Dangerous Discontent

There is more than homesickness behind the sorry picture of discontent, low morale and vanishing discipline among American troops in Manila. A deep resentment is also evident, which apparently arises from a number of conflicting stories and half truths as to why the men aren't being sent home.

A service newspaper, the Daily Pacifican, may have struck at the root of the trouble with this illuminating statement: "We were briefed on our mission during the days of combat. Let us be briefed now!"

No one blames the soldier or sailor overseas for wanting to come home. Combat veteran or not, the man with months of foreign service deserves the speediest possible return to civilian life. It is the duty of the Army and Navy and of the whole country to see that he gets it.

But unfortunately there must be American troops in Europe and the Pacific regions for a long time to come.
The fighting has stopped, but turbulence and unrest remain. The men of the occupying forces have an extremely important task to perform in securing the victory so dearly won.

The Army has made it clear to those at home that voluntary enlistment and Selective Service are not now providing enough men to handle this occupation job.
Thus the rate of discharge for men in the service must be slowed up for a time. It has explained that the precarious and volatile state of peace in the Pacific makes necessary the presence of a sizable force in the strategic base of Manila, and that our soldiers are there to guard the peace, not the Filipinos.

But has the Army explained this fully to the men involved? Are they briefed for their peacetime mission as fully as they were for combat? Apparently not, judging from the service paper quoted above and from other statements by soldiers in Manila. At any rate, something has happened to turn part of a mighty fighting force of superior spirit and strength into an army of protesting, demonstrating malcontents.

One of the worst aspects of an obviously bad situation is that the soldiers' grievances are playing right into the hands of the domestic Communists, whose latest line is "bring the boys home"—a solicitude which no one can be so naive as to take at face value.

Soldiers were asked at a Manila mass meeting if they wanted to be used to further British imperialism in Java and to help Chiang Kai-shek defeat the Chinese Communists. They were given handbills which asked: "Do you want to be used as pressure for compulsory military training legislation?"

There is a threat of real harm to domestic accord,
American policy and, ultimately, world peace if this situation is allowed to continue and develop. It is up to the Army to straighten it out, quickly, frankly and fairly.

Just Showing Off

The United States of America, modestly proud of such American inventions as the atomic bomb and the late Aimee McPherson's streamlined gospel tabernacle, has been accused by the Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, "Red Dean" of Canterbury, of being 100 years behind the rest of the world in everything except religion—and 150 years behind in that.

It seems only yesterday that this country was being disparaged by another leftist Englishman, Prof. Harold Laski. But we don't mind any more, because we think we have the whole thing figured out. These liberal Britons are just trying to show off in the most conventional way.

From the days of Charles Dickens to those of Bernard Shaw, it apparently has been considered the hallmark of a first-rate British literary mind to insult the United States.
We suspect that Prof. Laski and Dr. Johnson may just be aping their literary betters.

Prospective Texas Pro Grid League Opposes All-American Loop

NEW YORK (AP)—Three other professional football loops have thrown in with the National League in its war against the young All-American Conference, and regardless of how the fight comes out, it now is certain that the play-for-pay game is going to be organized on a nation-wide basis, much after baseball's pattern.

With the Pacific Coast League,
Dixie League and American Association already back of the National in this "National Association" approved by the magnates over the weekend, and the currently-building
Texas League asking for information on it, the entire organization apparently is in the battle against the All-American.

What's more, the All-American now finds itself opposed in all key cities
as a result of the switch Saturday night by the National League Champion Cleveland Rams to Los Angeles, where the new loop was previously unopposed by the older circuit.

Although the Texas League was not represented here, Giant Owner Jack Mara said he had received a letter concerning a "National Association" set-up from a Texas loop official and had turned it over to Bert Bell, the National League's new commissioner, for further action.

THIEF STEALS WASHER SERVING 100 GI BABIES

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The most acute laundry problem in Los Angeles:

A thief stole the only washing machine in a trailer court where 125 World War II veterans and their wives live.

More than 100 of them have babies.

The average flea can jump about eight inches.

