CLUBS

Press Club
 The Press Club met Monday at Activity Period. The house was called to order by the president and the roll checked. There were two absent. The rest of the period was spent in writing up news and getting the news together.

At the Wednesday meeting everyone was required to write about a class party or picnic. These were turned in to Miss Rape and we plan to discuss them at our next meeting.

Home Economics
 The Home Ec. girls have been giving reports on smaller children and how to take care of them.

The second year girls have been studying luncheons and what we shall have for dinner. They have also been studying how to select silver and what kind of silver to select.

Our club is going to have a "serious" initiation and all of our Home Ec. club officers will be elected at this time.

The first year girls have also been studying how to save time and money.

Drum Corps Performs at Dallas
 The drum corps felt quite honored in getting to go to the Dallas State Fair and perform at the Cotton Bowl.

When their time came to march, each was in his place and ready to perform. The drum corps did splendid and Hico is proud of them.

The most exciting thing about the trip was getting to see Kay Kyser and Ginny Simms. Ginny sang "The Eyes of Texas" and everyone joined in on the chorus. Everyone had a grand time and we hope they will be able to make many more profitable trips.

GENERAL HAPPENINGS

Assembly
 All radio quiz fans should have been present last Friday morning at the Dramatic Club's "Dr. I. Q." Station HHS came on the air with an announcement by Ima Bowden concerning those delicious caramels. She introduced "Dr. I. Q.", the lovely Margaret Bankhead. The "Doctor" introduced her assistants on the floor, all members of the dramatics club. The questions followed, rewarded by so many caramels in case of a right answer, or anonymous clasp of the old song. The questions were concerned with school teachers, the school board, students, history, etc. One of the most obvious questions was, "Who does this describe—tall, dark and handsome?" Harold Todd's instant response was, "Mr. Levinsky." Of course this was right and Harold got nineteen caramels.

Facts and Features
 Gracie and Dot were really in an uproar when they found out that a certain T. C. U. boy was hurt last Saturday.

If there's anything the student body doesn't know about Gracie, just consult Dr. I. Q. and maybe you can get more information, though I doubt it after the I. Q. program last Friday in Chapel.

An ex-senior visited in Hico Sunday and Monday of this week. She was Quata Burden of Dallas.

In the last meeting of the F. F. A. chapter the new secretary was asked if he was keeping the minutes. He replied, "I haven't a watch."

Who was the junior girl? I saw in a Green Plymouth early Sunday morning. Ask Dr. I. Q.

CLASS NEWS

Freshmen
 The Freshmen are eagerly awaiting the outcome of the Football Queen Race on Thursday. We are ahead at the present time.

We have been in high school six weeks now and after great thought and meditation have come to the following conclusion:

He who knows not and knows he knows not is a freshman.

He who knows not and knows not that he knows not is a sophomore.

He who knows and knows that he knows is a junior.

He who knows and knows that he knows is a senior.

We wish to have our room mother present at all entertainments.

Fifth and Sixth Grades
 We elected our Duke and Duchess. The Duke is Chapman Coker and the Duchess is Vera Lee Davis.

Be looking for the Sixth Grade news next week.

Third and Fourth Grades
 We have elected our officers. John Barbee was elected president, Milton Clark reporter, Weldon Parks secretary-treasurer. For room mothers we elected Mrs. Coy C. Parks and Mrs. Grady Anderson.

First and Second Grades
 Our room is very pretty with all the Halloween decorations. For our candidates for the King and Queen we elected Barbara Andeen Clark for the Duchess and Thomas Abel for her escort.

We won a large picture for our class room by having the most mothers present at the last mothers' club meeting. We are proud of the picture.

We have eighteen boys and girls in our room. But we have a very unusual first grade class. There are no boys in the first grade.

A NICE PLACE TO LIVE

"What am I angry about this week?" That is probably the question most editors ask themselves when they sit down to think about a good subject for an editorial.

It is usually easier to criticize than it is to praise. We can think about what we don't like about Washington. We can think about the money that is wasted in politics, the crookedness in our political machines, the attitude of various officials toward war—and anyone of those subjects makes good material for an editorial.

But maybe we ought to do a little more Pollyanna type of thinking. Maybe instead of thinking of mistakes which have been made by our President or our Congressman or our town officials—we ought to spend a little more time thinking about the good things they have done.

