Thanksgiving Theme Song

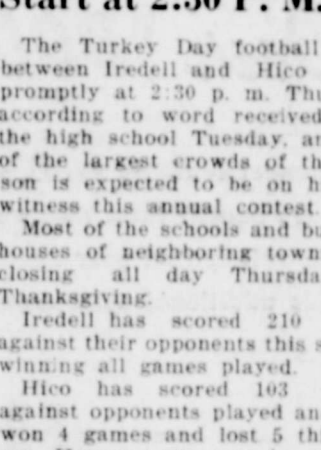

I'M THANKFUL I CAN STILL DO MY THANKSGIVING MARKING WITHOUT A RATION CARD, AND THAT WE DON'T HAVE TO STAND IN LINE FOR HOURS TO GET WHAT WE WANT.

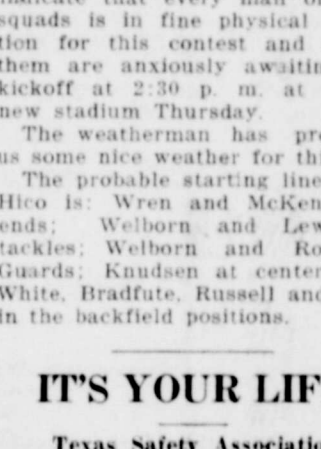

I'M THANKFUL THAT THIS MAN'S ARMY, WE GET OURN GOOD CROWD NOT ONLY ON THANKSGIVING DAY, BUT ON EVERY DAY.

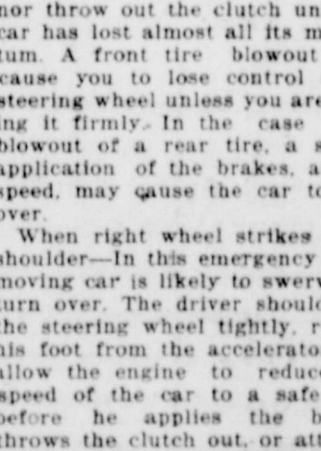

I'M THANKFUL FOR FOLK WHO LOVE ME ENOUGH TO TESS ME THANKSGIVING GIZZARD BUT I WONDER WHAT HAPPENS TO PREY PUPS OVER THERE?

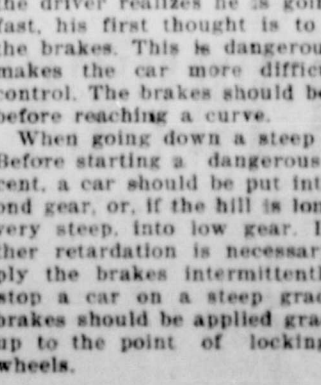

I'M THANKFUL I CAN STILL HAVE A FOOT BALL DATE WITH JIMMY AND A WOOFER DOOPER FEED AND SHAG AT JERRY'S JUKE JOINT AFTERWARD.

I'M THANKFUL MY MOM DON'T HAVE A TURKEY DINNER WITH ALL THE FIXINS' OVER STEAK, CRABAPPLES, MASHED POTATOES, W. SWEET CORN, SLUSH, PICKLES, JELLY, COGNAC, CAKE, PUNKIN PIE, BOY O BOY!

I'M THANKFUL THAT I LIVE IN THE FINEST COUNTRY ON EARTH, WHERE MOST OF US FOLKS ARE READY TO FIGHT TO PRESERVE OUR DEMOCRACY EVEN THOUGH WE DO SPAT LIKE WILD CATS AMONGST OURSELVES.

J. Frank Dobie Has Simple Recipe For Venison Steaks

Austin, Nov. 25.—How do you cook venison? What is the best recipe for a venison roast?

These and many other questions arise in the kitchens of hundreds of Texas homes these days, as mighty hunters pull in the driveway with two fat bucks strapped to the fenders of their cars.

Roast Saddle of Venison (Loin or haunch)

Wash the surface with lukewarm vinegar and water (it should have hung at least a week in a cool place) and rub with butter to soften it. Cover with greased paper tied on; over this a paste of flour and water, rolled out at least one-half inch thick, may be spread, and the whole covered with another greased paper fastened securely.

Venison Rib Roast

Have the bones removed from 2 or 3 ribs of venison, roll in a thin slice of salt pork, tie tightly in shape, season, dredge with flour and roast. Serve with spiced currants or gooseberry catsup.

Venison Steaks

Heat the gridiron well, butter the bars and lay on the steaks, which should be cut from the haunch. Broil thoroughly; venison requires more cooking than beef—saving all of the gravy possible. Serve with currant jelly laid on each piece. Heat the plates.

Jelly Sauce For Venison

Strain the gravy into the pan—there should be at least one pint. Thicken with one tablespoonful of browned flour; add two tablespoonfuls of currant jelly; one tablespoonful of lemon juice, 1-2 teaspoonful salt, 1-3 teaspoonful pepper.

Civilian Defense Training Courses To Start Dec. 1

Six days of intensive training in civilian defense measures will be held in San Antonio beginning Monday, December 1, for certain selected groups of law enforcement officers by the Federal Bureau of Investigation...

The training course, directed exclusively to subordinate law officers, as well as heads, is part of a nation-wide drive to weld a coordinated system of preparedness that will enable the various law enforcement agencies to be ready if any wartime emergency should arise in their respective cities, precincts and counties.

The first meeting at San Antonio will be conducted in the Menger Hotel, beginning daily at 9:00 a. m. and continuing through 6:00 p. m. until the final day of December 6.

The conferences, he said, will be open only to the following officers: Sheriffs, police chiefs, heads of all state law enforcement agencies, heads of county law enforcement agencies and their respective subordinates, executives and officers of railroad police, Railway Express Agency, Pullman Company law enforcement officers, and bank law enforcement officers, providing the banks are members of the Federal Reserve System or the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Acers pointed out that this series of six conferences opening on December 1 at San Antonio will be the only conferences to be conducted for this group of officers within the sixty counties comprising the San Antonio Field Division of the FBI. The six-day conference and training course will be a follow-up of a two-day meeting for executive heads of the law enforcement groups held in San Antonio on October 30 and 31.

Special Agent George W. Carlson of the FBI, who has received specialized instruction, will deliver the lectures. The courses will include internal security, war officers' duties, police communications, traffic control in wartime and in blackouts, convoy work, protection of property and public utility surveys, protection of police personnel and property, blackout enforcement, reorganization of police department duties as to grounded aircraft and barrage balloons, gas protection and decontamination, internment work, prevention of malicious acts, evacuation work, prevention of looting, police personnel problems, training of personnel, equipment needs, manuals of instructions and air raid precaution duties.

Police duties in connection with the handling of unexploded bombs will be a subject for discussion. Studies made by representatives of the FBI in England during bombing attacks will be available to the police officers of the nation.

The duties of the police in the evacuation of civilian population and the prevention of looting in areas where unexploded bombs fall will form the basis for a portion of the course.

Other Texas conferences to be given in the San Antonio Field Division of the FBI include Waco, January 19 to 24; Austin, February 2 to 7; Del Rio, February 9 to 14; Laredo, February 16 to 21; and Harlingen, February 23 to 28.

Turkey Day Game, Iredell vs. Hico, to Start at 2:30 P. M.

The Turkey Day football game between Iredell and Hico starts promptly at 2:30 p. m. Thursday, according to word received from the high school Tuesday...

Most of the schools and business houses of neighboring towns are closing all day Thursday for Thanksgiving.

