Plane Smashes Into Mountain In Northeast

All Personnel Die As Homeward-Bound B-17 Strikes, Burns

HOLYOKE, MASS.—(AP)—Twenty-five Army, Navy and Coast Guard men—the entire crew and passenger list of a converted Flying Fortress carrying the homeward-bound service men from Gander, Newfoundland—were killed Tuesday night when the plane crashed against 1,200-foot Mount Tom.

The broken bodies of the occupants, whose names were withheld pending notification of next of kin, were scattered among the plane's wreckage along a 400-foot swath shorn by the crashing B-17 through dense woods 200 feet from the hill-top.

Army rescue forces who struggled up a steep-cobblestone road, reported that by daybreak they had recovered about 20 bodies and had taken them to Holyoke funeral homes.

Five bodies were believed still in the smoking, charred wreckage that was spread in small pieces over the quarter-mile square area.

During the morning, many hours after the crash, the woods still were smoking and occasional bursts of flame kept Army guards busy with portable extinguishers.

Army officers speculated that the pilot, possibly unfamiliar with the terrain, did not observe the mountain until it was too late.

Typical GI mementoes of a happy home-coming—that became grim tragedy—dotted the charred ground. There were personal snapshots, obviously of parents, wives and sweethearts. A gold wrist watch, that somehow withstood the shattering crash, glittered among the ashes, its hands stopped at 10:20, the approximate time of the crash.

Music records of the V-disc type distributed to armed service centers, were strewn among the wreckage. Charred and torn parachutes, unopened, lay in piles.

Westover Air Field officials said identification of the dead would be impossible for an indefinite period. Most of the bodies were badly dismembered by the impact of the crash that hewed down trees a foot in diameter.

Sidelights On Palestine Problem

Important factors behind the crisis in Palestine are illustrated on the map above, prepared from data in the report of the recent Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry. Figures show number of Jews in European countries when the war started in 1939 and at its end, 1946. There are 5,722,100 fewer. Some of the difference represents Jews killed. Of the remainder, thousands found refuge in England, U. S., and other countries, but other thousands seek entry into Palestine, which the Arabs bitterly oppose.

Lacy Holds Lead In Washington Primary Voting

By The Associated Press
Rep. Hugh De Lacy (D-Wash.) led Radio Announcer Howard G. Costigan Wednesday in returns from a close primary election which found two members of the Franklin D. Roosevelt family on opposite sides of the fence.

James Roosevelt, son of the late President, urged that De Lacy be renominated. His sister, Anna Boettiger, was for Costigan. The radio man, who contended during his campaign that De Lacy was too far to the political left, lost to the incumbent in 1944.

Returns from 319 of the 771 precincts in the district, which includes Seattle and Bremerton, gave De Lacy 10,293, Costigan 9,190. Trailers in the race included Joseph D. Roberts, former Army major, and Henry S. Noon, a Navy lieutenant.

Elsewhere in Washington and Utah balloting Tuesday for Senate and House nominations produced nothing out of the ordinary.

Senator Hugh B. Mitchell (D-Wash.) was renominated easily over four opponents and the Republicans put up Mayor Harry Cain of Tacoma to run against him, as they had been expected to do.

All five of De Lacy's House colleagues from Washington were renominated. Three had no opposition.

Even quieter was Utah's primary, in which Senator Abe Murrdock and Reps. Walter Granger and J. Will Robinson, all Democrats, were renominated. Granger, the only one with an opponent, snowed under Edward McPolin of Park City, a first time starter in national politics.

Worley Says Japan's Diet Building Second To Texas Legislature

TOKYO—(AP)—Rep. Eugene Worley (D-Texas), was among a group of American congressmen who toured Japan's big diet building here Tuesday.

The group came to Tokyo after observing the atomic bomb test at Bikini.

The tour of the big diet building drew various comment from the congressmen.

Sen. Hugh Butler of Nebraska said it "puts the Washington capitol to shame." Sen. Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana thought it was "luxurious."

But Worley topped them all with: "Well, it does compare favorably with the Texas Legislature."

Kansas Farmwife Cooks In Between Harvesting

INMAN, KAN.—(AP)—Mrs. O. P. Stroucz, farmwife, makes every minute count during this busy harvest season.

She drove a truck of wheat to the elevator and peeled potatoes while in line for her load to be dumped. Then, back home, she worked several minutes in her kitchen while the truck was being reloaded.