For in spite of mistakes we can ferret out all along the line, America somehow continues to be a pretty nice place to live. We may be in debt up to our ears and we may not have a lot of the things we think we should have—but we do continue to have our liberty, freedom to do as we please, opportunities galore and a thousand and one other things which the people in the rest of the world are green with envy.

A certain amount of criticism is a healthy thing. But often both editors and readers get into such a critical state of mind that it begins to make them sour. When we begin to feel that way it's time to take a few moments off to recite the things we have to be thankful for. And when we do that the things we have been criticizing no matter how justified our criticism may be, often fade into insignificance.

WAR IN NEW YORK

Now that the World Series baseball battle is over, New Yorkers can go back to war again.

There is no doubt, from all reports, that New York is the most war-minded city in America—but not so much so that they let the German-British skirmish take precedence over the Yankee affair between the Yankees and the Dodgers.

It is a healthy sign that New Yorkers still can show such enthusiasm over a game. We often think of the people in our nation's biggest city as being too concerned with dollars and intrigue and sophistication to waste any enthusiasm on such minor matters as baseball. But everyone who saw the games reports that the fervor displayed at the Yankee stadium and at Ebbetts Field in Brooklyn, even surpassed the mad celebration which took place in New York when the Armistice was signed.

It was probably a relief in New Yorkers to see baseball instead of war in the headlines of their newspapers. But it must have been discouraging to Adolf Hitler to hear that Americans, when really worked up over even such a thing as baseball, still show that same fervor, that same mad enthusiasm which played such a major role in bringing Germany to terms in 1918.

It is hard for a nation regimented as Germany is to realize that spontaneity still exists in our part of the world. But, because of Germany's experience in the last war, it shouldn't be hard for them to realize that such undictated natural enthusiasm, if let loose in war, would even today compensate for an enormous number of tanks and planes operated by cold-blooded goose-steppers.

Germany had better be careful or some smart British propaganda agent will start a rumor in Brooklyn that Hitler insulted the Dodgers. That would mean war—even if Brooklyn had to fight alone!

Lessons in HEALTH by ARTIE McGOVERN

Indigestion May Be Caused by Nervousness

Nervous indigestion is a widespread American plague, and there has always seemed to be a question as to whether the indigestion is caused by nervousness or the nervousness is caused by indigestion. Very frequently digestive upsets can be directly traced to undue nervousness and emotional outbursts. The ill effects of family arguments at the dinner table, of carrying a business disagreement home instead of leaving it at the office, of concentrating on the troubles which may present themselves tomorrow rather than on the pleasantness of a family meal, will be evidenced long after the subject has been forgotten.

Digestion is a very complicated process and the right way of eating is as important to the maintenance of natural health as the eating of the right kind of food. Mental disturbances have a very marked effect on the functions of the digestive system, through the medium of the nervous system. In other words, the process of digestion is considerably influenced by the state of the mind. Make your meal time a pleasant and relaxing period in your day. When the family assembles for dinner, arrange to spend that hour enjoying your food and indulging in light and cheerful conversation. There is a time and a place for you to scold Junior because he didn't put his playthings away, for discussing your financial worries, or for showing your displeasure with world politics. The dinner table, however, is neither the time nor the place for any of these things. If you will keep your mind and conversation sweet, you will be in far less danger of developing a sour stomach.

Reports From the Louisiana War Games

This Week in WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C. (NWN)—President Roosevelt's efforts to create a more sympathetic feeling in this country toward Russia, by making it seem that Russia's anti-religious reputation is exaggerated, seems temporarily to have fizzled, although it may yet produce the results he sought.

His statements indicating that Russia does have a form of religious freedom, in which he pointed out that the Russian constitution provides for freedom of worship, was met by surrounding criticism on all sides. Leaders of practically all religious groups loudly attacked this stand, pointing out that the Communist government was a notorious enemy of religion.

But the President's later move, aimed at persuading Russia to take definite steps toward religious freedom, was hailed by some of the same religious leaders as a more tolerant attitude toward religion by the Russian government. It at least resulted in an immediate statement by S. A. Lozovsky, official spokesman for the Russian government, in which he reaffirmed Soviet religious freedom and said that the Soviet government lives up to Article 124 of its constitution, which reads:

"To insure to citizens freedom of conscience, the church in the U.S.S.R. is separated from the state and the school from the church. Freedom to perform religious rites and freedom of anti-religious propaganda is recognized to all citizens." It is expected that, while Mr. Lozovsky's statement did not say that the Soviet government would change its attitude toward religion, the mere re-affirmation of this part of its constitution would tend toward curbing the "Godless propaganda" which has been spread by the Communist government ever since the Revolution.

