Gold Jewelry Banishes Wardrobe Blues

By EPSIE KINARD
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK —(NEA)—Jewelry has the golden touch which banishes the "nothing-new" wardrobe blues during the seasonal transition, if bold pieces are used and worn in inventive ways.

Take a chataleine, for instance, which gives you seemingly yards of gold chain to drape, plus the added gimmicks of jeweled hearts and keys to flash. Drape its chains, fouragers-fashion, and see what happens to any old dud that you want to pull up from end-of-summer dumps. For that effect, attach your chataleine to the top of your sleeve or circle the armhole with your clanking "jool."

Tasseled lariats, used in two contrasting colors — half in gold, half in coral, for instance — and worn at the neckline of a dinner dress will add the Midas touch that makes an old-timer look like a million.

Or encircle your waistline with fringed gold rope — a belt that makes a lassooed midriff look like a wedding ring spiked with wide-spaced pearls.

Slacks that still parade the beach or cabana walks can have their fling at end-of-season glamor, if you'll pin one cuff in, bicycle-clip fashion, with a pair of glittery "jools." Nice for this purpose are golden stars or crescents.

As for the hat that you'd like to bury, you can give it a whirl before it's interred by presenting it with a sparkler. New gold fobs, as hat-lifting as fall feathers, have engraved plaques dangling from star-studded knobs.

The average American ate 225 pounds of fruit annually between 1937 and 1941.

Texas Enters Final Week Before Second Primary Saturday

By The Associated Press

Texas Monday was in the final week of the 1946 bi-annual Democratic primary elections.

After over three months of campaign maneuvering by an unprecedented number of candidates, Texans will vote next Saturday for a governor, a lieutenant governor, a judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals, five congressmen and numerous district, county and precinct officers.

Headlining the ballot will be the names of Beauford H. Jester and Homer P. Rainey, who survived a field of 15 candidates for governor in the first primary last month to enter a run-off that has been bitter, hard fought and filled with issues, charges and counter-charges.

Both Jester and Rainey have a full week of campaigning before the Saturday climax.

Jester, the Corsicana railroad commissioner and a farmer-attorney before he first entered state politics four years ago, will center his final attacks on the Houston and Southeast Texas areas and conclude his campaign at Fort Worth Friday night.

Rainey, the former University of Texas president who is making his first political campaign, will spend the week in the big cities except for taking time out for a rally at Sulphur Springs, home of Grover Sellers, state attorney general who ran third in the July campaign. He will wind up his campaign at San Antonio Friday night after talks at Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, and Sulphur Springs.

Monday night, Rainey will speak over the Texas State Network from Fort Worth, while, in Dallas, Pat Coon will speak over the same network in behalf of Jester.

Move To Slash U. S. Immigration Receives Support

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A move to slash immigration quotas took shape anew Monday in a back-fire to President Truman's announcement that he may ask Congress to let more European refugees enter the United States.

Rep. Gossett (D-Texas) said he will re-introduce a bill as soon as Congress reconvenes calling for a 50 per cent cut in all quotas.

Telling a reporter he has "wide-spread backing" for his proposal, the Texan said a similar measure was defeated by only two votes in the House Immigration Committee this year.

Another Southerner, Rep. Rankin (D-Miss.), commented that nearly all Southern Democrats would support the measure, along with many Republicans.

Truman said in his statement on Palestine last week that he was "contemplating" asking Congress for special legislation to authorize the entry of a "fixed number" of displaced persons from Europe, including Jews.

Even before Gossett's disclosure that he will reopen his fight to trim all immigration quotas, it appeared that the President's proposal, if he makes it, will be in for rough going.

Senator Andrews (D-Fla.), a close friend of Truman and his seatmate for several years when the President was a Senator, said flatly in an interview that the Senate Immigration Committee, of which he is a member, "will not be in favor of increasing the quotas."

One of the few to come to the Chief Executive's support was Senator Taylor (D-Idaho), who termed the plan "commendable" and said this country always has been a "refuge for the repressed."

But Gossett said that most legislators are "fed up" with federal officials "winking at immigration restrictions as they have been doing recently."