Bizzell Makes Trip To Historic Island

Delmar Ray Bizzell, son of Mr.
and Mrs. T. E. Bizzell of near Midland, writes from Manila, where he is with Headquarters 282nd Replacement Company, about an interesting trip he took to see Corregidor.

Nine soldiers with Bizzell went to Corregidor on a PT boat. They saw pillboxes and guns left there after the Japanese invasion. They took pictures of installations.

Bizzell said one gun was so large
he could climb into its muzzle.

Half Of Army, Third Of AAF, Are Released

WASHINGTON (AP)—Demobilization has knocked out more than half of the army's divisions and a third of its air forces.

A study of war department records Tuesday disclosed that of the 86 combat divisions when the army was at peak strength 46 have gone out of business. Six of the 17 Air Forces which attacked Axis targets and supported advancing armies are gone — "de-activated," the army calls it.

The rate of demobilization of organizations is expected to accelerate as additional divisions and air forces return from the theaters.

Most of the remaining organizations, because of the loss of experienced key personnel, are far below effective condition.

Governor Offers Reward For Slayer Of Soldier

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Coke R. Stevenson has offered a $250 reward for the slayer of T/Sgt. John W. Murphy, Dodd Field soldier, whose death law enforcement officers have been seeking for more than two months to unravel.

Murphy had been given an undercover assignment by military police to check into activities of criminal elements victimizing servicemen en route home after release from military service. He was last seen alive November 5 at his barracks and was found dead in a field near New Braunfels November 17.

How much light is enough for shaving?