President Roosevelt believes it is imperative for us to give aid to Russia in its fight against Hitler, but in the difficult position of asking the American people to help a nation which most of us have considered an enemy of all the things we stand for. Any concessions toward religious freedom in Russia would make it easier to get our people to support greater aid to Russia.

Such aid will be sought in conjunction with the new $5,385,000,000 lend-lease measure which the President is backing and which congress is expected to pass, although considerable opposition to permitting much of this fund to be used to help Russia is expected in both houses. Congress is ready to take quick action on revision of our neutrality law, following the sinking of more

SIX INCH SERMON REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

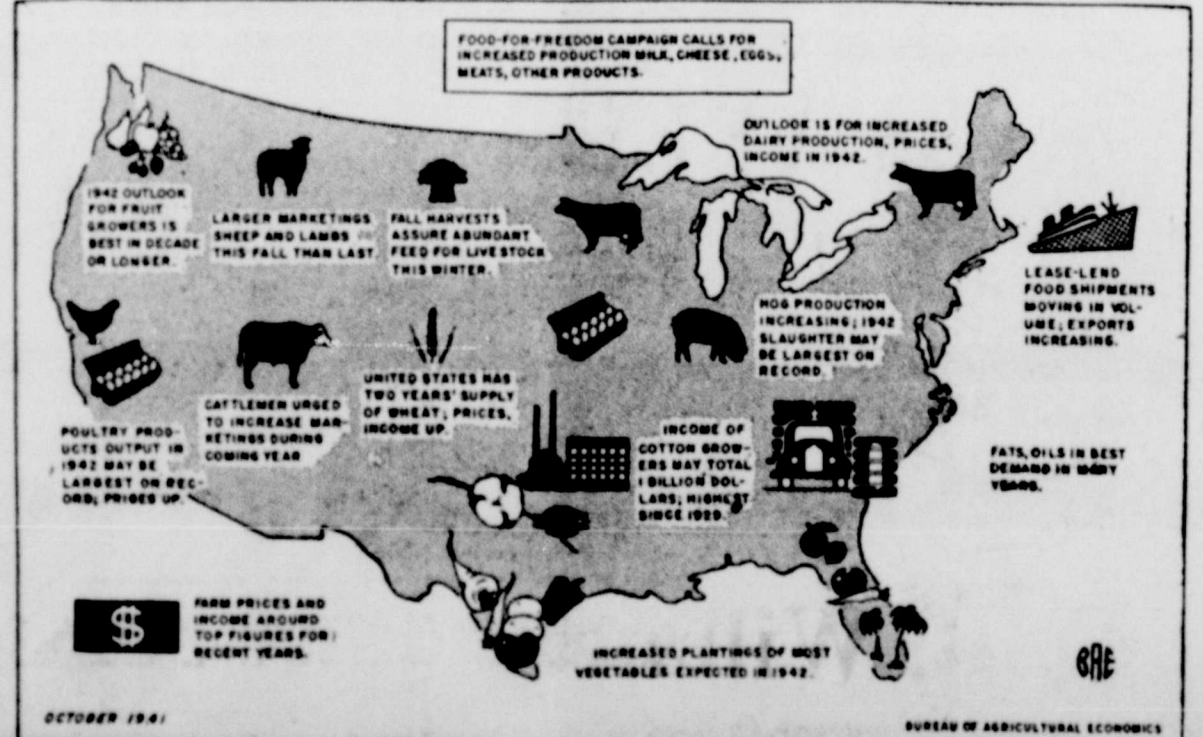

The Holy Spirit Our Helper. Lesson for October 19: John 1: 5-8; Acts 1: 8; Romans 8: 26-28; Galatians 5: 22-26. Golden Text: Romans 8: 14. When others had failed, with all the ingenuity at their command, to raise an object from the bottom of a deep estuary, an old man had the object fished by a scow on the river and waited for the tide to rise. For behind the tide was the boundless power of the great ocean. Let us link ourselves to the power of God.

