YOUR INCOME TAX

Article No. 6

Some of the items that are deductible from gross income to determine net income are listed in this article. Lack of space prevents a full explanation of the various deductions. In doubt on any item consult the nearest collector of internal revenue, deputy collector or internal revenue agent.

Typical business expenses of a mercantile establishment are amounts paid for advertising, hire of clerks and other employees, rent, light, heat, water, stationery, telephone, stamps, property insurance and delivery expenses.

A professional man may deduct all necessary expenses incurred in the pursuit of his profession.

A loss arising from "fires, shipwrecks, storms, or other casualty" need not be connected with the taxpayer's trade or business. If his home or his automobile is destroyed by fire he may claim a deduction for the loss sustained unless compensated for by insurance or otherwise. Loss of property by theft is an allowable deduction.

In general, taxes are deductible only by the person upon whom they are imposed. Certain taxes are not deductible, such as those assessed against local benefits, and the Federal income tax. The Federal tax of 10 per cent on the rental sale of jewelry, furs and toilet preparations is not deductible by the purchaser. Other taxes not deductible are those imposed on employees by the Social Security Act, Federal estate and gift taxes and State inheritance, estate, legacy, or succession taxes. The Federal taxes on automobiles, gasoline, cigarettes, and liquor are imposed upon the manufacturer, producer, or importer, and are not deductible by the purchaser or consumer.

Charitable contributions and gifts made by an individual are deductible within certain limitations, if actually paid within the year. The organization to which the gift is made, for example a corporation, trust, community chest, fund or foundation must be created in or organized under the law of the United States or any possession of the United States or under the law of any State or territory, or of the District of Columbia and must be organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals. Gifts to an individual are not deductible. Amounts paid or accrued within the taxable year 1941 as interest on indebtedness are deductible, with certain exceptions, from gross income.

The Internal Revenue Code provides for "a reasonable allowance for the exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in the trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for obsolescence." For convenience such allowance usually is referred to as depreciation.

Chairman Named In Nation-Wide Victory Book Campaign

Mrs. Clara F. Richards at Meridian has been selected as the local chairman for collection of books in Bosque County and Hico, Hamilton County, as a part of the Nation-Wide Victory Book Campaign now being conducted in an all out war effort to collect ten million books throughout the United States to be made available for our boys in uniform; the soldiers, the sailors, and the marines, according to Mrs. John Horsfall, District VBC Director, Waco, Texas.

Mrs. Marvin Marshall will be the local director in Hico.

The Victory Book Campaign, sponsored by the American Library Association, the American Red Cross, and the United Service Organizations will supplement the book service already provided by the Government and will give every individual an opportunity to donate any book in his possession for the use of the men in the service. The national campaign began in New York City with a gift of 100,000 mystery stories by Lawrence Sanders, publisher of the American Mercury, and has spread all over the nation in an effort to meet the vital need for books for our rapidly increasing army, navy, and marine corps.

According to camp librarians, most popular books include, in the fiction field, adventures, aviation stories, historical novels, humor, mystery, sports, and western; and in the non-fiction field, applied psychology, current events, military publications, crime and FBI, police system and finger printing, English grammar, arithmetic, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, calculus, up-to-date technical books, accounting, shorthand, business and salesmanship, lettering and mechanical drawing, photography, cartoons, music, sports, poetry, plays, geography, travel of the last ten years, biography, history, and books on how to write.

This Victory Book Campaign will give each person a chance to contribute in a small way to the present war effort. Contact your local chairman for additional information or take your books to the library. The WPA Library Project will help to sort the books after collections have been made, and will operate a cleaning and repair unit in Waco for those books which need renovating.

Give a book and help morale of the boys who are fighting this war. "Keep 'em Reading!"

FOOD CONSERVATION URGED
Pledge Against Waste Asked by Consumers Division

U. S. to Supply Allies Millions of Tons of Food

Consumers all over the country are being asked to pledge themselves to take a careful note of things and waste nothing. In calling on the nation's consumers to pledge themselves to conserve food, the Government is asking you to help the U. S. to supply Allies millions of tons of food.