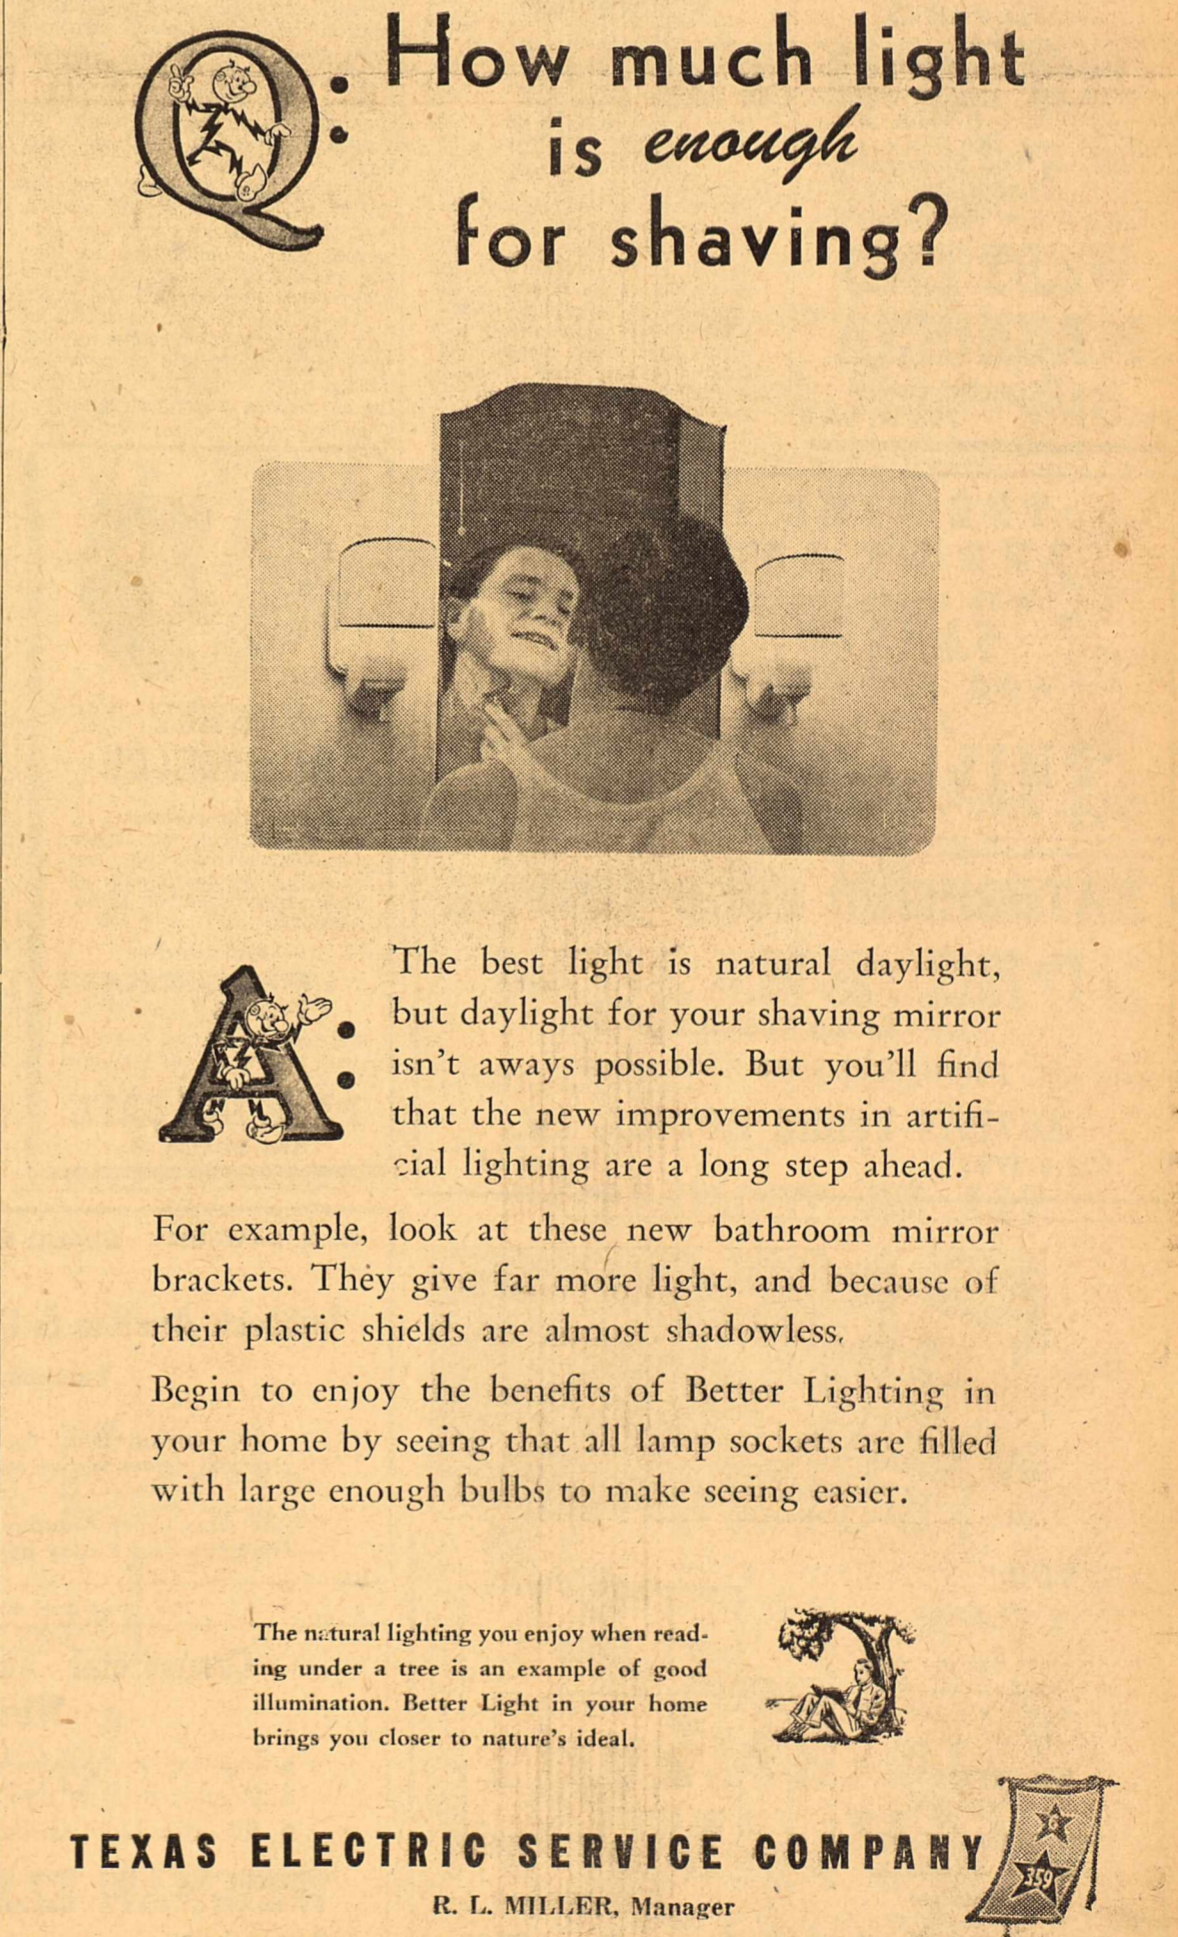

The best light is natural daylight, but daylight for your shaving mirror isn't always possible. But you'll find that the new improvements in artificial lighting are a long step ahead.

For example, look at these new bathroom mirror brackets. They give far more light, and because of their plastic shields are almost shadowless.

Begin to enjoy the benefits of Better Lighting in your home by seeing that all lamp sockets are filled with large enough bulbs to make seeing easier.

The natural lighting you enjoy when reading under a tree is an example of good illumination. Better Light in your home brings you closer to nature's ideal.

Navy Reveals Device Used To Locate Ships

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Navy has revealed another of its secret wartime devices—"Huff Duff," an electrical "finger" which can spot a ship or plane half-way around the globe. The Navy, telling how the device aboard ships, planes and in a network of shore stations led to the breaking up of U-boat packs before they could assemble, said the electronic long-distance detection device played a top role in winning the Battle of the Atlantic.

STOP JOHN CLAY

By Lionel Mosher

THE car drove off. Pike stood there. The September air was cool, but he was perspiring a little. This is a fine mess, he thought. His handkerchief with Fay Tudor's lipstick on it. And all for nothing. All he had done was to confuse himself.

He walked along the main street past a tearoom called The Rainbow and he saw her.

She came toward him with her auburn hair shining in the sun. She was wearing a green shark-skin suit and she looked fresh and lovely. She glanced up suddenly and saw him.

"Hello," he said.

"Hello," she said.

"Busy?"

"Yes."

"Don't be so prim," he said.

"I've got something to tell you."