The Holy Spirit has many offices in the kingdom. He promotes the conversion of men. If we would depend upon Him instead of our own plans and expedients, the church would have genuine revivals. The second chapter of Acts explains the mighty activity of the disciples and their success in turning "the world upside down." Even as in the upper room, the promise of the Spirit is ours today. Read what the Spirit will do for the church—Romans 8: 26-28. Consider the fruits of the Spirit. In their blessings—to those who bear them and to those who receive them—the world is upside down—these fruits may remind us of the trees John saw in the celestial city, with leaves for the healing of the nations.

The Almighty Being has been revealed as God going before us, as God with us, and God in us. We are living in the last great era in which God would dwell in us. We cannot think of any better relation we may sustain to God than that of His indwelling. Then let us open our hearts to the Indwelling Spirit, and live and serve in and by His presence.

The Labor Racketeer

It probably won't be long now before the racketeer labor leader gets thrown right out of the back door onto his ear. The public, the government, labor and respectable labor leaders, are arriving at the indignation saturation point. As long as the unfair, contract-ignoring, outlaw strikes were against "capital," or were inter-union rows, the country stood for it because, generally speaking, the principal sufferers were a few capitalists and a few thousand poor workers who were not in a position to defend themselves against the depredations of the gangsters who lead some, but not many—thank Heaven—of the unions.

Then the war in Europe started and our government used its head and instituted the so-called rearmament program on the theory that if a fire is raging in the neighborhood it is good logic to get out the hose. Almost from the very day we began to protect ourselves against eventualities—the most uncalculated, inexcusable and unexplainable strikes started to become a habit in various industries whose outputs were essential to defense. If you manufactured soap or dress goods or baseball bats, you were, strangely enough, left in peace. Very soon it became obvious that many of these strikes were engineered by Communists under orders from the German and the Russian, and the flagrant and open contempt of the American people by the Red leaders of these strikes, began to seep in between the flesh and the Food for the Conquered Nations?

With the approach of winter humane Americans are beginning to wonder, and to worry, about food conditions soon to face the cold and hungry victims of Germany's ruthless invasions. There has been recent agitation in congress upon this subject.

The history of this unhappy condition is well known. The German authorities for the purpose of feeding their own people and their own armies, have taken essential food from the conquered territory to such an extent that, by some reports, the health of the peoples affected will be injured for several generations to come.

It does no good to revile the German government, and it is doubtful if any agreement could be reached whereby it would consent to return any appreciable quantity of the commandeered food. It has been said in this connection, that the German authorities are actually taking more than they need and are returning dribbles here and there in order to make their victims believe that they, the Germans, are befriending them while Britain and America are allowing them to starve for fear Britain may lose some slight tactical advantage over Germany.

If this report is true then the matter takes on a significance for us other than solely humane. For the faith and friendship of Norway, Denmark, Belgium, Greece, France and Holland is essential to Britain and America both now and after this war is over. And so, aside from the humane standpoint, the question stands: Is it more advantageous to Britain and America to allow the conquered

SAVING MONEY With Cotton Bags

Any little girl will be delighted with this school dress—mainly because it has a "swing skirt" and slip to match. Make it of laundered Cotton Flour or Sugar Bags, which are snowy white when bleached. When starched this material is particularly attractive. The dress is easy to make and requires only buttons for trimming. Ruffles around the collar and cuffs and bottom of the slip can be added if desired.

Other Cotton Bag Sewing ideas are illustrated in a free booklet. Write to National Cotton Council, Box 18, Memphis, or Textile Bags, 100 N. LaSalle St., Chicago.

No Need to Get In Rush to Secure Driver's License

O. R. Williams, tax assessor-collector for Hamilton County, was while here dropped by the News Review office to request publication of the following article from last week's Hamilton County News:

"No use to get in a rush," said Patrolman W. E. Renfrow, while in Hamilton on the regular schedule date for issuing original auto drivers licenses. "There will not be any renewal licenses issued before November 1, 1941." Mr. Renfrow stated.

After the above named date examiners will be in Hamilton on Monday and Thursday of each week from 1:30 to 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon. Application blanks may be obtained in all places like Pottsville, Carlton, Shive, Indian Gap, Cranfill's Gap [What about Hico?—HNR Ed.] and other centers of population in the county. They must be notarized when filled out by the applicant.