He said Americans should "continue to do what we can to aid the distressed in foreign lands," but "to admit additional refugees in the name of Christian charity or for the sake of appeasement is a dangerous policy from which only harm can come."

Three Million Bushels Of Wheat Piled On Ground

SPOKANE, WASH.—(P)—Three million bushels of wheat in the Pacific Northwest, left begging for storage space because of an unprecedented crop and a shortage of railroad cars, are being piled in great mounds on the ground at the mercy of the weather, a survey disclosed Monday.

In the Big Bend country and other eastern Washington areas where the harvest is nearing its finish, railroad sources said 2,000,000 bushels of grain have been spilled out in the open near elevators along their rights of way alone.

One reason for the situation was the bumper crop. The Washington State Production and Marketing Administration estimated it will total at least one-fourth larger than the previous record crop of 1944. The PMA predicted a harvest of 81,138,000 bushels, compared with 63,213,000 last year.

Also, in the Big Bend country, railroad officials reported that sustained warm weather this summer brought on the harvest of spring and winter wheat at nearly the same time, throwing a heavy burden on their overtaxed facilities. At the same time, the Interstate Commerce Commission said that the demand for freight cars was "unparalleled in the history" of the nation.

Custing Trend To Be Tested As N. Y. Votes Tuesday

WASHINGTON—(P)—New York voters write an indirect verdict on the 79th Congress Tuesday. Their primary may prove whether the recent trend that has bowled over some prominent Midwestern incumbents is likely to carry over into the populous East.

Three corrod congressional races, one of which involves a measure of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's prestige in his home district, highlight battles in which party candidates for 45 seats—a tenth of the membership of the House—will be picked.

In New York City's "silk stocking" 17th District, incumbent Joseph Clark Baldwin is being opposed for the Republican nomination by State Senator Frederic R. Coudert, Jr., backed by the regular GOP organization.

Garrison Requests Safer Driving

AUSTIN—(P)—Careless and poorly-trained drivers were blamed by Public Safety Director Homer Garrison in a talk Sunday, for much of the death and destruction resulting from highway accidents.

He told a statewide radio audience that 100-mile an hour cars, 60-mile an hour roads and brakes, and 40-mile drivers are a poor combination for traffic safety.

Garrison did not exempt pedestrians from blame. He said many persons should not be allowed loose on the streets without guardians.

H. J. R. No. 62
HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION proposing an Amendment to Article III of the Constitution of the State of Texas by the addition of a new Section to be known as Section 49-b, creating a Veteran's Land Board and establishing a Veteran's Land Fund; providing for an election and the issuance of a proclamation therefor.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That Article III of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended by adding thereto a new Section to be known as Section 49-b which shall read as follows:

"Section 49-b. There is hereby created a Board to be known as the Veteran's Land Board, which shall be composed of the Governor, the Attorney General, and the Commissioner of the General Land Office. The Legislature shall provide by law for the issuance by said Board of not to exceed Twenty-five Million Dollars ($25,000,000) in bonds or obligation of the State of Texas for the purpose of creating a fund to be known as the Veteran's Land Fund. Such bonds shall be executed by said Board as an obligation of the State of Texas in such form, denominations, and upon such terms as shall be prescribed by law, provided, however, that said bonds shall bear a rate of interest not to exceed three per cent (3 per cent) per annum.

In the sale of any such bonds a preferential right of purchase shall be given to the administrators of the various teacher retirement funds, the Permanent University Funds, and the Permanent Free School Funds; such bonds to be issued only as needed, in the opinion of the Veteran's Land Board under legislative authorization.

"The Veteran's Land Fund shall be used by the Board for the sole purpose of purchasing lands suitable for the purpose hereinafter stated, situated in this State (a) owned by the United States, or any governmental agency thereof; (b) owned by the Texas Prison System, or any other governmental agency of the State of Texas; or (c) owned by any person, firm, or corporation.

"All lands thus purchased shall be acquired at the lowest price obtainable, be paid for in cash, and shall be a part of the Veteran's Land Fund.