Iredell has scored 210 points against their opponents this season, winning all games played. Hico has scored 103 points against opponents played and have won 4 games and lost 5 this season.

Reports from Supt. Howard of Iredell and Supt. Pinson of Hico indicate that every man on both squads is in fine physical condition for this contest and all of them are anxiously awaiting the kickoff at 2:30 p. m. at Hico's new stadium Thursday.

The weatherman has promised us some nice weather for this day. The probable starting lineup for Hico is: Wren and McKenzie at ends; Welborn and Lewis at tackles; Knudsen at center; and White, Bradfute, Russell and Polk in the backfield positions.

WOLVES ON THE LOOSE

The fetid breath of hate blows over the world. Oppression's fangs drip red with freedom's gore.

The shepherds, thinking that the beasts were tame, relaxed the bars that kept them close confined.

The youthful whelps encouraged in their yen to ravage all their neighbors, as of yore.

The weatherman has promised us some nice weather for this day. The probable starting lineup for Hico is: Wren and McKenzie at ends; Welborn and Lewis at tackles; Knudsen at center; and White, Bradfute, Russell and Polk in the backfield positions.

Churches to Hold Joint Services For Thanksgiving

The congregations of the Baptist and Methodist churches of Hico will hold their annual joint Thanksgiving services at the Baptist church on Wednesday evening, Nov. 26, at 7:30.

The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Alvin Swindell. Arrangements are being made for special music. Miss Thoma Rodgers will have charge of the choir for the service.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q. What simple and satisfactory way is provided for all of us to express our gratitude for being Americans?

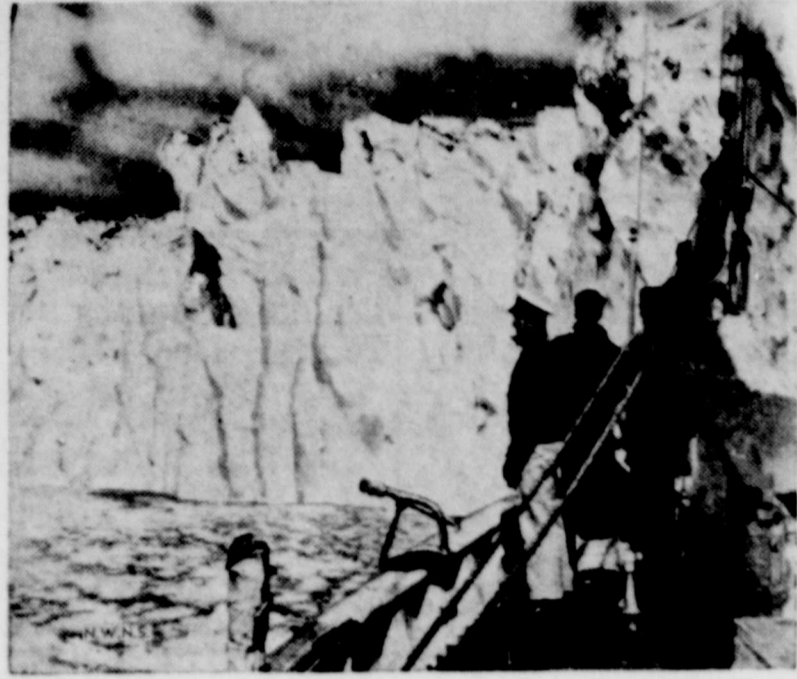

A. The means is the purchase of Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps—available to almost every man, woman, and child. Ownership of even a 10-cent Stamp carries the satisfaction of knowing you have helped the Nation to arm.

Q. What denominations of Defense Savings Stamps are on sale at retail stores?

A. Stores are concentrating on selling 10-cent and 25-cent Stamps, in order to get a maximum number of customers to participate in the Defense Savings Program. Many stores also carry 50-cent, $1, and $5 Stamps. Stamps of all denominations may be purchased at post offices.

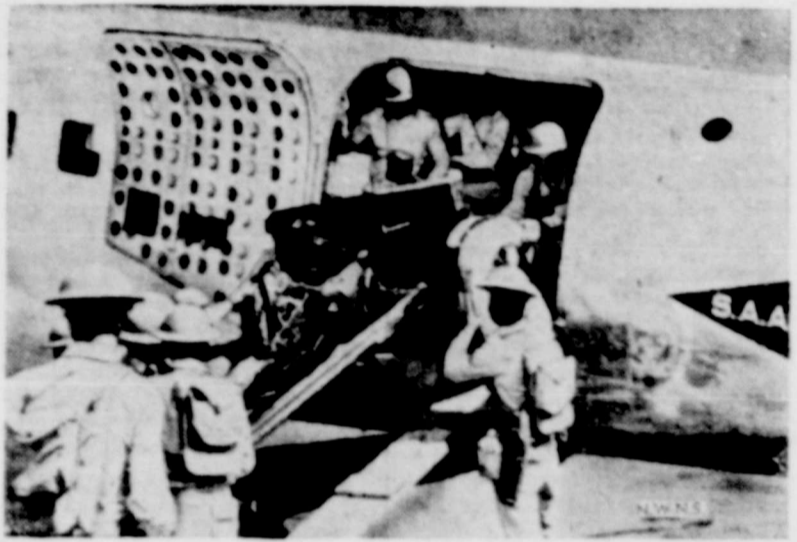

NOTE.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association, or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C., for mail-order form.

"Boys' Town of Texas" At Waco

Methodist Home Will Dedicate Five New Buildings

Waco, Texas, Nov. 25. (Special).—Culminating the most outstanding year of more than half a century and launching the drive for funds to finance next year's $125,000 budget, the Methodist Home here will dedicate five new buildings on its campus Friday, November 28. Bishops A. Frank Smith of Houston and Ivan Lee Holt of Dallas will take leading parts in the program, and more than 2000 out-of-town visitors are expected from the six conferences of Texas and New Mexico which support the home.

The affair begins with a barbecue on the Home campus at noon, the dedicatory service following at 1:30 p. m. Each new building will then be opened, its donors and the boys and girls who are to live in it serving as welcoming committees and guides. Four of the new structures are residences, furthering Superintendent Hubert Johnson's long time dream of doing away with dormitories and transforming the orphanage into a group of homes, each with its own house mother, its own dining room, kitchen and bedrooms, so that children may be brought up in an atmosphere as near like actual home life as possible. Half the Home's 400 children are now living in cottages. The fifth building is an infirmary.

Donors are Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Perkins of Wichita Falls, who are giving a second cottage for girls after two years ago giving a home for senior girls; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Bridwell of Wichita Falls, a boys' home; Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Mitchell of Marfa, a girls' home; the late Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Williams of Fort Worth, who will be represented by relatives, a boys' home; R. P. Willis Sr., of Atlanta and the late Mrs. Willie Willis, who gave the infirmary. This building has been furnished by W. T. Penn of Wichita Falls and the late Mrs. Penn.

After the dedication, there will be an evening session of the 48 district superintendents of the Texas and New Mexico conferences. They will discuss the budget camaign, due to be held in all Methodist churches during the month of December. The Home, existing for more than half a century without endowment, has relied on free will offerings for support during its entire history. Because of the limited budget all buildings have been donated by private individuals, 1941 marking an all time high in gifts of this nature to the Home.

WORK

Why do students always say "Why do I have to work?" Work is important. When you get out in the world on your own you have to make a living for yourself or someone will have to make it for you. Children in High School should start to work while they are in school so they will be better qualified when they are on their own.