The following information, if followed closely will enable the applicant for a re-license to avoid errors and the nervous tension that appears to be attendant upon the transaction:

Using New Forms
The drivers license division is using the new forms prescribed by Texas' modernized drivers license law, and the officers are getting ready to re-license thousands of drivers.

The forms are simple, but they must be fully filled out, and correctly, before a new license can be issued.

"If people will learn to fill these things out, it will save them a lot of time," Renfrow said.

Applicants receive two forms, the application and the license form. The application contains the questions which the division must have answered before a license can be issued. The back of the stiff paper form is for the use of the patrolman in giving driving and other tests.

Short and Simple
Instructions are short and simple. Read them first. The applicant must either type (on a typewriter) or print in ink everything filled in on the application, except, of course, the signature. The full name is required, just as you would write it in: First name, middle name and last name. If you have no middle name, print (none). If you have a middle initial which does not stand for a middle name, print (only) after the initial. The address required is the residence address, not a post office box number or business address. The month, day and year of birth, age, sex, color of eyes, weight in pounds, height in feet and inches, color of hair, employer's address are required.

"Some applicants print 'man' or 'girl' in the place for 'sex' when it should be 'male' or 'female,'" Renfrow said. "They put their height in inches, instead of feet and inches, and get the year of their birth mixed up with the month and day."

List of Eight Questions
A list of eight questions in the main body of the application must be filled out completely. A place for an 'X' is provided before each main question. In each case where the answer is 'yes,' there are additional blanks to be filled.

Here are the questions: Do you now have a driver's license? If the answer is 'yes,' print in what state it was issued, and the driver's license number.

Did you ever take an examination for a driver's license? If "yes," then answer where, when (date), did you pass or fail?

Was your license ever revoked, suspended, cancelled or denied? If so, when, where and why?

Have you ever been convicted of any of the following offenses? If so, give the number of times. Driving Intoxicated, failure to stop and give aid (after an accident), aggravated assault with an automobile (motor vehicle), negligent homicide with a motor vehicle, number of convictions (all), where and when (date or dates).

Have you ever been involved as a driver (not passenger) in an automobile accident? If so, how many times, when was the last time (date), was anyone killed, anyone injured; next to last accident, same questions.

Have you ever suffered from epilepsy, paralysis or dizzy spells? Have you ever been addicted to the use of narcotic drugs or intoxicating liquor? State which. Are

Funeral For Mrs. T. P. Sutton Held Tuesday

Funeral services for Mrs. T. P. Sutton, who died Sunday morning, October 12, 1941, at 2 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wallace Ratliff, were held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Hico Cemetery, conducted by Rev. Alvin Swindell, pastor of the local Baptist church.

Mrs. Lou Sutton was born January 3, 1857, in Bell County, and came to Hico August 15, 1897 with her husband, Mr. T. P. Sutton, who passed away in 1923. Then she made her home here with her youngest daughter, Mrs. Wallace Ratliff, until her death.

Grannie Sutton was a kind, loving mother to everyone as well as her own children. She visited all her friends and made everyone happy because she always had a word of kindness and was ready to help when needed. With her strong constitution she has helped and enjoyed life very much to the very last. A member of the First Baptist Church since an early age, she had lived a consecrated life.

She is survived by seven children, Mrs. Ola Wallace, Wharton; Sam Sutton, Booneville, Ark.; Mrs. George Bowie, Duffau; Mrs. Wallace Ratliff and Mrs. Effie Robertson, Hico; and two sons by a former marriage, Ollie Shipp of Yuma, Arizona, and Henry Shipp of Wichita Falls; also 19 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Flower girls were the following granddaughters: Mrs. Estell Deskin, Mrs. Nona Dean, Mrs. Opal Brannon, Mrs. Emma Roberson, and Miss Reba Bowie. Pallbearers were grandsons, Sherman Roberson, Russell Sutton, Omer Shipp, Helen Ratliff, James Shipp, and Elton Slaughter.

Out-of-town relatives who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Omer Shipp and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gordie Brannon, Wichita Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sutton, Rotan; Mrs. Bill Dean, Cisco; Mrs. J. W. Bolton, Wharton, Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Deskin and daughter, Duffau; Mrs. Tootsie Storms, Stephenville; Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ratliff, Brownwood; George Bowie, Fort Worth; and Mrs. Burtie Barrow of Breckenridge.