Mrs. Stroucz said she hauled 15 loads of wheat while preparing one meal.

The human body includes 206 bones, held together and moved by 696 muscles.

A-Bomb May Displace Million Tons Of Water

ABOARD USS MCKINLEY—(AP)—One million tons of water—a column nearly a half mile in diameter and 2,000 to 10,000 feet high—will be blown into the air by the underwater atomic bomb, Vice Adm. W. H. P. Blandy estimated Wednesday.

The task force commander said ships within the column area "will get an awful working over" and those near the center are likely to be tossed into the air "in pieces if not together."

It is now planned to explode the bomb about 8:30 a. m. Bikini time July 25 (3:30 p. m., Central Standard Time, July 24).

Nylons Gone After Futile Steak Hunt

AURORA, ILL.—(AP)—Mrs. Geraldine Johnson had finished washing three newly acquired pairs of nylons when she heard a rumor there was steak at her favorite butcher shop.

She hung the nylons out in the yard and went to the shop—but the butcher's counters were bare.

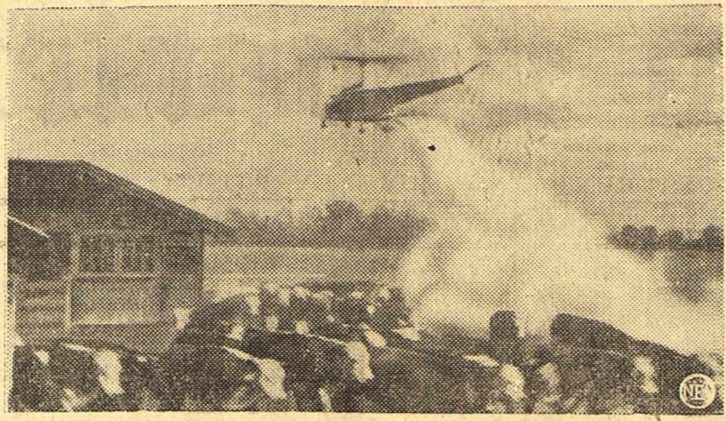

When she returned home she found her clothesline equally bare—a thief had stolen her nylons.

Lost Wisconsin Key Located In Holland

MARINETTE, WIS.—(AP)—Members of the Nick Butman household have been hunting for a missing key to the family car for the last several weeks.

It turned up Tuesday in a letter from Holland. The writer, recipient of clothes donated to Europe's needy by the Butman family, said: "Please find enclosed the key to your motor car. You will certainly have more use for it than we will."

Helicopter May Fan Away Farmers' Worries About Insect Invasions

Hovering over a herd of cattle, a helicopter equipped with "Kelley's Kootie Killer," provides a quick and effective insecticide dusting.

YAKIMA, WASH.—(NEA)—An item catalogued as "Kelley's Kootie Killer" is threatening to shove the helicopter right into the front row of the farm implement picture alongside the tractor and the plow.

The "Kootie Killer" is an aircraft crop and cattle dusting machine adapted to helicopters by Frank H. Kelley, Jr., farm specialist for Bell Aircraft. Coupled with the windmill-type aircraft, the killer has been buzzing over the countryside in these parts to stifle the buzzing of flies and mosquitoes which were threatening herds of cattle.

The helicopter made three or four runs over the cattle to accustom them to the flying windmill, and then hovered just over the herd, releasing DDT. Downdraft of the rotor shot the insecticide to the ground and then swirled it up and around the cattle.

The same plane was used to dry a cherry orchard which had become rain soaked. If allowed to dry naturally in the sun, the cherries would have split and been ruined for marketing. The helicopter, acting as a giant fan, blew the water from the cherries.

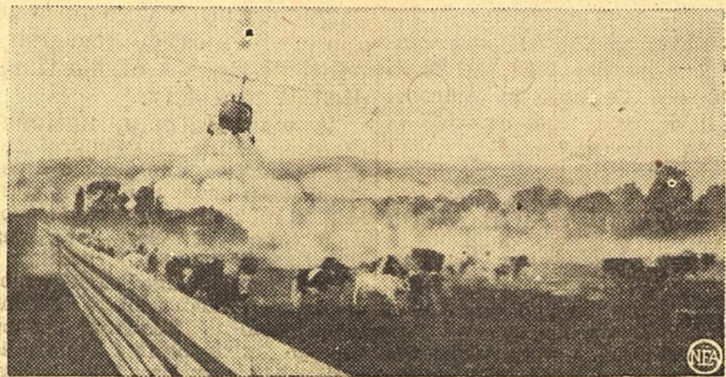

"We won't know until the end of the summer just how successful the helicopter is as a farm machine," says Herman A. Poulin of the Central Aircraft Corporation, here. But Poulin, an authority on aerial farm dusting, adds "we do know that the helicopter is far more efficient than a regular airplane because it actually is dusting and spraying 50 out of every 60 seconds and can be reloaded right on the farm."