"The lands of the Veteran's Land Fund shall be sold by the State to Texas Veterans of the present war or wars, commonly known as World War II, in such quantities, and on such terms, and at such prices and such rates of interest, and under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by law; provided, however, that any such lands remaining unsold at the expiration of eight (8) years after the effective date of this Amendment may be sold to anyone as shall be prescribed by law.

"All moneys received and which have not been used for repurchase of land as provided herein by the Veteran's Land Board from the sale of lands and for interest on deferred payments shall be credited to the Veteran's Land Fund for use in purchasing additional lands to be sold to Texas Veterans of World War II, in like manner as shall be provided for the sale of lands purchased with the proceeds from the sales of the bonds, provided for herein, for a period of eight (8) years from the effective date of this Amendment; provided, however, that so much of such moneys as may be necessary to pay interest on the bonds herein provided for shall be set aside for that purpose. After eight (8) years from the effective date of this Amendment, all moneys received by the Veteran's Land Board from the sale of the lands and interest on deferred payments, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be set aside for the retirement of said bonds and to pay interest thereon, and any of such moneys not so needed shall be deposited to the credit of the General Revenue Fund to be appropriated to such purposes as may be prescribed by law."

Sec. 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of this State at an election to be held throughout the State of Texas on the first Thursday in November, 1946, at which election all voters favoring the proposed Amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots the following words:

"FOR the Amendment to Article III of the Constitution of the State of Texas by adding Section 49-b creating a Veteran's Land Fund for the purchase of lands in Texas to be sold to Texas Veterans of World War II."

These opposing said proposed Amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots the following words:

"AGAINST the Amendment to Article III of the Constitution of the State of Texas by adding Section 49-b creating a Veteran's Land Fund for the purchase of lands in Texas to be sold to Texas Veterans of World War II."

If it appears from the returns of said election that a majority of the votes cast were in favor of said Amendment, the same shall become a part of the State Constitution and be effective from the date of the determination of such result and the Governor's proclamation thereof.

Sec. 3. The Governor of the State of Texas shall issue the necessary proclamation for said election, and shall have the same published as required by the Constitution and laws of this State.

Sec. 4. The sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000) or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the Treasury of the State not otherwise appropriated to pay the expenses of such publication and election.

Peace Conference Enters Fourth Week

PARIS—(P)—The peace conference went into its fourth week in low gear Monday as the Italian economic committee became involved in a lengthy discussion of how various chapters of the Italian treaty should be divided between it and the political committee.

Committees for the Finnish and Hungarian treaties also began deliberations.

France touched off the discussion with a suggestion that the economic committee include on its agenda Article 72, which sets up a conciliation commission in case of disputes over Italian restitution of Allied property.

Russia supported the proposal. Brazil, Yugoslavia, the United States, Greece, Belgium and White Russia all joined in the debate, agreeing that practically all chapters of the treaty have both economic and political aspects, and that consultation with the political committee was necessary to establish some line of demarcation.

The EYE that looked ahead

It was early in 1871. Across the boundless reaches of the Southwest, surveying parties for the Texas and Pacific Railway pushed their way through wild, rugged country. They were the advance men—engineers who marked the way for the shining twin rails that were to follow. They were men of courage and vision, too—men whose eyes looked ahead to the possibilities of a vast empire rising out of the Southwest. Because their eyes looked ahead and because they were determined to realize their dream of a transcontinental railroad across the Southwest, these early builders conquered almost unsurmountable difficulties.

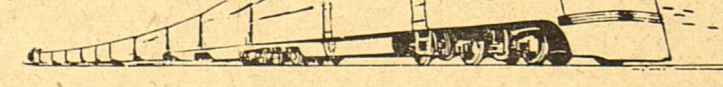

Today their dream of empire is a reality. The Southwest is a mighty land—it is in the vanguard of the new industrial growth of the nation. During these past 75 years of progress, the Texas and Pacific has been a dominant factor in the Southwest's growth. It has furthered its industrial and agricultural development—it has furnished a life line for the flow of commerce. Today, the Texas and Pacific is providing even greater service for the people of the Southwest... with its famous Sunshine Special, the only complete through daily train linking Texas and the East. The coming of the Eagles will usher in a great new era in rail transportation. Yes, Texas and Pacific still looks ahead... seeking new horizons of achievement for the Great Southwest.