She looked up and down the street.

"I'm listening," she said.

"Not here." He took her arm and steered her back toward The Rainbow. He was very firm about it. She looked up at him and frowned.

He held open the door for her and they found a table in the corner with scalloped paper doilies at each place.

"Coffee?" he asked.

She shook her head.

"I suppose you've heard about Bateman," he said.

"That did a little something to her."

"No."

"He's dead."

She just sat there with her hands clasped so tight that the knuckles showed white.

She said: "Are you sure?"

"Quite," he said. "They found him this morning. They think it might have been murder."

"I'll take that coffee, after all," she said.

"John Clay just gave me a lift to town," he said. "He told me that a handkerchief was found near the body. It had lipstick on it."

"What else?"

"I don't know whether I ought to tell you this." He paused. "The handkerchief was mine."

THE waitress arrived with the coffee. Fay picked up her coffee, sipped it black, and set the cup back on the saucer.

"And the lipstick was mine," she said.

He nodded. She looked a trifle pale and very thoughtful. She said:

"What else is there that you don't know when you ought to tell me?"

"I think your uncle knows it," he said.

"What?" she asked.

"That the handkerchief is mine."

He told her the whole story. He began with Bateman's call and ended with John Clay's words about how easy it would be to find the owner of the handkerchief.

"Uncle or no uncle," he said, "you may as well know the truth."

She nodded. She said and she smiled. But Pike said grimly:

"I've read page after page on John Clay—enough to fill a thick volume. He did everything in the war but trade with the enemy. He was too smart for that. But he remained a fascist at heart, and the defeat of Germany and Japan has not changed him."