Grannie Sutton
Dear Lord, tonight under your sheltering wings,
A brand new angel with the chorus sings:
Her face is beautiful, her voice so sweet,
Dear God, may she sit near your feet.
Until she comes to know the angel band,
And won't be lonesome, you understand.
For God, you see, she never went away
For just one night or even a day;
But every evening when bedtime came,
She taught us to pray in your dear name.
VIRGIE.

CONTRIBUTED.
you now cured? (The question on liquor refers not to just taking a drink now and then, but to habitual use of liquor.)
Physical or Mental Defects
Do you have any physical or mental defects which would make it difficult for you to drive a motor vehicle safely on the highway? If "yes," then what are they and what precautions do you take on account of them?
Have you ever been a patient in or committed to an institution for the insane or feeble-minded? If so, when were you released as cured? Give date, name and location of institution.
If the applicant is under 18, the parent or guardian must also swear to the truth of statements in the application and sign a special portion of the form.
The license form, which the applicant also must fill out, gives information contained in the first section of the application, name and address in three places, description in two places.
The license fee is 50 cents, and when the applicant mails in his filled out application blank he is instructed to enclose the fee in a post office money order form.
Renfrow said licenses now are being issued only to new applicants and those which may have expired.

Defense Steel Erected in Half of Normal Time

This building at Curtiss-Wright Buffalo plant accounted for 10,000 of the 60,000 tons of steel for defense industries erected by Bethlehem up to July 15th.

Chrysler Tank Arsenal at Detroit, for which erection of steel was commenced on November 20th, 1940, is now in operation.

Seven thousand tons of steel for the Westinghouse naval ordnance plant at Canton were erected at a pace of 122 tons for each working day.

Assembly building for Republic Aviation Corporation, Farmingdale, N. Y. Steel was erected in two months and two days.

STEEL framework comes first when a modern factory building is born. Industrial construction for national defense is now being accomplished in some instances in half as much time as under normal conditions. It is indicated in a report made public by Bethlehem Steel Company's Division of Fabricated Steel Construction.

The report reveals that up to July 15th this company alone completed the erection of 60,000 tons of steel construction for defense manufacturing industries. Steel that might normally have been erected in 18 months was erected in nine months. A single group of buildings for long-range bombers covered 1,356,000 square feet, enough area for 27 full-sized baseball fields. A naval gun plant calling for 7,000 tons of steel construction was erected in 60 working days. The average elapsed time, including holidays and Sundays required to complete each one of more than twenty major defense industry projects was 66 days. The longest time required on any one job was 122 calendar days, and the shortest time 12 days.

The steel is up, the report indicates, and in some cases has since been roofed over and is now in production, for new units for the Douglas bomber factory at Long Beach, Calif., for the Westinghouse naval gun factory at Canton, for new buildings for the Curtiss-Wright airplane factory at Buffalo, for an armor plate machine shop for the Midvale Steel Company, buildings for the Vultee Aircraft Company, the Republic Aviation Company, the Chrysler Tank Arsenal and a submarine-runway for the Electric Boat Company of New London.

SUCCESSFUL PARENTHOOD

LET CHILD EXPRESS HIS FEAR

In spite of bombs and separations of parent and child one indication that family life in Britain goes on as usual comes each week to my desk. It is the publication The Nursery World. There is never any sign of panic in its very British pages, yet every issue reflects war time conditions. The food department tells ways to use substitutes and extols the virtues of carrots. Many letters seeking advice are from nurses left in complete charge of children whose parents are both engaged in full time defense work. But often the war is brought closest by a letter which refers most casually to abnormal conditions. As, for instance, that of a mother who wrote that her little girl had given up thumb sucking three years ago, but that since the bombings she had taken to it again. The letter went on to say that she and the child's father had been careful to show no fear during raids and that the child apparently felt none for she often said, after the "all clear" sounded, "Wasn't that fun?"