Knowing that the war must be won by the action of our people as well as by the action of our soldiers and sailors, the War Relocation Authority is asking you to help the U. S. to supply Allies millions of tons of food.

Save food. It is the most important thing you can do for the war effort. It is the most important thing you can do for the war effort.

Your Electric Refrigerator

A Powerful Weapon in the WAR AGAINST WASTE

A campaign against waste of all kinds—particularly of food—is being launched by the Consumers Division, Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C. "Buy food wisely, cook it carefully, stop and think before you throw away even a single tablespoonful of leftover potatoes," is the plea of this organization, which is asking consumers all over the nation to pledge themselves to a program of rigid conservation.

Saving food is not only a patriotic duty; good household management demands it in these days of rising prices. Your electric refrigerator can be a big help to you in your personal program of food conservation. It prevents spoilage . . . permits you to utilize every scrap of leftovers . . . enables you to buy in quantities at bargain prices . . . and does all these things at the cost of a few pennies per day.

There was a time when a certain amount of food spoilage in the home was unavoidable, but today, thanks to cheap electricity and your dependable electric refrigerator, you can prevent this waste . . . make your food and food dollars go further . . . and contribute to the war effort by helping to conserve an essential national resource.

WE HIGHLY RESOLVE . . .

"We hereby highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that the government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

On the birthday of Abraham Lincoln is a fitting time for us to consider the full significance of that famous quotation from his Gettysburg address. It is also a good time to add our deep approval to that resolve, for every one of us today is determined to see to it that no American who has died for the cause of freedom has died in vain.

We do not think of our defense of freedom from the viewpoint of preserving a heritage for which many of our forefathers gave their lives. We are more apt to think of it as a struggle to preserve our own comforts and to protect the future of our children.

But actually the American tradition is something bigger than any of us—something that was built up at tremendous sacrifice by generations of hardy souls who worked and fought to prove that a nation could be "conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

At times in our recent history it has looked as though the hard work was done—that the nation our forefathers conceived had been completed and we of the present generation could sit back and enjoy the fruits of freedom without further struggle.

This WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C. (NWNS)—Although the government now has the power to dictate prices on all types of commodities, no immediate action to put ceilings on the retail prices of consumer goods is contemplated. Such action will undoubtedly be taken as it becomes necessary, but immediate action of the administrator of the new price control law will probably be largely confined to strengthening the ceilings already established on materials needed in defense production.

Until the new law was passed, the price ceilings imposed by the Office of Price Administration depended on voluntary co-operation. Now they can be enforced by the threat of heavy legal penalties.

The subject of greatest debate in formulating the new law was the question of farm prices. Some members of the farm bloc in congress sought to permit farm prices to rise to 120 per cent of parity, but because of charges that the bill was becoming a "farm relief measure" instead of a price control law, it was finally agreed to limit farm prices to 110 per cent of parity.

Secretary of agriculture, Claude R. Wickard, now has stated that he intends to prevent farm prices from rising above parity. He has the power to do this, since he can at any time break prices by putting on the market the government-owned supplies of farm crops at any price he sees fit.

It is estimated that, even if prices are kept at parity or below, the farmer's income will be greater this year than any year since the last war. Total farm income for 1942 is estimated at about $13,000,000,000.

Members of the farm bloc in congress point out that the average farmer works at least 62 hours a week whereas defense workers in factories work only 40 hours a week and get time-and-a-half for all hours over 40.

That new disturbance of labor, plus the walk-out of welders in the ship building yards on the Pacific coast over an inter-union feud, has once again brought up demands in congress for no-strike legislation and wage control.