May Save Billions

Poulin says a standard airplane dusting fields or cattle is over its working area only seven seconds out of every working minute. The rest of the time, because the plane must make wide turns and travel much faster, is used up in making approach runs.

"We believe," says Poulin, "that we have a machine here that will save the farmer a large percentage of the six billion dollar loss he suffers every year from bugs, weeds, and rodents.

"We'll know for sure by October."

Together with the tractor and the plow, the helicopter and its insect spray may become an effective farm tool.

Lion Committees Are Introduced

Members of the working committees of the Midland Lions Club, who will serve during a new year, were introduced at a meeting of the organization Wednesday noon in the Scharbauer Hotel.

John Biggs, new president, introduced the committees.

In his first meeting as president, Biggs urged cooperation of the membership and commended the retiring president, John Redfern.

The membership committee of the Lions Club for this year is a secret group, it was announced.

Good Growths Of Range Feeds In State Reported

AUSTIN—(AP)—Good growth of range feed, sustained by reserve moisture, was observed in most Texas areas last week, the United States Department of Agriculture reported Wednesday.

However, many western and northwestern areas of the state were dry or becoming dry as high temperatures and winds diminished soil moisture and did some damage to growing crops.

Only in the upper coastal counties did rains continue to keep the soil saturated, said the USDA report.

Cattle and sheep were said to be improving on the new grass starting in central and southern high plains counties.

Haying activities were general, but the wire shortage continued to be a handicap, reported USDA. As wheat combining neared completion in Northern Panhandle counties, machines and labor began moving north.

Sorghums Planted

Most sorghums were reported planted or up to a stand in northern counties of the high plains and planting continued in southern high plains counties. Dry weather was needed for southeast counties' corn crops. Most rice areas still were too wet for best progress, said USDA.

Weather was favorable to growth and development of the cotton crop in most of the state, and conditions were also favorable for insect control. Insect infestations were declared heavy, particularly in blackland and eastern counties.

Cotton was making good growth in northwestern districts, despite some significant damage and loss of acreage caused by high winds and blowing sands. USDA reported active ginning throughout the Lower Valley counties, and cotton was opening as far north as Corpus Christi.

Last Tie To Low Cost Clothing Output Snipped

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Snipping the last price control threat on clothing, the government Wednesday pinned its inexpensive garment hopes on industry competition.

In cutting the threat, Civilian Production Administrator John D. Small expressed the belief that rivalry among clothing manufacturers will serve to hold their prices in line.

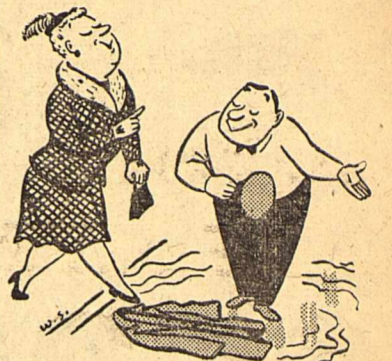

The only clothing price curb left after Wednesday night when Small announced that CPA will continue to allocate a big supply of cloth for garments that should sell at low or moderate prices—but the agency no longer will see that they do.

CPA announced no reason for this, but officials who asked to remain anonymous attributed the action to the Moore amendment to the Second War Powers Act, a law which 10 days ago was continued until next March 31.

CPA's authority to allocate fabric for low-cost clothing stems from the act. The Moore amendment, tacked on to the renewal measure, prohibits any price fixing under that legislation.

In the Greek theater, important actors were given added height by wearing built-up shoes.

Models Revive Buffing

DOLLY BRILL: Buffer beautifies enameled nails.

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer
Buffing nails to make them healthy is a fine beauty routine which bowed out with powder polish. Remember? Well, buffing has been revived and guess by whom? By models whose long glamorous nails are their stock in trade.