Some High School students have to work to have food and clothing. Every boy or girl should help their parents do the work around the home—then they can say that the money that was made is partly theirs.

So come on, classmates, and let's more of us start to work.

THANKSGIVING FOOTBALL GAME

"Yea, Team, Fight!" are the most used words of the week because all the student body is looking forward to the game on Thanksgiving Day with Iredell.

Every day this week we are going to have a pep rally to keep up the spirits of the boys and student body.

The game will start at 2:00 p. m. Thursday afternoon. A good crowd is expected as this is the Homecoming game of the year.

JOYCE GANDY CHOSEN FOOTBALL QUEEN

Miss Joyce Gandy was selected as the football boys' favorite for 1941. She is to make the first kickoff at the Thanksgiving game next Thursday afternoon at 2:00. This game is also the Homecoming game for all former Hico students.

Besides being football queen, Joyce is also Homecoming queen. Joyce is a Junior in High School. She has been one of the popular students, as well as outstanding, since she entered school here.

Thanksgiving Holidays

There will be no school Thursday and Friday of this week because of the Thanksgiving Holidays.

This should be a happy, yet a sacred occasion. On this day our forefathers met to give thanks to God for their prosperity after such a terrible winter.

On this day we should give thanks for our many opportunities.

A Thanksgiving Prayer

There are so many things to thank thee for,
Dear Lord, I hardly know where to begin.

For life itself, for health, for sun and shower,

For fruit and grain now heaping every bin.

For all the beauty that the seasons bring,

For the rich glow of sunset and of dawn,

For shy bird neighbors and the songs they sing,

For memories of these joys when they are gone!

For friends, and the sweet comfort of a home,

For needful work, for restful slumber, too?

For faith and hope, fixed stars wher'er I roam,

For love that holds me close and keeps me true!

For all the blessings that have come my way,

With a full heart I thank thee, Lord, today!

Assembly

Our first and only assembly last week was on Friday at 12:30. We met in the auditorium and first enjoyed a tragic skit presented by the Senior Class. It was a pantomime accompanied by singing entitled "Go Tell Aunt Susie." Everyone promised not to laugh and they didn't—until the end. Then Mr. Sargent, our chief operator, brought out the record player and the radio and we watched three groups do the modern version of the "Virginia Reel" to the tune of "Oh, Susannah." These are two examples of the recreational rhythm we are learning for the big party December 5. Mr. Pinson made a few announcements and we did a few rousing yells and adjourned to go to classes.

CLASS NEWS

Seniors

Happy days are here again, for we are all looking forward to the holidays next Thursday and Friday. Thursday our football team plays Iredell and here's hoping we win.

Dorothy Ross, who has been ill for some time, was brought home from the hospital last Sunday in a much improved condition. She is expected to return to school Monday.

The Seniors received enough from the cake walk Saturday night to buy a bond. The cake walk was given to make enough so we would be able to buy a bond for the class which will be payable to the Senior class of 1952.

Although dealing in different commodities from what we're talking about, squirrels are far from being "nutty" in providing for the future. They have learned nature's lesson—

In Times of Plenty, Prepare For Famine!

Good crops should be stored in suitable barns and farm buildings. A 30% saving in feed alone will pay the cost of materials and labor. Other years of experience remind us that often feed is hard to get at any price. Don't get caught without sufficient feed. Plan now for storage facilities to provide for a possible future shortage, which has happened before and can happen again!

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

The Christmas shopping season is on.

Business analysts all predict that it will be one of the biggest and busiest Christmas seasons in the history of this country. More people are working. Incomes are higher. And, in spite of the uncertainty about the future, or perhaps because of it, most people are expected to do more spending this year than they have done for a long time.

The tragedies abroad, the increasing threat of war for this country and labor difficulties will continue to be of deep concern to the people of this nation, but those stories will be skipped over a little faster as women hurry to the advertisements of Christmas gifts.

Popular gift items, which are made of steel, rubber, tin, chromium, aluminum and other defense materials may be scarce or unavailable this year, but there still will be plenty of appropriate gift items for every member of the family.

None of us is going to worry about the few things we can't get this year when there is still such a wide choice of gifts in the stores. But because of the expanded purchasing power, it is expected that many gift items may be sold out long before Christmas arrives.

ANALYZING THE VOTE

An analysis of the House of Representatives' vote on the scrapping of the Neutrality Act shows:

For repeal: 22 Republicans, 189 Democrats; against repeal: 137 Republicans, 53 Democrats.

Once again the vote clearly shows that the majority of the Republicans are the "isolationist" party.

Some of the Republicans may have voted against the measure in order to force President Roosevelt to take a firmer stand against strikes in defense industries. A few Democrats voted against the measure for the same reason. A few more Democrats are believed to have voted against it because they wanted to punish the President for refusing to support the Democratic candidate in the New York City mayoralty election.

A careful analysis of each vote would probably be most discouraging to the public, for it would show, in a great many cases, that the congressmen were not really voting on the main issue at all. Many of them, instead, were voting because of political expediency, because of grudges, because of other matters which were completely foreign to the issue at stake.

These are times when every congressman should look far into his conscience and dig deep into his mind for the answer to our nation's problems before casting his vote.

Lessons in HEALTH by ARTIE MISGOVERN

Children Require Regular Sleep

Facing the hour at midnight with a crying, wakeful child is not nearly so funny as cartoonists would have us believe. It not only robs the parents of needed sleep, but in addition starts the baby on one of his most upsetting habits. A child must be trained to recognize and accept his bedtime without coaxing or pampering and, unless he is ill or just spoiled, there is no reason why he should not sleep soundly.

The first and most important step is regularity. When the baby is put to bed at the same hour every night and left alone in a darkened, quiet room he quickly learns to go to sleep without teasing for stories, for drinks of water, or for any other attention. If he is permitted to stay up later one night, or if mother gives in to his whims even occasionally, she may be letting herself in for plenty of trouble! Don't let anyone tell you that a child is too young to know when he is getting his own way. Break your rules just once and see what happens!

When you know he is warm, comfortable and well, let him cry. If your child cries because his health is not up to par, your physician should be consulted at once. However, if he is well physically and is crying merely because he is spoiled, he will soon learn that there is nothing to be gained by a tantrum and will go to sleep as he should.

Inconvenience to parents is a minor drawback in comparison to the real danger to a child's health in irregular sleeping habits, for every youngster needs plenty of rest if he is to develop a strong sturdy body.

Exercise to Develop Leg Muscles

Vanity is by no means a purely feminine trait. It crops up quite as often in the male of the species. I have yet to see a man with a pair of "spindly shanks" who didn't run for cover out of swimming pool or shower room. He will get into gymnasium costume if you provide him with slacks instead of shorts and I can honestly say that I have seen him for wanting to hide his skinny underpinnings. It is more to the point, however, if he tries to do something to improve their appearance. Our legs have a lot of work to do to carry our bodies around and they should be strong and sturdy.

Where the entire body is underweight a general routine for building up is in order, but in any case special exercises like the ones given below will do a great deal toward developing the muscles and giving them needed strength.

Lying flat on the floor, raise both legs upward and move them in alternate circles forward as you would pedaling a bicycle. Repeat ten times.

Co-ordinating Exercises

Co-ordination is the term used to describe the harmony which should exist between nerves and muscles to enable us to perform any action with dexterity and nimbleness. It is the most valuable asset of athletes, dancers, and other active persons, but is none the less important to men and women in more prosaic walks of life.