We notice a certain Sophomore girl is very interested in a boy from Fairy. Could it be Mary Ona? Several Freshman girls are acting angry at each other this morning. It couldn't be THAT Don Griffiths again, could it? Sunday night there were several Freshmen girls riding around in a "Blue and Red Convertible." Could it be some new boy friends? I heard several people complaining that they were sleepy this morning. I ask—why didn't you sleep well last night? They say, "No." Currie Polk was on another rampage Saturday night. If a certain Junior boy doesn't keep away from a blonde, he may get harmed by two Senior girls.

Indulging In Worry Form of Sabotage In National Crisis

Austin Feb. 3.—"Indulging in worry and spreading gloom is a form of sabotage," Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, said this week in commenting on the necessity for cheerfulness and courage in face of our national crisis.

Dr. Cox asserted that failure to rise and meet our difficulties with determination and cheerfulness will undermine our national strength more seriously than can the enemy acting from without.

"It has been proved in industry that a gloomy, worried mental state is conducive to accidents, and the President has issued a proclamation declaring the reduction of accidental injuries as essential to national strength," Dr. Cox said.

"Your State Health Department stresses a warning against worry that is carried to the extreme. If you notice a growing tendency to worry, try by the exercise of your own will to stop this futile, de-vitalizing habit," he urged.

Dr. Cox pointed out that these are troubled times, and it is natural that we should feel concern about national affairs. It is one thing, he pointed out, to feel this concern and do whatever we can that may be constructive in solving our difficulties, but it is worse than folly, he added, to abandon ourselves to the ravages of fear and worry.

Basketball News

The Carlton girls scored a 19-5 victory over the Hico girls Friday night. This game closed the season. Although most of the games were defeats, the girls will probably have outstanding teams next year. This season is gone, and we are looking forward to having one of the strongest teams in the county next year.

Defense at Home Described as Best Fire Prevention

Austin, Feb. 11.—Reports of fires during January to Texas Fire Insurance Department, described as revealing a serious increase in the number of fires, prompted Marvin Hall, State Fire Insurance Commissioner, to issue an appeal for greater individual effort in fire prevention.

"Fires constitute one of our most serious threats to national defense and our nation's all-out war production," he asserted. "As an individual contribution to our own welfare, as well as to the welfare of our country, it behooves each of us to assume more personal responsibility in fire prevention now."

"At a time when all material resources are so vital to our nation's industrial production, we can ill afford to allow any of it to be destroyed by fire because of carelessness. Any destruction of our resources, whether it be food, clothing, raw or manufactured materials, homes or other property, places an additional handicap on wartime effort. We must curb the economic toll exacted by fire."

Hall, who is also Fire Defense Coordinator of the National Defense Committee of Texas, added, "there is no better fire defense at home than the constant practice of fire prevention."

Citing indiscriminate storage of waste paper as creating an extreme fire menace to almost every home and place of business in Texas, the Commissioner recommended immediate removal of accumulated paper to places where hazards will be lessened.

It is suggested that individuals or local groups sponsoring the collection of waste paper remove it to buildings isolated from the business section and residential areas of the city to avoid fire spreading to adjacent property should it break out in the stored place.

"Above all," Hall cautioned, "avoid accumulation of waste paper in the home. The application of a few simple rules of fire prevention will add to our safety of our property at a time when it is most needed."

TOMORROW . . . guessing

When all the shooting ends, what is America going to be like? Picturing tomorrow—the tomorrow after the war—is pretty much like crystal gazing. It's a matter of doing a lot of guesswork with unknown quantities.

The only thing we really can feel sure about tomorrow is that we are going to win the war. We haven't much of an idea what the peace will be like, what kind of government we will have in the United States nor how those quarter-of-a-trillion dollars which we may owe are going to be paid off.

If we are so disposed, we can get gloomy over the prospects for tomorrow in spite of anticipating victory on the war front.

But if we look beyond the debt, the hardships of war and the uncertainties of our social organization, it is quite possible to envision a silver lining on the other side of the war-clouded horizon.

Probably our outlook today will have most to do with the kind of tomorrow we get. For we do know this—if the world of tomorrow is to have a silver lining that lining will have to be manufactured in the U. S. A. It can only be produced by the planning, the working and the faith of democratic people.