But the new procedure, says Conover model Dolly Brill, is to buff over enameled nails, and for best results over a film of nail oil, which lubricates the cuticles. The buffing—in case you don't remember how healthily pink nails used to glow under powder polish—brings blood circulation to the base of your nails from which long, glamorous tips grow.

"The up-from-the-tip motion," Dolly reminds you, "encourages your cuticles to grow back and show a prettier 'moon'."

CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL
OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE

Breathes there an American who isn't checking on cars? Chief question is, "What's different for '46?" An OIL-PLATED engine brings you this swell difference: it will escape lots of carbon and sludge by escaping lots of wear. That special type of wear-defense—internal OIL-PLATING—will likewise favor your oil and gasoline mileage.

You can have an OIL-PLATED engine in any car—in the newest or oldest—just simply by making sure to use Conoco Nth motor oil; that's all.

The difference in Conoco Nth oil—patented—is its added ingredient that OIL-PLATES. This is done in a magnet-like manner—by making metals attract and hold lubricant. And that's what puts inner engine surfaces under cover of OIL-PLATING. It stands in wear's way; acts to prolong that new car feeling. . . . And it will act to prolong any older car's usefulness. So if that's your particular problem, change now to Conoco Nth oil—at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Continent-1 Oil Company

Midland Airport Situation Aired At NAA Meeting

Midland's airport situation was reviewed by City Councilman Stanley Erskine at the July meeting of the Midland Chapter of the National Aeronautic Association in Hotel Scharbauer Tuesday evening. Erskine said the city recently asked the Army to release the Midland Municipal Airport to the city after negotiations for a satisfactory joint operating agreement failed. No reply to the request has been received. Chapter members voted to start publication soon of a weekly aeronautics article in The Reporter-Telegram. M. T. Smith, president, appointed Lawrence Liberty chairman of a committee to be in charge of the publicity. Other committee members are John Molton, R. A. Plunk and A. J. Shelton. Chapter officials were authorized by members present to protest to Continental Air Lines its plan to discontinue the daily Midland-Tulsa flight July 16. The protest will follow up a formal protest filed by the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday. R. B. Cowden announced that a site has been obtained for super-vised flying of model airplanes by members of Midland's Model Airplane Club. The site is located in a dry lake bed on the J. C. Miles property about four miles south of Midland on the Rankin Highway. Model planes may be flown there on Saturdays and Sundays. President Smith announced the National NAA convention will be held in Omaha July 17-19.

Trustees Elect Ten Teachers To School Faculties

Ten teachers were elected to positions on the faculties of Midland Independent School District schools at a meeting of the board of trustees Tuesday night. Discussions of various matters of business featured the session. Sam Spears, former principal of the Junior High School before entering the service, was reelected to that position. Cameron Neal, graduate of East Texas State Teachers College, was elected to the faculty of the Junior High School. He will coach the school "pee-wee" team and assist with other physical education duties. He was coach for two years at Gregory High School. Other teachers elected to the Junior High School faculty include Miss Neva Holt of Pecos who is completing work on her MA degree at Sul Ross College this summer; Miss Ethel Chaudoin of Wharton; Miss Hazel Lyles of Aspermont and Miss Dorothy Perkins of Eastland. Named to the elementary school faculties were Misses Mary Sue Cwens of LaMague and Virginia Norris of Lockney; Mrs. Grenada Peters of Pecos and Mrs. Ottilie Fuller of Iran. Supt. Frank Monroe reported to the board that classroom furniture for the new schools of the system has arrived. A discussion of work being done on school grounds was held.

Pledging a Buyers' Strike

The 350-1000 roll of paper, pictured above, on a Washington, D. The lengthy pledge was made up by the National Emergency Committee for Price Control and presented to the National Association of Manufacturers.