Lie flat on your back with both hands extended beyond the head, palms together. Now raise the left leg and bring the right arm forward, trying to touch the toes with the fingers, but keeping the legs straight. Return the arm and leg to starting position. Repeat six times, counting as you return to the starting position.

Repeat the same movement as above, using the right leg and left arm. Six times.

Now combine the two exercises described above, alternating with both arms and both legs, so that as the right hand meets the left foot, the left hand and right foot are near the ground, and as the left hand meets the right foot, the right hand and left foot are near the ground. Repeat six times, counting each time the left leg is down.

SHE HELPS TOO

HOUSE and HOME by Mary E. Daque

If you haven't cleaned your garden tools before putting them away they will be worth getting them out and doing it. Clean off all traces of earth and give them a good coating of oil. This will keep them from rusting and prolong their usefulness for many a day.

Why don't you gather the centerpiece for your Thanksgiving table from your shrubbery? Fill a basket with the colorful berries of the bayberry and bitterweed, the gracefully drooping white snowberries and the luxuriant black clusters of the privets. You will find that you have a great variety of form and color to work with. These berry branches are lovely in a pewter bowl flanked with bayberry candles in pewter candle sticks.

WAGE AGAIN

ANOTHER EXAMPLE of the mastery of courage over handicap is the story of Miss Winifred Moore, New Orleans girl, a recent graduate of Mississippi Southern college. Winifred was born blind, but she has specialized in music. She reads music in Braille with her toes while using her hands on the keys of the piano.

NOT FOR SALE

DON'T TRY TO buy it, because she won't sell it! Mrs. Lucile Armes Peterson of St. Edward, Neb., has the revolver with which famed outlaw Jesse James held up the Northfield, Minn., bank. Jesse James himself gave the gun to Mrs. Peterson's grandfather, and she has already refused several times to sell it.

Successful Parenthood

BE GRATEFUL FOR HUMAN RELATIONSHIPS

We are too apt to think of gratefulness as a virtue for special occasions instead of as a permanent quality of an individual such as kindness and generosity are. We are also inclined to think that gratefulness is a favor to the one who has done us a service rather than a state of mind we ourselves enjoy.

The fact is that being grateful by nature is one of the most self-rewarding qualities a person can have, and hence one that you should try to instill in your children. For although we take pleasure in doing a kind or generous act we don't dwell on our feelings about it or we become self-righteous and not a little smug. But a grateful heart can nearly burst with its own self-happiness, or about thankfulness from the rooftops, and in either case more gratitude and a heightened humility are experienced, never self-satisfaction.

Moreover, we miss the finest fruits of gratefulness if we confine it to things and take people for granted. It is splendid to be daily thankful for food and a comfortable home. It is also intensely pleasurable to be aware of little things to give thanks over—the way the sun dances on the breakfast table, the charm of your best china, the healthy growth of a plant you've tended, the nice blending of a picture with your rug and walls. All these little acknowledgments add good feeling to your day.

But for abiding happiness be constantly grateful for the fine qualities of the persons you are privileged to love. Don't dwell on your husband's occasional bad temper, but think often of his quiet courage under the stress of holding a job. Don't expect immediate perfection from your children, but note the growth of their standards of conduct. Yesterday they may have seemed little savages but gradually they grew into youngsters of principle, for which you reverently thank God. Then there is the great forbearance of your parents to be thankful for as you look back with understanding on your own upbringing. And the wonderful companionship of sisters and brothers, whose minds are formed of many shared experiences, but slanted with their own personalities they are at the same time familiar and stimulating. Friends, your favorite aunt, teachers, ministers—and, yes, if to things and take people for granted. It is splendid to be daily thankful for food and a comfortable home. It is also intensely pleasurable to be aware of little things to give thanks over—the way the sun dances on the breakfast table, the charm of your best china, the healthy growth of a plant you've tended, the nice blending of a picture with your rug and walls. All these little acknowledgments add good feeling to your day.

FOSTERING COURAGE IN CHILDHOOD

Hugh Walpole's novel "Fortitude" is a grand book for young people to read at the stage when, whether or not they put it into words, they are asking themselves "Can I bear to go on if I can't be the wonderful person I would like to be? Will I always have to do so many unloving tasks? Can I stand it if I see so much sorrow and tragedy as life seems to hold?" And the answer, Hugh Walpole gives in his story is "It isn't life that matters, it's the courage you bring to it."

But how far can a child be given courage and how far is it born in him? The world has never had so large and so inhuman a testing laboratory for finding the answer to these questions as the present war with its piling up of horrors on civilians. Trained psychologists studying the amazing examples of child heroism during London's air raids have come to the conclusion that the hero child, like the genius, is born with this extraordinary capacity for courage. Thus it is no reflection on the average child that he is not always capable of mastering his fears.

But these same psychologists point out that too often a child's fears are heightened by the manner of his upbringing. For while we may not be able to train heroes, any more than we can train a child to be a great musician if he has no gift for music, we are to a great extent responsible for developing the child's latent courage. If we protect him in childhood, if he is never given the opportunity to find out for himself what he is or isn't afraid of, the spark of courage may be snuffed out. "Don't climb, don't jump, don't run or you'll stumble," a chorus of don'ts from a jittery mother is certainly no training against the day when the child must strike out for himself in auto traffic.

Just so, the far greater heroism required to tackle one's job, to do the years of spade work necessary to build the career which is so easy to dream about and so difficult to reach, this type of courage, too, can be fostered in childhood. To do this, teach the child to have respect for each step in the learning process. For example, if it's house-keeping the child is learning, help her to see that a clean, attractive house is made up of clean, attractive details—fresh-looking cupboards, orderly drawers and closets, pictures straight—and that you don't acquire a pleasant home with one magic sweep of the hand.

We seem to have come a long way from the subject of courage. But it is the person who has proved his ability to meet everyday problems without growing slack or bored who usually has the courage to toss off an emergency as if he has no gift for music, we are to a great extent responsible for developing the child's latent courage. If we protect him in childhood, if he is never given the opportunity to find out for himself what he is or isn't afraid of, the spark of courage may be snuffed out. "Don't climb, don't jump, don't run or you'll stumble," a chorus of don'ts from a jittery mother is certainly no training against the day when the child must strike out for himself in auto traffic.

TURN YOUR DEFECTS INTO ASSETS

A few years ago there lived in New Bedford, Mass., a girl the people of the town never stared at. But strangers stopped and looked at her openly. The girl was pretty, intelligent, and attractive except for one most unfortunate disfigurement. This was a strawberry birthmark which covered half of one side of her face.

Her name was Lydia O'Leary.

The home people had become accustomed to seeing Lydia so she was not sensitive; but, when she went to college, it was another matter. She realized that her birthmark set her apart from other girls. Dates were hard to get; she suffered as a wallflower. One night she stood alone in the window of her rented room and looked across to where her classmates were having a dance, tears rolled down her cheeks.

When she went to New York to get a job, she tramped from office to office day after day.

One day the personnel manager of a Fifth Avenue department store said, "My I speak to you frankly? I'm convinced you are just the girl we'd like to have, but there is something else to think of. Our clientele is fastidious and I'm sure they wouldn't want to be waited on by a girl with such a large birthmark."