CHAPTER I
THEY brought Miss Charlotte into Saint Gregory's Hospital just after the fire.

I had been on vacation and had returned late that night, so I knew nothing about it until the next morning when one of the little probationers told me the story.

"The house was burned to the ground, Miss Hart. Even the trees are gone," she said. "But she wasn't burned badly. She's suffering mostly from shock, Doctor Franklin says, and they've put her in maternity because we're so crowded down here."

"For a moment I felt as if I too were suffering from shock, though after nine years in the nursing profession I had thought myself immune to any such sensation. In that moment, however, I forgot that I was a head surgical nurse at Saint Gregory's. I was a little 17-year-old girl again and I was remembering with sudden poignant clarity that first summer at Innisfail on the hill, and Miss Charlotte as she had been in those days.

"She's not bad-looking," the probationer was saying now. "You know, I thought she'd look like a hag, but she doesn't."

"Somehow it annoyed me to hear a little snip of a girl with a paper-doll face and no figure say condescendingly that Miss Charlotte was not bad-looking.

"Why should she look like a hag?" I demanded. "When I knew her she was beautiful. That was 10 years ago and she was 23. That makes her only 33 now."

I was faintly amused by the look of horror on the probationer's face. My ability to remember back 10 years put not only Miss Charlotte but myself definitely in the hag class.

The girl rallied at once, however, and went on. "It was odd, wasn't it, the way she never went out? And they say they had an awful time getting her down the stairs."

"The stairs?" I said sharply. "What stairs?"

"The front ones," she told me. "The back of the house was a mass of flames, but the front stairs were still all right, and yet she refused to take a step. Are you all right, Miss Hart? You look—"

"I'm quite all right," I said. And then as she turned away I suddenly realized that I hadn't inquired for the others at Innisfail. I called after her. "Clancy, was anyone else hurt or burned?"

"No, Miss Hart," she said. "Every one else got out all right."

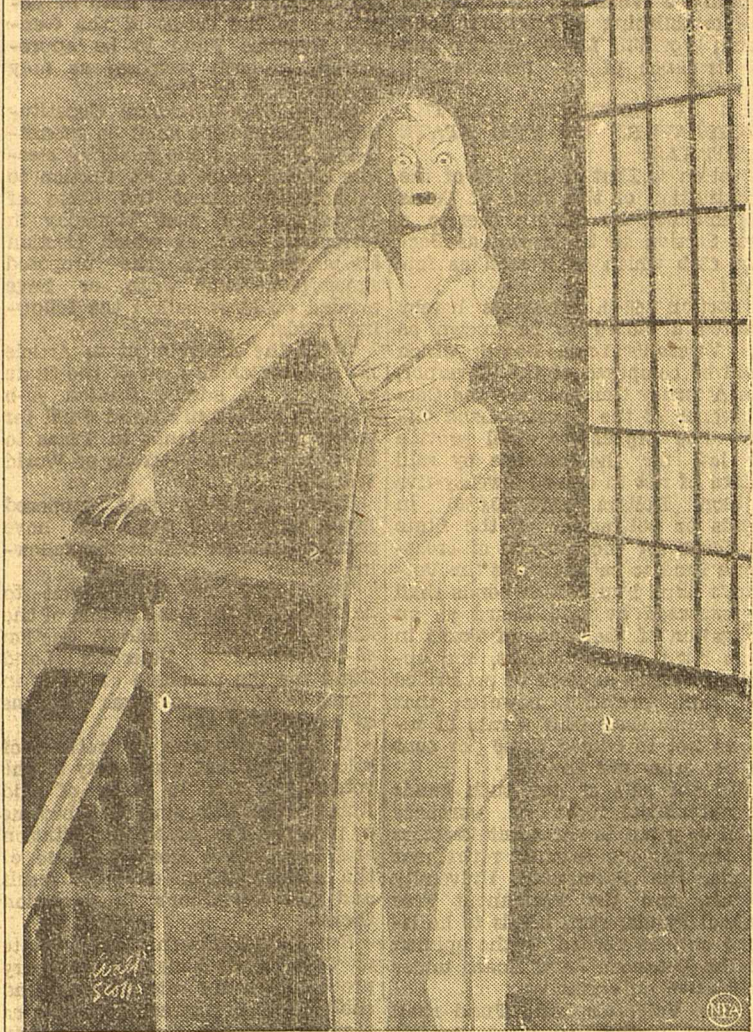

"But my hands were trembling and after she left me I still sat there staring blankly at the charts in the desk before me."