BRAINS . . . resources If the brains of 100,000,000 intelligent Americans are striving to create a better world after the war, the chances are excellent that they will find the formula for accomplishing this goal.

Man power may play a major part in winning the war, but brain power will be the chief factor in planning the peace.

We may not have a monopoly on brain power, but just as we have the right set-up for superiority in the mass production of goods, a democracy, such as ours, also can count upon superior mass production of ideas.

In a dictatorship the ideas of the people don't matter. The people in Germany are told what to do—they depend solely on the ideas of Hitler and his gang. In our country, on the other hand, the government depends on the ideas of all the people. It makes full use of its vast resources of brain power.

VISION . . . anticipation Perhaps what we need in this country today is a pair of imaginary rose-colored glasses for every man and woman to look through—even if we have to wear them over gas-masks. They need to be so rosy in color that we can see a beautiful glow in the sky of the future even though our immediate view is blurred by dive bombers.

A thousand different writers in a thousand different ways have preached the "look for the silver lining"—"what's the use of worrying"—"singing in the rain" gospel, but most of us have difficulty making these philosophies stand up under pressure.

MORALE . . . fear All of us who have followed the news of this war have been impressed by the importance which military and government leaders in all countries attach to morale.

Morale is defined by Mr. Webster as "Condition dependent upon such moral or mental factors as zeal, spirit, hope, confidence." The most important element for building morale in this country is not just an all-out effort for victory but an all-out anticipation of the life that is in store for us after victory is won.

My reaction was this: if your friends are later unable to buy sugar, you are going to be embarrassed to serve them sugar in your home; if certain foods become scarce, you are going to feel like a fifth-columnist to have that food available for your family; when you put on those new automobile tires, after most of your friends have had to stop driving because their tires are worn out, you are going to be intensely ashamed of yourself whenever you pass them. You're not going to like being dubbed a hoarder.

SHORTAGES . . . created

One of the greatest faults with hoarding is that it actually creates the shortages which the hoarders fear.

There wouldn't be a shortage of sugar today if it weren't for the women who have been draining the source of supply by purchasing more sugar than they need.

The tire problem wouldn't have become acute so suddenly if it hadn't been for the thousands of motorists who heard of an imminent shortage and bought up every tire they could lay their hands on.

The silk and nylon stocking supply would have lasted a lot longer than it now will if it weren't for those dozens of pairs which thousands of panicky women snapped up when they first heard rumors of scarcity.

Faced with priorities and raw material problems in so many industries, the problem of supplies is the normal needs of the people of the United States is to make the men and women who create the situation by buying far above their normal demands are making it almost impossible to solve.

UNITY . . . sacrifice Before this war a great number of us will be ready to sacrifice the little things we do, which are contrary to the interests of the majority of the people, are a help to the enemy.

We talk about the great unity of action which suddenly has swept over this country, but we haven't even approached the unity which we will probably need before we can attain victory.

Hoarding of foods and luxuries may not appear to have much to do with this unity we are talking about, but actually it is an excellent example of the unwillingness of many of us to work together and sacrifice together.

Any hoarder knows that when she buys a quantity of something he is likely to be scarce, she is hoping to get the jump on other families. She knows that if there is a shortage of canned goods and she buys enough to last a year, there will be many others who will have to go without.

PETTINESS . . . survival It's time all of us made up our minds to work together, to sacrifice together, and to suffer together.

The profiteer in industry, the hoarder in the home, as well as the do-nothing group which confines its interest to watching the war from the sidelines, must be made to realize that this gigantic struggle demands the unselfish co-operation of every citizen.

We must stop worrying about what is going to happen to our petty comforts and our little luxuries. We must realize that these things are not worth a tinker's dam compared with our battle for the survival of our whole way of living.

BORDERS . . . shooting It is to be hoped that the national unity inspired by war will be instrumental in ending the legislative state border wars which have been growing more threatening every year in the United States.