She realized, then, she must get a job where she would not be seen by the public; she succeeded in landing one coloring miniatures. One day a blotch of purple paint splattered on the miniature she was coloring and she daubed on light paint to cover the purple. And it did hide it. An idea shot through her mind: maybe she could cover her own purple mark. She painted it, and lo! it disappeared. But when she smiled, the paint cracked. She decided she would find a cream that would hide the mark and not crack. She had studied chemistry at college and with this as a background, she started in to perfect a face cream to serve her purpose. Finally she developed one, and now her idea grew; thanks for this color, she could manufacture it and sell it to others afflicted as she was. She developed what she calls "Lydia O'Leary's Covermark." The cream preparation would not only hide birthmarks but stains, elementary acne, X-ray burns and varicose veins.

I visited her at 551 Fifth Avenue and saw walls covered with letters from grateful people who say their lives have been changed by her discovery. Doctors expressed appreciation for the psychological as well as the physiological effect it had on their patients. I would not believe she still had her birthmark until she rubbed off the "cover-mark." She is no longer self-conscious and when she goes out socially, people do not even suspect.

Lydia O'Leary took her liability and turned it into an asset; took something which threatened to ruin her life and made it serve her. Not everybody can capitalize his liability, but many can. If you have something which is holding you back, see if you can't make it serve you.

Miss McCullough Will Be Presented In University Play

Austin, Nov. 25.—A week-end in an Eskimo igloo will be but a part of the annual "wacky" musical comedy to be presented this year by the University of Texas chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalism fraternity for women.

A cast of fifty has already begun rehearsals for the production, which will be presented early in the second semester. The plot concerns a boy—who goes by the impossible name of Nightingale Swallow—who gets into college on a girl's scholarship. He successfully masquerades as a girl, and even manages an invitation to the week-end party in Greenland, given by an Eskimo student registered in the University.

The three-act comedy is interspersed with ten original songs written by students Rosemary Tyler, of Austin, and Marshall Miller, of San Antonio. There are also a dozen or so novelty acts—given by dancers, singers, or guitar-strummers.

Already cast in the role of Kit-kobchka, the Eskimo student, is Mary Ella McCullough, a fine arts major from Hico. Miss McCullough has had previous experience in campus theatricals, having had a part in plays presented by the Experimental Theater, part of the drama department.

STEWARDS COMPLIMENTED AT METHODIST PARSONAGE

Rev. and Mrs. Floyd W. Thrash complimented the board of stewards of the Methodist Church last Friday night with a turkey dinner, and reports from those attending were that there was nothing lacking in food or fellowship at the festive board or in the social session that followed the feast.

The turkey was one of the seventeen Bourbon Reds raised by Webb McEver in a special pen as a demonstration project, and those who ate a portion of the meat swear by the manner in which the birds were raised, and the excellent cooking which featured the preparation of the Thanksgiving turkey and all the trimmings.

All of the stewards were present for the feast except Buddy Randals and J. B. Russell. Those who attended were: Morse Ross, Sunday school superintendent; T. E. Strepp, George Powledge, Lusk Randals, L. W. Howard, J. C. Prater, J. D. Jones, B. B. Gamble, T. H. King, W. E. Ford, and J. V. Lackey.

Guest List

Names of those who have visited the News Review office and registered since the list printed in last week's paper appear below. (Unless otherwise indicated, the parties are from Hico.)

P-T. A. PARTY AT HICO GYM FRIDAY NIGHT, DEC. 5

Have you ever said, "Oh to be young again just for tonight?" If you have, you can have your wish fulfilled Friday night, December 5, when you shed your years and your dignity, dress up as school pupils and come to the Bug Scuffle District School at the Gym.

The Parent-Teachers Association has made plans to entertain over five hundred people. Professor Catchematt (Judge Jim Barrow) will preside over a rollicking floor show with the finest talent in town acting as pupils. The play will be directed by Mrs. Herbert Wolfe, assisted by Mrs. Lampton Woodward and others.

"School" will be dismissed for recess and everybody, young and old alike, will join in the games. Admission will be 11c for everybody. Show will start at 7:30. So everybody come and have the time of your lives. REPORTER.

SIX INCH SERMON
REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

Lesson for November 30: John 13: 34, 35; 1 Corinthians 13: 1-13.

Golden Text: 1 John 4: 19.

It is said that the heathen would exclaim in derision of the members of a new sect in their midst, "Behold how these Christians love one another!" To them Christian love was a strange thing. In the importance which Jesus assigned to it, it was new to the people of God, for the Master said, "A new commandment I give unto you." Certainly it was new as the summing up of the Ten Commandments. And Jesus says it is a mark of Christians.

In the thirteenth chapter of I Corinthians Paul writes first of the great importance of love as contrasted with other good things. Then he tells what love will enable a man to be and to do. Finally he writes of the eternal nature of love. We know but imperfectly now, but when that which is perfect is come we shall know all good things, including the nature and significance of love.

In the blessed trinity of faith, hope and love, the last named is the greatest. It will abide after faith is no more because its high objects have been perfectly realized and men dwell in the Father's presence and after hope, a corollary of faith, has been fulfilled in the perfect day. Love will be the atmosphere of heaven and the theme of the angels' lay. Do you ask what love is? The Bible tells us that "God is love." Conversely love is God. "Greater than all human love, surpassing a mother's love, Christian love is realized in the heart as men partake by faith in Christ of the nature of God, who is love. "We love, because he first loved us."

CHAPTER VIII

SYNOPSIS
Peggy Horton, whose older sister, Maxine, home for a visit, is a successful screen star, pretends to be a school-mate, visiting at Roseland, where Peggy lives quietly engaged. From Harry Wilson, a chance acquaintance, she has borrowed a ring to wear as an engagement ring for a week. She loses it. They decide to tell the grandmother that the ring was Nancy's. Nancy has been engaged to Pidge but has recently broken the engagement. Maxine asks her friend Stanley Newton to help find it, telling her grandmother he is a detective. He is puzzled by Peggy's engagement.

"Isn't he here? I saw him from the house coming up the drive, but he didn't come in."

"Oh, dear, I wish so too," Peggy cried despondently. She didn't tell Maxine of Stanley's hope to have it by late afternoon. That did not seem very promising now. Why hadn't he waited until later to go in town for his bags, and stayed here and looked for the ring? That ring is a hoodoo, she thought. First, I heard it, then—Maxine, I'm going into town. Never mind why. I'll be back soon." She ran to the kitchen to tell William to get her the pony cart, and in a few minutes was driving rapidly down the road toward town with her hopes running very high.

But she returned home an hour and a half later more in the depths than ever. The ring that she had suddenly remembered Mr. Carver was making like Harry's, had already been sold when she reached Roseland.

"I wanted to see the ring you were making," she had told the old man.

"Well now, Miss Peggy, that's mighty sweet of you to be that interested, and I wish you could have seen it. But it's already sold. I worked right straight through on that ring from the time I started on it yesterday. Jim said I was crazy. He wanted me to take my time at it. But once I got started to work on a thing like that, I've just got to keep going and get it finished. And it certainly was a beauty. As much like that ring of your friend's as two peas in a pod. I just had it finished and was standing here admiring it, when in comes a young man and buys it right off. Some girl surely is going to be happy to have that ring."

She had been so sure she had found a way out that to discover she was too late was about the last straw. Why on earth hadn't she thought of it sooner?

"Where is everyone?" she asked Maxine on her return.

"Nancy is still upstairs. Gran came down about the time Stanley returned and he asked her if he might talk to her. They have been shut up in the parlor ever since."