Rainey Is Target As Gubernatorial Candidates Open With Both Barrels

By GARTH JONES Associated Press Staff
 It's beginning to look as if the Bikini atom bomb test was merely a dry run for the Texas Democratic primary July 27. If Tuesday night's oral blasts—replete with everything but the mushroom of orange-colored smoke—are an indication, even guinea pig No. 311 would have a hard time surviving. Grover Sellers said (not mentioning Jester's name), "I have a holdover opponent in this race. He wants to hold that office, be elected governor and name his successor on the Railroad Commission." Rainey made no comment on the attacks. He said lobbyists for the monopoly interests of Texas resources are responsible for the low standard of living of the people of Texas. He told an Abilene crowd that "these monopolies" fear taxation of the great natural resources that would be sufficient to raise teacher salaries, provide adequate funds for a health program and to remove legislative controls "that limit our old age assistance program." Two Ex-Servicemen File Discharge Papers Here Discharge papers of two returned servicemen from the U. S. Navy were filed Wednesday at the county clerk's office. They were for Gene Kenneth Kinsey, former signalman third class, and La Grant Daugherty, ship's service man third class. Case March said, "I don't want any part of Homer P. Rainey. They can give him back to the Indians or the University of Chicago, whichever is closest." Jerry Sadler said he recommended the state provide for negroes "one school that is the very best that money can furnish. I propose and recommend that this negro school shall have an all-negro board of regents, and I shall further propose and recommend that Dr. Homer Price Rainey be made president and that his running mate Dr. J. Frank Doble be made vice president." But "Rainey" wasn't the only name called. Grover Sellers said (not mentioning Jester's name), "I have a holdover opponent in this race. He wants to hold that office, be elected governor and name his successor on the Railroad Commission." Rainey made no comment on the attacks. He said lobbyists for the monopoly interests of Texas resources are responsible for the low standard of living of the people of Texas. He told an Abilene crowd that "these monopolies" fear taxation of the great natural resources that would be sufficient to raise teacher salaries, provide adequate funds for a health program and to remove legislative controls "that limit our old age assistance program."

Orders To Be Received Friday For Peaches

Orders for Grade No. 1 Elberta peaches will be received Friday morning in the assembly room on the third floor of the courthouse by the marketing committee of the county home demonstration clubs. These choice peaches are to be purchased through the Weatherford Marketing Association at $4.50 per bushel, and will be delivered in Midland sometime next week. They are guaranteed not to have worm holes or hail pecks and will be shipped in paper-lined and cushioned baskets. Advertise or be Forgotten.

Nation In General Is 'Holding Line,' Press Survey Shows

NEW YORK—(P)—Newspapers, taking a post-OPA look at the overall price picture and prospects in leading cities of the nation, Wednesday found a general "hold the line" attitude despite sharp boosts in some instances and continuing scarcities in a few lines. In general, they said meat and dairy products prices were up substantially, with supplies of the former increasing. Some points, where meat counters remained relatively bare, thought there would be enough to satisfy demands within a few days. A number of newspapers found that meat and dairy price rises did no more than offset the loss of government subsidies. Other lines of consumer goods were reported stable but there was a question as to whether prices would go up when present inventories are exhausted. The rent situation presented a complex and somewhat tangled appearance. It was confused by reports of sharp increases by some landlords as others refused to budge from former OPA levels. The majority apparently made little or no upward adjustment. Really men seemed to agree that a 15 per cent increase would be appropriate.

THE members of the staff melted away and Kate Channing slipped her arm through that of Mrs. Cantwell and drew her out of the room, closing the door behind them.

"Aren't you just a bit hard on the lady, Doctor?" Sally asked.

"After all, she probably can't help it—admiring you, I do myself."

"I know, my dear," the man frowned, "but you don't know what I have endured at the hands of that woman. I can't, for the life of me, think what I could have done to deserve this."

"Cheer up, Doctor," Sally said. "She can't marry you without your consent, you know."

"Not marry me; but there's such a thing as breach of promise. Did you ever hear of that?" She doesn't know that I'm perfectly aware of her case against Bromwell Avery, the artist. Cost him a cool fifty thousand, smashed both his romance with Helen Moredock and his career. The man's never been the same since. The woman's lacerated."

"She must be," Sally agreed. "Can't your sister protect you? Or why don't you get married? That's the best protection I know of."

"You say it very glibly, my dear; but who would marry an old bookworm like me? I'm neither extremely wealthy nor even tolerably handsome and I'm no longer young."

"And yet the Cantwell woman wants you. You must have something you know. I tell you, how about your neighbor across the hall? Why not consider her?"

She's lovely—sweet, talented and about the right age. Come on, Doctor," she urged, "I'll help. Try writing notes to her—just friendly little billet-doux—"

"HEAVENS!" he cried. "Not love letters. I know enough about law to realize letters may prove to be dynamite, and often are. No, let's keep it verbal—then if nothing comes of it—"

"You mean you will?" Sally cried jubilantly. "Grand! Let's start with that visit tomorrow. I'll get things we can serve—let's see, I'll plan things tonight after I go off duty. We'll have a real party."