SO FAR there have been few instances of people being shot at for the crime of crossing from one state to another, but there actually have been cases of that.

trucks and license requirements for trucks.

These regulations are usually passed for three reasons: to preserve the highways, to promote highway safety, and to raise money. But they are so lacking in uniformity that a truck-driver practically needs to be a lawyer and an expert mathematician to figure out how to drive his truck any distance. In fact there are many cases where it is impossible for him to comply with one state's regulations without violating those in a neighboring state in which he wants to go.

Take the matter of weight limits. The weight limits in our 48 states range from a maximum load of 27 tons to a maximum of 7 tons. The average is around 35 tons. If a load is to be taken from a 25 ton state to a 7 ton state, the laws would have to be changed four or five times when it reached the state border.

FOOD . . . shackles Trucking is only one example of trade barriers which are a menace to the unity of our states and which are probably violations of our Constitution.

In the agricultural field we have many state laws which are direct tariffs on the products of neighboring states.

ROOSEVELT . . . warning Over two years ago President Roosevelt demanded that something be done to end the state trade barrier situation. At that time the President said, "Interstate barriers, if allowed to develop and multiply, will constitute social and economic problems even more serious than economic tariffs."

TO AVOID WAR WORK THE BRITISH MINISTRY OF labor is investigating the story that nearly 50 women are arriving daily at the Isle of Man, in the Irish sea, to escape being drafted into war work.

SIX INCH SERMON REV. ROBERT H. HARPER The Healing Ministry of Jesus. Lesson for February 15; Mark 2: 1-12. Golden Text: Matthew 14: 14.

Not long after that busy Sabbath studied in the last lesson, Jesus was again in Capernaum. And people gathered so closely about Peter's door that the four men bearing a palsied man had to resort to the expedient of which we read in the present lesson.

No doubt Jesus startled his critics when he read their thoughts and, to confirm his authority to forgive sins, bade the man arise and walk. Perhaps dissipation had led to the poor fellow's affliction. There is often a direct connection between sin and disease.

Consider the example of the four friends. They felt a brother's need and a brother's woe, co-operated to help him, were not deterred by difficulties, and were resourceful. Love always finds a way. They believed in Jesus. It is said that he saw their faith—the faith of the four friends and the faith of the afflicted man.

Such a co-operation of faith greatly needed by those who are concerned to help others. It seems that the great crowd that gathered so closely together that day, in their selfishness and indifference, that the four friends could not reach the door, fell back when the palsied man took up his bed and went forth. And they were amazed and glorified God. A larger co-operation of faith today would give new power to the churches and lead many to a new evaluation of the gospel of love.

Baseball's 'Great' Assemble

Air View of Singapore Island

Here is a recent air view of the city of Singapore. In this photo the wingtop of a British warplane can be seen at the left. Previous to the beginning of the siege, Singapore had taken every precaution to secure itself against the attacking Japs, even to the blowing up of the Johore Bahru causeway which was the only connecting link between the island and the Malay mainland.

Found Their Piece of Empire

Two South African soldiers are shown looking over German graves in the cemetery at Italian Fort Capuzza in Italian Libya. These Germans died in the British drive across Cyrenaica. Tide of battle has again changed in this theater of war, with Field Marshal General Erwin Rommel's reinforced Axis troops again in possession of Bengasi.

'Soup's On' for U. S. Boys in Iceland

Crocheted Jewelry New Fashion

WHEREVER you use crochet, this year, you can be sure of its fashion-rightness, with outstanding designers using this lovely handwork for everything from hats to sandals. And now comes crocheted jewelry, the perfect accessory to dramatize a simple dress and give it an up-to-the-minute flair. Tiny seashells in crochet comprise this set of matching collar-necklace, bracelet and earrings. Made in two shades of mercerized pearl cotton—a lighter shade for the inner part of each shell and a deeper tone of the same color for the edges—the set can be crocheted for about 30¢. Directions for crocheting this jewelry may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of this paper, specifying design #1011.
