rev. Bennett and Rev. Jackson. The floral offering was very large and beautiful.
Burial was in the new cemetery. The following from out of town attended the funeral: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. I want to thank everyone for their kindness to me and the nice visits that were made to me, and the nice cards and letters were appreciated also, as well as the words of encouragement from my friends. I will never forget them. It was reported that I would never walk, but I see no reason why I should not. I knocked my knee cap off and it was put back and is getting well as fast as it can. I hope to be able to be out among my good friends here in a short time.

Plans are being made to get the town incorporated, which will be fine. A water system will be put in which will be of service in case of fire, like it would have been a few weeks ago.

The singing here Sunday was well attended and the music was fine. Several visitors from nearby towns were in attendance.

Your Community Druggist

Until we get sick or suffer pain, the value of the druggist in our community is never properly understood. Usually we think of him as "just another merchant." He isn't. He's different.

He is a scientific man, trained in the power of drugs to heal and save. Because of his scientific knowledge, the State licenses him to collaborate with the physician in the practice of medicine. Without him, the effort of the ablest physician to heal might be defeated.

On the shelves of your drug store are the world's most valuable remedies. Mountain and jungle, ocean and plain, in all climes from eternal heat to eternal cold, unite to bring to this community store every important product known for the promotion of health and the alleviation of pain.

From September 1st to September 10th, all the nation pays tribute to this phase of the drug store's service to its community by observing NATIONALLY ADVERTISED BRANDS WEEK.

Visit your local drug store during this special week and see for yourself that the community drug store can supply you, at lowest prices, advertised products made under the direction of scientifically trained men and guaranteed by the maker as well as the druggist.

LABOR DAY

Calls For Extra Precautions On
Part of Auto Drivers

Austin, Aug. 30.—Unless motorists follow safe driving rules during the Labor Day holiday period, September 3, 4, and 5, Texas streets and highways will be marked with the mangled bodies of 17 traffic crash victims, state police warned today.

Using last year's Labor Day death figures as a guide, state safety officials predicted that at least 26 persons will lose their lives in Labor Day violence. In addition to 17 traffic deaths, five are expected to drown, two will be accidentally shot and two will die from other types of accidents.

Traffic deaths last year rose to 21 in the three days of celebration when thousands of vehicles carrying pleasure seekers jammed arterial highways.

In spite of precautions planned to forestall many tragic deaths, state police are forecasting that approximately 125 persons will be injured in accidents of all types—many to be maimed for life. State patrolmen will guard all highways closely, working double shifts with very little rest until the holiday period has passed. Chief Fred Hickman said. Special attention will be given to drinking drivers and those who violate the 45-mile-an-hour speed law, and weave in and out of traffic lanes.

"Fast driving means death in collisions when reasonable speeds would cause slight injuries," Chief Hickman said. "State officers will join with local police in preventing as many casualties as possible."

Officials urged Texas people to guard against accidents in the homes, on hunting and fishing trips and while swimming and boating so that death tolls may be lowered.

256 BIRTHS IN 1937

For Hamilton County Reported by State Health Department

Austin, Texas, Aug. 29.—"In the state of Texas during 1937, 698 mothers lost their lives through childbirth and associated conditions. Fatality struck 8618 babies under one year of age and 3,972 infants were stillborn. These facts became particularly distressing when it is realized that at least two-thirds of this motherhood mortality could be avoided," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

Hamilton County had 256 total live births, of which 252 were white, and 4 Mexican; 129 of the infants were male and 127 female. Physicians attended the births of 256 infants; 78 of the total infants were born in hospitals and 178 at home; 3 children were stillborn, giving the county a rate of 1.2 per 100 live births; 8 children died under one year of age, a rate of 3.12 per 1000 live births.

JENNIE MAE

We wonder if those of you who heard a plane droning overhead Sunday night knew that it was Frank Fallis, out after curfew. Frank is a man who likes to keep up with the times, but it seems he can't very well do this unless he keeps his watch set up an hour at the time. However, with the elections coming off Saturday and Frank being in charge of holding same by virtue of his recent election as Precinct Chairman, the necessity of running his watch back is apparent, since all the voters could not possibly have run theirs up with his. This is getting somewhat involved, so we'll get on with the story. His watch was run back but when he went to Clinton the next day he forgot about not being an hour ahead of time. So when it began to get dark, he wasn't particularly worried because he thought he was still an hour ahead. He wasn't worried a lot when he came roaring into town expecting to set his ship down safely on a dark field, but the six or eight who drove their cars out to the airport to use their lights in helping him land might have been a little uneasy. Frank says he did get a few bumps.

While the Reunion was in progress, one of their crew appeared at the door to Higginbotham's Lumber Co., wanting some lumber to build a cage. They thought the cage was to corral some sort of wild animal, and can you imagine the surprise of all concerned when they learned that the cage was for the man himself—he was the wild man. He said lots of people thought the act was a fake, but that he really ate razor blades and ground glass. Which, in our opinion, are delicacies compared to raw snakes and chickens.

Larry Hudson, who bemoans the fact that he will be "just right for pun-king" when the next war comes, says that he finds consolation in one fact. He believes that since reading a few of these "Ace" stories, he knows all about flying a plane.

We are glad to see Sonny Leeth back in town after an illness of several weeks' duration. This is one young man we always like to have around because he gets so much fun out of life.

Signs of the Changing Seasons: Trips to market by the leafing clotheers to purchase fall frocks, hats, etc. The motor, now arriving after dark... Preparations for school being made among all groups from the tots to the college age crowd... Talk of football in the air... Results of elections about completed... Storm warnings along the Gulf... Less visiting and vacation trips... Dog days, back again.

New York, a city in which many lonely men and women live, has started a new venture in friendliness for the unattached woman of fifty. This is called the L. Club, its name having been taken from the Roman numeral for fifty, and headquarters can be found in Lexington Avenue, not far from Grand Central Terminal. Mrs. Walter Nelson Sedgwick, Mrs. William T. Payne and Mrs. Harold Smith are prime movers in this new organization which has no dues and whose clubrooms are guaranteed for a year. These are nicely furnished and there is also a workroom where handicrafts are to be taught.

Among the twenty-five states paying unemployment compensation Texas ranks among the first ten in the number of claims received. About 152,000 original claims (the first claim an unemployed man files is called "original") have been received since January 1, of which more than 37,000 have been paid benefits in the amount of $3,261,501.11.

Latest feature of campus dances at Texas State College for Women is the rendition of popular songs written by students. Requests for "Campus Shadows" at the last hop outnumbered the calls for regular favorites.