STARING at the charts and not seeing them. Seeing, instead, the front stairs at Innisfail, and trying to realize that the house was no more, that nothing was left of the place, not even the sugar maples.

Like soldiers they'd been, those sugar maples. The tall ones marching in formation straight up to the front door, a scattering of smaller ones at the rear of the house, like scouts on reconnaissance, peering over the ledge at the shallow, winding stream below, as if they expected to find the wretched enemy in little Lost River.

The house itself had seemed to possess two distinct and contradictory personalities for there was the old part, with its low-ceilinged rooms and straight narrow staircases, crouching humbly behind the new, that swaggered across the entire front, where a huge living room opened with French doors to a formal garden.

I thought the living room magnificent, even after I heard Mark's views on it. An atrocity, he called it, and though I had the greatest respect for Professor Mark Fitzgerald—indeed, stood in considerable awe of the gentleman—secretly I always admired that living room.

Perhaps, subconsciously, I agreed with my mother, who considered the Fitzgeralds an insufferable lot, opinionated, snobbish and arrogant. In spite of Cousin Ellen, to whom the Fitzgerald point of view was the only point of view, whatever it happened to be at the moment.

"SURE, they're no peasants, those Fitzgeralds," Cousin Ellen would say, taking great pride of ownership in them, for, after all, had she not been their housekeeper for so many years that they were like her very own? "They've got the blood of kings in them, that's what they've got," she would boast.

"Have they, indeed?" my mother would say scornfully. "Well, maybe that accounts for their bad dispositions."

And Cousin Ellen would be outraged. "They were arrogant, to be sure, all three of them: old Honora Fitzgerald, who was desperately fighting a losing fight with death that summer; Mark, who taught science and mathematics at the Academy, and Colin.

Colin, debonair world traveler, just returned from Indo-China or Malay or some other such place of high adventure and romance.

Ah, yes, Colin was delightfully arrogant. And they lived their lives at Innisfail aloof from others, as the house itself was aloof on its hill above Lost River.

So perhaps they were snobbish, as well, and certainly they were opinionated. And yet—there was some magic about them. What was it they had? I was never able to determine why they made

I was glad to learn that Mrs. Madeline Anderson and Mrs. Leslie Pope Cook, whose bridge club was destroyed in the La Salle Hotel fire in Chicago, have located in new quarters at the Hamilton Hotel in Chicago. This is strictly speaking a rubber bridge club and it is patronized by some of Chicago's finest players. Mrs. Anderson unfortunately will not be able to play for a while because of damage to her eyes resulting from the fire.

Today's hand came up at her club the last time I was there. While three no trump was a sure contract, Mrs. Anderson (South) felt that the 100 honors justified a game bid in clubs. With the opening heart lead, it looked as though she would have to lose two spades and a diamond, but she decided to play the diamonds to split three-three and give herself that one chance to make the contract. She refused to win the first heart trick, but won the second with the ace, cashed the ace and king of clubs and king of diamonds, then led the discarded eight of diamonds on the king of hearts, then led the third diamond and ruffed it. This established dummy's fourth diamond, on which Mrs. Anderson discarded one of her losing spades, losing only a spade and a heart.

Mrs. Anderson could have taken a chance on playing East for the ace of spades. However, if the diamond suit had failed to break, she still would have had that possibility working for her.

Mickey Owen is the picture of dejection as he pounds left hand with right fist after being told by Harold Muddy Ruel, advisor and assistant to Baseball Commissioner Happy Chandler, he will not be allowed to play organized baseball this year.