The advice given the mother in The Nursery World applies to children anywhere who make a brave show to hide their fears and in so doing sometimes fall back on a comfort habit, such as thumb sucking. Children very much want to live up to their parents' standard of bravery and it is just as much pretense when they appear to like the excitement of an air raid as if nothing when grownups act as if nothing unusual were happening. It was suggested that instead of ignoring the fear the child be encouraged to tell what she was most afraid of during raids. Perhaps the very thing she minded most, such as the noise, might be the least harmful element. (Many youngsters lose their fear of thunder upon learning that by the time you hear it danger is past, so it's really good news!) Then, the mother was further advised to admit the destructiveness of bombs while dwelling on the effectiveness of defense measures. Thus the child would be encouraged to face her fear, which is one of life's most important lessons, and would also be learning that you can always do something to meet danger, which is mighty strengthening knowledge.

The final suggestion may seem odd, but it has been found in studies of emotionally disturbed children that often they can express their fears, and thus work them off, by simulating the situation they dread in their play. Drawing and painting also afford release to pent-up emotions. Consequently, playing at make-believe bombings, or the opportunity to paint or draw her conception of an air blitz were recommended for the child.

So if your child on first going to school falls into a discarded nervous habit, don't scold. Find out what anxieties may have caused the return to an infantile source of comfort, and seek a way of relieving them.

MAKE YOUR IDEAS WORK

In 1920 a young man in Omaha, Nebraska, felt the discouragement that comes to all of us at times. Working in a ice cream factory, he felt that he had advanced about as far as he could. He wanted to get into some other kind of business where he could do better. But he could find no opening. So he made a momentous decision: to see if he couldn't give some new twist to the business he was in. He told his friends about it and they frowned him down. They reminded him that George Washington had made the first ice cream in the United States, that thousands of people had experimented with ice cream and that there was absolutely nothing new to be learned about it.

But the young man wasn't convinced. He decided to at least try to work out something new in an old business. The young man's name was Russell Stover.

He experimented, after hours, and on Sundays, but he found nothing new—no novel twists. But not too fast! He did find something new. Something very simple: to cover a bar of ice cream with a coating of milk chocolate in such a way that the ice cream would not melt before it could be carried home by the one who bought it. He showed it to his friends. "Too simple," they said. "People want to eat their ice cream straight without having it dripping on their hands." The same old calamity chorus.

But he worked out the idea anyway and offered it to the public. He called it "Eskimo Pie." You've heard of it. You've eaten it! You've paid money to this very man who was so discouraged.

Was it a success? I'll give you just one example. Ecuador, in South America, was on the point of going bankrupt. Exports had been falling off; money was deflated; people were discontented. One of the principal products of export was cocoa; but there was no call for it. Then suddenly there was a call for it. From Omaha. There were calls—there were cries—for Ecuador's cocoa. It was needed for coating Eskimo Pies, the most spectacular food product success that ever flamed across the headlines of America. Telegrams flooded in. One time there were 14 boys in the outer office waiting to deliver messages. On one day his long distance telephone calls amounted to $1,800.

He did not make the confection himself, but licensed others to manufacture it under his direction. In three months, he licensed 1,400 firms to make Eskimo Pie. He was once offered a million and a half dollars for the business. He did sell it in 1923, and retired from the business.

What had Russell Stover done? The simplest thing in the world. He looked around at a business he was familiar with and gave it a new twist. That was all. Simple. A new twist to an old product. Now why don't you try that in the business you're in? These new twists are being developed every day by someone. Why isn't that someone YOU?

'BIG OAKS FROM LITTLE ACORNS . . .'

H. Otto Vogt had just taken over a small glass factory near Thomaston, Conn., and he had to sink or swim. This was in the midst of the depression, and Mr. Vogt was so poor that all the money he could raise for the first payment was $25. Think of buying a factory with a cash capital of $25.

The name of that company is the Eclipse Glass company, and Mr. Vogt is the secretary and treasurer. The company specialized in making watch crystals and clock faces. Mr. Vogt knew his business, and the company turned out a good product, but no orders were hanging on the trees. Orders or perish! He had to have them; and so he felt all the other glass companies making clock fronts.

There was in Connecticut a clock manufacturer who was the biggest in his line. But he was hard to sell. Mr. Vogt laid plans to win him over, and worked out a cost price which was most attractive. He put it all down on paper, so that the man could study it, and he had his arguments lined up in most convincing style. One, two, three his arguments went. They were unanswerable. But when Mr. Vogt threw himself against the man's door the arguments were answered in a word of two letters.