"For heaven's sake, why?" Peggy demanded. "He doesn't think Gran knows anything about it, does he? She certainly seems to like him, Maxine. I was awfully surprised, weren't you? Gran said a detective!"

There was a sudden sound in the upper hall. A door was being flung open and light footsteps were rushing down the stairs.

"Nancy," murmured Peggy.

"Pidge must have come," whispered Maxine.

But Pidge had not come. It was only Nancy rushing out to them on the terrace with a motion picture magazine held open in her hand.

"I suppose that was meant to be funny!" she snapped at Maxine as she passed her and handed the magazine to the astonished Peggy. "Here is a picture of your sister's Mr. Newton," she told her as if Peggy could fail to recognize the face that was smiling at her from the page. "Mr. Stanley Newton." Nancy read aloud, "one of the youngest and most outstanding directors of the motion picture industry today." So that's your detective!"

Peggy stared in amazement at the picture in her hand. He wasn't a detective. No wonder he wasn't fat and he didn't wear a derby hat, or—

Maxine was laughing. "For heaven's sake don't let Gran see that. Of course Stanley isn't a detective. He is my director and he came here to see me, but after Gran said she didn't want to meet anyone connected with pictures I didn't see how I was going to manage it until Peggy said that about his being a detective, and to get him out here. Of course I was just kidding when I said that to him over the phone. I had not known he was coming, and was surprised that he had found out my home address. But it did seem an excellent way for me to see him, and it really was awfully important. I thought the ring would be found anyway. I'm sorry," she faltered as Peggy and Nancy both eyed her in silence.

"He came here to see her, of course. It was awfully important," Peggy was repeating to herself. "I am just the little sister who mustn't be allowed to marry the wrong man. Oh, I hate him!" she thought, slamming the magazine shut.

There were voices in the hall now. Gran's and Stanley's. Gran was on her way upstairs. Maxine and Nancy started towards them and Peggy slipped away from them quite unnoticed.

Without thinking where she was going, Peggy ran through the rose garden and into the summer house. This was where she had always come with her troubles since she was a child.

It was here that she had come when Maxine had written that she was going to remain in California. And it was here that she came now when she was unhappy about—about Stanley not finding the ring, she told herself. What had he been saying to Gran this afternoon? Had he told her about the engagement, and that the ring was here? But even as she thought of that she dismissed the idea. He would not do that, she knew. What was she unhappy about? What more natural than that Maxine's director should be in love with his star and follow her home in order to be with her? He had not spoken a word of love to her, Peggy, and if she had been foolish enough to imagine things from his tone, his expression—well, it was just too bad.

He had only been glad for the family when she told him she would give Harry back his ring. Of course he had been glad. He wouldn't want Maxine's sister to do anything foolish. And she had been counting the minutes until six o'clock when he would bring her the ring.

And now it was—she glanced at her wrist watch—it was two minutes to six, and he was probably in the house laughing with Maxine at the joke they had put over on them.

But he wasn't in the house because just then she saw him come out of the front door, pause a moment there to look towards the rose garden and then start down the steps. Well, she wouldn't wait, she wouldn't be here if he came. She didn't want to hear his explanation. She didn't feel like laughing over the joke. She wanted the ring to give back to Harry and then she wanted to forget men.

However, it seemed unnecessary to run away. Evidently he was not coming to the rose garden. She heard hurried footsteps on the other side of the hedge, then she heard low voices near the corner back of the summer house. Stanley had probably come out to meet Maxine. They could not be seen from the house, here at the end. Even she could not see them, nor could she catch what they were saying.

But she realized suddenly that it was not Maxine to whom Stanley was talking. Both voices belonged to men. She started forward in dismay. Harry! He had come back and Stanley had seen him and taken him around the end of the hedge out of sight of everyone to explain to him that she wanted to break the engagement, and would he come back next week for the ring, and Harry was telling him there never had been an engagement and—oh, dear! What should she do? Would it be wiser to go to them and make her own explanations or to slip out of the garden and be out of sight if they should glance in here.

Before she could decide Nancy rushed out of the front door and standing on the step looked about her anxiously.

"Pidge!" she called. "Pidge! Where are you?" She hurried down the steps and into the garden.

Peggy breathed again. Maybe after all it was only Pidge to whom Stanley was talking.

"Isn't he here?" Nancy continued, starting up the path towards Peggy. "I saw him from the house coming up the drive, but he didn't come in."

As Peggy started to reply she heard the sound of running feet behind the hedge and an eager voice cried, "Here I am."

Peggy's mouth remained open, and she stood as if petrified with astonishment. Here he was indeed, Harry—Harry and Nancy rushing towards each other. Harry was Pidge. Harry's ring had been Nancy's. And she—oh, good grief!

"Gosh, honey, I was thrilled when you called me last night," he was saying to Nancy who interrupted him quickly.

"Where is my ring?" she asked. She was watching him intently and did not hear Peggy's "Oh" breathed in a woe-begone whisper. Harry was the only one who seemed at ease. Taking the jeweler's box from his pocket he opened it and slipped the ring on the finger of his evidently surprised fiancée.

"Where did you suppose it was?" he asked.

"Oh!" both girls exclaimed. It would have been hard to tell which of them sounded the more astonished.

"It's just like yours, isn't it, Peggy?" Nancy asked sweetly. Too sweetly.

Harry had not noticed Peggy in the entrance of the summer house and turned towards her now in embarrassment.

"I believe it is," Stanley, entering the garden from the opposite side, answered for Peggy.

Nancy gave him a quick suspicious glance.

"It's too bad you can't find yours," she continued, still watching Peggy.

"But Peggy's has been found," Stanley explained. "I was just bringing it to her." He drew a ring from his pocket and stood holding it in his hand. It was an exact duplicate of Nancy's.

"The one from Carver's, of course!" Peggy cried to herself. "He was there when Mr. Carver talked about making it. It was he who bought it this afternoon."

"You see they are exactly alike. Strange, isn't it?" Stanley was saying.

"But where?" Peggy exclaimed, glancing from one ring to the other.

Stanley laughed. "Don't give me the credit. Mrs. Horton is the real detective. You didn't know, did you?" addressing Peggy, "that for the past ten years she has been reading all of the best detective books that she could buy? Some one gave her one on her seventeenth birthday and since then she had read them regularly. She thought you and Maxine were too young for them, so I think your grandmother had been reading them on the sly." She told me about them this afternoon.

"The Monday express packages!" Peggy thought with an inward chuckle.

Stanley caught the twinkle in her eye, and smiled at her. "I had a hard time convincing her that a motion picture director could have half the brains of a good detective, but I think I finally put it over after I told her I, too, had a weakness for detective stories. However, she told me that even an amateur should have been able to find the ring. According to her, girls have always hidden their jewelry in the same place. So when she decided I had been given plenty of time to find it, without any success, she dug it up herself. Guess where? In the toe of one of Miss Nancy's evening slippers."

That young lady had the grace to blush.

"But who is the man you are going to marry, Peggy?" she demanded.

Stanley looked at Peggy. Peggy looked at Stanley. If there was a question in his eyes the answer in hers must have been the right one for he was smiling when he slipped the ring on her finger.

"Whom do you think?" he asked happily.

(THE END)

This Week IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C. (NWNS)—Most of official Washington sighed with relief when President Roosevelt issued his ultimatum on the closed shop for labor by saying that the government will never compel men to join a union by government decree. "That would be too much like the Hitler methods toward labor," said the President.