"But how can you be sure undesirable won't pop in?"

"I'll No Visitors sign you. And I hope Sunderlin or the Chief won't come nosing around while the party's on."

"I hope you won't get into trouble doing it, my dear. We could have it in the morning. Not many people call mornings."

"That's an idea and we'll make it breakfast instead. Fine! I'll get Kitty to help."

And so next morning soon after nine, Kitty Howard wheeled her patient across the hall to room 327 and the four had a merry time. It lasted until after ten when, by the grapevine, word reached them that the Chief and retinue had begun their daily journey of inspection. By the time the dignified visitors reached the third floor, Doctor Channing was back in bed, listening to his nurse as she read from his latest manuscript while, across the hall, little Miss Newell sat by the sunny window knitting. Both patients greeted their callers pleasantly and the tour of inspection moved on down the corridor to the elevator where the Chief and Miss Sunderlin rode to fourth and the others in the company took the stairs two at a time and were on hand to follow sedately as Doctor Richards and the superintendent took up their slow journey.

DOCTOR CHANNING left the hospital the first week in June. Elizabeth Newell went back to Baston Junction, a village some sixty miles distant. Sally wished she might have been present when the two said good-by. She had a hunch Doctor Channing thought well and often of the slim little woman who had lived across the hall from him for five weeks. But she could find out nothing from her friends although she confessed that she tried. She managed to bring Miss Newell's name into the conversation often during the first days after her departure, but the good doctor was extremely reticent—he was not committing himself.

Kitty Howard was more communicative. She said she had watched surreptitiously as the two shook hands on the day her patient had left and she claimed there was something very romantic about that parting. Miss Newell had been up and about a few hours each day for two or three days and the doctor was walking with a cane and limping scarcely at all. She said he came across the hall and the two stood for several minutes just outside in the corridor and held hands.

"I don't think he kissed her," Kitty said regretfully; "but I know he said something special because when she came back her eyes were shining and her cheeks were like roses but she wouldn't talk. Very suspicious, my dear. Don't you agree? Wouldn't it be grand if it really came to something, Sally?" she said. "They are both so swell!"

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY America's Card Authority

One of the most popular of our better players is Morrie Ellis of New York, who recently returned to tournament bridge after several years in the armed forces. He is one of the most unconventional bidders in tournament bridge. I recall that several years ago he held a hand with a nine-card suit and never bid it.

When discussing today's hand, Ellis said he realized that his partner, North, might be loaded with the majors; nevertheless, with two opponents and one partner, the chances were two to one that the opponents held the major suits.

By making the bid of five diamonds, he knew he would put the opponents on the spot. They could not come into the bidding, and they might misdefend the hand because of his bid.

That was exactly what happened. After cashing the ace of hearts, West cashed the ace of clubs and then tried to cash the ace of spades for the setting trick. If he had played the ace of spades at trick two, Ellis might easily have lost two club tricks.

However, even if he had gone down one trick, Ellis would still have had a good score as East and West could have made four spades easily.

Elis was asked later if he did not feel that he took a chance on losing a slam when he made the five-diamond bid. He said no, that he made the bid to shut not only the opponents, but his partner as well, out of the bidding. He was quite content with the game score. His judgment was perfect.

Settling Of Houston Strike In Balance

HOUSTON—(AP)—A third attempt to settle the 28-day-old combination construction strike and lock-out here will be made Friday afternoon.

Federal Labor Conciliator Joseph Myers will meet again with five-man committees from the Houston Building and Trades Council (AFL) and the Associated General Contractors.

Amarillo Off-Limits To Army Personnel

AMARILLO—(AP)—Amarillo has been declared off limits at night to all personnel of Amarillo Field by Col. Joel O'Neal, commanding officer.

"The order will remain in effect until the city can cope with its hoodlums," O'Neal said after issuing the order.

A conference of military and civilian authorities followed. O'Neal said he issued the order on the basis of reports of gang fights between servicemen and civilians.

Midland Ranked 38th In State Retail Sales

Midland, ranked 34th in population among Texas cities, was 38th in volume of retail sales in 1944 and 1945, the magazine Sales Management reports following its annual survey.

Retail sales in the city during 1945 totaled $10,485,000, the magazine reported.