H. Otto Vogt went back to his factory and did some thinking. He decided to talk in the man's own terms. Not words, but eye evidence. He bought one of the man's clocks, took it to the factory, pulled out the flat ordinary-glass face, replaced it with a convex face. Then he made another appointment with the man.

When he arrived at the man's office he stripped off the paper and set two clocks on the man's desk. One had a flat face; the other a convex face. He pointed out how the convex face of the clock caught the light, reflected it, and gave the clock a rich, well-turned-out look—indisputable evidence. The man picked them up and looked at them closely.

The new face would cost about a cent more than the old flat face. But Mr. Vogt was prepared for this. He reminded the man that a penny additional spent on the inside of the clock would not make any difference to the public, because it could not see the expenditure. But they could see it on the face of the clock.

The man took a clock in each hand, studied them again. Times were hard. A penny was a penny. But he placed an order for 20,000 clock faces. The impression the faces made on the public was so good that the man ordered again, and again. In all he bought more than one million clock faces!

H. Otto Vogt convinced him by talking in the man's own terms. He had given a "desk demonstration." He had shown him how he could improve his article and increase sales. And when you can do that, any man is interested. Did I say "interested?" He is captivated, enthralled!

The celebrated, often-quoted, Professor William James of Harvard declared that the average man develops only ten per cent of his latent mental abilities. Think of it! That's about the equivalent of having an eight-cylinder motor with only one motor firing. Professor James said also, "What we accomplish, compared to what we could accomplish, is as the tiny waves on the surface of the ocean compared to its mighty depths." That means that you have latent powers you may not realize you possess. Am I sure of that statement? I am, because I have been in adult educational work for 27 years. I have personally helped twenty thousand men and women develop hidden talents that they never dreamed they possessed.

Take yourself for example. You may not be a good photographer. But you could become an expert. You could become an outstanding photographer. All you have to do is to study, and practice, practice, practice. If you want to be a good photographer, or a French scholar, or an accordion player—if you want to do that more than you want to listen to ball games, or go to the movies, or play bridge—if you really have a burning passion to accomplish something, you are almost certain to do it—provided it is within reason.

HOUSE and HOME
by Mary E. Dague

Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

Naturally it would be delightful to completely furnish a new home when we move into it, but very few of us are able to do this. Instead we must usually take several years to acquire our furnishings.

So for the bride who must choose the first essentials in housekeeping, it is wise to begin by purchasing the things of good quality which later be shifted to other rooms. For example, maple furniture in a living room can be transplanted to a sun room or a recreation room when you move into that type of house and you are able to afford walnut or mahogany for your living room.

Painted iron furniture in your dining room can be most attractive in its two-time role. Or a gate-leg table in your dining room can be finally promoted to the living room or demoted to the breakfast room when you furnish your dining room with the pieces of your dreams.

First of all make a list of the furniture you must have in order to begin keeping house—if you are a bride. Then whether you are a bride or a housekeeper of long standing just moving into a new house make a list of the furniture you like and finally want to acquire. Then check with your budget, the architecture of your home, your style of living and the habits and occupations of the members of your family.

This presents the whole plan at a glance and enables you to choose wisely so that each addition brings you just so much nearer to your heart's desire. Furniture bought hither-miss seldom fits together so if you have no plan each addition seems like a misfit and you are confronted with the problem of "getting rid" or "making-do" each time you make a change.

The gardener should store a box of potting soil in his cellar now, before the ground freezes. When it comes time to start seeds indoors next spring it may be well nigh impossible to get the soil for the flats, and all winter long house plants will be needing a bit of fresh dirt around them.

If you have a bit of unused wall space in your kitchen why don't you put up a hanging shelf for your will and it's much more convenient to have your cook books and manufacturer's booklets and recipe file right out in the open than to have them piled on top of each other in a top drawer that you can't reach or a bottom drawer that sticks. With reliable information easily accessible you'll use it often and profitably.

'HOOSIER' LITTLE PURSE?
"WHY, IT'S MY soldier-boy's summer overseas cap," will be the right answer for thousands of women and girls who expect to receive a souvenir purse created by the idea of Private Robert J. Wallis, of Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. One "zip" and the purse belongs to "her" is his slogan. The young soldier has applied for a patent on the idea of putting a zipper on the army cap, thereby simply creating a novel, inexpensive gift for wife, mother or sweetheart.