No matter how great the labor problems become, that one principal of policy has been stated in irrevocable terms. In his statement to John L. Lewis and other representatives of the coal miners, the President also intimated that his tolerance of strikes in defense industries has ended. He said:

"Because it is essential to national defense that the necessary coal production be continued and not stopped, it is therefore the indisputable obligation of the President to see that this is done.

If legislation becomes necessary toward this end, the congress of the United States will without any question pass such legislation. And, as some of you know, the pressure on me to ask for legislation during the past couple of months, for one reason or another, has been very heavy, but it has been very heavy."

Although the President said this statement should not be interpreted as a threat, it was clearly evident that he was giving labor a last chance—telling its representatives that unless they accept a neutrality act only a strike in the railroad unions, since it was obvious that a strike of the railroads would hamper defense just as much or more than a strike in the "captive" mine industry. The decisions on labor questions being made this month will undoubtedly bring to a head the delivery of war supplies labor problem which has threatened our defense output on so many different fronts.

It is also known that quite a number of members of the house of representatives voted for revision of the neutrality act only after a week of discussion by the President that he would stop the strike menace, and it was because of the vote of these congressmen that the measure was passed.

As a result of the neutrality revision, which the President considered essential to America's welfare, our merchant ships are now rapidly being armed and are being sent into ports in war zones. That some of them will be attacked is a foregone conclusion, but it is also expected that they will greatly increase the delivery of war supplies to England and Russia.

Although the vote on the neutrality act ended most of the important provisions of that measure, it should be made clear that the act was not repealed. There are still certain provisions of it which are in force, including: a prohibition against American citizens traveling on belligerent vessels except with special permission; a prohibition against foreign vessels flying the American flag; a prohibition against the soliciting of funds in this country for a belligerent government; and a prohibition against Americans dealing in securities of belligerent nations.

Price control is now the big subject on the congressional calendar which will undoubtedly be extensively debated, before any law is enacted. As prices of food and other necessary consumer products continue to increase, the public demand for price control is growing rapidly. But congressmen fear the enactment of such legislation, for they know they must do something about food prices, which will be opposed by the large farm bloc, and there is a growing demand for ceilings on wages, which would be strongly fought by labor.

Further tax measures are being quietly analyzed as a method of curbing inflation, but popular resentment against new taxes is apparent to the treasury department. When Secretary Morgenthau suggested a possible 15 per cent tax on payrolls, the treasury department was swamped with letters wanting to know what all of the talk of increased purchasing power was about. Most of those writing said their incomes had not been increased and their cost of living had risen sharply.

Officials of the treasury department admit this is a hard nut to crack. They agree that the brunt of new taxes probably should be levied on those who are making big incomes because of defense jobs, but it is difficult to work out any program which would apply to defense workers and would not hit so hard those who are still earning the same incomes, or smaller incomes, than they were before the defense program started.

Triple Reason For Increase In Price of Cotton

Cotton acreage allotments, which were strengthened by marketing quotas, which made 85 per cent of parity loans possible, is the triple reason for increase in the price of cotton this year, according to J. L. Bullington, vice-chairman of the Hamilton County AAA Committee.

Collapse of foreign markets, a drastic drop of from 6.2 million bales to 1.1 million bales in exports, and enough cotton on hand at the present time to fill an extra year's needs, highlight the cotton situation, he said.

The loss of foreign markets is particularly offset by the fact that the domestic consumption of cotton for the 1940-41 season is the highest on record. Consumption was approximately 9.6 million bales, or about 2 million bales above the preceding year, the AAA official said.

Since the export slump is due primarily to naval and war blockades, there is little reason to believe that the export market will increase to any great extent, he declared.

For the fifth consecutive year, cotton farmers of Hamilton County will vote in a national cotton marketing quota referendum Saturday, December 13th. Voting places, located at strategic points in the county, and names of referendum officials will be announced in a short time, he said.

Last year, Hamilton County cotton growers voted 74 per cent favorably on quotas. Texas farmers approved quotas by 88 per cent.

To earn his full AAA payments in 1942, a Hamilton County farmer must do three things:

First, he must devote at least 25 per cent of his land to erosion-resisting crops or land uses at some time during the program year. Second, he must plant within his acreage allotments. Third, he must earn his soil-building allowance.

These three points were emphasized by E. H. Couch, chairman of the Hamilton County AAA Committee, this week.

A farmer falling below the 25 per cent minimum requirement will earn only a proportionate part of his cotton, wheat, and peanut payments.

The soil-building allowance must be earned, as in previous years, by carrying out approved soil-building practices, the AAA official explained.

Crops meeting erosion-resisting classification include biennial and perennial legumes or grasses, cowpeas, soybeans, velvet beans, sweet clover, rye grass, Natal grass, lespedeza, crotalaria, and winter legumes.

Other crops include 1941 fall-seeded small grains not harvested for grain, with the exception of wheat. If the oats, rye, barley and small grain mixtures are cut for hay, they must be cut prior to the dough stage, the AAA official explained.

Thick-seeded sudan not harvested for seed, sweet sorghums or millet for pasture; peanuts hogged-off; planting forest trees, and green manure and cover crops also meet erosion-resisting requirements. All fall-seeded crops must be seeded in the fall of 1941 to apply.

FORT WORTH—WPA workers have constructed a new school building, gymnasium and auditorium at the Rosen Heights Independent School District which serves residents in the vicinity of Lake Worth. Completed also as a separate WPA project was the installation of a modern sewage disposal system and complete campus improvements, including athletic facilities.

Seniors

We Seniors are all very contented this morning after having a big Thanksgiving dinner last Thursday.

We were rather disappointed Friday night when Gus Foster and his Texas Roundup Gang were delayed in Cleburne and didn't get to Fairy.

Juniors

We're all back from our Thanksgiving holidays with a smile. Every one reported having a nice time.

It seems as if we are having a hard time getting our minds on Geometry this morning.

We are very proud to have a new student in our class this morning, and we hope to make her feel at home, which I am sure that she will. (Guess who).

Sophomores

We Sophomores are glad to be back after Thanksgiving. Every one had a good time.

Dorothy Duncan was absent Wednesday. She is back this morning. Charlene Richardson is absent this morning.

We completed our three weeks tests last week. All are expecting good grades.

The most popular girl of the week is Mary Louise Edwards. She is 5 feet, 4 inches tall; she has bright blue eyes, and black hair. Her favorite teacher is Miss Neal, favorite subject, literature, and favorite classmate, Charlene Richardson. Her favorite boy friend is George D. Payne, sport, volley ball. She came from Lanham. We are very proud to have her in our class.

Freshmen

All the Freshmen are happy and smiling this morning. Every one had a joyous Thanksgiving; hope no one ate too much turkey.

The most popular girl this week is Nelda Joy Cunningham. She has blonde hair. She is 5 feet, 5 inches tall, and weighs 109 pounds. She is well liked by all who know her.

Wonder Why: Nelda dreamed of maple syrup? Patsy Ann was in Hico Saturday night? Why Frank and Glen have something in common.

Seventh Grade

We all had a nice Thanksgiving Day. We also are happy to be back in school.

She has blonde hair, blue eyes, and is about 4 feet, 9 inches tall. Her boy friend is Robert Clonch. Her girl friend is Erlene Proffitt. It is Barbara Anderson.

He has blonde hair, blue eyes, and is about 5 feet, 5 inches tall. His girl friend is Nelda Cunningham. His boy friend is James Abel. He is Billy Hutton.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

We decorated our room with popcorn, maize, corn, and leaves for Thanksgiving. It will soon be time for our Christmas decorations to go up.