"This little conference, which someone in Congress wants to investigate, was closed to the press. It was in executive session for the full time. But something leaked out."

"First these men bought a newspaper. Second, they made plans to agitate for re-establishing German heavy industry on the grounds that it is good business. And finally they discussed promoting a war with Russia."

"NATURALLY, they were very cagey about it," Pike went on. "They took all of the advantages of democratic freedom which the undemocratic know how to take. And they were very careful to stay within the law. It is obvious that somehow they must be stopped. For they are very powerful, very wealthy, and very ruthless."

"The O. S. S. worked on the case for weeks until finally they got a break. A girl—a secretary in your uncle's office—finally got through to them that she had information on John Clay which she thought they ought to know."

Pike peeped. Fay Tudor, sat with a stoupeful stillness in her eyes. She waited and he let her wait. Then he said:

"Have you detected any errors?"

"I wouldn't know," she said.

"Then all of this is new to you."

"If I knew all that, if it were true, and if Uncle John knew I knew—"

She made a vague little gesture with her hand, stopped it, and picked up her bag. He said:

"You must have suspected—"

"Believe me, Mr. Calvin," she laid a hand on his arm. "I know that Uncle John is no angel. But my mind has been so taken up with—other matters—that I must have missed a lot of sure bets."

"Are you in some of those trouble?" he asked.

She looked at him, shook her head, smiled and said:

"Brother!"

She started to walk out, then turned back. "Thanks for the coffee and cigarette," she said. "And Mr. Calvin."

"What?"

"This looks like a big job. You'd better get help."

He watched her cross the street and go into the drugstore. In a few moments she came out with a newspaper. A lovely girl. He liked her very much, but there were times when he thought that if someone took her firmly by the shoulders and shook her a bit—

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY America's Card Authority

Our old friend, the late William J. Huske, established himself in bridge in Cleveland. In 1929, on thereabouts, he became a New Yorker. Bill always got a kick out of freak hands. When he gave me today's hand, he showed me only the North and South cards, and said, "This hand is ice cold for six trump, but when I saw it played, declarer was in four spades, and believe it or not, it could not be made."

West won the first trick with the ace of hearts, and after careful study, continued with the four of hearts. East ruffed with the spade deuce and came back with a club, which West ruffed with the five of spades. Another heart was played. East ruffed and returned another club for West to ruff. When the smoke cleared away, the first five tricks had gone to the opponents.

If East had held two hearts, declarer would have made six, while if West had held even one club, the contract would have been made with an overtrick.

Alabama End Coach Signs With 'Ole Miss'

OXFORD, MISS.—(AP)—Seeking the recipe for Alabama's bowl successes, the University of Mississippi Monday night dipped into Frank Thomas' bag of coaches and came out with two of his assistants to guide the Rebel football activities in 1946.

Ole Miss' Chancellor A. B. Butts announced the Rebels' new head coach would be Harold "Red" Drew, since 1931 the boss of the Alabama ends.

Drew in Tuscaloosa said the Tide's backfield tutor, Tilden "Happy" Campbell, would fill a similar berth on his Mississippi staff. Butts had said Drew would have a "completely free hand" in naming his assistants.

National Pro Loop Holds Secret Draft Of 300 Grid Stars

NEW YORK—(AP)—The National Football League's club owners completed a secret draft of 300 players Tuesday with a "sleeper" back from the "near Midwest" and the great Doc Blanchard of Army heading the list—and turned to completion of their troublesome 1946 schedule in the same locked-door silence.

Determined that no information of any importance would leak out to help the rival All-America Conference in the no-holds-barred pro gridiron war, the magnates revealed only the names of half a dozen backs from the 300 draftees, among them Blanchard, the mighty All-American Army fullback who was first choice of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

And, following the same policy of keeping their mouths tightly closed, in sharp contrast to the tub-thumping of previous years when they had no opposition, the moguls were determined that when they do arrive at a schedule, probably sometime Tuesday, they would not reveal dates and sites, on the grounds the All-America might benefit in drawing up its own playing lists for next fall.