Ione Arrant, who has been very ill in Waco Hospital, has come home and is improving very fast. We hope she is back in school again soon.

Girls' Sport News

We basket ball girls have been resting since we played in a tournament at Lamkin last Friday night.

We are starting back today with new energy since we ate so much turkey Thanksgiving day. Hope it doesn't affect our playing!

Glee Club News

We had planned to meet every Tuesday, so last Tuesday we met, but Daphne didn't come. Wednesday she came and called a special meeting. We selected some songs we plan to order, each one giving a nickel. We had roll call and there were a few absent. We would like to have the Freshman girls meet with us some time if possible.

We enjoyed this meeting very much as we sang only sacred songs.

The meeting was then adjourned by the president, Wilma Dean Mason.

Clairette

By Nila Marie Alexander

A large crowd attended singing here Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Wolfe spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Phillips of Longview.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Alexander spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hub Alexander.

Tull Havens of Fort Worth spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Havens.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Partain of Granbury spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Austin Harvey.

Mrs. Parlee Harvey, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Partain of Fort Worth, returned home Sunday.

Jay Elliott of Camp Bowie, Brownwood, spent Thursday with his mother, Mrs. J. H. Elliott.

Robert Partain of San Angelo is home on a ten-day furlough visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Head and children and Mrs. George W. Salmon spent Thursday with Mr. Tom Stinnett of Menard.

Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Alexander of Hico and R. M. Alexander and granddaughter, Nila Marie Alexander of this community visited Mr. and Mrs. Earl Austin of Bauxite, Ark., last Wednesday and Thursday.

Noble Turney of Comyn spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Allmon Turner.

Mrs. John East received word Sunday of the death of her cousin, Shine Trice, of Lamesa. She left immediately to attend his funeral.

Charlene Sherrard spent Sunday afternoon with Vita and Reta Roberson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruel Locke and little son spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Golightly.

CARD OF THANKS

We sincerely thank each and every one for their thoughtfulness and kind deeds during the sickness and at the death of our dear daughter and granddaughter, little Billie Wayne Roberson. May God bless all of you.

NEWS in the WORLD of RELIGION

BY W.W. REID

The Braille Literature Association for China, which operates from Shanghai under Christian auspices, is now facing a new flood of requests for Braille primers and slates and books in Braille for soldiers who have been blinded in fighting for their country. Its stock is becoming depleted but it is making efforts to meet as many calls as possible. Three hundred blinded soldiers in one camp in Central China are asking for 50 Braille primers and slates—the latter to aid in learning to read this script for the sightless.

The outlining of principles and plans for post-war Christian reconstruction and the place of the present college generation in those plans will be the principal study of some 1200 college students, members of the Methodist Church, who will gather at the University of Illinois during the coming Christmas holidays—December 29 to January 2. These student leaders represent campuses in every state of the Union. The Board of Missions is sending fifty foreign students.

"Church and synagogue must join now in combatting anti-Semitism as well as its consequences," says Dr. Conrad Hoffman of the International Missionary Council. "Anti-Semitism is a peril to the church and its continued existence as much as to the Jew. Mass emigration of Jews will require the attention of the church as of the synagogue and together they must solicit government action. Presumably Palestine and North and South America will be the chief outlets for this enforced Jewish emigration. In other words, Anglo-Saxon leadership will be involved. British and American Jews and Christians will thus be brought closer than ever. And in their social, cultural and political interchange there will be increasing spiritual and religious interchange as well."

Dr. A. L. Warnshuis, of the International Missionary Council, reports that all the overseas missions of the Protestant churches of France are being carried on despite the war. Churches in unoccupied France and in Switzerland have "given sacrificially," he says, to support the missions in Madagascar, Togoland, and Senegal; while the French missions in South Africa, Cameroun, Gabon, New Caledonia and Tahiti are being supported by funds raised principally in the United States and in Great Britain and her possessions and administered by the International body. The Lutheran churches of the United States, he adds, have contributed for the carrying on of Lutheran missions formerly cared for by German, Danish, Norwegian, and Finnish congregations. During the past two years American Lutherans have contributed $372,000 for these "orphaned missions" in Africa, Syria, Arabia, India, New Guinea, China and Japan.

Dr. A. Uzawa, a leading Christian member of the House of Peers of Japan, who is also head of the Meiji University, has been elected president of "The Japanese Christian Laymen's Organization" which has been formed to foster the work of the new "Church of Christ in Japan." T. Takahashi, head of the lay organization of the Methodist Church in Japan, has been chosen chairman of the Board of Trustees. The purpose of the organization is to provide finances for the new Church, and to endeavor to cooperate with Christian churches in Manchuria, China, and elsewhere. "We are mightily moved by the fact that the Christian churches of Japan have united and formed the Church of Christ in Japan," he says in a statement of the new body. "At this time when a new order is being established in Eastern Asia, this united church becomes an organized force reinforcing the nation in a courageous spiritual advance."

Eight foreign missionaries, two home missionaries and eight deaconesses will be commissioned for Christian service by the Board of Missions and Church Extension of the Methodist Church at its annual meeting in New York City. The commissioning service will be on Wednesday evening, Dec. 8, at the Church of St. Paul and St. Andrew, with Bishop Arthur J. Moore, of Atlanta, Ga., making the principal address.

Health Conditions Additional Cause For Thanksgiving

Austin, Nov. 27.—In the time-honored, expansive American manner, Thanksgiving Day is being celebrated in all Texas homes this week, and according to Doctor Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, we can be thankful for at least one blessing which our forefathers did not enjoy.

"When the Pilgrim Fathers proclaimed the first Thanksgiving Day health was purely a matter of chance—a gamble in every sense of the word. A sick person was faithfully dosed with herbs and tonics prescribed and compounded by his neighbors and friends. It was a toss-up, whether he lived or died. There were no hospitals, no doctors, no well-stocked pharmacies, nothing to alleviate pain, and very little to promote a patient's chance of recovery. Sickness and pain in those days," Doctor Cox asserted, "was something to be borne as best one could."

Doctor Cox emphasized that the last fifty years have been the most golden years of achievement in the history of medical science. Today we can offer our heart-felt thanks for good health and the means of preserving it.

"Our Pilgrim Fathers founded for us a free nation and left us that heritage of freedom so greatly prized by every true American. Ours is the task of preserving that freedom and of passing that heritage on to our children; but today we are conscious as never before that general good health is in itself a priceless legacy," he stated.

Doctor Cox pointed out that at this time fifty-two per cent of the residents of Texas have available some form of full-time health service. The State Department of Health and its affiliated local health units have placed full-time health service within easy access of 3,338,788 people, and a program of expansion is even now under way.

"Thousands of dollars are being spent every year to promote and safeguard good health among our people, and for this one great contribution to the health of the nation," Doctor Cox asserted, "we should indeed be thankful."

Connally Again Seeks Means For Stopping Strikes

Washington, D. C.—Believing that the real spirit of the mass of American labor ought to be and is "Defense and Not Defiance", and believing that the time has come when the Senate and House must decide who is running the country, John L. Lewis and the Congress and the President, Senator Tom Connally last week introduced legislation to assist the President in stopping strikes affecting the national defense.

The bill represents a continuation of Senator Connally's effort to bring a halt to strikes slowing down the country's production of defense material; in June the Senate adopted the Connally amend-