Picked Before Blanchard
Surprisingly enough Blanchard was not the number one selection in the draft not only because it is likely he will remain at West Point where he still has two more years to play, but also because Jim Conzelman, returning coach of the Chicago Cardinals, who had first pick in the seven and one half hour session, wanted the "sleeper".

He wouldn't reveal the identity of this player believing the announcement might send All-American owners scurrying to sign him up. It was learned however that the player is an extra special wingback from a section described as "near Midwest" and his selection by Conzelman as number one choice surprised even some of the assembled magnates.

The first National League draftee was Boley Dancewicz, Notre Dame's former T formation quarterback specialist who was signed by the Boston Yanks last Friday. Monday night after the Cards showed their "secret weapon" and Pittsburgh picked Blanchard the other early selections revealed were John Strzykalski, a Marquette and Air Force ball carrier, first choice of the Green Bay Packers; Leo Riggs, Southern California and Army performer, who led the Philadelphia Eagles' list; and Cal Rossi, former UCLA star, and Stan Koslowski, Holy Cross ace who were named by the Washington Redskins.

Bulldogs Travel To Big Spring

As a tuneup for the Big League tournament this weekend in which 20 area teams will compete, the Midland High School Bulldogs, "A" and "B", go to Big Spring Tuesday night for basket ball games.

Midland has a 50-50 average with the Steers. On the Midland hardwoods the Bulldogs took the varsity but the "B" boys dropped to the Dogs.

Horace Rankin is the hotshot the Bulldogs will have to hold. A not-so-tall forward, Rankin, is the heart and soul of the Howard County lads. On to him Coaches Aubra Noncaster and Jack Mashburn will "sic" Wycliffe Livingstone, Bobby Cole, Wilbur Yeager, Jimmy Edwards (if his ankle is better), and a flock of others.

In the "B" set-to it will be Dewey Kirby and his mates, out to erase the stinging but close defeat of the last meeting with the Dogs.

Changes In Football Rules Will Speed Up Play On Offensive

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—College football teams may show more offensive power next fall if coaches take advantage of changes in the rules made by the National Athletic Association's football rules committee.

William J. Bingham of Harvard, committee chairman, announced the changes Sunday at the close of the three-day meeting.

He explained one revision provides that the quarterback, reaching under the center with his hands in position to receive the ball, is in a legal position even though less than a yard behind the line of scrimmage when the ball is passed. Previously the quarterback had to either receive the ball or withdraw his hands to a point behind the line of scrimmage.

Adding deception, this rule change aids the T-formation and the single wing and may result in a new "T-wing formation," committee members said.

Other revisions announced include:

1. On an illegal pass by either team the penalty is five yards from the spot of the pass, and also involves the loss of down if made by the team which put the ball into play by scrimmage. The rule formerly provided that in case of an illegal pass, the ball was brought back to where it originally was put in play for the penalty.

2. The number of time-outs in each half has been increased from three to four but when the watch is stopped by substitution only sufficient time to complete the substitution will be allowed.

3. The size of numerals on players' jerseys will be increased from six to eight inches in front and

4. The penalty for a foul committed on a kicked ball when the foul occurs after the ball has crossed the line of scrimmage and before it has been touched by the receiving team is made from where the ball is put into play. This removes an unduly severe penalty under which the ball went to the offending team at the spot of the foul, committee members said.

Brooklyn Enrolls 75 Pitchers For Training

BROOKLYN—(AP)—Take 75 pitchers, 15 catchers and 60 assorted infielders and outfielders, add 30 managers, coaches and scouts and a slightly used blackboard manned by Professor Branch Rickey and you get a rough idea of the Brooklyn Dodgers' spring training plans.

Returning to his Flatbush desk after a siege of illness, Rickey has outlined plans for a 150-man camp at Sanford, Florida, opening February 1, with special emphasis on returning servicemen. This, in addition to the regular Brooklyn and Montreal bivouacs starting March 1. Manager Leo Durocher will have charge of a squad of master minds running from Coaches Chuck Dressen and John Corridan to Pitcher Curt Davis and Second Baseman Ed Stanky whom Rickey thinks is "managerial timber."
